Democratic Congressional County Convention.

Notice is hereby given that the Democratic congressional county convention for the purpose of electing 5 delegates to the Fifth Congressional district convention to be held at West Bend, September 8, 1896, will be held at the Grand opera house in Kewaskum, on Saturday, Sept. 5, at 10 p. m. The representation will be the same as at our other county convention.

THE town of Plainfield, Waukesha county, seems bound to become the banner potato town of the northwest regardless of last year's prices, as there are almost 3,000 acres of "Irish lemons" there this year.

THE probability is that John Ulrich, principal of one of the Tenth ward schools in the Cream City, who has been nominated by the Populists, will be endorsed by the Democrats of this congressional district.

THE Milwaukee and Waukesha electric railway company's bond has been filed with and approved by the Cream City authorities, although it is reported that the work of constructing the line will not be resumed until next spring.

THIS "fans" are again kicking for another manager of the Brewers, as their scores are not in keeping with the safe-hits. Better try the Junction City plan of placing a keg of beer on top in the coach's box at third-base.

THE dimmed star of the fistic arena, John L. Sullivan, proved too bright for Thomas Sharkey, at Madison Square Garden this week, although the latter worsted James Corbett in a boxing exhibition in San Francisco several weeks ago.

THE age of consent in this state is undoubtedly the subject of considerable discussion at West Superior since a 35-year-old inhabitant of that place married 13-year-old Etta Mansfield. However, the Milwaukee lady who married a legless man last Sunday has created equally as much gossip about the freaks of cupid.

THE baseball championship, between Fond du Lac and Sheboygan, seems to be of more interest than the political situation in those places. However, it is agreed that the two clubs will settle the matter before election by playing a decisive game on neutral grounds, as the manager of the Sheboyganers has challenged the Fond du Lacers for "$200 a side and the entire gate receipts—in Milwaukee on Sept. 8th," and the latter have accepted the same.

ONE of the most famous, not to say successful, criminals in history is said to be in Milwaukee now, viz: Austin Bidwell. As proof of the saying that "the way of the transgressor is hard" he is about the best living example out of jail. However, he is also proof of the saying that "it is never too late to mend," as he is now engaged in the arduous work attendant upon the occupation of a book agent.

ONE of the most adventurous and hazardous sea voyages ever recorded was started last Tuesday by Captain Fritsch of Milwaukee, who sailed for a trip around the world in a ship which is 33 feet over all with a 10-foot beam and an 8-foot bottom. He crossed the Atlantic a year ago in the Nina, which measured 10 feet more than his present boat, which is called The Schlitz Globe on account of material encouragement given the Captain by one of the leading brewing companies in the Cream City.

THE Democratic nominee for president, Wm. J. Bryan, will speak in Milwaukee under the direction of E. C. Wall, and many delegates to the state convention have remained in the Cream City for the sole purpose of seeing and hearing the "boy orator of the Platte." Two addresses will be given—one at the National park on the South Side in the afternoon, and the other at the Schlitz park in the evening. The Sentinel also states that special rates will prevail at all railroad points within 50 miles of Milwaukee.

LAST Tuesday the Evening Wisconsin contained the following from a correspondent: "All owners of gardens, not to speak of farmers, will be interested in the appearance in this city of a new weed. Just as the terrible and costly scourge of the thistle was introduced into the country through a sentimental Scotchman, who little guessed the outcome of his love for his national emblem, so some people in this city are, unwittingly doubtless, raising as an ornamental plant a weed more dangerous than thistles, sweet clover and burdock. This is the plant botanically known as Datura Stramonium, commonly as thornapple. It grows as large as the burdock, with small, smooth, glossy, dark-green leaves in shape like a thistle's, and bears a flower closely resembling in shape the 4 o'clock or the morning glory, except being larger than these. Its color is white, shading into purple or lilac at the apex, and matures a fruit closely resembling a horse chestnut burr, set close upon the stock in an upright position. This weed, which has spread terribly in the East, and is more dangerous than any we have here because it is very poisonous, ought not to be permitted to get a foothold; energetic measures can yet be taken to prevent its spreading, which should be done at once.

Even money that New York goes Republican.—Evening Wisconsin.

With a good grammarian as stakeholder, the editor of the above paper will admit that a literary man could win the whole pot.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Alethen (blushing)—"Now, don't Mr. Dunsnap! I know little Ferdinand is watching at the keyhole." Dunsnap—"Well, let's gratify his curiosity, and then he may go away."—Pack.

"What's the trouble, John?" "Why, sir, here's a note from Mr. Mahlstick, in which he tells me that he is off on a little trip and he wants me to send his drawing materials along." "Well, and isn't that plain enough?" "Hardly, sir. I don't think you know Mr. Mahlstick. I don't know whether to send his paints and brushes or only his corkscrew."—Boston Transcript.

The examiner wished to get the children to express moral reprobation of lazy people, and he led up to it by asking them who were the persons who got all they could and did nothing in return. For some time there was silence, but at last a little girl who had obviously reasoned out the answer inductively from her own home experience, exclaimed with a good deal of confidence: "Please, sir, it's the baby."—Boston Transcript.

He dropped into a phonograph shop on Broadway. Being from up-state he had to be told how to get the music. It so happened that he selected a machine loaded with one of Sousa's great marches. The cylinder had just commenced to revolve when he bawled out in a voice that startled everybody in the place: "Just my luck, Mary. Here's a brass band coming up the street, and I've forgotten to hitch Bess." And still some people wonder how bunko sharps manage to wear diamonds.—New York Letter.

Probably one of the neatest bits of sharp bargaining ever enacted, says Harper's, took place not long ago between an apparently ignorant German with an abundance of wealth and a sharp dealer in horses. The German wanted a day's outing and decided that a long drive would suffice for his wants, so he applied to the horse-dealer for the hire of his best horse and trap. The dealer, not knowing the applicant, demurred at supplying his wants. The German, determined to have his ride, finally pulled out a huge roll of bills and offered to buy the horse and rig, provided the dealer would buy them back at the same price. This surprised the dealer, but not wishing to offend the owner of so much ready money and possibly a good future customer, he agreed to the deal. The German departed with the horse and rig, and at the end of the day returned them in good condition, expressing his satisfaction at the pleasure the drive had afforded him. The dealer, according to the agreement, paid him back the money, and the German started to leave the place. "I beg your pardon, sir," exclaimed the dealer, "but you have forgotten to pay for the hire, you know." "Pay for the hire? Why, my dear sir," coolly replied the German, "I have been driving my own horse and trap all day, and now you have bought them back; they are yours. There was no hiring about the matter. Good day, sir." And he left the astonished dealer to reflect.

If you have ever seen a little child in the agony of summer complaint, you can realize the danger of the trouble and appreciate the value of instantaneous relief always offered by DeWitt's Colic and Cholera Cure. For dysentery and diarrhoea it is a reliable remedy. We could not afford to recommend this as a cure unless it is a cure.—Chas. Miller.
