IN HONOR OF GRANT.

Majestic Mausoleum Dedicated at New York.

Patriotic Demonstration Such as the New World Never Saw.

New York, April 27.—The crowning honors to the memory of Ulysses Simpson Grant, soldier, statesman and patriot, were paid today by the republic. It is the seventy-fifth anniversary of the birth of him who was destined to become one of the greatest and most successful generals of the Civil war, the "Man of Appomattox," twice President of the United States, and it was eminently appropriate that this anniversary should have been selected for the dedication of the imposing and majestic mausoleum in which his remains will henceforth rest until the sound of Gabriel's trumpet summons the dead from their slumbers.

As great honors have never been paid to the memory of a departed monarch, or man of the people, as today, twelve years after his passing, marked the final entombment of all that is mortal of the "silent man." The nearest approach to it in history is perhaps the demonstration of the French people on the arrival from St. Helena of the remains of the first Napoleon among their embalmers in a sepulcher of the Luvians, but from every point of view the demonstration of today towered over the event in question as historically reported.

The Heat McKinley Present.

Although the bulk of the funds for the memorial were contributed by the people of Greater New York, yet the celebration was no mere local affair. The republic was represented by its chief executives and members of its cabinet and the representatives of the people in the Senate and House of Representatives. Every foreigner joined in the solemn ceremony, through its accredited ambassadors and consuls, and the city of New York, where such representation at the capital was lacking, as in the case of Greece, through its consuls and legations.

While in addition nearly every European country was represented by warships dispatched to the waters around the tomb, twenty states, more or less, were represented through their governors, and Confederate veterans were present among the hardest fighters against the forces of Grant during the war, marched shoulder to shoulder with the men that wore the New World has never seen before and all eyes were turned to Washington at the sight of the President and his cabinet.

People were early arriving and the streets up town began to fill up at an early hour.

THE GRANT MAUSOLEUM.

Mrs. Julia Dent Grant, Col. Frederick D. Grant, Mrs. Frederick D. Grant, Mrs. Nellie Grant, Mrs. Joseph Grant, Miss Nellie Grant, Master Chapman Grant.

Five carriages bearing the rest of the Grant family.

Mr. Gen. W. S. Rosecrans, Maj. Gen. C. Augustus, Maj. Gen. H. G. Wright, Maj. Gen. G. Parks.

Cheers greeted the distinguished party as it moved through the decorated streets, the enthusiasm being so noteworthy that President McKinley's face was joyous and his hat was in a state of constant salute. Mrs. Grant and her family to the third generation were objects of special attention and the widow of the hero was visibly affected at the great popular demonstration.

A Touching Incident.

A feeling of reverence for the great warrior whose remains were to be interred was frequently manifested by persons in the saragophagus crowd surrounding his sepulcher. Gray-haired men were frequently to be seen lifting their hats as they were borne past the tomb in the stream of humanity, and one touching incident occurred early in the morning. An aged lady with snow-white locks and stooped figure stopped near the foot of the monument, and leaning forward she kissed the monument.

Memorial Commemorate with Greatness.

It is right that the great Grant should have a memorial commensurate with his greatness. It is the duty of the republic to be the city of his choice, to which he was so attached in life and of which he was so proud in death. The monument which is to be erected in his honor is the first learned the art of war and of which he became master and which he used to the advantage of his country. It is the duty of the republic to be the city of his choice, to which he was so attached in life and of which he was so proud in death.

Then the chorus and orchestra rendered "The Star Spangled Banner," and Gen. Grant's name was called out in a loud voice. The police then proceeded to the monument which had culminated in the erection of the memorial and gave the salute. The monument was dedicated by Mayor Strong, who accepted the monument in the name of New York. The hall of the monument was filled with the names of the brave men who fought for the Union and the Confederacy.

Great Land Parade Formed.

Meanwhile the great land parade had been forming down town, the head of the column being stationed at Madison street and Twenty-fourth street. Upon the conclusion of the exercises at the tomb, or nearly 1 o'clock, the column moved to Fifty-third street, thence to Fifth avenue and Fifty-ninth, thence to the Boulevard and Fifty-ninth, thence to the Boulevard and Fifty-ninth, thence to the Boulevard and Fifty-ninth.

Confederates Contribute a Wreath.

The Sons of Confederate Veterans, who were to arrive at the tomb at 10:30, arrived in a carriage with Gen. Porter and Mayor Strong. His reception was flattering in the extreme and he bowed reverently to the throngs of people who were gathered around him. He spoke for some twenty minutes in his usual clear-cut style, saying stress upon the lesson to be learned from a study of the life of the great commander.

President McKinley's Address.

Follow Citizens: A great life dedicated to the welfare of the nation. Even if this day lacked the impressiveness of ceremony and the grandeur of the occasion, it would still be memorable because it is the anniversary of the birth of the man who was destined to become one of the greatest and most successful generals of the Civil war, the "Man of Appomattox," twice President of the United States, and it was eminently appropriate that this anniversary should have been selected for the dedication of the imposing and majestic mausoleum in which his remains will henceforth rest until the sound of Gabriel's trumpet summons the dead from their slumbers.

STONE THE PALACE.

Mob Gathers in Front of the King's Residence and Demands a Republic.

Athens, April 28.—Public excitement is increasing every hour. The foreigners are hoisting their national flags over the buildings situated by them. A popular outbreak is feared.

Mob in Front of the Palace.

Crowds last evening stoned the palace, broke its windows and cried, "Down with King! Down with Prince Constantine! Give us a republic!"

London, April 28.—Special dispatches from Rome say that news has been received there from Athens concerning King George and his government has become graver.

Prize Constantine Stays.

Athens, April 28.—The report that the King was compelled to sign a decree releasing Prince Constantine from his duties is unconfirmed. It is believed that the King will remain at the head of the army.

Expect an Engagement.

London, April 28.—A special dispatch from Athens this evening says that a general engagement between the Greeks and Turks is expected tomorrow at Velesino, where the Turks have just been defeated.

No Quorum in the Senate.

Athens, April 28.—Noon.—For want of a quorum the Senate adjourned today. A session of the legislative assembly has been further postponed.

It Was Voluntary.

And now we are informed that Queen Liliuokalani's abdication was entirely "voluntary." Doubtless—but after the fashion of the "underfoot" choice of the monarch, it was a voluntary choice.

IS speaking of the governor's message vetoing the bill to reduce the wage-earner's exemption, the Fond du Lac Commonwealth says: "There was so much justice and good sense in the governor's message, that when the assembly voted on the question of passing the bill, the veto notwithstanding, there were only three votes in favor of its passage."

BY the passage of the new fish and game law, all the deputy fish and game wardens of the state, of which there are 150 or more, were legislated out of office. By that law the commissions of all the deputies were annulled, and until others can be appointed the state will be without local wardens.—Bellevue Free Press. In this connection we learn that State Fish and Game Warden Ellerson "is sending out circulars calling attention to the fact that two deputy fish and game wardens are to be appointed by him in each county, upon the recommendation of the county judge, district attorney and county clerk (acting jointly) and urging prompt action on their part in making recommendations."

THE constitutional amendment to give Milwaukee county another judicial circuit was adopted by a majority of 3,863 votes. In commenting thereon the Racine Journal says: "The measure applied only to Milwaukee, but many distant communities went after it on the proposition that a vote against something, the true import of which they did not know, was a safe course." Further, in regard to the small majority, that paper says: "This furnishes another instance of the absurdity of designating an amendment by chapter and section only on the ballot. It is ridiculous to expect the average voter to take chances on an unidentified proposition, and he is entirely justified in keeping on the safe side." In this connection it may be stated that Chap. 120 (No. 17 S) amends the general election laws so that, when a constitutional amendment is to be voted upon, a concise statement of the nature of the amendment will be printed on the ballot.

In regard to the Greco-Turkish war the London News, just before the outbreak, said that the sultan was conducting himself admirably and that Greece was provoking a war that was entirely unnecessary. In justifying the latter assertion that paper also quoted a dispatch sent, under similar circumstances in 1886, to the British representatives abroad. It seems that the dispatch expressed the opinions of both Mr. Gladstone and Lord Rosebery, who are at present strong supporters of the Greeks, whereas the News remarks that the dispatch is quite as applicable to the condition of Greece as it was eleven years ago. The great London journal is also of the opinion that, without the intervention of the powers, Greece is doomed to great disaster; that her only salvation depends on the protection she may receive from the powers, and that such protection may be extended so that Greece can get out of the war better than she would otherwise.

By disregarding the advice volunteered by amateurs and theorists the legislature has framed a primary election law that will give general satisfaction. It applies to municipal elections in cities of the third and fourth class only, when the people so decide, but the test of the law at the next general election is likely to be so satisfactory as to insure its use at all elections. One feature about the law will appear cumbersome—the preliminary ward meeting to present names for a caucus ticket. It was found difficult to devise any other method that would give all factions fair representation, however, and the extra meeting was thought preferable to the risk of excluding the name of any bona fide candidate from the ticket.—Jonesville Gazette.

A few old-fashioned thunderbolts from Jupiter at his seat on Olympus would help out the Greeks mightily, and renew old associations. The old man has a great chance, being right in the Turkish rear.—Springfield Republican.

Judge Worley of Osawatimie has written a drama under the title of "Three Glimpses of Hell." The judge spent a fortnight in Topeka during the recent legislative session, but we have no idea where he found the other two.—Kansas City Journal.

It should be made a matter of public knowledge that De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve will speedily cure piles of the longest standing. It is the household favorite for burns, scalds, cuts, bruises and sores of all kinds.—Chas. Miller.

SCOTT SAYINGS.

The woods are full of flowers, since the rain last Saturday.

Ed. Woog has been buying most of the calves in this vicinity.

Miss Mary Fellenz is doing house work at I. Brazelton's in Batavia; and her brother, Henry, has employment in the Quick Sale store at West Bend. Supervisor Teusch spent last Tuesday at Beechwood on business.

The entry at the school house in Dist. No. 4, which the high wind of two weeks ago overturned, has been repaired.

Our local fishermen are in high spirits.

Mat. Stahler and Peter Schaffer have gone to New Prospect, where they have employment as carpenters with Peter Uelmen.

Prin. Backley of Boltonville is the latest addition to the Modern Woodmen camp.

Mrs. White visited at J. R. Smith's, in Boltonville last week.

The country seems to be overrun with doctors; hardly a day goes by without one calling. The latest is a lady selling a preparation to make the black white; and, we suppose, the white black.

Frank Klaus is talking of buying the house and lot in Boltonville belonging to Michael Mulvaney.

Rev. Otto's oldest son is attending school at Boltonville.

Mr. Seil and workmen are doing mason work for Carl Blackmore.

Miss Emma Fellenz, who has been working for Chas. Weingartner, is home again.

Mr. Wilkie has let the job of building his new house to contractors at Batavia.

Michael Schoetz is making his home at Mr. Bruer's and has commenced gardening. What he is waiting for is someone to help him eat the greens. We suppose there will be a charivari as soon as that new house is gone and the lady comes from town.

When the spring time comes, "gentle Annie," like all other sensible persons, will cleanse the liver and renovate the system with DeWitt's Little Early Risers, famous little pills for the liver and stomach all the year round.—Charles Miller.

ST. MATHIAS SIFTINGS.

J. Kaas, Sr., and daughter returned, last Tuesday from Barton, Wis., where they had been visiting.

Mary Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Smith, and Albert Harrington of Tachedah, were united in the bonds of matrimony last Monday at the residence of the Rev. F. X. Heller. The bride was attended by Barbara Uelmen, and the groom by Adam Smith. The young couple have our best wishes for a long and happy life.

Three years is a long time to fight so painful a trouble as piles, but Jacob Mitchell of Unionville, Pa., states that long before he tried DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, which quickly and permanently cured him. It is equally effective in oozes and all skin affections.—C. Miller.

PERSONAL.—The gentleman who annoyed the congregation last Sunday by continually coughing will find instant relief by using One Minute Cough Cure, a speedy and harmless remedy for throat and lung troubles.—Chas. Miller.

Menomonee Falls Sugar Factory Closed.

The plant of the Wisconsin Beet Sugar company shut down last Wednesday, most of the workmen having been discharged during Monday and Tuesday. The reasons given is that the beets on hand only produce from 2 to 7 per cent sugar at best, and that there is dissension among the officials of the company.

The citizens are in hopes that the factory will resume operations, as it has been demonstrated that beets with a test ranging from 12 to 16½ per cent can be raised in the vicinity of Menomonee Falls and the farmers had prepared to go into the beet raising industry quite extensively.

When a cold is contracted, cure it at once. One Minute Cough Cure will set you on the road to recovery in a minute. It will cure pneumonia, bronchitis, croup, and all forms of lung and throat troubles.—Chas. Miller.

Discharge from Her Ears—Top of Her Head Broke Out in Scrofulous Eruptions.

Grew Worse Under Treatment Till We Gave Her Hood's Sarsaparilla—She Has Her Checks Now.

"When my baby was two months old she cried night and day, and seemed to be in great pain. She had a discharge from her ears, and the top of her head broke out in scrofulous eruptions. The doctor gave me something to stop the discharge and ease the pain, but his treatment did not cure her and she grew worse. I tried everything I could find, but she grew worse. I was told to give her Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I did so. In a short time her hair grew out and she now has rosy cheeks and is all right in every way. I feel that I owe you, Mr. J. C. Ayer & Co., for what you have done for my baby. Scoff and Cough.

The man who scoffs at the friendly advice, to "take something for that cough," will keep on coughing until he changes his mind or changes his earthly residence. A great many scoffers have been converted by the use of the standard cough remedy of the past half century—Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. But some are scoffing and coughing yet. They breathe with asthma, bark with bronchitis or groan with the grippe. Singular, isn't it, the number of stubborn people, who persist in gambling, with health and perhaps life as the stake, when they might be effectually cured of cough, cold or lung trouble, by a few doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

WHITEHEAD TORPEDO LOST.

Not Loaded, but Officers of the Indiana Would Like to Recover It. A Whitehead torpedo, launched from the battleship Indiana during target practice off Stapleton, S. I., recently, has gone astray. It is not loaded, and can, therefore, do no harm, but as these engines of destruction cost $2500, the navy department and the officers of the battleship are anxious to recover the missing machine. It was 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning that the crew, having gone to quarters, torpedo practice was begun under direction of Lieut. Honston. The torpedo was set to rise under a target 500 yards distant. It rose twice to the surface of the water, and then disappeared. A whaleboat was lowered and sent with the steam launch to search for the torpedo, but without success. Repeated searches have since been made, with like results.

The torpedoes are cigar-shaped steel shells, fourteen feet long and about four inches in diameter, equipped with twin screws worked by compressed air, and capable of making thirty knots for 800 yards. They are launched from torpedoes mounted on the deck. The internal mechanism turns the screws set in motion, and their course beneath the water is regulated by flanges and rudders. One mechanism is intended to rise to a certain distance, when in actual service they are exploded from impact, the explosion being the result of a ward end. For target practice, the weight of a charge is supplied by water, and a false wood head is substituted. The torpedo is 13,000 feet above sea level. The greater part of its ascent will be by a spiral tunnel in the bowels of the mountain, finally curving around the side of the mountain. The ascent will stop on a little plateau 200 feet from the summit. Thence an elevator or hoist will lead to the top. The journey will occupy 100 minutes, and the round trip fare will be $8. The cost is estimated at a little over $200,000.

Experts have been investigating the question whether it will be safe to take ordinary tourists to such a high altitude, especially if the latter are suffering from an organic disease. The gist of the great volume of medical testimony adduced is that rarefied air in itself is insufficient to produce mountain sickness unless accompanied by the effects of excessive fatigue. The committee of the Swiss Alpine club declare themselves "perfectly convinced that, given the proper precautions, it is possible to ascend without any kind of muscular exertion, persons in good health and with sound constitutions have no evil consequences to fear from a short sojourn at the top of the Jungfrau."

For the benefit of delicate persons it is proposed to employ a medical man at the station for consultation.

Found a Sapphire in the Glove.

Howard Jelene of Passaic is secretary of the gun detachment of the Second regiment, N. G. N. J. When the detachment was ordered to Washington last week, he carried with him a pair of gloves. He found a sapphire in the glove. He found a sapphire in the glove. He found a sapphire in the glove.

Lighthouse in the Center of Brussels

Brussels has simply gone wild over the project of converting itself into a seaport. Not only the people, but the authorities as well, seem to be in a fever of excitement. The project is to build a lighthouse in the center of the city, and to connect it with the sea by a canal.

Another Court Scandal at Berlin.

Berlin is in the throes of another court scandal. An individual of the name of "Herr" tried to obtain money under false pretences at Hanover, and has been acquitted in consequence of the discovery that he had in his possession a number of imperial pardons, in which he dealt. He has a brother who occupies a high position in the government, and has long been in intercourse with Herr von Luccan, the private secretary of the Emperor, and chief of the imperial pardon bureau.

Composition Floors and Ceilings.

In a new German process for fireproofing floors and ceilings metal strips are laid on curved rods resting on the lower flanges of a composition floor. The composition is composed of gypsum mixed with sand, ashes or cinders, is applied to form the ceiling. The space between the floor and the ceiling is filled with blocks of slag or concrete or brick arches. The spaces between the floor and the ceiling are filled with blocks of slag or concrete or brick arches.

Borax in Washing Flannels.

In order to suppress or to diminish the tendency of certain tissues, such as flannels and shirts, to shrink, a French patent proposes to run the goods through a strong solution of borax mixed with alumina and a dilute acid, or to wash them in a solution of borax. It is asserted that this treatment preserves the goods from shrinking, and that they will become damp in wearing, but also after thorough washing.

Roller Mills Burned.

Wm. Meyer's Plant at Kiel Destroyed—Elkhart Lake, Wis., April 26.—[Special.]—The Kiel Roller mill, owned by William Meyer, burned to the ground yesterday at 4 o'clock. The loss is $125,000, insurance, $4000. The building was a stone structure and nothing but the walls are standing. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

More Greeted than Patrioticism.

Much indignation has been caused in England by the discovery that British firms have, within the last three months, shipped an enormous quantity of war material, such as small arms, ammunition and machine guns, to the Transvaal by the Delagoa bay. The British government has avowedly and openly preparing for a conflict with England, the war material in question is obviously intended for use against British troops. The British government has, in consequence of this, established a rigid system of observation in respect of the United Kingdom, and at every fishing town detectives from the police department at Scotland yard have been sent to the coast for the purpose of co-operating with the local coast guards.

Blood Poison and Insanity.

Who has felt the effects of blood poison given to the staff of this important institution (the State Institute of Pathology), it is but fair to state that the study of toxicemia in connection with insanity is by no means a novelty. The following is a summary of the enterprising young gentleman (connected with that establishment) who has been studying the subject for a decade ago. Salomon, Regis and others recognized the toxic origin of mental diseases, while no other medical writers among them Herter and Smith, have written extensively on the subject. Perhaps most credit should be given to Allan McLane Hamilton, who gave the name "Autotoxemia as a Cause of Insanity" was read before the Medical Society of London in May, 1881, and was published in a London paper a short time subsequently. His paper contained much original research, the connection between toxicemia and insanity was fully shown.

The Book was Wrong.

Representative Fleming of Georgia made an effort on the floor of the House on Saturday to show that an appeal from the Speaker's decision was a debatable question. Mr. Reed said that it was not. After the adjournment, Mr. Fleming went to the speaker with a little red book. It was entitled "The Debatability of Questions." In it was a paragraph which showed that the appeal could be debated.

What do you say to that? asked Mr. Fleming, triumphantly.

"I see it," drawled Mr. Reed, as he looked at the book. "It is a good book, but Mr. Fleming, the book is wrong."—Washington Correspondence New York.
