It is a safe prediction that more wealth will be carried into the Klondike region in the next two years than will be taken out of it during that time.

The scheme to tax bachelors will hardly work so long as the want-crowds of the daily papers are crowded with calls for maids to do house-work.

The Luettgen case at Chicago is remarkable principally for the amount of manufactured evidence which it contains. It is a case of nip and tuck between the prosecution and the defense in this respect.

The advance in the price of flour is said to have led the bakers of Appleton to reduce the size of their loaves. But, as bread does not sell by the pound, we presume the average baker manages to puff up his loaves to the regular size, regardless of "the advance in the price of flour."

The Martinsburg, (Pa.) Herald says that Dr. Mitchell of Somerset county, received the awful (?) sentence of ten months in jail and $900 fine for killing a young girl by a criminal operation. If this is not a travesty on justice we know nothing about it.—X. The only wonder is that the Doctor was convicted at all.

The recent report that W. J. Bryan accepted a pass from the Southern Pacific railroad company appears untrue considering the fact that the transportation was in the shape of a mileage book due on advertising done by the Omaha World-Herald, and the further fact that Mr. Bryan is a part owner of that paper.

The special commissioner, Philip G. Byrd, who was detailed by Governor Atkinson last spring to investigate the condition of the county misdemeanor convict camps of Georgia, has filed his report. It shows that the condition of these camps is so horrible and so inhuman as to be almost beyond belief. The report alleges definitely that the keepers are guilty of these crimes, viz: Robbing convicts of their time allowances for good behavior; forcing them to work from fourteen to twenty hours a day; not providing them with clothes; not granting them heat in winter nor ventilation in single rooms in summer, in which sixty convicts sleep in chains; giving them rotten food; allowing them to die when sick for want of medical attention; assaulting women convicts; beating to death old men too feeble to work; wantonly killing young men; suborning jurors and county officers; and cheating the state.

A COMMUNICATION.

As the time is drawing near when teachers will be in the school-room again, let us first be careful what teacher we select to guide our children. Is he fit for the position? Is he able to guide my boy or girl—not only in education, but in moral character?

THE SCHOOLS IN OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS. The aim of moral training should be to create new ideas; that is, to secure by example, by recognizing and fostering gentlemanly instincts whenever such are displayed, by solidly insisting on correct ways through the discreet use of anecdotes and through instructions as to good manners. All this requires much skill, in order that the means used may not over-throw the ends and the means more than good.

One who is to be the guide and model of ingenious youths should be above reproach, as evil reports regarding him, when lurking about in a corner, and sensed by the school children, are the source of incalculable mischief and may counteract any good he may do.

Peddlers Must Have License. The late legislature enacted a law which requires all book agents to take out a license. The same law applies to many other kinds of peddlers, and below are the directions received from the attorney-general:

"Agents will bear in mind that only the manufacturer, mechanic, nurseryman, farmer or butcher keeping a regular place of business can sell his own production by himself or employe. All other persons must provide a license before they will be allowed to peddle sewing machines, musical instruments, lighting rods, pumps, Yankee notions, books, patent and other medicines, soap of all kinds, dry goods, cloth of all kinds, yarn, china and tinware, groceries, boots and shoes, meats of all kinds, and all other articles of trade, of whatever description and too numerous to mention."

The law is designed to protect home merchants (who pay the taxes) from the encroachments of traveling vendors of all kinds.

A Trio of Heavy-Weight Maidens. Joseph Davis is a farmer residing near Huntington, W. Va. About fifteen years ago a boy was born to Mrs. Davis, but lived only two months. She then vowed that should Providence again favor her with a child her life should be one of worship and prayer to the Creator for the health and life of the child.

A year later, when a little girl came, the mother's time was divided between the child and her devotions. Hour after hour she spent upon her knees. Sleepless nights evidenced the keeping of her vow, and she seldom spoke, but in words of prayer that health might be vouchsafed to her daughter. Two years later the child tipped the scale at 108 pounds, and now weighs 384 pounds.

Two more daughters have also been born to Mrs. Davis, the youngest weighing 246 pounds at the age of 7 years, while the other weighs 380 pounds at the age of 9 years.

The season for shooting wood and water fowl opened last Wednesday. However, there is an open question as to how shooting may be carried on so far as the use of boats and blinds is concerned. The section of the statute bearing on this is not so clear as it should be, and some hold that the use of natural blinds, such as are afforded by growing rushes, is permissible, while others assert that boats must be in open water. Still, there is no barrier to the use of decoys, and the probability is that no game will be lost by hunters in this section on account of the diversity of opinion as to the use of blinds, natural or un-natural.

CORN-HARVESTER TRIAL.

Plymouth, Wis., Aug. 27. The much-talked-of corn-harvester trial on the farm of H. J. and John P. Goelzer, advertised by the Deering agents, came off yesterday afternoon and was attended by a large crowd of prominent farmers; and, as usual, the victory for the McCormick was complete. The start was made in heavy, tangled, fodder-corn, each machine opening its own land. The McCormick was the first machine started cutting the amount allotted and picking up the down-row without a skip, break, stop or assistance from anybody.

The deering was then tried. It began as usual by chocking, and was only enabled to cut the standing corn with the assistance of two experts. The tangled corn was even more than the experts could handle. Some of the farmers remarked that it ground the corn-fodder finer than most shredders could. However, they finally gave up the down-row and left it for the farmer to cut by hand.

Then both machines were exhibited at work at the same time, and the decision of the farmers present was unanimously in favor of the McCormick. The machines were next tried in field-corn, and the McCormick again demonstrated its superiority. The Deering checked down completely and the McCormick had to cut the Deering's down-row in order to return to the starting point.

J. E. Zahn, general agent for the Deering at Fond du Lac, admitted that they were fairly beaten. The McCormick was represented by W. L. Jones, assisted by E. M. Corwin, W. J. Cook, John Mack, W. H. Fischer and Wm. Trowbridge. The Deering was represented by J. E. Zahn, assisted by Ferd. Kohl, Henry Timm and Wm. Schuler. The judges were Wm. Swart, J. D. Grove and J. S. Griffin, and their decision was unanimously in favor of the McCormick.
