GEO. NUGENT, Editor.

MILWAUKEE'S semi-centennial celebration is sure to succeed. The able young men of the financial committee have already raised enough money to get their pictures in the daily papers.

AN African Baptist church in Milwaukee is in danger of foreclosure to satisfy a mechanic's lien. Are the Milwaukee Baptists so color-blind that they will permit such a scandal to come on their denomination?

THE father of Margaret Mather, the celebrated actress, applied to the authorities of Detroit for alms last week. In answer to a question as to why his daughter did not do something for him he said he would accept no help from her.

CHICAGO people are never satisfied. There was a great howl in the Lincoln family a few days ago because a daughter had found a bridegroom, and now another family is in mourning because the gentleman who was to officiate at a wedding in the family failed to come to time.

HENRY SHERRY of Neenah, one of the largest lumbermen of the state, failed last week, owing debts of about $1,000,000. It must certainly be prosperous times when a single man can accumulate that amount of indebtedness, but Weyler's record shows that all is not true that comes over the wires from Cuba.

THERE is nothing small about the manager of the Milwaukee street railway. When a sewer caved in last week and made it dangerous to run the cars on the track near the break, the railroad manager wanted the city to pay the expense of building a temporary track to use until the sewer was repaired.

THE last state fair in Milwaukee cleared $2,000, and yet the state agricultural society is to be debarred from giving fairs in the future, the matter being given over by statute into the hands of a state board. It is to be hoped that the board will be as successful as the society has been this year, but the chances are against it.

NEARLY 15,000 hunters took out licenses to hunt deer in the Wisconsin forests this month. What an army to pursue the timid denizens of the woods. The hunters were numerous enough to form a line of battle across the state and exterminate the poor deer if they had gone about it in that way, but they hunted in small parties it is likely that some of the animals escaped.

OSIDA county will give homestead rights to settlers on the county lands. It is a plan that ought to be adopted by all the counties which have large areas of tax-free lands, so as to attract settlers and get the lands into possession of new owners who will pay taxes upon them in the future. The lands, as they stand, are worth nothing to the counties, but a family on every 80-acre tract would be a valuable acquisition. There are plenty of families in the cities of the state who would be glad to take such a tract of land and make a farm of it if they could get it.

THE pretty little city of Oconomowoc has had a domestic tragedy that is rarely equalled in horror, and the authorities are trying to bring the crime home to its perpetrators. Two little babes and their consumptive father were the victims, and suspicion rested upon the mother and a male boarder, though they deny all knowledge of the crime. Surely, none but fiends or insane persons could be so diabolical as to commit such a horrid deed, and justice demands the closest scrutiny into the affair.

THE Superior Telegram well and truthfully says: "One fact must impress the veriest novice in financial matters, and that is the celebrity with which a bank examiner assures him self of a bank's condition. Let even a small institution collapse and it takes weeks of expert investigation to learn the condition of its affairs from its books; but the bank examiner, through some clairvoyance, learns all about an operating bank's condition during an amiable social call. When a bank goes to pieces with disaster to its depositors, and yet can show that it checked up satisfactorily to the bank examiner a few weeks before, it may safely be concluded that the state's supervision is a farce or else there is good ground for a charge of grand larceny against the bank. An examination that doesn't examine is dear at any price."

WHEN lovely woman is sagacious enough in the game of politics to beat the male politicians of the present day it is a strong argument either in favor of or against woman suffrage, we do not know which. In a Nebraska county a woman was nominated for superintendent of schools by the Populists to oppose the Republican candidate, a gentleman. Just before the day of election the Populist candidate withdrew. It was then too late to nominate another candidate and the Republican was elected. The day after the election it was announced that the candidate who was elected was to marry the candidate who retired, and then the fact became known that the young people had been secretly engaged for some time and that obtaining the Populist nomination was simply a sharp game of politics.

JUDGE JOHN F. POTTER of Walworth county, who was a congressman before the war and obtained a national reputation by choosing howie knives as weapons when challenged to fight a duel with Roger A. Pryor of Virginia, was mustered into the Grand Army of the Republic at his home last week by Col. E. B. Gray, department commander. Judge Potter was a member of an emergency corps at Washington called the Clay battalion in the spring of 1861, when it was feared that the rebels would attack the city. After the war he was consul-general to Canada for a few years, since which time he has lived in retirement on his farm. He was 80 years old last June and has been in feeble health for some time. The Clay battalion was organized and commanded by Gen. Cassius M. Clay of Kentucky, who is still living. It was composed of office-holders, office-seekers and lobbyists who had congregated at Washington on the beginning of Lincoln's administration, but it is only within a very recent period that any of its members claimed to be eligible to membership in the Grand Army of the Republic.

AFTER a long rest, alleged Cuban news comes to the front again, and, as congress is soon to assemble, the chief phase of most of the dispatches is that the rebels are so strong that their success is almost certain. The new Spanish general is represented as trying to treat with Cuban leaders and induce them to favor autonomy by offers of money and high rank in the Spanish army. Evidently the telegraph has been enlisted into the jingo cause, and the game is to obtain American interference, but Weyler's record shows that all is not true that comes over the wires from Cuba.

A COMMUNICATION.

The County board has closed its work and the members have returned to their homes to resume their various vocations. From a casual observation of their work we are in a position to say that the manifest desire of that body is to manage all the affairs of the county upon economical principles, particularly in matters relating to the county's finances. The claims against the county were examined with care, and adjusted with apparent fairness toward creditor and debtor.

The only just criticisms that can be offered on their work is the tendency to adhere to long established customs and usages. The almost unanimous sentiment being to let well enough alone and not undertake new ventures which are necessitated by the growth and progress in the various communities in the county. First in order in this line is the proper and just apportionment of taxes through a fair and equitable equalization of the assessments of the various towns, cities and villages in the county. To continue and confirm valuations of these different precincts as established years ago in the face of the fact that the accumulations and improvement of property does by no means keep even pace in different communities, as must be apparent to the most superficial observer, seems to us a plain and direct violation of the law and of all the principles of taxation. To correct this, however, and to secure a just distribution of taxes requires a radical deviation from the methods in practice, inasmuch as a correct basis for computation must first be fixed, and to do this properly is perhaps too much of a task to be performed in one short session. Provision, however, could easily be made to give the proper commission ample time to collect reliable statistics and, whenever necessary, to make personal inspections in order to formulate a report which can be relied on as approximately correct.

It is plain that the cost of maintaining the county and all its institutions must increase in the same proportion, nearly, as do the improvements therein, hence the importance of placing the tax burdens in a just proportion to existing valuation.

This is not written with a view of venting our feelings upon the subject, but simply to call attention to matters which are capable of improvement, and therefore deserve careful consideration.

WEST BEND BLORE.
Winter has at last made itself plainly and thoroughly felt. The change from an almost tropical heat of a week ago to the temperature of the vicinity of the North pole is not a very agreeable sensation, but it is always best to adapt ourselves to the freaks of nature, even as to climate.
Thanksgiving was observed here in great style this year, and the Turks had to suffer for it. Instead of attempting to fight the Turks, and in all probability get licked, it is a great deal wiser to follow the American custom, which consists of offering their mortal remains to the Lord of all mankind—the appetite.
Having recently had an opportunity to inspect the streets and sidewalks built during the past year in the much abused village of Kewaskum, your correspondent was highly pleased with the manner in which public improvements are made there. The sidewalks laid now correspond with the grade of Main street, giving that thoroughfare a fine appearance, much more so than in other places where it seems the walks were built primarily for the benefit of the owner, rather than for the public.
