DEATH OF DR. G. S. PICKETT.

Was the First to Practice Medicine in This Vicinity—One of the Founders of the Milwaukee Medical Society.

Last Monday morning the death of Dr. George S. Pickett was reported as having occurred at Elgin, Ill., where he went from Campbellsport recently to visit his daughter. The deceased was the first person to practice medicine in this vicinity, now 50 years ago, and was well known as an excellent physician throughout his whole practice in this section. He then lived near New Cassel, on the present site of Campbellsport. After an absence of many years spent in practicing elsewhere, he returned about eight months ago and did a little professional work at the Campbellsport up to the time of his departure for a visit with his daughter. The Doctor's last visit to Kewaskum was on the 13th of last October, when he seemed to be in good health, barring a weakness in his lower limbs.

Dr. Pickett was one of the founders of the Milwaukee Medical Society. He was born in Connecticut in 1815. His death resulted from a paralytic stroke. Several children survive him. The interment took place last Wednesday at Elgin, Ill.

Manufacturing Establishment at Lomira.

While at Lomira last Saturday we had the pleasure of visiting the plant of the Lomira Manufacturing Company. The firm was formed and incorporated on Oct. 11, 1897, as follows: President, Frank Hoerig; vice-president, John Hoerig; treasurer, Peter Wolf; secretary and superintendent, Joseph Hoerig. The plant consists of a building 46x50 and two additions, one of the latter being a saw-mill 20x50 and the other a boiler-room 28x26. The main structure has two stories and a basement, the first floor containing machines of the latest patterns for wood turning, manufacturing mouldings, siding and everything in the line of finishing for the interior of buildings, while on the second floor wagon felles are bent at the rate of a carload per week when fully operated. In the engine room the company has a 55-horse-power engine and an 80-horse-power boiler, the extra steam from the latter going to a large drying kiln and a steam-box in the bending department besides circulating in pipes throughout the whole building for heating the same. The yard around the plant is filled with logs, the number of them being estimated at 100,000, which will keep the saw-mill crew steadily engaged for three months.

Ten men are now employed in the plant, while the prospect of increasing that number is good. Between $8,000 and $10,000 is invested in the enterprise, and it is having a beneficial effect upon the village of Lomira and surrounding country as well as proving profitable to the investors. The mechanical work is under the supervision of the Hoerig Bros., all of whom have actively engaged in the works and are well known to our readers as skilled mechanics in their line, and that the new enterprise will undoubtedly be a success under their supervision goes without saying.

Hood's Greatest Medicine

The following is a characteristic Hood's Sarsaparilla testimonial. Facts like these have made Hood's Sarsaparilla America's Greatest Medicine and endeared it to thousands of homes scattered all over this broad land.

desire, as we feel we cannot say too much in praise of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier and building up medicine." MRS. R. E. ANDERSON, Cumberland, Maine.

All Strength in His Limbs gave out. The physicians told us it was paralysis, which sometimes follows an attack of diphtheria. We did everything for him, but he grew worse until he was in a critical condition. He suffered terribly at night and complained continually of his head, and in what little sleep he was able to get, moaned unceasingly. He lost all control of the muscles of his body and limbs. He had no appetite and complained of feeling sick at his stomach all the time. We had tried many different remedies and had about given up all hope when we commenced giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla. In a short time he ceased to complain, his appetite improved and at the end of three months he was able to attend school as part of the time. Now he is well and quite strong and rugged boy. VERDE ANTIQUE MARBLE.

Lost in Thailand, but found in inconvertible store in Georgia.

In the early centuries of the Christian era, and possibly before, the exquisite green marble, known as Verde Antique, which the ancients prized so highly for ornamental building purposes, was quarried in the mountains of Thessaly, in Greece. The marble was dark as the location of the quarries was lost and has never been found. The pieces of marble were stripped to afford decorations for modern churches and palaces. Substitutes of ordinary green marble from Greece, France, Ireland, Italy and America were offered, but none was found to equal the real Thessalian green, or verde antique, as it is called. For ten or fifteen years it has been known that there was a deposit of green marble in Georgia, but that it was as beautiful as the old Thessalian verde antique has only been realized recently. Geologists by the way, do not classify verde antique as a green marble, but as a stone by itself, a serpentine, and they furthermore say that there is no such substance as verde antique marble. But none the less the stone is everywhere known as green marble, and the highest praise from American architects and builders. Several of the largest and best public buildings have been finished with this new material.

KIPLING'S "DERELICT."

The Wreck of the Venetian Recalls the Poet's Impressive Verses.

The wreck of the Venetian brings to mind Kipling's poem "The Derelict," which he represents impressively the abandoned hulks, adrift in the seas as the "hulks of all disaster." Some of the poem's verses follow:

Man made me, and my will
Was not to make a ship,
And with a kiss betrays her to the rollers
Of the sea.

Lifting—fortora to spy
Falling—afraid, lest any keel come near!
Blind is the hot blue ring
Swing and return to shift the sun anew.
Blind in my well worn sky.
Mocking the prow that cannot hold one true!

I that was clean to run
My sister's careless feet
Whipped forth by night to meet
My sister's careless feet

SIGSBEE'S VERSATILE TALENT.

Success in Other Lines than Commanding a Ship.

One day in the spring of 1875, when the Daily Graphic of New York was in the full swing of its meteoric career, a modest-looking young man called at the art department of the paper, at its Park place offices, with a package of sketches. The sketches were left with the artist, and the artist, handling his address in Brooklyn to the assistant of the art department, was manifest as soon as the package was opened, and a comic series of sketches was made. The sketches were of a talent capable of furnishing good comics in pen and ink in those days. The sketches were of a talent capable of furnishing good comics in pen and ink in those days. THE EVOCATION.

We had been talking of Spiritualism, and the conversation turned to apparitions and mediums. Among us all, men and women, assembled in the drawing room after a long and formal dinner, there were several who were spiritualists, two or three "agents" or mediums, without certain one or the other, and my friend Francois, who was an ardent believer in what we now of the faith agreed to call Spiritualism, took the lead in the conversation. He was the only one of the group who had had any experience in the meanings of terms, but he was Spiritualism covered them all. One of the young women had great interest in the recent experiences of an English medium, and said:

"It is certainly a mystery," said Francois, thoughtfully, "and I wonder how many of those who have never had an experience are willing to deny the existence of it. But I believe that this is not the case. I am convinced, if he can, as he says, prove scientifically that souls survive bodies, that a revolution will have great effect on their memory, and have the power to become material and visions to living people, what a revolution it will be to the world!"

"One of my friends," said Francois, "the experiment, and it cost him dear." "Tell us about it," cried the women, with the instinctive delight in the supernatural. Francois responded: "It is not a very happy memory, and I do not wish to interfere with those powers which govern the world, but the story, as I related the following: Pierre Franckel was one of the best French artists of his time. He was a man of 20 years old, a pale young man, with blonde hair, eyes as blue as the sky, and a delicate, refined, and somewhat unusual in the face of a man. With a delicacy of coloring, a beauty of build and a soft sweetness of voice, the beautiful eyes gave to his face a charm which was not only pleasing to the eye, but to the heart. He had a manly face, and had a great many friends. He was 23 years old when he met Madeline Merivie at a ball given in the city of Paris. She was a beautiful, vivacious and graceful. Her eyes were as blue as the sky, and her hair was as blonde as the sky. He was an enthusiastic and sincere lover for her. He was an enthusiastic and sincere lover for her. THE DANCE.

Light-skirted dancers, lithe and lean,
With high bosoms and low loins,
"Twixt sandal and kirtle rim
Showing one leg and the other
And frequent to the costus line
Now like the bison, the Newfoundland
Till like roses veiled in snow
Synops with tresses which the wind
Stoos to its hand,
More deliciously than the breeze,
Hurry me, Sisters, where ye choose!
From "Nepenthe" by George Darley.

WOMAN DRESSED IN A LONG, FLOWING GOWN.

At the sound of the fall I threw off with a great effort the spectacles which I had put on, and ran to him. The figure vanished and I raised my hand to find that he had been there. He had had the price for the dead wife. On his face was an expression of pure ecstasy.

and was entirely cured. I gained twenty-two pounds in five weeks. Since I stopped taking the pills I have scarcely had an ache or pain. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills restored me to health and I most heartily recommend them.

THE NEWFOUNDLAND DOG.

A somewhat pathetic feature of the dog show is the almost total disappearance of the Newfoundland. That noble breed in its day was almost universal for intelligence, amiability, and faithfulness. Now, like the bison, the Newfoundland is dying out, and two or three at the show look lonely among the long pedigrees of Great Danes and St. Bernards.

OVER-WROUGHT NERVES OF WOMEN.

"I am so nervous and wretched." "I feel as if I should fly." How familiar these expressions are. Little things annoy you and make you irritable. You can't sleep, you are unable to lift ordinary burdens, and are subject to dizziness. That bearing-down sensation helps to make you feel miserable. You have backache and pains low down in the side, pain in top of head, later on at base of the brain. Happiness will be gone out of your life forever, my sister, unless you act promptly. Procure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and begin its use, then write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., if there is anything about your case you do not understand. You need not be afraid to tell her the things you could not explain to the doctor, your letter is seen only by women and is absolutely confidential. Pinkham's vast experience with such troubles enables her to tell you just what is best for you, and she will charge you nothing for her advice. Mrs. JENNIE BIERLY, Youngdale, Pa., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Will you kindly express my gratitude for the wonderful relief I have experienced by taking your Vegetable Compound. I suffered for a long time with nervous prostration, backache, headache, loss of appetite, a heavy bearing-down feeling, also burning pains in the groins. I could not sleep, was tired all the time, had no ambition. Life was a burden to me. The pains I suffered at times of menstruation were something dreadful. I thought there was no cure for it. I saw your advertisement in the paper, and my husband advised me to try your medicine. I took five bottles, and now I am well and happy. Your medicine saved my life." THE ORIGIN OF TOBACCO.

The Prophet was taking a stroll in the country when he saw a man lying on the ground. He compassionately took it up and warmed it in his hands. When the serpent had recovered, it said:

A SURPRISED CHINAMAN.

A Chinese merchant in New York recently imported 400 packs of playing cards from China for the use of his countrymen. The merchant valued them at the customhouse for 80 cents per pack, but when he had passed through a "Chinese pay" value of 20 cents per pack, and on his return he was surprised to find that he had lost 200 packs of cards.

ANIMALS ON HATS.

Animals appear to be taking the place of birds' plumes on the hats of the women of Paris. Small chinchillas—charming little creatures nearly akin to the rat—are now a favorite form of adornment. The soft gray of the fur harmonizing beautifully with the color of the hair.

SMALLPOX HAS VANISHED.

The last weekly report of the United States Marine Hospital Service records the encouraging fact of only one case of smallpox in the Northern States, and as that has been entirely free from this disease during the past year, it is reasonable to infer that the Philadelphia Press is a most reassuring sign considering the extent to which smallpox has prevailed in the Southern States. The conclusion is justified that medical and sanitary agencies are now in a position to control the disease which produces this disease that it has been nearly wiped out. There are now reported to be 543 cases of smallpox in the Southern States, and the disease is more favorable to the disease, but the main cause of its spread are doubtless the neglect of vaccination and the want of sanitary science. The South cannot catch up in these matters and then it will have to fear from epidemics.
