The Sun's Madrid cable says that Admiral Bermejo, minister of marine, has received an official dispatch telling of the bombardment of San Juan. Admiral Ber-mejo hastily conferred with Prime Minister Sagasta and urgent instructions were telegraphed to Admiral Cevera.

As Admiral Sampson did not find the fleet in these waters, it is assumed by the authorities that Admiral Sampson lost no time in waiting for it, and immediately began operations against fortifications in the harbor.

Spanish Guns Open Fire.

"UNDER FIRE" ON A WARSHIP.

The modern naval battle must develop sing like the ordeal to which the crew of a ship under the fire of batteries of the present type is exposed has ever been known before. In Nelson's time a ship was subjected to a broadside of round shot once in five or ten minues. Thirty or forty cannon balls would rattle against the side of the vessel, cut through its rigging, plow its decks, or pass harmless-ly in the air. Between times the men would have a respite, except for the popwould have a respite, except for the popping, more annoying than dangerous, of musket balls from the enemy's tops.

But now the decks of a ship in action are swept by a storm of projectiles, ranging from rifleshots to half-ton shells, but everyone propelled with a vicious energy that expresses a determination to clear everything out of its path. Taking great guns, rapid-fire guns, and machine guns together, a first-class battleship can fire at least 3000 shots a minute. That means that fifty projectiles, large and small, go hissing over the enemy's decks every second. Under such tornado of steel every

When nearing Baker bay a sudden upheaval of the water a short distance ahead of the Olympia showed that the Spaniards had exploded a mine or a torpedo. This was followed by a second and similar explosion. They were both utterly unsuccessful.

The American fleet was then drawing nearer and nearer to the Spaniards, whose gunnery was very poor, the shots from the Cavite batteries and from the Spanish ships being equally badly aimed, either falling short or going wide of the mark.

Real Beginning of the Battle.

When the American fleet entered the bay, coming through the southern channel between Cabalo Frile islets, the following on every side as if he were on parade. Take this incident, for instance, described by Philo McGiffen in his account the Boston, the Petrel and the McCulloch, of the battle of the Yalu:

The captain of one of the 12-inch guns, while training or laying it, lanyard in hand, had his head dashed off, its fragments striking those about him. As he toppled over, a man on the step below another his bedy around the water than 1000 yards the Americans reserved their formula within 4000 yards of the step within 4000 yards of the yards of the step within 4000 yards of the yards caught his body around the waist, passed it down into the arms of those below, and, catching the lanyard from his stiffening grasp, took his place, corrected his aim and fired.

A single shell, in this battle, striking the Japanese flagship Matsushima, killed forty-nine officers and men and wounded over fifty more. And the Chinese were poor marksmen, compared with American ships then passed backward and forward six times across the

A shot which struck her exploded near one of her guns and slightly fered in any way from the fire of the enemy. A shot which struck her exploded near one of her guns and slightly injured half a dozen of the crew.

Several shots passed dangerously close to Admiral Dewey, but little or no damage was done on board the flagship.

On the other hand about 150 men are said to have been killed on board the Spanish ship, which was totally destroyed. The Origin of Cake Walks. The cake walk probably had its origin imong the French negroes of Louisiana more than a century ago. There is little doubt it is an offshoot of some of the old French country dances. It resembles several of them in form. From New Orleans it spread over the entire South, and thence North. It was found of convenience to the plantation progress. the plantation negroes.

At a cake walk a man might legitimately show his preference for a woman, and thus publicly claim her for a wife. In effect the cake walk was not different from the old Scotch marriage, which re-quired only public acknowledgment from ne contracting parties. So this festival became, in some sense, a wooing, an acceptance or rejection, and a ceremony. This explains its popularity with the blacks outside of its beauties, with the accompaniment of music, which is competent at all times to command upport. Cake walking has improved, as do most things that are constantly practiced. It has lost its old significance in the South. Negroes now get married, when they mar-ry at all, in the white folks' fashion. It ry at all, in the white lolks tashion. It has, however, become a pantomime dance. Properly performed, it is a beautiful one. The cake is not much of a prize, though the negro has a sweet tooth.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

No time was lost in ministering to the wounded. A quick call was sent to the marine hospital and an ambulance came clattering down to the dock. The dead were taken to an undertaker shop and the wounded conveyed to the hospital.

In the meantime the news had spread and crowds gathered about the deck, but there was no demonstration. The success of the American ships in every action thus far has been so overwhelminng that it is hard to realize that death has at last come to some of our men. Ensign Bagley was about 26 years old, and while the fleet was stationed here he was one of the most popular men in the service. The news of his death came as a terrible shock to all who knew him.

Hong Kong, May 12.—(6 p. m., Greenwich time.)—The British second-class gunboat Linnet has arrived here with news from the Philippine islands. She left Manila on Monday last and reports that the insurgents are uncontrollable. The whole country, it appears, is in a state of anarchy and Rear-Admiral Dewey is powerless to restore order.

The officers of the Linnet add that even if Spanish rule is abolished it will require a large force, with special training, to restore order in the interior. In the mean time, the Spaniards in Manila refuse to submit and Admiral Dewey is unwilling to bombard the town. He hopes to starve the place into submission, but the Spaniards are confident of being able to hold out. They allege that they have ample supplies for 25,000 regular troops and thousands of volunteers, beyond the range of the United States warships, and they are defying the Americans in the hopes of European intervention.

OLIVES.

A Spanish Product of Which We Import About 5000 Casks Annually. The bulk of the edible olives come from The bulk of the edible olives come from Spain, the olives raised in other Mediterranean regions being used chiefly in making oil. There are imported into the United States about 5000 casks of Spanish olives annually. They are imported in brine. The olives vary in size from about 210 to the kilo, which is 2 1-5 pounds, up to olives as large as 60 or 70 to the kilo.

A steamship bringing olives to this port is likely to include in her cargo almonds and corkwood, a valuable freight. In one shipment lately received here there were several hundred casks of olives. When the casks have been hoisted out they are roiled along on the wharf, a cooper starts the bung, and a number of olives are taken from each cask for inspection. The offives are taken out with a pair of tongs a foot or more long, made of two slender strips of wood, which operate like sugar

The man who takes the samples from the casks carries in one hand a small white china platter, using the tongs with the other hand. He thrusts the tongs through the bunghole into the cask and nips one or more olives at every dip until he has a platter full.

These samples olives are inspected.

strips of wood, which operate like sugar

These sample ollives are inspected on the spot by the representatives of the importer, who sees that they correspond with the invoice and that the brine is of sufficient strength to keep them. They are then removed to the warerooms to be sold in the original packages or repacked in kegs and bottles.—New York Sun. The Duke of Fife.

That fussy little party the Duke of Fife, whose head has been swelled to Fife, whose head has been swelled to enormous proportions since he smuggled into the royal family, has been giving another exhibition of his smallness. Because there were some dissenting votes to the motion to vote £200 as expenses for himself and the duchess to open the new town hall at Hackney, he took a huff and refused to perform the ergmonics. and refused to perform the ceremonies. Apropos of this personage the following from the Freeman's Journal is rather

"I remember a few years ago when the Chartered company was at the height of its boom hearing an amusing illustration of this. He attended one of the meetings of the company in the city, at which Mr. Rhodes was to speak. Apprehensive lest he should be squeezed out of the reports owing to the presence of the colossus, he sent round a note to the reporters saying: "The Duke of Fife requests that his speech shall be carefully and fully reported."

Apprehensive lest he should be squeezed out of the reports owing to the presence of the colossus, he sent round a note to the reporters saying: "The Duke of Fife requests that his speech shall be carefully and fully reported."

"The reporters did not like this peremptory order, and the note was tossed contemptuously along their table from one to the other. Finally, one of the journalists added on the words at the end, 'and grammar corrected.' The duke noticed that the pressmen were laughing over his missive and he sent down his servant to regain possession of it. When he saw the addendum he got extremely indignant and demanded the name of the journalist who had dared to tamper with his letter. The journalist, nothing loth, gave his name and mentioned the paper he represented. On learning which fact the duke decided he had better swallow his anger and let the matter drop."

PLANS FOR DEPARTURE TOMORROW

Camp Harvey, May 11 .- [Special.]-"Col. Martin T. Moore, Third Wisconsin Volunteers, United States Army." That's what it is this afternoon. And with him the Wisconsin National guard companies from Neillsville, La Crosse, Hudson, Mauston, Eau Claire, Portage, Wausau, Menomonie, West Superior, Tomah and Sparta went into the volunteer army. The eremony of mustering in was performed by Capt. Buck of the regular army, who has been preparing for this for the past week and a half. The Third regiment went out of the National guard this afternoon. As soon as Capt. Buck finished his work he notified the war department by wire. Orders from that department direct to Col. Moore are looked for tonight or tomorrow morning. They are expected to be in line with the communications between Secre-tary of War Alger and Gov. Scofield, and to be a formal order to pack up and report at Tampa, Fla., forthwith. At 2:05 o'clock officers' call was sound-l at the headquarters of the Third and the adjutant instructed the captains on their work in mustering. Men were or-dered placed in the order in which their names appear on the muster roll. Soon afterwards Capt. Buck appeared and swore in the field and staff officers in the regiment's headquarters, Col. Moore's name being called first. The little room was crowded. Gov. Peck and a few ladies were present. "They may have me," said Peck. "I had my hat off." HIS MIND AFFECTED.

Platteville. Wis., May 11.—[Special.]—
A young Englishman by the name of Thompson, who recently returned from England, was taken to Lancaster to be examined on the grounds of insanity. The evening of his arrest he had attracted considerable attention on the streets by his strange talk and actions. He purchased a rope with the evident intent of suicide. He was out of work and money, which is attributed as the cause of his morose condition. He claimed to have a brother at Lancaster.

Platteville. Strangely at ices. The minister's back was toward the other guests in the room, and the incident would have probably passed unnoticed but for what followed. Turning to the happy and blushing bride he said, "Here, my dear, is my wedding present," and handed her the envelope without having opened it. The bride, of course, was delighted, while the feelings of the groom would probably have been a little more difficult to analyze.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

MELBOURNE GOLD FEVER. Nicepins Played with Bottles of Cham pagne and Bank Bills Eaten.

Gold threatened to become as comme as silver in the days of Solomon. In one year £12,600,000, in eight years £95, 000,000, were won. Some men at Golden Point made as much as £400 each a day. Another exceptionally lucky party un-earthed 34 pounds of gold in one day. No wonder that such "pockets" were termed "Jewelers' shops!" Occasionally a nug-get worth £10,000 was unearthed. The get worth £10,000 was unearthed. The result of this sudden influx of wealth almost without labor, and with risks which are infinitesimal as compared to Klondike—was the temporary demoralization of the population. Melbourne, in the height of the gold fever, has been described by one who knew it well as "a fevered, drunken, delirious Pandemonium." The lucky ones—and there were thousands of lucky ones—and there were thousands of them—squandered their riches in the most reckless fashion. Some of their fanmost reckless fashion. Some of their fantastic tricks would scarcely be credited were they not attested by witnesses still living. The game of ninepins, we are told, was played with bottles of champagne, for which he who broke least had to pay; dozens of the same costly wine were emptied into tubs, and drunk from tin pannikins, spirits and beer being added to give "body" to the beverage; one man, in imitation of Caligula, shoed his horse with gold; sandwiches made of banknotes were devoured; silver wrapped up in banknotes was thrown to popular actresses instead of flowers—in fact, money was so plentiful that the reckless diggers could not "knock it down" fast enough. They thought they only had to dig a few feet in the earth to get plenty more, and for a time it almost seemed as if this were so. Such were some of the characteristic of Victoria's hot youth.—Charles Short, in the May Pall Mall Magazine. FACE AND FIGURE.

A Few Aids to Help Out Either One or the Oilier. It may not be generally known that garlic is an aid to the production of lovely complexions. fascinating complexion.

A physician of note advocates a good cry occasionally for women. She who weeps keeps her youth longer than the woman who represses her tears. A pro-fuse flow of tears lessens blood pressure, a discharge of energy reduces tension and roduces an exhaustion which demands a refreshing sleep.

For grace of carriage peasant women, who are accustomed to carrying weights on their heads, are deservedly noted. In the effort to keep the balance of the burden they are carrying these women train all the muscles of the body in order that they may walk smoothly and steadily, and the result is a queenly carriage which many a great lady might envy. To attain graceful carriage much may be described. many a great lady might envy. To attain graceful carriage much may be done by practicing walking with some object on the head—a little cushion, a book or even a light board would do—and certainly all young people should learn dancing, and, if possible, fencing. The best builders are invariably those which, not resting contented with a mere shelter, however elaborately or ingeniously constructed, seek by various means to beautify their homes. Sometimes supersulting their homes, descripting in their fluous additions, purely decorative in their character, are made to the home; some-times the effect of embellishment is prouced by the selection of such materials in themselves or in combination will ease the eye, care being always taker nc. to sacrifice utility to appearance therein providing man with a valuable example; and then, again, sometimes— and this is the very acme of art among birds—purely ornamental and decorative riends pleasant meeting places.

Sores Broke Out and Discharged, but Hood's Cured.

"My son had eruptions and sores on his face which continued to grow worse in spite of medicines. The sores discharged a great deal. A friend whose child had been cured of a similar trouble by Hood's Sarsaparilla advised me to try it. I began giving the boy this medicine and he was soon getting better. He kept on taking it until he was entirely cured and he has never been bothered with eruptions since."

Anturally this objection to an actor impersonating so sacred an individual as the Czar would apply with peculiar force to so dramatic a figure as Ivan the Terribe. Any spectator who could read and was blessed with the faintest spark of memory would know that when the Muscovite Czar walked off into the wings in the guise of a pious monk, chanting an anthem, he was going, according to his custom (if we are to believe the authority of history and the lists of his victims for whose soul and himself he ordered prayers to be said in perpetuity), to be a witness and possibly an assistant at the tortures of those who had displeased him and thus take a hand in proving to them the existence of—the opposite of heaven.—Lippincott's.

Every woman cannot be beautiful, but at a recent lecture on pre-Revolutary at Cornell, a cheerful face often supplies the deficiency. But no one can be cheerful and bring joy to others unless they have perfect health. Fortunately, science has placed this priceless boon within the reach of every woman, as the following incident proves:

Mrs. Amanda Robinson, wife of Williams Robinson, wife of Williams Robinson, farmer and stockman, near Howeville, Clay County, Ind., is 32 years old and had for several years been in declining health and despondent. For three months she was not only unable to attend to her domestic duties but too feeble to be up and about. To-day she is in good health and able to attend to her honsehold affairs. She relates her experience as follows:

"I was a fallicted with female troubles and was in a delicate state of health. I lost my appetite, grew thin and was greatly depressed. After taking various remedies without being benefited I was induced by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pilk.

Modern Wars Are Short. Modern wars are quick, sharp and derisive. For proof, read the history of the Japanese and the Chinese war or the Franco-Prussian war or the Prussian war or the left in a pail in his little shanty, ex-Franco-Prussian war or the Prussian war Franco-Prussian war or the Prussian war against Austria. The time of the Japanese war against China is reckoned by weeks. France declared war on Prussia July 19, 1870. The end practically came September 1. June 15, 1866, Prussia asked Hanover, Saxony and Hesse-Cassel to withdraw from their support of Austria. They refused. The next day the Prussian army occupied their territory. Eleven days later the Saxon army was whipped at Langensalza. July 3 the battle of Sadowa was fought and the war was over. Modern equipments make such wars as Spain fought with the Netherlands or such wars as Carthage carried lands or such wars as Carthage carried on with Rome impossible. The time of those wars was reckoned by generations. The time of the war between the United States and Spain, if war comes, will probably be reckoned by days.
