STORY OF MANILA TOLD.

Details Received by Mail from Hong Kong. DEWEY'S GREAT FEAT. Olympia's Narrow Escape from Torpedo-Boat Spanish Scuttles.

Vancouver, B. C., June 9.—Mail advices brought from Hong Kong by the steamer Empress of Japan yesterday are full of interesting details of the battle of Manila Bay. The report commencing on Dewey's well-timed arrival, says: The great victory of the United States Asiatic squadron is, of course, due to a great measure to the splendid marksmanship of the American gunners, but more particularly to the tact and strategy of Commodore Dewey, in command of the Olympia. Several shots were fired at the Spanish fleet from the entrance, but the whole squadron got safely away from Manila and was seen to rise over the city the American ships were cruising around in front.

FIFTY YEARS A STATE.

The semi-centennial of the state of Wisconsin has been becomingly celebrated this week by a great gathering of people at Madison, during which a wealth of addresses were made bearing on the history of the commonwealth to be preserved for the benefit of the future generations. The celebration of the epoch in the history of the state was a perfect success in every particular, and the printed volume of the proceedings will contain a great deal of interesting historical matter, touching on all lines to show the progress of the state.

Wisconsin, though 50 years old, is yet young when compared with the older states, half of them having already passed their centennial. The thirteen original states are now 122 years old, counting from the time they declared themselves independent of Great Britain, and 109 year old counting from the adoption of the present constitution. From that time the march of settlement rapidly extended toward the west, but it was almost fifty years before the distance between the Atlantic and the west shore of Lake Michigan had been traversed by people in search of new homes in sufficient numbers to entitle those who located within the present boundaries of the territory of Wisconsin to entitle them to statehood. Though the territory was not made a state until 1848, yet its growth had been rapid and steady for about fifteen years previous to that time.

The way of the pioneers of Wisconsin was toilsome and laborious. It was before the age of railroads, and a journey from the Atlantic states to the region of the great lakes was one from which the faint-hearted shrank because of the difficulties which attended it. They had to make the long journey with teams over a sparsely settled country almost wholly without roads, or, taking passage on one of the few vessels that sailed the chain of lakes make a longer and much more dreaded journey by water. The vast inland seas were but little known to the people of the east, but they had heard of the fertile lands and the immense forests beyond and longed to possess them. The difficulties of the long journey were really of great value to the future state, because of the fact that they deterred the weak and faint-hearted from making the journey and gave to the new territory the better and more desirable element of the host of west-bound settlers.

When the poet wrote "Westward the star of empire takes its way," he uttered a great truth, which has been abundantly proven by the flow of emigration from the Atlantic seaboard to the interior ever since the movement started. This emigration has always flowed almost directly along the parallels of latitude. There have been exceptions, but they were merely governed by the desire of individuals which have led them out of the direct line of travel. It is to that law of emigration that Wisconsin owes the greater portion of her population. The early settlers were nearly all from the New England states and New York, bringing with them those habits of thrift and industry which have made those states so wealthy and prosperous. South of New York the same law took the emigrants to the states of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, and when they crossed the Mississippi river they continued on in the same straight line, moving directly toward the setting sun. Comparatively few of the emigrants from New England and New York went farther south than northern Illinois and Iowa, few of those from the states south of New York found their way to Wisconsin.

The same great law which has characterized emigration in this country has been also followed by the emigrants coming from Europe. The states in the northern part of our great inland empire have received the bulk of the emigrants from Great Britain and the northern countries of Europe, while those from the southern countries have found their new homes to the south. Again was Wisconsin more fortunate in the operation of this law of migration, getting the more desirable portion of the people of foreign countries who had learned of the glories of the new republic and had determined to cast their lot with it. It is to the operation of this law of nature that the state is indebted for the large German element that comprises so large a part of its population, and who brought with them their love of liberty and the habits of industry and frugality that have added so largely to the wealth of the state.

Wisconsin has grown in her fifty years of statehood from a handful of 300,000 people to more than 2,000,000, and on account of her great natural resources has taken high rank in the commonwealth of states. Her people compare favorably with those of any other state in point of intelligence and education. Her farms are models of cultivation; her cities are marts of wealth, trade and industry; her schools are the best in the world. Her progress has indeed been wonderful, but yet her destiny is not yet fulfilled. The past has been honorable, but the future of the state will be glorious, for the achievements of the past are but the promise of the more abundant years to come.

One Tried, Always Used.
If we sell one bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, we seldom fail to sell the same person more, when it is again needed. Indeed, it has become the family medicine of this town, for coughs and colds, and we recommend it because of its established merits.—JOS. E. HARNED, Prop. Oak Md. Sold by L. Rosenheimer.
During the summer of 1891, Chas. P. Johnson, a well-known attorney of Louisville, Ky., had a very severe attack of summer complaint. Quite a number of different remedies were tried, but failed to afford any relief. A friend who knew that what was needed procured him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which quickly cured him and he thinks, saved his life. He says that there has not been a day since that time that he has not had this remedy in his household. He speaks of it in the highest praise and takes much pleasure in recommending it whenever an opportunity is offered. For sale by L. Rosenheimer.

FIFTY YEARS A STATE.

The semi-centennial of the state of Wisconsin has been becomingly celebrated this week by a great gathering of people at Madison, during which a wealth of addresses were made bearing on the history of the commonwealth to be preserved for the benefit of the future generations.

Wisconsin, though 50 years old, is yet young when compared with the older states, half of them having already passed their centennial. The thirteen original states are now 122 years old, counting from the time they declared themselves independent of Great Britain, and 109 year old counting from the adoption of the present constitution.

The way of the pioneers of Wisconsin was toilsome and laborious. It was before the age of railroads, and a journey from the Atlantic states to the region of the great lakes was one from which the faint-hearted shrank because of the difficulties which attended it.

One Tried, Always Used. If we sell one bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, we seldom fail to sell the same person more, when it is again needed. Indeed, it has become the family medicine of this town, for coughs and colds, and we recommend it because of its established merits.—JOS. E. HARNED, Prop. Oak Md. Sold by L. Rosenheimer.

During the summer of 1891, Chas. P. Johnson, a well-known attorney of Louisville, Ky., had a very severe attack of summer complaint. Quite a number of different remedies were tried, but failed to afford any relief. A friend who knew what was needed procured him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which quickly cured him and, he thinks, saved his life. He says that there has not been a day since that time that he has not had this remedy in his household. He speaks of it in the highest praise and takes much pleasure in recommending it whenever an opportunity is offered. For sale by L. Rosenheimer.

The bride was attended by Emelia Degner, Emma Sterns and Henrietta Hagner, and the groom by Chas. Johnson, Ralph Hagner and Henry Degner. A reception was held after the ceremony, and a large number of relatives and friends congratulated the couple.

The wedding presents were rich and numerous. The young pair will reside on a farm in the town of Farmington. We wish them a long and happy life.

Last Monday, while Ferdinand Raether and Albert Weddig were driving home from West Bend, a hold-back strap of the rig broke as they were coming down the hill south of the village. The rig was badly damaged, while Ferd. and Albert luckily escaped with but a few bruises.

WRECK.—Last Wednesday morning our section men were called to West Bend to help clear up a wreck, which occurred there at about 7 a. m. While a "double-header" was going past the lumber yard there a flat-car nearly in the center of the train jumped off the track, wrecking 13 cars. Though the wreck was the worst ever witnessed on the line in that city, it caused no delay of other trains, as trackmen from sections of the road were summoned to the scene, and they succeeded in clearing up the whole mess by evening.

The picnic of the Catholic school last Wednesday was favored with good weather throughout the afternoon, while the evening was remarkably well adapted to continuing the event until late hour. The scholars, headed by the Kewaskum band, left the school grounds at 1 p. m. and presented a pleasing sight as they paraded through the principal streets to the North Side park, where the band played at intervals while the usual games and pastimes of such an occasion were indulged in by a large crowd until 10 p. m.

Next Tuesday will be Flag Day, the 121st anniversary of the adoption of the stars and stripes as our flag. The day has been fittingly observed throughout the large cities of the state and the Union in years past, and while our present war with a foreign power has brought out a pretty good display of "Old Glory," we trust that on June 14th the stars and stripes will wave from every home in the village, and that every child of school age will at least learn that the stars of "Old Glory" stand for as many states in the Union.

Since our previous issue we have learned that, besides the companies comprising the Firemen's association of Washington and Ozaukee counties, all other departments invited have signified their willingness to be in attendance at the tournament here on the 19th inst., thus indicating that the fifth annual convention of the aforementioned organization is to be the occasion of a monstrous gathering. However, be that as it may, as volunteers in the service which requires the risk of life and limb for the protection of the property and people of their respective communities, the visiting firemen may depend upon a hearty welcome by the citizens of Kewaskum.

Notice is hereby given to all owners of lots in Gage's cemetery, in town of Auburn, county of Fond du Lac, Wis., that the annual meeting of Gage's cemetery association will be held on June 18, 1898, at 2 p. m. in the school house of Dist. From what poisons? From the poisons that are always found in constipated bowels.

If the contents of the bowels are not removed from the body each day, as nature intended, these poisonous substances are sure to be absorbed into the blood, always causing suffering and frequently causing severe disease.

There is a common sense cure.

LIUT. HOBSON'S HEROISM

A Thrilling Story of the Santiago Blockade.

IN SHOT AND SHELL.

It Required Courage to Take the Merrimac Right Under the Batteries and Sink Her.

Off Santiago de Cuba, June 3.—7 p. m. The narrow channel leading into the Associated Press Dispatch (Dauntless)—The following is a detailed story of the heroism performed by Lieut. Richmond P. Hobson and his seven companions in sinking the Merrimac across the channel leading into the harbor of Santiago de Cuba:

The Spanish fleet is now helpless, being held captive in Santiago de Cuba harbor. The narrow channel leading into the harbor was completely blocked early this morning when the United States collier Merrimac was sunk across its entrance. It is not possible for the Spaniards to get out, and it is equally impossible for any vessel to get into the harbor. Therefore the Spanish fleet, including the armored cruisers Maria Teresa, Cristobal Colon, Vizcaya and Almirante Oquendo, with the two corvette-boats, destroyers Furor and Pluton, are no longer of any use to Spain.

One Hero Who Disobeyed Orders.

This result was accomplished through the heroism of Lieut. Richmond P. Hobson, who, in defiance of the orders of the commanding officer, Daniel Montague, George Charette, J. C. Murphy, Oscar Deigan, John P. Phillips, and William H. Cullen, first-class gunners, disobeyed the orders of the admiral, Commodore William A. Glass, and sent the Merrimac across the channel leading into the harbor of Santiago de Cuba.

George Charette is a gunner's mate of the first class, stationed on the New York. He is 36 years of age, and his home is in Boston.

John Kelly is a water tender, about 35 years of age. His home is near Glasgow, Scotland.

H. Cullen, who slipped on board the Merrimac without permission in order to take part in the expedition, is a coxswain of the New York.

Lieut. Richmond Pearson Hobson, assistant naval constructor, United States Navy, was appointed after a competitive examination to the position of assistant naval constructor in 1888. He was the youngest member of his class, but graduated at the head of his class. He has served in the United States government in France and was in command of the gunboat Albatross in 1891. He is the author of a semi-popular work entitled "The Situation and Outlook in Europe and Asia."

The Merrimac was on board 600 tons of coal when she was scuttled across the channel.

Lieut. Hobson started on his daring errand at 3 o'clock this morning. The Merrimac was lying to the westward, under cover of the darkness, and she steamed in towards the channel and made a short run to the westward, followed by a short run to the eastward. She then made a short run to the westward, followed by a short run to the eastward. She then made a short run to the westward, followed by a short run to the eastward.

The Flashes of Guns.

From the crowded decks of the New York nothing could be seen of the Merrimac as she lay under the shadow of the hills. For half an hour the men strained their eyes peering into the darkness, and the flashes of a gun streamer, suddenly, the Merrimac was seen in the distance, and then all on board the New York saw the Merrimac in the distance. The guns from the Spanish battery opposite Morro castle answered quickly with a salvo of fire about twenty minutes before the Merrimac was sunk.

Cadet Powell a Hero, Too.

At 6:15 a. m. the launch came alongside the flagship, but she did not have time to get under way before the Merrimac was sunk. Cadet Powell reported that he had seen the Merrimac in the distance. He was on board the Merrimac when she was sunk. He was on board the Merrimac when she was sunk.

Only Two in the Engine-Room.

THE HERO OF SANTIAGO.

San Sebastian is the summer capital of the Spanish coast and all the diplomatic corps are here. It is so far from Madrid that the courtiers usually make the foreign diplomats guests of the nation. It is not hot here, but it is not cold either. It is a beautiful city, and it is a beautiful city.

STRONG STATEMENTS.

Three Women Relieved of Female Troubles by Mrs. Pinkham.

From Mrs. A. W. SMITH, 59 Summer St., Biddeford, Me.:

"For several years I suffered with various diseases peculiar to my sex. Was troubled with a burning sensation across the small of my back, that all-gone feeling, was despondent, fretful and discouraged; the least exertion tired me. I tried several doctors but received little benefit. At last I decided to give your Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. The effect of the first bottle was magical. Those symptoms of weakness that I was afflicted with, vanished like vapor before the sun. I cannot speak too highly of your valuable remedy. It is truly a boon to women."

From Mrs. MELISSA PHILLIPS, Lexington, Ind.:

"Before I began taking your medicine I had suffered for two years with the tired feeling, headache, backache, no appetite, and a run-down condition of the system. I could not walk across the room. I have taken four bottles of the Vegetable Compound, and my health is now as good as new. I can now do all the work I wish to do. I am truly a new woman, and am able to do my work."

From Mrs. MOLLIE E. HERBELL, Powell Station, Tenn.:

"For three years I suffered with such a weakness of the back, I could not perform my household duties. I also had falling of the womb, terrible bearing-down pains and headaches. I have taken two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and feel like a new woman. I recommend your medicine to every woman I know."
