Porto Rican Question is Also Out of the Range of Further Negotiations.
Paris, Oct. 27.—The Spanish peace commissioners have accepted the negative view of the United States commission towards the proposed assumption by the United States of the Cuban debt. The American commissioners have finally and resolutely declined to assume for the United States the responsibility for the Spanish financial conditions, and the Spanish commissioners have finally abandoned the effort and have agreed that the Cuban debt, whether of small, without conditions, have a place in the ultimate treaty of peace. It was not until Monday that the Spanish commissioners had been convinced that the United States would not accept the Cuban debt, and that they had to give up the idea. In spite of the fact that the Spanish commissioners had, as a background of their efforts, doubts of succeeding, their determination to succeed was so vigorously presented that the final conviction of the United States was not reached until the Spanish commissioners had, in the spirit of the protocol, the article about Cuba should go forward into the hands of the United States.

TURMOIL IN PARIS.
American Commissioners Fully Realize that Matters Are Coming to a Crisis.
Paris, Oct. 26.—The American peace commissioners held a session of several hours' duration today prior to the joint session of the two commissions, which opened at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The American commissioners fully realize that they are approaching the discussion of the chief question entrusted to them, namely, the future of the Philippine islands, and they are well prepared to take the matter up if it is brought before them by the Spanish commissioners.

A Beloit Electrical Worker Instantly Killed While Examining an Arc Light.
Beloit, Wis., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Fred Whetstone, an employe of the Beloit Electric Light company, was instantly killed last night while working about an arc light, trying to find an open circuit. The electric light people say there was no current on the line on which Whetstone was working, as they had been unable to start the current. The coroner's jury has spent much of the day trying to find out where the current came from. It is shown that the switchboard at the power station. It is possible that a worker on which Whetstone was working got crossed with some other circuit. Whetstone was heard to shriek and fall dead. There were about twenty or thirty young children and a wife and old hand at the scene.

ARRIVAL OF THE THIRD.
Winter Clothing to be Issued to Badger Boys.
HAD PLEASANT VOYAGE.
Plenty of Room, Good Ventilation and an Ample Supply of Rations.
Quarantine, S. I., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—The Third Wisconsin regiment reached New York last night on the transport Manitoba. The trip occupied less than a week, and the boys were in excellent health. The weather was the rule throughout and there was scarcely a case of seasickness. The return trip was far superior to the one made on the transport the Oldham. The contrast was remarkable. The Manitoba is a larger and speedier vessel and was for a few scattering detachments occupied by Wisconsin men alone. The men had plenty of accommodations below decks, with excellent ventilation. Lieut. Holway as commissary officer had enough rations for two weeks. There was no possibility of shortage. In addition, Lieut. Holway ingratiated himself with the men by purchasing out of his pocket a few dollars' worth of canned provisions. Lieut. Holway was provided and the regiment was ready to start on the 29th.

APPLETON'S BIG LOSS.
Stephenson Hall, Destroyed by Fire Today.
ONLY WALLS REMAIN.
Ormsby Hall and the University Hall Barely Escape the Red Destroyer.
Appleton, Wis., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Stephenson Hall, the pride of Lawrence university, was burned to the ground this morning with a heavy loss. The walls were still standing, but the loss will probably be in the neighborhood of $15,000. The fire was discovered by a number of men who were lathing the third floor of the new structure. It started from a fire in a room used by the tinners who were working on the roof at the time. The men were hardly down from the roof before the whole of the top story was ablaze and a telephone alarm was turned on. When the fire department reached the grounds it was unable for some time to play a stream, as length after length of hose burst under the water pressure. The second and third floor work in the building and in a short time the floors fell through to the basement. A squad of students on the roof saved Ormsby Hall and the University building, where roofs smoked dangerously for a time. It is difficult to estimate the amount of damage done. The college authorities had $100,000 insurance on the building, which they had already accepted and for which they had paid $13,000. The insurance company is expected to pay the balance of the loss. The building was to cost $35,000 when completed, but has been delayed at least six months, and it will be long before it is ready to receive students. Stephenson hall was presented to Lawrence university by Isaac Stephenson of Marinette. It was built of St. Louis brick and was one of the finest buildings in the state. It was designed after the English classic style, and was one of the finest buildings in the state. It was designed after the English classic style, and was one of the finest buildings in the state.

OEO. NUGENT, Editor.

SCIENTISTS declare that the recent eruption of Vesuvius is soon to be followed by a season of earthquakes, though it is believed they will not be of great violence. Volcanic eruptions and earthquakes are closely allied and come from the same cause—a disturbance of the great forces in the interior of the earth, which is manifested in many ways and in various degrees. Vesuvius has been inactive for several years, but the late eruption was one of considerable violence. Previous eruptions have always been followed by earthquakes within a short time. It is fortunate for the people of this country that we are out of the general sphere of earthquakes, so that we have little to apprehend from them.

This is the season of football, not for the young men of the country who have nothing else to do, but for those who are supposed to be students in the schools, from the high schools up to the great universities. The higher the institution of learning, the more time and money is expended on football. For two months or more not only students but members of the faculty, including the president, give almost their entire attention to the "honor" of the university, and the people pay the bills. Football has become the acme of the educational system, instead of being a recreation. There is more honor in winning a game than in gaining knowledge. Broken heads and bones are of frequent occurrence, but what of that? To be the champion football player is a higher honor, as college honors now go, than to be the best scholar.

BUT ten days more are to intervene before election day comes and the question of the offices for another two years will be decided so that the business of the country can again have the attention of the people. The present political campaign has been a very peculiar one. The people have taken very little interest in the contest. Political meetings have been very small everywhere. The politicians have not been able to arouse any enthusiasm in the masses, and as a consequence the result of the election is very much in doubt, and the count of votes alone will determine it. If the small attendance of political meetings means anything it is such an utter indifference to the result as will likely result in a very small vote in the state, and in that case it is only a question as to which party will suffer most from the general indifference of the voters. Party ties are very loose this year, and there is likely to be more independent voting than ever before. The people believe little of the dire warnings of the politicians as to the dangers that threaten the country and can only be averted by the election of certain candidates to office.

THE young queen of Holland has come to her throne and the next question for her to settle is that of a husband. Unlike other women she may choose for herself, of course within a certain limit, since she must mate with royalty of some degree. There are a number of eligible young princes, any of whom would probably be delighted to marry a queen and a kingdom, but none of them can brave court etiquette by doing more than stand ready to accept the offer should it come. There is little love making done among the royal families of Europe, marriages all being dictated for political reasons, though the time has gone by when alliances of this kind had a great effect upon the future relations of the countries. In former years such alliances were made for the purpose of strengthening national influence and to raise up allies in case of war. If that rule held good now, England would have few foes to fear, for her royal family has mated with nearly every other in Europe. To such an extent have these alliances reached that Victoria is called the mother-in-law of Europe, but still England can count on few as real allies in case of war. Her power in Asia is threatened by Russia, most closely connected with her royal family, while Germany, ruled by her grandson, is always regarded as a possible enemy against any other nation except France. Queen Victoria's helmsman must in due time ask one of the young princes of Europe to share her throne, and it is hoped that she will find among them one whom she loves and who loves her. The most eligible of them is Prince Bernard of Saxe-Weimar, who is the next heir to the throne in case she dies without issue.

THE shadow of war is again cast over Europe. The British government demands that the French shall retire from the country of the Nile in Africa, and they have thus far refused to do so. Many a slighter pretext has before now kindled the flames of war. France went to war with Germany on a lesser pretext, though behind it was a reason which few even of the great statesmen of Europe suspected. The present may be somewhat such a case. The trouble growing out of the Dreyfus case is so extended that it is breeding distrust everywhere. The government is suspicious of the army and apparently with good reason, since it has been proved that there was an extended plot in the army to convict the unfortunate officer. The republic has been popular with the people of France, but not with the army, especially with many of the high officers who imagine they could rise to higher honors and distinctions under a monarchy. The republic has always rested on an unstable basis, and the moment its security is seriously threatened, war with some other country may be precipitated on some pretext in order to arouse the loyalty of the people and make them rally to the support of the government. The army would hail war with delight at any time, and it is the nature of the French soldier to believe that the arms of France are invincible. The lessons of 1870 have been forgotten by this time, or if they are remembered at all it is with a desire to wipe out the disgrace that fell on France in the war with Germany. A war regarding the possession of African territory might draw in other nations, since most of them desire a portion of the territory. Russia being the only exception, and she would seek her advantage in Asia, at the expense of England. If war should ensue it would be a bloody one, though it might not last long. However, it is probable that the complications will be adjusted without a resort to arms, yet it must be remembered that nearly all recent wars have come suddenly and with little warning. Our own war with Spain is an example. Two months before it began there were few people who had the least idea that the two countries would ever go to war over the Cuban question or any other. In these days politicians make the causes for war, and it does not take them long to conjure up a pretext when they have decided that it will be for their interest to have war.

Mrs. Polzin, mother of Mrs. Klug, died last Wednesday and was buried yesterday at 1 p. m. under the auspices of the Lutheran church here.

Mrs. Ficks has his old house moved to the north side of his new house and his wagon-shed attached to his blacksmith shop, while on the other side of the shop he is building a new shed. This improves the looks of the street very much.

LAST Saturday evening about 45 people assembled at the home of Mrs. Wm. Fick, in honor of her birthday. Card playing and dancing were the chief amusements, while supper was served at midnight. At about 2 a. m. the guests departed, wishing Mrs. Fick many returns of the day.

COLD Winter Predicted. A cold winter, with lots of snow and rain, is predicted by prognosticator Outbushon of Buffalo. His opinion is based on the fact that the year so far shows an excess of heat, and it is the most natural thing in the world to suppose that one extreme will follow another. August last goes as the continuously warm and sultry month of its kind, breaking all records not for excessive heat but uniformity.—X.

BEECHWOOD BEAMLETS. Miss Lizzie Bartell is now in the employ of Margaret O'Connell. Clover hulling hereabouts has been abandoned pending better weather.

MISS Margaret Gill has gone to the Chair City to visit relatives and friends. A number from here attended the Heyne-Miller wedding at Newfane last Tuesday.

HENRY Buchen, the Republican candidate for sheriff, called on friends here Tuesday. Louis Kreutzinger, the stalwart thresher of Boltonville, called on his parents and friends Sunday.

Mrs. Steckins, a Milwaukee milliner who was located here for ten days, is now at Silver Creek. Miss Tillie Heberer, who had been employed in Aug. Kumrow's household, returned home Wednesday.

The snow storm of last Tuesday proved a great setback for farmers who had not finished their fall work. Miss Gulda Stahl is growing rapidly and as a consequence her father is excavating preparatory to enlarging their residence.

In relation to the case of H. Wernicke the jury agrees that if they knew as much about law as the self-styled "level-headed man" does not know, they would consider themselves perfect.

SOUGHT STATISTICS. "I am gathering information to add to the statistics of the country," said the man who entered the car with pencil and note-book in hand to a woman who occupied a seat alone. "I hope you will be willing to answer a few questions."

The woman looked up at him doubtfully and indignantly, and closed her lips more firmly. "You are a wife, madam; you have a husband. Now, then, it is a delicate question to ask, but does that husband—"

"Box my ears, do you mean?" "That is it, ma'am—that is it. What I am after is statistics, you know. If he does that—"

"I'll just give you a few statistics," said the woman, as she arose from her seat. "I've been married three times. The first two husbands never thought of laying hands on me, but the last one boxed my ears three weeks ago."

"Ah! he did." "He did, sir; and the statistics show that he went out of the window head first, over a fence feet foremost, and that he didn't stop turning handsprings and cartwheels for a week."

"My dear madam, I—I—" "Look at that, sir," she continued, as she touched the end of her nose with her fist. "And I wear a No. 7 shoe, and if it's statistics you're after I'll give you—"

But he was gone, and she sat down and breathed hard, and looked red in the face, and said to the passengers near her: "If he had waited ten seconds longer I'd have given him statistics on how many men are annually crippled for life by tryin' to be smart."—X.

The neglected grave of La Fayette. In the city of Paris there is a convent and garden known through the immortal Hugo's "Les Miserables." It is the convent of the Petit Picpus. In the grounds of the convent is a small cemetery where nearly 1,500 victims of the guillotine were buried indiscriminately. Here also repose the bones of La Fayette beside those of his wife, who wished to be buried there. The resting-place of La Fayette is marked only by a plain granite slab. Upon a register kept by the concierge of the convent are inscribed the names of but a small number of casual visitors.

In view of these facts the "La Fayette Memorial Commission" has been formed for the purpose of erecting a monument to the memory of La Fayette as a 20th century tribute from the people of this nation, to be unveiled with fitting ceremony on July 4, 1900, and thus grandly celebrate United States day at the Paris exposition. It is proposed that the cost of the undertaking, which is estimated at a quarter of a million dollars, shall be defrayed by small contributions secured through the agency of the school children of our land.

The dedication of this monument, to be built through the efforts of the young people of America, will make conspicuously resplendent our United States day at the Paris exposition in 1900. No other country will find such a basis for the celebration of its national day in Paris, but all the nations of the earth will unite with this republic in the dedication of this beautiful memorial, a tribute which shall forever mark the grave of La Fayette, whose memory is consecrated in the hearts of men.—X.

Bill Nye's Genius. Had the late Bill Nye confined his genius as a humorist to adverting writing he would undoubtedly have attained even greater success than he did in the literary field. Here is a sample of what he could do in the advertising line: "Owing to ill health, I will sell at my residence in township 12, range 18, according to government survey, one plump raspberry colored cow, aged 8 years. She is a good milker and is not afraid of the cars or anything else. She is of undoubted courage and gives milk frequently. To a man who does not fear death in any form she would be a great boon. She is very much attached to her house at present by means of a stay-chain, but she will be sold to anyone who will agree to use her. She is one-fourth short-horn and three-fourths hyena. I will also throw in a double-barreled shot-gun, which goes with her. In May she generally goes away for a week or two and returns with a tall, red calf with wobbly legs. Her name is Rose. I would rather sell her to a non-resident."

—Last Wednesday morning the Kewaskum creamery wagons were turned back to the village, after the drivers had vainly attempted to get over their respective routes. The snow which fell Tuesday drifted so during the night that one of the vehicles tipped over before going far. It is reported that the roads had to be opened with shovels in some places.

—Monday last Arey Perschbacher was evidently led to believe that the fine weather of that date would continue for some time, as he took the roof off the north side of his blacksmith shop in the afternoon preparatory to making some improvement.

With the interior of the building thus exposed the rain Monday night and snow Tuesday made a mess at the shop which can be imagined better than described. The weather of October has been all that prognosticators predicted for it, thus far.

—The first snow storm experienced here this season occurred last Tuesday. It was the outgrowth of a rain storm of the night previous and was accompanied by a strong north-west wind. Several inches of snow fell and the thermometer dropped somewhat during the night, but as the ground was soft and the storm subsided Wednesday morning, "the beautiful" melted away without affording us any sleighing. Some of our townsmen, who were caught in the country by the storm, report the roads as having been drifted so that upon driving home in the morning they had to cut across fields at times.

HALLOW EVE.—Some people, especially young folks, think that no holiday is so thoroughly enjoyable as the evening before All Saints day.

TO THE PUBLIC.

Having recently overhauled the roller system of my mill, I am now able to make a whiter and better quality of rye flour than ever before. I have also just added to my machinery for grinding wheat, thus equipping the Barton roller mills so as to give satisfaction in every respect.

I thank my old customers for their patronage and hope to merit a continuance thereof, while to prospective patrons I would say: Give me a trial and I will guarantee to please you.

LOST-GOLD WATCH.

In a Large Bin of Flour, 25 Ladies' or Gent's Gold Watches Will Be Given Away Before January 1st.

Every watch will have a ticket, which will be sealed up in a tin box, said box to be dropped into a bin of flour, which will be drawn off into sacks, and the party lucky enough to buy the sack of flour containing the little box will get a watch free of charge.

We thus propose to proceed until the 25 watches are given away, as it will induce many people to try our flour, and our experience teaches us that where once tried White Pearl is continually used.
