From the Evening Crescent, Appleton. Wis. A remarkable cure from a disease which has generally wrecked the lives of chil-dren has attracted much attention among the residents of Appleton.

The case is that of little Willard Creech, son of Richard D. Creech, a well known employe of one of the large paper mills in the Fox River Valley. The lad was attacked by spinal disease and his parents had given up all hope of his ever being had given up all hope of his ever being well again when, as by a miracle, he was healed and is new in school as happy as Mr. Creech, the father of the boy, who resides at 1062 Second street, Appleton, Wisconsin, told the following story:

He Goes to School.

"Our boy was absolutely helpless. His lower limbs were paralyzed, and when we used electricity he could not feel it below his hips. Finally we let the doctor go, as he did not seem to help our son, and we nearly gave up hope. My mother, who lives in Canada, wrote advising the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and I bought some.

"This was when our boy had been on the stretcher for an entire year and help-

On arriving in the town the first people he inquired for were Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego Hanna. These three were his backed chung. They were triplets and by hood chums. They were triplets, and ir. and Mrs. Hanna had named them Mr. and Mrs. Hanna had named them for the Bible characters who went down into the fiery furnace. Speer says that Andrew Jackson once came to the town and saw the triplets, giving each of them $5. Two of them long since died, but Abednego is still alive. Large Canal Expenditures The big canal bill to which Emperor William has publicly referred is now ready for introduction in the Diet in the coming session. It provides for the expenditure of 400,000,000 marks for the Midland canal, 68,000,000 marks for the Dortmund-Rhine canal, 50,000,000 marks for watersheds, etc., in the Oder district; 40,000,000 marks for the Berlin-Stettin Ship canal, 30,000,000 marks for the Masolin canal and 20,000,000 marks for the improvement of the Weser river. When the scheme is executed the main waterways of Prussia will be connected from the eastern extremity of the empire to the harbors of the German ocean.

In the early days of my childhood we occupied with M. Poulain, our tutor, one of the separate houses on my father's estate, entirely for ourselves, says Prince Kropotkin in the Atlantic; and after his method of education was softened by the intervention of our sister Helene, we were on the best possible terms with him. We were always with M. Poulain, who thoroughly enjoyed our stay in the country, and let us enjoy it. The woods; the walks along the river; the climbing over the hills of the old fortress, which Poulain made alive for us as he told us how it was defended by the Russians, and how it was taken by the Tartars; the little adventures, in one of which Poulain became our hero by saving Alexander from drowning—yielded no end of new and delightful impressions. Large parties were organized, also, in which all the family took part, sometimes picking mushrooms in the woods, and afterward taking tea in the midst of the forest, where a man a hundred years old lived alone with his little grandson, taking care of bees. At other times we went to one of father's villages grandson, taking care of bees. At other times we went to one of father's villages where a big pond had been dug, in which where a big poid had been dug, in which golden carp could be caught. My nurse lived in that village. Her family was one of the poorest; besides her husband, she had only a small boy to help her, and a girl, my foster-sister, who became later on a preacher and a "virgin" in the Nonconformist sect to which they belonged. There was no bound to her joy when I came to see her. Cream, eggs, apples and came to see her. Cream, eggs, apples and honey were all that she could offer; but the way in which she offered them, in bright wooden plates, after having covered the table with a fine snow-white linen ta-blecloth of her own make (with the Rus-sian Norconformists absolute cleanliness sian Nonconformists absolute cleanliness is a matter of religion), and the fond words with which she addressed me, treating me as her own son, left each time the warnest feelings in my heart. I must say the same of the nurses of my elder brothers, Nicholas and Alexander. Few people know what treasuries of good-ness can be found in the hearts of Rus-sian peasants, even after centuries of the most shameful oppression, which might well have embittered them. A Thrilling Scene in the Field Hospital at Guasimas. There is one incident of the day which shines out in my memory above all others now as I lie in a New York hospital writing. It occurred at the field hospital. About a dozen of us were lying there. A continual chorus of moans rose through the tree branches overhead. The surgeons, with hands and bared arms driping, and clothes literally saturated with lood, were straining every nerve to prepare the wounded for the journey down to Siboney. Behind me lay Capt. Mc-Clintock with his lower leg-bones literally ground to powder. He bore his pain as gallantly as he had led his men, and that is saying much. I think Maj. Brodie was also there. It was a delegater of the saying method of the saying lso there. It was a doleful group. Am-utation and death stared its members in ir gloomy faces. Suddenly a voice started softly,

My country, 'tis of thee, Sweet land of liberty, Of thee I sing. Other voices took it up:

Land where my fathers died. Land of the Pilgrims' pride— The quivering, quavering chorus, pund tuated by groans, and made spasmodic by pain, trembled up from that little group wounded Americans in the midst of the Cuban solitude—the pluckiest, most heart felt song that human beings ever sang. There was one voice that did not quit eep up with the others. It was so weak hat I did not hear it until all the rest ad finished with the line. Let Freedom ring.

Then halting, strugging, faint, it repeated wly, Land-of-the-Pilgrims'-pride,

The last word was a woeful cry. One more son had died as died the fathers.—

Running a Farm. When I was young at farming, I'd watch the turnip tops, And quickly go to wishing

For good, big, rousing crops I wished for mammoth pumpkins All others to outweigh; In short, I took to nothing But wishing all the day.

A solace sweet and soothing In every wish would lurk, Till dreaming speculation Seemed surer than hard work.

I wished my cellar full of Potatoes with a will; I wished the granary groaning With corn to go to mill.

While other farmers wished for A good supply of rain, I thought it as sound logic To wish for fruit and grain. And so I went on wishing, Contented with my lot,

In autumn no potatoes

Were boiling in my pot.

I tell you I'd discovered That wishing only breeds Keen disappointment; wishing Won't pull up choking weeds It won't hoe corn in summer, Or husk it in the fall: I tell you, boys, that wishing Won't run a farm at all.

That winter my potatoes I had to go and buy Right from my smiling neighbors, Who had a good supply. They'd slyly nudge their elbows. And taunt me with a laugh, That labor's wheat that's golden, And speculation chaff.

I learned this goodly lesson-And in my heart it seems-One day of honest labor Is worth ten years of dreams. And now in idly wishing, My duty ne'er I shirk: But just roll up my shirt sleeves,
