SENATOR MITCHELL'S SUCCESSOR.

ST. KILIAN SHARPS.

The Republicans of Wisconsin gain a United States senator through obtaining a majority in the next legislature, which is to elect a successor to John L. Mitchell (Dem.), but there are indications that there will be a hard fight for the nomination, as there are several candidates in the field. The candidates so far are Jos. V. Quarles of Milwaukee, Ex-Congressman Isaac Stephenson of Marinette, Congressman J. W. Babcock of Necedah and Ex-Congressman Samuel A. Cook of Neenah, while behind them and ready to get into the field are Judge Charles M. Webb of Grand Rapids and Judge Emil Baensch of Manitowoc. Quarles, Stephenson and Babcock will probably divide the party strength in the legislature in such a way that there will have to be later combinations to reach a nomination. Cook's strength appears to be badly broken by the result of the election, for his special champion at home, Speaker Geo. A. Buckstaff of the last assembly, was defeated for election to the senate by a Democrat, Col. Harry Weed of Oshkosh, and the loss of one of the assembly districts of the county, so that he may be counted as practically out of the race. It is apparently the intention of Webb and Baensch to hold themselves in reserve as dark horses in case the fight among the leading candidates gets so hot that no combination can be made on any one of them. Present indications are that Quarles will go into the caucus with more votes than any other candidate, and with the best chances of success. He would make a very creditable senator, as he is a lawyer of ability, a fine speaker, an eminent scholar, and a man of fine presence. The legislature will meet early in January and the senator elected will take his seat March 4th. In some states, notably Oregon and Wyoming, the majority party in the legislature has been so split up with personal feuds that it has been unable to elect a senator and the seat has remained vacant for some time for that reason, but such a thing is not likely to happen in Wisconsin at this time, as the antagonisms are not of that kind. Neither is it likely that there will be a repetition of the result of 1875, when bolting Republicans combined with the Democrats to elect Angus Cameron of La Crosse and thus defeat Matt. H. Carpenter, who received the party nomination for re-election. There will not be enough Democrats in the next legislature to answer that purpose, even if there were to be a bolt from the Republican caucus, which of itself is not likely to happen. The contest will be in the caucus, and the candidate nominated there will receive the full Republican vote.

THE ELECTION.

The result of the election in the state last week was very much like what had been anticipated by the most shrewd political observers. The vote throughout the state is very small, indicating that the people in general took very little interest in the result. The Republicans made their campaign on national issues alone, declaring that the menace of free silver coinage and the need of sustaining the policy of the administration in regard to the war with Spain were of vastly greater importance than local and state issues. The result of the election shows that this argument appealed with force to the greater number of voters who went to the polls, but it does not account for the large number who stayed at home. Politicians have their ways of accounting for victories and defeats. Election statistics will prove anything, except that the party which polled the smaller vote was successful. The truth of the matter is that the people cared little about the issues raised by the political parties. They have been fooled too many times, and so on election day a large share of them stayed at home and perhaps did as well as to go to the polls and guess how to vote. What the result of the election would have been on a full vote is unnecessary to consider. The people who do not vote have no reason to complain of the result. The people of Washington county were not behind others in regard to the small vote cast. Probably as good an interpretation of the small vote is the fact that all the candidates for county offices were good men and any of them would serve the public acceptably. It must be gratifying to the friends of Judge Sawyer, Congressman Barney and W. H. Froehlich to know that they have received such generous support at the hands of the people. Judge Sawyer and Gov. Scofield both made an ideal campaign, neither one having resorted to abuse of his opponent nor to saying anything of which he need be ashamed. Judge Sawyer's friends must be pleased at the fact that he cut down the majority of his opponent from 100,000 to much less than half that figure. Congressman Barney has been chosen for a third term to represent his friends and neighbors at Washington, and his personal popularity came near carrying his home county, which usually gives a large Democratic majority. Mr. Froehlich has served the people of this county two terms acceptably in the legislature, and he will do honor to it as secretary of state.

CONVICT LABOR.

The labor commission, which was appointed a year and a half ago by Gov. Scofield under an act of the last legislature to examine into the systems of employing convict labor in the several states and to report to the next legislature with recommendations for the future employment of such labor in this state, has been in session all this week at Milwaukee listening to the views of manufacturers and representatives of labor organizations. The labor in the prisons at present is employed under contract by manufacturers, and the objection to it is that the product of the convicts comes into competition with that of free labor and operates to reduce prices and consequently wages. The idea on which the commission was appointed was to devise some plan by which the output of the prisons would not compete with that of free labor, so that there might be no disturbance of the legitimate markets. Most of the labor of the state prison is used by a Chicago firm in the manufacture of boots and shoes, which are shipped to the Garden City and then come back into the state for sale. The rest of the convicts are employed in knitting woolen goods for another contractor. The house of correction in Milwaukee has a large chair factory, and the other chair manufacturers of the state complain that they cannot compete with it in the market. In the state of New York a new law has been enacted prohibiting convict labor in any competitive line and providing that convicts shall be employed only on state account. Under that system all the articles that are made in the prisons are used in the various state institutions and for other public purposes. The cloth for the clothing of inmates of the prisons is made in those institutions, also that for uniforms of the state troops, all furniture needed for public purposes (even for the schools of the state), machinery, tools and everything needed that can be made by the convicts. The law further provides that the same prices shall be charged to the state as those paid in the open market for similar products. No effort is made to make the state prison self-sustaining, the central idea being to keep the prisoners employed without competing with free labor.

Every watch will have a ticket, which will be sealed up in a tin box, said box to be dropped into a bin of flour, which will be drawn off into sacks, and the party lucky enough to buy the sack of flour containing the little box will get a watch free of charge.

We thus propose to proceed until the 25 watches are given away, as it will induce many people to try our flour, and our experience teaches us that where once tried White Pearl is continually used.
