Mrs. Sharp's countenance relaxed into a smile of intense gratification as the words of acquittal fell from the judge's lips and she turned to receive the proffered hand of Gen. Bragg, her counsel, who cordially congratulated her. She then shook hands with her attorney. She then shook nands with her atterney, Charles W. Felker, and thanked him. Mrs. Kate Pier went over to the defendant and, after expressing her gratification for the acquittal, assisted her in putting on her cape.

Wisconsin representative Mrs. Sharp said, as she was about to leave the courtroom with Mrs, Pier and her lwo attorneys: "I should not have been surprised if I had been found guilty, considering the manner in which the state has conducted the prosecution. They have persecuted me in a shameful way."

State has conducted the prosecution. They have persecuted me in a shameful way."

Mrs. Sharp came into court fifteen minutes after it had opened, in company with Judge Bailey, delaying the proceedings a few minutes. She was heavily veiled, a black veil being doubled over ther face. The sheriff informed the court that the defendant and her attorneys were in court and the judge took the scaled verdict from F. R. Vinton, foreman of the jury and said. "You will listen to the verdict as it will be recorded against you"—and read from the slip of paper: "We, the jury, find the defendant not guilty."

The Rose A. Sharp case went to the jury at 3:35 Friday afternoon, and all night long the twelve men were locked in a room at the courthouse deliberating ever the fate of the defendant. At 12 o'clock the jury stood eleven for acquittal and one for conviction. At ther heavy

Manitowoc, Wis., April 5.-[Special.]

Manitowoc, Wis., April 5.—[Special.]

—A peculiar case is on trial in the county court here. C. C. Barnes was president of the First National bank of this city. The bank failed and Mr. Barnes made an assignment to John Barnes. C. C. Barnes afterward went to Michigan and died at Charlevoix. His body was sent back to Manitowoc for interment. Many people in Manitowoc do not believe that C. C. Barnes is dead, and that the body sent to Manitowoc for burial was not Mr. Barnes', but that of someone else. The creditors of the bank believe there is yet property of C. C. Barnes in the hands of Assignee John Barnes, and it is for the purpose of getting at this that action has been begun. Judge Gilbertson appointed C. E. Estabrook of Milwaukee administrator of the estate, provided any estate can be found.

Influence of Hall Caine

Hall Caine, it will be remembered, de ared in the London Telegraph tha American interviewers exaggerated his speeches and credited him with statements which he did not utter. To this a writer in the Detroit News-Tribune replies: "This is really too bad. Why, in an interview with the writer Caine distinctly requested him to put things that he said as modestly as possible. For instance, when he spoke of the Isle of Man, these are the words he used: 'I don't know as to whether this increase of trade and interest in the Isle of Man is entirely due to my writing about it, but—now, you must quote me as saying this modestly—I must say that in late years the herring fishery has improved and the industry of making homespun has been revived.' Just imagine the cunning little herring swarming about the Isle of Man and leaping into the nets of the fishermen, just because Hall Caine wrote 'The Christian' and 'The Manxman'."—Boston Journal.

He was accosted by a man who said:
"Gen. Scott, I had the honor of doing most of the work on the sword presented to you by the state of Louisiana. I should like to ask if it was just as you would have chosen."

"It's a very fine sword, sir, a very fine sword, indeed," said the general. "I am proud to have it. There is only one thing I should have preferred different. The inscription should have been on the blade, sir. The scabbard may be taken from us, but the sword, never!"

The Ashes of Love. The women are telling of an Atchison an who treated his wife with indiffer ence and cruelty in their early married ife. They say he is now down on his knees blowing into the dead ashes of her ove trying to revive a spark of affection for him. How women love to picture a man in such an attitude! It is probably the dream of every neglected wife that some day her husband will try to warm his hands like a frozen Cupid at the fires of her love, and will find only dead ashes here. There is enough dead ashes in there. There is enough dead ashes in the average woman's dreams to macadamize a road.—Atchison Globe.

In order to get its beneficial effects, and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package. Consumers of the choicest products of modern commerce purchase at about the same price that others pay for cheap and worthless imitations. To come into universal demand and to be everywhere considered the best of its class, an article must be capable of satisfying the wants and tastes of the best informed purchasers. The California Fig Syrup Company having met with the highest success in the manufacture and sale of its excellent liquid laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, it has become important to all to have a knowledge of the Company and its product. The California Fig Syrup Company was organized more than fifteen years ago, for the special purpose of manufacturing and selling a laxative remedy which would be more pleasant to the taste and more beneficial in effect than any other known. The great value of the remedy, as a medicinal agent and of the Company's efforts, is attested by the sale of millions of bottles annually, and by the high approval of most eminent physicians. As the true and genuine remedy named Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company only, the knowledge of that fact will assist in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties.

It is a veritable subterranean city, where skilled laborers have carved ballrooms, restaurants, chaptle all and the states and chandeliers. There els, altars, statues and chandeliers. There are railways, too, in this wonderful city, which is 700 feet below the surface of the earth. There are sixteen salt lakes, but the visitor may be rowed over only one of them. The waters of this one are thick, dark and heavy, and those who have been across it tell of the ghostlike swish of the waters against the side of the grotto and compare its dark surface to the fabled Styx. There are twenty-five miles of railways in the mines, and a thousand miners are employed every day in the crystal city. They produce 65,000 tons of salt every year. The mines are under the direct control of the Austro-Hungarian minister of finance.
