Communications should be accompanied by the name of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as evidence of good faith on the part of the author. Write only upon one side of paper, and, in citing names and dates, be careful to make them plain and distinct.

The eastern ladies who contemplate a war on kissing should first break up the practice of swapping chewing gum.

The Cream City carnival directors evidently hope to attract everyone to Milwaukee next month—except the fellow who blew up the Maine.

The man who resigns public office to retain a railroad pass evidently considers the latter the most profitable position to serve in, somehow.

"Stand by the flag, wherever you find it!" is great as a rallying cry, and therefore terrible to contemplate as a cover for "a multitude of sins."

It seems that "Boss" Croker escaped a rigid examination at the hands of the Mazet committee in New York only to get a carbuncle on his neck in London.

The Cream City pressmen, who went out on a strike this week, may find it necessary to solicit the aid of sympathetic printers in order to make a more striking impression.

Since the Common Council of Milwaukee has repeatedly voted down the appointment of Alderman Smith for Westside commissioner of public works, Mayor Rose must feel much like the section-boss who found himself at the mercy of his crew to such an extent that he sarcastically asked their leave to "sit on the fence and look at the cars go by."

The Alabama boy who killed a baseball umpire should now tour the country giving exhibitions of just how he disposed of the "car of the diamond." Many likely suppose the heroic deed was done in about the same way that David made Goliath "bite the dust," while others may prefer to believe that the slayer wielded "the jaw-bone of an ass."

ANDREW CARNEGIE, the Pittsburgh iron magnate, has retired with a fortune but gained an unenviable reputation in making his $75,000,000, as witness the following from the London Chronicle: "We all remember how the Homestead works were shut down for months because the men refused to have their wages lowered, and how barbed-wire fences charged with electricity were set up, the place fortified, Pinkertons sent for, and finally, after a state of war and siege, the union was smashed to atoms and the millionaire's works were filled with Poles and Hungarians." While the Chronicle's charge is only too true, the Scotchman (who landed in America fifty years ago and started as a stationary engine-tender at the age of 10 years) now evidently proposes to "square himself," as it were, by indulging in acts of philanthropy. He has just offered to contribute the last $250,000 which Mr. Chamberlain is endeavoring to raise for the University of Birmingham, Eng., provided the scientific school be made the principal department of the institution.

Trees That Grow Bread, Butter, Etc.

The bread fruit tree of Ceylon is very remarkable. Its fruit is baked and eaten as we eat bread, and it is equally nutritious. In Barbadoes, South America, is a tree which, by piercing the trunk, produces milk for the children of the inhabitants. In the interior of Africa is a tree which produces excellent butter. It resembles the American oak, and its fruit, from which the butter is prepared, is not unlike the olive. Park, the great traveler, declared that the butter surpassed any made in England from cow's milk.

At Sierra Leone is the cream-tree, the fruit of which is quite agreeable in taste. At Table Bay, near the Cape of Good Hope, is a small tree bearing berries which make excellent candles. It is also found in the Azores. The vegetable tallow tree also grows in Sumatra, in Algeria and in China. In the island of Chusan large quantities of oil and tallow are extracted from its fruit, which is gathered in November or December, when the tree has lost its leaves. The bark of a tree in China produces a beautiful soap. Trees of the sapindus or soap-berry order also grow in the North of Africa. They are amazingly prolific, and their fruit contains about thirty-eight per cent of saponin.—Ladies Home Journal.

MILWAUKEE CLOWNS.
Milwaukee Carnival Directors to join in the masked parade during the Carnival festivities on June 26th. At the last of the Carnival parade will appear the Carnival Directors and a number of Milwaukee's most prominent business men, all dressed in costumes representing the famous clowns of history. This plan had not been decided upon until a meeting of the Board held last week. The costumes will certainly be a surprise to everybody, and probably to the Directors themselves. It was not agreed whether the directors should go on a float or ride horse-back, but the matter will be given enough consideration immediately, as it is a question that is most important to some of the directors. The most important secret will be maintained over the costumes and the clowns, which will be strictly new and warranted never to have been exhibited anywhere on earth.

—Saturday last Jacob Schlosser received the sad news of his father's death, which occurred at Milwaukee on the 11th inst. The deceased was one of the pioneers of this county, having settled in Germantown fifty years ago and resided there until 2 years ago, when he went to live with his daughter, Mrs. Jannke, at 2312 North avenue in Milwaukee, where he died of cancer of the stomach at the age of 75 years. The funeral took place last Sunday at 2 p. m.

—Tuesday last August Backhaus, Jr., who attends school in the law department of the Wisconsin university at Madison, was appointed to a position in the attorney general's office. The position pays a good salary and only requires from three to four hours of his attention every afternoon, so he will also have time to follow up his studies in the law school. Such positions are seldom secured by students, and August undoubtedly will thus acquire knowledge and experience which will materially aid him to graduate with honors a year hence. We extend congratulations.

PERSCHBACHER, Fond du Lac avenue, Kewaskum.

—The chimney sweeper who makes regular trips to this place annually, was here this week and warbled a few new songs, in fog-horn tones, from chimney tops. However, his harvest here did not prove so good this spring as in previous years, owing to his having twice fell off the steep roof of John Schaefer's house while performing his first job. The first time he fell full-length to the ground but escaped injury, and upon recovering his wind he made the second attempt with somewhat better show of succeeding, as he only fell to the top of a first-story bay-window. He was about to make a third attempt when Mr. Schaefer interferred for fear the fellow would break his neck. After this it proved difficult for him to get a job, and it was some time before he even got a chance to recover his reputation as a roof-climber.

Silberzahn from here, who talked entertainingly of every place of interest along the route traversed, including a point where the train touches the 3 counties of Washington, Waushara and Milwaukee.

Though Mr. Silberzahn is 72 years of age, his appearance would not indicate that he had passed more than the 65th mile-stone of his life. He is an apt conversationalist and probably the most observant man in Washington county. We hope that he may live to enjoy many more encampments of his old comrades.
