RINGS ON YELLOW PINES. Two Circles of New Fibre Blending Into One Mark Each Year. It is very curious to note the successive growth rings of our yellow pines. A veteran lumberman from the Pearl River district, who has been engaged in the business for over 40 years, was especially directed to the subject by a forestry expert a few years ago. He had no idea that the markings were so beautifully clear and distinct. The tree acquires two rings of new fibre every year, one in the spring and one in the fall, but they blend together and form a single, well-defined circle. During the first ten years these successive accumulations are of about equal thickness, and for the next two decades the diminution is very slight, but after that the rings become thinner and thinner, and when the tree gets into the eighties and nineties the growth is very slight indeed. In fact, a tree is 125 years old, he would say, that one is 100; that is about 140, and so on. Afterward we measured the growth rings with the instruments he carried, and in every instance he hit the age within a few years. It is a very curious thing, and many of them are some very ancient and many of them are some very young. The figure in the traditions and folk lore of the settlers in their patriarchs on a tract near my mill, and when the standing timber of the place was recently sold, it was in the terms of the contract that the country folks if they had been cut down. -New Orleans Times-Democrat.

TOOK FATHER'S PLACE. [Special.]—Gen. Bragg caused a mild sensation in the circuit court this morning when he stated that one of the jurors in the case of Frank Schaefer of Forest against the city and Mrs. Colman, executrix of the estate of E. H. Colman, had not right to sit on the jury, as he had never been sworn by the judge. The judge had stated that James Masden had taken the place of his father, Edward Masden, who had been sworn in by the judge and had answered to the name of his father when it had been called. In the case on trial the jury brought in a verdict of $800 for the plaintiff. He sued for $7500 and his attorney, Gen. Bragg, asked that the verdict be set aside owing to the illegality of the jury. The motion will be argued and testimony taken before the court will take any action. The plaintiff asked damages for injuries alleged to have been received in 1888, his wagon having caught in the street-car rails, and he was thrown to the pavement. The Fond du Lac Light, Power and Railway Company was the original defendant and a jury gave the plaintiff damages in the sum of $2000. He failed to collect on the judgment and brought suit against the city and a verdict in his favor for $800 was given. From the verdict he appealed. The city also appealed on the grounds that E. H. Colman, a member of the street railway company, should have been made a party defendant. The city won and the verdict was set aside. A third suit was then begun which resulted as above.

CHAPTER XVIII.—(Continued.) When the fury of this blast had a little expended itself and the two human companions could find chance to speak, Arva refused to let Keene spend a single moment or another particle of labor on the passage, but declared that she was ready and determined to crawl through. He had to give in, being, perhaps, heartily glad to do so; and when he had led the way, taking lantern and chair, and in all considerably increasing the further out, she followed. Clearly he did not intend to let her go, and he had led her to the door, and put his two incumbrances down. He insisted that she should rest a moment, and then they pushed on. The wind was blowing from the north, and drew nearer and nearer; at last the sun shined, dazzling them and making them blink their eyes. CHAPTER XIX. GOOD FORTUNE SO FAR—AT LAST A SAIL. It was gone a shorter time than Arva expected. She had scarcely put the bits in order and got the last touches of the meal done when Fidele's eager jumps and whining bark of welcome announced his return. He came bounding up the stairs, and his look showed the good news he brought. "High and dry, but not hurt any," he said cheerfully. "I can get her on rollers, and with the help of the boys, we can get her out of the garden, too, doesn't seem to be hurt much." "Yes, yes, the garden," said Arva, who had momentarily forgotten that important matter. "I wasn't thinking of that. You are always full of courage," said Arva, with a faint smile. "Well, I will try to believe with you."

CHAPTER XXIV. A PHILIPPINE RESOURCE. In addition to the known wealth of the Philippines islands it is pointed out in a monograph prepared at Honolulu, that they are among the few places on earth where the trees from which gutta-percha is produced are found. The material is indispensable for covering marine cables, electric wires and many other uses. The gutta-percha is found in the supply drawn from Sumatra and Borneo is almost entirely exhausted through the wasteful methods employed in gathering it.—Army and Navy Journal.

CHAPTER XXV. THE STRAWBERRY AS A MEDICINE. The frequent recommendation of the strawberry by the medical profession for the lactic treatment of gout gives interest to the fact that in the old herbal pharmacy water distilled from the fruit was supposed to be a cure for the disease. The strawberry leaves boiled and applied as a poultice were once used for wounds and sores, on which they were said to have a most beneficial effect.

Help... Nature

Babies and children need proper food, rarely ever medicine. If they do not thrive on their food something is wrong. They need a little help to get their digestive machinery working properly.

SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME & SODA. Will generally correct this difficulty.

If you will put from one-fourth to half a teaspoonful in baby's bottle three or four times a day you will soon see a marked improvement. For larger children, from half to a teaspoonful, according to age, dissolved in their milk, if you so desire, will very soon show its great nourishing power. If the mother's milk does not nourish the baby, she needs the emulsion. It will show an effect at once both upon mother and child.
