THE GRAVE CLOSURES OVER HIS SECRET.

Mystery Concerning the Separation of Commodore Mayo and His Young Bride.

Washington, D. C., April 12.—When death sealed the lips of Commodore William K. Mayo, U. S. N., the great secret of his life—a secret which has puzzled Washington society for nearly eight years—the secret of the estrangement between the old sea dog of 70 and his bride of 20—died with him. It is doubted if it will ever be resurrected for the woman's lips are also sealed.

He had been a widower for forty years when in 1892, he visited St. Johnsbury, in the White mountains, and met Mrs. Orville H. Stevens and her 20-year-old daughter Jennie. He fell in love with Jennie at first sight and wooed her with the fervor of a man of her own age.

VALUABLE COPPER MINE DISCOVERED.

One Taken Out in Kiskadee Valley Near Sparta Yields $142 Per Ton.

Sparta, Wis., April 12.—[Special.]—Copper ore has been discovered in paying quantities in the hills in the Kiskadee valley, twenty-five miles south of this city. One taken from a rude mine when assayed yielded $142 per ton, 70 per cent. of which was copper and the balance gold and silver. Some much richer ore has been taken out and experts claim there is no doubt that there are very rich veins in the hills. The ore in that vicinity will be thoroughly prospected by expert miners.

FORMALLY DISBANDED.

The Company E Athletic Association of Fond du Lac Goes Out of Existence.

Fond du Lac, Wis., April 11.—[Special.]—The Co. E Athletic association, under whose management the champion basketball team of Fond du Lac has won national renown, disbanded last night when the annual meeting was held. This does not mean the abandonment of basketball by Co. E, but is merely going away with a secondary organization that the members of the company desired was unnecessary. However, the athletic teams and contests by members of the company will be directly under the control of the company, and its organization as expressed in its board of directors which control the armory. It is expected that under the new system there will be no abatement in the promotion and encouragement of athletics. It is intended, however, that only members of the company who put themselves in good standing by faithfully attending drill, etc., should participate in athletic contests. The athletic association turned over to Co. E all its property and the company assumes liabilities of the athletic association, if there are any. This association has been in existence three years and its record has been a very creditable one. It cannot be stated at this time whether a new organization will be organized or not. It is expected that in that position with the basketball team. He has made an efficient manager.

Fond du Lac, Wis., April 11.—[Special.]—The Co. E Athletic association, under whose management the champion basketball team of Fond du Lac has won national renown, disbanded last night when the annual meeting was held. This does not mean the abandonment of basketball by Co. E, but is merely going away with a secondary organization that the members of the company desired was unnecessary. However, the athletic teams and contests by members of the company will be directly under the control of the company, and its organization as expressed in its board of directors which control the armory. It is expected that under the new system there will be no abatement in the promotion and encouragement of athletics. It is intended, however, that only members of the company who put themselves in good standing by faithfully attending drill, etc., should participate in athletic contests. The athletic association turned over to Co. E all its property and the company assumes liabilities of the athletic association, if there are any. This association has been in existence three years and its record has been a very creditable one. It cannot be stated at this time whether a new organization will be organized or not. It is expected that in that position with the basketball team. He has made an efficient manager.
