JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 1.

Kewaskum Statesman.

Communications should be accompanied by the name of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as evidence of good faith on the part of the author. Write only upon one side of paper; and, in giving names and dates, be careful to make them plain and distinct. Advertising copy should reach us not later than Wednesday in order to insure its insertion in the issue of the current week.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 8, 1900.

A piece of China is not desired by any of the powers, since they considered the probable cost of keeping the Boxer inhabitants thereof in subjugation.

The following from the Evening Wisconsin will prove interesting to members of either of the old political parties: "The expressions of opinions in the Republican press and among the people, which have followed the report in Democratic organs that Gov. Scofield will turn Democrat in the approaching campaign, indicate that if he did it would produce a reaction favorable to La Follette and the whole Republican ticket." The Wisconsin evidently considers the governor's present attitude as being worse for the Republicans than if he should openly fight with their most formidable foe.

The electrical storms this season are apt to prove quite as destructive as those of last year. Many deaths and much damage have been caused by lightning. A report issued by the United States weather bureau on thunder storms of 1899 shows that 562 fatalities were reported last year, while 820 persons were shocked but recovered. The largest number killed at one time was five. Nearly half of the lightning strokes reported occurred out in the open, 34 per cent in houses, 11 per cent under trees, and 9 per cent in barns. It would be safe to conclude from these figures that one is less likely to be hit while in a barn or under a tree than when in a house or a field. Rightly to construe the statistics one must also know how many people in houses and in the open were unharmed. It is generally conceded that seeking shelter under the branches of a tree is about the riskiest proceeding possible during a thunder storm. It is much safer to take a wetting and keep in the open. Even in a house one should avoid approaching too closely to an open window or door. Those out of doors should keep away from wire fences as well as trees. The wire clothes-line was the cause of at least a dozen deaths last year. That number of women were struck by lightning and killed while removing clothes from the line. Metal is altogether too good a conductor of electricity to be safe under such circumstances.

Illness Proves a Heroine's Undoing.

Deborah Sampson, who enlisted in the Continental Army as Robert Shurtleff, was one of the most dashing and brave fighters in the cause of liberty. She enlisted in a Massachusetts regiment and served three years before it was known that the brave soldier was a woman. She was taken ill in Philadelphia and the hospital nurse had pronounced her dead, but a slight gurgling attracted the doctor's attention. Placing his hand upon her heart and finding an inner waistcoat tightly compressing her breast, he ripped the garment open. She was immediately revived, the matron's apartments, where everything was done for her comfort. The commanding officer, on learning that this aid was a woman, granted her an honorable discharge and presented her with a letter from Washington commending her services. The humble soldier stood before him with shining eyes filled with tears and thanked him many times, earnestly begging him to ask that her fellow soldiers be told, and that he ask them to tell him if she had done aught that was unbecoming a woman. This was done and her comrades and officers declared their respect for her was unbounded. She returned to her mother's home, striving to escape the calumny which followed her singular career. After General Washington became president he wrote a most cordial letter to Mrs. Gannett (Miss Simpson having married) inviting "Robert Shurtleff" to visit him. She did so, and was treated with great honor by the President and residents of Washington.—Ladies' Home Journal.

His Home Paper.
"It is strange," said a celebrated author recently, "and yet not strange, how old associations cling to us. I was born in a rural district, and forty years ago the little country weekly was the only newspaper literature we had. It was published every Saturday, and when it failed to come out on time everybody was in a flurry. Well I have not visited my birth-place in twenty years, but throughout that time I have been a subscriber to that little country weekly. I've crossed the seas and it has faithfully followed me to foreign capitals. I've taken it from my pocket in the clubs of London and Paris, and have read, with all the interest of old, how Colonel So-and-so is in our midst, how John Jones Sundayed with us, how our esteemed cornerer sat on three dead men yesterday, and how thankful the editor is for a mess of cabbage, but needs some bacon to boil with it, etc. Yes, that little country weekly is a positive joy to me yet, and the editor never has to dun me for my subscription.—X."

Angry Woman—You get away from here, or I'll call my husband. Tramp—Yer husband ain't at home. She—How do you know he ain't? Tramp—I've always noticed, man, that when a man is married to a woman who looks as you do, he's never at home except at meal times.—X.

Reckoning John D. Rockefeller's income at $30,000,000 a year, the New York Herald shows that his annual receipts are nearly equal to those of all Europe's sovereigns combined, which are as follows: Czar of Russia, $12,000,000; emperor of Germany (as king of Prussia), $8,552,770; emperor of Austria Hungary, $3,875,000; king of Italy, $2,858,000; king of Spain, $2,000,000; queen of England, $1,925,000; king of Portugal, $634,440; king of Greece, $250,000; king of Norway and Sweden, $275,525; king of Saxony, $735,000; king of Wurtemberg, $449,000; king of Romania, $297,000; king of Bavaria, $1,412,000; king of Belgium, $660,000; king of Denmark, $227,785; king of Serbia, $240,000.

Satisfactorily Explained.
"Henry," she said, "I don't believe you love me."
"Maria," replied he, "don't be foolish."
"There!" she exclaimed. "There's the evidence of the truth of what I said. 'Don't be foolish!' Did you ever speak to me that way before we were married?"
"No, my dear, I did not," he admitted.

"Then," she said, reproachfully, "my slightest wish was law; then you never sat like a dummy smoking a cigar and reading a paper when I was in the room; then you seemed anxious to please me, and were ever on the watch to do some little favor for me."
"It is true," he admitted.
"You were never lazy then?" she went on. "You were full of life and spirits; you were energetic."
"My dear," he interrupted, in that calm, dispassionate tone that makes the average wife want to get a poker or a broom, "did you ever see a boy trying to get an apple or a cherry that was just a little beyond his reach?"
"Certainly," she answered "but—"
"He keeps jumping and jumping until he gets it, doesn't he?"
"Of course."
"But does he continue jumping after he has got it?"
"Certainly not. There's no need of it."
"Well," he said as he turned to his paper again, "you're my cherry, and I don't see the slightest reason why I should keep on jumping any more than the boy."

She didn't say anything, but she thought and thought, and the more she did so the more undecided she became as to whether she ought to be angry with him.—X.

CLOSE OF THE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

Supt. Dorse Happily Surprised Upon Receiving a Gold Watch From the Teachers.

The teachers' institute of Washington county closed on the 30th ult. at 12:21, and with it the administration of Supt. R. M. Dorse has practically closed. Mr. Dorse has accepted the position of assistant principal of the Thirteenth Ward high school at Milwaukee, and consequently found it necessary to resign the office of superintendent of Washington county schools, an act which will long be regretted by the people of the county. At the close of the session the teachers presented him with a gold watch, engraved with the following inscription on the inside cover:

TO R. M. DORSE, FROM WASHINGTON CO. TEACHERS, AUG. 30, 1900.

Edward Assmann of Kewaskum delivered the presentation address in a very eloquent manner, and upon concluding was greeted with a round of applause from his fellow teachers. Supt. Dorse then attempted to speak, but was "so over-powered and over-joyed," as he expressed it, that he found it impossible to make a speech. Mr. Assmann then moved that the teachers sing "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," and Prof. Graham of Oshkosh led in the singing. This was followed with three cheers for R. M. Dorse, and a like number for the institute conductors, Prof. Graham of Oshkosh and Pollock of Milwaukee. Finally Supt. Dorse came forward and responded to Mr. Assmann's speech with an address of thanks for the good will of the teachers, and Miss Shrieber of Madison concluded the proceedings by speaking on the subject of "Library Reading."

The State crop bulletin for the week ending last Tuesday reports that heavy local rains occurred in the southeastern section last Sunday night, and at Milwaukee over two inches fell in about two hours. No damage from hail was reported during the week. The week was favorable for maturity of the corn crop, which is reported large and of excellent quality. Early plantings are fully matured, and a considerable portion of the crop cut. Late plantings will be safe from frost by Sept. 15th. Local wind storms caused considerable lodging, but the damage from this cause is not considered great. Complaints of grain molding in the shock and stack continue, but the yield is reported generally better than anticipated. A large quantity of grain was threshed during the week, the dry weather being very favorable for this work. The second crop of clover has made excellent growth, and second growth timothy is reported generally better than the first crop. These crops will make a valuable addition to the supply of fodder. There is much complaint of damage to the potato crop by blight. Early plantings are fully matured and some digging has been done. The apple crop will be light and the quality only fair. Reports of falling continue. The small fruit crop is generally satisfactory.
