LEGISLATION NOW SOUGHT

Anti-Tuberculosis Association Has Solid Backing of Public as Shown by Magnificent Christmas Seal Sale.

Convinced by the magnificent sale of Christmas seals that the people of Wisconsin are as a unit demanding that the crusade against tuberculosis progress without hindrance, the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association is now seeking legislation intended to hasten the day when Wisconsin shall be free from the dread disease. The legislative committee is preparing to definitely draw a bill to be presented to the Legislature, providing for numerous reforms of immediate need.

Approximately 3,250,000 Christmas seals were sold at a penny each during the campaign last month, adding a large sum to the working fund of the state society. The work which was begun in 1909 and brought to a high state of efficiency in 1910 will now be carried on with even greater energy. The people have shown that they want the great movement to go on by purchasing Christmas seals. The seal campaign virtually was a great voting contest on the question, "Shall consumption be wiped out of Wisconsin?" Every person was given an opportunity to cast an affirmative ballot by buying a Christmas seal. The result was a magnificent affirmative vote of 3,250,000. In proportion to population, this number means that more than one affirmative vote was cast by every man, woman and child in the state. It is a unanimous verdict.

The result of the prize competitions based on the highest sale in proportion to population, will be made known shortly after Jan. 14th, on which day all returns must be in the hands of the association. Sales reported after that day will not be counted in determining the winners.

Publish State Laws on Industrial Education.

All state laws bearing upon the question of industrial education in the United States have just been compiled by Prof. E. C. Elliott of the department of education of the University of Wisconsin and C. A. Prosser, commissioner of education of the state of Massachusetts, and are published as a bulletin of the Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education.

Wisconsin, the bulletin shows, provides for industrial education in five ways. Laws have been enacted for the establishment of county schools of agriculture and domestic economy, for establishing departments of manual arts in high schools and elementary schools, for maintaining trade schools in cities for providing annual school aid for high school departments of manual training and for providing, through referendum, for the establishing of technical schools and colleges by cities.

State Auto Dealers Organize.

The contemplated organization of the Automobile dealers of the State will be made a reality in Milwaukee during the week of the Auto Show in the Auditorium M. C. Moore, president of the Wisconsin State Automobile Association has called a meeting of all dealers, agents and distributors of automobiles to be held in Milwaukee, January 18th. At this meeting the dealers will undoubtedly form a permanent organization for mutual benefit and for the direct purpose of eliminating many of the present undesirable practices. Every agent, dealer and distributor in Wisconsin is invited to attend the show.

Burglars at Jackson.

Last Monday night burglars entered the depot at Jackson where they secured some express packages and smashed three gum machines. Entrance was made through a door by cutting a large hole in it. The safe was also demolished, but fortunately contained no money. The thieves also entered the lumber office of Peter Gumm and the storeroom of Hoge & Gumm.—Hartford Times.

PLAY WELL RENDERED

J. Burt Johnson and Company Present "Diamond King" to Packed House.

The play "Diamond King" which was presented in Groeschel's hall on last Sunday evening by J. Burt Johnson and company was well received by a very large audience. The play no doubt was the best ever given in this village.

Mr. Johnson is to be congratulated upon presenting to this community such a high class play. The special features between acts were also well rendered.

Mr. Johnson is the same party that staged "Life for Life" here last September. He will be with us again some time next spring with a minstrel show. His company will consist of sixteen people including an orchestra. Burt is rapidly coming to the front as a play manager. He not only stages his plays in villages but has contracts to show in large cities, such as Appleton, Madison Milwaukee etc. Here is hoping you will meet with success Burt. The dance after the show was enjoyed by all.

It is no question that when Mr. Johnson returns to this village he will be greeted by the largest crowd that ever attended a show in this village.

Started New Year Slam Bang.

If beating one's wife and then being arrested and thrown into jail is starting the new year right then George Mueller of Barton is making a successful beginning. He got busy on the first day of the year and beat up his wife so badly that she had him arrested. Mueller went to jail but was later admitted to bail, and on Thursday at 10 o'clock he will appear before his honor, Justice Rolfs, to explain whether or not beating his wife is a habit of his or whether it was one of his good (?) resolutions. Would that the justice could sentence Mueller to the state's prison for life, for no consideration should be given a wife-beater.—The West Bend Pilot.

MEETS WITH ACCIDENT

William Raether Falls Down Flight of Stairs and Sustains Painful Injuries.

William Raether, an employee in L. Rosenheimer's malt house, and who works nights, met with a very painful accident last Saturday evening, which only through a miracle was not fatal. The accident happened between the hours of eleven and twelve o'clock. It is supposed that he fell down a flight of stairs.

Mr. Raether in company with Chas. Trost left the kiln room together shortly before eleven o'clock, after having turned a kiln of malt. Both were going down to the first floor to fix a fire. Mr. Trost descended by the way of one stair and Mr. Raether by another. Mr. Trost, after fixing the fire missed his companion. Suspecting that something had happened he went to look for Mr. Raether, and found him in one of the drying rooms in a very serious condition. Medical aid was at once summoned, after which he was removed to his home. It was found that he suffered internal injuries and a bad bruise on his head. The height of the stairs that it is supposed Mr. Raether fell from is about 8 feet. At the present writing it is reported that the injured man is resting nicely.

School Notes.

School reopened Tuesday with an enrollment of 54.

Miss Henry's sister of Elroy visited the schools on Wednesday.

The Freshmen class have finished Grammar and are now studying Composition.

Wm. King has been absent the past week on account of the illness of his mother.

The Juniors have completed Medieval History and have taken up English History in its place.

The debate given with the X-mas program, "As to how U. S. Senators shall be elected", was won by the negatives.

The English Literature class was presented with a fine Christmas present of a quiz. In fact all the classes received the same present.

The students of the school presented the teachers with Christmas presents, which appear to have given the desired effect, because the latter are quite lenient with their marks and also appear to be in good spirits.

Basketball is the most important subject, outside of school work, wherever you go, a group of boys are assembled, planning what will be done with all the scalps they are going to have dangling in their belts at the end of the season. Practice has been resumed and the boys are gradually rounding into shape.

Cheese-Maker Gets Heavy Fine.

Ed Kohli, a young cheese-maker, until recently employed in a factory in the town of Addison, was last Monday brought before County Judge O'Meara, under two charges, one of embezzling cheese worth about $175.00 from his employer, and that of forgery.

Kohli was arrested on the embezzlement charge about three weeks ago. He was placed under $500.00 bail and in giving this he committed the forgery. His brother had some money deposited in Mayville, and this he secured under pretense of it being his own. Shortly after it was found that he had forged his brother's name to the papers.

Kohli pleaded guilty to both charges and Judge O'Meara fined him $200 and costs on each charge. Fines and costs amounted to $454.06, adding to this the amount of the cheese stolen brought the sum total to $629.06, which was paid and Kohli was set free.—The West Bend News.

Cold Wave Hits Village.

A cold wave followed by a snow storm, the first real blizzard of the season, struck this village last Sunday night, shortly after midnight and prevailed all the next day. The cold wave was preceded by a rain storm, which with the quick fall in temperature caused the walks and roads to be very icy which made traveling by foot very difficult. Trains from the north were from two to five hours late. The thermometer on Tuesday morning registered 8 below zero.

FOR RENT.—The former Adolph Rosenheimer residence on Fond du Lac Ave. in the village of Kewaskum. Inquire of Newton Rosenheimer, Kewaskum, Wis.

A MUTUAL DISSOLUTION

Affairs of the M. and A. Rosenheimer Interests are Somewhat Changed. To Build New Buildings.

By mutual agreement papers were drawn on Wednesday, whereby the interests and managements of the M. and A. Rosenheimer's affairs have been somewhat changed, so that the entire management of the L. Rosenheimer Malt & Grain Co., and the Kewaskum Electric Light and Heating Plant passes into the hands of Adolph Rosenheimer and son Newton, while the general mercantile business known as the L. Rosenheimer store, together with the general produce and machinery business, will be conducted and carried on by Moritz Rosenheimer and son Lehman. The latter will also have charge of the L. Rosenheimer farm. The Bank of Kewaskum will remain under the same management, as heretofore, with Adolph Rosenheimer as president and Byron Rosenheimer as cashier.

The foregoing change will take effect at once. Until further notice all affairs of the new institutions will be conducted from the offices in the L. Rosenheimer store.

The Bank of Kewaskum will as soon as the weather conditions permit, break ground for the erection of a suitable bank building on Main street, near the store of the H. J. Lay Lumber Co., and will occupy same when completed. The building will be one that Kewaskum will be proud of. Every possible means will be taken so as to have it completed early in the spring.

The L. Rosenheimer Malt & Grain Co. will also erect an office building near the malt house this coming spring. Preparations are being made for the hauling of stone, sand etc., for both new buildings which will be done in the next few weeks.

That the foregoing change will be met with great surprise by everyone, there is no doubt, but it has been looked for by many as rumors were afloat a few days before the big change.

The STATESMAN wishes that all the aforesaid parties will meet with the best of success in their new venture.

The western states as a rule make a creditable showing in the new federal census. But the figures show the fallacy of the idea that they are growing much faster than the eastern commonwealths. Illinois, for instance, gained 817,041, or 16.9 per cent., in population during the last ten years. But New York state increased 1,844,383, or 25.4 per cent., in the same time. McGOVERN SWORN IN AS GOVERNOR

NEW BADGER EXECUTIVE AND OTHER STATE OFFICIALS TAKE OATH.

NO HITCH IN INAUGURATION

Ceremonies Marked by Simplicity are Carried Out Exactly as Planned in View of Crowd of 1,500—Inaugural Ball a Notable Event.

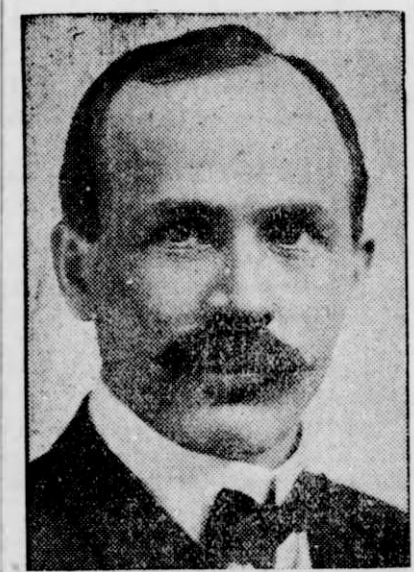

Madison, Wis.—Dignified simplicity marked the inaugural of Francis E. McGovern of Milwaukee as governor of the state on Monday, Jan. 2.

Not a break nor a hitch came to mar the plans which the committee in charge of the inauguration ceremonies had worked out.

From the time Gov. McGovern reached Madison on the special train from Milwaukee until the new governor had been escorted back to the executive chamber and surrounded by friends he was kept busy receiving congratulations, one event in the plans for the day followed another in rapid but smooth succession.

Gov. McGovern was accompanied from Milwaukee by nearly 300 loyal friends who took the trip to see the consummation of their labors in the inaugural ceremonies of the day.

The oath of office was taken by Gov. McGovern and the other incoming state officers in the assembly chambers at 12 o'clock, before an audience which packed the chamber and overflowed out into the assembly lobby and surrounding corridors. Supt. Bennett had placed over 800 chairs in the chamber proper and with those standing and those in the galleries, which were packed, nearly 1,500 people saw the ceremony of swearing in the new officers at close range. The first row of chairs was reserved for the officers-elect, their escorts and justices of the Supreme court and their escorts. Immediately back of them several rows of chairs were reserved for the friends of Gov. McGovern, who accompanied him out from Milwaukee, and the families and friends of the other officers-elect. Every chair was filled, while back of them the people were packed at the ceremonies.

At the close of the ceremony the state officers were escorted to their various offices, where for a short time they were showered with congratulations.

The inaugural ball of 1911 will linger long in the memories of those who were present either as participants or on-lookers. In brilliancy and splendor it eclipsed its predecessors for many years.

RACE TRAIN TO SAVE LIFE

Parishoners of Red Granite Priest Send Him to Fond du Lac on a Special Train for Operation.

Fond du Lac.—A wild dash by a special train from Red Granite to this city, a distance of sixty miles, followed by a dash of half a mile in a police ambulance, was undertaken to save the life of the Rev. George Malecki, pastor of the Catholic church at Red Granite.

Father Malecki was stricken with appendicitis and a physician who was summoned declared that without an operation the priest could not live until morning.

Members of Father Malecki's congregation chartered a special train, and the sick man was brought to this city, the train making the run in a trifle over an hour. An ambulance was in waiting and Father Malecki was carried to the hospital on a gallop. Surgeons were in waiting and in less than half an hour from the time the train reached this city the operation had been performed.

SAYS LAW IS INADEQUATE

State Railway Commission in Report Asks for More Power Over Stock and Bond Issue.

Madison.—The annual report of the state railway commission for the year ending June 3 has been filed with Gov. Davidson.

Among the recommendations are: That the law in regard to the issue of stocks and bonds be amended so as to give the commission more power over railroad and public service corporations.

That it should be empowered to ascertain if the issues of bonds and stocks are within the statute, and whether or not the amounts are reasonable for the purposes for which they are to be issued.

That the present law in regard to grade crossings be more specific; that the state make an appropriation to pay its share of the cost of maintenance of crossings, or that the act be amended to exempt the state from paying its share of the cost.

In reference to the elevation of tracks in Milwaukee the commission reported that negotiations were going on and that it was to be hoped the problem would be soon solved.

According to the report there are forty-seven railways doing business in the state, operating 7,452 miles of road, an increase of 33 per cent during the year. The total earnings were $65,170,471, an increase of 11.6-10 per cent. The operating expenses were $42,142,597, an increase of 14.7-10 per cent. The revenue from other sources was $22,622,881.

There are over 608 miles of electric lines in the state, an increase of 22 per cent. The revenue amounted to $6,788,101, an increase of 11 1/2 per cent, and the operating expenses were $4,678,366, an increase of 13 per cent.

The express companies do not separate their earnings in the state, but the revenue of the Wells-Fargo company amounted to $903,795.

There were 851 public utilities in the state, consisting of 199 electric light plants, 35 gas plants, 119 water works and 506 telephone plants. All of these show increases in income as follows: Electric light, 29 per cent; gas, 15 per cent; water, 13 per cent; telephones, 9 per cent.

During the year 432 complaints were made to the commission against railways and 144 against public utilities.

Two suits were brought against the commission. The railways issued 2,839 passes, a majority of them to employees.

DEATH CALLS AGED PRIEST

Father Hannon, of Darlington, Oldest Catholic Priest in Wisconsin, Passes Away.

Darlington.—The Rev. Mathias Hannon, aged 82 years, died here from illness resulting from old age. The Rev. Father Hannon was the oldest Catholic priest in Wisconsin and was widely known for his charity. He was born in Ireland and came to this country during the days of the early emigration to the west.

Shouldering cooking utensils, the priest went to the frontier in Iowa and traveled the ox trails administering to emigrants. He had had a parish in Darlington for the last thirty-five years and was beloved here. The fame of the aged priest was national, he having been known to hundreds of prominent Catholics. In Milwaukee and Chicago he was particularly well known. His only living relative is John Hannon, a brother in Leavenworth, Kas.

Plan for New Armory.

Eau Claire.—The campaign for an armory for Eau Claire will soon be on in full swing. Architects' plans have been received and approved by Capt. E. S. Pearsall and Co. E, and an appeal to the people to help out in the building fund will be sent out within a few days. Should the people fail to respond to this appeal, Co. E will be compelled to disband. The plans call for a building 150 by 100 feet, with a two-story front, a big drill hall on the first floor and a banquet and clubroom on the second. The estimated cost is between $30,000 and $40,000.

To Establish Auto Bus Line.

Appleton.—There is a movement on foot here to establish an auto bus line in Outagamie county next summer on roads leading to Appleton. It is proposed to purchase a large auto bus with an accommodation of some forty passengers and that it make a daily run from some part of the county to this city and return.

PAST YEAR GOOD FOR STATE BANKS

PROSPERITY GENERAL AMONG THE INSTITUTIONS UNDER STATE'S SUPERVISION.

NO LOSSES TO DEPOSITORS

Increase in Capitalization $1,138,500 and Resources Aggregate $21,978,064.66—Trust Company Law Defective.

Madison.—Not a dollar of loss to any depositor in any state bank, mutual saving bank or trust company under the supervision of the Wisconsin banking department is the gratifying statement of Commissioner of Banking M. C. Bergh in his report made to Gov. Davidson.

The commissioner's report shows that during the year, ending Nov. 10, 1910, there were organized thirty-eight new state banks, with a total capital of $663,500, while one bank, with $10,000 capital, liquidated, making a total net gain of thirty-seven banks, bringing a net increase of capitalization of $653,500, which, with the increased capitalization of seventeen old banks, brings the total increase of capitalization for the year to $1,138,500.

Commissioner Bergh reports the institutions under the control of the department, with few exceptions, have had a very prosperous year; that the trust company law of 1909 is in certain respects defective, and should be modified; and that the department itself is in need of additional assistance if the highest results are to be obtained. It appears from the tabulations submitted with the report that the deposits in the state and mutual savings banks increased $19,523,697.83 during the year, and that there was an aggregate gain of $21,978,064.66 in total resources.

ASK RELIEF FOR LIFER

Edward Eckert Has Served 32 Years in Prison and Trial Court Held 14 Years the Limit.

Jefferson.—After having served thirty-two years of a life sentence, Edward Eckert is believed by friends to have been illegally convicted, and they have written letters to Gov. Davidson in an effort to obtain his pardon.

Eckert was convicted of murder on circumstantial evidence. The jury in the case brought in a verdict of guilty without specifying the degree of murder, and the supreme court ruled three times that the trial court erred in sentencing. In 1893 the court ruled that the maximum sentence possible under the evidence was fourteen years, the limit for third degree murder. Eckert has already served twice that time.

WITNESS AGAINST DIETZ

Frank Dallas, Lumber Camp Cook, to Testify on Behalf of State—No Change of Prosecutors.

Chippewa Falls.—Sheriff Madden of Sawyer county was here recently and drove to Jim Falls, twelve miles north, to serve a subpoena upon Frank Dallas, a camp cook, to appear as a witness for the state in the case against John Dietz at Hayward, on March 9.

Sheriff Madden stated that when District Attorney-elect Samuel Williams takes his office Jan. 1, there will not be any change in the attorneys employed to prosecute Dietz. Lamoreaux of Ashland, Sturdevant of Eau Claire, and District Attorney Davis will prosecute.

The sheriff stated he had only sixteen deputies employed for the capture of John Dietz.

Railroad Sued for Big Sum.

Manitowoc.—Four firms of lawyers have been retained in the suit of the Wisconsin Lakes Ice and Cartage company and nine insurance companies against the Chicago & North-Western railroad for $70,000 damages for the destruction by fire of the ice company's plant on Nov. 21. It is claimed that the fire was caused by sparks from an engine.

Bank President Resigns.

La Crosse.—E. E. Bentley, for thirty-three years president of the Batavian National bank here has resigned, his resignation to become effective Jan. 15. He will be succeeded by A. GOT THE BEST OF THE ELDER REALLY OPENED THEIR EYES

Apt Quotation of Brer Reuben Saved His Mule and at the Same Time Rebuked Sin.

Elder Harris was making another attempt to induce one of the members of his flock to trade horses with him.

"Dat pony o' your'n, Brer Reuben," he said, "is jes' what I want, an' my big bay hos is jes' what yo' want. I kin git over de groun' faster wid de pony, an' you kin haul a bigger load wid de hoss. Hit'd be a good trade fur bofe on us, 'ceptin' dat it'd be a leetle better fur you dan it would fur me. You take de bay and give me de ches'nut sor'l."

"De pony suits me well 'nough, elder," averred Brother Reuben, for the twentieth time. "I don' keer t' make no swap."

"But I jes' natchelly got t' have dat pony, Brer Reuben."

"Elder," spoke the other, after a period of profound thought. "I been wantin' t' ast yo' a question for a long time."

"Well, what is it?"

"I know w'at one o' de 'postles says 'bout de law bein' done away w'ith, but ain't we still livin' undah de ten commandments?"

"Brer Reuben," solemnly averred Elder Harris, "we air."

"Well, one o' dem commandments says we musn't covet anyt'ing w't b' longs t' our neighbors, an' you're covetin' dat lil' ches'nut sor'l pony o' mine, Brer Harris!"

Then the elder gave it up. Clearly the tenth commandment was against him.—Chicago Tribune.

SLIGHT DIFFERENCE.

"You missed it, eh?"

"Yep; I became a major general of indolence!"

On the Dog.

A small West Philadelphia boy may be an author some day. He has just finished his first essay. It is on a dog.

"A dog is a animale with four legs, a tale and pants but he never changes them. He wags his tale when he is glad and sits on it when he is sorry. A dog is a useful animale because he bites burglars but he is more trouble than he is worth when he tracks mud on the carpet. A bull dog is the king of beasts."

Life's Varied Interests.

"The weather's rather bad, isn't it?" said the young woman.

"Yes," replied the nonchalant youth.

"Lucky thing it is. Helps conversation. It would be a deadly bore to go on for ever saying 'It's a pleasant day.'"

Rev. Henry R. Rose in the Newark Star tells the story of a young minister who had recently taken charge of a small parish in Vermont. He aspired to greater things and a large field, and in the hope that his reputation would travel beyond the limits of the village to which he had been sent he threw into his sermons all the force and eloquence at his command. He was, however, totally unprepared for what was intended for a compliment, but which was put to him in such a way that it left him in doubt as to the real impression he had made. One Sunday morning, after an especially brilliant effort, he was greeted by an old lady, who was one of the most faithful attendants at all services. Approaching the young minister, she said: "Ah, sir, we do enjoy your sermons so much, they are so instructive. Do you believe it, we never knew what sin was until you came to the parish."

A Young Philosopher.

Time is a relative quantity. Some minutes seem like hours, and some hours seem like minutes. How to control this flight is beyond most persons, but the little boy mentioned below seems to have progressed pretty well for a youngster.

The teacher was surprised to see that he remained perfectly idle all through recess, and accordingly asked him why he did not play.

"Cause," he said, slowly, "it makes recess too quick if I play, and I want it to la-a-ast!"—Youth's Companion.

GOT IT. Got Something Else, Too.

"I liked my coffee strong and I drank it strong," says a Pennsylvania woman, telling a good story, "and although I had headaches nearly every day I just would not believe there was any connection between the two. I had weak and heavy spells and palpitation of the heart, too, and although husband told me he thought it was the coffee that made me so poorly, and did not drink it himself for he said it did not agree with him, yet I loved my coffee and thought I just couldn't do without it."

"One day a friend called at my home—that was a year ago. I spoke about how well she was looking and she said:

"Yes, and I feel well, too. It's because I am drinking Postum in place of ordinary coffee."

"I said, 'What is Postum?'"

"Then she told me how it was a food-drink and how much better she felt since using it in place of coffee or tea, so I sent to the store and bought a package and when it was made according to directions it was so good I have never bought a pound of coffee since. I began to improve immediately."

"I cannot begin to tell you how much better I feel since using Postum and leaving coffee alone. My health is better than it has been for years and I cannot say enough in praise of this delicious food drink."

Take away the destroyer and put a builder to work and Nature will do the rest. That's what you do when Postum takes coffee's place in your diet. "There's a Reason."

BIG MEN BUSIED WITH PETTY JOBS

How Lawmakers of Nation Waste Time as Aldermen for City of Washington.

SYSTEM RIDICULED BY ABBOT

Old Guard Democrats in House Object to Surrendering Power to Newly-Elected Members in Caucus Called by Champ Clark.

By WILLIS J. ABBOT.
Washington.—This city, the capital of the United States, is chaffing today under probably the most extraordinary system of government that was ever imposed upon any municipality.

Furthermore, the congress of the United States is equally embarrassed and annoyed by being made to act as the board of aldermen of the City of Washington.

Of course this all dates back to the time of those eminent gentlemen whom we call the Fathers of the Constitution. They said that Washington should be a city without politics of its own, without a government of its own and should be governed by the representatives of the country at large. If you will read the history of the debates at that time you will find that the arguments then seemed good. If you will visit Washington today you will find the results seem bad. And when I say bad I do not mean so much for the people of Washington as I do for the people of the rest of the United States.

Congress as City Aldermen.
Tuesday of every week in the house of representatives is known as District day. That means that 391 members of the house, each one of whom, roughly speaking, draws $10,000 a year in salary and perquisites, is on that day supposed to give his attention to the affairs of a city of less than 400,000 people. The City of Chicago has 2,225,000 people and it pays its common councilmen $3,000 a year. They legislate for one city. The congress of the United States legislates for the entire nation. It seems almost intolerable that the United States congress should be called upon to act as a board of aldermen or a common council for the City of Washington.

Time Given Civic Trifles.
Here, for example, is what happened the other day in the house of representatives. The question arose as to what should be the new rate of pay for the mounted policemen in Washington at certain street crossings. It wasn't debated very long, but it will come up again. Such men as Mr. Smith of Michigan, Mr. Mann of Illinois, Speaker Cannon and Mr. Stafford of Illinois spent nearly two hours discussing the question whether the matter should be taken up for action. In the end it was set aside.

Again, immediately following this, came the very serious question to the people of Washington, supposedly, as to the erection of a new bridge across a certain gully which is called Rock Creek. The erection of this bridge is of no interest to anybody outside of Washington, but I find that the gentlemen already mentioned, plus Mr. Foster of Illinois and Mr. Campbell of Ohio, got into the debate. It took another hour or so of the time of the house.

Big Men on Small Jobs.
Following that there came a proposition which nobody outside of Congress or outside of the District of Columbia would understand, and I do not mention it either with any purpose of approving or disapproving. As they say in the house, I reserve my right to object. But it was this: "An act to incorporate the Washington Sanitary Housing company." Looking down the list of speakers recorded in the Congressional Record on one side or the other, I find the names of Mr. Fitzgerald of New York, Mr. Smith of Michigan, Mr. Kahn of California, Mr. Cox of Indiana, Mr. Mann of Illinois and Mr. Madden of Illinois. After about an hour's discussion of this bill action was finally deferred by the objection of Mr. Madden.

Immediately following came up the important question of licensing drivers of hacks, carriages, taxicabs or any other kind of public vehicle in the District of Columbia. Speaker Cannon was in the chair. Again one gentleman from California, one from Michigan and one from Illinois argued this serious question, which should have been left absolutely to statesmen of the type who make up the Chicago common council or the common council of any other city. There was long argument of the question as to who would stand for the spelling of the word "chauffeur"—an argument which hardly seems to justify the amount of time spent in the discussion of the bill. I think it would be worth while to show the country, even at the risk of being dull, how this important matter was discussed in a session which had barely sixty days left of business. I quote from the Record:

The Licensing of Cabmen.
"Mr. Mann, Illinois: I would like to ask another question. Whose spelling of the word 'chauffeur' is adopted in this bill? Is that the reformed spelling?"

"Mr. Kahn, California: I would not be surprised if it is the reformed spelling."

"Mr. Mann: If it is going to be cut down at all why do we not make it plain and spell it s-h-o-u-f-e-r?"

Now it is worth while remembering that that was a running debate between representatives in Congress, each one of whom has high standing here in Washington and in his own district. But it is even more worth while remembering that they were discussing the trivial matter of the licensing of cabmen in the Capital City. California did not send Mr. Julius Kahn here to determine how the cabs of Washington should be run. Illinois, which sent Mr. Mann back again, in the face of a Democratic landslide which almost drove him out of public life, did not suppose that he was going to spend his time in the house trying to determine what should be the fees of men holding market booths in the central market of this city, or whether or not the government should erect a bridge across what is known as Rock Creek. Nor does it seem probable that the constituents of Mr. Samuel Smith of Michigan can be violently kept over the purchase of four and a half acres of land which few of them will ever see, but which will doubtless add to the beautification of Washington.

System Wrong and Wasteful.
The argument I would make in this matter is that it is wrong, impolitic and extravagant to use men of this type in the service of a single city as if they were merely petty city politicians. Nobody questions the sincerity with which they undertake this task, and even here in Washington, which is the home of suspicion and scandal, there is no general talk about anything done by the District of Columbia committee of the house or senate which was not for the development of the Capital City. But among the members of congress—both houses—there is a general feeling that they ought not to be asked to act as a board of aldermen to manage a city of which they are only temporary residents. In all probability in the next session there will be some legislation offered to correct this evil.

City Wants Self-Government.
Nobody who knows anything about Washington would think for a moment of denying that in the past a good deal of money has come to certain members of the house who are on the District committee for their control of such mere matters of detail as determining where a city electric road may be laid or what the next contract with the gas company may be. This condition doesn't exist so much today, as it did in the olden days, but nevertheless the people of Washington do feel that at least they should be given the same powers of self-government as have been given to Oklahoma within this immediate political generation and as the people of Alaska are demanding and will get.

Negro Vote in the Way.
The only reason why they haven't thus far had that right is because of the almost predominant negro vote in the District. That vote in bygone years has been invariably Republican if it could have been cast, and the Republican party will not allow the District of Columbia to adopt those methods of regulation which in the southern states have enabled the people of property and standing to minimize or to destroy the danger of black supremacy. With the incoming of the Democratic Congress and the promise of a Democrat in the White House it is possible that this situation may be corrected and the Capital City of the United States be given its right to self-government and thereby made more creditable to the nation than it is today.

Long Holiday Foolish.
When congress reassembles after the holidays the representatives of both parties are going to face some very hard fights within their own party lines. If congress was less leisurely it would not take a ten days' recess in the middle of a short session, but would accept as one of the unfortunate duties imposed upon its members the necessity of working straight along for three months without deducting ten days for the Christmas holidays. The curious part of this is that in conversation with perhaps 20 congressmen I found none who did not agree to the proposition that this prolonged recess in the middle of a session which at best amounts to only a little over 70 working days, is entirely unjustifiable. But even those who agreed with my theory cheerfully voted for the recess.

Furthermore, the recess really means more than it appears. For at least three days prior to the adjournment for the holidays there was not a majority of the whole house in Washington, and certain measures which required action by a majority of the house instead of a majority of those present, had necessarily to be laid over.

Democrats Discuss Clark's Action.
What the Democrats will have to face immediately upon their return is Champ Clark's proposition, which is practically now made effective, for a conference on the 19th of January for both old and new members of the Democratic side of the house of representatives. I doubt whether anything has been done by a leader, or a group of leaders—for no doubt Mr. Clark has his advisers—which has stirred so much interest, antagonism and support as this action of the minority leader. Go where you will in hotel corridors, in the halls of the capitol or of the house of representatives office building you will find small groups of Democrats buttonholing each other and talking eagerly about what is to result from it.

They Think It a Blunder.
The consensus of opinion among members of the house on the Democratic side is that it is an error. This position is due to the fact that the men who are now talking here, or many of them, at least, look upon it as a surrender of the power of the old guard in the Democratic party to the new members-elect who as yet have no official standing. They inquire as to why men who have not been sworn in, who have never served in the house, should be summoned to Washington months in advance of their actual inauguration as members of the house, and permitted to participate in the selection of a ways and means committee and to advise as to the policy of the party on tariff revision.

There would be a greater measure of reason in this, except for the fact that even were the conference not called these new men after December next will possess all the powers of advice and direction with which Champ Clark is willing to invest them unofficially today. And moreover the opportunity for a long season of work by even an unofficial ways and means committee during a vacation which apparently will extend from the 4th of March to the first Monday of next December, ought not to be neglected.

New Members Paid From March 5.
It seems elementary, but possibly a good many readers do not understand, that the salaries of all these new congressmen begin on the 5th of next March. Not merely their salaries begin, but also their perquisites in the way of clerk hire, stationery and everything else except mileage and their offices in Washington, which can only be assigned to them after the organization of the house, whether they work or loaf. For this reason it seems to be fair and just that a committee entrusted with preparing a measure by which it is intended to reduce taxation and at the same time procure the revenues by which these incoming statesmen are to be paid, should be in session during the summer season.

Problems Ahead of Republicans.
What the returning Republicans are going to encounter is matter of immediate importance instead of consideration of a policy which is to be deferred for months yet to come. The administration has not yet given up its hope of enforcing such rigid economy as to make a record which will be of value in the next presidential campaign. But when Mr. Tawney and Speaker Cannon sought to suppress the report on the unpreparedness of the United States for war presented by Secretary Dickinson, they made the sort of blunder that politicians are always making.

Personally I think the report was a piece of jingoism utterly uncalled for. But its attempted suppression was of course the surest way to give it wide currency and cause it to be the thing most talked about in political circles, and it has in fact been more generally discussed here in Washington than any document emanating from a federal department in years past.

Call for Pacific Coast Protection.
Out of this undesired publicity is coming a demand for vastly increased appropriations for military and naval purposes. Particularly will this demand be made by the representatives from the Pacific coast. It is not fair to ascribe purely mercenary motives to those who represent great constituencies. As Edmund Burke once said: "I know not how to draw an indictment against a whole people." And while there may be those who are willing to sneer at the attitude of the Pacific coast congressmen who are pleading for more battleships, more forts, better harbor defenses and a larger military reserve on their side of the continent, I am not one of them.

Undoubtedly there are some selfish, even mercenary interests involved in this agitation. There is much money to be spent in maintaining navy yards, building forts and victualing battleships stationed off the harbors of San Francisco, Los Angeles or Seattle. But nevertheless a plausible excuse is raised for these additional appropriations, and it is made more plausible by the "confidential" report of the secretary of war which remained confidential for just about eight hours after it was printed.

The Economy Issue.
It seems as curious to find suddenly the head of the Republican party, the president of the United States, and the chief leaders of that party who have always been very much inclined to look with little patience upon cheese paring economy become advocates of that policy. Mr. Tawney rages up and down the center aisle of the house of representatives striving to save a little money at every point.

On the other hand, the Democrats, with only individual exceptions, they being men not recognized as national leaders, seem to pay more attention to progress than immediate economies. They believe, apparently, that the government should be carried on in their administration, which in the house of representatives begins just a year from now, as it was under the Republican administration of the house for 16 years. They are inclined to be cynical about this sudden conversion of the Republicans to economy. They promise to put their opponents on record before this short session is over as having changed their time-honored policy of liberal appropriations to a policy of rigid economy now that the funds are to be handled by Democrats and disbursed by Democratic officials.

"REDS" DIE IN FIGHT

SIX ANARCHISTS PERISH IN FLAMES AFTER BATTLE WITH POLICE IN LONDON.

HUNTED MEN DIE IN TRAP

Murder of Three Bluecoats by Organization Has Tragic Sequel—Metropolis Greatly Excited by Clash—Shots Exchanged During Conflict.

London.—In a pitched battle in the heart of London Tuesday six anarchists were slain, three police officers, three civilians and two soldiers were shot and a number of firemen injured.

The anarchists, armed with rapid-firing guns, and barricaded in their quarters in a four-story Sidney street building, fought 1,500 policemen and two half companies of soldiers, as well as a squad of artillerymen, for hours.

They were driven, finally, to the roof. The building had been set on fire, either by the police to "smoke out" the suspects or by the men themselves to avoid capture. When the supports burned the roof fell, and the anarchists fell into seething furnaces.

Two bodies were recovered, those of "Peter the Painter" and "Dutch Fritz." It is believed the bodies of their companions were incinerated.

The dead anarchists are believed to have belonged to a band that was plotting to kill King George V. during his coronation ceremonies. Two of them were suspected of the recent murder of three policemen in a burglary in the Houndsditch district.

The suspects had converted a four-story building in Sidney street into a veritable fort, which they defended with rapid-firing guns of the latest pattern.

Attacked by two companies of soldiers and 1,000 police, they fought until driven to the roof by flames set by the forces of the law. When the supports burned away the roof fell and the hunted men dropped into a seething furnace.

Seven persons were injured in the collapse of the roof.

Vast crowds gathered in the narrow streets leading to the scene, while word of the desperate character of the fighting ran throughout London, causing widespread excitement and alarm.

At one time the besieging force called for machine guns, but these were not brought into actual use.

A member of the ministry, Home Secretary Winston Churchill visited the scene when the fighting was at its height and assisted in subduing the remarkable outbreak.

WOMAN WILL DESIGN STATUE

MISS HELEN MEARS WINS WISCONSIN COMMISSION.

New York.—Miss Helen Farnsworth Mears, a native of Oshkosh, Wis., and a favorite pupil of the late Augustus St. Gaudens, has been awarded the commission for a colossal figure to surmount the new state capitol dome. The selection of Miss Mears is regarded as being especially appropriate, as she is a native of Wisconsin, having been born in Oshkosh. She was one of the favorite pupils of Augustus St. Gaudens.

The figure, which Miss Mears is to make at once, will be 16 feet high. Its material will be of bronze and colored to agree with the gray granite of which the statehouse is being built.

Her idea of the power and dignity of her native state is embodied in this majestic statue which she has planned. Although the figure is clad in Greek draperies in order to harmonize with the classic architecture of the building which it is to adorn, its face suggests more of the middle west than of ancient Hellas. The cheek bones are broad and prominent, the chin resolute and the nose firm and straight.

On the head "Wisconsin" wears a closely fitting helmet ornamented with the representation of a badger. The coat of arms of the state is sculptured in the shield placed by the side, on which the left hand rests. The right hand clasps a symbol of the law, a slender staff, on which is perched a small eagle. From the staff grow olive leaves, signifying that peace comes from the observance of the law.

Miss Mears will begin work at once upon the task.

Moisant Falls at New Orleans.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Arch Hoxsey, the holder of the world's altitude record of 11,474 feet, was killed Saturday while attempting to break that mark.

Hoxsey was descending from a flight made in the face of a gale which had caused most of the other aviators participating in the meet to abandon their efforts for the day. He had come down to 563 feet of the earth in safety and then his machine failed.

Hoxsey was dead when taken out of the wreckage of his machine. Apparently his life had been crushed out by the weight of the motor, which was wrenched from its position in the aeroplane by the force of the impact with the earth.

Are Doctors Any Good?

Foolish question! Yet some people act as if a medicine could take the place of a doctor! The best medicine in the world cannot do this. Have a family doctor, consult him frequently, trust him fully. If we did not believe doctors endorsed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for coughs and colds, we would not offer it to you. Ask your doctor. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J.C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

If we did not believe doctors endorsed Ayer's Pills for constipation, biliousness, sick-headache, we would not offer them to you. Ask your own doctor about this.

In Some States the Toga-Wearers Have Been Selected by the People, but in Others There Are Bitter Contests.

Washington.—The most important political event of 1911 will be the election of United States senators by the various state legislatures to complete the upper house of the sixty-second congress. The new senate will be composed of 51 Republicans and 41 Democrats, as against 59 Republicans and 33 Democrats in the last congress—a net gain of eight seats for the Democrats. In the house, according to the returns of the election of November 8, the Democrats will have a majority of 65.

Of 30 senators whose terms will expire on March 3 next 24 are Republicans and six Democrats, and the various state legislatures elected on November 8 last will choose their successors. There will also be senators chosen to fill the vacancies caused by the deaths of Senator Dooliver of Iowa (Republican), Senator Thompson of North Dakota (Democrat) and Senator Clay of Georgia (Democrat), making a total of 33 to be elected. Of the 33, 17 will be Republicans and 16 Democrats, representing a gain of nine seats for the Democrats and one for the Republicans.

The states where the senatorial toga will fall from Republican to Democratic shoulders are Indiana, Nebraska, Montana, New York, Ohio, New Jersey, Maine, West Virginia and Missouri.

The one Republican gain occurred in North Dakota, where a Republican successor will be chosen to complete the unexpired term of the late Senator Thompson, Democrat. The legislature of this state will also elect another United States senator to succeed Porter J. McCumber, whose term expires in March.

Three of the senators included in the above count have already been chosen. They are Isidor Rayner of Maryland, elected to succeed himself; John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, to succeed Senator Money, and Carroll S. Page of Vermont, elected to succeed himself. The term of the late Senator Daniel of Virginia expires this March, and as the regular session of the Virginia legislature does not convene until 1912, either a special session will be called to elect his successor or Claude A. Swanson, who is serving by appointment, will retain his seat until next year.

No successor will be chosen to the late Senator McEnery of Louisiana until 1912. His seat is at present being filled by J. R. Thomson, who was appointed by the governor.

While the people of a few of the states have indicated their senatorial preference through a direct primary, these are bitter contests being carried on in the majority of the states where the senatorial vacancies occur. New York is a fair sample. It has been many years since the Democratic party of the Empire state has had a member in the upper house of congress, and there are numerous aspirants to the seat which will be vacated by Chauncey M. Depew. They include Edward M. Shepard, William F. Sheehan, Martin W. Littleton and a host of others.

JEFFRIES IN AUTO WRECK

Former Champion and Oldfield Have Smashed and Are Rescued by Frank Chance.

San Diego, Cal.—Speeding southward toward the Mexican line, the big automobile driven by Barney Oldfield and carrying besides himself James J. Jeffries, former champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, turned turtle and was completely wrecked.

Both Oldfield and Jeffries were thrown violently to the ground, but escaped with a few minor injuries.

A car containing Frank Chance, captain-manager of the Chicago National league baseball team, which was following, picked up Oldfield and Jeffries and the trio proceeded on to Mexico on a hunting expedition.

UNCLE SAM NOW IS A BANKER

POSTAL SAVINGS INSTITUTIONS OPENED IN EACH STATE.

List of the Cities Where the Experiment Is Being Tried—Depositors Receive 2 Per Cent. Interest.

Washington.—Uncle Sam became a full-fledged banker Tuesday when an experimental postal savings bank was opened in every state and territory in the Union, in accordance with the postal savings bank bill passed at the second session of the Sixty-first congress. The postoffices designated to accept deposits are all of the second class, and are located in communities where the laboring element of the population is large. For the past month Postmaster General Hitchcock has had the various postmasters who will handle deposits in Washington instructing them in regard to the details of the new system.

Following is a list of the cities where postal banks were opened:

Globe, Ariz.; Oroville, Cal.; Leadville, Col.; Coeur d'Alene, Idaho; Anacosta, Mont.; Carson City, Nev.; Raton, N. M.; Klamath Falls, Ore.; Provo, Utah; Olympia, Wash.; Laramie, Wyo.; Bessemer, Ala.; Stuttgart, Ark.; Ansonia, Conn.; Dover, Del.; Key West, Fla.; Brunswick, Ga.; Pekin, Ill.; Princeton, Ind.; Decorah, Ia.; Pittsburg, Kan.; Middlesboro, Ky.; New Iberia, La.; Rumford, Me.; Frostburg, Md.; Norwood, Mass.; Houghton, Mich.; Bemidji, Minn.; Gulfport, Miss.; Carthage, Mo.; Nebraska City, Neb.; Berlin, N. H.; Rutherford, N. J.; Cohoes, N. Y.; Salisbury, N. C.; Wabpeton, N. D.; Ash-tabula, O.; Guyton, Okla.; Dubois, Pa.; Bristol, R. I.; Newberry, S. C.; Deadwood, S. D.; Johnson City, Tenn.; Montpelier, Vt.; Clifton Forge, Va.; Grafton, W. Va., and Mantolowoc, Wis.

The postal banks will be conducted on strictly banking lines with the exception that there will be no pass books, certificates of deposits being issued in duplicate. Depositors will be paid two per cent. interest yearly. The postal funds, placed in designated banks by the board of trustees, will yield the government 2 1/2 per cent. It is believed that this quarter of one per cent. difference will be sufficient to meet all necessary expenses of conducting the postal savings depositories.

A careful study of the law creating postal savings banks makes it clear that the government will be benefited largely, and that within a year or two after the system has been in operation Uncle Sam may have all the money necessary to meet deficiencies, and to make effective public improvements without having to appeal to Wall street for financial aid.

TWO BANDITS HOLD UP TRAIN

Pullman Porter Is Killed, Another Fatally Wounded and Passengers Robbed of Valuables.

Ogden, Utah.—Southern Pacific train No. 1, the Overland limited, west bound, was held up Tuesday by two masked bandits at Reese, nine miles west of Ogden, William Davis, a negro porter, was shot and instantly killed and A. W. Taylor, another porter, was mortally wounded. A passenger was slightly wounded. One hundred passengers on the train were relieved of their valuables.

The train men also lost their money and jewelry. Conductor Cunningham advised the superintendent's office at this place of the holdup. The sheriff and police department were immediately notified and posses left the city for the scene of the holdup in automobiles and on a special train.

Two masked men stopped the train at the little watering station by throwing the red light on the signal stand toward the approaching locomotive. As it came to a standstill the bandits covered the engineer and firemen with their revolvers and held them until the conductor ran up to investigate the delay. He, too, was placed under guard. One of the robbers left the trainmen in charge of his companion and started through the train from the forward end.

COREY QUITS AS STEEL HEAD

President of U. S. Corporation Sells in Resignation—No Successor Is Likely.

New York.—William Ellis Corey, for seven years president of the United States Steel corporation, resigned that office Tuesday, the resignation to take effect at the pleasure of the board of directors.

It is probable that for the present there will be no successor elected to succeed Mr. Corey, and in a statement issued by Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors and finance committee of the corporation, he indicated plainly that he himself would discharge the duties of the office vacated by Mr. Corey.

THERE ARE OTHERS.

Green—Does he figure much in politics?

Wise—No; he's one of those politicians who use five-syllable words to express one-syllable ideas.

His Ruling Passion. The young man waited for the millionaire's reply.

"I don't blame you for wanting to marry my daughter," said the latter. "And now how much do you suppose you and she can worry along on?"

"The youth brightened up. 'I—I think,' he cheerfully stammered, 'that $200,000 well invested, would produce a sufficient income.' The millionaire turned back to his papers.

"Very well," he said, "I will give you $100,000, providing you raise a similar amount." And the young man went away sorrowing.

Left Both Satisfied. It all happened on one of those few surviving pay-after-you-enter cars.

"Oh, I insist on paying, Gladys," said the brunette. "You paid coming down."

"No, I shall pay," declared Gladys with equal firmness. "What if I did pay coming down—didn't you buy that last package of gum?"

"Let me settle the quarrel, ladies," suggested the diplomatic conductor. "Why not use the denatured form of Dutch treat?"

"What's that?" "Well, you each pay the other's fare."

And that was the way they solved it.—Cleveland Leader.

His Specialty. "What has become of young Mr. D'Auber, who showed such signs of talent in drawing? Has he made a success?"

"Oh, yes, indeed. He's got all the work he can do now." "Magazine or studio work?"

"He draws the maltese cross showing where the body was found, in the evening papers."—Cleveland Leader.

A Discouraging View. "We must investigate this affair," said the rural official.

"What's the use?" responded Farmer Cortmossel. "I never saw an investigation that changed anybody's personal likes and dislikes."

The Primitive Man. "Jones is so dreadfully primitive." "What's his latest?"

We're All Her Friends. A pretty story of Miss Ellen Terry and a gallant young playwright has gone the rounds of the Players' club.

Young Age Pensions.

Young-age pensions! Why not? Titles, honors, riches, pensions and most other good things are, as a rule, postponed to a period of life when the capacity for enjoying them has been blunted. Australia was one of the first countries to adopt old-age pensions, and now a Labor member of the commonwealth parliament proposes a complementary scheme of young-age pensions. He would start by pensioning the fourth child at birth. The fact that three had previously been born showed that the parents were doing their duty and deserving well of the state. The young-age pension would "reward industry and encourage the birth rate."—London Chronicle.

GOT HIS SOBRIQUET EARLY

"Honest John" Kelly Proved His Right to the Title Long Before Manhood.

There have been many stories about the manner in which "Honest John" Kelly, the ex-empire, first got his nickname. Mr. Kelly himself, according to a New York letter, holds that it came to him naturally, for even as a small boy the purity of his soul shone through his face.

"I think the first time I was ever called 'Honest John' was when I was quite a youngster," said Kelly. "A man engaged as an ambulatory salesman of tinware observed the ingenious countenance I presented to the world and halted me. 'You look honest, boy,' said he. 'What might your name be?' 'John,' said I, quite simply. 'John—just like that. 'Then hold my horse while I go in the saloon and get a drink,' said he. And so I held his horse while he went in the saloon and got a drink. But this was on lower Ninth avenue, in a day when the avenue's honors went to the man who could clean the most cops in a given time. By and by the gang came along and beheld that wagon full of tinware. The peddler was detained within by a sore throat, and they took the tinware. And then they came back and took the cushions of the wagon. Eventually, becoming daring, they unhitched the wagon and took it away. True to my trust, I stood there, holding the horse. And by and by the peddler came out of the saloon and sized up the situation. 'Well,' said he warmly, 'you're Honest John, all right. You saved the horse!'"

Ended the Controversy. On the steeples of an old Universalist church in Bath, Me., there is a wooden figure of an angel. It is not a remarkably fine specimen of art, and has always been somewhat laughed about, especially because of its high-heeled shoes. The Bath Enquirer recalls the story that a former pastor of the North Congregational church once accosted a devoted Universalist with the question: "Mr. Raymond, did you ever see an angel with high-heeled shoes on its feet?" "Why, no," answered Mr. Raymond. "I can't say that I ever did; but did you ever see one without them?"

They Both Knew. The fool said one day in the king's presence, "I am the king!" And the king laughed, for he knew that his fool was wrong.

A week later the king was angry, because of an error he had committed, and exclaimed: "I am a fool!" And the fool laughed, for he knew that his king was right.—Smart Set.

The Patient Workmen. "So you got to work in spite of the snow drifts?" "Yes. But I don't see why the city folks should not follow the example of country people and put up a strong kick for good roads."

Now About Clean Food

Another Splendid Opportunity to Bring Out Facts

When the "Weekly" which sued us for libel (because we publicly denounced them for an editorial attack on our claims) was searching for some "weak spot," they thought best to send a N. Y. Atty. to Battle Creek, summoned 25 of our workmen and took their sworn statements before a Commissioner.

Did we object? No. On the contrary, we helped all we could, for the opportunity was too good to be lost.

Geo. Haines testified he inspected the wheat and barley, also floors and every part of the factories to know things were kept clean. That every 30 minutes a sample of the products was taken and inspected to keep the food up to standard and keep out any impurities, also that it is the duty of every man in the factories to see that anything not right is immediately reported. Has been with the Co. 10 years.

Edward Young testified he had been with Co. 15 years. Inspector, he and his men examined every sack and car of wheat and barley to see they were up to standard and rejected many cars.

H. E. Burt, Supt., testified he had been with Co. over 13 years. Bought only the best grain obtainable. That the Co. kept a corps of men who do nothing but keep things clean, bright and polished.

Testified that no ingredient went into Grape-Nuts and Postum except those printed in the advertising. No possibility of any foreign things getting into the foods as most of the machinery is kept closed. Asked if the factory is open to the public, said "yes" and "it took from two to three guides constantly to show visitors through the works." Said none of the processes were carried on behind closed doors.

At this point attys. for the "Weekly" tried to show the water used was from some outside source. Testified the water came from Co.'s own artesian wells and was pure.

He testified the workmen were first-class, high-grade and inspected by the Co.'s physician to be sure they were all in proper physical condition; also testified that state reports showed that Co. pays better wages than the average and he thought higher than any in the state.

F. B. Martin, Asst. Supt., testified Grape-Nuts made of wheat, barley, yeast and water. Anything else? "No, sir." Postum made of Wheat, Wheat Bran and New Orleans Molasses. Statements made on his experience of about 10 years with Co.

Testified bakers are required to wear fresh white suits, changed every other day. Said had never known any of the products being sent out that were below the high standard of inspection. Asked if any one connected with the Postum Co. had instructed him how to testify. Said, "No, sir."

Horace Brown testified he had been with Co. 9 years. Worked in Grape-Nuts bake shop. Testified the whole of the flour is composed of Wheat and Early. Atty. tried to confuse him, but he insisted that any casual visitor could see that nothing else went into the flour. Said machinery and floors always kept clean.

So these men were examined by the "Weekly" lawyers hoping to find at least one who would say that some under-grade grain was put in or some unclean condition was found somewhere.

But it was no use. Each and every man testified to the purity and cleanliness.

As a sample, take the testimony of Luther W. Mayo. Testified been with Company about 10 years. Now working in the bakery department making Grape-Nuts. Testified that the ovens and floors are kept clean and the raw products as they go in are kept clean. Also that the wearing apparel of the employes has to be changed three times a week.

Q. Do you use Postum or Grape-Nuts yourself at all?

A. Yes, I use them at home.

Q. If from your knowledge of the factory which you have gained in your ten years at the factory you believed that they were dirty or impure in any way, would you use them?

A. I do not think I would. No. Asked if any one on behalf of the Company had asked him to testify in any particular manner. Stated "No."

All these sworn depositions were carefully excluded from the testimony at the trial, for they wouldn't sound well for the "Weekly."

Think of the fact that every man swore to the purity and cleanliness so that the Atty. for the "Weekly" was forced to say in open court that the food was pure and good.

What a disappointment for the "Weekly!" But the testimony showed:

All of the grain used in Grape-Nuts, Postum and Post Toasties is the highest standard possible to obtain.

All parts of the factory are kept scrupulously clean.

None of the workmen had been told how to testify.

Most of them have been from 10 to 15 years with the Co. and use the products on their tables at home.

Why do their families use the products, Grape-Nuts, Postum and Post Toasties, that they, themselves, make?

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburgh with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower 11 and retains lower 16. He finds a drunken man in lower 16 and retires in lower 9. He awakens in lower 7 and finds his clothes and bag missing. The man in lower 10 is found murdered. Circumstantial evidence points to both Blakeley and the man who stole his clothes. The train is wrecked and Blakeley is rescued from a burning car by a girl in blue. His arm is broken. The girl proves to be Allison West, his partner's sweetheart. Blakeley returns home and finds his arm under surveillance. Moving pictures of the train taken just before the wreck reveal to Blakeley a man leaping from the train with his stolen grip. Investigation proves that the man's name is Sullivan. Mrs. Conway, the woman for whom Blakeley bought a Pullman ticket, tries to make a bargain with him for the forged notes, not knowing that they are missing. Blakeley and an amateur detective investigate the home of Sullivan's sister. From a servant Blakeley learns that Allison West had been there on a visit and Sullivan had been attentive to her. Sullivan is the husband of a daughter of the murdered man. Blakeley's house is ransacked by the police.

CHAPTER XXVII.—Continued.

He drew a chair near the lamp and lighted a cigarette, and for a time we were silent. I was in the shadow, and I sat back and watched him. It was not surprising, I thought, that she cared for him; women had always loved him, perhaps because he always loved them. There was no disloyalty in the thought; it was the lad's nature to give and crave affection. Only—I was different. I had never really cared about a girl before, and my life had been singularly loveless. I had fought a lonely battle always. Once before, in college, we had both laid ourselves and our callow devotions at the feet of the same girl. Her name was Dorothy—I had forgotten the rest—but I remembered the sequel. In a spirit of quixotic youth I had relinquished my claim in favor of Richey and had gone cheerfully on my way, elevated by my heroic sacrifice to a somber, white-hot martyrdom. As is often the case, McKnight's first words showed our parallel lines of thought.

"I say, Lollie," he asked, "do you remember Dorothy Browne? Brownell? That was it?"

"Dorothy Browne?" I repeated. "Oh—why yes, I recall her now. Why?"

"Nothing," he said. "I was thinking about her. That's all. You remember you were crazy about her, and dropped back because she preferred me?"

"I got out," I said with dignity, "because you declared you would shoot yourself if she didn't go with you to something or other?"

"Oh, why yes, I recall now!" he mimicked. He tossed his cigarette in the general direction of the hearth and got up. We were both a little conscious, and he stood with his back to me, fingering a Japanese vase on the mantel.

"I was thinking," he began, turning the vase around, "that, if you feel pretty well again, and—ready to take hold, that I should like to go away for a week or so. Things are fairly well cleaned up at the office."

"Do you mean—you are going to Richmond?" I asked, after a scarcely perceptible pause. He turned and faced me, with his hands thrust in his pockets.

"No. That's off, Lollie. The Seiberts are going for a week's cruise along the coast. I—the hot weather has played bob with me and the cruise means seven days' breeze and bridge."

ment. I double-locked the door of my private office and finished off some imperative work. By ten o'clock I was free, and for the twentieth time I consulted my train schedule. At five minutes after ten, with McKnight not yet in sight, Blobs knocked at the door, the double rap we had agreed upon, and on being admitted slipped in and quietly closed the door behind him. His eyes were glistening with excitement, and a purple dab of typewriter ink gave him a peculiarly villainous and stealthy expression.

"They're here," he said, "two of 'em, and that crazy Stuart wasn't on, and said you were somewhere in the building."

A door slammed outside, followed by steps on the uncarpeted outer office.

"This way," said Blobs, in a husky undertone, and, darting into a lavatory, threw open a door that I had always supposed locked. Thence into a back hall piled high with boxes and past the presses of a bookbindery to the freight elevator.

Greatly to Blobs' disappointment, there was no pursuit. I was exhilarated but out of breath when we emerged into an alleyway, and the sharp daylight shone on Blobs' excited face.

"Great sport, isn't it?" I panted, dropping a dollar into his palm, inked to correspond with his face. "Regular walk-away in the hundred-yard dash."

"Gimme two dollars more and I'll drop 'em down the elevator shaft," he suggested ferociously. I left him

ly. There was a buzzing on the line. "Is she there?"

Sam had no suspicions. Was not I in his mind always the Great Unkissed?—which sounds like the Great Unwashed and is even more of a reproach. He asked me down promptly, as I had hoped, and thrust aside my objections.

"Nonsense," he said. "Bring yourself. The lady that keeps my boarding-house is calling to me to insist. You remember Dorothy, don't you, Dorothy Browne? She says unless you have lost your figure you can wear my clothes all right. All you need here is a bathing suit for daytime and a dinner coat for evening."

"It sounds cool," I temporized. "If you are sure I won't put you out—very well, Sam, since you and your wife are good enough. I have a couple of days free. Give my love to Dorothy until I can do it myself."

Sam met me himself and drove me out to the Shack, which proved to be a substantial house overlooking the water. On the way he confided to me that lots of married men thought they were contented when they were merely resigned, but that it was the only life, and that Sam, junior, could swim like a duck. Incidentally, he said that Allison was his wife's cousin, their respective grandmothers having, at proper intervals, married the same man, and that Allison would lose her good looks if she was not careful.

"I say she's worried, and I stick to it," he said, as he threw the lines to a groom and prepared to get out.

said finally. "We do it all the time, only to-night happens to be the annual something or other, and—" he trailed off into silence, trying to buckle my belt around him. "A good six inches," he sighed. "I never get into a hansom cab any more that I don't expect to see the horse fly up in the air. Well, Allie isn't going either. She turned down Granger this afternoon, the Annapolis fellow you met on the stairs, pigeon-breasted chap—and she always gets a headache on those occasions."

He got up heavily and went to the door. "Granger is leaving," he said, "I may be able to get his dinner coat for you. How well do you know her?" he asked, with his hand on the knob. "If you mean Dolly—?"

"Allison."

"Fairly well," I said cautiously. "Not as well as I would like to. I dined with her last week in Washington. And—I knew her before that."

Forbes touched a bell instead of going out, and told the servant who answered to see if Mr. Granger's suitcase had gone. If not, to bring it across the hall. Then he came back to his former position on the bed.

"You see, we feel responsible for Allie—near relation and all that," he began pompously. "And we can't talk to the people here at the house—all the men are in love with her, and all the women are jealous. Then—there's a lot of money, too, or will be."

"Confound the money!" I muttered. "That is—nothing. Razor slipped."

"I can tell you," he went on, "because you don't lose your head over every pretty face—although Allie is more than that, of course. But about a month ago she went away—to Seal Harbor, to visit Janet MacLure. Know her?"

"No."

"She came home to Richmond yesterday, and then came down here—Allie, I mean. And yesterday afternoon Dolly had a letter from Janet—something about a second man—and saying she was disappointed not to have had Allison there, that she had promised them a two-weeks' visit! What do you make of that? And that isn't the worst. Allie herself wasn't in the room, but there were eight other women, and because Dolly had put bella-donna in her eyes the night before to see how she would look, and as a result couldn't see anything nearer than across the room, some one read the letter aloud to her, and the whole story is out. One of the cats told Granger and the boy proposed to Allie to-day, to show her he didn't care a tinker's dam where she had been."

"Good boy!" I said, with enthusiasm. I liked the Granger fellow—since he was out of the running. But Sam was looking at me with suspicion.

"Blake," he said, "if I didn't know you for what you are, I'd say you were interested there yourself."

Being so near her, under the same roof, with even the tie of a dubious secret between us, was making me heady. I pushed Forbes toward the door.

"I'm interested!" I retorted, holding him by the shoulders. "There isn't a word in your vocabulary to fit my condition. I am an island in a sunlit sea of emotion, Sam. a—an empty place surrounded by longing—a—"

"An empty place surrounded by longing!" he retorted. "You want your dinner, that's what's the matter with you—"

I shut the door on him then. He seemed suddenly sordid. Dinner, I thought! Although, as a matter of fact, I made a very fair meal when Granger's suit-case not having gone, in his coat and some other man's trousers, I was finally fit for the amenities. Allison did not come down to dinner, so it was clear she would not go over to the clubhouse dance. I pled my injured arm, and a fictitious, vaguely located sprain from the wreck, as an excuse for remaining at home. Sam regaled the table with accounts of my distrust of women, my one love affair—with Dorothy; to which I responded, as was expected, that only my failure there had kept me single all these years, and that if Sam should be mysteriously missing during the bathing hour to-morrow, and so on.

Made Oliver Herford Famous. Oliver Herford first sprang into fame as a wit so long ago as when Mrs. James Brown-Potter, whose husband was a near relative of the late Bishop Potter, created a sensation by relinquishing home and family to go upon the stage. While the sensation was at its height the bishop, who felt that disgrace had been brought upon the Potter name by the lady's choice of a career, chanced at a dinner at the Players' club in New York to challenge anyone present to make a joke about him that was not a pun based on the verb "to potter." Herford's response, "Actresses will happen in the best regulated families" won him the laurel wreath of the club and it has not yet gone out of his possession.—Frank M. White, in American Magazine.

"They're Here," He Said.

there with his blood-thirsty schemes, and started for the station. I had a tendency to look behind me now and then, but I reached the station unnoticed. The afternoon was hot, the train rolled slowly along, stopping to pant at sweltering stations, from whose roofs the heat rose in waves. But I noticed these things objectively, not subjectively, for at the end of the journey was a girl with blue eyes and dark brown hair, hair that could—had I not seen it?—hang loose in bewitching tangles or be twisted into little coils of delight.

CHAPTER XXVII.

The Sea, the Sand, the Stars. I telephoned as soon as I reached my hotel, and I had not known how much I had hoped from seeing her until I learned that she was out of town. I hugged up the receiver, almost dizzy with disappointment, and it was fully five minutes before I thought of calling up again and asking if she was within telephone reach. It seemed she was down on the bay staying with the Samuel Forbeses.

Sammy Forbes! It was a name to conjure with just then. In the old days at college I had rather flouted him, but now I was ready to take him to my heart. I remembered that he had always meant well, anyhow, and that he was explosively generous. I called him up.

"By the fumes of gasoline!" he said, when I told him who I was. "Blakeley, the Fount of Wisdom against Woman! Blakeley, the Great Unkissed! Welcome to our city!"

Whereupon he proceeded to urge me to come down to the Shack, and to say that I was an agreeable surprise, because four times in two hours youths had called up to ask if Allison West was stopping with him, and to suggest that they had a vacant day or two.

"Oh—Miss West!" I shouted politely.

BABY'S HAIR ALL CAME OUT

"When my first baby was six months old he broke out on his head with little bumps. They would dry up and leave a scale. Then it would break out again and it spread all over his head. All the hair came out and his head was scaly all over. Then his face broke out all over in red bumps and it kept spreading until it was on his hands and arms. I bought several boxes of ointment, gave him blood medicine, and had two doctors to treat him, but he got worse all the time. He had it about six months when a friend told me about Cuticura. I sent and got a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. In three days after using them he began to improve. He began to take long naps and to stop scratching his head. After taking two bottles of Resolvent, two boxes of Ointment and three cakes of Soap he was sound and well, and never had any breaking out of any kind. His hair came out in little curls all over his head. I don't think anything else would have cured him except Cuticura."

"I have bought Cuticura Ointment and Soap several times since to use for cuts and sores and have never known them to fail to cure what I put them on. I think Cuticura is a great remedy and would advise any one to use it. Cuticura Soap is the best that I have ever used for toilet purposes." (Signed) Mrs. F. E. Harmon, R. F. Discouraged

The expression occurs so many times in letters from sick women, "I was completely discouraged." And there is always good reason for the discouragement. Years of pain and suffering. Doctor after doctor tried in vain. Medicines doing no lasting good. It is no wonder that the woman feels discouraged.

Thousands of these weak and sick women have found health and courage regained as the result of the use of

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It establishes regularity, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures weakness.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG AND SICK WOMEN WELL.

Refuse substitutes offered by unscrupulous druggists for this reliable remedy.

Sick women are invited to consult by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and secretly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary, R. V. Pierce, M. D., Pres't, Buffalo, N. Y.
