Bonano

THE INCOMPARABLE TABLE DRINK

BONANO has all the good qualities of coffee, tea or cocoa with no harmful effects. It is made from the meat of bananas, matured in the sunshine of the tropics, peeled, dried, granulated and roasted. The roasting imparts a distinctive, fragrant flavor, not banana-like.

BONANO is the most delightful and healthful beverage, and is as easy to prepare as tea or coffee.

A teaspoon of BONANO, a cup of water, a minute's boil, and a little cream and sugar.

Don't be prejudiced, but order a can today from your grocer and give it a week's honest trial. At the end of that time you will be surprised at the improvement in your health—calmer nerves, clearer brain, sounder sleep.

BONANO has just the food-stimulating, tissue-building qualities desirable in a drink for morning, noon and night.

You will like Bonano, and it is the one hot drink you can also give children in safety.

A 25-cent can makes seventy-five cups, so that it is as economical as it is good. A trial will convince you.

Ask your grocer for Bonano, the incomparable drink.

Another Land Opening.

On June 23, at noon, the third unit of the Shoshone project in Wyoming will be opened to settlers. This unit, which is adjacent to the town of Ralston, contains some of the choicest land on the project.

The successful entrymen will secure farms in a country which is already occupied by prosperous farmers with the advantages of good roads, railroads, telephones, rural delivery, schools, and churches. No real pioneering is required to establish a home here. Water is now ready for the land.

The Shoshone project lies in a region of great scenic beauty with a delightful and healthful climate and a fertile soil. The Reclamation Service at Washington has prepared a booklet fully describing this section and giving detailed information as to methods of acquiring these farms. A copy of this booklet may also be obtained by application to the Settlement Agent, U. S. Reclamation Service, 802 Federal Bldg., Chicago.

All roads will lead to Milwaukee, June 16 and 17, when the national automobile circuit races will be held at State Fair park, and it is expected that on both days an attendance exceeding 60,000 speed fans and motorists will crowd the grand stand and track enclosure. All the leading lights of the American Automobile association, including S. M. Butler, chairman of the contest board, A. M. Farington, official referee of the A. A. A., F. E. Edwards, chairman of the technical committee and Sam Wagner of the board of directors will officiate as track officials for both days. This will be the first time that the A. A. A. officials have filled these positions at any place except at the Indianapolis speedway, Brighton Beach, New York, and the Vanderbilt cup race.

Bob Burman who recently drove his 200 H. P. Blitzen-Benz at the rate of 155 miles an hour on the Florida beach, will be one of the contestants. In addition to the Blitzen-Benz, Burman will also appear in the Buick Bug, the 100 H. P. Mercedes and an 80 H. P. Darracq. ## GOING TO SEE THE ELEPHANTS

Kewaskum Will be Well Represented in Milwaukee on Monday, June 19

Kewaskum will be well represented in Milwaukee on Monday June 19th, circus day. Indications are that the town will turn out by the hundreds, attracted by the wonderful new circus which the Barnum and Bailey people are putting forth this season. The show has an entire new equipment, costing the management $3,200,000. One-third of this was spent on the parade which is reported as the most elaborate street spectacle ever devised. It is three miles in length. The great menagerie of this circus is creating nothing short of a sensation in towns it visits. It contains the most remarkable collection of rare beasts of any zoological display in the world, and many specimens which are not duplicated in any other zoo, in America or Europe. The chief attraction here is a year old giraffe, the only one ever born in this country. In fact it is the only giraffe, not full grown, ever seen outside the depths of the African Jungle. Matured giraffes are scarce enough but this youngster is worth its weight in gold.

The performance in the main tent is presented by 400 of the world's greatest artists, gathered from no less than thirty-two nations. The acts they are offering are novel and not at all like the acts that have been seen in America in the past. Fifty clowns furnish the comedy and in this respect the show is the laughing success of the age. And there are thrills without number from the start to the finish. The performance of Charles the First, a chimpanzee bicycle rider and roller skater is a most sensational surprise. The specialties of John Ducander's bell-ringing horses, Winston's riding seals, a brass band of elephants, the Konyot family of Italian acrobats, the Les Deko family of French equilibrist and the Siegrist-Silbon family of aerialists are of the first European rank. Barnum and Bailey carry 1,286 people, 700 horses, 40 elephants, 30 camels, 1,000 other wild animals, dynamo plants, barber shops, tailoring establishments, bath parlors, laundries, blacksmith shops, harness shops, carpenter shops, dentists, doctors, a lawyer and a private police force. The many tents cover fourteen acres of ground.

Shorter Skirts, Fashion's Edict

Have you a pretty foot and ankle?

Prepare to show them now or at least very soon. Paris sends out word that the fall gowns are being cut after models that never reach below the instep, while the ultra-ultra fall far short, literally, of covering the top of a high topped shoe.

That means, mildly, that your shoe will double in size this autumn, for whoever would stint her shoemaker's demands, when she realizes that what he sells her will be the most observed part of her fall costume? Even the hat will sink into a secondary place, while the heels will be a matter of study and art.

"Femina," the leading Parisian style book, in its last issue says that the short skirt is arriving. It says the skirt will be shorter than that well remembered garment of the winter of 1899 and 1900. "Femina" says the skirts will not be broader than they are at present, but the lessening of the length will make them more comfortable to walk in than are the close skirts which reach to the ankles.

COUNTY SEEKS LEAD IN SANATORIA RACE

Douglas Would be First in Wisconsin to Build Tuberculosis Shack. State Aid Assured

The assembly has advanced the bill giving counties authority to build these institutions and granting state aid. The ultimate enactment of the law is assured. Douglas county has called for bids for a $5,000 building and voted $2,000 for maintenance for the first year. On June 5th Fond du Lac county's supervisors will act. ## CHICKENS ON RANGE YIELD GREATER PROFIT

Farmers Should Not Crowd Their Chickens Into a Small Yard, But Let Them Run Loose on the Range

"The average farmer who keeps a few hens makes a decided mistake during the summer time in yarding his chickens too close to the farm buildings instead of letting them run free on the range," says Prof. J. G. Halpin, head of the poultry department of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin. "The objections to yarding the flock on a limited area are that the ground becomes contaminated and diseased from the accumulation of the droppings, and also on account of the great scarcity of insect life near the buildings. Practical experiments have proved that the expense for feed bills may be reduced fully 50 per cent, where the chickens are allowed free access to the range, rather than being yarded."

"On the range, especially where the soil has been cultivated and is free from disease, where there is plenty of insect life and succulent feed the flock will prosper. Many farmers have small special yards in which they raise chickens year after year. The ground is never plowed; in time it becomes contaminated and may result in the infection of the entire flock with some bacterial disease. Although the small yard is advisable for young chicks as soon as they attain some size they should be moved out onto the open range; their yard should be plowed and sowed to some crop such as buckwheat in order that any possibility of the soil becoming contaminated may be controlled. The preferable time to move the flock out to the range is during late May and early June. "Another important principle to observe in the care of the farm flock," continued Prof. Halpin, "is to protect late hatched chickens from extremely strong sunlight. The hen and the chicks or the brooder should be placed in the shade of a tree or else some artificial shade should be provided. An old door fastened upon four stakes two feet above the ground on the north side and one foot high on the south, affords an inexpensive protection for the young chicks from the extreme heat. If desired a heavy cloth or some old canvas can be tacked on the stakes in the place of the door. The main thing is to control the large losses of late hatched chickens resulting from exposure to extreme sunlight."

Department Authorizes One to be Established at Hartford on June 27

AN APPLICATION WAS MADE

The Bank is Secured as a Result of an Application by Postmaster Bonniwell of That City

As the result of an application, made by postmaster Bonniwell, Hartford is to have a postal savings bank to be established on June 27, which will make the fourth city in Wisconsin to have a postal savings bank. Tomahawk having also been granted one. Manitowoc had one established last January and Beaver Dam opened one on June 1. There are now 129 postal banks in the United States. The banks already established have proven highly successful and have encouraged the government to put the system in operation all over the country at as early a date as possible.

The amount of money sent to foreign countries through the local post office reaches quite an enormous amount, and the object of postal banks are to induce the senders to deposit their money for safe keeping with the government.

With free delivery and a postal bank, Hartford will certainly be on the map.—Hartford Times.

Miss Priscilla Marx Gives Piano Recital.

A piano recital was given by Miss Priscilla Marx of this village at the Jefferson Studios at Milwaukee on Monday, June 5th. It was listened to by a very large audience. The program was very interesting and delightful. One feature of same being that the numbers were of so varied a style, so as to satisfy the most discerning person.

Miss Marx plays with such ease and unaffectedness that there is nothing whatever to distract the attention of the audience from the music. A very pleasing number was the Rondo by Beethoven played with great artistic finish, bringing out distinctly the inner harmonies. Another beautiful and expressive number was the Meckelstick by Schumann played in a melodious and decidedly graceful manner. A charmingly performed number was the Concerto by Mendelssohn played in a very sparkling and precise manner, affording excellent opportunity to bring out Miss Marx's wonderful technique. The last movement was especially brilliant and executed in a most vivacious and animated style. The orchestra parts on second piano were played by Josephine Hoestern Dese.

The engineer who was very brave struck to his post until the end. He however sustained a bad cut on the head which required several stitches. The rest of the crew were uninjured. One of the brakemen jumped into the river nearby. No afternoon mail from the south was received here on account of the wreck. Mail train No. 105 due here at 3:25 was sent around by the way of the Lake Shore Division.

Alumni Dance a Success.

The Alumni dance given by the Kewaskum High School Alumni Association in the South Side Park hall last Saturday evening was a most enjoyable affair. A large number of former graduates and friends being in attendance. The music was furnished by the Kewaskum Quintette, which was very pleasing. Dancing was resumed until a late hour, when only a thunder storm interrupted. This dance has been the second annual affair. It will always be the closing event of the commencement exercises of the public schools here. No pains were spared by the committee to make this a very enjoyable occasion, for which great credit must be given them.

GARY OPPOSED CUT

STEEL MEN WERE URGED BY CHAIRMAN TO DEFEY REBELLIUS FIRM.

STABILITY IS CALLED VITAL

Manufacturers Given Warning Against Wage Reductions at Late Conference of U. S. Corporation—Continuation of Cooperation Favored.

New York.—The arguments with which Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the directors of the United States Steel corporation, addressed iron and steel manufacturers he had here as guests at a luncheon a week ago to discuss the independent action of the Republic Iron and Steel company in reducing prices have become public. Mr. Gary made public the text of his speech, and threw more light upon what took place behind the closed doors of the dining room at the Metropolitan club, where the conference was held.

Mr. Gary argued for continued cooperation among the steel makers and for stability in prices, but his apparent wishes on the price question were overruled by a general decision to meet the cuts of the Republic company. Mr. Gary touched upon the possibility of wage reductions, the value of fair dealing, and frankness among the manufacturers, and the rights and duties of great corporations in view of the recent Supreme court decision in the Standard Oil case.

"I have advocated and shall always advocate, so long as I believe I have a right to do so," said Mr. Gary, "the stability of prices, the regularity of business conduct on the part of all that is calculated to recognize and advance the interests of others."

"I have urged you to remember and I again call attention to the fact that when you make substantial reductions in your prices, if you reduce to a price that is unfair and unreasonable and you make so small a profit that it does not yield you a fair return on your investment and your risk, you at least place for consideration before every one the possible necessity of reducing the cost of production, including prominently if not principally the wages which you are paying or may be allowed to pay to the man or the men in your employ."

"Do not forget that the laboring men—the employees of the corporations—have more at risk when these questions are considered of reducing prices below what is reasonable and fair than the employer. You have a right to run the risk of being compelled to put their wages below what they ought to be unless you are driven to it, and I hope under the present circumstances, gentlemen, that whatever may be done, or whatever may happen as a result of present conditions, you will not reduce the wages of your employees until you feel it is an absolute necessity to do so."

Referring to the bombshell the Republic company threw into the steel market by reducing prices, Mr. Gary said:

"We are confronted with a serious and disagreeable problem. It is not for me to criticize men nor to pass judgment on the motives of men. Whether people who have changed their minds suddenly are actuated by motives of cupidity or motives of necessity is not for me to say."

"I would not expect or ask any one to do anything he believed wrong, legally or morally; but, on the other hand, gentlemen, if any one who has been co-operating in a lawful way, not in secret, but under conditions well known and frequently exposed by all of us, suddenly changes his opinion and believes it is for his pecuniary interest for the time being to withdraw from associating with us and declines to give us any information concerning what he is doing or proposes to do, leaving himself free to go to your customers and mine and get the business for himself, regardless of price, and simply for the purpose of filling his mill temporarily and securing for himself a customer who has been your customer or mine, then I do not hesitate to say that, so far as I am concerned, I am perfectly willing to let him stand outside of the circle of friendly conversation and open and above board fair dealing and frankness in expression, but if I have sufficient influence it shall not in the least affect the relations of all the rest of us."

DIAZ OFF FOR SPAIN

SAILS FROM HAVANA FOR FUTURE HOME.

Exiled President's Son Asserts Money Power Backed Up Mexican Revolution for Private Gain.

Havana.—The steamer Ypiranga, with former President Diaz on board, sailed for Spain. Supplementing the Cuban courtesies to Diaz and his party, the Spanish clubs and societies of Havana gave the retiring executive a great parting demonstration, which was taken here as a forerunner of the reception awaiting Diaz in Spain.

The exiled president refused to be interviewed, but permitted his son, Col. Porfirio Diaz, Jr., to speak for him. Colonel Diaz said:

"My father is deeply sensible of the wisdom of the restraint shown by President Taft in the attitude of the United States toward Mexico during the recent crisis. He believes in the true friendship demonstrated thereby, and all Mexicans appreciate it and have a deep sense of gratitude."

Colonel Diaz made a direct charge that Madero's revolution was framed by foreign capital, naming certain American and English corporations. He said:

"How can this Madero claim to be a patriot heading a patriotic movement when foreign capitalists, seeking private gain, give him money to fight with?"

"It is plain to see that certain holders of bonds of the Mexican National railway hoped by the revolution to prevent the redemption of these bonds, and then the railways would revert to them. Madero sold himself to foreign capital."

Colonel Diaz thus characterized the Madero party government:

"It is like a dog that has found a bone. In this case the bone, worth $62,000,000, is the treasury. Lots of other dogs follow him and hope to get possession of the bone soon. They will fight and the strongest dog will carry off the bone. Madero is not the strongest dog."

BIG "FIREBUG" PLOT BARED

Chicago Clothier After Confessing to Hiring Gang to Burn Plant Kills Himself.

Chicago.—After one of the strangest confessions to which the Chicago police ever have listened, wherein he admitted an incendiary fire and exposed a band of professional firebugs who burn stores for a per cent. of the insurance, Leopold Dreyfus, the clothier at 232 South Market street, shot and killed himself in his home.

Dreyfus, who, with his brother Lazarus and a bookkeeper, Max Cohen, was arrested as the result of a $12,000 fire in his store, made a detailed confession, which he signed. He made these revelations:

The fire in the Dreyfus establishment was the work of a "firebug trust," which attends to all the details of destroying a business house by fire for a part of the insurance.

Dreyfus paid the agents of the incendiaries $300 in advance of the "job," and promised to pay $1,700 more, making a total of $2,000, as soon as he could collect the insurance.

Six or eight men compose the ring of firebugs and have made big profits out of their operations. The police say they have their names and the order has gone out to round them up.

WILL THE OLD ADAGE COME TRUE?

TAFT IS ATTACKED

UNDERWOOD PRESENTS REPORT ON WOOL TARIFF REVISION BILL TO HOUSE.

BOARD ALSO GETS SCORING

Minority Members of Ways and Means Committee Declare Measure Is "Cold Blooded" and Brought Forward for Purely "Political Reasons."

Washington.—The long expected wool tariff revision bill was presented to the house by Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee. The long report accompanying it attacks President Taft and the tariff board.

Quoting President Taft's addresses after the passage of the Payne-Aldrich bill, in which he declared that "the woolen schedule is indefensible and I propose to say so," the report says:

Had the president made these public admissions earlier, while the tariff of 1909 was under consideration, by congress, his declarations would have been of real service to the people and would have enabled them to protest against the betrayal of the public welfare to private greed.

The president's silence at that time and his approval of the act of 1909 make it impossible for him to evade his full share of responsibility for the failure of revision which he now admits.

The report deals at some length with the attitude of the administration in not communicating to congress data on the "steel trust" and other industries now being investigated, and the failure of the tariff board to communicate data on the woolen industry.

"The position of the tariff board appears to be," says the report, "that they, in conference with and under the sole control of the president, shall be the sole judges as to what part of the data they collect may be likely to be of service for purposes of legislation; and this situation must be considered with reference to the viewpoint of the president concerning tariff legislation."

"It is, therefore, not impossible that there may be some such delay in the communication to the congress of statistical information collected by the tariff board concerning wool and woolen goods as there has been in communicating to congress or making public the data by the bureau of corporations concerning investigations of the steel and other industries."

The report maintains that any further delay in the revision of the wool and woolen schedule would be objectionable to the public.

In explaining the determination of the committee not to put raw wool on the free list, but to reduce the present duty to 20 per cent. ad valorem, the committee insists as the Democratic caucus did that the duty "is not to be construed as an abandonment of any Democratic policy."

The committee states that there is no sufficient reason for continuing the complicated and troublesome system of classification of raw wools, characterizing it as a "great burden and annoyance to the customs service and adding to the expense of collecting duties on raw wools."

A minority report is signed by Messrs. Payne, Dalzell, Needham and Longworth. "For purely political reasons," it says, "this cold-blooded measure is brought forward. If it could become a law it would slaughter sheep as in 1894 and close the mills much more universally."

IS SCORED BY TAFT

COLONEL GARRARD IS REBUKED FOR HIS RACIAL PREJUDICE.

President Indignant at Treatment Accorded to Private Who Sought Higher Post.

Washington.—Col. Joseph G. Garrard, commander of the cavalry post at Fort Myer, Va., was reprimanded by President Taft because of his rejection of the application of Private Joseph A. Bloom for promotion to take an examination for promotion to the commissioned ranks. Garrard based his rejection of the application on the ground that Bloom was the son of a Jewish tailor and therefore not desirable as a social and personal associate.

Several years ago Bloom was urged for appointment to West Point. President Roosevelt, not being in a position at the time to make the appointment, suggested to Bloom that he enlist and, "like a true American," fight his way up from the ranks.

The young man took the advice, entered the army, where he is said to have made a good record, and recently took his first examination for promotion. It is said that Bloom failed in this examination, but in view of the prejudice brought about by Colonel Garrard's endorsement, the soldier will be ordered up for final examination again in September.

In directing the secretary of war to inquire into the matter, President Taft wrote in part:

"It is difficult for me to read the endorsement of Colonel Garrard, set forth in this letter, with patience and without condemnatory words that had better not be written. The statements made by Colonel Garrard are not true with reference to the standing that Jews have in this country; and I resent, as commander-in-chief of the army and the navy, that any officer of either should permit himself in an official document to give evidence of such unfounded and narrow race prejudice as that contained in this endorsement."

The confession was made to Harry Egan, a representative of the Muskogee Phoenix, in the presence of witnesses.

Chicago.—Investigation of conditions in the lumber industry was begun by a special federal grand jury impaneled in Judge Landis' court.

Unusual precautions were taken when the jury began its work and the government officials announced that they intended to keep every detail of their work secret if possible until indictments finally were voted. Judge Landis in his instructions to the jury took pains to impress upon them the necessity of secrecy.

WESTERN CANADA BEYOND THE PIONEER STAGE

Liberty-Loving People Have All the Liberty the Heart Can Desire Under Canadian Laws.

The New York Commercial of April 19th contained an interesting article on conditions in Western Canada. The following extracts will prove instructive reading to those who contemplate moving to Canada. The writer speaks of land at $8 to $18 an acre. As a matter of fact, there is very little land that can be had now at less than $18 per acre, but when one considers the productive qualities of this land it is safe to say that in two years' time there will be little available land to be had at less than $30 an acre. Already the free grant lands in the open prairie districts are becoming exhausted and the homesteader has to go farther back to the partially wooded areas. This is no drawback, however. Some prefer this land to the open prairie. A recent publication, issued by the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada, and which is forwarded free to applicants by mail by any of the Canadian government agents throughout the United States, says of the newly-opened districts:

Water is always abundant, wood and fuel are plentiful and the soil that can grow the poplar and the willow as well as the rich grasses that are to be found there can be relied upon to produce all the small varieties of grain with equal success. The New York Commercial article referred to deals more particularly with conditions along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, but what is said of one line of railway may with truth be said of the land and the conditions along both the Canadian Northern and the Canadian Pacific. The article says:

"It would be no exaggeration to say that practically all the land along the entire distance traversed by the Grand Trunk Pacific system is capable of furnishing homes to those who engage in farming. The lands are of three classes. They may be designated, first, as having special adaptation to the production of grain; second, as having such adaptation to mixed farming, of which live stock will form an important feature, and third, as being mainly adapted to the production of live stock only. On the third class of lands the area is not very large, of the second it is much larger and of the first it is by far the largest.

"As soon as mixed farming shall be generally adopted, land that may now be obtained for from $8 to $18 per acre, and even lands open now to free homesteads, will sell for $50 to $100 per acre. This is not an extravagant statement. In natural fertility these lands fully equal those of the American corn belt. In variety of production they excel them, and yet the latter sell for $100 to $200 per acre. In addition to the grain crops now grown of wheat, oats, barley and rye, much of the land will grow winter wheat when properly prepared. Eighty per cent. of the land will grow clover and alfalfa. A still larger percentage will grow field peas, and the entire tillable area will grow good crops of the cultivated grasses, timothy, brome grass and western rye grass. With these elements what can prevent this region from becoming the main source of food supply of the Empire and Imperial dominions?"

Special stress is laid upon the educational conditions. The writer says:

"The foundation of the social fabric of the agricultural country may be said to rest on the efficiency of its school system. Liberty-loving people have all the liberty the heart can desire under Canadian laws. In this regard Western Canada has a system of education based upon the best that can be obtained from the United States or Eastern Canada. Its school system and regulations are second to none. Every boy or girl has a school house brought to his or her doorway. The government is most liberal in its support of higher education. In Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Edmonton are to be found excellent colleges and universities, so that the problem of higher education is solved. The provincial agricultural schools, located at Winnipeg and Saskatoon, give practical courses in scientific farming, preparing graduates to take up the responsibilities of farm life.

"The newcomer settling in this favored section will find the social conditions far beyond a pioneer stage. He will find help on every hand. Instead of his going to the 'jumping-off place,' as is often supposed when thinking of Western Canada, he will find himself surrounded by wonderful opportunities for social advancement in a new country fraught with promise."

FAVORS LICENSES FOR ELECTRICIANS

SENATE PASSES BILL IMPOSING RIGID REGULATIONS ON WIRING.

SCHOOL MEASURE REVIVED

Upper House Reconsiders Insurance Fund—Concurs in Stationary Engineers' License Act—Other Matters of Note.

Madison.—The senate passed a bill authorizing the city of Milwaukee to license persons, firms and corporations engaged in the installing of wires for electric lights and power in buildings, the annual license fee to be from $25 to $50. The senate also passed a bill prohibiting the wiring of buildings for electric light and power in Milwaukee without a permit from the city building inspector.

On motion of Senator Weigle the senate reconsidered the vote by which it last week killed the bill authorizing the levy of a special tax for the insurance of school buildings in the city of Milwaukee. After Senator Kleczka explained the purpose of the bill and that the board of school directors of Milwaukee advocated it, the senate ordered it engrossed and read a third time.

The senate adopted a joint resolution authorizing Senator Zophy of West Allis to introduce a new bill legalizing the contract of West Allis with Milwaukee for water service.

The senate concurred in assembly bills providing for the licensing of stationary firemen and engineers and inspection of steam engines and boilers; requiring doors leading to stairways and fire escapes in public buildings to open toward such stairways and fire escapes and appropriating $1,500 for the purchase of oil paintings of former Govs. Scofield, La Follette and Davidson.

The senate committee on finance recommended for passage the bill repealing all repealable mill dam franchises, delegating authority to the state railroad commission to issue permits for the construction of mill dams and water reservoirs and levying an annual license fee of from 25 cents to $2 per horsepower on water power developed.

It also favorably recommended a bill appropriating $200,000 annually for the purchase of forest reserve land in the northern part of the state.

The senate concurred in joint resolutions memorializing congress to have fishways placed on government dams in the Fox river and to prohibit corporations and individuals from sending campaign money or literature into Wisconsin in violation of the corrupt practice law.

SEE FINISH OF HERRING

Marinette Fishermen Protest Against Use of Nets in Spring Fishing.

Marinette.—The fishermen along the bay shore in this vicinity are strongly opposed to spring fishing with nets, which, although not against the law, threatens to deplete the waters of herring and perch.

It is stated by the fishermen that a few are making hauls of from twenty-five to thirty-five packages daily. They only find enough of proper sized herring and perch to make from three to five packages, and the balance, from a ton to two tons of small fry, is thrown away.

A. B. Be Dell of Menominee, an authority on bay fishing, believes that spring fishing with nets should be strictly prohibited by law. He points out the slaughter of young fish, which by fall would be matured and marketable, will materially deplete the bay of its wealth of herring.

DESECRATE FAMOUS HOME

Man May Die From Blow Received in Row at Late Senator Doolittle's Home.

Racine.—The erstwhile palatial country residence of the late Senator Doolittle, south of the city, which once sheltered Abraham Lincoln, now a tenement, was the scene Sunday night of a row in which Jim Vako, a Hungarian, had his skull split open with a brick and three of his countrymen are languishing in jail awaiting the outcome of his injuries, which doctors fear may prove fatal.

M. AND M. PARTY ON TRIP

Yearly Tour of the Association When a Large Number of Gifts Will be Given Away.

Milwaukee.—The finest special train ever run out of Milwaukee on the Chicago and North Western road left this city with the Merchants and Manufacturers' association party of 113 men on their eleventh annual trip. They will go through Wisconsin and will make short runs into Illinois and northern Minnesota.

The train is perfectly appointed. It consists of four sleepers, three diners, a buffet car, a baggage car, a private car for the officials of the road, who will travel with the party, and three cars for the train crew.

Many souvenirs are to be distributed at the cities through which the train will pass. It is estimated by James T. Fetterly, assistant secretary of the association, that the value of the gifts will approximate $25,000.

The members will wear for the first time large identification cards, bearing their names, the name of the firm they represent, and the line of goods handled by that firm. These cards are to be worn that the men may more easily become acquainted with the people of the forty-two towns and cities to be visited on the trip.

The association will distribute copies of the year book, which made its appearance on Friday. In addition to this the association will distribute a large number of the buttons bearing the slogan, "Milwaukee Quality, A1."

FLAG DAY IS PROCLAIMED

Gov. McGovern Sings Praises of Old Glory and Asks That Citizens Observe Occasion.

Madison.—Gov. McGovern has issued a proclamation setting apart Wednesday, June 14, as Flag day, saying in part:

"Old Glory is the cherished emblem of our national life. The deeds of valor and patriotic devotion performed under its folds have won for it the respect and admiration of nations of the earth. Citizens living under its benign influence, enjoying the fruits of peace and prosperity, reverence it. Wonderful achievements in commerce, in civilization and in the arts of peace, no less than the triumphs of war have added lustre to it.

"June 14, 1911, will be the 134th anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes as the flag of the United States. This day affords a most opportune time for employing this emblem of American freedom as a means for inculcating lessons of loyalty, patriotic devotion and personal respect for law.

"Believing that patriotism may find wholesome stimulus through the instrumentality of the flag, I, Francis E. McGovern, governor of the state of Wisconsin, do hereby designate Wednesday, the 14th day of June, 1911, as Flag day.

"I especially recommend that on this day teachers display the school flag and call attention to its history and significance."

DEATH CLAIMS DR. SALISBURY

PRESIDENT OF THE NORMAL SCHOOL AT WHITEWATER PASSES AWAY.

END COMES UNEXPECTEDLY

Condition Seemed to Be Improving While He Was Staying at a Sanitarium When Suddenly He Died—Well Known Educator.

Milwaukee.—Dr. Albert Salisbury, president of the Whitewater normal school, and one of the foremost educators in the middle west, died in this city, where he has been receiving treatment for several weeks. Death was due to heart disease with which he had been afflicted for many years. His death was unexpected, his condition seeming to have improved recently.

Mr. Salisbury was born at Lima, Wis., on January 24, 1843. When twenty years old he left the home of his father, Oliver S. Salisbury, and enlisted as a private in the Thirtieth Wisconsin infantry, in which he served for the last two years of the Civil war. After being mustered out he finished his education, receiving the degree of bachelor of arts at Milton college, Milton, Wis., in the spring of 1870, master of arts in 1872, and doctor of philosophy in 1888.

Shortly after receiving the degree of master of arts he became the principal of the Brodhead high school. From 1873 to 1882 he was teacher and institute instructor in Whitewater normal school. In 1885 he became president of the normal school.

In connection with his different interests he wrote many books and treatises, among the better known of which are "A History of Normal Instruction in Wisconsin," "The First Quarter Century of Whitewater Normal School," "The Duty of the State to the Feeble Minded," "The Rural School Problem," "History of the Wisconsin Teachers' Association," and "Theory of Teaching and Elementary Psychology." The latter was published in 1905 and has become the text book in many of the teachers' training schools of the country.

Mr. Salisbury was married on November 20, 1866, to Miss Abba A. Mason, Sullivan, Wis., who died on May 21, 1881. Later he married Miss Agnes Hosford, Hudson, Wis., who survives him.

CHARGED WITH A MURDER

Julius Pfeil, a Farmer, 55, Living Near Elkhart Lake, Arrested Accused of Crime.

Sheboygan.—Charged with the murder of his wife, Julius Pfeil, a farmer residing near Elkhart Lake, was arrested and arraigned.

Pfeil, who is about 55 years old had been married three times and he was also the third husband of the dead woman. She died April 3 and a certificate of death was issued giving heart failure as the cause.

Her children, however, asked that an autopsy be made. Examination of Mrs. Pfeil's stomach at Madison showed, it is alleged, the presence of poison. A warrant was then sworn out for Pfeil upon complaint of Carl Foeste, a son.

It is said that before Mrs. Pfeil's death she and her husband quarreled frequently. She had some money in her own name.

ASSEMBLY PASSES BILLS

The combined ages of the four is 331 years. The two brothers and sisters separated fifty-one years ago and this is the first time they have met.

Speaking of the Divorce Evil

Trying to succeed in business without advertising is like the case of the man who, trying to cut expenses, divorced his wife and alone attempted to keep house and raise his children. It cost him more money for doctor bills and funeral expenses in a year than he gave his wife in a lifetime.

When advertising is divorced, business success becomes failure.

This paper is building your neighbor's business. He has reasons. He tried advertising and it helped him. It is not an experiment—this paper brings results. Good, hard, convincing results—dollars.

Some of the REASONS WHY U. S. Cream Separators ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD

The United States Separator employs a feeding device to deliver the whole milk beyond the cream zone—preventing any remixing of cream and skim milk and any conflict of currents. No other device of any other separator will do this work so well, as the records show. This device is patented, and can be used on no other separator.

The United States uses non-aligned channel for the currents of milk through the separator bowl. This is covered by strong patents. No discs or other construction can equal its perfection in separation. It holds the world's record for closest skimming.

The United States skims cleaner, runs easier, washes easier, and lasts longer than any other separator.

Ask the man who runs one. Ask us to prove it.

Kidney troubles are too serious to neglect. Slight ailments are often fore-runners of dangerous kidney illness and should be treated without delay. J. L. THREE CURED OF ECZEMA

"When a child, I suffered eight years with eczema. I could not sleep at night, and had sores all over my chest. We had doctors and none could do any good, until my mother saw the advertisement of the Cuticura Remedies in the paper. We used the Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent, and they cured me of eczema. I also used them on my five children. Two of them had eczema very badly. When my children had eczema, I was not worried at all, as I knew the Cuticura Remedies would do their work. They had sores all over their heads, their hair would fall out, and they would scratch all night and day. They had it on their heads, face, and in back of the ears so that I thought their ears would drop off. I washed their heads and bodies with Cuticura Soap and they are as clean as the driven snow. Cuticura Soap and Ointment also cured my children of ringworm. I would not be without the Cuticura Remedies. They are wonderful." (Signed) Mrs. Violet Cole, 26 S. When a Man Marries

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART
Author of The Circular Staircase, The Man in Lower Ten, etc.

Copyright 1909, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

SYNOPSIS.

James Wilson or Jimmy as he is called by his friends, Jimmy was rotund. His ambition in life was to be taken seriously, but people steadily refused to do so, his art is considered a huge joke, except to himself. If he asked people to dinner everyone expected a frolic. Jimmy marries Belle Knowles; they live together a year and are divorced. Jimmy's friends arrange to celebrate the first anniversary of his divorce. The party is in full swing when Jimmy receives a telegram from his Aunt Selma, who will arrive in four hours to visit him and his wife. He neglects to tell her of his divorce. Jimmy takes Kit into his confidence. He suggests that Kit play the hostess for one night, be Mrs. Wilson pro tem. Aunt Selma arrives and the deception works out as planned. Jim's Jap servant is taken ill. Belle, Jimmy's divorced wife, enters the house and asks Kit who is being taken away in the ambulance? Belle insists it is Jim. Kit tells her Jim is well and is in the house. Harbison steps out on the porch and discovers a man tacking a card on the door. He demands an explanation. The man points to the placard and Harbison sees the word "smallpox" printed on it. He tells him the guests cannot leave the house until the quarantine is lifted. After the lifting of the quarantine several letters are found in the mail box undelivered, one is addressed to Henry Lawdell, Indiana. While which was written by Harbison. He describes minutely of their incarceration, also of his infatuation for Mrs. Wilson. Aunt Selma is taken ill with a gripe. Betty acts as nurse. Harbison finds Kit sulking on the roof. She tells him that Jim has been treating her outrageously. Kit starts downstairs, when suddenly she is grasped in the arms of a man who kisses her several times. She believes that Harbison did it and is humiliated. Aunt Selma tells Jimmy that her cameo breastpin and other articles of jewelry have been stolen. She accuses Betty of the theft. Jimmy tells Aunt Selma all about the strange happenings, but she persists in suspecting Betty of the theft of her valuables. Harbison demands an explanation from Kit as to her conduct towards him, she tells him of the incident on the roof, he does not deny nor confirm her accusation.

"I think you are very rude," I said at last. "You fell over there and I thought you were killed. The nervous shock I experienced is just as bad as if you had gone—all the way."

He put down the hammer and came over to me without speaking. Then, when he was quite close, he said:

"I am very sorry if I startled you. I did not flatter myself that you would be profoundly affected, in any event."

"Oh, as to that," I said lightly, "it makes me ill for days if my car runs over a dog." He looked at me in silence. "You are not going to get up on that parapet again?"

"Mrs. Wilson," he said, without paying the slightest attention to my question, "will you tell me what I have done?"

"Done?"

"Or have not done? I have racked my brains—stayed awake all of last night. At first I hoped it was impersonal, that womanlike, you were merely venting general distavor on one particular individual. But—your hostility is to me, personally."

I raised my eyebrows, coldly interrogative.

"Perhaps," he went on, calmly—"perhaps I was a fool here on the roof—the night before last. If I said anything that I should not, I ask your pardon. If it is not that, I think you ought to ask mine."

"I was angry enough then."

"There can be only one opinion about your conduct," I retorted, warmly. "It was unspokeable. I have no words for it—except that I loathe it—and you."

He was very grim by this time. "I have heard you say something like that before—only I was not the unfortunate in that case."

"Oh!" I was choking.

"Under different circumstances I should be the last person to recall anything so—personal. But the circumstances are unusual." He took an angry step toward me. "Will you tell me what I have done? Or shall I go down and ask the others?"

"You wouldn't dare," I cried, "or I will tell them what you did! How you waylaid me on those stairs there, and forced your caresses, your kisses, on me! Oh, I could die with shame!"

The silence that followed was as unexpected as it was ominous. I knew he was staring at me, and I was furious to find myself so emotional, so much more excited of the two. Finally, I looked up.

"You cannot deny it," I said, in a sort of anticlimax.

a club without apology, and later on, during his dummy, I saw him writing our names on the back of an envelope, and putting numbers after them. At my earliest opportunity I went to Max.

"There is something the matter with Dal, Max," I volunteered. "He has been acting strangely all day, and just now he was making out a list—names and numbers."

"You're to blame for that, Kit," Max said seriously. "You put washing soda instead of baking soda in those biscuits today, and he thinks he is a steam laundry. Those are laundry bills he's making out. He asked me a little while ago if I wanted a domestic finish."

Yes, I had put washing soda in the biscuits. The book said soda, and how is one to know which is meant?

"I do not think you are calculated for a domestic finish," I said, coldly, as I turned away. "In any case I disclaim any such responsibility. But—there is something on Dal's mind."

Max came after me. "Don't be cross, Kit. You haven't said a nice word to me today, and you go around bristling with your chin up and two red spots on your cheeks—like whatever-her-name-was with the snakes instead of hair. I don't know why I'm so crazy about you; I always meant to love a girl with a nice disposition."

I left him then. Dal had gone into the reception room and closed the doors. And because he had been acting so strangely, and partly to escape from Max, whose eyes looked threatening, I followed him. Just as I opened the door quietly and looked in, Dallas switched off the lights, and I could hear him groping his way across the room. Then somebody—not Dal—spoke from the corner, cautiously.

"Is that you, Mr. Brown, sir?" It was Flannigan.

"Yes, is everything here?"

"All but the powder, sir. Don't step too close. They're spread all over the place."

"Have you taken the curtains down?"

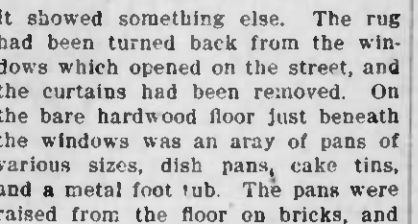

"Yes, sir."

"Matches?"

"Here, sir."

"Light one, will you, Flannigan? I want to see the time."

The flare showed Dallas and Flannigan bent over the timepiece. And

The Mercer Girls Kissed Dal and Anne Was Furious.

It showed something else. The rug had been turned back from the windows which opened on the street, and the curtains had been removed. On the bare hardwood floor just beneath the windows was an array of pans of various sizes, dish pans, cake tins, and a metal foot tub. The pans were raised from the floor on bricks, and seemed to be full of paper. All the chairs and tables were pushed back against the wall, and the bric-a-brac was stacked on the mantel.

"Half an hour yet," Dal said, closing his watch. "Plenty of time, and remember the signal, four short and two long."

"Four short and two long—all right, sir."

"And—Flannigan, here's something for you, on account."

"Thank you, sir."

Dal turned to go out, tripped over the rug, said something, and passed me without an idea of my presence. A moment later Flannigan went out, and I was left, huddled against the wall, and alone.

It was puzzling enough. "Four long and two short!" "All but the powder!" Not that I believed for a moment what Max had said, and anybody Flannigan was the sanest person I ever saw in my life. But it all seemed a part of the mystery that had been hanging over us for several days. I felt my way across the room and knelt by the pans. Yes, they were there, full of paper and mounted on bricks. It had not been a delusion.

And then I straightened on my knees suddenly, for an automobile passing under the window had sounded four short honks and two long ones. The signal was followed instantly by a crash. The foot bath had fallen from its supports, and lay, quivering and vibrating with horrid noise at my feet. The next moment Mr. Harbison had thrown open the door and leaped into the room.

"Who's there?" he demanded. Against the light I could see him reaching for his hip pocket, and the rest crowding up around him.

"It's only me," I quavered, "that is, I. The dish pan upset."

"Dish pan?" Bella said from back in the crowd. "Kit, of course!"

Jim forced his way through them and turned on the lights. I have no doubt I looked very strange, kneeling there on the bare floor, with a row of pans mounted on bricks behind me, and the furniture all piled on itself in a back corner.

to the pans, to the windows, to the bric-a-brac on the mantel, and back to me.

I sat stonily silent. Why should I explain? Whenever I got into a foolish position, and tried to explain, and tell how it happened, and who was really to blame, they always brought it back to me somehow. So I sat there on the floor and let them stare. And finally Lollie Mercer got her breath and said: "How perfectly lovely; it's a charade!"

And Anne guessed "kitchen" at once. "Kit, you know, and the pans and—all that," she said, vaguely. At that they all took to guessing! And I sat still, until Mr. Harbison saw the storm in my eyes and came over to me.

"Have you hurt your ankle?" he said in an undertone. "Let me help you up."

"I am not hurt," I said, coldly, "and even if I were, it would be unnecessary to trouble you."

"I cannot help being troubled," he returned, just as evenly. "You see, it makes me ill for days if my car runs over a dog."

Luckily, at that moment Dal came in. He pushed his way through the crowd without a word, shut off the lights, crashed through the pans and slammed the shutters close. Then he turned and addressed the rest.

"Of all the lunatics!" he began, only there was more to it than that. "A fellow goes to all kinds of trouble to put an end to this miserable situation, and the entire household turns out and sets to work to frustrate the whole scheme. You like to stay here, don't you, like chickens in a coop? Where's Flannigan?"

Nobody understood Dal's wrath then, but it seems he meant to arrange the plot himself, and when it was ripe, and the hour nearly come, he intended to wager that he could break the quarantine, and to take any odds he could get that he would free the entire party in half an hour. As for the plan itself, it was idiotically simple; we were perfectly deluged when we heard it. It was so simple and yet so comprehensive. We didn't see how it could fail. Both the Mercer girls kissed Dal on the strength of it, and Anne was furious. Jim was so much pleased, for some reason or other, and Mr. Harbison looked thoughtful rather than merry. Aunt Selma had gone to bed.

The idea, of course, was to start an embryo fire just inside the windows, in the pans, to feed it with the orange-powder that is used on the Fourth of July, and when we had thrown open the windows and yelled "fire" and all the guards and reporters had rushed to the front of the house, to escape quietly by a rear door from the basement kitchen, get into machines Dal had in waiting, and lose ourselves as quickly as we could.

You can see how simple it was. Everyone rushed madly for motor coats and veils, and Dal shuffled the numbers so the people going the same direction would have the same machine. We called to each other as we dressed about Marmaronek or Lake-wood or wherever we happened to have relatives. Everybody knew everybody else, and his friends. The Mercer girls were going to cruise until the trouble blew over, the Browns were going to Africa to hunt, if he could get out of the harbor.

Only the Harbison man seemed to have no plans; quite suddenly with the world so near again, the world of country houses and steam yachts and all the rest of it, he ceased to be one of us. It was not his world at all. He stood back and watched the kaleidoscope of our coats and veils, half-quizzically, but with something in his face that I had not seen there before.

If he had not been so self-reliant and big, I would have said he was lonely. Not that he was pathetic in any sense of the word. Of course, he avoided me, which was natural and exactly what I wished. Belle never was far from him, and at the last she loaded him with her jewel case and a nuff and traveling bag and asked him to her cousins' on Long Island. I felt sure he was going to decline, when he glanced across at me.

"Do go," I said, very politely. "They are charming people." And he accepted at once!

AN ANTI-SUFFRAGETTE.

George Cavan Browne, the expert on international law, was discussing in Providence the Ruspoli case.

"An American heiress," he said "married an Italian, one Ruspoli. He took her to Italy, treated her badly, then died and left all her money to his family. She, in consequence, is penniless. For, by Italian law, the wife's money, all of it, belongs to the husband."

"But aside from its legal aspect, consider the mean, mercenary spirit of this thing. Really, these foreign noblemen resemble Peleg Henderson of Apponaug."

"Peleg had two sweethearts, Shaw met girls, one of whom owned a cow that was the one he married. He explained to his friends at the wedding: "'By crinuss! there ain't the difference of a cow between any two women in living.'"

"What are they?"

COPIOUS RAINS A BENEFIT

Reports From Various Portions of the State Promise Bountiful Harvest.

Manitowoc.—The precipitation of rain here during the month of May was a little over two inches, a trifle more than normal. There was no damage done by frost and an unusually plentiful crop is indicated. Berries and apples will be especially plentiful and the first strawberries home grown are now on the market. The pea canning season will open the earliest in the history of this county and the canners say that the crop is excellent and they expect the largest pack in years, though the acreage has not been increased.

Oshkosh.—Although there was a rainfall of 3.95 inches during May, bringing the total for the first five months of 1911 up to 8.2 inches, the amount of precipitation is not unusual, for the average rainfall in this vicinity is 31 inches a year and about 13 inches for five months. However, there has been more rain in 1910 by exactly one inch in the same length of time and Winnebago county farmers never had brighter crop outlooks.

Madison.—A succession of rain and hot spells points to unusually favorable crop results in this county this year. The precipitation of rain during the first five months of this year was 9.54, about 1½ inches less than the fall in the corresponding period last year. The outlook is especially bright for the corn and tobacco crops.

Green Bay.—Rain fall during the month just past was a little more than the average for that month, 5.72 inches having fallen as compared to an average of 3.67. Indications are that the crops in this county will be good-sized and the grain crop will be abundant.

A Lunch Fit for a King.

An active and successful young lady tells her food experience:

"Some years ago I suffered from nervous prostration, induced by continuous brain strain and improper food, added to a great grief.

"I was ordered to give up my work, as there was great danger of my mind falling me altogether. My stomach was in bad condition (nervous dyspepsia, I think now) and when Grape-Nuts food was recommended to me, I had no faith in it. However, I tried it, and soon there was a marked improvement in my condition.

"I had been troubled with faint spells, and had used a stimulant to revive me. I found that by eating Grape-Nuts at such times I was relieved and suffered no bad effects, which was a great gain. As to my other troubles—nervous prostration, dyspepsia, etc.—on the Grape-Nuts diet they soon disappeared.

"I wish especially to call the attention of office girls to the great benefit I derived from the use of Grape-Nuts as a noon luncheon. I was thoroughly tired of cheap restaurants and ordinary lunches, and so made the experiment of taking a package of Grape-Nuts food with me, and then slipping out at noon and getting a nickel's worth of sweet cream to add to it.

"I found that this simple dish, finished off with an apple, peach, orange, or a bunch of grapes made a lunch fit for a king, and one that agreed with me perfectly.

"I threw so on my Grape-Nuts diet that I did not have to give up my work at all, and in the two years have had only four lost days charged up against me.

"Let me add that your suggestions in the little book, 'Road to Wellville,' are, in my opinion, invaluable, especially to women." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

SHE GOT WHAT SHE WANTED

This Woman Had to Insist Strongly, but it Paid

Chicago, Ill.—"I suffered from a female weakness and stomach trouble, and I went to the store to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but the clerk did not want to let me have it—he said it was no good and wanted me to try something else, but knowing all about it I insisted and finally got it, and I am so glad I did, for it has cured me.

"I know of so many cases where women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I can say to every suffering woman that if medicine does not help her, there is nothing that will."—Mrs. JANETZKI, 2963 Arch St., Chicago, Ill.

This is the age of substitution, and women who want a cure should insist upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound just as this woman did, and not accept something else on which the druggist can make a little more profit.

Women who are passing through this critical period or who are suffering from any of those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of the fact that for thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills. In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

SUPREME COURT REVERSED TAFT

One of the Peculiar Features of Standard Oil Decision.

WHITE HOUSE RACE GOSSIP

Renomination of President by De-ault Practically Conceded—Honor Found in the Congressional Record—Senate Poorer but Younger.

By WILLIS J. ABBOT.

Washington.—The facility with which the Supreme court of the United States can reverse itself has long been the subject of merry jest at bench and bar. The most famous case was that of the income tax, which has been declared constitutional and unconstitutional by the same court, though with different members sitting. The decision against its constitutionality, by the way, was reached because one of the justices changed his mind over night. This seeming vacillation on the part of the highest court in the land, "the most dignified tribunal in the world" its idolators like to call it, is not without its compensations. It shows that the justices are but human, after all, not gods sitting on high Olympus clothed in omniscience. They are so human that close observers in Washington think the present court would declare the income tax constitutional if it could be brought before it.

Only five more states are necessary to make the income tax constitutional. Perhaps this evidence of its popularity has something to do with the reported attitude of the court. It was rather more than ten years ago that the sagacious Mr. Dooley laid down to Hennessy this incontrovertible proposition: "I dunno whether the constitution follows the flag, but the Supreme court does follow the illicition returns."

Court Reverses President.

Just at present Washington is wondering whether the joke is on President Taft or the court, for the jurists have flatly reversed the president, to whom so many of them owe their seats, on the question of reading into the Sherman anti-trust law the word "unreasonable." In January, 1919, President Taft launched at congress a special message on anti-trust and interstate commerce legislation. Though here at the time, I do not recall that the message created any wild excitement then. Today it is the most generally sought pamphlet in the document room. From its exhaustive survey of anti-trust legislation I cull these passages:

"The Supreme court in several of its decisions has declined to read into the statute the word 'unreasonable' before 'restraint of trade,' on the ground that the statute applies to all restraints and does not intend to leave to the court the discretion to determine what is a reasonable restraint of trade. . . . It has been proposed, however, that the word 'reasonable' should be made a part of the statute, and then that it should be left to the court to say what is a reasonable restraint of trade, but what is a reasonable suppression of competition, what is a reasonable monopoly. I venture to think that this is to put into the hands of the court a power impossible to exercise on any consistent principle which will insure the uniformity of decision essential to just judgment. It is to thrust upon the courts a burden that they have no precedents to enable them to carry, and to give them a power approaching the arbitrary, the abuse of which might involve our whole judicial system in disaster."

And now, alas, the court has done just what the president applauded it for declining to do in the past. It has read into the law the word "unreasonable" which congress and the president refused to put there. It has "thrust upon the courts" that burden which the president thought 18 months ago was too heavy for them to carry. In a speech only a day or two ago he declared the courts did not have enough power. Washington wonders whether he thinks so still.

"Taft by Default," the Sentiment. When action lags in senate and house, political Washington turns to the discussion of presidential possibilities. This is particularly true just now when the lines are being formed for and against candidates of either party.

In the Republican party there seems to be a general resignation to the idea of the renomination of Taft. "Resignation" is the only word to express the attitude of the party's representatives here. There is neither hearty enthusiasm for him, nor yet a healthy opposition. One might think that the insurgents whom Taft fought and who fought him might put up a lively fight in the Republican convention. But there is no indication that they will do it. Certainly they show no signs of organizing to that end. I talked recently to one of the most widely known insurgents in the house. He was just starting for New York to call on Roosevelt.

"I see that Roosevelt has written to friends in Nebraska," I said, by way of small talk, "that the mention of his name for the presidency is most embarrassing to him and he begs it may be stopped."

"Well, he has to write something of that sort to remind the people he is alive," was the rejoinder of my insurgent friend.

Somewhat dazed, because I thought that in the general Republican drift away from Roosevelt the insurgents at least were still loyal, I asked something about LaFollette.

"Oh, if he keeps on the way he has been acting in this congress," said my friend contemptuously, "his name won't be mentioned in the convention."

That is the way it goes today in Washington. Few, if any, of the Republicans want Taft again, but the insurgents, who alone could raise the colors about which the anti-Taft forces might rally, are split into hostile camps, incapable of harmony. The sentiment on the Republican side of both house and senate is that it is Taft by default in the convention, and Taft in defeat at the election.

People for Wilson.

On the Democratic side it is still Champ Clark, Judson Harmon and Woodrow Wilson about whom the fires of controversy burn most fiercely. In the country as a whole, Gov. Wilson is at this moment undoubtedly the leading aspirant. That is not the case in Washington, however, particularly not the case about the capital. A very shrewd senator, wholly uncommitted to any candidate, said to me the other day: "You will find that Wilson will be the popular candidate. His newspaper campaign has been admirably managed, and in his tours he has made a multitude of friends. In meeting people he is genial without being effusive and tactful without appearing to be over cautious. But he will not be the candidate of the politicians, the men who make up conventions and elect delegates. Wilson is too new, too untried for this political element. Believing victory assured with any good candidate, they would rather have one who knows politics and is used to handling men, than one who knows Greek and has spent his life handling school boys. Among this class you will find Uncle Jud 'Harmon the favorite.'"

This is a fair statement of the case today. Among senators and representatives Harmon is far in the lead. This is not to say that Governor Wilson has not made great gains and Harmon suffered some losses, but it is to be remembered that seven months ago Harmon had everything and Wilson nothing. Moreover, the Ohio governor's preoccupation with affairs in his own state has resulted in the complete abandonment of any national activities in his behalf. Doubtless this will be corrected, but it has already hurt.

As for Champ Clark, the third of the chief Democratic candidates, there is apprehension that the curious situation in his own state may defeat his aspirations. It is hardly remembered now that "Joe" Folk won the state's endorsement for the presidency both in the popular primaries and in the state convention. For Clark to have the Missouri delegation would necessitate repudiating the action of the state convention and ignoring the will of the people as expressed in the primaries. "In this day when nomination by direct primaries is one of the pet popular issues such action would be disastrous. It would make Missouri a Republican state in the next presidential election," said a Democratic representative and a friend of Clark's whose district borders on the Missouri line.

Fun in Congressional Record.

They who think the congressional record a dismal publication given over to partisan politics and personal squabbles do that interesting publication a grave injustice. It may not be quite as vivacious as the part-colored comic weeklies chiefly seen in barber shops, but there are many who prefer its humor to that of London Punch. A really talented editor of a "comic supplement" could do great things with the humorous material in its columns.

Here for example comes Hon. J. Hefflin, of Alabama, to talk about the farmers' free list bill. One might as well expect to find humor in a Calvinistic sermon. But reproaching the Republicans for their boasts of what they have done for the farmer, Mr. Hefflin contributes this anecdote:—you have to hear "Tom" tell it in his inimitable darkey dialect to fully appreciate it:

"The farmer feels your tariff blessings about like the old negro did the possum. Old Rastus went out one night and caught a big fat possum. He cleaned him good and put the oven on a bed of rosy coals. And he laid the possum in the oven and put some yam potatoes around him and some butter and pepper and salt. Then old Rastus said: 'I'm gwine ter lay down here a little while and I'm gwine to dream erbout eatin' dis possum, and den I'm gwine ter eat 'im shore enuf, and I'll enjoy 'im twice.' So old Rastus fell asleep. Sambo came along and smelt the possum cooking. He looked in and saw old Rastus sound asleep. He lifted the oven lid and took the possum out. He was baked brown, smoking and smelling good. Old Sambo ate him. He took some of the grease and smeared it on the mustache of old Rastus and put a little on his chin, a little on his hands, and piled the bones down beside Rastus' head, and departed. Rastus awoke and said: 'Sholy I ain't eat dat possum. Sholy I ain't eat 'im. But heah's grease on my lips, and on my hands, and heah's de bones layin' by me.' Then, pressing his hand gently against his stomach, he said: 'If I did eat dat possum he weighs lighter on my constitution and has less influence wid me can any possum dat I see ever eat in mah born days.'"

"Uncle Joe" Cannon even in this period of eclipse has not lost that sense of humor which is one of his many saving graces. He scoffs Democratic pretensions to unprejudiced tariff reform and inquiring why not free rice if there is to be free wheat, launches this story:

"I am reminded in this connection of an eminent member of this house, now dead and gone. With three or four drinks his tongue would become loosened, and one day at Willard's (hotel) he fell into conversation with Judge Ela of New Hampshire. Said he, 'Judge, I recollect very well our service together in congress.' The judge replied, 'Oh, it was most pleasant to me. We were on opposite sides of the house, but we were both called watch dogs of the treasury.' His friend answered, 'So we were, so we were.' And having had the fourth drink he continued, 'But we always had the true instinct of a good watchdog—we knew enough not to bark when our friends were around.'"

Kent's Apposite Illustration.

Over against the Cannon scoff may be set the apposite illustration of the working of "Billy" Kent, a new Republican insurgent from California who shocks his brethren by making near-trade speeches. Mr. Kent puts it this way:

"It is argued that by taxing one industry for the benefit of another industry, and vice-versa, we create a home market that is productive of wealth. This brings to mind the story told by David Starr Jordan concerning the eagle and the blue tailed lizard. It seems that the eagle one day swooped down upon the lizard and bit off and ate the lizard's tail; whereupon the eagle acquired sufficient energy to lay an egg. The lizard climbed the tree, sucked the egg, and through the encouragement thus afforded grew a new tail. This process continued through many years, apparently without much profit to either party save as it added to the interest of existence.

"A tale of similar import, but more profitable sequence, was related of a man who lived near the Potomac marshes and started to raise carp. He was doing fairly well selling carp from his pond, when he suddenly conceived the idea of raising a side line of cats for the fur. He discovered that he could feed the carp to the cats and the cats to the carp so that he increased mightily in his output of cats and carp and became wealthy."

Many other humorous anecdotes, each having its pertinence to some solemn subject, like reciprocity or the farmers' free list might be added to these three. Neither congress nor its printed record is as dull as the nation thinks.

Senate Gains Youth, Loses Wealth.

Some newspaper genius with a mind for statistics—even though the figures are drawn somewhat from the imagination—printed the other day the story that the recent Democratic uprising had left the United States senate about $50,000,000 poorer than it was during the last session of the Sixty-first congress. Among the owners of great fortunes who have disappeared from the senate he mentioned Nelson W. Aldrich, Stephen B. Elkins, James P. Tallaferro, N. B. Scott, John Kean and Chauncey M. Depew. Figures as to these individual fortunes were given, but figures of that sort can have no definite basis and are often discredited—particularly when sorrowing heirs make up the appraisal for the inheritance tax. Yet it is probable that the estimate that the senate is about correct. The only new senator in the class of the millionaires named above is Clarence W. Watson of West Virginia.

But if the senate lost in cash it gained in youth, virility and the progressiveness which usually accompanies those qualities. I print a table compiled from the new Congressional Directory showing those who either died during the last year of the 61st congress or were retired with it, and a list of their successors, with the ages of both:

Elected.	Successors.
L. Percy, Miss., 51	A. J. McLaurin, 63
C. A. Swanson, Va., 49	J. A. Daniel, 69
J. A. Terrell, Ga., 59	A. S. Clay, 58
H. R. Thornton, La., 50	S. D. McEnery, 73
A. J. Gronna, N.D., 53	M. Johnson, 61
C. W. Watson, W. Va., 58	S. B. Elkins, 70
Va., 47
N. P. Bryan, Fla., 39	J. P. Tallaferro, 64
W. E. Chilton, W. Va., 69	N. B. Scott, 69
Va., 53
Luke Lea, Tenn., 32	J. B. Frazier, 53
H. F. Lippitt, R.I., 55	N. W. Aldrich, 70
G. M. Hitchcock, E. J. Burkett, 44

C. F. Johnson, Me., 52	Eugene Hale, 75
J. W. Kern, Ind., 62	A. J. Beveridge, 49
G. P. McLean, M. G. Bulkeley, 74

J. E. Martine, N.J., 81	John Kean, 69
H. L. Myers, Mont., 49	T. H. Carter, 67
J. A. O'Gorman, C. M. Depew, 77
N. Y., 51
M. Polinder, S. H. Piles, 53
Wash., 43
Allee Pomerene, O., 49	Charles Dick, 63
J. A. Reed, Mo., 51	W. Warner, 71

Mich., 55	H. D. Money, 72
J. S. Williams, F. P. Flint, 69
Miss., 57
J. D. Works, Cal., 64	L. Young, 63

It will be noted that of the new comers only four senators, Hitchcock, Kern, Martine and Works, are older than their defeated rivals.

The youngest of the new senators, the "baby" of the senate, Luke Lea of Tennessee, is 32 years old; if his age were doubled it would just equal the average age of the outgoing "Old Guard." For the total number of years on this planet spent by the retiring elder statesmen is 1,540, or an average of 64 years and 3 months each. The world has enjoyed the privilege of maintaining the newcomers 1,228 years, or an average of 51 years, 2 months each.

SILENCE THAT WAS WASTED

Aunt Melissa Supreme Indifferent to Fact That Pa Had for Days Been in a "Huff."

Aunt Melissa Spigott was such an exceedingly energetic talker that the youngsters of the family used to suppose that her tongue must be coppered, because it never wore out. Uncle Silas, on the other hand, was an economical of words as a marketman is of early strawberries.

The too free exercising of this unruly member of Aunt Melissa's on one occasion, gave Uncle Silas serious offense, which he manifested by a severe silence lasting for several days. At the end of that period one of the older daughters approached her mother upon the subject with the remark, "Ma, seems like you ought to make up with pa by now."

"Make up with pa?" exclaimed aunt Melissa, in great astonishment. "Make up what?"

"Why," returned the daughter, "don't you know poor pa's feeling bad yet? He's still huffing."

"Huffing—for the land's sake! How long's he been a-huffing?"

"Ever since you came down on him so hard about wasting sugar by not stirring his coffee; that's three days ago."

"Why, you don't tell me, Janie Maud! Aunt Melissa looked amazed. "Your pore pa! Been a-huffing for three days, and I never mistrusted a thing of it!"—Youth's Companion.
