Fourth of July This Year Was the Most Sane of Any Ever Held Here

AUTO PARADE A SUCCESS

Dance in the North Side and South Side Parks Largely Attended

Independence Day this year was celebrated in this village in a very sane way on last Tuesday, Fourth of July. The auto parade held in the afternoon was a decided success, 12 autos being in line, all being very prettily decorated with the nation's colors. The line of procession was formed at Jos. Eberle's place. First in line was a decorated carriage containing four old soldiers, then came the band, next in line were the autos. The procession was ended with the decorated bus containing all children. Quite a number of people were attracted to the village to witness the parade.

After the parade a picnic was held at the North Side Park where enjoyment was to be had for all, both young and old. A very large crowd was also in attendance. The dance in the evening was the main feature of the day. This dance was attended by a very large crowd. There were in the neighborhood of 250 dance tickets sold. A grand display of fireworks were also given in the park in the evening.

The dance in the South Side Park hall, which closed this year's festivities was very largely attended and enjoyed by all.

WOLGAST IS VICTOR

KNOCKS OUT OWEN MORAN IN THIRTEENTH ROUND AT SAN FRANCISCO.

BRITON IS BADLY PUMMELED

Champion Lightweight Fighter Wears Down His English Opponent by Heavy Slugging at Close Quarters and Finally Puts Him Out.

San Francisco.—The measured swing of Referee Welsh's arm, tolling off the fatal ten seconds over the writhing and unconscious body of Owen Moran of England, brought victory to Ad Wolgast in the thirteenth round of the international battle for the lightweight championship. The decisive victory was clearly earned by the terrific punishing power of the champion.

It was palpable from the moment they hooked up in the first mauling match at close quarters that Wolgast was the more rugged of the pair. He may have been tired once or twice during the contest, owing to the gruelling pace, but there was a doubt about it, whereas there was never an atom of doubt as to the way things were going with Moran.

He looked distressed during each resting spell after the fifth round, while across the ring Wolgast, snappy-eyed and nimble, was chatting to friends in sound of his voice.

Wolgast simply wore Moran down in the close fighting, doing his best to the fighting men as "loop the loop." It is a right-hander which curls around entangled arms and lands on the face. Wolgast used this punch with such force that Moran's lips were puffed, and blood dripped from his nose and mouth.

When Wolgast was not working the "loop the loop" he was hammering Moran's body with forceful rights. It seemed that the closer they got the harder were Wolgast's punches.

Moran caught Wolgast quite a number of snapping right-handers in between clinches and punched him with straight lefts. While Wolgast was working the "loop the loop" Moran used a left uppercut and did a fair amount of damage with it. But neither in infighting or outfighting did Moran's blows carry a tithe of the punishing force that did Wolgast's, and there was not a real chance for those who backed Moran to chortle at any time during the fight.

Wolgast went after Moran with blood in his eye in the thirteenth round. A couple of well-placed right uppercuts failed to stop Wolgast, who was on top of his man like a terrier tackling a rat. Moran was battered along the ropes. His guard was demoralized with right body punches, and he was sent down open-mouthed with a couple of left swings on the jaw. The fight ended right there. The knockout was clean and Wolgast's civility most decisive.

When Wolgast was not working the "loop the loop" he was hammering Moran's body with forceful rights. It seemed that the closer they got the harder were Wolgast's punches.

Moran caught Wolgast quite a number of snapping right-handers in between clinches and punched him with straight lefts. While Wolgast was working the "loop the loop" Moran used a left uppercut and did a fair amount of damage with it. But neither in infighting or outfighting did Moran's blows carry a tithe of the punishing force that did Wolgast's, and there was not a real chance for those who backed Moran to chortle at any time during the fight.

Wolgast went after Moran with blood in his eye in the thirteenth round. A couple of well-placed right uppercuts failed to stop Wolgast, who was on top of his man like a terrier tackling a rat. Among some of the prominent individuals named as officers of the companies composing the alleged pools are the following:

Frank J. Gould, president of the Old Dominion Iron and Nail Works of Virginia; Herbert L. Satterlee, Haber-shaw Wire company; William P. Palmer, president of the American Steel and Wire company; Charles F. Brooker, vice-president of the Ansonia Brass and Copper company; and a member of the Republican national committee from Connecticut; Henry G. Stoddard, president of the Trenton Iron company; Erskine Hewitt, vice-president of the Trenton Iron company; Frank N. Phillips, president of the American Electrical works, and Ferdinand V. The companies indicted are: The Bare Copper Wire association, the Wire Rope Manufacturers' association, the Lead Encased Rubber Cable association, the Fine Magnet Wire association, the Underground Power Cable association, the Horseshoe Manufacturers' association, the Telephone Cable association and the Weatherproof and Magnet Wire association.

Only two of the associations named are subsidiaries of the United States Steel corporation—namely, the Trenton iron works and the American Steel and Wire company.

The offense with which they are charged is unlawful combination in restraint of trade in wire products in violation of the anti-trust law.

Herbert Satterlee is a son-in-law of J. Pierpont Morgan and Frank Gould is the well-known financial and street railway magnate.

GIBBONS PRIEST FIFTY YEARS

Cardinal Celebrates Mass of Thanksgiving on the Anniversary of His Ordination.

Baltimore, July 7.—In a little chapel in a home where he is visiting, about 50 miles from Baltimore, Cardinal Gibbons offered up a mass of thanksgiving in honor of the most momentous event of his long career. He completes 50 years of a successful priesthood

Washington.—President Taft made public the much discussed and long expected report on the United States Steel corporation submitted to him by the bureau of corporations.

Signed by Herbert Knox Smith, commissioner of corporations, the report makes no recommendations and is almost wholly narrative in form. Mr. Smith declares that restriction of competition was a prime object of the organizers of the steel corporation, or so-called "trust."

Capitalized at $1,402,000,000, the corporation, he asserts, had tangible property worth only $62,000,000. By constant reinvestment of earnings, however, the report points out, much of the "water" in the company has been eliminated.

The steel corporation now owns 75 per cent of the lake ores, having recently concentrated its efforts to securing these properties. On this point the report says:

"Indeed, in so far as the steel corporation's position in the entire iron and steel industries is of monopolistic character, it is chiefly through its control of ore holdings and the transportation of ore."

"Until 1898 the bulk of the business was distributed among a very considerable number of concerns. There was sharp competition, modified by frequent pools of greater or less duration and effectiveness."

Then came an era of great combinations, the report continues, with capitalizations ranging from $30,000,000 to $100,000,000, mergers of many smaller companies, which, instead of eliminating competition, threatened to bring price cutting on a larger scale than ever before. In 1899-1900 there were three great companies—the Carnegie company, Federal Steel and National Steel—dominating the production of crude and semi-finished products, and six concerns—the American Steel and Wire, American Tin Plate, American Steel Hoop, American Sheet Steel, National Tube and American Bridge—controlling the lighter finished products.

The commissioner finds that competition, so far as prices are concerned, has been modified by the policy of "co-operation" inaugurated at the "Gary dinners," about which so much has been said before the congressional steel investigating committee.

The present valuation of the combine's tangible property is placed at $1,187,000,000, as against $1,468,000,000 outstanding securities, an increase of about $487,000,000 in property, while only about $66,000,000 has been added to capitalization.

HARVARD WINS THE VARSITY

Beats Out Yale Crew in Annual Rowing Test—Minor Events Are Divided.

New London, Conn.—Harvard won the annual boat race from Yale here by a liberal margin. At one point the Crimson boat was nine lengths ahead of the Blue craft.

The Cambridge men caught the water easily and took the lead from the start, and at the finish were pulling easily. An aeroplane circled over the course during the progress of the race.

The official time of the varsity race was: Harvard, 22:44; Yale, 23:40½. Harvard won by fourteen lengths.

Yale pulled out a victory in the freshmen eights by a superb spurt in the last half mile, while the Harvard substitute varsity fours, leading from the start, defeated Yale by two lengths. Both races were rowed well, but a contrary wind and a slack tide made the time slow.

When a Man Marries

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART
 Author of The Circular Staircase, The Man in Lover Ten, Etc.

SYNOPSIS.

James Wilson or Jimmy as he is called by his friends, Jimmy was round and looked shorter than he really was. His ambition in life was to be taken seriously, but people steadily refused to do so, his art is considered a huge joke, except to himself, if he asked people to dinner everyone expected a frolic. Jimmy marries Bella Knowles; they live together a year and are divorced. Jimmy's friends arrange to celebrate the first anniversary of his divorce. The party is in full swing when Jimmy receives a telegram from his Aunt Selma, who will arrive in four hours to visit him and his wife. He neglects to tell her of his divorce. Jimmy takes Kit into his confidence. He suggests that Kit play the hostess for one night, be Mrs. Wilson pro tem. Aunt Selma arrives and the deception works out as planned. Jim's Jap servant is taken ill. Bella, Jimmy's divorced wife, enters the house and asks Kit who is being taken away in the ambulance? Bella insists it is Jim. Kit tells her Jim is well and is in the house. Harbison steps out on the porch and discovers a man tacking a card on the door. He demands an explanation. The man points to the placard and Harbison sees the word "Smallpox" printed on it. He tells him the guests cannot leave the house until the quarantine is lifted. After the lifting of the quarantine several letters are found in the mail box undelivered, one is addressed to Henry Lewellyn, Louie, Chile, which was written by Harbison. He describes minutely of their incarceration, also of his infatuation for Mrs. Wilson. Aunt Selma is taken ill with la grippe. Betty acts as nurse. Harbison finds Kit sulking on the roof. She tells him that Jim has been treating her outrageously. Kit starts downstairs, when suddenly she is grasped in the arms of a man who kisses her several times. She believes that Harbison did it and is humiliated. Aunt Selma tells Jimmy that her cameo brooch and other articles of jewelry have been stolen. She accuses Betty of the theft. Jimmy tells Aunt Selma all about the strange happenings, but she persists in suspecting Betty of the theft of her valuables. Harbison demands an explanation from Kit as to her conduct towards him, she tells him of the incident on the roof, he does not deny nor confirm her accusation. One of the guests devises a way to escape from the house. They set fire to the reception room and attempt to leave the house from the rear. The guards discover the ruse and prevent them from escaping. Max finds Anne's pearl clasp pin in Jimmy's studio in a discarded coat. Jimmy is suspected of the theft, but denies the accusation. Kit finds a watch hanging to a pillar in the basement and with initials T. H. H. engraved upon it. She opens the case and finds a picture of herself that had been clipped from a newspaper. Kit shows Harbison the watch. He explains that he had been looking for it and believed it had been stolen.

"It seems that the gentle Bella has been unusually beastly today to Jim, and—I believe she's jealous of you, Kit. Jim followed her up to the roof before dinner with a box of flowers, and she tossed them over the parapet. She said, I believe, that she didn't want his flowers; he could buy them for you, and be damned to him, or some lady-like equivalent."

"Jim is a jellyfish," I said contemptuously. "What did he say?"

"He said he only cared for one woman, and that was Bella: That he never had really cared for you and never would, and that divorce courts were not unmitigated evils if they showed people the way to real happiness. Which wouldn't amount to anything if Harbison had not been in the tent, trying to sleep!"

Dal did not know all the particulars, but it seems that relations between Jim and Mr. Harbison were rather strained. Bella had left the roof and Jim and the Harbison man came face to face in the door of the tent. According to Dal, little had been said, but Jim, bound by his promise to me, could not explain, and could only stammer something about being an old friend of Miss Knowles. And Tom had replied shortly that it was none of his business, but that there were some things friendship hardly justified, and tried to pass Jim. Jim was instantly enraged: He blocked the door to the roof and demanded to know what the other man meant. There were two or three versions of the answer he got. The general purport was that Mr. Harbison had no desire to explain further, and that the situation was forced on him. But if he insisted—when a man systematically ignored and neglected his wife for some one else, there were communities where he would be tarred and fattered.

"Meaning me?" Jim demanded, apologetic.

"The remark was a general one," Mr. Harbison retorted, "but if you wish to make a concrete application—"

Dal had gone up just then, and found them glaring at each other, Jim with his hands clenched at his sides and Mr. Harbison with his arms folded and very erect. Dal took Jim by the elbow and led him downstairs, muttering, and the situation was saved for the time. But Dal was not optimistic.

"You can do a bit yourself, Kit," he finished. "Look more cheerful, flirt a little. You can do that without trying. Take Max on for a day or so: It would be charity anyhow. But I don't let Tom Harbison take it into his head that you are grieving over Jim's neglect, or he's likely to toss him off the roof."

"I have no reason to think that Mr. Harbison cares one way or the other about me," I said primly. "You don't think he's—he's in love with me, do you, Dal?" I watched him out of the corner of my eye, but he only looked amused.

"In love with you?" he repeated. "Why, bless your wicked little heart, no! He thinks you're a married woman! It's the principle of the thing he's fighting for. If I had as much principle as he has I'd—put it out at interest."

Max interrupted us just then, and asked if we knew where Mr. Harbison was.

"Can't find him," he said. "I've got the telephone together and have enough left over to make another. Where do you suppose Harbison hides the tools? I'm working with a corkscrew and two palette knives."

I heard nothing more of the trouble that night. Max went to Jim about it, and Jim said angrily that only a fool would interfere between a man and his wife—wives. Whereupon Max retorted that a fool and his wives were soon parted, and left him. The two principals were coldly civil to each other, and smaller issues were lost as the famine grew more and more insistent. For some time.

They worked the rest of the evening, but the telephone refused to revive and every one was starving. Individually our pride was at low ebb, but collectively it was still formidable. So we sat around and Jim played Grieg with the soft stops on, and Aunt Selma went to bed. The weather had changed, and it was sleeting, but anything was better than the drawing room. I was in a mood to battle with the elements or to cry—or both—so I slipped out, while Dal was reciting "Give me three grains of corn, mother," threw somebody's overcoat over my shoulders, put on a man's soft hat—Jim's I think—and went up to the roof.

It was dark in the third floor hall, and I had to feel my way to the foot of the stairs. I went up quietly and turned the knob of the door to the roof. At first it would not open, and I could hear the wind howling outside. Finally, however, I got the door open a little and wormed my way

"Bella Has Been Unusually Beastly Today to Jim."

"Turn it," he commanded. "I can't reach it."

"I'll do nothing of the kind," I said shrewdly. "Let me down; I can walk perfectly well."

He hesitated. Then he slid me slowly to my feet, but he did not open the door at once. "Are you afraid to let me carry you down those stairs, after—Tuesday night?" he asked, very low. "You still think I did that?"

I had never been less sure of it than at that moment, but an imp of perversity made me retort, "Yes."

He hardly seemed to hear me. He stood looking down at me as I leaned against the door-frame.

"Good Lord!" he groaned. "To think that I might have killed you!" And then—he stooped and suddenly kissed me.

The next moment the door was open, and he was leading me down into the house. At the foot of the staircase he paused, still holding my hand, and faced me in the darkness.

"I'm not sorry," he said steadily.

"I suppose I ought to be, but I'm not. Only—I wanted you to know that I was not guilty—before. I didn't intend to now. I am—almost as much surprised as you are."

I was quite unable to speak, but I wrenched my hand loose. He stepped back to let me pass, and I went down the hall alone.

CHAPTER XVIII.

It's All My Fault.

I didn't go to the drawing room again. I went into my own room and sat in the dark, and tried to be furiously angry, and only succeeded in feeling queer and tingly. One thing was absolutely certain: Not the same man, but two different men had kissed me on the stairs to the roof. It sounds rather horrid and discriminating, but there was all the difference in the world.

But then—who had? And for whom had Mr. Harbison been waiting on the roof? "Did you know that I nearly choked you to death a few minutes ago?" Then he rather expected to finish somebody in that way! Who? Jim, probably. It was strange, too, but suddenly I realized that no matter how many suspicious things I mustered up against him—and there were plenty—down in my heart I didn't believe him guilty of anything, except this last and unforgivable offense. Whoever was trying to leave the house had taken the necklace, that seemed clear, unless Max was still foolishly trying to break quarantine and create one of the sensations he so dearly loves. This was a new idea, and some things upheld it, but Max had been playing bridge when I was kissed on the stairs, and there was still left that ridiculous incident of the comfort.

Bella came up after I had gone to bed, and turned on the light to brush her hair.

"If I don't leave this mausoleum soon I'll be carried out," she declared. "You in bed, Lollie Mercer and Dal flirting, Anne hysterical, and Jim making his will in the den! You will have to take Aunt Selma tonight, Kit; I'm all in."

"If you'll put her to bed, I'll keep her there," I conceded, after some parley.

"You're a dear," Bella came back from the door. "Look here, Kit, you know Jim pretty well. Don't you think he looks ill? Thinner?"

"He's a wreck," I said soberly. "You have a lot to answer for, Bella."

Bella went over to the cheval glass and looked in it. "I avoid him all I can," she said, posing. "He's awfully funny; he's so afraid I'll think he's serious about you. He can't realize that for me he simply doesn't exist."

Well, I took Aunt Selma, and about two o'clock, while I was in my first sleep, I woke to find her standing beside me, tugging at my arm.

"There's somebody in the house," she whispered. "Thieves!"

"If they're in they'll not get out tonight," I said.

"I tell you, I saw a man skulking on the stairs," she insisted.

I got up ungraciously enough, and put on my dressing-gown. Aunt Selma, who had her hair in curls, tied a veil over her head, and together we went to the head of the stairs. Aunt Selma leaned far over and peered down.

"He's in the library," she whispered. "I can see a light."

The lust of battle was in Aunt Selma's eye. She glided her robe about her and began to descend the stairs cautiously. We went through the hall was empty, but from the den beyond came a hum of voices and the cheerful glow of firelight. I realized the situation then, but it was too late.

"Then why did you kiss her in the dining room?" Bella was saying in her clear, high tones. "You did, didn't you?"

"It was only her hand," Jim, desperately explaining. "I've got to pay her some attention, under the circumstances. And I give you my word, I was thinking of you when I did it." The wretch!

Aunt Selma drew her breath in suddenly.

"I am thinking of marrying Reggie Wolfe." This was Bella, of course. "He wants me to. He's a dear boy."

"If you do, I will kill him."

"I am so very lonely," Bella sighed. We could hear the creak of Jim's shirt bosom that showed that he had sighed also. Aunt Selma had gripped me by the arm, and I could hear her breathing hard beside me.

Old-fashioned Teacher—I believe it is the natural way to make them smart.

Speaking of the Divorce Evil

Trying to succeed in business without advertising is like the case of the man who, trying to cut expenses, divorced his wife and alone attempted to keep house and raise his children. It cost him more money for doctor bills and funeral expenses in a year than he gave his wife in a lifetime.

When advertising is divorced, business success becomes failure.

This paper is building your neighbor's business. He has reasons. He tried advertising and it helped him. It is not an experiment—this paper brings results. Good, hard, convincing results—dollars.

ANAHEIM, CALIFORNIA

What a Former Resident of This Community Says of That City and Surrounding Country

William Stark, former Kewaskum citizen and known to a great many people in this vicinity is here for a visit from his present home in Anaheim Cal., a town says Mr. Stark, in which centers all that is best and most delightful in the land of flowers and fruit, sunshine and prosperity and great opportunities, which are at present calling people from every nook and corner of the United States.

"Anaheim is without question the liveliest and best town in Southern California this year," said Mr. Stark to a Statesman reporter who asked him recently for an outline of his country for the benefit of the Statesman readers. "And when I say that," he continued, "I am saying a great deal, for Southern California is a very lively, active, progressive country. Anaheim is a German colony, as you will gather from its name. It was the first white colony to settle on the Pacific coast, and it built the first irrigation system used in the United States. Its people chose wisely—they had a vast country to choose from—and today they have the richest lands, the best water supplies, for both domestic and irrigating purposes, anywhere in California. Also their lands are the best producing in Southern California and bring many hundreds of thousands of dollars annually in crop returns. For English walnut growing there are no lands in the world as successful. We grow as fine oranges as are produced. All kinds of fruits and every kind of vegetable is raised. In country to the south and west of us, which trades with Anaheim all the celery used in the United States in the month of January and February is grown. They ship from 2100 to 2700 cars of celery from there every year. Also they raise three crops on this same ground annually, celery, cabbage, beans or hops, and sometimes they get a hay crop on top of that.

"Concerning Anaheim I will say that it is a beautiful place as well as a rich, producing locality. Germanium and rose hedges frequently make the fences about residence properties. The city has more than forty-five miles of street paving and concrete sidewalks. It has churches, grammar schools and a high school. They are now building a new High School which will also conduct an agricultural school and will be one of the finest and broadest institutions in the state. Also they are building a $50,000 sewer system. A big beet sugar factory is being erected and will start operations the middle of July. It is costing $350,000. In Orange county, in which Anaheim is, are four sugar factories, three of them directly tributary to Anaheim and consequently making it a big sugar trade center. All the factories are making much profit. Both the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe railroads pass through Anaheim, operating ten trains each way daily and putting you in Los Angeles in 45 minutes. The Pacific Electric street railway system is about to build two lines out from Anaheim which will give it close connection with a great deal of rich, thickly settled fruit and farming country and with the great Olinda oil field, eight miles distant and having a pay roll of $250,000 a month.

"The city has a large fruit packing houses, a gas works, municipal light, power and water plant, flour and grist mills, and a big brewery which turns out the best beer made in California. I will say here that Anaheim is an open liberal town, allowing all her citizens to eat drink and wear what they think best for themselves. And it is the orderliest, happiest, busiest town in all the state. The police have nothing to do; we all attend to our own business and go our own way in peace and prosperity.

Vegetable shipments from Anaheim and vicinity were about 2500 cars of celery, 75 cars of fancy tomatoes, shipped to Eastern markets 400 cars of potatoes, 25 cars of apricots, 200 cars of walnuts, 15 cars of Hubbard squash and 300 cars of fancy oranges. The California Vegetable Union ship the produce for the growers and pay them big money. P. O. B. Anaheim.

Another Terrible Case of Gravel Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Charles Understein, 50 W. 44th St., Chicago, Ill., says: "Kidney trouble ran me down from 196 to 136 pounds and I was a shadow of my former self. Oh! how I suffered. I became so bad the doctors said my left side was paralyzed. I could not walk without assistance. I grew worse and went to a hospital, but was not helped. My friends all thought I would die. Three weeks after I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills I passed a gravel stone as big as a pea. At intervals the stones kept passing from me. I passed eleven in one day. Doan's Kidney Pills finally cured me. My health returned and I have had no kidney trouble since."

Remember the name—Doan's. For sale by druggists and general storekeepers everywhere. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

UNDERTAKING FOR MISSIONARY.

"There are a good many thankless jobs." "Such as trying to make vegetarians of the cannibals."

BABY'S HAIR ALL CAME OUT

"When my first baby was six months old he broke out on his head with little bumps. They would dry up and leave a scale. Then it would break out again and it spread all over his head. All the hair came out and his head was scaly all over. Then his face broke out all over in red bumps and it kept spreading until it was on his hands and arms. I bought several boxes of ointment, gave him blood medicine, and had two doctors to treat him, but he got worse all the time. He had it about six months when a friend told me about Cuticura. I sent and got a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. In three days after using them he began to improve. He began to take long naps and to stop scratching his head. After taking two bottles of Resolvent, two boxes of Ointment and three cakes of Soap he was sound and well, and never had any breaking out of any kind. His hair came out in little curls all over his head. I don't think anything else would have cured him except Cuticura. "I have bought Cuticura Ointment and Soap several times since to use for cuts and sores and have never known them to fail to cure what I put them on. I think Cuticura is a great remedy and would advise any one to use it. Cuticura Soap is the best that I have ever used for toilet purposes." (Signed) Mrs. F. E. Harmon, R. F. D. 2, Atoka, Tenn., Sept. 10, 1910.

Worrying Happiness.

The bishop of Manchester, speaking at a meeting at Church house, Westminster, said the secret of happiness was to have a sufficient multitude of worries. The man who had only one worry, a blind that would not be pulled up straight by the servant, or a coal scuttle the bottom of which was always coming out, found his way to the lunatic asylum, but the man who had no time to dwell upon his worries because he had to go from one to another, and back again and round and round like a squirrel in a cage, could be a perfectly happy man.

CONGRESSMEN PUT IN STRANGE LANDS

APPORTIONMENT BILL PASSED BY LEGISLATURE SHUFFLES UP EVERY DISTRICT.

PRACTICALLY ENDS SESSION

Remaining Work of Solons Will consist of Action on Bills Passed and in Governor's Hands—Fourteen of Senatorial Districts Left Intact.

Madison.—After a fight that reached such seriousness at times that there were indications of a prolonged deadlock, the senate finally decided to concur completely in the reapportionment bill as it came from the assembly.

In the senatorial apportionment fourteen of the present districts are left intact.

In the congressional apportionment every congressman will need an introduction to his new district. There is not one that has not been made over, and, from the view of the present congressional delegation, for the worse.

With the adoption of a perfunctory adjournment resolution, the senate and assembly with but a scattering of members present, practically brought the session to a close. A few members will remain over with the speaker of the assembly and the president of the senate to receive bills from the governor and close up all business formally as soon as the last bill has gone through the governor's hands.

The apportionment of congressional districts as finally agreed to by both houses is as follows:

- 1—Racine, Kenosha, Walworth, Rock and Waukesha. 2—Jefferson, Columbia, Dodge, Washington, Ozaukee and Sheboygan. 3—Richland, Grant, Iowa, Dane, Lafayette and Green. 4—The Third, Fourth, Fifth, Eighth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Fourteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth wards of the city of Milwaukee together with the following subdivisions of Milwaukee county: Town of Wauwatosa, city of Wauwatosa, town of Greendale, town of Franklin, city of West Allis, village of West Milwaukee, city of South Milwaukee, town of Oak Creek, town of Lake, city of Cudahy. 5—The First, Second, Sixth, Seventh, Ninth, Tenth, Thirteenth, Fifteenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second and Twenty-fifth wards of the city of Milwaukee together with the following subdivisions of Milwaukee county: Village of North Milwaukee, village of East Milwaukee, village of Whitefish Bay, town of Granville and town of Milwaukee. 6—Green Lake, Fond du Lac, Winnebago, Calumet, Manitowish. 7—La Crosse, Jackson, Monroe, Clark, Vernon, Juneau, Adams and Sauk. 8—Marathon, Portage, Waupaca, Wood and Shawano, Waushara. 9—Langlade, Forest, Florence, Marinette, Oconto, Outagamie, Brown, Kewaunee and Door. 10—Dunn, Barron, Chippewa, Eau Claire, Trempealeau, Buffalo, Pepin, Pierce and St. Croix. 11—Douglas, Bayfield, Ashland, Iron, Vilas, Burnett, Polk, Washburn and Rusk. Fifth—Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixteenth wards of the city of Milwaukee, the town of Wauwatosa and city of Wauwatosa. Sixth—The Second, Sixth, Seventh, Ninth and Tenth wards of the city of Milwaukee. Seventh—The Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth and Twenty-fourth wards of the city of Milwaukee, the village of West Milwaukee, the city of West Allis, the city of South Milwaukee, the town of Greendale, the town of Franklin and the town of Oak Creek. HERMIT'S DEATH A MYSTERY

John L. Sexton Found Murdered in His Rude Cabin Near Elkhart, Sheboygan County.

Sheboygan.—Mystery surrounds the death of John L. Sexton, "the hermit of Elkhart Lake," who was found murdered in his log cabin, three miles from this city.

Robbery did not prompt the deed, for scattered about the table were many gold coins, probably part of the hermit's hidden hoard, for he was reputed to be wealthy. Only an old fashioned silver watch was missing. This may serve to bring the murderer to justice.

Although he was known to every resident in Sheboygan county and to hundreds who visited the summer resorts at Elkhart lake every summer, little was known about the hermit's life.

He was over 87 years old, and for nearly forty years he lived in his rude log cabin. His venerable appearance and eccentricities brought hundreds of visitors to his door, with whom he would talk on all varieties of subjects except the reason for his retirement from the world.

His cabin was scantily furnished, but piled tier upon tier were thousands of newspapers which he had collected for years. Some issues bore dates of fifty years ago.

Old residents remember that before his sudden desire to shun human companionship he had a promising future. He was the first school teacher in Sheboygan county, and also served as justice of the peace and postmaster.

Sexton's body was discovered by John Flach, a neighbor. The old man was lying in a chair, his head lying on a table nearby. His skull was almost crushed to a pulp, his throat cut from ear to ear, and a deep gash in his right hand showed that he had grasped the murderer's weapon in an attempt to save his life. After committing the crime the murderer locked the door of the cabin.

WEST SALEM SWEEP BY $300,000 BLAZE

GREATER PORTION OF BUSINESS DISTRICT OF VILLAGE WIPED OUT BY FLAMES.

FIRECRACKERS ARE BLAMED

Boys Holding Premature Celebration Said to Have Started Fire in a Lumber Yard—LaCrosse Fire Department Gives Aid.

West Salem.—Fire, believed to have been started by boys playing with firecrackers, wiped out the greater part of the business district of this town, causing a loss estimated at $300,000.

The residence section of the village was saved only through the efforts of the La Crosse fire department, which was called into service and came down on a special train when the local department proved inadequate to the demands upon it.

The blaze broke out in the lumber yards of the Saunders & Cullman Co., and quickly spread to the lumber yard of F. I. Bailes, adjoining. Both of these yards are at the edge of the business district and to it the flames were quickly communicated.

So rapidly did the flames spread that the main stores, hotels, livery stable, and both telephone companies were soon burned out. The depots of the Milwaukee and North-Western railways were saved after a hard fight.

The business places destroyed were: Sanders & Cullman, lumber. West Salem Opera house. F. I. Bolles, lumber yards. John Rhodes, livery stable. Taylor hotel. Hotel Salem. Drechter & Miller, hardware. Fox's automobile garage. Mrs. Mary Potter, millinery. Machinery block, vacant. G. A. Redin, blacksmith shop. I. C. Herriage, harness shop. Wisconsin Telephone company's building. William Horseman, saloon. William Ristow, saloon. Frank Fox, saloon. Maurice Roberts, saloon. Albert Larson, saloon. Grant McClintock, restaurant. John Lundt, shoemaker shop. B. B. Mercereau, furniture. Hancock & McCann, barber shop. L. Goodingson, grocery. La Crosse County bank. J. H. Gilfallen, pump dealer. Nonpareil Journal, newspaper office. Herman Kuehn, meat market. Cook & Pfaff, livery barn. Charles K. Nutson, sales stable. A dozen barns and two residences also burned. All that remains of the business district is the two depots, the Hotel May, the Bank of West Salem, the Masonic building and the Farmers' store. The Presbyterian church twice was ablaze, but was saved.

VETERAN SOLONS TO RETIRE

State Senators Owen and Whitehead Not to Seek Re-election When Present Terms Expire.

Madison.—Senator John M. Whitehead, of Janesville, member of the state senate for sixteen years, has announced his determination not to run again for the senate. The announcement was made informally and was given incidentally in his presentation speech in handing the senate's gift of a gold headed cane to President pro tem Martin. "I do not expect, Mr. President," he said, "to be associated with you in this body after this session, and this is my last opportunity to do you good."

Little significance was attached to the remark at the time, but in private conversation Senator Whitehead said that it was his intention not to run again. His term expires with the convening of the next legislature. It is also understood that Senator Owen will not seek re-election.

WHERE THEY DRAW THE LINE

Naturally Men Disapprove of Extravagance When Their Own Purse is Concerned.

Mrs. William B. Leeds, who took Mrs. George Keppel's house in London for the coronation season, came from New York with 40 huge trunks, all the same size, all mounted with shining brass, all claret-colored, and all as lustrous as the body of a motor car.

Mrs. Leeds, as her 40 trunks imply, dresses very beautifully. She spends a large amount on her wardrobe, and discussing the fact that woman's dress is so much more expensive and so much less durable than man's, she once said:

"We women dress foolishly, and we will continue to do so till men disapprove; but"—she smiled on the men at the table—"no man in the world ever disapproved of dress extravagance in a woman unless she happened to be his wife."—Detroit Free Press.

Ben's Logic.

"Ben," said his friend, waking up from a reverie in which he had been gazing abstractedly at the shiny expanse of Ben's skatin'-rink-for-flies, "is there nothing you could do for your baldness?"

Ben, by the way, is only forty. "No, lad!" he replied with decision. "Fifteen years ago I was courting strong, and I tried lots o' things. But about that time t' prince of Wales—Edward, you know—came to open t' new hospital, and I said to myself as soon as I saw him liftin' his hat to t' crowd, 'Ben, my lad, tha can give it up as a bad job, and save thy brass. If there was owt 'at 'ud cure his—a bald head they'd ha' cured his.'—Tit-Bits.

HEART RIGHT.

When He Quit Coffee.

Life Insurance Companies will not insure a man suffering from heart trouble. The reason is obvious. This is a serious matter to the husband or father who is solicitous for the future of his dear ones. Often the heart trouble is caused by an unexpected thing and can be corrected if taken in time and properly treated. A man in Colorado writes:

"I was a great coffee drinker for many years, and was not aware of the injurious effects of the habit till I became a practical invalid, suffering from heart trouble, indigestion and nervousness to an extent that made me wretchedly miserable myself and a nuisance to those who witnessed my sufferings.

"I continued to drink coffee, however, not suspecting that it was the cause of my ill-health, till on applying for life insurance I was rejected on account of the trouble with my heart. Then I became alarmed. I found that leaving off coffee helped me quickly, so I quit it altogether and having been attracted by the advertisements of Postum I began its use.

"The change in my condition was remarkable. All my ailments vanished. My digestion was completely restored, my nervousness disappeared, and, most important of all, my heart steadied down and became normal, and on a second examination I was accepted by the Life Insurance Co. Quitting coffee and using Postum worked the change." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Piece of Humor That Lifted Diffident Professor to the Highest Summits of Joy.

It is told that after Professor Aytoun had made proposals of marriage to Miss Emily Jane Wilson, daughter of Christopher North, he was, as a matter of course, referred to her father. As the professor was uncommonly diffident, he said to her: "Emily, my dear, you must speak to him for me. I could not summon courage to speak to the professor on this subject."

"Papa is in the library," said the lady.

"Then you had better go to him," said the professor, "and I will wait here."

There being apparently no help for it, the lady proceeded to the library. "Papa's answer is pinned to the back of my dress," said Miss Wilson, as she re-entered the room.

Turning around, the delighted suitor read these words:

"With the author's compliments."—Success.

A New Sensation.

Little Jean had visited one of the large summer amusement parks for the first time, and with the courage possessed only by those girls whose playmates are boys and girls older than themselves, she had not hesitated, when invited, to take a ride on one of the "thrillers" that abound in such places.

"To her mother, on her return from the park, she confided the emotions she had experienced as she swept round the curves of the "figure eight" with her elder brothers.

"Mamma," she said, "when I went round those awful turns so fast I felt just as if I had freckles on my stomach!"—Youth's Companion.

POMERENE UNDER HEAVY HANDICAP

Move Against Trust Magnates Not Part of Harmon Boom.

ST. ELIZABETH'S IS ATTACKED

Charge Against Management of Government Hospital for the Insane—Representative Barnhart's Bill to Reform Press Would Affect Many Congressmen.

By WILLIS J. ABBOT.

Washington.—Among politicians Senator Pomerene of Ohio is accredited the representative at the capitol of Governor Harmon. Accordingly when he announced his purpose of addressing the senate in criticism of the delay of the department of justice in proceeding criminally against trust magnates, men wagged their heads and said, "Aha! Going to put the Harmon doctrine 'Guilt is personal' into the Record. Perhaps this is the beginning of a long delayed Harmon boom."

This is the sort of handicap under which the unfortunate Pomerene must labor for the next year—or at least until the Democratic national convention has met and selected the party standard bearer. But as a matter of fact his utterances bore only on the Harmon candidacy when Senator Kenyon of Iowa dragged in this issue.

The Pomerene speech was a plain, straight-forward plea that the criminal law should be invoked against trust managers. It had no more to do with Harmon than a speech on the direct election of United States senators has to do with Governor Wilson. It is, however, satisfactory for admirers of these gentlemen to note that a speech favoring almost any progressive issue is instantly set down by Republicans in the senate as an insidious effort to "boom" some Democratic candidate for the presidency.

Charges Against St. Elizabeth's.

Across the narrow and somewhat marshy Anacostia creek which borders one side of Washington and supplies the capital with most of its malaria and mosquitoes, is situated the Government Hospital for the Insane, known generally as St. Elizabeth's, or more profanely among soldiers who stand in dread of it, as "St. Lizzie's." It is a mammoth among institutions of its sort, having some 3,000 inmates and almost half as many employees. To it are committed all persons convicted of insanity in the District of Columbia, or by federal courts anywhere, all indigent insane persons enrolled in the army or navy, whether commissioned officers or privates, and all inmates of soldiers homes certified as insane by the commanders thereof. The criminal insane—that is to say, persons accused of crime in federal courts but acquitted on the ground of insanity, form a large share of its inmates.

Ugly rumors about the management of the asylum have been current for years and repeated efforts to secure a congressional investigation have failed. The doctor in charge and the eminently respectable board of visitors chosen from the citizens of the District of Columbia have fought every suggestion of an investigation as though afraid of what might be discovered were the lid raised.

Representative Frank Clark, of Florida, who made unsuccessfully the latest plea for an investigation, made these among other charges:

That the asylum is extravagantly run, costing at least $300 per year per inmate, a vastly higher cost than in any other institution of the sort.

That the auditing and accounting systems are clumsy and result in giving absolute control of all expenditures to the doctor in charge.

That five-sixths of the pension money of old soldier inmates is confiscated for the general fund of the institution in violation of law.

That the criminal insane are herded with the mildly mentally unbalanced, which is the case in no decently regulated institution of the sort.

That the food and clothing are bad and insufficient.

Old soldiers from every soldier's home in the country are inmates of this institution; soldiers and sailors, commissioned officers of high grades of both army and navy are there. It is essentially a national institution, under direct control of the department of the interior. But in the face of a showing that have compelled any legislature to investigate a state asylum, congress is willing to let these charges go uninvestigated, these evils uncorrected.

Editor Barnhart in Congress.

The first thing Representative Henry A. Barnhart knows he will be in bad with his own profession. The persistency with which Brother Barnhart gets elected to congress on the Democratic ticket in a Republican district might create the impression that politics is his profession. But not so. He is a journalist and proud of it. His professional activities have climbed the ascending scale from reporter in Chicago to proprietor of a journal of civilization in Rochester, Ind. Perhaps Rochester is not precisely the spot in which one would expect the beacon light of progress to blaze most brightly, but Editor Barnhart has kept its gleam shining brightly and has reaped his due reward. First his admiring readers caused his appointment as director of the northern prison at Michigan City, and shortly thereafter he was made a trustee of the Hospital for the Insane at Longcliff.

Just now Mr. Barnhart is going to reform the press. He is the author of house bill 11658 which is intended to compel the publication in every newspaper of the name of its managing editor, publisher and owner or owners. To avoid scandal on the one hand and personal violence on the other, the dramatic editor and the baseball editor are allowed to lurk in dark anonymity. The plan is not wholly new. Mr. Bryan has been urging it for some years. Yet it awakens interest in a congress filled with newspaper owners—even those who testify like Senator Smoot that they own newspapers, but neither read nor write for them.

The Barnhart plan will probably languish and die. Yet it has stimulated the zest for reform. One representative wants to add to the Barnhart bill a provision that every lawyer in congress shall file a truthful list of his clients. There seems to be a certain justice in this suggestion. Newspaper editorials seem often to be biased. If we knew who the owners of the paper were we might understand the reason. Senatorial speeches not infrequently suggest a retainer. Could we but turn to a list of Senator Blank's clients we might discern the mainspring of his oratory. But Barnhart will have none of this amendment. He fears that congress would adjudge him fit for the home at Longcliff.

Champ Clark's Dual Role.

Just at present Champ Clark is filling an historic role. Speaker of the house of representatives as was Henry Clay in 1822, he, like Clay, is an avowed candidate for the presidency. Fuller, the historian of the speakership, writes of Clay's political ambitions: "From that time on there were two Henry Clays, Clay the statesman and Clay the candidate for the presidency. These two roles ever met, often in conflict, and each at length fatal to the other."

Just now the friends of Champ Clark are less concerned about any possible check to his ambition arising from his position as speaker, than they are about the effect upon his political fortunes of the candidacy of Joseph W. Folk of Missouri.

Folk may be described as the first of the secondary candidates for the presidency. He is first in that class, not because he is abler or enjoys a more extended national fame than the three Democratic governors, Foss, Dix and Marshall, the mayor of the most typical of American cities, Carter H. Harrison, or the brilliant and growing chairman of the ways and means committee, Oscar L. Underwood. All of these must be reckoned with in the next Democratic national convention.

Folk Endorsed by State.

But Folk's position is unique in that he has already the endorsement of his Democratic state convention—an endorsement given apparently ungrudgingly and joined in by all factions. True, there are reports that it was done to keep him out of the senatorial fight. That may be. But in any event he holds the endorsement, and Senator Reed, in whose election he aided materially, and even Senator Stone of "gum shoe" fame, who likes him not, insist that the party's word is pledged and that to violate it would be political perjury. It is easy to see what the effect of this situation is upon Champ Clark's candidacy. Before the people Clark is inestimably the greater figure. Clark's claims are based on what he is doing today; Folk's on what he did as a reform governor years ago.

But Folk has the endorsement. If the Clark people take it away and nominate the speaker, Missouri might be lost in the ensuing election. It is a close state at best—Republican in the last two presidential elections—and a revolt of the Folk faction might keep it in the Republican column. Hence a serious obstacle to the Champ Clark progress and the need for recognizing Folk as a possible figure in the national convention.

Dix and Foss Seldom Mentioned.

Indeed as matters now stand the "Big Three," Clark, Harmon and Wilson, will not have matters all their own way in the nominating body. Under ordinary circumstances a Democratic governor of New York should bulk large in such a gathering, but Governor Dix has failed to impress himself on the nation. Just why would be hard to tell, but it is a fact that one may sit with a group of eager national politicians here at the capitol and hear presidential possibilities discussed by the hour without the name of Dix being mentioned.

His neighbor, Governor Foss, is in no better standing. During his brief stay in congress Foss won some respect for his strong and logical views on the tariff, but failed to impress himself on his colleagues. He was here but a few months and save for one tariff speech, had little opportunity to attract attention. It is conceded that these two governors, with Marshall of Indiana, will have the first votes of their delegations, but a vigorous fight for the nomination of any one of them is not expected. Of the three Marshall is the strongest. His state is pivotal, every Indian is a politician, and the delegation in congress from Indiana is second to none in political acumen and is talking hard for Marshall.

Harrison Worth Watching.

Carter H. Harrison is the head of the second city of the United States. His present term is his fifth and never has he offered himself except to win acceptance. The electorate of few states exceed in number that of the city over which he rules. Never figuring much in national affairs, he would yet bring to a presidential contest an encyclopedic knowledge of political methods, a wide acquaintance, youth, courage, and an ingrained habit of winning. He will of course have the Illinois delegation, and will be a figure worth watching in the convention.

Oscar Underwood is, or was, a Harmon man. His state of Alabama has been looked upon as a sure territory for the Ohio governor. But it would be only natural that the remarkable record made by the Democratic leader on the floor of the house should awaken a sentiment in his state for a favorite son of her own. A Kentuckian by birth, Underwood could certainly carry that state, which of late has given the Democracy much concern. For the rest he is admired by his adversaries, and idolized by his supporters in the house. Men like Payne and Mann declare him to be the most resourceful antagonist they have found on the Democratic side. A skillful parliamentarian, a good speaker, holding himself always in perfect control, he is a model leader, and his following is daily increasing.

Clearly, then, the Democratic presidential possibilities are not summed up in three names. The field is large and the winner not easy to pick.

Lorimer Sticks for His Friends.

Once again the case of the Hon. "Billy" Lorimer holds the center of the congressional stage. It is a senatorial case, of course. With it the house has nothing to do beyond looking on and making sardonic comments. It seems rather a pity that the house, which has put through with exemplary industry and dispatch every piece of business which has come before it, could not have been entrusted with the handling of Lorimer. Of course it has nothing to do with the matter. When Lorimer, after an utterly inconspicuous service in the house, was transferred to the senate, the house washed its hands of him and rejoiced in its new cleanliness.

Lorimer, and his claims upon his senatorial seat, forced the present extra session upon the country. There is every reason to believe that the persistency with which he clings to that seat may prolong the session beyond reason. The senatorial committee appointed to inquire into the circumstances of his election has just begun its work and there is no reason to anticipate a finding before next December.

Meanwhile Lorimer has a vote, and uses it—uses it in a way to justify the belief that he is arrogantly indifferent to public sentiment, and wholly servile to the interests that elected him and retain him in power.

Republican Split Sensational.

It will be a long time, as time runs in politics, before congress stops talking about the split in the Republican party emphasized June 21 by the acrimonious debate in the senate. The occasion was the adoption of Senator Gore's resolution directing the finance committee to report the wool schedule and the "farmers' free list" bill not later than July 10.

Dignified committees of the senate are not accustomed to dictation of that sort. The senate itself, lulled into security by long years of uninterrupted Republican, or rather stand-pat, control, could hardly believe that this dictation should have been forced by a Democratic senator—and a peculiarly progressive, not to say radical senator at that. But as one after the other the progressive Republicans voted with the Democrats, discarding for the first time this session any semblance of party fealty, the stand-patters first gazed aghast, then broke out into tirades of abuse.

The progressives are elated by the accession to their ranks of Senator Jones of Washington. Though rated as a progressive, Jones never clearly showed his hand until June 21, when he stood squarely with his colleague, Poindexter—nay, went even further, declaring that he would fight for a complete revision of the tariff before final adjournment.

And that is precisely the thing which now portends. There is extreme likelihood that the whole tariff issue will be opened and that congress will adjourn barely in time to reassemble for the regular session in December. It is clear enough that with the reciprocity bill, the free list and the wool schedule before it, the senate has long weeks, perhaps months of debate before it.

But Oscar Underwood has served notice that he does not intend to keep the house loafing while the senate talks. Unless there is swift action upon the measures now before the upper chamber the cotton schedule will be sent over to that end of the capitol by the house, and if delay on that is prolonged, steel and iron will follow it. There bids fair to be enough tariff work proffered to the senate to satisfy even the ambitious Senator Jones. If it is enacted the house can point to a Democratic program enacted into law; if set aside without action, the cry already heard in all parts of the nation, "Abolish the senate," will get new force.

Aside from tariff measures the senate has before it the bill for congressional reapportionment based on the eleventh census. Important as this measure is, it has slumbered in committee almost two months. Why? Well, what it would effect in Massachusetts alone may suggest why. The Democratic majority in that state is 10,000, but under the present plan of congressional districts ten out of the fourteen congressmen are Republican. A new apportionment will mean redistricting and Democratic congressional gains. The same situation exists in other states. Hence senatorial reluctance to act on the reapportionment bill.

Why Uncle Reuben Could Not Meet Debt He Acknowledged as an Obligation.

Uncle Reuben, the village white-washer and man of all work, was a frequent borrower of small sums from his neighbor, Colonel Arkwright, and as a rule he repaid these little debts at the appointed time; but on one occasion, when he had been accommodated with a loan of two dollars and a half, which he promised to return in a few days, he allowed two or three weeks to pass without making any mention of his indebtedness, and in fact, seemed to avoid his creditor. But one morning the colonel unexpectedly encountered him at the postoffice.

"Hello, Uncle Rube! Didn't you borrow a little money from me several weeks ago?"

"Dat's right, cunnel," said the old man. "I sholy did."

"You told me you'd pay it back in three or four days. Have you had bad luck?"

"No, suh," responded Uncle Reuben. "I'll tell you how it was, cunnel. I lacked jes' two dollahs an' a half o' havin' ten dollahs to put in de savin' bank, an' I used it fo' dat. Hit's all right, cunnel. I won't fo'git it."—Youth's Companion.

THESE HOT DAYS DRINK ICED

Bonano

Make it this way:

One teaspoon BONANO to each cup water—boil two minutes. Let cool off, serve with cracked ice, cream if you like and sweeten to taste.

BONANO to be served iced requires a little longer boil than when served hot, as by adding ice the strength is reduced.

Many people like iced BONANO with a little lemon juice added.
