PROCEEDS TO BE DIVIDED

Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association Makes Liberal Proposition to Local Organizations

Fifty per cent of the proceeds of this year's Christmas seal sale in each city or town that has a local anti-tuberculosis association will go to that organization for its own local fight. This was the effect of a resolution adopted by the state organization at the annual meeting in Milwaukee with a view to stimulating the sale of seals as well as encouraging the formation of local units. The conditions of the offer required that each association must submit, for the state organization's approval, a statement of what it proposes to do with its percentage of the seal sale. Plans providing that the money be used to institute a visiting nurse fund, to furnish an open air school, public drinking fountains or other efficient safeguard against tuberculosis will in all cases be approved.

In order to insure equal fairness to all, it is provided that no association will receive a percentage of its sales unless organized before December 1. The details of its organization, with the names of its officers must be reported to the state association before that date. All applications for local campaign management by local organizations of this kind will be considered by the executive committee, composed of Prof. M. P. Ravenel, Madison; Prof. L. E. Rber, Madison; Dr. J. W. Coon, Wales; Dr. C. A. Baer, Milwaukee; and Mr. John Kopmeier, Milwaukee.

An Unusual Offer.

The Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin is making an unusual offer of a 1,200 page Webster's New Standard Dictionary, printed on fine Bible paper and bound in full limp leather, for the remarkably low price of $1.20 delivered anywhere in the State. It is a plan to demonstrate the "pulling power" of its advertising columns. Over 4,000 copies of this remarkable book offer have been disposed of in the past two weeks. The offer is open to anyone, whether a reader of The Wisconsin or not, by simply cutting out a Dictionary Coupon, which is printed each day in The Wisconsin. The Dictionary has the strongest kind of endorsement from Supt. Pease, President of the National Educational Association and from principals of Schools Judges, Business Men, etc. The pupils of one Milwaukee school purchased two hundred of these Dictionaries. It is a clever plan on the part of The Evening Wisconsin and is demonstrating the advertising value of the paper in a way that cannot be disputed.

BOILER BURSTS AT GREEN HOUSE

Haentze Florist Company Sustains Loss of $2,000 in Explosion Last Night

VALVE WAS NOT OPENED

Fearing That Entire Crop of Roses and Carnations May Be Ruined

(Fond du Lac Reporter)

As the result of a boiler explosion at the green houses of Haentze Florist company, 414 Linden street, about 9 o'clock Friday night a loss of $2,000 was entailed, the boiler room was wrecked several green houses badly damaged, and the entire neighborhood shaken by the force of the blast. Failure to open a circulating valve is said to have been the cause of the explosion.

Richard Haentze, who was on duty Friday night, had visited the boiler room connected with the south row of hot houses shortly before 9 o'clock and after adding fuel to the fires had gone to the home of the neighbor. A few minutes later the boiler exploded with a tremendous report and the commotion was so great that it was felt for several blocks in the vicinity.

FIRE FOLLOWED EXPLOSION.

Robert Haentze, former president of the common council and a member of the Florist company, was the first to arrive on the scene and he immediately summoned the No. 1 fire company, which extinguished the flames that followed the explosion. An immediate investigation showed that the boiler had been blown to pieces that the boiler room was wrecked and the fronts of several of the green houses badly damaged. The investigation also showed, it is said, that the circulating valve of the boiler which exploded, had not been opened and this is thought to have caused the explosion.

BUILDING WAS WRECKED.

The boiler was located in the basement, but the force of the explosion was so great that the roof and sides of the building were blown out. A six inch pipe from the boiler was hurled against the side of the chimney but as though it had been nothing more than very thin wire.

This morning a force of workmen were engaged in cleaning away the debris and preparing to place an auxiliary boiler into service as the one which exploded had furnished the heat for the hot houses containing the roses and carnations and it is feared that the entire crop may be ruined.

MOVED TO EAST TROY, WIS.

H. E. Henry and Family Left Last Tuesday for East Troy, Wis., Where They Will Make Their Future Home.

Last Tuesday H. E. Henry moved his household goods to East Troy, Wis., where he and his family will make their future home. The goods were taken to their destination with three auto trucks from Milwaukee. As East Troy is off the railroad, this was the best way to transfer same. The distance traveled was about 75 miles.

The reason for the Henry family leaving this village is because Mr. Henry has become interested in a bank at the aforesaid place and is now holding the position as Cashier of the East Troy State Bank.

Mr. Henry has held the position as Cashier of the Citizens State Bank here ever since its organization, which he has fulfilled in a most befitting way. While a resident of this village, he has proven himself to be a trust worthy citizen as he always was in favor of every progressive movement. His disposition was such that everyone was his friend.

Just a few words about Mrs. Henry. She was one of Kewaskum's leading society ladies. Her charming and pleasing manner, always won a warm spot and a friend with everyone she had the honor of making her acquaintances.

We hope that the Henry family will enjoy their new home and wish them an abundance of success. East Troy without a doubt will always speak well of the Henry family.

WHO IS DOING THE WORK?

Store of Fred Luedtke Entered Twice Within a Week.

Twice within a week some miscreant residing within this neighborhood has broken into the store of Fred Luedtke of this village and carried goods away. Last week Monday Mr. Luedtke was called home, owing to business matters and during the night someone forced an entrance into the building by prying open the rear door. The miscreants carried away a pair of chocolates and a pair of gloves. Mr. Luedtke then bolted the door thinking that he was safe. On Sunday he went home again to spend the day with his family, and some miscreant again forced his way in by another door in the rear of the building. This time he helped himself with some cigars and other minor articles. That it is the work of local people is evident, for they happen to know when Mr. Luedtke is absent from the village. We would warn these parties to desist or they might happen to force their way in when Mr. Luedtke is absent and meet a person different than Mr. Luedtke.—Lomina Review.

Perpetrators of Halloween Pranks Busy.

Last Tuesday evening being Halloween the youngsters were busy in this village doing all sorts of tricks but we must say that this year they have gone the limit, as some crowd marked up nearly every window in the town with soap they also went so far as to pour ink on the windows. We believe in doing some sort of tricks, but when it goes too far it is enough. If the guilty ones could be found a little punishment would perhaps teach them a lesson.

Klim Bims Beware.

The L. R.'s of this village recognized the notice published in the last issue of the West Bend News. In answer to this notice they give out a warning as they are very anxious to arrange a series of games with you this season. They are looking for revenge of last year's defeat. All members of the team are practicing and expect to make the pins drop in all ways before the season actually opens up. Just a few words covers all. Klim Bims Beware.

HERE, THERE AND EVERYWHERE

The past week I strolled and strolled to find some one of this village idle, but was unable to find such the case as every one in Kewaskum seems to be the busiest person in the country. On Monday even if it is called "Blue Monday" I found our livery man and a crew of men busily engaged in moving the big safe and vault of the Bank of Kewaskum from the depot into the bank building. This work of course is very heavy work but our livery man is a man that is well acquainted with such classes of work so therefore under his management it was an easy task.

I next happened to go into the postoffice and overheard a conversation of our assistant postmaster and Fred, the barber. The conversation was about their auto trip of the day before with Alvin Backus' auto. They told about what a noise they heard when one of the tires bursted near Fillmore. I believe that their first thought was of home sweet home, as they were compelled to wait along the roadside for quite a while before Chaf-fur Backus with Dr. Syl. Driesse's assistance had a new tire placed on the wheel. From further reports I understand it took some of the wind away from these two lads, when it came to pumping up the tire.

I also wish to remark that if some one's name appears in one of my articles, I hope such party will not be offended, as nothing will ever be published, which is not fit for publication. I have not started the publication of these articles to offend anyone. If I knew I would be doing so, I would wipe out any delay abandon this series. If you have any kick coming please go to the main headquarters and do your kicking to the main editor and do not tell your friends about it.

"YOURS TRULY"

At the Davidson Theatre.

Walker Whiteside, the brilliant young actor whose success in "The Melting Pot" was one of the sensations of recent theatrical history, comes to the Davidson Theatre, Milwaukee, Sunday night for a week's engagement in his new play, "The Magic Melody", which is said to be the best vehicle in which he has ever appeared. The engagement will include the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

It is a source of gratification to playgoers who regard the drama seriously that stage offerings of a wholesome nature and real purpose are again winning vogue. The public has reached a point where it desires the play of clean reality, the play that sounds the human note, and which, without harrowing up the emotions, reaches the heart of the auditor.

Such a play, it is declared, is "The Magic Melody." It is described as a play of poetic fragrance of tender sentiment and deep emotion. It presents a romantic hero, Helmar. He comes from Berlin to New York. He has musical genius and plays the violin. But the jingling of the Golden eagle has deafened the people. They cannot hear the sound of his four strings. In the studio he meets the ward of a rich American, and despite many obstacles and hard struggles, he finally finds the way to happiness and fortune.

Mr. Whiteside's company is of exceptional strength. It includes Miss Florence Fisher, Miss Maude Shaw, Miss Anna Field, Mr. Herbert Sears, Mr. Ernest Cossart, Mr. Richard Sherman and Mr. Frederick Wallace.

BOLTONVILLE.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Marbus have moved into the Balthazard house which they have rented.

J. Grimes is quite seriously ill with asthma since Wednesday. We hope he may soon improve in health.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Johnson of Campbellsport a baby daughter last Saturday. Congratulations.

Mr. Fellenz has purchased the cheese factory in this village and will begin operating same about January.

Little Alice Ryan entertained a number of little friends at tea last Wednesday afternoon the occasion being her sixth birthday anniversary.

Fearful That Entire Crop of Roses and Carnations May Be Ruined

(Found du Lac Reporter)

As the result of a boiler explosion at the green houses of Haentze Florist company, 414 Linden street, about 9 o'clock Friday night a loss of $2,000 was entailed, the boiler room was wrecked several green houses badly damaged, and the entire neighborhood shaken by the force of the blast. Failure to open a circulating valve is said to have been the cause of the explosion.

Richard Haentze, who was on duty Friday night, had visited the boiler room connected with the south row of hot houses shortly before 9 o'clock and after adding fuel to the fires had gone to the home of the neighbor. A few minutes later the boiler exploded with a tremendous report and the concussion was so great that it was felt for several blocks in the vicinity.

FIRE FOLLOWED EXPLOSION.

Robert Haentze, former president of the common council and a member of the Florist company, was the first to arrive on the scene and he immediately summoned the No. 1 fire company, which extinguished the flames that followed the explosion. An immediate investigation showed that the boiler had been blown to pieces that the boiler room was wrecked and the fronts of several of the green houses badly damaged. The investigation also showed, it is said, that the circulating valve of the boiler which exploded, had not been opened and this is thought to have caused the explosion.

BUILDING WAS WRECKED.

The boiler was located in the basement, but the force of the explosion was so great that the roof and sides of the building were blown out. A six inch pipe from the boiler was hurled against the side of the chimney bent as though it had been nothing more than very thin wire.

This morning a force of workmen were engaged in cleaning away the debris and preparing to place an auxiliary boiler into service as the one which exploded had furnished the heat for the hot houses containing the roses and carnations and it is feared that the entire crop may be ruined.

MOVED TO EAST TROY, WIS.

H. E. Henry and Family Left Last Tuesday for East Troy, Wis., Where They Will Make Their Future Home.

Last Tuesday H. E. Henry moved his household goods to East Troy, Wis., where he and his family will make their future home. The goods were taken to their destination with three auto trucks from Milwaukee. As East Troy is off the railroad, this was the best way to transfer same. The distance traveled was about 75 miles.

The reason for the Henry family leaving this village is because Mr. Henry has become interested in a bank at the aforesaid place and is now holding the position as Cashier of the East Troy State Bank.

Mr. Henry has held the position as Cashier of the Citizens State Bank here ever since its organization, which he has fulfilled in a most befitting way. While a resident of this village, he has proven himself to be a trust worthy citizen as he always was in favor of every progressive movement. His disposition was such that everyone was his friend.

Just a few words about Mrs. Henry. She was one of Kewaskum's leading society ladies. Her charming and pleasing manner always won a warm spot and a friend with everyone she had the honor of making her acquaintances.

We hope that the Henry family will enjoy their new home and wish them an abundance of success. East Troy without a doubt will always speak well of the Henry family.

WHO IS DOING THE WORK?

Store of Fred Luedtke Entered Twice Within a Week.

Twice within a week some miscreant residing within this neighborhood has broken into the store of Fred Luedtke of this village and carried goods away. Last week Monday Mr. Luedtke was called home, owing to business matters and during the night someone forced an entrance into the building by prying open the rear door. The miscreants carried away a pair of chocolates and a pair of gloves. Mr. Luedtke then bolted the door thinking that he was safe. On Sunday he went home again to spend the day with his family, and some miscreant again forced his way in by another door in the rear of the building. This time he helped himself with some cigars and other minor articles. That it is the work of local people is evident, for they happen to know when Mr. Luedtke is absent from the village. We would warn these parties to desist or they might happen to force their way in when Mr. Luedtke is absent and meet a person different than Mr. Luedtke.—Lomira Review.

Perpetrators of Halloween Pranks Busy.

Last Tuesday evening being Halloween the youngsters were busy in this village doing all sorts of tricks but we must say that this year they have gone the limit, as some crowd marked up, nearly every window in the town with soap they also went so far as to pour ink on the windows. We believe in doing some sort of tricks, but when it goes too far it is enough. If the guilty ones could be found a little punishment would perhaps teach them a lesson.

Klim Bims Beware.

The L. R.'s of this village recognized the notice published in the last issue of the West Bend News. In answer to this notice they give out a warning as they are very anxious to arrange a series of games with you this season. They are looking for revenge of last year's defeat. All members of the team are practicing and expect to make the pins drop in all ways before the season actually opens up. Just a few words covers all. Klim Bims Beware.

HERE, THERE AND EVERYWHERE

The past week I strolled and strolled to find some one of this village idle, but was unable to find such the case as every one in Kewaskum seems to be the busiest person in the country. On Monday even if it is called "Blue Monday" I found our livery man and a crew of men busily engaged in moving the big safe and vault of the Bank of Kewaskum from the depot into the bank building. This work of course is very heavy work but our livery man is a man that is well acquainted with such classes of work so therefore under his management it was an easy task.

I next happened to go into the postoffice and overheard a conversation of our assistant postmaster and Fred, the barber. The conversation was about their auto trip of the day before with Alvin Backus' auto. They told about what a noise they heard when one of the tires bursted near Fillmore. I believe that their first thought was of home sweet home, as they were compelled to wait along the roadside for quite a while before Chas. Backus with Dr. Syl. Driessel's assistance had a new tire placed on the wheel. From further reports I understand it took some of the wind away from these two lads, when it came to pumping up the tire.

I also wish to remark that if some one's name appears in one of my articles, I hope such party will not be offended, as nothing will ever be published, which is not fit for publication. I have not started the publication of these articles to offend anyone. If I knew I would be doing so, I would without any delay abandon this series. If you have any kick coming please go to the main headquarters and do your kicking to the main editor and do not tell your friends about it.

"YOURS TRULY"

At the Davidson Theatre.

Walker Whiteside, the brilliant young actor whose success in "The Melting Pot" was one of the sensations of recent theatrical history, comes to the Davidson Theatre, Milwaukee, Sunday night for a week's engagement in his new play, "The Magic Melody", which is said to be the best vehicle in which he has ever appeared. The engagement will include the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees. It is a source of gratification to playgoers who regard the drama seriously that stage offerings of a wholesome nature and real purpose are again winning vogue. The public has reached a point where it desires the play of clean reality, the play that sounds the human note, and which, without harrowing up the emotions, reaches the heart of the auditor.

Such a play, it is declared, is "The Magic Melody." It is described as a play of poetic fragrances of tender sentiment and deep emotion. It presents a romantic hero, Helmar. He comes from Berlin to New York. He has musical genius and plays the violin. But the jingling of the Golden eagle has deafened the people. They cannot hear the sound of his four strings. In the studio he meets the ward of a rich American, and despite many obstacles and hard struggles, he finally finds the way to happiness and fortune.

Mr. Whiteside's company is of exceptional strength. It includes Miss Florence Fisher, Miss Maude Shaw, Miss Anna Fields, Mr. Herbert Sears, Mr. Ernest Cossart, Mr. Richard Sherman and Mr. Frederick Wallace.

PEKING IS UNEASY

MORE EDICTS BY CHINESE EMPEROR MEAN END OF MANCHU RULE.

PENSIONS TO BE STOPPED

General Situation is Most Serious—Both Warring Factions Fear Massacre—Foreigners Leave Capital and Legations Strengthen Guards.

Peking, China.—The state of terror which has taken possession of the entire imperial court was further shown by a long list of edicts supplementing the famous proclamation and ordering further concessions of the most radical character. The edicts indicate that even though the dynasty survives, Manchu rule is at an end. The transfer of cabinet offices to native Chinese is ordered.

The national assembly has voiced its approval of the throne's action. The revolutionists say "it is too late." A state of panic prevails in Peking, Shanghai, Hongkong and Canton, as well as nearly every small place in the empire, over the fear of massacre, the Chinese and Manchus regarding each other with mutual distrust and fear.

The transfer of all cabinet offices to native Chinese is one of the principal points in the edicts, and the throne gives the promise that hereafter "Manchus and Chinese shall be regarded equally." This means that the system of pensions by which practically every Manchu has been given money for years has been abolished and the Manchu will have to get out and earn his living like any other Chinese. The edicts were a complete capitulation to the demands of the national assembly.

The general situation is perhaps more tense than at any time since the revolution began. The Manchus fear the invasion of the capital by the rebels, while the Chinese are in dread of a possible massacre by the Manchus. The foreign legations and missions are besieged by persons clamoring for protection, the streets are filled with carts carrying the valuables and money of the wealthy celebrities to places of safety, and the railroad trains are crowded to capacity with Manchus fleeing for safety—mainly to the extreme north. The legations are taking the most careful precautions against any eventuality. The guards have been greatly strengthened and there has been some fortifying of legation walls.

The Manchus, who, for the first time in generations, are cut off from their pensions, talk of massacre for revenge. There are 600,000 Chinese and 100,000 Manchus in the city of Peking. It is asserted among the native Chinese that Prince Tsai Tao, an uncle of the infant emperor, Pi Yu, is willing to lead the Manchus in their massacre.

Fears are entertained for foreigners in the province of Shanai, many of whom are Americans. A dispatch from Canton says that city is in a turmoil of fear and excitement over the report that the Manchus will force a massacre of the Chinese in retaliation for the numerous edicts from the throne.

ROADS HIT BY COURT

SUPREME BODY'S DECISION VICTORY FOR COMMISSION.

Rules That All Carriers Must Comply With the Federal Safety Appliance Act.

Washington.—The United States Supreme court, in an opinion by Justice Van Devanter, gave broad powers to the interstate commerce commission in a sweeping interpretation of the federal safety appliance law. It virtually eliminates state railroad commissions from control of roads within the state. The court held that the law is violated when a car, not properly equipped under the act, is used on a railway doing an interstate business, to carry shipments from one point in a state to another point within the same state. This takes cases of this character out of the jurisdiction of state railroad commissioners and fore-shadows the complete control of the railroads of the country by the interstate commerce commission.

The opinion of the court was given in a case brought by the government against the Southern Railway company in which it was alleged that couples were out of repair on cars carrying shipments which originated in the state of Alabama and which were destined to points within the state.

1890	1,689,330	72.4

1930	2,925,381	134.5
1940	3,034,945	130.1

Washington, D. C.—The census bureau has issued an advance bulletin on population in Wisconsin giving besides data already published additional facts.

It gives for each county of the state the population with decennial increase for a number of years, the density, and the number of inhabitants in urban and rural territory, all of which information, except the total population of counties, has not hitherto been published.

The population of Wisconsin is 2,333,859. Compared with a population of 2,068,042 in 1900, this represents an increase during the last decade of 265,817, or 12.8 per cent. During the same period the total population of continental United States increased 21 per cent.

Wisconsin has 124 cities. Milwaukee, the largest, has a population of 373,857, and Superior, the second city, a population of 40,384. Besides Superior there are six cities having from 25,000 to 50,000 inhabitants. There are also ten cities having from 10,000 to 25,000, eighteen from 5,000 to 10,000, thirty-seven from 2,500 to 5,000, and fifty-one less than 2,500 inhabitants. The aggregate population of the 124 cities is 1,083,708, or 46.4 per cent of the total population of the state.

On the cities included in this table, Green Bay shows the highest percentage of increase during the last decade, namely, 45.1 per cent, and La Crosse the lowest, 5.3 per cent. The rates of increase for all of the cities have been lower during the last decade than during the preceding decade.

The relative growth of the population of Milwaukee during the last decade, 31 per cent, has been slower than during any preceding decade. The absolute increase, however, was greater than during any previous decade, with one exception.

Wisconsin has seventy-one counties. The population of these counties ranges from 3,381 in Florence county to 433,187 in Milwaukee county.

The following territorial changes have been made in the counties of Wisconsin since 1900: The formation of Gates county in 1901 from Big Bend, Dewey, Flanagan, Lawrence and Stockton towns in Chippewa county, the name of this new county being changed to Rusk in 1905; the addition of part of Vilas county to Oneida county in 1901; and the addition of part of Forest county to Vilas county in 1905.

The rates of increase for the fifty counties that show increases range from less than one-tenth of 1 per cent in Columbia county to 385.8 per cent in Forest county, and the absolute increase of the same group of counties range from eight in Columbia county to 193,710 in Milwaukee county. The population of the one combination of counties increased 19,326, or 31 per cent. Nineteen counties decreased in population during the last decade, the rates of decrease ranging from four-tenths of 1 per cent in Sauk county to 3 per cent in Pierce county, and the absolute decreases from 137 in Sauk county to 1,864 in Pierce county. The aggregate increase of population from 1900 to 1910 in the one combination of counties and in the fifty counties that show increases is 277,080; the aggregate decrease in the nineteen counties that show decreases is 12,242. The difference, 264,838, is, of course, the total increase of population in the state.

The total land area of the state is 55,256 square miles. The average number of persons to the square mile in 1910 was 42.2; in 1900 and 1890 it was 37.4 and 30.6 respectively. The average number per square mile for continental United States as a whole in 1910 was 30.9.

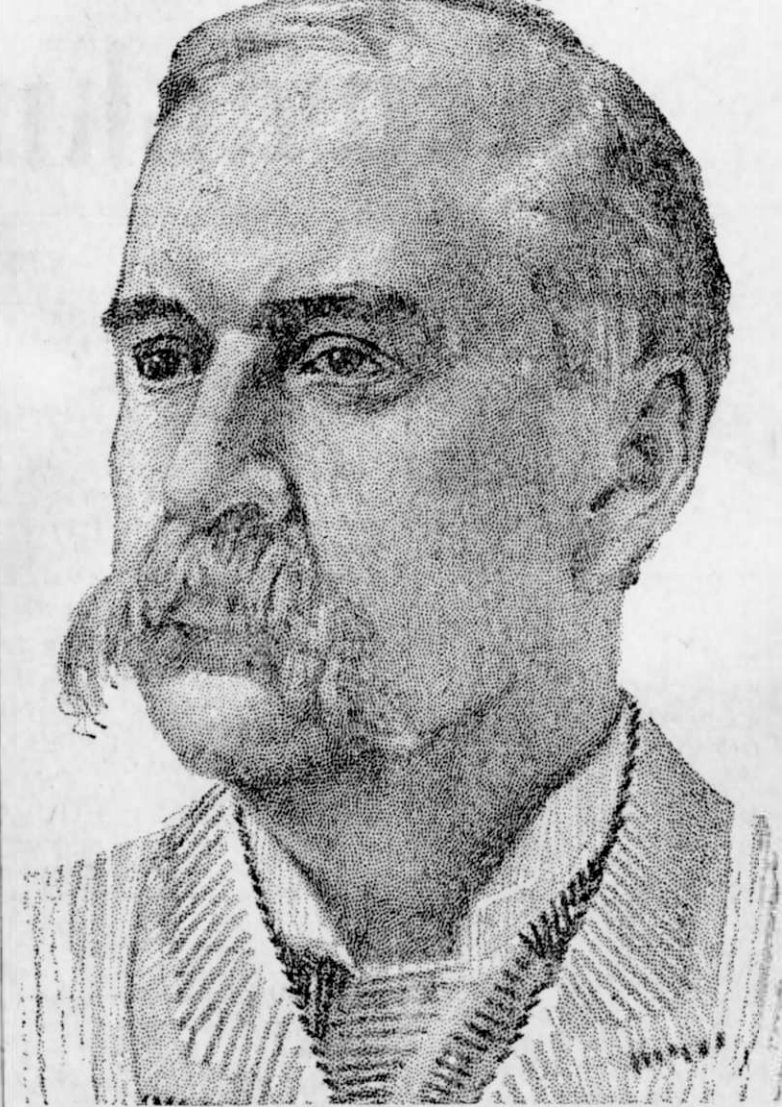

Marathon county, with 1,554 square miles, has the largest area, and Ozaukee county, with 233 square miles, has the smallest area. Milwaukee county, containing Milwaukee city, has the highest density of any county, namely, 1,843.3 persons per square mile, while Sawyer county, with 4.7 persons per square mile, has the lowest density.

There are twenty-nine counties in which the population living in rural territory decreased and in eight counties there was a decrease in the urban population. St. Croix and Iowa were the only counties that decreased in population in both urban and rural districts.

RED HATS FOR 17

POPE TO NAME THREE AMERICANS AS CARDINALS ON NOVEMBER 27.

TWENTY-TWO SEATS VACANT

Archbishops Farley of New York, O'Connell of Boston and Falconio of Washington Are Among Those to Be Elected.

Rome.—On November 27 when the consistory is held in the Vatican here Pope Pius will create seventeen new cardinals, and in this number will be Most Rev. John M. Farley, archbishop of New York; Most Rev. W. H. O'Connell, archbishop of Boston, and Mr. Diomede Falconio, apostolic delegate in the United States at Washington.

The last consistory was held in December, 1907, four cardinals being appointed at that time. Since then many vacancies have occurred in the sacred college by death, and now there are twenty-two seats of the seventy unfilled.

Since 1907 the intention to hold a consistory has been announced from time to time, and on each occasion the convocation has been postponed for various causes.

The question of the appointment of another American cardinal has been under discussion a number of times. Archbishop Farley, Archbishop O'Connell and Archbishop Quigley of Chicago being mentioned. But on one occasion it was said the pope adhered to his opinion that the United States should not have more than one cardinal during the life of Cardinal Gibbons.

The proposed consistory in November will be the fifth held by Pope Pius X. On the death of Pope Leo XIII, there were sixty-four cardinals. During the last eight years Pius X. has created seventeen new cardinals, of whom two have died.

TOBACCO PLAN HIT

INDEPENDENTS SAY IT WILL NOT RESTORE COMPETITION.

Attorney General Suggests Restrictions by Court to Prevent Possible Reformation of Trust.

New York.—The plan for reorganization of the tobacco trust submitted by the American Tobacco company and co-defendants to the government anti-trust suit was both praised and condemned before the circuit court judges of the United States for the southern district of New York.

After Attorney General Wickersham had filed the government's answer to the plan, Lewis Cass Ledyard, arguing for the defendants, insisted that it was an honest plan to comply with the Supreme court's mandate for a reorganization that will restore competition in compliance with the terms of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Representatives of the preferred stockholders and bondholders of the American Tobacco and constituent companies urged approval of the division of the trust into four separate companies, to be operated independent of each other.

Independent manufacturers, dealers, and producers of tobacco unanimously disapproved the plan on the ground that it is a sham proposal to divide the properties, control of which still would be retained by the group of individuals now dominating the industry. Louis D. Brandeis of Boston made the principal argument against the proposal.

The answer of the attorney general did not express general opposition to the dissolution plan, but contained for the guidance of the court many restrictions deemed necessary to assure restoration of competition in the tobacco industry.

Maintaining that it was impossible for the court to determine in advance whether a plan actually will accomplish effective competition, the attorney general requested that right be reserved to the government to apply to the court at any time within five years for other relief upon a showing that the plan did not result in a new condition in harmony with the law.

News Notes of Wisconsin

$940,235 IN STATE TAXES IS REMITTED

FUNDS IN TREASURY SUFFICIENT TO HELP BEAR COST OF GOVERNMENT.

LEVY IS $34,000 BELOW 1911

Governor Discovers There Is Money Enough on Hand to Nearly Meet Appropriations Made at the Last Legislative Session.

Madison.—A remission of $940,235 from the tax levy as recently made was ordered by the state board of assessment which consists of Gov. McGovern, Secretary of State Frear and State Treasurer Dahl.

This means that instead of a total levy of $5,557,255.95 the actual total levy will be but $4,617,020.95; that instead of an increase of $981,936.42 over the total levied in 1910 for the tax of 1911, the increase is only $21,761.42. It means more than this, for the amount remitted exceeds the amount of all the increases of special appropriations made by the legislature of 1911 by $6,973, and were it not for the increase of the amount levied for special charges against the counties the total of the levy would be considerably less than that of a year ago. The remission is made possible by the large income the state has received from the inheritance tax and other sources of indirect taxation.

The present remission is of the special appropriation for the new capitol, $450,000, and the appropriation for the normal schools, $490,235, making a total of $940,235.

The condition that made this remission of tax possible, almost necessary in fact, was that there appeared in the treasury an extraordinary balance on Oct. 27, 1911, of $2,499,135.28, a sum in excess of that in the same fund on the same date a year ago by $1,231,738.33 and $1,651,667.51 more than was in that fund on the same date in 1909. Following is a statement of the balances in the general fund on Oct. 27 of the three years:

1909	$ 847,470.77
1911	2,499,135.28

FOREST COUNTY CASES END

Prosecution of Graft Charges Brings $11,000 Into Treasury and $5,000 More Will Be Secured.

Crandon.—The "graft" investigations and fight which has been raging in Forest county for the last nine months was practically closed at the recent term of Circuit court in which thirty-seven criminal actions and thirteen civil suits were disposed of. Of the total number of criminal suits all but three were disposed of, those affecting one man who secured a continuance. Some were convicted, others pleaded guilty and the rest compromised without coming to trial. Of the civil suits, all were settled out of court.

It is probable that a few may be appealed, but the prosecution has brought over $11,000 into the treasury and it is expected that about $5,000 more will be added to this sum.

Attorney A. C. Umbreit, Milwaukee, who has for the last nine months been acting as district attorney following the suspension and disbarment of former District Attorney John C. Mars, started the investigation into conditions on Jan. 17, 1911. Since then both the sheriff and the supervisor of assessments have been removed from office and new men appointed to their places.

RAPS ANONYMOUS WRITERS

Col. Bird Declares "Nom de Plume" Communications to Press Are "Lies Upon the People."

Madison.—Persons who attempt to block public movements, through the publication of articles in newspapers over assumed names were severely hit by an address delivered at the closing banquet of the conference on civic centers in this city by Col. George W. Bird.

"There are four classes of people," said Col. Bird, "who are always ready with advice when they should not be. There is first that hoary gentleman, Richard Roe, who on every conceivable occasion gives gratuitous advice to the people in his letters to the editor. Strangely, though, he is always afraid of having his identity known. Then there is that other venerable man, John Doe, who is opposed to having the streets paved, the sewage carried away or any of the other things done which most people believe ought to be. Vox Populi is always weary of new innovations. He is much in favor of having everything go on in the old way. And last, gray and bent, but with ever ready pen, that hoariest and most venerable man, Pro Bono Publico.

"These four men are the essence of all conservatism. They are always in waiting to throw a wet blanket on every new movement. There are no such things as improvements to them. They believe that the old way is always the best way, although that is none too good.

"If these men ever had any influence, it should be taken from them. The opinion of any man who appears under a disguised name in a newspaper is not worth much. The names which they assume are lies upon the people."

BUILT HIS OWN MOTOR CYCLE

George Vineyard of Kansas City Calls His Machine a Tricar—Old Work in Leisure Moments.

You've wondered what that cross between an aeroplane and motor car was that you've seen skimming over the boulevards? Well, that's George Vineyard's tricar. To let you in on the secret early, a tricar is a fancy name for a three-wheeled motor cycle. George built his tricar in leisure hours back of his house at 2353 Gilliam road, says the Kansas City Star. George is ditty at several things, he says, doing expert electrical work when busy professionally, cooking when he's hungry and being a bachelor all of the time.

As to the tricar: At a distance it resembles an ordinary three-wheeled motor cycle with an additional seat between the two front wheels. Closer examination reveals the working parts of anything yet on the market. The sources for the mechanism are summed up about like this: Orient-Merke-Indian, Cadillac-Blue Bird-Singer, the last being a gallant touch when you recall that Mr. Vineyard is a bachelor. The engine is one of four-horsepower taken from an Orient buickboard. There is no transmission on Mr. Vineyard's tricar, the machine always runs on high speed. It is geared to run about thirty-five miles an hour. The handle bars are made from gas pipe; the throttle and spark-er are regulated by levers near the driver's seat. Mr. Vineyard says his love of tinkering led him to build the car and that he has no idea of getting a patent on it.

MANY ELEPHANTS IN SIAM

Number of Animals is Rapidly Decreasing and Price Advancing—Indispensable for Traveling.

Roughly estimated, the number of domesticated elephants in Siam is about 3,000, says Vice-Consul General Carl C. Hansen, Bangkok. The supply has been decreasing yearly, and prices have advanced until now a full-grown male timber elephant is worth about $2,000, and a female $1,500. Travel in northern Siam, especially during the rainy season, would be impossible without the elephant, and he is used to great advantage in the teakwood industry. An elephant is full-grown at 25 years, but not in full vigor until 35. The length of life is 80 to 150 years, and the average weight is about three tons. In Siam the elephant carries only 250 to 500 pounds, according to the size of the animal.

No estimate can be made of the number of wild elephants in the jungles of Siam, but in one of the elephant "drives" in the Ayutthya district recently more than 200 were seen at one time. These drives are held yearly in the various districts of Siam, during which great numbers of the animals are driven into a stockade. The finest specimens are then captured and later tamed and trained for domestic use. The district of Ayutthya is famous for its drives, and the king usually attends when large events are arranged for. Permission to capture wild elephants may be obtained from the Siamese government, and for each animal caught a royalty of $150 is paid, but such capture is exceedingly difficult and expensive, and the animal often dies before it is properly tamed.

Chicago and Minnesota are the two other teams remaining in the race for the championship. In the Evanston game Wisconsin showed surprising strength, the work of Moll in kicking goals and punting being spectacular.

HOW TO MAKE A WHISTLE.

First take a willow bough. Smooth and round and dark. And cut a little ring. Just through the outside bark. Then tap and rap it gently. With many a pat and pound. To loosen up the bark. So it may turn around. Slip the bark off carefully. So that it will not break. And cut away the inside part. And then a mouth-piece make. Now put the bark all nicely back. And in a single minute. Just put it to your lips. And blow the whistle in it.

FIVE TREES ARE REMARKABLE

Soffar, Found in Nubia and Soudan, Produces Whistling Sound—"Cow Tree" Gives Milk.

The "whistling tree," or acacia flutula, is found in Nubia and the Soudan. The Arabs call it "soffar," or pipe, because of the whistling sound that it produces, and the specific name of "flutula," a word also meaning pipe or flute, has been given it for the same reason. Insects infest the tree, and deposit their eggs in its shoots. A gall-like excrescence, about an inch and a half in diameter, is produced at the base of the shoots, and when the larvae have emerged from circular holes in the sides of the shoots, the holes, played upon by the wind, produce a whistling sound equal to that produced by a sweetened reed flute.

The "cow tree" is so called because it yields an abundant supply of milk. To obtain the milk, deep incisions are made in the tree, from which the fluid flows into vessels placed ready to receive it. This vegetable milk is white, somewhat viscid, and has an agreeable flavor; and an analysis of it shows that it is very much like the milk of a cow in its composition. The cow tree grows on the slope of the mountain chain bordering on Venezuela.

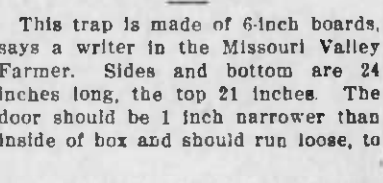

The "cloth tree" is found at Otaheite in the South Sea. The bark is taken off in long strips and put to soak over night in running water. The soaking softens it, so that the inner fiber may be easily separated from the rest of the bark. The fibers are put together in lengths of about eleven or twelve yards, and the lengths are placed side by side until they are at least twelve inches in width, and two or three layers of fibers are put one upon another. The fibers adhere together in one piece, and the material thus formed is beaten upon a smooth piece of wood until it becomes as thin as muslin. It is then bleached in the air for a time, when it is ready to be made up into clothing.

The "stinging tree" of Queensland is pleasing to the eye but dangerous to the touch. Its effects are curious; it causes great pain to the person or animal that has the misfortune to get stung by it, but it leaves no wound, no mark of any kind. And for months afterwards the part stung is painful in rainy weather, or when, in any way, it gets wet. Frequently it is necessary to shoot horses and dogs that have been stung by the tree, so maddening is its effect upon them. The "angry tree" grows in Nevada, eastern California and Arizona. When in the least disturbed this highly sensitive tree shows its anger by ruffling up its leaves and emitting a disagreeable odor.

"Can your baby brother talk now?" asked a visitor of 4-year-old Clara. "Yes," she replied, "he can say some words real well." "Indeed! And what are they?" asked the visitor. "I don't know," replied Clara. "They are words I never heard before."

CANADA'S IMMENSE WHEAT FIELDS

THE ATTRACTION FOR THREE TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILWAYS.

Last August there visited the Canadian west the vice-president of the largest individual hardware company in the United States. As his firm has a turnover of millions, and deals extensively with farm implements, this man took a deep interest in crop conditions in Canada, and on his return he embodied his findings in an article for the Hardware Reporter. This article should be of special interest to farmers.

The writer speaks of the importance of the spring wheat crop of Western Canada. He might also have spoken of the importance of the oat crop and also of the winter wheat crop, as well as barley. Winter wheat during the past few years has been a great success, and experiments have shown that it can be grown with success in almost any portion of the three provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. But apart from this, the spring wheat crop is the one generally grown, and all who know anything of grain, anyone who has had anything to do with markets, knows or has heard of the high character of this cereal and the splendid yields that are annually produced. Reproducing from this article:—

"In a land of such great sweep, and of such difference in soil and climate, there are many resources, but none are at present of the same overwhelming importance as the spring wheat crop. In the interminable prairie stretches of the northwest provinces it is the one absorbing topic of interest and of conversation during its growing and its harvesting, for upon its success or failure hangs the weal or woe of a large part of the Dominion. Its influence extends far down into the United States, drawing thousands of farmers northwards with the lure of cheap lands, but likewise beyond the great lakes, even to the easy going maritime provinces, calling the flower of their young men to its opportunities. Development in these prairie provinces goes on at high pressure for everything hangs on the outcome of spring wheat. Success has emboldened the raisers of this one all-important crop, and each year there is further incursion into those northern fields that only a short time ago were regarded as Arctic wastes. The Canadian Northwest seems to be one of those modern agricultural examples set forth to drive the final nail in the coffin of that ancient Malthusian delusion that population tends to outrun the means of subsistence, since the only fear now among Canadian economists is as to the danger of overstocking the wheat market. Only about two and one-half per cent of possible arable lands in the northwest provinces is now under cultivation, and this year the crop promises to be close to 200,000,000 bushels, so that your imagination and your arithmetic can easily supply the answer as to the possible or even probable outcome."

During the months of July and August the weather was unfavorable and the production of a 200 million yield of wheat will not likely be realized, but even with this, the threshing reports coming to hand show that the crop will be a splendidly paying one.

BABY'S TERRIBLE SUFFERING

"When my baby was six months old, his body was completely covered with large sores that seemed to itch and burn, and cause terrible suffering. The eruption began in plumpies which would open and run, making large sores. His hair came out and finger nails fell off, and the sores were over the entire body, causing little or no sleep for baby or myself. Great scabs would come off when I removed his shirt. We tried a great many remedies, but nothing would help him, till a friend induced me to try the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment but a short time before I could see that he was improving, and in six weeks' time he was entirely cured. He had suffered about six weeks before we tried the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, although we had tried several other things, and doctors, too. I think the Cuticura Remedies will do all that is claimed for them, and a great deal more." (Signed) Mrs. Noble Tubman, Dodson, Mont., Jan. 28, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 18, Boston.

COFFEE A CENT A CUP AND SOARING UPWARD

The Inter-Ocean, Chicago, Oct. 19th, 1911:

"Coffee will cost just one cent a cup to the most careful housewife with the retail price of the berries soaring higher and higher, as it is doing now, according to the latest reports last night. Despite apparently small expenditure for the morning draught per cup, coffee dealers state that the rearing is the highest during the many centuries that coffee has been used as a beverage not excepting the early days of its history when it was considered a rare luxury.

Two and one-half gallons, or forty average-sized cups, are to be found in a pound of coffee. The average retail price of coffee today is forty cents for a good grade. In some cases the cheaper Brazil brands may sell for 30 cents, but 35 and 40 cents is the general selling price.

Days of Cheap Coffee Gone.

Authorities declare that the day of 17 and 18 cent coffee has forever gone by, nor will cheap grocery stores ever be able to drive bargains again with doubtful sorts judging by the present outlook.

"The blend of Mocha and Java sells for 50 cents. Coffee is now pressing closely on the price of tea and may yet surpass it."

But why should the American public drink coffee which admittedly contains a deadly alkaloid called caffeine, that stimulates and overworks the heart, disarranges the digestive apparatus, causes headache and constipation.

This question is usually pertinent in view of the fact that BONANO, an American product made from bananas, contains no such drug or deleterious substance, and instead of causing harm really benefits. This latest discovery in drinks is made of the pulp of bananas ripened in the tropics, then dried under scientific processes, roasted and granulated.

The banana contains an essential oil just as does the coffee berry and the roasting imparts to the dried banana pulp a distinctive, delicious flavor, which while it does not taste at all like bananas as fruit, does not closely resemble the richest and finest grades of mill Government Java.

BONANO, the new fruit table drink is rapidly taking the place of coffee and tea and coffee substitutes, being a pure healthful beverage, and it solves the problem of economy in table drinks, as a can of this delicious product retailing at only 25 cents will make 75 large cups, costing therefore only one-third as much as coffee, and while satisfying really benefits the health instead of causing harm and discomfort.

The intelligent housewife is rapidly discarding old customs and embracing new modern ideas and no longer serves coffee as formerly. Coffee contains no food value, only a flavor and aroma, and many housewives mindful of this fact, in the beginning mix a little coffee with BONANO before boiling, in this manner preserving the flavor while getting the benefit of the full body and food value of BONANO.

It is said that BONANO increases the flavor and palatability of the best coffee and that but a small amount of coffee is needed in the mixture which is ultimately withdrawn entirely and BONANO served clear. Coffee drinking is really only a habit anyway and it has long been a question why the housewives of the United States should pay tribute to the product of a foreign country when far better and more healthful products are manufactured right here at home.

KEITH OF THE BORDER

A TALE OF THE PLAINS
By RANDALL DARRISH

(Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co., 1910.)

SYNOPSIS.

Jack Keith, a Virginian, now a border plainsman, is riding along the Santa Fe trail on the lookout for renegade war parties of savages. He notices a camp fire at a distance and then sees a team attached to a wagon and all full gallop pursued by men on ponies. When Keith reaches the wagon the raiders have massacred two men and departed. He searches the victims' clothing and finds a pocket with a woman's portrait. He resolves to hunt down the murderers. Keith is arrested at Carson City, charged with the murder, his accuser being a ruffian named Black Bart. He goes to jail fully realizing the peril of his situation. A Negro, who tells him he is Neb and that he knows the Keith family back in Virginia. Neb says one of the murdered men was John Ribley, the other Gen. Willis Waite, formerly an officer in the Confederate army. The plainsman and Neb escape from the cell, and later the two fugitives become lost in the sand desert. They come upon a cabin and find its lone occupant to be a young girl, whom Keith recognizes as a singer he saw at Carson City. The girl explains that she came there in search of a brother who had deserted from the army. A Mr. Hawley had intended to come to the cabin while he sought to locate her brother. Hawley appears, and Keith in hiding rescues him from Black Bart. Hawley tries to make love to the girl. There is a terrific battle in the darkened room in which Keith overcomes Black Bart. Hawley is appropriated, and the girl who says that her name is Hope joins in the escape. Keith explains his situation and the fugitives make for Fort Larned.

It was noon, the sun pitiless and hot above them, before they straggled within the partial shelter of the sand dunes, and sank wearily down to their meager lunch. Their supply of water was limited, and the exhausted ponies must wait until they reached the river to quench their thirst. Yet this was very far off now, and Keith had seen enough of their surroundings to locate the position of the ford. Slow as they must proceed, three hours more would surely bring them to the bank of the stream. They discussed their plans briefly as the three sat together on the warm sand, revived both by the food and the brief rest. There was not a great deal to be determined, only where the girl should be left, and how the two men had better proceed to escape observation.

Fort Larned was the nearest and safest place for their charge, none of the party expressing any desire to adventure themselves within the immediate neighborhood of Carson City. What her future plans might be were not revealed, and Keith forbore any direct questioning. His duty plainly ended with placing her in a safe environment, and he felt convinced that Mrs. Murphy, of the Occidental Hotel, would furnish room, and, if necessary, companionship. The sole problem remaining—after she had rather listlessly agreed to such an arrangement—was to so plan the details as to permit the negro and himself to slip through the small town clustered about the post without attracting undue attention. No doubt, the story of their escape had already reached there, embellished by telling, and serious trouble might result from discovery. Keith was surprised at the slight interest she exhibited in these arrangements, merely signifying her acquiescence by a word, but he charged it to physical weariness and the reaction from her night of peril; yet he took pains to explain fully his plan, and to gain her consent.

This finally settled, they mounted again and rode on through the lanes traversing the sand dunes, keeping headed as straight as possible toward the river. The ford sought was some miles down stream, but with the horses' thirst mitigated, they made excellent progress, and arrived at the spot early in the evening. Not in all the day had they encountered a living object, or seen a moving thing amid the surrounding desolation. Now, looking across to the north, a few gleaming lights told of Fort Larned perched upon the opposite bluffs.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Landlady of the Occidental. Keith had crossed at this point so frequently with cattle, that once having his bearings, the blackness of the night made very little difference. Nevertheless, in fear lest her pony might stumble over some irregularity, he gave his own rein to Neb, and went forward on foot, grasping firmly the tired animal's bit. It was a long stretch of sand and water extending from bank to bank, but the water was shallow, the only danger being that of straying off from the more solid bottom into quicksand. With a towering cottonwood as guide, oddly misshapen and standing out gauntly against the slightly lighter sky, the plainsman led on unhesitatingly, until they began to climb the rather sharp uplift of the north bank. Here there was a plain trail, pounded into smoothness by the hoofs of cavalry horses ridden down to water, and at the summit they emerged within fifty yards of the stables.

The few lights visible, some stationary, with others dancing about like will-o'-the-wisps, revealed imperfectly the contour of various buildings, but Keith turned sharply to the right, anxious to slip past without being challenged by a sentry. Beyond the brow of the bluff other lights now became visible, flickering here and there, marking where a straggling town had sprung up under the protection of the post—a town garish enough in the daylight, composed mostly of shacks and tents, but now with its deficiencies mercifully concealed by the enveloping darkness. The trail, easily followed, led directly along its single street, but Keith crept the outskirts through a wilderness of tin-cans and heaps of other debris, until he halted, his charges beside the black shadow of the only two-story building in the place. This was the Occidental, the hospitality of which he had frequently tested.

A light streamed from out the front window, but, uncertain who might be harbored within, Keith tapped gently at the back door. It was not opened immediately, and when it was finally shoved aside the merest crack, no glow of light revealed the darkened interior. The voice which spoke, however, was amply sufficient to identify its owner.

"Is that ye agin, Murphy, a playin' av yer dirty tricks?"

"No, Mrs. Murphy," he hastened to explain, "this is Keith—Jack Keith, of the 'Bar X'."

"The Lord deliver us!" was the instant exclamation, the door opening wide. "They do be after tellin' me to-night av the trouble ye was in over at Carson, an' O! t'ought maybe ye might turn up this way. It was a nate trick ye played on the loikes av 'em, Jack, but this is a dom poor place fer ye ter hide in. Bedad, there's a half-dozin in the parly now talkin' about it, wid a couple av officers from the fort. Is the nager wid ye?"

"Yes, but we have no intention of hiding here. I'd rather take my chance in the open. The fact is, Kate, we started off for the 'Bar X.'"

"Av course, ye did; O! was shure av it."

"But down on the Salt Fork we ran across a young girl whom Black Bart had inveigled down that way on a lie. We had a bit of a fight, and got her away from him. This is what brought ye want, an' a dhrap o' whiskey. Jack Keith, why didn't ye till me she was done up wid the hard ride? Here, honey, sit down in the rocker till O! get ye a wee dhrink. It'll bring the roses back to the cheeks av ye." She was gone, bustling down the dark stairs, and the two were alone in the room, the girl looking up into his face, her head resting against the cushioned back of the chair. He thought he saw a glimmer of tears in the depths of her lash-shaded eyes, and her round white throat seemed to choke.

"You will be perfectly secure here," he said, soothingly, "and can remain as long as you please. Mrs. Murphy will guard you as though you were her own daughter. She is a bit rough, maybe, but a big-hearted woman, and despises Hawley. She nursed me once through a touch of typhoid—yes, by Jove!" glancing about in sudden recognition, "and in this very room, too."

The girl's glance wandered over the plain, neat furnishings, and the rather pathetic attempts at decoration, yet with apparently no thought for them.

"You—you have not told me where you were going."

He laughed, a little uneasily, as though he preferred to make light of the whole matter.

"Really, I have hardly decided, the world is so wide, and I had no reason to suppose you interested."

"But I am interested," resenting his tone of assumed indifference. "I

"Bedad, but the place looks better than Iver O!d beaved, wid the gurl O!ve got tindle' to it. She's that lazy she goes ter slape swavin' the flure. Jack, would ye mind hilpin' me move the bid; shure, it's rale mahogany, an' so heavy it breaks me back intirely to push it round."

He took hold willingly enough, and the two together ran the heavy contrivance across the room to the position selected. Once a leg caught in the rag carpet, and Keith lifted it out, bending low to get a firmer grip. Then he held out his hand to the girl.

"It is not going to be good-bye then, Miss Hope; I'll find you."

She smiled up into his eyes, much of the weariness gone from her face.

"I am going to believe that," she answered, gladly, "because I want to."

Mrs. Murphy lingered until his steps sounded on the stairs, as he slowly felt his way down through the darkness.

"He do be a molgthy foine bye, Jack Keith," she said, apparently addressing the side wall. "O! wish O!d'a knowed him whin O! was a gurl; shure, it's not Murphy me noime'd us now, O!m 'inkin'."

Left alone, the girl bowed her head on her hands, a hot tear stealing down through her fingers. As she glanced up again, something that glittered on the floor beside the bed caught her eye. She stopped and picked it up, holding the trinket to the light, staring at it as though fascinated. It was the locket Keith had taken from the neck of the dead man at Cimmaron Crossing. Her nervous fingers pressed the spring, and the palated face within looked up into her own, and still clasping it within her hand, she sank upon her knees, burying her face on the bed.

"Where did he get that?" her lips kept repeating. "Where did he ever get that?"

RED HAIR WAS NEW TO THEM

Indians for a Long Time Insisted That White Man's Scalp Must Have Been Painted.

Forty years ago the Indians in Colorado knew but little of the white man, and nothing hardly of his ways or habits except from tradition. Among the people who went to settle in Colorado at that time was a man with very red hair. He and his party were thrown among the Indians, who thought at first that his hair was painted, 'joe' as they painted their own bodies and faces.

An old chief came up to him one day and looked at his hair very carefully.

"Tight!" said he. "And then, turning to the interpreter who had the part in charge, he wanted him to ask the man where he got the kind of paint that would color, and yet not be greasy or look dabby. He was told that the man's hair was not painted, but he would not believe it. He once more walked up to the man and scrutinized his locks, running his hand through them and looking at his fingers.

The red-haired man became a little nervous, and half fancied that the chief was calculating how nice a red scalp would look hung to his belt. The interpreter, however, laughingly told the man what the chief had said.

Two or three more of the Indians then gathered around the party, and they and the interpreter had a pow-wow. Finally the interpreter asked the man if he would object to putting water on his hair.

He saw the Indians would not believe that it was painted, until they saw that the water would not wash the color out. The man took some water, rubbed it on his hair, and then showed his bands to them. But it took four or five days of wondering examination to convince them that he had not found some peculiar paint, and got himself up in a bright red suit of hair.

A Burning Suggestion. "Why is it that you have taken to the exploiting of cremation?"

"Because I found it the best way to which to turn a living."

Very Much So. "It is odd what fascination Henry VIII. seemed to have for women."

"Yes, he certainly did make them lose their heads."

She Probably Was Worth It. "I proposed last night and today I have to see the girl's father."

"A painful ordeal."

Detachable Flower. It must have been the girl of small allowance who invented the detachable flower for her hat. Trimming the winter's chapeaux is so simple that it is an easy matter to whisk off one flower and put on another to match the next costume worn.

Velvet poinsettias are a favorite flower on winter hats for those who can stand the vivid red so close to the face.

Another popular flower is huge velvet roses in rich dull tones. A new idea is to outline the edges of these roses with tiny beads to correspond to the color of the costume worn.

Instead of sewing on the detachable roses each time, they are provided with tiny safety pins on the under side, which are quickly adjusted to the trimming.

Taffeta Jackets. Little coats or jackets of changeable taffetas are worn with voile or mull lingerie frocks. They show the high line and the plaited frill on the lower edge.

Making a Pillow Cover Fit. The cover of a sofa pillow can be made to fit well by the following little trick: After sewing up three sides but before turning the cover right side out, tack the two finished corners of the case securely to two corners of the pillow. Turn the case over the pillow. Sew up the fourth side for an inch or two at each end. Tack these two corners to the corresponding corners of the cushion. Finish as usual. This keeps the pillow from pulling and sagging away from the cover—Housekeeper.

URGENT NEED FOR A NAME

If the Blasted Skirt is to Be Generally Worn Let It Have Feminine Appellation.

It is thought by some in Germany that the name "harem skirt" or more horrible still "trouser skirt" is the only thing that prevents the spread and general use of this much talked of article of wearing apparel. So these same people have offered a prize for the best names and have hit up "Amazon" and "cavalier" skirt as a result, and hope by keeping these more alluring titles before the feminine public to popularize the garment. Not that it needs so much to be popularized, they say. The leading German shops advertise it in bewildering variety, and privately claim that orders are pouring in to a degree which shows that, like other extreme modes gone before, the trousers—or, that is, the cavalier skirt—is sure to conquer in the end. But if the more timid follower of fashion buys one, and keeps it hanging in her closet to gaze upon with awe and admiration, yet is afraid to wear a "trouser" skirt upon the street, by all means let us christen it with something softer and more feminine.

DRESSES FOR EVENING WEAR

Slight Change in Styles Will Be Noted in the Coming Season's Garments.

An unusually decollete neck finish, extremely short sleeves and an irregular-shaped train inclined to shortness are features having a bearing on the new evening gowns for fall and winter. Lace plays a large part, both as a foundation material and for trimming purposes, every variety being used, no matter what the texture or pattern. Allover designs or robe gowns are used as an underbody, in which case the filmy draperies partially conceal the pattern. They are lashed silks, crepes and satins, and in these instances usually are cut in with the waist. Some of the newest models show the all-over lace extension below the waist line in curvaceous effect, Citywear frill or peplum. In some instances the pointed effect is made in the front, with tapering lines cutting off to the waist in the back—Dry Goods Economist.

Dainty Fichu.

The fichu drapey of the bodice is being used for evening and even for afternoon wear, with the V-shaped opening at the neck. Fine and delicate lace is being taken out of its seclusion, and those who are lucky enough to possess a lawn fichu sewn with Ayrshire embroidery are to be congratulated.

Happily, the fichu suits all wearers, for it one arrangement should chance not to be becoming another will be, and the tall woman or the short, the stout or the slim, can alike find a way of wearing this most graceful accessory.

Large Revers Popular.

The use of the large collar is no doubt responsible for the popularity of the large revers. Some are long and narrow, coming down below the waist line. Others are square and a few round.

In a certain number of cases the coats are made with a single revers on one side and double revers are seen in some instances. The long shawl collars are again meeting with favor.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

Genuine Merit Required to Win the People's Confidence

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfil the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been cured, to those who are in need of it.

In an interview on the subject a prominent local druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows immediate results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know of has so large a sale."

The success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfills every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. A free trial bottle will be sent by mail, absolutely free. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and mention this paper. Regular size bottles sold at all druggists—50c, and $1.00.

T. M. K. Ville did this at Mercedes, in the lower Gulf Coast Country of Texas and Louisiana, Jan. 18th last he planted 6 acres to corn. He got 240 bushels, which sold for $1 a bushel. The whole cost of raising came to $33, leaving a net profit of $207. June 1st he planted a SECOND crop and got 240 bushels. This crop cost $30, leaving him a net profit of $201. From the 2 crops he cleared $408—not bad for 6 acres, and he can grow a crop of fall potatoes on the same land and market them before Christmas. This is not unusual in the Literary Criticism.

They were discussing a certain author at dinner, and a well-known critic raised a laugh by remarking: "Well, her hair's red, even if her books are not."

The mild young man in the corner made a mental note for the sally for future use, and at another party shortly afterward he carefully guided the conversation into literary channels. Tit-Bits informs its readers. Fortunately some one mentioned the desired name and he triumphantly cried out: "Well, she's got red hair, even if her books haven't!"

Synonyms.

The French Canadian always has trouble with the aspirate "th." At a debating club in the Province of Quebec members were required to draw a slip from a hat and debate upon the subject they received. A young countryman arose.

THE TEA PENALTY.

A Strong Man's Experience.

Writing from a busy railroad town the wife of an employe of one of the great roads says:

"My husband is a railroad man who has been so much benefited by the use of Postum that he wishes me to express his thanks to you for the good it has done him. His waking hours are taken up with his work, and he has no time to write himself.

"He has been a great tea drinker all his life and has always liked it strong.

"Tea has, of late years, acted on him like morphine does upon most people. At first he used Postum only for breakfast, but he liked the taste of it, and it somehow seemed to do him good, he added it to his evening meal. Then, as he grew better, he began to drink it for his noon meal, and now he will drink nothing else at table.

"His condition is so wonderfully improved that he could not be hired to give up Postum and go back to tea. His nerves have become steady and reliable once more, and his sleep is easy, natural and refreshing.

He owes all this to Postum, for he has taken no medicine and made no other change in his diet.

"His brother, who was very nervous from coffee-drinking, was persuaded by us to give up the coffee and use Postum and he also has recovered his health and strength." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

TEARS

NEW YORK.—"Weeping," says Dr. Sarah J. McNutt, for twenty years teacher and professor in two medical institutions and a woman who knows what her sisters are doing, "may almost be considered as in the past tense. I venture to say that where there used to be hundreds of women lying face down in the pillows blubbering and having terrible times over just nothing at all there are not ten now. Why, it used to be just as much a custom with some women to devote half an hour a day, usually in the afternoon, to half-forced crying as it was for them to get up in the morning.

"With some there was what may be called a morbidly joyous search for that which would give them an occasion for grabbing the handkerchief and entering upon a sobful session. With others they simply hurried other duties along so as to be sure that nothing would interfere with the daily cry. Still another sort of woman just trusted to luck that the day would not be made wholly unbearable by the absence of some trivial incident suggestive of woe.

"Tears in those days were quite as contagious as the measles. The period of incubation was very brief. Neighbors hung out clothes in the back yards and then leaning over the fence would recall some doleful incident of twenty years back, in which neither had any direct interest, and thereupon the wickets they would mingle their tears until household duties called them away.

Some Cause for Their Grief. "Now, it may be that there was some excuse in a small percentage of these cases, but only in a few. It should have been quite as easy for a woman to look at the world sensibly then as it is now. But they didn't seem to know how. Women used to keep more to themselves than they do now. They used to sit and think about themselves and magnify small things into large ones and try to carry all the world's woe on their shoulders, and then, knowing full well that they were in for it, they would seek relief in the easy way.

"When woman began to get a grasp of herself and to find that she was in the world to do something besides mope and moan and sob and sigh the situation began to change. The status of woman in the household had much to do with making her a weeper, just as her new status has made her the happy, smiling woman we see around us now.

"Man used to be the unit in the household and the wife obviously became the cipher. The unit would take his place at the head of the table and between mouthfuls deliver monologues on the state of the nation and society, to which the cipher would be a patient, although generally not an interested listener.

Man the Supreme Monarch. "He expressed all the opinions for the domestic establishment, made its laws, interpreted them like a high court, administered them. Being the silent member of the wife found no other way to relieve herself than to get away in some dark corner with a camphor bottle and boo-hoo until she had a pain in the stomach and her eyes frightfully red. Then she would draw one final sigh, broken up into half a dozen sections, and hurry to the kitchen to resume her interrupted duties.

"She rattled through the long winters, sobbed when the birds were singing in the spring, wept from planting time until after harvest in the fall, and were it not for her generally good constitution she would have been under the weeping willows before she was thirty.

"When woman of that period went out to do a little shopping it was customary for the husband to go along and of course carry the wallet. She would timidly buy 16 cents' worth of needles and thread, and he, with a flourish, would slowly unwind the strap from the pocketbook and count out the change, take the package and hand it to her, and she in turn would sigh her thanks for this evidence of generosity and love.

"It is a true picture that I have undertaken to draw—true every word of it. No wonder that women went around with granulated eyelids and fluttered a sigh with every tenth breath.

Old Order of Things Changed. "Of course, it was inevitable that women would get away from this condition of oftentimes self-imposed depression. They just had to wake up. The old order of things had to pass.

The great sisterhood of American women has stepped out of the shadows into the sunlight and it is getting something real and good out of life now.

"It would be inaccurate to say that women have given up crying altogether, but they have progressed to a point where they no longer have nerves forever on edge and tears flowing on tap.

"Now I will tell you how I think it came about. Mental stimulus has done it. Just so soon as a woman ceases to imagine that she is the most utterly forlorn and unhappy person in the world she is bound to get a new angle on herself. Women today have minds for other things than themselves. They are not worrying over what they used to call their sad fate. They are thinking about others, about matters of some moment, about books and plays and gardens and happiness, and when they give to these things all the time they deserve there are no spare moments for lonely moaning, accompanied by sniffs.

Exit the Day of the Tear. "There are in round numbers 60,000 clubwomen in New York. Do you suppose any of them will spot a lace handkerchief with a tear today? Not one. How many of the bright-eyed young business women—stenographers, typewriters, clerks, office assistants and all the others—do you imagine will go to business this morning wondering whether they will find time for a good cry during the day? Not one, unless she is ill. How many of the shopgirls on the east side and in Brooklyn do you suppose will go sniffing to their work today? Not one. They are too busy."

Dr. McNutt took a number of books from the top of her desk and dropped one upon another with a slam.

"There," she said, "are seven antidotes for tears. If you want others, there are the newspapers. I'm a great believer in novels. I read a lot of them. They give me just the kind of mental thrill that is good for me. A good, clean story without a problem is a tonic."

"If I could put a chauffeur novel in the hands of some of our women who still think there is something to weep over in everyday life I believe I could shut off the flow of tears. All of our young women read nowadays. Take the girl just out of the office. She jumps into the novel yacht or the novel automobile or climbs onto the novel land of bay and away she goes. If she is in the novel yacht she goes dancing over the waves of the South and feels the cool spray in her face. When night comes the yacht puts in at Stamford or New Haven and she goes to sleep and is lulled to pleasant dreams by the swish of the water. She slips on her goggles and goes splashing over the road in the machine, her hair flying and sights changing all along the way.

Reading That Has Helped. "One thing about stories is that you do not have to do any thing for yourself. Writers have a way of making people say just the thing that the reader would like to say were she in the book. That helps a lot. It doesn't tire one. Unconsciously the reader enters into the enjoyment of the spirit of wholesome adventure that runs through the pages and it seems to be real. You see it helps a woman to get into a novel and there, and in that lies the secret of cheeriness.

"The really busy woman has no time to snivel. She knows that it is time wasted. She knows that it means nothing in comfort and that it is bound to make her nervous and take the snap out of her eyes.

"Yes, yes; crying is rapidly becoming a lost art. The bottle of smelling salts still dangles at the end of the chain, but it is used in purely decorative. The sniff and sob are no longer modern."

"Women," said Dr. Mary MacMillan, "have become more philosophical in recent years. They have found that tears are unproductive of substantial results and therefore not to be summoned at frequent periods. A woman friend of mine had a daughter among the passengers on the Olympic when that vessel met with an accident on the other side. The girl very thoughtfully sent a cablegram to her mother telling of her safety. It was received on this side with smiles instead of tears.

"I imagine it would have been different a generation or two back. One might picture a mother then wringing her hands and sobbing quite as if she had met with a great misfortune.

Days of Mingled Tears. "It was customary, I have been told, for news of joyful character concerning an incident of some seriousness to be received with great outpourings, which were not confined to the person most interested, but participated in by others in the immediate circle of relatives and friends.

The person whose tears fell first would naturally lead for the next nearest relative, who would hear the news and then mingle her tears with the other's. Then others would come in and take out their handkerchiefs and form part of the circle. About dusk the manifestations of lachrymal disturbance would reach its height, for the shadow period is supposed to be appropriate for it, after which it would subside and by and by there would be a general brightening up. I have heard it said that much satisfaction was had on occasions of the sort, but we now know that it was a mistake.

"There are legitimate occasions for tears without creating them, but there are few trials which may not be faced by women without tears. Women no longer live in an atmosphere of what may be called the weebegone. They do not look at life from the vantage point of tears, and it is well that they do not. With smiles taking the place of tears there will be buoyancy instead of depression, cheerfulness instead of moroseness. Healthy, normal women ought not to weep and few of them do."—New York World.

Says Missionaries Lack Tact. Professor Frederick W. Williams of Yale, who is an expert on China, believes too many missionaries to the Chinese are tactless, according to the New York Sun. To their tactlessness imputes the small number of Chinese converts.

Professor Williams, at a luncheon at Princeton said last month: "I have known missionaries as ignorant of tact as Jim Driscoll was ignorant of foot rules."

"Jim Driscoll, a farm boy, got a job in a steel mill, and his boss gave him a foot rule one day, and said: 'Measure me that plate out there in the yard.'"

"Jim at the end of a half hour, returned and said: 'The plate is the length of the rule and three fingers over, with this piece of cobblestone, and the stem of my pipe and my foot from here to here, bar the toecap.'"

Kidney Trouble Is Very Deceptive

Few Realize They're Affected Till Danger Point is Reached—Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills Work Wonders—Sample Free!

Kidney disease is much more common than most people imagine. Many sufferers do not know what's ailing them—until the trouble becomes serious. Some trifling ailment may run into the dread diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease before one realizes there's anything wrong with his kidneys.

Usually the most noticeable symptoms which first appear are far from the seat of the trouble, and the sufferer mistakes the nature of his ailment. Dull headaches or nervousness, for instance, he never thinks of as signs of diseased kidneys.

Even the aching back and sides, rheumatism, pains or twitching in groins or limbs, sore, inflamed muscles, he may consider indications of some other trouble. Unnaturally colored or cloudy urine, too frequent or too scanty urination, burning sensation, are of course readily recognized as symptoms of such disorders.

Because of the deceptive and dangerous character of these ailments, if you suspect your kidneys are diseased, lose no time in beginning treatment. The best, positive remedy for you is Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills. They are quite different from anything else in the market. They act in two ways—cleanse the clogged kidneys of their poisonous impurities, strengthen them so they perform their duties normally, naturally. There is no other way to cure kidney derangements, resultant bladder troubles and rheumatism—and permanently banish those frightful aches and pains.

Get a package of these marvelous Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills at once. 25c and 50c packages. If you want to try them first ask your druggist for a free sample package, or same will be sent direct by Derby Medicine Co., Eaton Rapids, Mich.

The Bishop and the Boy. The late Bishop Williams of Connecticut was very fond of children, and it was always a joy to you youngsters when he came for his visit to my father's parish. His anecdotes and stories calmed the whole household. Once when he was staying with us he told the following story:

"One Sunday morning, just after breakfast, I repaired to the rector's study, where I was soon followed by his little four-year-old son, who climbed up on my knee and began to talk. Suddenly the little fellow looked up into my face and said: 'Blessop, do you want to see my piggy bank?'"

"Yes, indeed," said I. So the child slid down and started to get the book. When halfway across the room a sudden idea seemed to strike him, and, running back, and putting one hand on my knee, he looked up in my face, and shook his little forefinger at me, whispering: 'Blessop, it's Sunday. We must do zis on ze sly!'"—Harper's Magazine.

A DESPAIRING WOMAN. Weak, Tired and Almost Helpless From Wasting Kidney Troubles. Mrs. Emily Howard, 1700 Burlington St., Chicago, Ill., says: "I had awful pains through my hips and frequently wished I had never been born. I seemed to have lost all interest in life. I doctored for female trouble, thinking my condition was due to some derangement of that nature, but got no better. Finally I began using Dean's Kidney Pills and to my surprise I began to improve. They not only corrected the kidney action but stopped the pain and sickness I had thought was due to female trouble."

More English Humor. The first night Walter Kelly, known to vaudeville as the "Virginian Judge," walked up the Strand he complained to his English companion that the famous street in London was dark at nine o'clock. "Why," said he, "at this hour Broadway is as bright as day. There is one sign alone, 'The Chariot Race,' in which there are 50-000 electric lights." "But I say, old top," said his English friend, "wouldn't that be rather conspicuous?"

Nearer. "I see where some folks are going to the ocean to get gold from water." "The ocean? Why so far? Why not go to Wall Street?"

LITTLE RUSE DIDN'T SUCCEED

Youngster's Scheme Was All Right, but Economical Father Was a Match for Him.

The proprietor of the most prominent hotel in the town of S—, Ky., is a man of a very economical nature, in fact he is an extremist in this feature. He has a six-year-old red-headed son that didn't inherit his father's economical disposition. Recently the son was very much in need of a five-cent piece for soda water purposes. He went into the dining-room, where he was free from observation, and removed his shoe strings and placed them in his hip pocket for future reference. Returning to the office he approached his father and said:

"Pa, give me a nickel to get me a pair of shoe strings."

His father glanced down at his son's shoes, then turning around approached the office safe and opened it in silence. He took out the cash box and raised the lid extracted a pair of new shoe strings, which he handed to his son without a word. The youngster took the strings with a crestfallen air and then to the amusement of the onlookers, exclaimed:

"Stung again, by granny."

Musician Wanted. In a parish in Wales where very little English was spoken a general meeting was held to consider the desirability of putting a chandelier into the schoolroom. Every one seemed in favor of the idea.

"Do you think we ought to have one, Mr. Davis?" said the schoolmaster to a venerable parishioner.

"I agree to it," was the reply; "but there is one thing I wish to know. If we have a—"

"Chandelier," said the schoolmaster, helping him out.

"If we have a chandelier," the old man continued, "who is going to play it?"
