SYNOPSIS.

Jack Keith, a Virginian, now a border platoon leader, is looking for roaming parties of savages. He sees a wagon team at full gallop pursued by men on ponies. When Keith reaches the wagon the raiders have massacred two men and departed. He searches the victim's papers and finds a woman's portrait. Keith is arrested at Carson City, charged with the murder, his accuser being a ruffian named Black Bart. A negro companion of his called Ned tells him that he knew the Keiths in Virginia. Ned says one of the murdered men was John Bilely, the other Gen. Willis Waite, formerly a Confederate officer. The platoon and Ned escape, and later the fugitives come upon a cabin and find its occupants to be a young girl, whom Keith thinks he saw at Carson City. The girl explains that she is in search of a brother, who had deserted from the army, and that a Mr. Hawley induced her to come to the cabin while he sought her brother. Hawley appears, and Keith in hiding recognizes him as Black Bart. There is a terrific battle in the darkened room in which Keith is victor. Hawley is captured, and the girl who says that her name is Hope, joins in the escape. Keith explains his situation and the fugitives make for Fort Larned, where the girl is left with the hotel landlady. Miss Hope tells that she is the daughter of General Waite. Keith and Ned drift into Sheridan, where Keith meets an old friend, Dr. Fairbain. Keith meets the brother of Hope Waite, under the assumed name of Fred Willoughby, and becomes convinced that Black Bart has some plot involving the two. Hope learns that Gen. Waite, who was thought murdered, is at Sheridan, and goes there, where she is mistaken for Christie MacLaire, the Carson City singer. Keith meets the real Christie MacLaire.

she acknowledged, just a little confused. "But I have received two letters signed by that name, and rather expected the gentleman would call upon me here in Sheridan during my engagement. Is that your mission? Were you sent by him? or are you Mr. Hawley?"

"It would be safer to confer with me personally—only I imagine there is a large sum involved." "From whose estate?" "My grandfather's." "And his name was?" "Why—why, Mr. Keith, actually I do not know. It may seem strange,

"No," the short monosyllable was not encouraging. "His messages were of a business character." "I disclaim all relation, Miss MacLaire, even friendship. You, of course, know who this individual is?" "So I presumed, yet one likes to be sure. I cannot remember either my father or mother. Oh, I do not know why I should tell you all this! Who are you, really? Why do you ask me such questions?" He leaned forward, touched by the woman's emotion. "Miss MacLaire," he said gravely. "I am not prying into your life needlessly, but an endeavoring to serve you as well as others. Hawley may indeed possess papers of great value, but if so they were not found by accident, but stolen from the body of a murdered man. These papers may possibly refer to you, but if so Hawley himself does not believe it—he has simply chosen you to impersonate the right party because of your physical resemblance." "Resemblance to whom?" "To a young woman, a Miss Hope." "But how do you know this? Why should you be interested?" "Are you a detective?" "No, I am not a detective, but I cannot explain to you my interest. I am trying to serve you, to keep you from being drawn into a plot—" "No; that is I have never met him,"

LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, SECURES DRY FARMING CONGRESS FOR 1912.

The term "dry farming" does not indicate all that might be implied. It does not mean a system of irrigation, but one where all the rain fall and precipitation is stored up and conserved in the soil, to be drawn upon by scientific and sane processes when it may be required to forward and increase the growth of grain. In certain sections of the Canadian West as well as in the American West, there is a portion of the country in which the soil is the very best for the growing of cereals, but the geographical locations and relative position to the rain avenues, do not give the advantage that other parts possess in the matter of precipitation. Agricultural science, however, has been making rapid progress during the past few years, and it is now ascertained that it is not altogether the number of inches of rain that is essential to the growing of crops, but its conservation, and that is the meaning of "dry farming." "Dry Farming" may well be applied to districts where there is a heavy rain fall and better results will follow. The education of the public into these methods, not new exactly, but such as have had satisfactory demonstration, is not alone the purpose of these dry-farming Congresses. One idea is to bring into life and into operation the great areas of splendid land lying within what might be termed semi-arid, without placing them under the restrictive and expansive process of irrigation. The Congresses are attended by thousands and they bring representatives from all parts of the world. The Province of Alberta, and also of Saskatchewan, has taken a vital interest in the Congresses which will be held in the past two or three years. The Province of Alberta has made provincial exhibits, districts have shown their products, and last year several hundred dollars were taken in prizes; this year the Province of Alberta took prizes ten to one in excess of any state in the Union. Alberta has won eight out of twenty special cups, that province taking one, Lethbridge one, Arthur Perry six, and John Baxter, Edmonton, carrying off one sweepstakes. When it came to a matter of location for the Congress for 1912, the City of Lethbridge, which had put up a splendid fight for it, secured the Congress by a unanimous vote. It is expected that the Lethbridge Congress will be the largest held in the history of Western Canada. In emphasizing his invitation to Lethbridge, one of the speakers said he had just received a telegram from Magrath (near Lethbridge) stating that of one thousand acres of wheat just thrashed Hethershaw and Bradshaw had thrashed 47,000 bushels. Literature sent out recently by the Canadian Government Agents, which will be sent postage free on application, tells of hundreds of splendid yields in all parts of Western Canada.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 175 West Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Second Floor Plan.

An eight-room house, somewhat on the bungalow order, is given in this plan. A bungalow, properly speaking, has only one floor; but this plan provides for three bedrooms above, and a kitchen is added at the back, with a lower roof. The bungalow developed in this country on the Pacific coast. The idea, probably, was originally brought from India, although a great many architects claim that the modern bungalow really is the outgrowth of the log cabins and the sod adobe houses of the early inhabitants of the United States. Probably bungalow architectural ideas could be traced back to all these sources. The result is that we have a very comfortable low cost house called a bungalow, which is being extensively built in different parts of the country, and its popularity is constantly increasing. Within easy reach of large cities, bungalows are going up by the hundreds and the idea is a good one. People are tired of being crowded into small, unhealthy quarters, and are taking this means of providing themselves with good, sensible homes at a reasonable outlay. The original bungalow roof was low and broad; but in order to get more sleeping accommodation, the ridge was raised just enough at first to get one room. Builders, however, have repeatedly pushed it up higher, until we see a good many houses built very much after this plan, with about three bedrooms in the roof. It costs but little more to build a seven or eight room house in this way, than to build a five room house with the rooms all on the level. The rafters, of course, are longer, and it takes more shingles; but the work on the roof is not much different, and, as far as the inside is concerned, you simply add the finishing up of three extra rooms. The foundation is no larger; and the only addition on the first floor is the stairway, which, in this case, is built in and closed with a door at the bottom. You seldom see an open stairway in a bungalow house. It seems to be out of keeping with the general air-out. Even in larger houses, people's ideas regarding stairways have undergone some modification. The question has often come up: Why should we build a fancy open stair directly opposite the main entrance door as more thickly populated. I see evidence of economy that I never noticed before except in isolated cases. Economy is one of the greatest virtues. Economy and ignorance seldom go together. It requires a person of more than average intelligence to practice economy sensibly. Economy is not stinginess; there is a wide distinction. A house after this plan can be built for $1,000 or $1,500, according to the location, cost of materials, and the price of skilled labor. Usefulness. A breezy western lumber salesman stopped at the Walton for a few days, returning from a trip abroad. In the course of his second evening he had made friends with half a dozen men from other cities. "Yes, boys," he said, insisting that they take wine, "I can well afford to pay for the bubbles. Why, when I was in Europe I pulled off a little deal that'll net me more than the cost of a thousand trips over the pond. "You see, I trade principally in white woods—free from knots. Of course, pine knots are waste; only for firewood. But I just made a deal with a Swiss factory, and I'll send all the knots and knot holes I—"

"What do you use 'em for?" asked the inquisitive one. "Ear holes for wooden horses," came back the answer.—Philadelphia Times.

Names Not Uncommon. A London newspaper has apologized for a statement that such surnames as Egg and Beer did not exist in England and that the assertion that they did exist was an American invention. Readers of the newspaper have been furnishing it with evidence that it was all wrong. There are two pictures by Augustus L. Egg in the Tate Gallery in London. Pickles, it seems, is not uncommon in Lancashire and Beer is an old Devonshire name. There is a Beer's Brewery at Canterbury. One correspondent says he knows people of the name of Egg Beer and Ginn.

Better look into this. Investigate! Go down there this fall or winter. See and talk to these growers. Then you will realize the high opportunities open to you. The trip by the Frisco will alone be worth the little cost of going. Excursion fares via the Frisco the first and third Tuesdays of each month, make the trip inexpensive. The Frisco Lines operate splendid, electric lighted, all steel trains, daily from Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Birmingham and New Orleans. These trains carry through cars, daily, and on excursion days, through tourist sleeper to the Gulf Coast Country.

Engraving With Dynamite. In the course of experiments to determine the strength of high explosives a curious effect was produced by placing freshly plucked fowls between two plates of panel steel and then exploding dynamite cartridges on the upper plate. The recoil drove the upper plate down and with such force as to catch exact impressions of the leaves before their delicate ribs had time to give way to the violence of the blow.

First Floor Plan.

though every person entering must receive an invitation to go up aloft? The fact is that not one stranger in a dozen entering the front door goes upstairs; but it makes a considerable difference to the members of the family where the stairway is placed. Very often it would be much handier in the middle of the house. It would take up less room, too, and save money, and save the architect a headache. The fact is, we pay too much attention to fashion or custom. One person is afraid to do anything different, and each one follows along after his neighbor without knowing why. I have watched the development of the bungalow idea in house building with a great deal of satisfaction, because I think I can see in it the means of providing thousands of homes at prices within the reach of those who would never own houses of their own if they had to buy houses or to build on the regular orthodox lines laid out in the old-fashioned way. I have nothing to say against large two-story solid houses as heavy as any one wants them. They are all right in their

Good Jokes

- Shrewd. An economical young man who was much bored by the requests of fickle young ladies to return their photos, decided upon desperate measures to put a stop to the unnecessary expenditure of time and postage. He announced his intention of starting a Venus collection to contain the pictures of the 100 most beautiful women in the world, and now the girls never ask for their pictures. Literal. "My dear young lady," said the smitten man of means, "I have been talking to the manager you suggested and as he is convinced of your ability I will finance your tour." But he was more overjoyed than he had any need to be when she cried joyfully, "You're an angel!" He Made Good. "That boy'll make his mark some day. Said the father, with delight. He did—but in an illiterate way—for he never learned to write. An Ambition. Roosevelt says it is his ambition to die on the field of battle. What is your ambition to die on?
