NUMBER 19.

TO HOLD ANNUAL HOMECOMING

Kewaskum Advancement Association Will Hold Its Regular Homecoming This Summer.

DATE SOON TO BE SET

Officers of the Association Are Already at Work Preparing for this Big Event.

At the regular meeting of the Kewaskum Advancement Association held last week Thursday evening it was decided to hold another Homecoming this year. Hereafter the event will be held annually. The officers of the association were instructed to proceed to make the necessary preliminary arrangements, set a date and report at the next meeting to be held in February.

The affair will be held sometime the latter part of July or the forepart of August. It will be the largest event ever held in this village. No money will be spared to make it such an event that will be remembered by all. After the next meeting of the association, various committees will be appointed, who will have exclusive charge of different arrangements. Once the date set, extensive advertising will be done by all the business men and citizens.

A Leading Alfalfa State.

A census taken among the growers of alfalfa who belong to the Wisconsin Experimental association brings out the fact that their yields on established seedings averaged 4.4 tons per acre. This is encouraging to all Wisconsin, as it puts her well ahead as an alfalfa growing state. It will also have the effect of doubling our acreage of this crop in a very short time.

Mr. A. D. Campbell, who has been for many years interested in the development of this state, has been carefully watching the spread and success of alfalfa growing here. He says of the crop this year:

"We find in Wisconsin that the best practice in securing a stand of alfalfa is to cultivate the ground thoroughly in the spring and about the first or tenth of June, in order to thoroughly kill out the season's growth of weeds. Then seed with about twenty pounds to the acre, together with a reasonable amount of soil from an established alfalfa field. When this work is properly done, we are almost certain to secure a fine stand and a yield of from a ton to a ton and a quarter per acre in the one cutting of the first season and a good growth for protection during the winter.

"These results are produced in all parts of the state from the Illinois state line to Lake Superior. Swartz Brothers of Waukesha, who are extensive growers of alfalfa, seeded 20 acres this year which they sold standing in the field at $16 per acre. The experiment sub-station at Superior obtained this year three-fourths of a ton per acre on a new seeding, which, however, is somewhat less than usual. This does away with the claim that is so often made that farmers lose a year's use of the land when seeding alfalfa without a nurse crop."—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

New Officials Appointed.

At the regular meeting of the common council held Tuesday evening, Mayor Konrad appointed Rudolph Herman as alderman to succeed Gust Benike, and Chas. W. Sayles as supervisor to succeed W. S. Melcher resigned recently, the former having been elected sheriff and the latter deputy sheriff. The appointments were confirmed unanimously by the council. The new officials are well qualified for the positions.—Hartford Times

ANNUAL MEETING OF BANK

Miss Helen Remmel Is Elected as Second Assistant Cashier.—Old Officers Re-elected.

At the annual meeting of the Bank of Kewaskum on Tuesday afternoon held in the director's room of said bank, the following directors were re-elected—A. L. Rosenheimer, B. H. Rosenheimer, Moritz Rosenheimer, Geo. Petri, Otto Lay, A. G. Koch and N. W. Rosenheimer.

A meeting of directors resulted in the re-election of the following officers:

President—A. L. Rosenheimer
Vice-President—Moritz Rosenheimer
Cashier—B. H. Rosenheimer
Assistant Cashiers—N. W. Rosenheimer and Miss Helen Remmel.
The report of the officers reflected a most satisfactory year. The bank now has over thirty stock holders and is considered one of the strongest banks in the county. The capital is $30,000 with a surplus of $10,000.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Predict Friction.

A resolution was passed by the county board Friday evening affecting the service of criminal warrants. The resolution says "all criminal warrants, excepting those issued for the violation of city ordinances, shall be delivered by justice of the peace to the sheriff, undersheriff or his deputies, and event they are not to be found preference shall be given the constables over police officers.

The intent of this resolution has caused considerable discussion, and it is charged that it cannot be put into practice. The chief of police, under the state law, is a constable, and it is said the resolution will cause friction in the issuing of warrants at the request of the police department.—Pond du Lac Commonwealth.

Fire at Factory.

Fire from spontaneous combustion started in the finishing room at the factory of the Kessel Motor Car company Saturday night but the heat from the fire opened the valves of the automatic sprinkling system and put out the flames before any serious damage was done. The fire is supposed to have originated from a pair of overalls that were pretty well soaked with oil and paint. The water damaged a number of the bodies of Kessel Kars intended for the Milwaukee show, but this will make no difference to the company's exhibit, as the Chicago show cars will be sent to Milwaukee and from there to Chicago.

This is the second time the new fire protection system has been useful in putting out fires at the factory. It has saved the company from what might have been very serious fires.—Hartford Times

New Engine for Cedarburg.

Cedarburg will soon meet with some renown in the engineering world. The city council has authorized the purchase of a Nordberg Uniflow engine at a cost of $4,500. The engine to be bought is the only one of the type specified in the contract in the United States. It is a new type of an engine approved of and proclaimed by expert engineers and heads of engineering colleges as a wonderful invention. The purchase of this engine has been most necessary as the turbine and other power machines at the lighting plant are overtaxed.—Cedarburg News.

Has Toe Amputated.

F. W. Lange, who is employed in the auto factory, had one of his toes on his left foot badly injured while at work last week Thursday morning. He left the next day for his home at Burlington, Wis., where a doctor found it necessary to amputate the toe. He returned again Saturday evening and resumed work at the factory Thursday.—Hartford Times

Cost of County Board.

The January session of the county board of supervisors of Fond du Lac county costs the county $783.40 according to figures compiled by county clerk A. S. Wilkinson of Fond du Lac county.

COUNTY BOARD MAKE PURCHASES

Spends $16,300 On a Brief Shopping Tour.

WILL REPAIR COURT ROOM

Board Buys Heating Plant, a Rock Crusher and Two Complete Outfits for Road Building.

(Road du Lac Commonwealth.)
The county board Friday evening spent $16,300 in one clutter. A new unit system of heating for the court house and jail, two new road building outfits and a rock crusher, and repairs to the circuit court room to improve the acoustical properties made up the above total.

The action of the county board in rejecting the plan for repairing the circuit court room was reconsidered and the resolution to do the work went through with little opposition. The resolution to appropriate $2,000 for the work was favored by Chairman Murray at whose request the resolution was adopted. Mr. Murray said that Judge Fowler had always been reasonable in his requests, and that there was no reason to believe that he was otherwise in this matter. Mr. Murray said the improvement would pay for itself in expediting the business of the circuit court, as it would mean less time for trials, etc.

The board appropriated $9,000 for two new outfits of road building machinery, which equipped the county in a very satisfactory way for the immense amount of work that he mapped out for the coming season. A special committee is appointed to purchase the machinery. In February an exhibit of road building machinery will be held at Madison and it is proposed to visit the exhibit before a decision is made.

The board voted to accept the bid of the Ahern-McCoy company for the installation of a unit system of heating for the court house and county jail, their bid being $5,288. An additional appropriation of $2,000 was made to cover the cost of the work.

A special committee consisting of Walter Whiting, John Burns and Peter Schroten was appointed to confer with County Surveyor G. W. Marshall regarding the matter of preserving the county surveyor's record and to provide permanent posts for marking corner sections. The committee will make its report in June.

A resolution was adopted which prohibits all county officers, with the exception of the sheriff and all county committees, from contracting livery bills.

While the board took a short recess a committee repaired to the furnace room of the court house and destroyed $90,000 worth of cancelled county orders.

HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

Kewaskum Mutual Fire Insurance Company Re-elects Three Directors for the Term of Three Years.

On Thursday morning, January 10th, the annual meeting of the Kewaskum Mutual Fire Insurance Company was held in the company's office in the rooms in the upper story of the Bank of Kewaskum building.

The report of Secretary Joseph Schmidt shows that on December 31st, 1912, the assets were $20,772.33 and that they had risk 1669 policies, amounting to $4,142,916.63. The company never levied an assessment. They have paid $81,633.18 in losses since its organization.

Although the year 1912 has been a very severe year for all fire insurance companies in regard to losses, the books of the local company shows a fair increase.

After all reports were read the election of three directors for a term of three years took place. The three elected were to succeed themselves, viz—A. L. Rosenheimer, A. G. Koch and Joseph Schmidt.

In the evening the board of Directors met and elected the following named officers for the ensuing year.

President—A. L. Rosenheimer
Vice-President—A. G. Koch
Treasurer—L. P. Rosenheimer
Secretary—Joseph Schmidt
Approving Committee—A. L. Rosenheimer, Joseph Schmidt and A. G. Koch.

The Kewaskum Mutual since its organization has never levied an assessment and were always prompt in settlement of all losses. The rates charged are about 60 per cent of the established or board rate, therefore saving the policy holders 40 per cent of the premiums, which may be considered a dividend. ASHFORD HAS NEW HIGHWAYS

Two Roads Recently Completed in Town Under Supervision of County Surveyor Marshall.

WILL AID ALL TRAFFIC

One Eliminates Large Hill and the Other Gives Outlet for Farmer.

Two new highways have been completed in the town of Ashford under the supervision of County Surveyor George W. Marshall. One of the roads runs between the farms of J. W. Dreikosen and W. J. Dreikosen, and the other provides an outlet to the main highway for Charles Mertz.

As a result of the construction of the new roads, it will be necessary for drivers to use the old highway over a large hill near the Dreikosen farms. The other road provides Mr. Mertz with a way for getting to the principal highway without ascending a hill on his own farm.

County Surveyor Marshall, who took his oath of office this week and who now resides on R. R. 20, Brandon, is endeavoring to have the county board provide for the installation of witness stakes of gas pipe with cast iron tops throughout the county in order to facilitate the work of ascertaining the exact location of various section points.

Five Eclipses for Year 1913.

Five eclipses, three of the sun and two of the moon, are phenomena that will mark the procession of the planets of the present year.

A total eclipse of the moon, first on the program, occurs March 22. It will be visible to Australia and on the Pacific ocean; the beginning may be seen from North America, western South America, and the eastern portion of Asia. The ending will be visible to western North America, central and east Asia. For this latitude the eastern penumbra at 3:56 p. m., enters shadow at 4:22, totality begins at 5:51. The middle of the eclipse will not be here.

A partial eclipse of the sun occurs April 6 and will be visible to the northwestern portion of North America, the extreme east portion of Siberia and the Arctic ocean.

Again on August 31 Old Sol will pass into partial obscuration to residents of Greenland and the eastern portions of the maritime provinces of Canada.

A total eclipse of the moon occurs September 15, visible to Australia and the Pacific ocean. The beginning may be seen from North America except the northeast portion. The moon enters the penumbra about 3 o'clock in the afternoon and is in full shadow about 5 o'clock.

There will be a partial eclipse of the sun September 30, visible to the southern end of Africa and the South Indian ocean.

More Light Wanted.

All the state of Wisconsin needs is more publicity. Let the outside world (and a lot of other own people) know what a good state we have—how much better than the sections that are being pushed forward by professional promoters, and we will have a steady influx of people and a steady growth.

It is certainly more in the interest of all the people of Wisconsin to keep our people here with their capital and their energy than to have them leave. The dollar that goes away does not help do business in Wisconsin.

To accomplish this result, all that is needed is more publicity. Tell the public about the good chances in this state and they will come.

Dollars to the State.

Development means dollars to the state. If the upper counties were brought to the same degree of development as the older counties are now, it would practically double the taxable property of the commonwealth. Why not?

We have set aside 400,000 acres for forestry—why not settle the rest and have it growing something every year?

LOCALS LOSE FIRST GAME

Hartford Highs Defeat Local High School at Hartford in Basketball By Score of 20 to 13.

The local high school quintette journeyed to Hartford, and was defeated by a score of 20 to 13. It was admitted by a large number of spectators that the best team lost, which was due chiefly to hard luck. The locals outclassed their opponents at all times. Strachota and Rosenheimer did excellent work as guards, while the passing of the team as a whole was marvelous. The first half ended by the score of 14 to 6. The second half was very interesting, Hartford scored 6 points bringing their total to 20, while Kewaskum scored 7 points, bringing their total to 13. Another match is being sought for by the locals on neutral grounds, as to see which team is the superior.

Last night, Friday, the local quintette went to Oakfield for a game with the team representing Oakfield High School. A game will be played in this village next week Friday evening, which undoubtedly will be with the Fond du Lac Highs. Manager Miller of the locals looks for a very successful year, claiming they will be one of the top notchers of this community.

LAUDS WORK OF COUNTY BOARD

Chairman James Murray Says Feeling of Good Fellowship Has Been Predominant.

ACCOMPLISHED GREAT DEAL

Declares No Mistake Will Be Made In Re-electing All Present Members.

That the county board of supervisors has done excellent work during the past year and that every member ought to be re-elected for another term was the statement made by Attorney James Murray of Waupun, chairman of the board, Saturday morning before an adjournment was taken until the June session.

"There has been a feeling of good fellowship on this board ever since I have been connected with it," said Mr. Murray. "I hope the good work will continue in the future as it has in the past. All of the members have shown a marked degree of interest in their work, which has been for the best interest of the county at large at all times.

"There is no financial gain for a member of the county board. In fact, I believe every one of you gentlemen are sacrificing a great deal in that way in order to represent your districts in the manner in which they should be represented on this board. The closing of the January session virtually brings to a close the year's work as far as the county board is concerned and that is why I have taken this opportunity to thank you for your good work during the year 1912."

The board decided Saturday morning to divide the $2640 received by the county as its share of the automobile tax amongst the towns and villages to be used in road improvements during the present year. The matter was brought up at Friday evening's session but action was deferred until Saturday morning.—Pond du Lac Reporter.

Over $1000 in cash and special prizes were awarded members of the Wisconsin Experiment Association, at their annual exhibit of barley, corn, oats and other grains and grasses, held in the agronomy building of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin last week. The best of the prize winning grain has been reserved for exhibition at the National Corn Show to be held at Columbia, S. C. The rest of the prize grain was sold at auction after the exhibition.

The first meeting of the secretaries of the county orders of the association was held in connection with the regular meeting. There are 32 county orders in Wisconsin at present. The Alfalfa Order of the association, held its annual meeting on January 11.

JUDGE IS CONVICTED

SENATE BARS ARCHBALD FROM EVER HOLDING OFFICE IN UNITED STATES.

WIFE LISTENS TO VERDICT

Commerce Court Jurist is Removed From the Bench by Most Drastic Resolution—Defendant Crushed at Extent of Decision Against Him.

Washington, Jan. 15.—On the thirteenth counts brought against him in the impeachment proceedings before the United States senate, Robert W. Archbald, judge of the commerce court, one of the most important tribunals in the land, was found guilty Monday. On the first count only five of the 73 senators voting supported Archbald.

He was by the following resolution of the senate removed from his high office and forbidden ever again to hold an office of profit or honor under the United States government: "The senate does, therefore, order and decree, and it is hereby adjudged that the respondent, Robert W. Archbald, circuit judge for the United States for the Third judicial circuit and designated to serve in the commerce court, be and he is hereby removed from office and that he be and is hereby forever disqualified to hold or enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States."

Judge Archbald's wife watched the voting on the thirteen counts from the senate gallery and remained till the end although the first vote told her that her husband had been stripped of his judicial robes. His son Robert W. Archbald, Jr., who has acted as his counsel, sat on the floor of the senate apparently unmoved through the long session. Archbald himself turned and retreated to a committee room on the gallery floor. He was utterly crushed when he learned the extent of the verdict against him and retreating to his home, refused to see or talk with anyone.

The overwhelming vote against Archbald on the first count, which had to do with the coercion of the Erie railroad to enter into a contract with him for the purchase of a culm bank, was sufficient to establish the fate of the respondent. A conviction on any of the five counts meant removal from the bench.

On this count Senators Burnham, Peurose, Oliver, Paynter and Catron were the only members of the senate who voted to support Archbald. All the rest, including Root, Crane and Smoot, the senate representatives of the president who placed Archbald on the commerce court, were constrained by the force of the evidence to vote against him.

The overwhelming vote against Archbald on the first count, which had to do with the coercion of the Erie railroad to enter into a contract with him for the purchase of a culm bank, was sufficient to establish the fate of the respondent. A conviction on any of the five counts meant removal from the bench.

On this count Senators Burnham, Peurose, Oliver, Paynter and Catron were the only members of the senate who voted to support Archbald. All the rest, including Root, Crane and Smoot, the senate representatives of the president who placed Archbald on the commerce court, were constrained by the force of the evidence to vote against him.

TRUST QUIZ IS HALTED

G. BAKER DECLINES TO GIVE TESTIMONY REGARDING DEALS.

Financier Concludes His Testimony By Denying the Existence of a Money Combine.

Washington, Jan. 13.—While examining George F. Baker Friday the house money trust investigating committee struck a snag when it tried to trace the joint operation of Mr. Baker with J. P. Morgan in the handling of issues of securities by railroads and industrial corporations, as well as the joint interest of the two men in banks and trust companies in New York and throughout the country.

Mr. Undermyer asked Mr. Baker if he could supply a statement of the accounts by which the First National bank jointly with other institutions handled through syndicates issues of securities. The witness said his counsel had advised him that to demand this information was beyond the powers of the committee. The facts were not known in detail by the comptroller of the currency and he believed the committee had no right to demand them to be exposed to the public.

A statement of the deposits of the First National bank was placed on record. Mr. Baker said he believed the average deposits were about $100,000,000. On November 1 the bank had 149 accounts with balances of $29,576,227.44.

Mr. Baker, in concluding his testimony before the committee, denied the existence of a money trust, but admitted that the safety of the present financial situation depended on the personnel of a few men. He said he thought further combination would be dangerous. He regards Morgan as a great general.

RAP CURRENCY PLAN STIRS BUSINESS MEN

ALDRICH'S IDEA WILL NOT BE ADOPTED SAYS HOUSE BANKING BODY HEAD.

ADVOCATES WASTING TIME

Festus J. Wade, Member of American Association, Favors the Central Bank Feature While Testifying Before the Committee at Washington.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Chairman Glass of the subcommittee on banking and currency of the house served notice Tuesday that witnesses interested in currency may as well cease their advocacy of the Aldrich currency plan.

Festus J. Wade of St. Louis, a member of the American Banking association, was a witness before the committee, and launched upon an eulogy of the central bank feature of the Aldrich plan. He was interrupted by Chairman Glass, who reminded him that the Baltimore platform had disposed of that matter.

"I think Democratic opposition to a central bank is more or less sentimental," said Wade.

Chairman Glass smiled and replied: "Whether it is sentiment or what not, there is insuperable opposition in the way of adoption of the Aldrich plan by this committee or the Democrats."

Aluminum, steel, watch movements and machine tools were on the program of the house committee on ways and means when it met to hear testimony at the iron and steel hearing.

W. H. Donnor of Pittsburg, president of the Cambria Steel company, set forth that that company owned properties worth $75,000,000 and employed 19,000 men, manufacturing last year more than a million tons of rails, structural bars, rods and wire nails, and urged specific and not ad valorem duties on iron and steel products.

The Waltham Watch company, alleged to be in "the watch trust," was probed at the outset. E. C. Fitch of Waltham, Mass., testified that the company could manufacture watch dials cheaper than he could buy them abroad; said the Waltham Watch company was originally capitalized at $5,000,000 and that it had reorganized with a capitalization of $12,000,000, tangible assets of $9,022,000, and patents and good will worth $2,975,000.

The witness told of the former existence of a selling agency that handled the Waltham Watch company products. He said he was one of three partners in the selling agency, each of whom received $50,000 a year salary.

WILSON APPEALS AND WARNS IN CHICAGO SPEECH.

Declares Public Good Must Be Put Above Private Aggrandizement—Says Monopoly Must End.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—Speaking at a banquet given by the Commercial club of Chicago Saturday night, Woodrow Wilson, the president-elect, delivered an earnest appeal and warning to the business men of the country.

"The business men of the country were told bluntly that the peaceable success of the new administration depended on their co-operation, and that without it the president would fight for victory. They also were told that no man who did not put the public good above private aggrandizement—be he politician, merchant, or personal friend—could have influence with or part in the administration."

Four lines of Mr. Wilson's coming endeavor were set forth. They may be summarized as follows:

"The country must husband and administer, not exploit, its common resources for the common welfare, with the idea of conservation—not reservation."

The raw material of the country must be at the disposal of every one on equal terms, the government not determining the terms, but guaranteeing against discrimination.

"Credit must be at the disposal of all on equal terms. In no other way can dangerous class prejudice be removed. The bankers must see it is done."

Every feature of monopoly must be removed.

Governor Wilson spoke with the utmost frankness about the recent revelations regarding the money trust.

Swedish Paper Describes Interesting Game to Be Played on Ice—Umpire Is Needed.

A novel and interesting winter game for young and old, described as a novelty by a Swedish paper, is played as follows:

Two poles of convenient height are erected on the ice; if skating on a shallow pond they may be driven through the ice and into the ground, but if the water is deep, holes must be bored through the ice and the poles will soon freeze solidly in them. A rope is stretched between the poles at such a height as is suited to the size of the players or as agreed on to make the game more or less difficult, and on this are strung a number of pieces of board, A, each having a ring of spring steel, B, attached to its lower end. The purpose of the game is to run at good speed between the poles and catch a ring on a spear, each player being entitled to make a certain number of runs, and the winner being the one who can catch the most rings.

The spears may be made of broom handles tapered toward the end, and with a shield made of tin and attached at a suitable distance from the thicker end (Pattern C). The line is fastened at the top of one pole and run through a pulley, D, at the top of the other, thence to a weight or line fastener. Each player should start from the same base line and pass between the poles at such a speed that he will glide at least 100 feet on the other side of the poles without pushing himself forward by the aid of the skates. Twenty runs are usually allowed each player, or ten players may divide into two parties, playing one against the other, etc. An umpire will be needed to see that fair play is maintained and settle any disputes that may arise.

NEAT WINTER EVENING TRICK

Allow Person to Think of Card and Then Make it Appear Where Company May Decide Upon.

To allow a person to think of a card and to make that card appear at any number in the pack which the rest of the company may decide upon:

After the cards have been thoroughly well shuffled offer the pack to one of the spectators and ask him to select any card he chooses and to remember the number at which it stands from the bottom of the pack. This done, you offer to make the card selected "take any position in the pack that the rest of the company may choose to name. We will suppose the audience to decide that they wish the card to appear at number eighteen. Carelessly remark that it is not even necessary for you to see the cards, and hold the pack either behind your back or beneath the table, while you rapidly count eighteen from the bottom of the pack and place them on the top. Then, producing the cards, you ask the audience to tell you the original number of the card, as you will begin counting from that number.

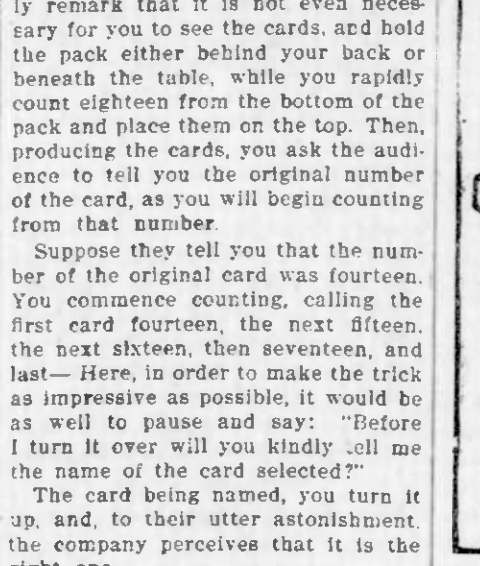

Suppose they tell you that the number of the original card was fourteen. You commence counting, calling the first card fourteen, the next fifteen, the next sixteen, then seventeen, and last—Here, in order to make the trick as impressive as possible, it would be as well to pause and say: "Before I turn it over will you kindly call me the name of the card selected?"

The card being named, you turn it up, and to their utter astonishment, the company perceives that it is the right one.

BOYS WHO LACKED TRAINING

Interesting Investigation Made by Juvenile Protective Association—Few Had Trade.

Failure properly to train boys for useful work is a prolific source of vagabondage and crime. An investigation made by the Juvenile Protective Association of Chicago and reported by its president, Louise DeKoven Bowen, in the Survey, developed striking facts. A study was made of cases selected from among 1,328 confined in the Cook county jail in 1911. Mrs. Bowen writes:

"The investigation emphasizes the fact that only three out of the hundred boys had a trade. Only six had been allowed to work at the occupation which they really desired. Most of them had been put to work at anything attainable. Sixty-six had begun to earn their living at fourteen years of age or younger. According to the government reports, the wages of unskilled laborers who leave school before they are fourteen increase slowly from $3 to $10 per week until they are twenty years of age. Here they remain stationary until they are forty years of age, when their earning capacity again begins to decline.

"Out of the 1,328 boys in the jail, 721 had been engaged in unskilled occupations. Nineteen boys had wished to become machinists; out of this number four drove wagons, one was a farmer, three were messenger boys, one an office boy, four were laborers, three were errand boys in stores, one was a chauffeur and two were grocery clerks."

WOMAN CONFESSES SLAYING HUSBAND

Albert Patzer of Synco Killed Because of Quarrels.

MET DEATH AT DINNER TABLE

Woman Was Suspected Despite Her Dramatic Story of Strange Assault—Arrested After Attending Funeral With Twelve Children.

Manawa.—Mrs. Albert Patzer, whose husband was murdered at the dinner table in his home at Synco, an inland town near here, has confessed to the slaying. She was taken into custody immediately after the funeral.

"I could not bear to live with him any more and he was a party to bitter quarrels every day," said Mrs. Patzer. "I crept up behind him as he was eating the meal I had prepared and struck him down. There had been no murder in my heart while I prepared the meal. But after I returned to the kitchen and began to think, I was seized with an overpowering desire to free myself. After I had killed him I straightened him up in his chair at the table and washed the blood from the floor. Then I burned the stick of stove-wood which I had used and called the neighbors."

Mrs. Patzer told a dramatic story to explain the murder when she summoned physicians to her aid. She said she was in the kitchen and heard sounds of a struggle. She rushed into the room in time to catch a fleeting glimpse of a strange man going out of the door, she said, and found her husband upon the floor, blood streaming from his head. He had been struck from behind with a blunt instrument. When her story had been told a posse was formed and farmers joined in the search for the murderer. Suspicion rested upon Mrs. Patzer, but her apparent grief when attending the funeral accompanied by her twelve children changed the feeling of the neighbors to sympathy and her arrest and confession has caused a sensation.

EX-SHERIFF IS SENT TO JAIL

Peter Van Veigle of Green Bay Allowed Prisoners to Room and Must Serve Term for Contempt.

Milwaukee.—Ex-Sheriff Peter Van Veigle, Brown county, custodian at the jail in Green Bay, where the only rule said to have been in force was that prisoners must report at the jail by 10 o'clock p. m., was sentenced to thirty days in the house of correction by Judge A. Geiger, after he had been found guilty of dereliction of duty and contempt of the United States court.

Van Veigle is no longer in office in Brown county, as his successor, elected last November, took office at the first of the year.

Three federal prisoners, sentenced on Indian liquor charges Nov. 23, were found scattered about the city by government officials from Milwaukee, who had heard that former Sheriff Van Veigle had allowed too free a rein. One was visiting at a hotel with his wife, another was playing pool and a third was in a saloon drinking whisky, according to the district attorney. A lone old man was the only occupant of the jail.

In court, Van Veigle said he thought he was doing no wrong act and deplored the fact that he had unwittingly transgressed against the law.

"I thought the boys would like to go to their homes for Christmas day to enjoy the little family gatherings, and so I let them out. But such is the result sometimes. When you try to be kind, it seems that all you get in return is something that takes all the joy and happiness out of the expression of a good hearted action toward others."

FEW LAWYERS IN ASSEMBLY

Business Men and Farmers Lead in Lower House Membership—Newspaper Men Well Represented.

Madison.—Farmers and business men will dominate the assembly in the session of 1913. Together they constitute more than two-thirds of the membership of that body with the farmers a little in the lead, the score standing farmers 35, business men 32.

Either legislative work had no allurements for attorneys or the voters thought it time they took a subordinate place in lawmaking, as there are but fifteen members of the legal profession, all told, in the assembly.

The newspaper men are well represented in the assembly. Speaker Merrill Hull is editor of a paper at Black River Falls. This is the first time a newspaper man has occupied the speaker's chair. Besides Speaker Hull there are six assemblymen who are connected with the newspaper business.

While the assembly has only a small leaven of legal ability the senate is well supplied with attorneys. They come within three of having a majority of the upper house. Here, however, the business men show up strong, having eleven senators to fourteen who are lawyers.

The farmers are a small minority, having but seven who are classified. The list of senators is completed by two doctors.

Of the three leading classes, therefore, the legislature of 1913 shows an almost equal division, the total in both houses being: Business men, 43; farmers, 42; lawyers, 39.

Downing of Madison, chief inspector of the bureau of weights and measures, explained the value of inspection to cheesemakers. Robert A. Campbell of Madison spoke on "The Resources of Northern Wisconsin as a Dairy Region." William George Bruce of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association commended the annual dairy show and Charles Hill of Rosendale and J. J. Reed of Oconomowoc made short speeches. J. Q. Emery of Madison, dairy and food commissioner, gave an address on the work of the department.

A resolution endorsing the International Dairy Show and petitioning the state legislature to grant a yearly appropriation of $15,000 for its aid and support was passed by the convention.

The annual meeting of the International Dairy Show association will be held this month and at that meeting a reorganization will be effected by which the show will be made a Wisconsin affair primarily and a complete exposition of the cow and her products.

The following officers were elected: President, A. J. Bruhn, Madison; vice president, J. J. Reid, Oconomowoc; secretary, U. S. Baer, Madison; treasurer, F. A. Ubbelohde, Glenbeulah; directors, Jacob Karlen, Monroe; J. W. Cross, Milwaukee; P. H. Kasper, Westcross.

RIGHT TO SEAT QUESTIONED

Claim That Senator Browne Is Ineligible as Legislator Since His Election as Congressman.

Madison.—The question has been raised as to the right of Senator E. E. Browne of Waupaca to a seat in the Wisconsin legislature. Senator Browne was elected as congressman from the new Eighth district last November and some of the members are claiming that the moment he was elected to congress there was automatically a vacancy in his senatorial district and quote the constitution in support of their contention.

Friends of Senator Browne say that he has not yet accepted the office of congressman. Furthermore, they cite the case of Senator La Follette, who held the office of governor for nearly a year after he was elected United States senator.

So far as known there is no intention to make any fight on Senator Browne, but under the situation as it is, the senator's hold on his seat might at any time become precarious. One reason why the senator wishes to sit until he has to go to Washington for the special session of congress is his deep interest in the good roads bill.

CANNOT TRANSFER LICENSES

Legislation Intended to Limit Number of Saloons Says Attorney General Bancroft.

Madison.—State Attorney General Bancroft, in answer to seven inquiries propounded by the district attorney of Milwaukee county, holds that liquor licenses cannot be legally transferred from one location to another in Wisconsin. Neither can a license be transferred to another place. If such other place was not used for such traffic on June 30, 1907, there being locations available which were so used at that time. The licensing board has no right to issue a license to a new place so long as any of the old places are available. It is the duty of the licensing board to ascertain, before licensing a new place, whether any location previously licensed is available.

Want Primaries in April.

Madison.—One of the first bills to be introduced in the legislature will be a measure to hold primary elections at the time of the spring election in April. It is claimed that less than one-fifth of the farmers' vote turned out for the primary last fall.

Dahl Is Now Assistant.

Madison.—The process of appointment of Andrew H. Dahl as assistant state treasurer has been filed by State Treasurer Johnson. His salary is $2,500 per year.

Encourages Home Building.

Kenosha.—With a view of encouraging building of homes in the state, Assemblyman Pennig of this city has prepared a bill providing for an exemption of $1,000 from the taxable valuation of every homestead.

Pony Title to Waukesha Team.

Milwaukee.—The state trophy in the Wisconsin pony bowling tournament, at the Calumet club, was awarded to the Waukesha Comers. The tournament was a big success.

To Stop New Business Early.

Madison.—The legislature will probably cut off new business at least as early as Feb. 17, and possibly on Feb. 10. Persons who desire to present bills should prepare them as soon as possible.

New Bank at Clinton.

Madison.—State Banking Commissioner Kuhl has licensed the State Bank of Clinton. Capital $35,000. W. O. Newhouse is president and C. J. Smith cashier.

Three Fascinating Frocks Designed for the Really Smart Dresser

1. The new tunic in blue Liberty satin with panels of brocade, skirt edged with black fox. 2. A harmony in black velvet and white tulle, edged here and there with white fox. 3. A graceful frock in biscuit cloth with collar, sleeve revers and sash in ermine. A small red tie supplies the inevitable bright touch.

JEWEL CASE AND PINCUSHION

Double Convenience for the Woman Who Is Required to Do Considerable Traveling.

One of the most convenient little accessories to the toilet for the woman who travels about a great deal is a small jewel case and pincushion combined.

It is made of a piece of fancy ribbon or plain satin twelve inches long and six inches wide. The material is sewed together lengthwise, then divided into three parts, four inches in each, either by stitching it on the machine or with very close cross-stitch or featherstitching.

Do this stitching four inches from one side first, then fill the center with wool to form the cushion in which to stick the pins, then stitch it across four inches from the other end.

There you have a solid center with hollow end, and these ends are turned in to form a hem one inch wide. In these a small casing is run, with narrow ribbon passed through that so as to pull it up like a little bag on each end.

This makes a flat cushion in the center, having batlike ends in which the jewelry is kept, brooches, bracelets, rings, chains and the watch, when it is not in use. The cushion can be decorated with some pretty design done in cross-stitch or an embroidered initial or a small spray of flowers.

Such a case can be made of any material you may choose. Brocade satin is always pretty; plain satin covered with lace or coarse linen that can be laundered will be found a satisfactory substitute for other more expensive fabrics.

One side of the cushion may be used for jewels and the other for sewing materials—cotton, scissors, needles, etc.—or for a soft ball of darning cotton, that is always handy to have when traveling.

FEATHER-TRIMMED CHAPEAU.

This hat is composed of violet velvet, the brim being deeper over the back of the neck, and is trimmed with a plume of ostrich feathers drooping over the left side.

This hat is composed of violet velvet, the brim being deeper over the back of the neck, and is trimmed with a plume of ostrich feathers drooping over the left side.

Silk Lace Scarfs.

Silk Spanish lace scarfs, dyed to match the gown, are in favor for evening use. Some of the handsomest scarfs at present are made of a fine crepe de chine with insets of embroidered voile in the border design. One very lovely one shown by a Chestnut street importer is of a beautiful rose color, handsomely embroidered, with exquisite roses also embroidered on the large voile insets. In all the decoration the finest gradations of rose color melting into white were used.

Tray Tables.

The Tripoli tray table is a thing of parts—three in number. There is a large top tray, a small tray (which fits on supports a third way up the legs of the stand) and the folding stand. When not to use this four-legged stand may be folded and stowed away in a small space. The trays are made of bamboo, and are strong yet light in weight, and can be easily washed. This table would be very ornamental for a tea or refreshment table in a bachelor maid's den.

BEST SCENTS FOR THE BATH

Much Choice Is Possible, and a Woman May Use Any Particular Perfume Which She May Prefer.

The commonest form of the bath as a beautifier is the bran bath. This particular bath has the advantage of being inexpensive and efficient at the same time. The bran should be sewn into a neat little square sack of cheesecloth covering, and dropped to the bath when the water is run in. The water must not be too hot, or the bran will be cooked and thus rendered useless, but if warm water is poured on it a creamy mass is formed, which will render the skin delightfully soft. For those who wish to be a little more elaborate there are sold at chemists and stores little sacks of bran mixed with various perfumed herbs, according to taste, such as violets, orris root and sunflower seed.

The milk bath is not unusual, and is claimed that it has no rival in beautifying the skin. One well known beauty in Paris is understood to use milk for her bath always, and the skin of her throat and shoulders is as creamy a white as the liquid she is supposed to bathe them with. Of course, one would not actually get right into a milk bath as one does with water. The milk is applied on wads of antiseptic cotton. They, to prevent any stickiness, it is rubbed gently with eau de cologne.

French women are also very partial to the use of alcohol in the bath. It is perfumed in some way with such scents as lavender or violet, and those who indulge in these baths or the bran ones use soap only once or twice a week.

Sea bathing is probably the most bracing, but in a climate such as ours it cannot be recommended except in the hot months, unless the bather is very strong. Those who are unfortunate enough to possess very irritable skins will do well to eschew sea baths altogether.

For ordinary bathing purposes most people use ammonia or borax, which not only softens the water, but is invaluable for cleaning the skin. It is necessary, however, to exercise caution in the use of these two articles, for an overdose in the bath, instead of making the skin soft and supple, will harden it and make it much too dry.

Dark Furs Becoming.

It seems odd that so few should realize that dark furs are much more becoming than light, that is, to the average woman. Sable, mink, black fox, make her complexion look as if very best, whereas ermine, white fox, miniver and squirrel have exactly the contrary effect.

The newest way of wearing the stole is to put the middle of it on in front, pass the ends over the shoulders, crossing them at the back and bringing them forward under the arms. Even fur capes with their rounded or pointed back are worn in this fashion, certainly very warm and comfortable, though slightly unorthodox.

Art in Making Bows.

A woman who can tie a bow well possesses an inborn talent not to be easily acquired. Bow makers in some dress centers have a calling of their own. We want bows for sashes, millinery, and so many purposes. The new Japanese sash bow has four short loops and two ends of uneven length. For lingerie there is the shower rosette of narrow ribbon with knotted ends, and the pin wheel with six short loops all the same length and two ends knotted into a circle. The pin wheel rosette is figure in children's millinery, especially in gauze ribbon. Very pretty for ball or evening head-dress is a twisted band of gold and silver ribbon with roses and buds made of satin ribbon. Ribbon flowers are greatly worn, so are all kinds of daisies made of white ribbon with yellow centers, and large roses are easily constructed of soft satin.

Tomatoes and Mushrooms.

Cut some large tomatoes into halves, scoop out some of the pulp, mix it with 10 or 12 chopped button mushrooms, two ounces of bread crumbs, pepper and salt to taste and an ounce of butter. Fill the tomatoes with this mixture, bake in a moderate oven.

DISHES FOR DINNER.

Here is an unusual Creole Gumbo: Joint and fry a young chicken until tender in butter, an onion, a clove of garlic and a tablespoonful of flour. When the chicken is brown, pour over it enough water to cook it, gently simmering for an hour. Just before serving add a generous tablespoonful of ground saffron and season with cayenne and salt. Oysters may be added, if liked, and should be in the liquor just long enough to curl the edges. In serving this dish, put a spoonful of rice on each plate and place the Creole Gumbo on this.

Falsin Cookies.—Cream together one cupful of butter and two cupfuls of sugar, add two well beaten eggs, two cups of raisins, stewed and chopped fine, two tablespoonfuls of sour cream, one tablespoonful of nutmeg, two of cinnamon, and two teaspoonfuls of soda, with flour enough to make a soft dough. Bake in a quick oven, watching carefully, as these cookies burn easily.

Cherry Pudding.—Mix together the following ingredients: One and a third cups of sugar, butter the size of an egg, one cup of milk, two cups of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, the yolk of an egg and the white beaten stiff and added. Pour this batter over a quart of cherries from which the juice has been drained, and steam for half an hour. To make the sauce, mix a tablespoonful of flour with a little of the juice; add to the remainder with a tablespoonful of butter, a dash of nutmeg and sugar to sweeten. Cook until smooth.

A pretty dessert is prepared by cutting bananas in halves lengthwise; spread them with raspberry jam and put the slices together. Lay on a plate and heap sweetened whipped cream over the fruit.

EVERY DAY FOOD.

The following are some of the common dishes which we like to know how to prepare well. When a piece of round steak seems to be hopeless, use the edge of a saucer and pound it until well cut, sprinkle with flour, season with salt and pepper and a bit of onion, and saute in a little butter until well browned, then cover with boiling water and just simmer on the back of the stove or, better, cook an hour or two in a freless cooker.

Doughnuts.—During the winter there is nothing that tastes quite so good for breakfast as a good doughnut. The following is a well tested recipe. Beat together two eggs and a cup and three-fourths of sugar; beat until the sugar is dissolved, then add a half teaspoonful of salt, a cup and a fourth of sour milk and a fourth of a cup of sour cream, a teaspoonful of soda and nutmeg for flavoring. Use as little flour as possible for rolling and cutting, and chill the dough before rolling out.

Graham Gems.—To a cup of sifted graham flour add a cup of sour milk, an egg, a half teaspoon of salt, a teaspoonful of soda, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and three tablespoonfuls of shortening. Bake in gem pans.

Coffee Cake.—Warm three-fourths of a cup of shortening, beat three eggs very light, stir a half cup of sugar and a cup of raisins with the other ingredients into five cupfuls of bread sponge. Mix well, add flour and set to rise in a pan in which it is to bake. When light, spread with butter, sprinkle well with sugar and cinnamon and bake.

Popovers.—Sift together a cup of flour and a teaspoonful of salt; mix with a cup of milk and when smooth add two well beaten eggs. Bake in hot greased pans. Too hot an oven will keep them from rising.

Rice Griddle Cakes.—Mix and sift a teaspoonful of baking powder, a half teaspoonful of salt, with two and a half cups of flour; add two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, an egg and a cup and a half of milk with a half cup of cold cooked rice. Cook the same as any griddle cakes.

Nellie Maxwell.

Everything All Right.
Little Mildred had been repeatedly coached on table manners the day a noted minister from the city was to be entertained to supper, and toward the close of the meal her fond mother was congratulating herself upon the perfect deportment of the child. When in a lull of the conversation she took a searching glance around the table and announced: "Nope, nobody's got their elbows on the table."

A busy tongue is responsible for much idle talk.

Benefit.
"After all," remarked Mr. Growcher, "the trusts are of great benefit to the public."

"In what way?"
"They give people with family troubles some one to talk about."

Sometimes Doubtful.

"Do you think a college education pays?"
"Well, I must confess that there are times just after I have attended fraternity banquets, when I am inclined to think it doesn't."

HOW TO CURE RHEUMATISM

Prominent Doctor's Best Prescription Easily Mixed at Home.

This simple and harmless formula has worked wonders for all who have tried it quickly curing chronic and acute rheumatism and backache. "From your druggist get one ounce of Toris compound (his original sealed package) and one ounce of syrup of Sarsaparilla compound. Take these two ingredients home and put them in a half pint of good whiskey. Shake the bottle and take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bedtime. Good results come after the first few doses. If your druggist does not have Toris compound in stock he will get it for you in a few hours from his wholesale house. Don't be influenced to take a patent medicine instead of this. Insist on having the genuine Toris compound in the original one-ounce sealed, yellow package. This was published here last winter and hundreds of the worst cases were cured by it in a short time. Published by the Globe Pharmaceutical Laboratories of Chicago.

Why He Changed His Mind.
John L. Sullivan met with some amusing incidents while giving boxing lessons.

One day a husky young man came to him as a pupil. He took his boxing lesson and went home somewhat the worse for wear.

When he came for his second lesson he said: "Mr. Sullivan, it was my idea to learn enough about boxing from you to give a certain young gentleman a good licking. I've had it in for him a good while. But I've changed my mind. If you have no objections I'll send this young man down here to you to take the rest of my lessons for me."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Collecting Antiquities.
Sloppy received a card on which was engraved: "Professor Brace, Antiquarian."

He knew no such person, so his curiosity led him to receive him.

"What is your business, professor?" he asked, politely.

"I am a collector of antiquities," answered the old man.

"So I imagined. And how can I serve you?"

"By paying a deposit on this little bill you have owed for more than three years."

Army Officer Mustn't Umpire.

It is found in the army that it will not do to let officers act as umpires in ball games and orders have been issued to forbid it. It seems that players take advantage of the great American baseball player's right to abuse the umpire, and it is found that it destroys the army discipline, when the umpire is an officer, to have privates call him such names as "mutt," "bone-head," etc.

Public Would Gain.

"In looking over this paper I find that Mr. Proskawicz Ignalczinski and Miss Malonczek Winkczadiakowski are engaged to be married."

"I am very glad to hear it."

"Why? What interest have you in it? Do you know them?"

"No, but I consider it a matter for public rejoicing that these two names are to be made one."—Stray Stories.

By HORACE HAZELTINE

COPYRIGHT, 1912, A. C. McCLURG & CO.

SYNOPSIS.

Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The latter promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room. Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron. Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree, where it had been used as a target.

CHAPTER III—(Continued).

"There are two ways of looking at it," I replied, my eyes fixed on the canvas and its perforations. "At first glance it does seem spiteful; but then there is a chance that it is not iconoclasm, after all. It may be, you know, just the reverse. I have not infrequently seen portraits that were so unjust to the originals that they fairly cried out for destruction."

"But this is not one like that," she retorted. "This seems to me a very good portrait. I am sure Uncle Robert must have looked exactly like it, ten years ago."

"Alas, we do not all see with the same eyes," I assured her, smiling. "The destroyer may have looked on it as caricature, not having your cultured taste in art." I held it off at arm's length, and after regarding it critically for a moment between half-closed lids, I continued, "Do you think you could point out the identical tree to which it was nailed?"

"I could try," was her answer. "Is it far?"

"Not very. A mile, from here, possibly. Over the ridge."

"Near anything in particular?"

"The trail which leads up from the trout stream to the entrance drive, not far from the Lodge."

"When will you take me there?" I asked.

For just an instant she hesitated. "We might go now," she replied, "if it weren't that I am expecting Celia Ainslee for luncheon. Suppose we say five o'clock. You can meet me at the Lodge. It's a short walk from there."

"Fine!" I approved, trusting the portrait head beneath my arm and taking possession of both her white-gloved hands. I thanked her and shapely hands, yet wonderfully capable. "Good-by!" she cried, laughing. "Take care of my uncle!" with a glance towards her punctured find.

"Good-by!" I returned, releasing her. "Your uncle shall have my most faithful concern."

The real significance of the words she, of course, did not comprehend. But as I stood watching her until a turn in the path ended her from my sight, their echo, ringing in my ears, impressed me with their pregnancy. Her uncle was evidently the focal point of a crafty and venal conspiracy, the seriousness of which I had been foolishly endeavoring to minimize; and as such, he was in need, not only of my concern, but of all the loyal, energetic, and efficient aid of which I was capable.

CHAPTER IV.

The Chinese Servant.

Four o'clock found me rapping at the door of Cragholt Lodge. Considering that it was built thirty-five years ago by one of the Townsbury family who probably read English novels but had never been nearer to England than Coney Island, it possessed a surprising picturesqueness; due in large part to its covering of dark English ivy.

I had anticipated my appointment with Evelyn by a full hour; for I wished to question old Romney, the lodge keeper; and the questions were not for millady's ear.

He opened to me promptly, in person, this odd, rugged old man, with his seamed brow and great shock of iron-gray hair and beard. He was in his shirt sleeves, but on seeing me he reached for his coat, which hung on a peg beside the door.

"Never mind the coat, Romney," I said, "don't make yourself uncomfortable on my account. It's a warm afternoon."

"It is warmish, sir," he assented; "but despite my protest he was thrusting his arm into the coat sleeves. 'It's been an uncommon hot September. Won't you step inside, sir?'"

He knew his place too well to indicate any surprise at my visit; yet I felt he must be curious over an event so unusual.

"I have an inquiry or two to make, Romney," I told him, as, accepting his suggestion, I stepped into his cosy, old-fashioned sitting room. "I heard some shooting over this way this morning, and I've been wondering whether the game laws weren't being broken."

He placed a cushioned rocking-chair for me, and I sat down. "Now did you hear that, too, Mr. Clyde?" he asked, brightening, as he leaned against the low sill of one of the daintily curtained windows. "Twas about ten o'clock, sir; a little after, maybe. I was doin' a bit of trimmin' on the hedge outside, sir, when them same shots set me a-thinkin' that't was very thing. An' right away, sir, I says to myself, says I, 'It's that Chink what just went up to the house to borrow a rifle.'"

"That Chink?" I repeated, puzzled. "Yes, sir. Yellow Chinese boy, sir. He works for Mr. Murphy, the artist, what has the bungalow, down on the shore near Cos Cob. About half an hour before that he comes by here on his way up to the house. 'What's wantin'?' I asks. 'Mistle Mulry,' he says, 'wantee borrow rifle, shoote weasel, ateechee chickee.' 'All right,' I tells him, and away he goes. So, you see, sir, when I hears the shots I thinks right away that Mr. Murphy's Chink is tryin' his 'borrowed rifle' on some of Mr. Cameron's pheasants, maybe. But 15 minutes later, along comes John again, with an innocent grin on his face, the rifle over his shoulder, and his hands empty as air. Well, to be sure, I stops him, sir. 'You been shootin' in the woods?' I asks. 'No shootee,' he grins back. 'Me no shootee.' Then, sir, I swears at him, good and hearty, and calls him what he is. But all he can say is, 'No lie; me no shootee.' Then I asks him if he didn't hear a gun go off. 'Gua?' he says, as if he didn't know what gun meant. 'Lige,' I explains. 'Yes, yes,' says he, 'me hear life shootee. Not my life.' 'Whose life?' I asks him. 'Man with life, up load,' he says, pointing back. 'An' that was all I could get out of him, sir.'

I should have been amused, I suppose, by old Romney's recital. It was certainly very graphic, and his imitation of the Chinaman was historically artistic—I fear the stage missed a comedian of merit when Romney took to lodge-keeping—but at the first mention of the oriental, I had prickled my ears, and throughout the narration my mind was busy with those strangely worded letters of Cameron's and those still stranger biographies which looked one way like a Chinese junk and the other way like a coolie in a straw helmet. The possibility of a connection, especially in view of the rifle and the perforated painting, seemed to me the reverse of remote. And yet I could hardly reconcile the notion of this apparently ignorant Mongolian being in any wise interested in bringing disaster upon a person so far removed from him in every way as was Cameron; much less in evolving or taking part in such a crafty plot as everything we had thus far learned of it indicated this to be.

My questioning of Romney shed very little new light on the subject. He had seen the Chinaman pass the Lodge on several occasions; he had rarely entered the grounds, however. I tried to ascertain what his "rarely" meant, and finally got him to say that in the past six months, "John," as he called him, had visited Cragholt, on one pretext or another, possibly three or four times. But Romney's memory for dates was exceedingly feeble. He could not recollect whether one of those times was on or about the twenty-first of August. He was equally at a loss concerning the fourteenth of August and the fourteenth of September.

"What do you know of this artist, Murphy, who employs John?" I asked.

"Not much, sir," was his answer. "They do say he is rather eccentric, sir. He and the Chink lives alone there in the bungalow, summer and winter. He's a big red-headed and bearded fellow, sir. I did hear a story as to him gettin' into a fight up at Garrison's hotel in Greenwich village, and nearly killin' three young water-men near as big as himself."

"Has he lived here long?"

"Goin' on two years, now, sir."

"He paints and sells pictures, I suppose?"

"Maybe, sir. I never sees any, though. But they calls him an artist, sir."

I determined to visit Murphy on the pretext of purchasing some of his work, and in this manner learn, if possible, something more of his celestial servitor.

"Of course you didn't see any one else with a rifle, today?" I asked, in conclusion. "The man with life up load" didn't materialize?"

"No, sir. Not another soul, sir. I asked some of the boys—them as has charge of the deer in the preserve, over the way the shootin' sounded, but they hadn't seen no one, either, sir. Though they did hear the shots."

I thanked Romney for his interest—the kink I was one of the state game warden's—and admonished him to keep his own counsel as to my visit, leaving the impression with him that I wished to round up the culprit, and feared if my activity in the matter were scented my prey would be put on his guard and thus escape me.

It still lacked twenty minutes of the hour of my appointment with Evelyn when I issued from the Lodge, and to occupy the time I entered the wide gateway between the great stone pillars with their heraldic shields, and sauntered leisurely along the smooth macadam drive, bordered by sentinel elms.

My thoughts were busy with the new line of conjecture which Romney had unconsciously opened up for me. I wondered whether by any possibility this eccentric painter, Murphy, could be personally involved. Was Cameron acquainted with him? Had Romney ever quarreled? From what Romney had told me of the affair at Garrison's the artist was evidently of a bellicose disposition. He had come here two years ago. Cameron had owned Cragholt less than a year. Perhaps at the time he was preparing the mansion for occupancy he had offended the too sensitive Murphy, who—I was letting my imagination run free—may have wished to take a hand at the new decoration. It would probably be well for me to see Cameron before seeing the artist. The involutions of my hypothetical train led me, I fear, into many monstrous preposterous conceits; yet, as subsequent events proved, the cogitation in which I indulged on that afternoon walk was not wholly idle. Although the working out was along lines which I was then far from foreseeing, it was curious, in looking back, to observe how very closely, collaterally, even at that stage, I came to the truth.

In the midst of my reverie, the rhythm of horse's hoofs on the drive awoke me to time and place. And as I raised my eyes, I saw, still some distance away, but bearing down upon me at a swift single-foot, the girlish figure of Evelyn Grayson, in white waist and gray habit, mounted on Prince Charley, a buckskin cayuse, which for saddle purposes she preferred to all the thoroughbreds in the Cameron stables.

"Am I late?" she cried, reining the wiry little animal to a stand beside me. "Celia Ainslee just left. She was expecting the Lenthons to stop for her in their motor boat, but they broke down and were delayed, and instead of coming at three o'clock, it was half-past four before they landed."

"I fancy you are just on the minute," was my response, as I consulted my timepiece.

"But I'm still a mile from the Lodge," she argued.

"And all the nearer to the trail," I condoned. "It must be somewhere about here, isn't it?"

"You've passed it. It's just beyond that next bend." And she pointed over my shoulder.

"Why didn't you bring a groom with you to hold your stead?" I asked, smiling. "You don't expect to ride Prince Charley into the forest fastnesses, do you?"

"I could," she answered, promptly. "I will, if you dare me. He can pick his way like a cat. But it isn't necessary. He'll stand forever, the dear thing, if I drop the bridle rein over his head."

My preference was to have her on foot at my side, and so I did not leave her. And thus it chanced that we left the homely little animal standing with drooping head and dangling rein on the shadowed side of the drive-way, and went off together down the narrow, slow-descending trail, the girl in the lead.

The slanting sunlight, shooting its golden arrows in intermittent volleys through the tree tops, made target of her hair, as we passed, scoring brilliant flashes of burnished bronze. Her hat, a broad-brimmed sailor of coarse straw, was but a poor shield for that shimmering, tawny coil which lay low on her neck, and the darling rays had their will with it. I have never before or since seen hair just like Evelyn Grayson's. There was such a wealth of it, and its color was so elusive. Under dim lights it seemed a prosaic brown, but with small encouragement it changed to a light fawn, streaked with lustrous topaz strands; which in the sun's blaze became a dazzling bronze glory.

"I'm pretty sure I can find the tree," she asserted, as she swung along with that free, lissome stride which I loved. "It is an old, dead chestnut, a great giant of the woods, imposing even in death; and it stands only a half-dozen yards off the trail. I was looking for ferns, or I never in the world should have come upon it. How do you imagine that thing ever got away off here? And who could have stuck it up that dead tree trunk?"

"That is precisely what I should like to find out," was my reply. "It seems very mysterious to me. About what time was it, when you discovered it?"

"Just before I met you."

"Had you heard any shooting in the woods, before that?"

"Shooting?" she queried, apparently surprised. "No. Was some one shooting?"

"I understood so. Poaching, I imagine. After some of Cameron's fat pheasants."

"But it's out of season," she declared, promptly.

"That makes small difference with a poacher."

Her belief in her ability to lead me to the tree of which we were in quest was not unfounded. Twice she paused and peered in between the gray trunks which grew close to our path; once she took a step off the trail, pending in keen-eyed search of certain familiar landmarks. There were the only interruptions to what was otherwise a straight march to the goal.

When, at length, we reached it, she identified it beyond question, and I had little difficulty in finding the nail from which the piece of canvas had been suspended. It was one of thin wire, with very small head, driven into the tree at a distance of about four and a half feet from the ground. Just beneath it I found four scattered bullet holes, with the bullets too deeply embedded to be extracted with so poor a tool as a pocket knife.

From this it was evident that the shots had been fired at comparatively short range, as indeed they must have been, seeing that the trees here grew so thickly as to make impossible any very extended line of sight upon the target.

Somewhat to Evelyn's perplexity I began making a careful inspection of the ground, not only about the tree, but as far away from it as the range of vision extended.

"What are you looking for?" she demanded, with a show of concern, and, I thought, a little peevishly.

"Footprints," I answered, laughing. "Behold the American Sherlock!"

"Have you found any?"

"Only Cinderella's," and that put her in good humor.

But I found something of much more importance than the indentations of shoe soles. I found it very near the foot of the tree, just below where the painting had hung. It was half hidden by underbrush, and at first I mistook it for a stone. Unobserved by Evelyn, I slipped it into my pocket.

"After all," I said to her, "there's not very much to be learned here, is there?"

CHAPTER V.

Found Dead.

My motor boat, which had been running swiftly and smoothly, with the least possible clamor from the exhaust, suddenly missed a stroke and then, after a succession of choking spasms, ceased all effort, and gradually losing headway, drifted idly with the tide.

"Well done, Jerry," I whispered from my seat in the stern to the capable young Irishman who was bending over the motor—whispered, because, as all the world knows, the water is a sounding board, and I had no intention of permitting any one on shore to hear my words of approval.

To all appearances the motor had broken down, and we were voyagers in distress.

"The tide's settin' in," murmured Jerry. "Unless I miss me guess, it'll land us on his beach inside o' five minutes, sir."

The slender scallop of a new moon had set an hour before, but the night was luminously clear, and the stars blazed with an almost southern effulgence. There was very little breeze and the waters of the Mianus were scarcely rippled. The air was chill, however, though now and then there came to us a warm breath from the fields which all day long had lain baking in the fervent sunshine. Along the shore to our left we caught the glint of lights from the summer cottages.

To Jerry Rooney every inch of the little bay and river was familiar. Each light was for him a landmark; and so, as much by intuition as careful calculation, he had clogged the engine at a point whence, taking tide and current into consideration, we might count upon drifting to the water end of Artist Murphy's lawn.

As we drew nearer and he stealthily pointed out to me the location, I was able to decry a little grove of trees, black in the starlight, making a horizontal barrier across the limited enclosure, and hiding, like a rope portiere, the bungalow from the river. Through this no lights penetrated, and I began to doubt that, after all my pains, I should find at home the object of my taking.

A catboat, with sail wrinkling in the uncertain breeze, glided by us, almost too near for comfort, and we caught a sentence, two sentences, in fact, from the conversation of the occupants:

"Nobody knows him," in clear, ringing masculine tones; and, "He's handsome, if he is surly, in a woman's voice."

I wondered if they were speaking of Murphy. My telephone inquiry of Cameron and subsequent questioning of the men about my place had proved to me that both observations would apply. No one seemed to know very much of this brawny, sandy giant, in spite of his two year's residence in the neighborhood.

Now the shore's shadow was engulfing us, and the next moment, with a gentle swish of water, we felt the boat's bottom graze on the pebbly beach. There was a landing a short distance further up—a spindling wooden pier—and to this Jerry, knee deep in the black water, turned the boat and made it fast.

The prospect stared over the creaking planks was about as hospitable as the grim walls of a prison. The tree barrier rose stark and forbidding a dozen yards away. Between it and the river was a combination of pebbles, sand, high grass, and ragged overgrown lawn, faintly visible in the starlight. On nearer approach, however, we found an opening in the curtain of trees, a veritable valley of shadow, through which we passed to a strip of neglected sward and a squat, unpainted weather-beaten cottage of a single story, with vine-screened verandah.

And in what seemed to us the very center of the house front, there shone a tiny glowing point of red fire. We had not come altogether in vain. By all the odds of chance, it was a safe conclusion that Murphy, in propria persona, was behind that lighted end of a cigar. Then we saw the point move, describing a half circle, and simultaneously a voice rang out—a deep, sonorous voice, but of churlish intonation:

"What do you want here?"

I suppose he expected me to come to a sudden halt, but I was then only a few steps distant from the verandah, and as I answered him, I covered that distance.

"My motor boat ran out of gasoline," said, "and drifted to your beach. I was in hopes we might borrow enough to get us home."

I saw him now, dimly in the shadowed recess. He was seated facing me, a creature of great bulk, with huge head and ponderous shoulders. "I don't keep gasoline," was his gruff response.

"I thought—" I began, but his next utterance drowned my words.

"I say I don't keep it," he reiterated, in louder tones. "Isn't that plain?"

"Oh, quite. You have neither gasoline nor good manners."

I saw him rise, a massive tower dwarfing his surroundings, and take a step forward to the edge of his porch.

"This is my house and my castle," he flung at me, savagely, "and I won't stand for trespassers. If you two don't want to be flung off my property, it would be advisable for you to make haste in going."

My laugh was not calculated to save his ill humor, yet I think he must have been softened by either his size or his threats.

"Your name's Murphy, I think," I ventured, calmly, not moving an inch but he made no response.

"Mine is Clyde," I went on; "I am one of the state game warden's."

"I'm not interested in who you are," he growled.

"But I'm interested in learning what your Chinaman was doing this morning, over on the Cameron place."

"Then find out, where he is, if he dares to come another step nearer this house, I'll throw the pair of you over the hedge, neck and crop. Do you hear me?"

"And if you dare to interfere with an officer or his deputy in the discharge of his duty, the authorities will settle with you," was my calm rejoinder. "Trot ahead, Jerry! His bark's worse than his bite."

Jerry, quick to obey, disappeared on the instant around the corner of the bungalow, and Murphy, after a pretended dash forward, halted on the lower porch step.

"See here!" he demanded, cumbrously. "What's all this, anyhow? You come here after gasoline, ostensibly, and then declare you're game warden after a law-defying Chinese poacher."

Bones of Ancient Giant

Amazing Discovery in Oregon Is of Great Interest to Anthropologists.

The discovery of the bones of a human giant at Ellensburg is one of the most interesting anthropological finds made in the northwest, according to L. L. Sharp, chief of the general land office. "I just returned from Ellensburg," said he, "where I had opportunity to view the bones and other parts of the largest skeleton indicated a frame of the head is one of the most remarkable I ever have studied among prehistoric skulls. It is massive, with enormous brain space. While the forehead slopes down somewhat, not averaging the abrupt eminence of our present race, the width between the ears and the deep, wide-browed space at the back of the head are convincing testimony of high intelligence for a primitive man. The cheekbones are not high, like those of the Indian, nor has the head any resemblance to the Indian skull. I am convinced that this skull is of a prehistoric man who was one of a remarkable race of people who inhabited this part of America some time prior to the Indian control."

The bones were uncovered fully 20 feet beneath the surface. There is the usual gravel formation on top, then the conglomerate, a stratum of shale, and in a bed of concrete gravel beneath the shale were the bones of the giant and of a smaller person. The shale would indicate tremendous age, perhaps more than 1,000,000 years, for the deposit in which the skeleton was found. But this I deem impossible, and presume that the bones were put beneath the shale by means of a tunnel perhaps, or some other system of interment. I cannot think it possible that a human being of the advanced stage indicated by this great skull could have existed at the period when the shale was formed."—Portland (Ore.) Telegram.

World's Largest Index.

On Beacon Hill in Boston, under the golden dome of the state house, is one of the largest indexes in the world. In fact, the Russian public index is the only one known to be larger. More than nine million names, giving births, marriages and deaths in Massachusetts from 1843, make a complete record, showing not only where people were born and where they died, but also statistics which are vital in making up calculations. Before this time the records were kept in the different towns, but now they are all concentrated in the state house in Boston. In a relatively small space all these records are preserved, and as births, marriages and deaths come in, different forms of cards are used, and a great variety of names, Grecian, Assyrian, Italian, and others now mingle with good old New England names that have been on the records since the landing of the Mayflower.

Gas Engines in High Altitudes.

A gas engine was erected several thousand feet above sea level. The engine did not give the power expected and it was concluded that the loss was due to the altitude of the station. Upon investigation of the theoretical and practical considerations involved it was found that there is a loss of about 1 per cent. of the indicated horsepower for each 1,000 feet of increase in elevation. The effect with a low ratio of compression is slightly less than with a high degree of compression.—Science Spectator.

RASH ALMOST COVERED FACE

Warrenville, O.—"I have felt the effects of blood poisoning for eighteen years. I was never without some eruptions on my body. The terrible itching caused me much suffering and discomfort, while the rubbing and scratching made it worse. Last spring I had a terrible breaking out of blistering sores on my arms and limbs. My face and arms were almost covered with rash. I could not sleep and lost nineteen pounds in five weeks. My face was terribly red and sore, and felt as if my skin was on fire. At last I tried a sample of Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and I found them so cool, soothing and healing, that I got some Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Resolvent. I bathed with hot water and Cuticura Soap, then I applied the Cuticura Ointment every night for two months, and I am cured of all skin eruptions." (Signed) Mrs. Kathryn Kraft, Nov. 28, 1911.

"Aw, what do they swear off?" a striker incredulously demanded. "They swear off their personal property tax!" was the reply.

Women Avoid Operations

When a woman suffering from some form of feminine disorder is told that an operation is necessary, it of course frightens her.

The very thought of the hospital operating table and the surgeon's knife strikes terror to her heart, and no wonder. It is quite true that some of these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but thousands of women have avoided the necessity of an operation by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This fact is attested by the grateful letters they write to us after their health has been restored.

These Two Women Prove Our Claim.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and was fat and could do almost anything."

Charlotte, N. C.—"I was in bad health for two years, with pains in both sides and was very nervous. If I even lifted a chair it would cause a hemorrhage. I had a growth which the doctor said was a tumor and I never would get well unless I had an operation. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I gladly say that I am now enjoying fine health and am the mother of a nice baby girl. You can use this letter to help other suffering women."—Mrs. ROSA SMITH, 16 Wyona St., Charlotte, N. C.

Now answer this question if you can. Why should a woman submit to a surgical operation without first giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? You know that it has saved many others—why should it fail in your case?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs. It has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

A HIDDEN DANGER

It is a duty of the kidneys to rid the blood of uric acid, an irritating poison that is constantly forming inside. When the kidneys fail, uric acid causes rheumatic attacks, headaches, dizziness, gravel, urinary troubles, weak eyes, dropsy or heart disease.

Doan's Kidney Pills help the kidneys fight off uric acid—bringing new strength to weak kidneys and relief from backache and urinary ills.

HAD ALL THE BEST OF IT

Wise Girl Selected for Husband Man Who Had Both Seasons for Garnering Wealth.

"Daughter," said the anxious father to the eldest daughter of a brood of seven, "your mother tells me that you have had a proposal."

"Yes, father, I have," demurely replied the young woman. "In fact, I have received several."

"I hear the ice man proposed to you?"

"He did."

"And you accepted him, of course?"

"I did not."

"Unwise child! Think of the money he coasts every summer!"

"The plumber also proposed."

"Ah! That is better. A man of untold wealth garnered every winter. Beyond doubt you told him 'yes!'"

"No, father."

"What-a-a-t? Do you mean to tell me you let so golden an opportunity slip by ungrasped?"

"Yes, father. You see, I accepted a man who sells ice in summer and is a plumber in winter."

"Ah, daughter! Fly to my arms! You make me weep with pride!"

Sanctimonious Penny.
Jerome S. McWade, the millionaire collector of Duluth, was appealing on the Mauretania for a seaman's fund.

"Let the collection be generous," he said. "We want none of the penny and quarter parable here."

A penny and a quarter, side by side in a pocket, fell into conversation.

"I'm worth $5 of you," said the quarter haughtily.

"That's true," replied the humble penny, "but in one respect, sir, I'm superior to yourself."

"Pshaw; how so?" said the quarter.

"I go to church, sir, far, far oftener than you," replied the penny.

Spilled Her Secret.
"My first husband and I kept our marriage a secret for nearly a year."

"Didn't you find it rather difficult?"

"Oh, not, not at all. We could have gone on for a much longer time if the horrible reporters hadn't been snooping around when I applied for my divorce."

Great Effects.
"What is that terrible noise?" asked the pedestrian.

"That," replied the policeman, "is caused by an ordinary one-cent safety pin sticking into a $3,000,000 baby."

Proper Rescue.
"How did you come out of the tilt you had with the beauty doctor?"

"Well, I managed to save my face."

Turn on the back-biter and say it to his face.

A man can never remember what a girl said when she proposed to him.

DREADED TO EAT.
A Quaker Couple's Experience.

How many persons dread to eat their meals, although actually hungry nearly all the time?

Nature never intended this should be so, for we are given a thing called appetite that should guide us as to what the system needs at any time and can digest.

But we get in a hurry, swallow our food very much as we shovel coal into the furnace, and our sense of appetite becomes unnatural and perverted. Then we eat the wrong kind of food or eat too much, and there you are—indigestion and its accompanying miseries.

A Phila. lady said:
"My husband and I have been sick and nervous for 15 or 20 years from drinking coffee—feverish, indigestion, totally unfit, a good part of the time, for work or pleasure. We actually dreaded to eat our meals. (Tea is just as injurious, because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)"

"We tried doctors and patent medicines that cost up into hundreds of dollars, with little if any benefit."

"Accidentally, a small package of Postum came into my hands. I made some according to directions, with surprising results. We both liked it and have not used any coffee since."

"The dull feeling after meals has left us and we feel better every day. We are so well satisfied with Postum that we recommend it to our friends who have been made sick and nervous and miserable by coffee." Name given upon request. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pigs.

Postum now comes in concentrated, powder form, called Instant Postum. It is prepared by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water, adding sugar to taste, and enough cream to bring the color to golden brown.

Instant Postum is convenient; there's no waste; and the flavor is always uniform. Sold by grocers—50-cup tin 30c, 100-cup tin 50c.

A 5-cup trial tin mailed for grocer's name and 2-cent stamp for postage. Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich. Adv.

NOTES from MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Keep the sows warm.

The busy hen lays best.

Keep the boar by himself.

Maintain regularity in all things.

Green bone is very rich in phosphate of lime.

Chickens will not stand crowding, they are too warm blooded.

Nothing is more desirable in horrefresh than tractability and gentleness.

When the days are long, some people have just that much more time to kill.

If the market value of feed is unsatisfactory, sell it to the cows and shoats.

Sheep, if given half a chance, and if of good healthy stock are sure to pay their way.

Keep off the surplus fat by feeding muscle-producing foods and giving plenty of exercise.

Remember that the wood ashes are the best kind of fertilizer for the orchard, lawn or garden.

Skim milk from the right kind of separator has left in it only a half of 1 per cent of butter fat.

Beg, borrow or buy all the wood ashes you can use in the garden; work it well into the soil.

Celery delights in a low, rich, heavy, moist soil and is usually grown upon the same land year after year.

Save every bit of the hen manure. Keep it dry and put it on some crop next spring. Worth its weight in gold.

Keep a close watch over the suckling colts. A blemish or an injury now may ruin the value of the future horse.

Cows will not give better milk than the feed you place before them. They can't. Give only the best and the purest food.

Experienced onion growers do not advise or follow the practice of planting onions on raw or new land as a first crop.

The man who dubbed the hog a "mortgage lifter" was posted; he knew something of the possibilities of the animal.

A small flock of vigorous sheep on the farm, if given good care, cannot help but yield good returns for the money invested.

The land that was plowed in the fall for next year's garden will work up better than that that must be plowed in the spring.

A mixture of corn and oats—two parts oats to one of corn—is a good working ration. Cracked corn is preferable to finely ground.

Breeding ewes and store sheep will winter well on good, bright wheat straw and stubble grasses and half pound of corn given to each daily.

Draft horses continue to be the leading market animals, best on the farm, best in the market and one of the prosperous live stock propositions for 1913.

A feeder may have his bin full of grain, but unless he has sufficient roughage to balance up the ration he will be shy on his profit at the end of the season.

Frequent cultivation of the garden reduces the damage done by cut worms. Cultivation exposes the worms to the sun, which is often fatal to them.

Keep over a few of the best ewes of your own breeding each year, even though they are not so good as you might buy. It will make your flock more uniform all the time.

A successful way that turkeys can be grown is to hatch them under hens (chicken hens preferred) and brood them with turkey hens that are two or more years of age.

The cellar needs a little thought these days. Ventilate well at night and shut the doors and windows during the daytime. You can keep the cool night air in and the warmer air out.

One way to supply forage is to save all forage from the corn field by cutting the tops of the stalks off just above the ears. Of course this should be done before the fodder becomes quite dry.

The value of skim milk as a food for young and growing pigs has long been recognized and several experiment stations have made comparative tests with other feeds obtaining quite similar results.

In cleaning the separator be sure to see that all the parts are dried so that they will not rust; still the drying should not be done with a cloth, as much of the fat will be left, and on this there will be a large number of bacteria. Boiling water will cause the parts to dry quickly and evenly, and will be a death to many of the bacteria.

Two pastures are better than one because with them the hogs can be separated. If it is not the intention to use both pastures at once there can be a supply of green feed on hand all times.

A good dairy bull should die of old age in your service. Don't think because he is going over a dozen years of age and is yet keeping up in health strength and producing many heifer calves that it is time soon to get rid of him, for it isn't.

If you haven't a respectable sized orchard on the place, don't stand in your own light any longer but set one out. The preserves, jams, marmalades, etc., that you enjoy so much through the fall and winter should remind you of the necessity of having a first-class and good-sized orchard.

Wash your hands with clean water before commencing to milk each cow.

The most important factor in soil improvement is growing leguminous crops.

The easiest way to eradicate weeds on the farm is to prevent their going to seed.

A shed of crotches and poles, covered with straw, is cheap, warm and businesslike.

Don't feed the brood sow heavy rations of corn when within a month of farrowing.

Keep dust and stuff out of your milk. You can't strain it out. Remember that.

The ability to produce profit is a standard by which all farm stock must be measured.

Silage made of corn and soy beans is more digestible than that made from corn silage alone.

You can weaken the constitution of your horse by making them carry a burden of useless flesh.

Whole oats placed on a dry, raised platform are a most profitable feed for young and growing pigs.

Oat straw is a pretty good substitute and makes very good roughage when fed with plenty of grain.

The Ayrshire and Guernsey type of dairy cattle are increasing in favor in the middle western states.

Individual excellence is the only safe guide to be depended upon in selecting cows to build up a good herd.

Some day we are going to find that as good a way as any to use the surplus sour milk is to give it to the hens.

Hens need green food

Ventilate the hen house.

Fruit is splendid medicine.

Dogs and chickens don't mix.

Half-bred cows give half-pails of milk.

A draft horse should have a large chest and square shoulders.

Keep the stable clean and well ventilated, and free from draught.

Put not your faith in the gentle bull more than in the vicious one.

Wash your hands with clean water before commencing to milk each cow.

Some day we are going to find that as good a way as any to use the surplus sour milk is to give it to the hens.

One good dairy cow of the right constitution is more of an adjunct than several beefy animals with poor udders.

Has the kitchen garden a raspberry patch? They are hardy, excellent bearers, and certainly one of the most delicious fruits.

The cow that comes fresh in the fall is really fresh twice during the year, the second time when grass comes in spring.

If corn is to be the main grain ration for the cows, some bran or alfalfa hay will balance it nicely. But it is not necessary to feed both.

The mangel grows well, both north and south, and on good soil will pay as well as any other feeding crop in its proper place in the ration.

The wise dairy farmer has provided himself with a bunch of shoats and will make 9 or 10 cent pork out of cheap skim milk this winter.

At all times keep plenty of oyster shells, coarse gravel, fresh water, and milk before the chickens. In cold weather give them warm water and milk.

It is wrong to expect the cow to yield a large profit simply because she is well bred. She must have feed and care or the breeding will amount to nothing.

Snap beans, lima beans and navy beans are tap-rooted plants and require deep, mellow soil. Break the soil deeply and pulverize it well before you plant beans.

Experimenters say it takes about ten bushels of corn to make 100 pounds of pork, but when the corn is fed with skim milk, seven bushels will make the same weight.

The successful dairy farmer must provide winter feed of a succulent nature. The silo is the best answer and next to this is roots. These are becoming more popular every year.

Don't imagine that the profits of the dairy business depend entirely upon the creamery, and not upon the farm or farmer. The dairy must be right before the creamery can bring the money.

A sow with a mean, cross disposition is always hard to deal with and is not always the best breeder or mother. This is something that should be borne in mind when selecting brood sows.

Don't feed the brood sow heavy rations of corn when within a month of farrowing.

Keep dust and stuff out of your milk. You can't strain it out. Remember that.

The ability to produce profit is a standard by which all farm stock must be measured.

Silage made of corn and soy beans is more digestible than that made from corn silage alone.

You can weaken the constitution of your horse by making them carry a burden of useless flesh.

Whole oats placed on a dry, raised platform are a most profitable feed for young and growing pigs.

Oat straw is a pretty good substitute and makes very good roughage when fed with plenty of grain.

The Ayrshire and Guernsey type of dairy cattle are increasing in favor in the middle western states.

Individual excellence is the only safe guide to be depended upon in selecting cows to build up a good herd.

Some day we are going to find that as good a way as any to use the surplus sour milk is to give it to the hens.

One good dairy cow of the right constitution is more of an adjunct than several beefy animals with poor udders.

Has the kitchen garden a raspberry patch? They are hardy, excellent bearers, and certainly one of the most delicious fruits.

The cow that comes fresh in the fall is really fresh twice during the year, the second time when grass comes in spring.

If corn is to be the main grain ration for the cows, some bran or alfalfa hay will balance it nicely. But it is not necessary to feed both.

The mangel grows well, both north and south, and on good soil will pay as well as any other feeding crop in its proper place in the ration.

The wise dairy farmer has provided himself with a bunch of shoats and will make 9 or 10 cent pork out of cheap skim milk this winter.

PREPARING FOR THE WORK OF 1913

CITY BUILDING, RAILWAY BUILDING AND FARM OPERATIONS IN WESTERN CANADA, BIGGEST EVER.

The machinery, the money and the men for carrying on the big works in Western Canada in 1913 are already provided for. The splendid harvest which was successfully garnered, and by this time mostly marketed, responded to the big hopes that were had for it early in the season, and inspired capitalists and railroads to further investment and building.

From lake ports to mountain base there will be carried on the biggest operations in city building and railway construction that has ever taken place in that country. The Canadian Pacific railway has everything in waiting to continue their great work of double tracking the system and by the time the Panama Canal is open to traffic there will be a double line of steel coast. The cost will exceed thirty million dollars. The Grand Trunk Pacific plan of building a first-class trunk line and then feeders at various points will be carried forward with all the force that great company can put into the work. The Canadian Northern is prepared to put into motion all the energy that young giant of finance and railroad building can put into various enterprises of providing and creating transportation facilities.

Building operations in the several cities, that have already marked themselves a place in the list of successful and growing cities, will be carried on more largely than ever. Schools, public buildings, parliament buildings, colleges, business blocks, apartments, private residences, banks, street and other municipal improvements have their appropriation ready, and the record of 1913 will be something wonderful. Other places which are towns today will make the rapid strides that are expected and will become cities. There will be other Edmonton, Calgary, Regina and Saskatoon, other places that may in their activity help to convince the outer world of the solidity and permanency of the Canadian West. The country is large and wide and broad and the ends of its great width and length are but the limits of its agricultural area. Its people are progressive, they are strong, there is no conservatism here. The country teems with life, this ambition, this fondness to create and to use the forces that await the settler. If they come from the South, and hundreds of thousands of them have, they are now the dominant men of the North, and they have imbued of the spirit of the North. Therefore it is fair to say that no portion of the continent will show such wonderful results as Western Canada, and the year 1913 will be but the beginning of a wonderful and great future. And in this future the 200,000 Americans who made it their home, and those who preceded them, will be a considerable portion of the machinery that will be used in bringing about the results predicted.

The development of 1913 will not be confined to the prairie provinces. Railway building and city building in British Columbia will be supplemented by the farm, the ranch and the orchard building of that province. Vancouver will make great strides in building, and Victoria, the staid old lady of so many years, has already shown signs of modern ways, and if the progress made in 1912 may be accepted as anything like what it will be in 1913, there will be wonderful developments there. During last year the permits went over the ten million dollar mark and much more is promised for the year now entered upon.—Advertisement.

By way of adopting their wares to the conditions of their customers, Parisian dressmakers have recently provided three new "creations," described as "Triple Alliance," "Triple Entente" and "Political Horizon." Women of neutral states will of course wear the last.—New York Sun.

"Feed Dr. Hess Stock Tonic on Three Months Test at Our Expense."—Dr. Hess & Clark.

John Marx, Kewaskum, Wis.

Dear Sir:—We want every stock raiser that comes into your store this Fall to go home with a package, sack or pail of DR. HESS STOCK TONIC. This is asking a good deal perhaps, but if you will read the conditions of this request we believe you will agree with us that there is not a single, solitary farmer in your whole community that would not avail himself of this opportunity. Here it is:—

"Mr. Feeder:—Take home from your dealer's store a package, sack or pail—or a ton if you like of Dr. Hess Stock Tonic, feed it to your horses, cows, hogs, etc. all Winter and Spring. It costs less than a cent a day for a horse, cow or steer, and 8 cts. a month for the average hog. If, after it is used you are not satisfied with the extra profit it has made you, in increased growth and milk production, besides keeping your animals healthy and free from worms, take back the empty packages and your dealer is compelled to refund your money."

We authorize you to make the same iron-clad guarantee on DR. HESS POULTRY PAN-ACEA, to make hens lay, to shorten the molting period.

INSTANT LOUSE KILLER we guarantee to destroy lice on horses, cattle, sheep ticks, etc.

Refund every cent if these preparations fail and we will reimburse you.

Very truly yours,

DR. HESS & CLARK.

To meet the demand of this guarantee, we have a large stock of Dr. Hess Stock Tonic, Poultry Pan-acea, etc. on hand. Come in and take home any quantity you desire. We will have more goods on the way, so we can supply every customer.
