BIG SUM FOR ROAD MAKING

Town of Kewaskum to Spend $1500.—Hartford has Largest Amount to Be Spent in County This Season.

The amount available for the improvements for highways in Washington county this year will be $28,290, being about three times as much as was expended last year. But whether the work for this year, depending upon the action of the purchasing committee of the county board in the rental or purchase of machinery for building roads. It is believed, however, that the committee will co-operate with Don Cameron, the county highway commissioner, in procuring the necessary machinery.

As soon as the frost is out of the ground Mr. Cameron will begin work in the town of Wayne with his present outfit. After the work is well organized he will begin work on the road from Hartford to Schleisingerville and other parts of the county.

The sums to be spent by the towns in the county are as follows: Barton, $1,200; Farmington, $1,800; Hartford, $3,310; Jackson, $1,200; Kewaskum, $1,500; Trenton, $2,400; Wayne, $6,000; West Bend, $1,200; Polk, $1,200.

Voting Taxes for 1914 State Aid Work.

The state highway commission is sending out to town chairmen and town clerks a form of resolution for voting state aid road and bridge taxes for work to be constructed in 1914. These taxes must be voted at this spring town meeting or at a special meeting held before September 1st.

The commission points out that the legislature has passed almost unanimously the bill making good the $450,000 deficit in state aid for this year's work, which indicates that its policy toward adequate appropriations for 1914 and 1915 will be a generous one.

It is customary to vote state aid taxes by resolution at the same hour that other town business is taken up and not to vote by ballot, though both courses are legal.

It is believed that votes for state aid will show an increase over the votes for 1913, which were almost double those for 1912.

The movement for better roads is gaining tremendous impetus under the new state aid law, and it is believed that the voters of the Middle West in modern road and bridge construction.

Drew Large Crowds.

The Franklin Medicine Company under charge of William and Edward Armond, who have been at the Opera House since Tuesday, March 4th, having been drawing large crowds. The shows given every night were very entertaining and pleasing to every audience.

The lecturers given on Tuesday by Brother Edward and Brother William were also listened to very attentively. The contests of every evening proved to be an amusing affair. Prizes were given away every night. All those who have been attending the nightly meetings speak very well of the company. Medicine, soaps, etc., were purchased freely by a goodly number.

The company will close their engagement in this village tomorrow, Easter Sunday. Read their ad elsewhere in this paper, telling of what an attractions they will have. For an evening of entertainment go to hear the Quakers and you can rest assured that the evening will be well spent.

Feed Family of Four for Ten Dollars a Week.

Four adults leading fairly active lives can be supplied with balance meals at a cost of $2.50 a week, each. This has been proved at the practice cottage of the University of Wisconsin Home Economics Department, where young women are taught practical home making.

Four young women students take entire charge of the preparation of meals at the cottage each week. The girls not only do all the cooking and serving but also all the marketing and planning of the various meals. There is much rivalry to see who can serve the best meals at the lowest cost.

A sample menu shows that at a cost of $2.50 a week per person they have oranges, bacon, poached eggs, toast and coffee for breakfast; cream sauce, hot rolls, baked apples, and chocolate for luncheon; and bouillon, beef potage, browned potatoes, fruit salad, fresh cake with whipped cream and coffee, for dinner.

LEGISLATURE IS BUSY

Many Bills Are Being Codified and Passed By the Present Legislature.

LOUIS P. POST, editor of the Public, Chicago, addresses the members of the legislature in the assembly chamber Wednesday on the single tax question. His lecture was in behalf of the joint resolution introduced by Assemblyman for an amendment to the constitution to provide for municipalities in this state to adopt the single tax limited if they so elect. His talk was very interesting and instructive. The question box was put into play and numerous members asked questions before the meeting adjourned.

M. W. A. TO FIGHT.

The insurgent members of the Modern Woodmen of America are endeavoring to have the mobile feature of the Wisconsin law repealed as it applies to fraternal societies. When the forces meet before the committee it is expected that matters pertaining fraternal insurance will be given a complete airing out. This is a feature which the insurgent members of the Woodmen took issue on with Insurance Commissioner Herman L. Ekern.

LOBBYIST REBUKED.

Senator Glenn severely brought to task one Mr. Wild lobbyist for the German-American Alliance, when he told a committee that was hearing the Women's Suffrage bill that it was "impudent" for the supporters of the measure to ask for another referendum. The ungentlemanly allusion to the senator did not help his cause. The ladies were then given a respectful hearing.

PASS ANTI-TREATING BILL.

To the surprise of the brewing interests the senate this week passed the Teasdale anti-treating bill almost unanimously. The senate flatly refused to reconsider the vote the next day. The assembly failed to pass an anti-treating bill last week but it is predicted by some that enough votes will be mustered to pass the senate bill in the lower house.

MILWAUKEE WANTS PRISONERS.

Milwaukee citizens protested vigorously against having felons sent to Waupun instead of the House of Correction in their city. Notwithstanding that the proposed amendment of the law would relieve them of a considerable financial burden, yet they contended before the committee that the House of Correction was a better place to commit them to prepare them for a return to society than the penitentiary. The best policy for reforming a criminal is an issue in Wisconsin today is the interest taken in this hearing in any criterion.

KING GEORGE OF GREECE IS SLAIN BY AN ASSASSIN

Monarch of Hellenic Nation Is Murdered While With His Troops at Salonika.

SLAIN BY SOCIALIST

Head of Greeks Assassinated While Walking Street Accompanied by Friend—Shot From Behind.

DIES AT NEARBY HOSPITAL

Was Second Oldest of Europe's Royal Heads—Second Son of Christian IV, of Denmark and Allied by Blood or Marriage With the Leading Crowned Heads.

London, March 19.—The news of the assassination of the king of Greece, rumors of which have been pouring into London from various European capitals, was officially confirmed by a message received by Queen Alexandra at Marlborough house.

It was from Prince Nicholas, at Salonika, where the murder was committed, and briefly stated that King George was assassinated while walking the streets of Salonika and died half an hour after receiving the fatal wound.

On hearing the news Queen Alexandra collapsed, falling in a deep swoon. Her condition caused her attendants and physicians the deepest concern. She was carried to her sleeping apartment, where it was said that she was in a serious condition.

Information which has been received from Salonika, the assassin, who is called Skina, declared when arrested that he had killed the king because he had refused to give him money which he had asked for.

Skina is said to belong to a Socialist organization at Volo.

A private message received here by a prominent Greek is as follows:

Killed While Walking Street.

Salonika, March 19.—His majesty King George of Greece was assassinated while walking the street, accompanied by a friend. Two men, unnoticed, emerged suddenly from a nearby house just after his majesty and his companion had passed and crept up stealthily behind the king.

When but a few inches away one of these men drew a pistol and fired point blank at the king.

The king's attention having been attracted by the close proximity of the two men his majesty had half turned around, the movement being made just in time to receive the discharge full in the breast.

"Exclaiming, 'I am shot!' his majesty sank to the ground without a further word.

The noise of the shot attracted immediate attention. Almost instantly people came running from every direction, little dreaming the identity of the victim.

King Dies at Hospital.

The king, who quickly became unconscious, was gently lifted by many hands and taken to a nearby hospital, where he died in a few minutes.

Other messages received privately confirm in the main these details. One message adds that the people of Salonika are wrought up to an intense pitch by the murder and there is some probability of them taking the law into their own hands.

King George and Queen Mary received the news at Windsor castle, where they are now in residence. Both were deeply grieved.

The dead king was Queen Alexandra's favorite brother and was a well-known figure to London crowds.

Founder of New Dynasty.

London, March 19.—Half a century has passed since the day—March 18, 1862—when the Greek national assembly at Athens, at the suggestion of the great powers of Europe, elected Prince William George of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Gluecksburg, second son of the late Christian IX, of Denmark and brother of Queen Alexandra, to be king of the Hellenes.

Prince William George was only eighteen years old and a midshipman in the British navy when he was offered the throne of Hellas. The former ruler, King Otto I, who was a Bavarian prince, was dethroned by a revolution in 1862, and the provisional government by the ministry was not strong enough to prevent political complications which threatened to undermine the peace of Europe.

The powers recognized the necessity of providing a new ruler for Greece, and the position was offered first to the duke of Edinburgh and then to the duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, but both declined. It was M. de Chaulodury, a French diplomat, who conceived the idea of offering the throne to Prince William George, and the plan was promptly approved by England and other powers.

Sent to Mauthausen as Punishment.

The young prince had been sent to the mauthausen for punishment when the emissaries of the powers arrived to offer him the crown. He accepted through his father, and, having been officially declared of age, he made his entry in Athens on October 30 of that year, took the oath and ascended the throne.

Four years later, October 15, 1867, he married the Grand Duchess Olga, eldest daughter of the Grand Duke Constantine of Russia, thus connecting himself by a strong link with one of the most powerful reigning families of Europe.

The Greeks agreed to settle $225,000 a year upon their new king. England, France and Russia each agreed to add $20,000 a year for the term of his natural life and about $50,000 was charged for his benefit on the Ionian islands, which were later ceded to him by Great Britain.

Father of Six Children.

Queen Olga bore him six children, of whom all but the youngest, Prince Christopher, born in 1878, are married. The heir apparent to the throne is Prince Constantine, duke of Sparta, who was born in 1868, and in 1889 was married to Princess Sophia, sister of Emperor William II.

MRS. SUN YAT SEN

Mrs. Sun Yat Sen, wife of the former provisional president of China, was seriously injured in an automobile accident in Tokio.

promptly approved by England and other powers.

Sent to Mauthausen as Punishment.

The young prince had been sent to the mauthausen for punishment when the emissaries of the powers arrived to offer him the crown.

He accepted through his father, and, having been officially declared of age, he made his entry in Athens on October 30 of that year, took the oath and ascended the throne.

Four years later, October 15, 1867, he married the Grand Duchess Olga, eldest daughter of the Grand Duke Constantine of Russia, thus connecting himself by a strong link with one of the most powerful reigning families of Europe.

The Greeks agreed to settle $225,000 a year upon their new king. England, France and Russia each agreed to add $20,000 a year for the term of his natural life and about $50,000 was charged for his benefit on the Ionian islands, which were later ceded to him by Great Britain.

Father of Six Children.

Queen Olga bore him six children, of whom all but the youngest, Prince Christopher, born in 1878, are married. The heir apparent to the throne is Prince Constantine, duke of Sparta, who was born in 1868, and in 1889 was married to Princess Sophia, sister of Emperor William II.

Although King George always showed the greatest devotion to his people and proved himself a faithful and liberal king, neither he nor his family enjoyed great popularity. Many times the continuance of the dynasty was seriously threatened, but King George maintained his dignity and weathered all storms, even the critical period of the disastrous war against Turkey.

The king was born December 24, 1845, as the second son of Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Gluecksburg, who became king of Denmark in 1862, and Princess Louisa, daughter of King Karl XV, of Sweden and Norway. In baptism the young prince received the name Christian William Ferdinand Adolphus George.

Sketch of Crown Prince Constantine.

The Crown Prince Constantine, who will succeed King George, is the generalissimo of the Greek army in the field in the Balkan war. He has distinguished himself in fierce fighting and only about ten days ago news came that, at the head of a big force, he had forced the surrender of the important Turkish fortress of Janina, the key to the province of Epirus.

The surrender of this fortress brought 32,000 Turkish prisoners under control of the Greeks, and for his success the crown prince was thanked by the chamber of deputies at Athens, after the premier, Mr. Verzeles, had congratulated him in addressing the deputies.

He was born at Athens on July 21, 1868. The crown prince was the son of King George I. of Greece. The work of the young prince, after he had obtained his majority, was largely devoted to reestablishing the Greek army upon a firm footing.

WILSON REFUSES AID

PRESIDENT DECLINES TO APPROVE UNITED STATES LOAN IN CHINA.

WILL NOT INVOLVE AMERICA

Chief Executive Declares for the Open Door—Also Comes Out Strong in Favor of the Budget System in Government Affairs.

Washington, March 20.—In a statement issued from the White House Tuesday President Wilson refused to endorse the request that American bankers participate in the loan now desired by the government of China (approximately $25,000,000). Our government wished American bankers to participate along with the bankers of other nations, because it desired that the good will of the United States towards China would be exhibited in this practical way, that American capital should have access to that great country and that the United States should be in a position to share with the other powers any political responsibilities that might be associated with the development of the foreign relations of China in connection with her industrial and commercial enterprises.

The present administration has been asked by this group of bankers whether it would also request them to participate in the loan. The representative of the bankers through whom the administration was approached, declared that they would continue to seek their share of the loan under the proposed agreements only if expressly requested to do so by the government.

The administration has declined to make such request because it did not approve the conditions of the loan or the implications of responsibility on its own part, which it was plainly felt would be involved in the request.

The government of the United States is not only willing, but earnestly desirous, of aiding the great Chinese people in every way that is consistent with their untrammeled development and its own immortal principles. The awakening of the people of China to a consciousness of their possibilities under free government is the most significant, if not the most momentous, event of our generation. With this movement and aspiration, the American people are in profound sympathy. They certainly wish to participate, and participate very generously, in opening to the Chinese and to the use of the world the almost untouched and perhaps unrivaled resources of China.

The government of the United States is desirous of promoting the most extended and intimate trade relationships between this country and the Chinese republic. The present administration will urge and support the legislative measures necessary to give American merchants, manufacturers, contractors and engineers the banking and other financial facilities which they now lack and without which they are at a serious disadvantage compared with their industrial and commercial rivals. This is its duty. This is the main material interest of its citizens in the development of China. Our interests are those of the open door—a door of friendship and mutual advantage.

President Wilson is in favor of a budget system for the conduct of the government finances. He made public here a letter written January 30, from Trenton to Senator Tillman, expressing the hope that a budget system might be worked out after he got to Washington.

WOMEN ARE MOBBED

10,000 LONDON RIOTERS IN BITTER ATTACK ON MRS. DRUMMOND AND AID.

DRAG THEM THROUGH STREET

Hoodlums Attack Suffragettes. Blacken Their Eyes and Tear Their Dresses Despite Efforts of Police to Protect Them.

London, March 18.—Ten thousand persons, with copies of the Referee, a Sunday journal, still damp with the printer's ink, in their hands, in which was exposed an alleged plan on the part of suffragettes to kidnap David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer, mobbed the advocates of equal suffrage who attempted to hold a meeting in Hyde park Sunday.

The women were pelted with clods of dirt, oranges and other missiles, and when the police were escorting them from the scene the rioters tore off their hats and cloaks and even struck some of them in the face.

For two hours the park, where demonstrations until recently were held in peace, and Oxford street, near by, were the scenes of wildest disorder.

The trouble began when "General" Mrs. Flora Drummond mounted a wagon and started to speak to the great assemblage, which was largely made up of youths, who had armed themselves with ammunition of various descriptions or with trumpets, mouth organs and bells. Her appearance at the front of the platform was the signal for an outburst of deafening noise and a bombardment of missiles. She hardly had uttered a word when a clod of turf struck her in the mouth.

For half an hour the crowds shouted, and pelted the suffragette commander-in-chief, whose clothes soon were a mass of mud. At last Mrs. Drummond's speech came to an end and a younger woman took her place. She fared no better, and the police, realizing the danger the women were in, called upon the chairman to close the meeting.

The police endeavored to pilot the women to the tube station, but the crowd brushed them aside and dragged the women up and down the street. In the melee one woman's eye was blackened and the clothes of all were torn and disheveled.

All afternoon an angry mob of men swarmed through the streets and several times were dispersed from in front of the jail by Sheriff Purcell and a number of specially sworn in deputies.

The mob, though threatening, lacked leaders and was handled by Sheriff Purcell and his deputies, though late in the afternoon the sheriff appealed to the governor for assistance. G. B. COX IS INDICTED

AN EASTER OFFERING

By Dorothy Douglas

REV. MILTON Davis entered his study after having eaten a lonesome Easter breakfast and threw himself into a big chair by the window for a few moments of quiet before beginning his strenuous day. He heaved a sigh as he glanced at the empty chair on the opposite side—empty save for the mind picture of the young minister who had drawn on occasions when the world would seem well lost for the possession of one particular woman. But that woman had not, as yet, appeared upon the ecclesiastical heart-strings of Rev. Mr. Davis.

All only some sparkling creature, all his own, might rush in, arrayed in the glory of Easter daintiness and wait with apprehensive eyes for his approval before taking her place in a front pew. He knew that, against all beliefs, he would take her into his arms and tell her she was his dream.

There were many fair parishioners who would gladly have been that fortunate maid; their inclinations, however, were restricted to the gifts which constantly found their way to the rectory. The wide couch in the rectory's study was a heterogeneous collection of sofa pillows; the walls were lined with biblical subjects, evidently considered the only art appropriate for ministerial eyes. Rev. Mr. Davis had been the recipient of eighteen pairs of slippers and three house coats.

In his turn, he sought diligently among his flock for the girl who might do, she apparently sunned herself in another fold, for she certainly did not thrive in his pasture.

The choir, which weekly occupied four seats facing the pulpit, gave forth to the little church such quartet music as it felt equal to. It was comprised entirely of village talent. Jimmie Langhorn, the tenor, considered the world and all its machinations a joke; if the soprano felt a jolt in her side when sustaining a high G it was nothing more nor less than Jimmie's elbow prodding her along. The contralto was a small maiden to whom the tenor made love during the darkness of the sermon; the bass singer was also the choir-master.

The soprano, a young matron, and Jimmie Langhorn were fast friends, and many a plot against ministerial bachelorhood was hatched between them. It seemed to them a shame that so good-looking a minister should remain a bachelor.

So it happened that as Rev. Mr. Davis bemoaned the singleness of his own state and others bemoaned it for him, the god of love entered his study. His buxom housekeeper was the literal bearer, and she offered it to him as a package, labeled and wrapped in much tissue paper. Upon being unwrapped the Easter gift proved to be a small marble statue of Cupid.

"And which of your lambs is it this time?" she asked with motherly interest, and noticing surprise on the pastor's face.

The minister read the card: "From the soprano, Easter greetings."

"And her a married woman?" sniffed Mrs. Mallory. "It's a wonder some of them don't offer themselves as housekeepers!" She made her exit with high scorn for the susceptible sex of which she was a humble member.

"If certainly seems odd," reflected Rev. Mr. Davis, casting a quizzical glance at the small god of love. "I had not suspected Mrs. Wade of a secret attachment—for me—but you represent a subtle hint of some kind." He smiled.

He called up Mrs. Wade. No; she had not sent it. Her voice, over the phone, sounded more or less indignant at the idea.

Rev. Mr. Davis prepared for his Easter service and dismissed the thought of the mysterious gift.

The door leading to the chancel faced the choir. As the minister entered, his eyes lifted a moment and met those of a girl who occupied the soprano's usual place in the choir, and for a moment he had apprehensions. Was it possible that the Easter music, after all the careful preparation, was to be sung by the substitute—a stranger? Where was Mrs. Wade?

But as the service progressed the minister realized that his fears were groundless. And that was not all—he was keenly conscious of the presence of the new soprano.

After service, while he stood shaking hands with his departing parishioners, according to his usual custom, he anticipated with unusual pleasure his meeting with the girl who had so graciously assisted the choir. He was anxious to congratulate her and thank her.

"Doctor Davis," said the voice of Jimmie Langhorn at his side, "I want to present you to this sister of mine. Muriel, our rector, Doctor Davis," he said turning to the girl. "She cried to be allowed to sing in our choir, so we had to let her. Mrs. Wade has a cold, you know, and was glad of an opportunity to be excused. Sis, here, has just returned from Germany and was anxious to try her wings." Jimmie Langhorn joked even with the minister.

Muriel cast an indignant glance at her brother as her hand met that of the minister. "It isn't so, Doctor Davis," she said with mounting color, for the young minister's gray eyes had not once left her face. "He and Mrs. Wade made dire threats until I consented."

"For which they deserve a gold medal," affirmed the dominie.

"Don't!" exclaimed Jimmie. "She is concealed enough now, between her voice and her collection of statuary!"

"Statuary?" inquired the minister.

"Then perhaps I can thank you, Miss Langhorn, for the dainty bit I received this morning?"

Jimmie became suddenly interested in the arrangement of the music for the evening service.

"I'm sorry," laughed Muriel, "but I happen not to be the guilty party."

"Some one sent me Easter greetings in the form of a little marble god of love; and I have already insulted Mrs. Wade by accusing her of sending it."

"And me! An absolute stranger—I like that!" Muriel spoke with some asperity and her manner, the minister noted, was much like her brother's.

"Come, sis," said Jimmie with brotherly affection, "you shouldn't scrap with the dominie first thing Easter morning."

"I'm not! But I don't like to be accused of sending love tokens to men I don't know!—and ministers, at that! I have a good notion not to sing the offertory I have practiced for tonight!"

"Oh, please, Miss Langhorn," begged the minister contritely. "I'm really awfully sorry."

"Well—I'll think about it." She cast him one glance and turned to Jimmie. "Come, brother mine, or we won't get any dinner." She turned again to Doctor Davis, "Can't you take dinner with us?"

"Under the condition that you will all come and eat cold turkey with me after the service tonight. I have a housekeeper who must be appeased."

Since Muriel expected to be in Lee only a month before going to the city to start a concert career, Rev. Dr. Davis lost no time in laying siege to her heart. The minister's decisive chin denoted that when he knew what he wanted he went straight for it.

Luckily, they lived in a healthy, cheerful community where calls upon the world-weary were not necessary and the dominie robbed no one in the time devoted to courting. Since it was nearing the end of the opera season, he took Muriel frequently to that realm of wonderful music.

When she sang at concerts in the city, he was always there to escort her home and carry her floral tributes. These flowers invariably lent their sweetness to some humble dwelling in the village.

"Isn't it wonderful to be blessed with the power to help our fellow men?" Rev. Mr. Davis voiced this sentiment one evening as they walked home through the lanes after having called to see old Mrs. Gabel, who didn't get to church often on account of the distance. Muriel had sung some of the familiar old hymns for her until the dear old soul had wept from sheer happiness.

"Yes," returned the girl with tears not far from her own eyes. "I have wondered lately if all the applause of a great, clapping audience will ever bring me one-tenth of the joy that the tears in Mrs. Gabel's eyes brought?" She looked out over the broad country. "Anyway, I shall often look out over the footlights and see—not a swarm of faces—but this!" Muriel's gesture swept in the starry heavens, the moonlit road and the great arch of trees.

Suddenly the dominie turned and took her in his arms. "You are not going on any stage! It would take you too far from me. You may do all the concert work—all the church singing you like—but always I will come for you when night falls. Your Brother Jim sent me the god of love! and I am going to hold on to it!"

"Evidently I am not to be allowed to think," murmured Muriel, but with finally in her resignation.

Joy and Harmony of Easter.

Through all the Easter observances of all the nations that celebrate the ending of the forty days of Lent with the rejoicing of the resurrection day, there goes the psalm of joyfulness that is the harmony of Easter. And no matter what the tongue or what the manner, the spirit of Easter among all the celebrating peoples is the spirit of that most triumphant of Easter hymns, the rolling chant of "Strike the Cymbal!"

Easter Offering

The Easter Chimes

I wonder if they know it, those little ones whose days are spent where sadness hovers and beauty never strays; whose childhood ceased the moment that they had strength to bear; the burdens which were waiting, whose little faces care.

Has married with cruel fingers, whose eyes have lost their glow; whose hopes have withered early—I wonder if they know?

The bells are ringing loudly, the splendid anthems rise, and hatred is forgotten and ruthless frenzy dies; the story of His glory we gladly hear again, and for a precious moment Love comes once more to reign.

But they whose cheeks are pallid, poor little hearts of woe; who sit in darkened hovels—I wonder if they know?

Around the altars lilies in spotless white are set; that we may still remember, that no one may forget; the brave words that lie uttered we solemnly repeat.

We learn again the lesson and deem the learning sweet; His message to the children is reverently heard; but are the little toilers by glad emotion stirred?

His promise is repeated where heads are gravely bowed; men cease a while to covet, and women, fair and proud, kneel proudly and humbly and for His mercy pray.

Their vanity forgotten, their envy put away; we sing that he is risen, the lordly and the low; but, poor, woe little toilers, I wonder if they know?

Ring out, O chimes of Easter, that all mankind may hear; that pride may be forgotten and love may rear; that they who proudly covet and they who foster greed; may hear the saving message and, hearing, pause to heed.

That they, poor little toilers, condemned to early woe; and cheated of their childhood, at last may gladly know!

Easter and the Egg.

The Easter egg, or the Pasch egg, had its origin in one of the curious Christian adaptations of pagan customs. From remote ages the egg has been a symbol of the mystery of creation. That is natural enough, because the quickening egg gives to us the most illumination on that tremendous mystery, the awakening of life. The Persians held that the world was hatched from an egg at that season of the year which corresponds to the vernal equinox. Among the Jews the egg contributed to the Paschal ceremonies. Under the Christian dispensation the egg became a popular symbol of the resurrection of Christ from the tomb on Easter Sunday, and it was at first colored red to betoken the blood shed for sinners on the cross.

Joy in Friendship.

A faithful friend is a strong defense. He that hath found a friend hath found a treasure. A poor man may be said to be rich in the midst of poverty so long as he enjoys the interior sunshine of a devoted friend.

WHY THE RABBIT AT EASTER

Pretty Legend of Olden Times Connects Bunny and Eggs It Is Supposed to Lay.

So many have asked, "Why is the rabbit so closely associated with Easter?" Each year at this season the cunning little bunny appears in the shop windows beside downy chicks and gay-colored eggs. The legend of the Easter rabbit is one of the most ancient in mythological lore and is closely related to the folk tales of southern Germany.

In the beginning of things, it seems, the rabbit was a bird. As a great favorite for the goddess Ostara, who was the patron of spring, gave it four legs, for which the rabbit was deeply grateful. In remembrance of its former life as a bird, when the spring or Easter season comes it lays eggs of gorgeous colors, and the egg has always been a symbol of the resurrection, and therefore used at Easter time when we look for the life everlasting and all things made new.

Hugo's Faith in Immortality

I FEEL in myself the future life. I am like a forest once cut down; the new shoots are stronger and livelier than ever. I am rising, I know, toward the sky. The sunshine is on my head. The earth gives me its generous sap, but heaven lights me with the reflection of unknown worlds.

You say the soul is nothing but the resultant of the bodily powers. Why, then, is my soul more luminous when my bodily powers begin to fail? Winter is on my head, but eternal spring is in my heart. I breathe at this hour the fragrance of the lilacs, the violets and the roses, as at twenty years.

The nearer I approach the end the plainer I hear around me the immortal symphonies of the worlds which invite me. It is a marvelous yet simple. It is a fairy tale, and it is history.

For half a century I have been writing my thoughts in prose and in verse; history, philosophy, drama, romance, tradition, satire, ode, and song; I have tried all. But I feel I have not said the thousandth part of what is in me. When I go down to the grave I can say like many others, "I have finished my day's work." But I cannot say, "I have finished my life." My day's work will begin again the next morning. The tomb is not a blind alley; it is thoroughfare. It closes on the twilight, it opens on the dawn.—Victor Hugo.

HAVE SPECIAL EASTER DISH

Gammon of Bacon and a Tansy Pudding Are Features of the Season in English Country.

In Devonshire, England, the special Easter dish is a gammon of bacon and a tansy pudding, the latter being so well established a custom that it is celebrated in an old ballad:

At stool-ball, Lucia, let us play
For sugar cakes and wine,
Or for a tansy let us buy.
This loss be thine or mine.
If thou, my dear, a winner be
At trundling of the ball,
The wages thou shalt have, and me,
And my mistresses all.

In Staffordshire the men lift the women of the various villages on Easter Monday, and the women have to take a try at lifting the men on Easter Tuesday. In Cheshire there is a lifting chair. In Chester Easter Monday is celebrated by ball playing between the clergy and laity. In Durham the men take off the women's shoes on Monday and have the unique courtesy returned in kind on Tuesday. Nearly all these customs of Easter have been too closely associated with the place of their occurrence to suffer transplantation, although the whipping-lashing of the Polish children bears a striking resemblance in its turn-about-is-fair-play idea to the English customs.

It is a German custom for children to go to their godmothers at Easter for the gift of colored eggs and a baked rabbit. Just before Easter the children are sent to the garden to build a nest for the expected rabbit, and early Easter morning they go with great expectations, and are never disappointed, to get the eggs which the rabbit has laid for them. Even in Africa, among the heathen tribes, worship of the egg is common. No altar is complete without its egg decoration, and most huts have at least one sacred egg. On all the eggs devoted to the rites of worship a verse from the Koran is written at each end, while the sides are ornamented by scutes from the Nile.

A rare specimen of these eggs is to be seen in the Detroit Museum of Art. The markings on the shell follow closely the same general design as the paintings of men and women that were recently found in Cairo.

GOVERNOR URGES A MARKET BOARD

MESSAGE RECOMMENDS PLAN FOR PROFITABLE SALE OF FARM PRODUCTS.

CO-OPERATIVE PLAN IS RIPE

Assistance Requested to Protect the Agriculturalist Against Unfair Business Practices—Executive Says Consistent Policy is Required.

Madison.—In a message sent to the Wisconsin legislature on March 17, Gov. McGovern recommends the passage of a bill creating a state market commission to enable farmers to sell their products to better advantage and at the same time lower the cost to the consumer. Accompanying the message was a bill drafted by the governor which he desires enacted into law.

The measure was submitted to the legislature because of the insistent demand from the rural communities of the state for assistance in organizing and establishing co-operative enterprises to protect the farmer against unfair business practices and methods of competition. The bill also seeks to improve conditions surrounding home life in the country and prevent the constantly increasing influx of persons from the rural communities to the cities.

The proposed law creates a state market commission composed of the dairy and food commissioners as ex-officio members and two others members to be appointed by the governor.

Purposes of Commission.

The purposes of the commission summarized are:

To prevent monopoly, contracts and combinations in every form detrimental to the people.

To promote the interests of the public, including consumer and producer alike, economical and efficient production and distribution of all commodities.

To promote development of the natural resources of the state and its proper agricultural, industrial and commercial interests, so far as such development is consistent with public welfare.

To improve country life and to provide equally of opportunity for the people of the state.

To perform the duties heretofore performed by the dairy and food commissioners, the state board of immigration and the state board of agriculture.

To aid in the organization of co-operative enterprises and to give instruction by correspondence and bulletins regarding the practical features of production, distribution, efficient business methods and to establish a market news service, including information regarding crops, freight rates, commissions and such other matters as may be of service to producers and consumers.

To devise economical systems of marketing and the best methods of establishing markets.

To establish city markets and place the consumer in close touch with the rural producer.

To encourage competition without fixing prices.

To investigate and consider complaints of the producer and consumer.

Cities Outdistance Farms.

In his message Gov. McGovern said among other things:

"Like older communities, the farming sections of Wisconsin recently have failed to keep pace with the cities in wealth and population. One reason is there has been little coordination of effort or concert of action among them. It is no extravagance to say that farmers as a rule are not good business men. When the farmer needs money he throws his product on the market at whatever price it will bring. He has neglected the commercial side of farming, his most urgent need. Here is where the principle of co-operation is likely to prove most valuable. It permits of specialization in agriculture. The time has come in Wisconsin to give practical effect to the co-operative idea. But we must act with our eyes open to the obstacles to be encountered and the difficulties to be overcome. What is needed is the establishment of a broad, consistent public policy in harmony with economic conditions as they now exist in all occupations."

Booster Club for Janesville.

Janesville.—A hundred business men have formed an advertising organization to boost Janesville. Each member will contribute $1 each week to be used in advertising the city.

Fugitive Re-arrested Dead.

Cumberland.—An unconfirmed report tells of the death of former Mayor A. C. Uecker in a railroad wreck in California. Uecker has been a fugitive from justice for alleged embezzlement.

Farmers Urge Road Improvement.

Neenah.—The farmers in this section are taking organized action, urging extension and shortening of several roads so they can get their produce into town in shorter time.

Ministerial Association to Meet.

Stevens Point.—The Ministerial Association of Appleton District of the Wisconsin M. E. Conference will be held here March 24 and 25. It is expected fifty ministers will be present.

Tomahawk Gets Shoe Factory.

Tomahawk.—The Quance & Eady Shoe company of Oshago, Mich., will establish a branch shoe factory in this city. The factory will employ about forty men and women.

COURT HEARS EKERN CASE

Attorneys Present Arguments Before Supreme Tribunal of State—Decision Coming in April.

Madison.—"A member of a co-ordinate branch of the state government cannot be coerced by the circuit court or even by this court in the performance of what he believes to be his duty."

This in concrete form is the contention of the defense in the Ekern-McGovern case as stated by attorneys for Gov. McGovern in argument before the supreme court. After listening to the arguments, the court adjourned until April 8, at which time its decision will be handed down.

Attorney Aylward, representing Mr. Ekern, laid great stress on the proposition that they were separate, the office of governor from the man and that anything which might be said about the governor meant no disrespect to that high office. Mr. Aylward manager, during his remarks, to get the crowd into the argument, which was one of the features of the arguments in the lower court. He insisted strongly that the court seal of the state should have been put on the order of removal in order to make it legal. He attacked the charge that Mr. Ekern had been engaged in a political campaign when he was trying to get L. L. Johnson elected as speaker of the assembly on the ground that Mr. Ekern, acting for Mr. Johnson, even if it were proven as a member of a political committee. He insisted, as he had done before Judge Stevens, that the speakership was not a political office and therefore that charge against Mr. Ekern fell.

Rush Through Emergency Measure.

The amendment which is being added to the good roads appropriation bill under suspension of the rules is of more importance than most people imagine. Had the bill become a law in the original form the entire $450,000 appropriation for state aid to road building would have had to be set aside at once from the general funds. This would have seriously crippled the general funds this year. The amendment will leave the highway money in the original funds and only allow it to be drawn as it is needed. As a matter of fact, only about $170,000 will be drawn this year. As soon as the bill is returned to him in amended form the measure will receive the signature of the governor.

May Stop Sunday Hunting.

Hunting on Sunday may be prohibited by law. Assemblyman Johnson of Columbia county is the author of a bill to accomplish this purpose. His bill provides that any person who shall be present at any dance or public diversion, show or entertainment, or hunt any variety of game by any method on Sunday shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $10. Opposition to the bill has developed in some of the cities of the state, where workmen claim that Sunday is the only day that they can hunt. Farmers are generally in favor of the bill, according to letters received by members of the assembly.

Remonstrances are being circulated among certain church organizations of Wisconsin against the Hedding boxing commission bill and they will be filed with the legislature in the near future. It is said the friends of the boxing commission bill are preparing to ask for another hearing on the measure, and will at that time submit a substitute for the present measure to the legislature. In the substitute measure some of the features which were objected to in the original bill are eliminated.

RAILROAD SALE DEAL FAILS

Green Bay and Western Line Is Not Taken by Hawley Interests, Who Held Option.

Green Bay.—All hopes of the Green Bay and Western railroad being sold to Hawley interests were shattered at the annual meeting of the directors of the corporation. It was learned at this time that the option granted the Hawley interests expired on March 1. The Hawley lines did practically nothing towards purchasing and whatever plans were being formulated evidently dropped through.

Yacht Finishes Long Trip.

Marquette.—The thirty-six foot auxiliary yacht Rambler, which left Marquette November 5 last for Houston, Tex., has arrived at its destination. The trip was made from this city to Chicago on Lake Michigan, into the drainage and Illinois canals and the Illinois river to the Mississippi and then to the Gulf of Mexico. Aboard the boat during the entire trip were Capt. Neff of this city, owner of the boat, and Lincoln Conley of Green Bay.

Must Join State Guard.

Madison.—Commandant Wrightson has received word that no enlistment supplies will be granted by the war department to the university cadet regiment until the corps is made part of the national guard.

Noted Bandmaster Dead.

Milwaukee.—Joseph Clander, the well-known band and orchestra leader of this city, is dead at Hot Springs, Ark., where he went recently to seek relief from asthma.

Last Payment to Indians.

Neenah.—Indians in the vicinity of Stockbridge and Brothertown will soon receive their last payments, amounting to about $200 apiece, in settlement of government land claims.

Plan Garb for School Girls.

Stoughton.—The girls of the Stoughton high school have unanimously decided to do away with expensive commencement gowns and to wear instead plain white sailor suits.

May Build Sea Wall.

Algoma.—Algoma may be forced to build a sea wall for protection of the lake front. Continual washing of the waves caused the banks to cave in. They are protected temporarily by ice banks.

Child Drinks Poison.

Beloit.—Lola, 2-year-old child of John Pettengill, drank the contents of a saucer containing eye water, left on the table by her grandfather and died a few hours later.

BLACK RIVER FALLS AT MERCY OF FLOOD

JACKSON COUNTY TOWN ENDANGERED WHEN SPRING FRESHET STRIKES DAM.

OTHER CITIES ARE DAMAGED

Fond du Lac, Sheboygan and La Crosse Sustain Losses When Ice Melts—Railroad Lines Are Tied Up.

Black River Falls.—Five minutes after the spring floods hit the new dam and tainter gates at this city the ice and water began backing up fire of the eight gates were useless and the water poured through in a menacing flood. The disaster put the lighting plant of the city, which was turned on on Christmas day, temporarily out of commission. Soon after the gates went out the temperature began to fall, and this is all that saved the city from a serious flood, for the water fell with the temperature and everything is again safe until the warm weather.

La Crosse River Rampages.

La Crosse.—Attaining the greatest height in its history the La Crosse river caused the collapse of a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad bridge in the heart of the city. The structure spanned the stream close to the point where the river empties into the Mississippi and was weakened by an ice jam, which forced above the bridge. For a time small cars were sent over the bridge but it finally sunk and the line to the main depot was rendered useless. Passengers were transferred to and from incoming trains in carriages.

Twenty-five families were rescued from their flooded homes in North La Crosse at midnight when the La Crosse river spread over the flats. The refugees were taken from the flooded portion of the city in boats. The bottoms dividing the north and south sides of the city were covered with water.

Three railways, the Kickapoo Valley, the La Crosse and Southeastern and the Green Bay and Western have been tied up by numerous washouts. The Northwestern trains are running regularly, all washouts having been repaired, but engineers have slow orders on account of weakened tracks.

All about the country schools are suspended because of teachers and pupils being unable to reach them.

Independence, Blair, Arcadia, Whitehall and other towns along the Trempealeau river valley, suffered severe flood conditions as a result of heavy rains and the melting of snow in the hills. Arcadia suffered the heaviest, according to reports, when the Kamia & Co. flour mill dam, three miles above the city, was carried out by the freshet. The part of the town along the river bank, including the Independence Telephone building, was under two feet of water. A dam at Elk Creek, above Independence, went out, flooding that village and the Waunabeau mill dam across the line into Buffalo county, was also carried away. Farmers in the Trempealeau valley are driving their stock into the hills. A train on the Green Bay and Western road was wrecked three miles west of Whitehall by a washout. No one was hurt in the wreck.

Flood at Fond du Lac.

Fond du Lac.—Damage to the amount of several hundred dollars resulted from a flood caused by the breaking of the dam on the Fond du Lac river at Eldorado. Stocks of merchandise in basements constituted the principal loss. The loss in the county outside of the city of Fond du Lac will total about $1,000, the principal item of which is the break in the Eldorado dam. Greatly exaggerated reports of the flood situation here were sent out.

Damage at Sheboygan.

Sheboygan.—The water of Sheboygan river has lowered considerably and all of the ice has gone out. The factories in the flats resumed operations after being closed one day owing to floors being under water. The storm and ice rush caused thousands of dollars damage. Many lives were endangered by the flood and a hurricane attaining a velocity of seventy miles an hour.

Several large factories were flooded and compelled to shut down. The damage was estimated all the way from $10,000 to $20,000.

May Hurt Frog Plant.

Oshkosh.—An effort to protect the frog by having a closed season may do away with E. R. Neumefeldt's "industry." He raises frogs, and sends them east for table delicacies.

Detective's Victim Dies.

Racine.—Sam Perry, who was shot by Detective Christiansen, is dead. Perry was arrested on a white slavery charge and was being conducted to the lockup when he made a break for liberty and was shot.

Plan Garb for School Girls.

Stoughton.—The girls of the Stoughton high school have unanimously decided to do away with expensive commencement gowns and to wear instead plain white sailor suits.

May Build Sea Wall.

Algoma.—Algoma may be forced to build a sea wall for protection of the lake front. Continual washing of the waves caused the banks to cave in. They are protected temporarily by ice banks.

Child Drinks Poison.

Beloit.—Lola, 2-year-old child of John Pettengill, drank the contents of a saucer containing eye water, left on the table by her grandfather and died a few hours later.

That Tuberculosis Cure.

Concerning the Friedman tuberculosis "cure", the official organ of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association will print the following comment in the forthcoming March issue.

FRIEDMAN—COOKE

You recall the furor that was created in the press by the "discovery" of the north pole by Dr. Cooke. You recall how people who didn't even know the names of the scientific instruments used by explorers, were "convinced" after their own careful consideration of the evidence.

In the case of Friedman's "discovery" you have noticed that some doctors are quoted in the public prints as being satisfied from their knowledge that here, at last, is a consumption cure. In the case of Cooke, the public finally took the judgement of geographers, explorers and mathematicians, that we had been faked.

In the case of the Friedman "cure", the intelligent public will eventually take the judgement of the bacteriologists and competent physicians. Why not wait patiently for that verdict? If it's worth considering, it won't be premature or indigestible half baked.

Friedman's apparent lack of faith in the interest, intelligence and integrity of scientists, raises a suspicion in the minds of the thinking public that he himself may be lacking in those characteristics which are essential in a scientist.

We earnestly hope a cure for consumption has been found! We don't believe it has been!

SYNOPSIS.

Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room. Clyde and his wife, who the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head removed by means of a string unnoted by Cameron. Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree, where it had been used as a target. Clyde pleads Evelyn's secrecy. Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philip Grayson, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper. Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and to require the return of the rifle. He alleges alleged infractions of the game laws and speaks of finding the bowl of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning. While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Nell Grayson mirror is mysteriously shattered. Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip. The yacht picks up a fisherman found drifting helplessly in the sea. He gives the name of Johnson. Cameron disappears from yacht while Clyde's back is turned. A fruitless search is made for a motor boat seen by the captain just before Cameron disappeared. Johnson is allowed to go after being closely questioned. Evelyn takes the letters to an expert in Chinese literature, who pronounces them of Chinese origin. Clyde seeks assistance from a Chinese fellow college student, who recommends him to Yip Sing, a prominent Chinaman in New York. The latter promises to seek information of Cameron among his countrymen. Among Cameron's letters is found one from one Addison, who speaks of seeing Cameron in Pekin. Cameron had frequently declared to Clyde that he had never been in China. Clyde tells Addison and Cameron were at one time intimate friends, but had falling out over Cameron's denial of having been seen in Pekin by Addison. Clyde goes to meet Yip Sing, sees Johnson, attempts to follow him into a basement, sprains his ankle and becomes unconscious. Clyde is found by Miss Clement, a missionary among the Chinese. He is sick several days as a result of inhaling charcoal fumes. Evelyn tells Cameron of the peculiarly acting anesthetics which render a person temporarily unconscious. Murphy is discovered to be a notorious relation with the Chinese. Miss Clement promises to get information about Cameron.

It was now my turn to be thoughtful. Evelyn believed in the woman's ability to aid. She had said as much to me. And I myself possessed a certain degree of faith in feminine intuition. Aside from that, though, Miss Clement had demonstrated that she wielded a certain power in her ball-walk—was not my watch, at that moment, in my pocket?—and her whole personality proclaimed inherent capacity for accomplishment.

"Very well, Miss Clement," I agreed. "I will wait three days. It is now Saturday, November 14. If by this time Tuesday afternoon we are not, at least, on the track of something tangible, I shall be on my way to Mulberry street."

Sunday was with me a day of impatience. I fretted now at confinement for my ankle was quite strong again, and I was perfectly well in other respects, too. But my physician had set Monday for my first day out, and he refused to concede even a twenty-four-hour change of plan. But I chafed more even at the inactivity to which I had agreed concerning Cameron than at the confinement. All at once, I had become imbued with a necessity for prompt and strenuous measures. Some awful thing, I knew not what, seemed ominously imminent, and remorse tore at me tormentfully.

Early Monday, I telephoned Miss Clement for tidings of her progress, but she could only implore me to wait. She had nothing to report, but she was encouraged. With my hands thus tied diversion was my only refuge, and an accumulation of office work into which I plunged myself, in part at least, this purpose.

Evelyn and Mrs. Lancaster had come in from Greenwich and opened the Cameron house, and great white granite Renaissance affair on upper Fifth avenue, facing the park; and because the girl had made me promise, I lunched there; but I went with less grace than ever before, uncertain as I was of my self-control. Evelyn's faith in Miss Clement, however, was contagious. She spoke of little else, and when I came away it was with strengthened hope of speedy results.

It is my habit to glance over the earlier editions of all the evening papers before leaving my office, and later, either on the train to Greenwich or when in town, at my club, to read more carefully the later issues of the News and Star. On this particular day, however, a succession of matters of more importance prevented my looking at so much as a headline, until, seated at dinner, in the club restaurant, I saw on a window ledge beside me one of the more sensational of the afternoon dailies, and appropriated it in lieu of better companionship.

It was one of those journals which, in catering to the tastes of the profane, conceals it wise to minimize their references to Wall street, save only when a marked slump or a panic points the moral of the unscrupulous capitalist and his heinous crimes. When, therefore, long, bold-face type attracted my eye with the announcement, "Fall in Crystal Consolidated," I started to read the subjoined article, confident enough that some director or directors had been spotted for barbaque. And before I had read five lines I came upon the name of Robert Cameron.

"The great glass trust," as it was called, and with the name of its multimillionaire master, strangely enough I had never connected the Cameron I knew with this Cameron, the Captain of Industry.

"I am," he had said, in all modesty, "largely interested in a certain line of industrial enterprises." That was all, I suppose I should have known; and yet, "no prophet is without honor, save in his own country."

The newspaper article I now read, however, left no room for doubt on the subject; and, incidentally in a single sentence, revealed the secret of how Cameron had succeeded in escaping that general recognition which is usually the penalty of greatness. "He has never set for a photograph."

But, while this part of the article interested, that which followed startled and perplexed me:

"Crystal Consolidated fell to 103 today," it went on, "because of a persistent rumor that Robert Cameron is seriously ill, in a New England sanitarium. The greatest secrecy has been maintained as to his malady and his whereabouts by those who are in a position to know. It has been ascertained, however, that after spending a quiet summer at his country place, Cragholt, on Long Island sound, near Greenwich, he started on October 21, on his first steam yacht Sibylla for a cruise along the New England coast. Ten days later the Sibylla returned, but Mr. Cameron was not on board."

"It is known that he has been in ill health for months, and there are those who now declare that he has sought the seclusion of an institution for the treatment of nervous diseases, near Boston, his condition being critical."

"Inquiry, today, at his Fifth avenue home in this city, and at his Connecticut country seat, was fruitless. Mr. Cameron was at neither place, and the servants expressed ignorance concerning his present address."

"At the offices of the Crystal Consolidated Manufacturing company and at those of the missing financier's brokers, Hatch & Hastings, evasion was the keynote of the answers to all questions."

"Whether Mr. Cameron is as ill as is reported, or whether he is quite robust, the effect of the gossip on Crystal Consolidated was disastrous. A slump of fifteen points in two hours, this afternoon, wiped out many weakly margined accounts, and spread ruin among a number of speculators who fondly imagined this law-defying trust, of which Cameron is the supporting Atlas, as firmly entrenched as to the government itself."

"Unless something definite is forthcoming regarding Mr. Cameron's condition before the market opens tomorrow, a panic in Crystal Consolidated is predicted. It closed today at 102 1/2 bid, 103 asked; the lowest figures recorded this year."

It startled me, because it showed that at least a part of the secret we were guarding was a secret no longer; and it perplexed me because I could not fancy through what channel these somewhat distorted facts had filtered into publicity. I had no doubt that the ball, having been set rolling in this fashion, would gain both in volume and momentum unless some energetic measures were promptly taken to check it. And yet, what, under the circumstances, could we do? Subterfuge, I knew, would be useless, and the truth must prove an accelerant. In haste and with diminished appetite I rushed through my dinner, and a moment later was speeding up the avenue as fast as a taxicab could carry me, with the Cameron mansion my destination and a consultation with Evelyn Grayson my object.

It must not be imagined that in this matter I expected any weighty assistance from a young woman of such limited circumstances; but she was practically alone in the great house, and I could well imagine how already reporters must be vying one with another to wring from her admissions concerning her uncle.

And, indeed, it seemed to me little more than the husk of the Cameron I had known. In facial conformation the change was not so marked, though his expression was pathetically at variance with anything I had ever before seen him wear. The lines of his face were drawn, as with pain, and his eyes were dull to vacancy. He lolled, lazily, in a crumpled heap in his corner, like a spineless mannikin; and though I plied him eagerly with a flood of questions, he might have been a deaf mute for all the answers he accorded me. Once I thought he shook his head in negation, but I was later forced to conclude that this was involuntary, being caused by the roll of the cab as one of its wheels encountered a depression in the roadway.

Yet in spite of his somnolence of presence and demeanor—in spite too of the tormenting mystery of his return, which was scarcely less baffling than the mystery of his departure—it was at least a relief to know that he was alive and out of the power of those (that were bent upon his harm. Good nursing, coupled with skillful medical attention, had just worked wonders for me, and I was confident that it would do the same for him; and then we should have facts and not theories to aid us in our quest for the culprits, and, eventually, in the administration of justice to the guilty.

CHAPTER XVII.

Opposite the Cathedral, Fifth avenue at two o'clock in the morning is fast asleep. There are localities in New York which are more widely awake at that hour than at any other time of day, but the highway of fashion is not one of them; and in the neighborhood of Fifth street, its repose is as profound as at any point of its long, undeviatingly straight course.

For over an hour I had waited in that sumptuous white marble club of the plutocrats which ostentatiously punctuates the avenue at Sixth street, and, tired of sitting, nervous and disappointed, I had chosen to walk down to my room, believing that the exercise in the clear, frosty air would serve to counteract, in a measure at least, all three of these vexations.

To the limit of sight there stretched away a double, converging chain of twin lights marking the curb line for endless blocks, and illuminating the nearer sidewalk and roadway, if not to effulgence, certainly with a clearly defining radiance. Now and then I met a quick-stepping pedestrian, usually in evening dress with cigar alight; and at more or less brief intervals limousined motors and taxicabs with gleaming lamps sped by me at top speed. Once a hansom passed, the hoof-beats of the hand-driven horse resounding jarringly against the night silence.

At Fifty-fourth street, I cut diagonally across the avenue to the west side, and, continuing my way southward, absorbed in the problems confronting me, had been for a little quite lost to encompassing objects. Then, suddenly, fearing lest in my abstraction I should pass the street on which my rooms were located, I arrested myself to get an idea of my location.

Across the way the grim facade of the Cathedral rising dark and sullen as a fortress made all clear. But, on my own side of the avenue there had been no such distinguishing mark. The brown stone dwellings, monotonously ugly, with their high stoops and balustraded areas, were no more enlightening than the stone flagging of the sidewalk or the asphalt of the roadway.

Scores of blocks presented practically the same aspect as this. But as with critical gaze I measured one by another of these combinations I was all at once arrested by sight of a tall, bent figure clutching the high iron railings which guarded the avenue frontage of the house on the corner—the only really individual house in the row.

My first rough concept was that I had come upon incapacity resulting from Intemperance. At closer view, however, I tempered my judgment. The possibility of illness or injury intervened, and I paused Samaritan-like to offer succor. The wayfarer was evidently a man of middle age, if I might judge from the contour of his back, which was towards me, and I saw at once that he was struggling to keep upon his feet by sheer muscular hold of the railing's iron uprights, for his knees were bent threateningly and his arms were extended and tense.

"Until I was close beside him he gave no sign of realizing my presence. Indeed I think it was not until I spoke that he had turned his head towards me, and, for the first time, I got sight of his features."

Whether or not I uttered a word, or made a sound, or stood for a long moment silent, I cannot say. I know only that I doubted my eyes and questioned my reason; for, if these were not playing me false, the profile thus revealed to me was the profile of Robert Cameron.

To try to set down in detail just how I came to be an idle effort, with fancy providing the bulk of ingredients. Surprised, amazed, astounded even, are all too feeble terms to apply to my emotional condition. Dazedly, I was floundering in what seemed a veritable sea of unreality. When the commonplaces began to re-adjust themselves, I was standing at the curb, my arm wound supportively about Cameron's waist and his arm pressing heavy on my shoulder. Drawing in to us was an empty hansom cab, provided by Providence, and I called, I suppose, by me, though I swear I have no recollection of it.

The cabman helped me to lift him in, and at this piteous of his plight smote me, tempering the joy of having found him, and quickening within me a spirit of angry retaliation against his enemies. For the man now at my side was far different from that man who had sat with me on the after deck of the Sibylla, only four weeks ago. He was, indeed, it seemed to me little more than the husk of the Cameron I had known. In facial conformation the change was not so marked, though his expression was pathetically at variance with anything I had ever before seen him wear. The lines of his face were drawn, as with pain, and his eyes were dull to vacancy. He lolled, lazily, in a crumpled heap in his corner, like a spineless mannikin; and though I plied him eagerly with a flood of questions, he might have been a deaf mute for all the answers he accorded me. Once I thought he shook his head in negation, but I was later forced to conclude that this was involuntary, being caused by the roll of the cab as one of its wheels encountered a depression in the roadway.

Yet in spite of his somnolence of presence and demeanor—in spite too of the tormenting mystery of his return, which was scarcely less baffling than the mystery of his departure—it was at least a relief to know that he was alive and out of the power of those (that were bent upon his harm. Good nursing, coupled with skillful medical attention, had just worked wonders for me, and I was confident that it would do the same for him; and then we should have facts and not theories to aid us in our quest for the culprits, and, eventually, in the administration of justice to the guilty.

I had given the cabman the number of the Cameron house and admonished him to make all possible speed; so, with the long lash of the whip snapping sharply at brief intervals and the jaded horse, thus urged, bounding at a clump, lumbering gallop, we rolled noisily northward. Having given over the effort to obtain from my fellow passenger even a gestured answer to my most pertinent inquiries, I turned my mind to what lay before us. The Cameron establishment would doubtless be fast locked in slumber as well as otherwise, but I made small question of my ability to rouse some of the servants. My hope, however, was not to awaken Evelyn. It could mean only a night's rest lost for her, for she could gain nothing by seeing her uncle at this hour, considering his condition.

I was still busy planning when a mighty hand on the lines brought our horse to his haunches, and ourselves nearly out through the suddenly parted apron; and the Cameron residence loomed massive and dark on our right.

As I stepped to the sidewalk the driver descended, too, but I motioned him back.

"Never mind, thank you," I said. "I'll get some one from inside to help carry him." And in a moment my thumb was on the push-button and faintly there came back to me through heavy double doors the far-off echo of the bell, jarring against the silence of the great house.

The promissiveness with which chains fell and bolts were drawn surprised me. And yet, I suppose, it was merely an evidence of the perfect management of an establishment wherein every contingency is provided against. A footman, as irreproachably liveried and groomed as though the time were midway instead of after two o'clock in the morning, greeted me with becoming imperturbability. I recognized him as one of the men from Cragholt, and called him by name.

"Stephen," I said, with an effort to disguise the excitement with which my every pulse was throbbing, "your master is outside in a cab. He is very weak and will need assistance. Get another man to aid me, and then awaken Mr. Checkabeedy and Louis. And make haste. No, I can't come in; I'll wait outside." He turned away in obedience to my directions, but I checked him. "And, Stephen," I checked him, "no word to any one else, as you value your position; especially no word to Miss Grayson."

I marvelled at the man's preserved unemotion. His "Very good, sir," was uttered with all the stolidity which marked a response to the commonplace; and yet I knew that he was fully conscious of the eventfulness of this late and unlooked-for home-coming. And the footman who joined me a few minutes later was not less well-trained.

Together, he and I lifted Cameron from the hansom and carried him up the broad flight of granite steps, and placed him in a great chair in the hall, before the wide, sculptured fireplace. And though this would probably prove the most exciting topic of the servants' hall for weeks to come, he gave not the smallest sign that he was taking part in other than the usual.

Checkabeedy, the butler, however, though no less perfect a servant, was more privileged; and Louis, volatile as the most characteristic of his countrymen, collapsed utterly, without effort, apparently, at any restraint whatever. The former's interest was evidenced in a commiserating lugubrious visage and a few blunt questions, but the Frenchman wept and sobbed in wordless sympathy. And I had it not in my heart to blame either, for a more pitiful picture than the one presented by the restored Cameron as he sat there in his own spacious hall, gazing with lack-luster eyes at the dead and dying embers on the hearth before him, I hope never to see.

The butler, ruddy and rotund, and looking for all the world like a well-fed monk, for he wore a bathrobe of sumner hue and his crown was bareer than any shaven tonsure, stared for a moment in sad silence. Then, turning to me, he asked:

"But what has happened to Mr. Cameron, sir?"

"I wish I could tell you, Checkabeedy," was my unguarded reply. "I wish he could tell us himself."

"But he is so wasted, sir! And his clothes. I never saw Mr. Cameron in such clothes."

It was quite true. They were of what is called, I believe, a pepper-and-salt mixture, coarse of texture and ill-cut, did not much more.

"He does not recognize us," Checkabeedy went on, "and still he is conscious. May I ask you, sir, where you brought him from?"

I chose to ignore the question, in sudden realization of the necessity of caution.

"And he has been missing a month, they say, sir. Is that true, Mr. Clyde?"

"Missing!" I repeated. "Who says he has been missing?"

"The servants all say so, sir."

"Then the servants must get rid of the idea, at once," I said, sharply. "Mr. Cameron has merely been out of town for a while. He went away for his health, and now he has returned, benefited. Do you understand, Checkabeedy? He has returned, benefited. And now, you and Louis will get him to his room, while I telephone for Dr. Massey."

News Notes of Wisconsin.

Monroe.—This city is to have a soldier's monument to cost $10,000, and a soldier, who as a boy lived here, pays the bill. It will be dedicated on Memorial day and the address will be made by another former Monroeite, C. E. Adams, now a resident of Nebraska, who expects to be the next commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. The donor of the monument is Capt. B. M. Pries, who enlisted as a private in the Thirty-eighth Wisconsin and won a captaincy by bravery in battle.

Lake Geneva.—Since he was twelve years old, which he says was just an even century ago, Thomas Sullivan of Williams Bay has taken a morning plunge. As hale and hearty as many men half his age who flock to the summer resort near the aged man's farm, Sullivan is still active and works every day. Sullivan came to America nearly eighty years ago. He is one of the oldest settlers of Wisconsin, having located in Walworth county fifty-five years ago.

Madison.—Fully 1,000 men students, or about one-third of the male student body at the university, are estimated to be earning at least part of the money they are spending for their education. Figures obtainable on the wages of 300 of the students, showed an income of $27,375 during the school year. The total amount estimated to be earned is over $50,000. About 500 of the students who are working are freshmen, and the rest are upper-classmen.

Stevens Point.—The "Old White School" which was closely linked to the lives of scores of residents of Stevens Point, is being torn down. The old school house was erected in 1857 and for a score of years was the seat of learning in this city. It remained in active service for nearly fifty years. An association of graduates of this school number 232.

FREE ADVICE TO SICK WOMEN

Thousands Have Been Helped By Common Sense Suggestions.

Women suffering from any form of female ills are invited to communicate promptly with the woman's private correspondence department of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established a confidential correspondence which has extended over many years and which has never been broken. Never have they published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which they have to draw from, it is more than possible that they possess the very knowledge needed in your case. Nothing is asked in return except your good will, and their advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today.

Pettit's Eye Salve

SUITED HIM.

"I've just been reading in this history of France all about Charlotte Corday. She sure was a great dame, all right."

"What did she do?"

"Killed a guy what was taking a bath."

Cruel to Be Kind.

"What makes you carry that horrible shriek machine for an automobile signal?"

"For humane reasons," replied Mr. Chuggins. "If I can paralyze a person with fear, he will keep still and I can run to one side of him."

There is one thing a woman never boasts of and that is how little it costs to have her last year's hat remodeled.

FILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS

However, the man who knows just how to manage a woman never tried it.

Healthy Old Age Is What Dr. Hartman Advocates

S. B. HARTMAN, M. D.

See here, young man, I heard you complaining the other day of being nervous, sleepless, brain fagged, and the like. A young man, hardly in the zenith of your life, complaining of such things! And this is very common, too. You are not the only one. Probably three out of four of the young men of today have just such symptoms as you describe. What does it mean?

Look at me. I am eighty-two years old. Sound as a nut. Tough as hickory. Do not know what it is to be tired. While I cannot do as much physical work as I used to when a young man, I can do a great deal. Probably twice as much as the average young man of today.

What has kept me so strong and well? I will tell you. I do not use tobacco. I do not use alcoholic stimulants. I do not use tea or coffee habitually. I go to bed early. I get up early. I am always doing something; something that occupies my body and mind. I love to work. I take a cold water towel bath every morning, winter and summer. It is these things that have kept me well and strong. You could be just as well and strong as I am if you would do as I do.

You may ask, do I never get sick, have I never had occasion to take medicine at all? Yes, I have got sick. Sometimes I feel a little touch of climatic trouble, like cold, malaria, slight catarrhal symptoms, but my only medicine is Peruna. I always keep a bottle of Peruna in the house. I keep a bottle of Peruna on my desk in my office. Once in a while I take some. I do not take it habitually. Take it only when I feel a little out of sorts. One swallow will perhaps be all that will be necessary, but it is always handy by.

It is a sorry sight to see the young men of today begin to peter out physically when they ought to be in the glory of their manhood and the height of their vigor. Eat plain food. Live frugally. Give up all weakening habits. Live as God intended you to live. Take Peruna when you do not feel as well as usual.

If you want me to I will send you a book which will tell you a great many more things about yourself and about matters that may be of great value to you. Enclose a two-cent stamp for postage and the book will be sent in a plain wrapper and you will not be troubled with any follow-up letters or advertisements. Peruna is for sale at all drug stores.

A SUGGESTION.

"Man's but clay, after all." In order to keep up with the times, I suppose a modern man ought to be made of reinforced concrete.

A GRATEFUL OLD MAN.

Mr. W. D. Smith, Ethel, Ky., writes: "I have been using Dodd's Kidney Pills for ten or twelve years and they have done me a great deal of good. I do not think I would be alive today if it were not for Dodd's Kidney Pills. I strained my back about forty years ago, which left it very weak. I was troubled with inflammation of the bladder. Will you send me a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me of that and the Kidney Trouble. I take Dodd's Kidney Pills now to keep from having Backache. I am 77 years old and a farmer. You are at liberty to publish this testimonial, and you may use my picture in connection with it." Correspond with Mr. Smith at this wonderful remedy.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY. In this age of research and experiment, all nature is being explored. Science has indeed made great strides in the past century and is now making the most important discoveries in medicine as that of the germ, which has been used to great advantage in French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, chronic weakness, dizziness, etc. It is a fact that the RAPIDON is destined to cast into oblivion all these miserable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell whether it will be able to tell these things in this short article, but those who would like to know more about this remedy for KIDNEY, BLADDER, NERVOUS, etc., should send address for FREE BOOK to Dr. J. Afternoon Dress a Triumph of the Expert Parisian Modiste Afternoon dress of red voile, pleated with belt of embroidered ribbon. The skirt forms three rows of straight cut ruffles.

STYLES IN CHILDREN'S COATS AIM SHOULD BE SIMPLICITY

Severe Simplicity Will Be the Accepted Idea for the Models of the Coming Season. Best Ideas for Dressing of Young Girl's Hair is Here Given From Authority.

According to the Dry Goods Economist, simple tailored styles for every-day wear are receiving the most attention in children's coats. Such garments are shown in serges, Bedford cords, whipcords, poplins and fancy mixtures. The collars, cuffs and revers are usually of silk, ratine or cloth in some bright color. On the dressier numbers lingerie collars and cuffs are employed. In most instances these are made detachable, so that they can be easily laundered. Belts are a feature of many of the best selling models. Frequently the belt is seen only in the back section. When the entire belt is used it is placed several inches below the waist line and is made of satin, silk or velvet. Plain or crushed broad velvet belts are considered particularly smart and are used with excellent effect on bright colored coats in red, willow blue, tan and rose. Sashes are also being used in a similar manner. These are frequently in black or of the same shade as the coat itself.

SMART SPRING SUIT

A spring suit of navy blue broad cloth with one button cutaway jacket.

Paris dressmakers are using printed silks of rather florid designs on soft silks and crepe de chines for linings, especially where plain materials are in question. All crepe fabrics also are in demand for home gowns, and with these the introduction of printed silks will take the form of collar facings and little touches in the waistbands. Buttons will also be covered in small designed printed silk.

Sponge cloths, ratine or velour de laine all more or less the same thing, will still find favor in the early spring, but serge and suitings in navy blue promise to be more in vogue than ever.

In the navy blue suiting the tiny pin stripe is likely to lead the way, one or two coats and skirts having already been seen in this material. The fashion in tailor makes does not just yet show much change. The lines are simple in the extreme. The inverted pleat at front and back, allowing of a little more freedom in movement, but retaining the straight line, is so far the only innovation.

Frilly Fashions. Certain details of dress are being hotly debated at the present time, and in the end we shall all follow the whim of the moment, as we are allowed to do in these happy days. Last spring the new fashion of long sleeves was much heralded, which for some queer reason the dressmakers tried to force us to accept when summer was coming in.

The fashion, so far as summer was concerned, was foredoomed to failure. But when autumn arrived, of course, the time of the long sleeve had come, and down it crept accordingly until now, when, apart from the prevailing frills, the material itself reaches down half way to the finger tips in the old familiar Bernhardt fashion.

To Freshen Ribbons. Ribbons and silk can usually be made to look fresher if they are washed in soapy water, dried and ironed. If they are desired stiff they should be ironed while wet. If they are to be soft they must first be dried, and any wrinkles which refuse to iron out without water can be moistened with a sponge wrung dry.

WHY INCUBATOR CHICKS DIE

SWALLOW HAD LONG JOURNEY Positive Proof That Bird Traveled the Distance From England to South Africa.

The capture of a swallow bearing an aluminum ring in Natal, South Africa, the other day, has resulted in an astonishing insight into the migratory habits of birds. From a number was discovered that the swallow was one of 11,483 British birds marked in a similar way last summer by enthusiasts, desiring to learn more as to the routes taken by bird migrants, and whether birds return again to their previous nesting sites. This systematic marking of birds began in 1909, since when nearly 32,000 have been "ringed." About three per cent. are afterward noted, but the swallow reported from Natal appears to have made the longest flight so far. A black-headed gull ringed as a nestling in Yorkshire in July, 1911, was found in February, 1912, in Flores, Azores. A starling ringed in Berkshire in January, 1912, reached Helsingfors, Finland, in April. A teal ringed in Staffordshire in the autumn of 1910, was found at Balarne, Sweden, July, 1911.

BURNED AND ITCHED BADLY

539 Lincoln Park Blvd., Chicago, Ill.—"A year ago I received a very severe burn on my left arm. I caught cold in it and it was all sore and ulcerated. The sore was as large as a silver dollar. It was all red and inflamed and had pus running out of it. I suffered terribly from burning pain; could not sleep for two weeks. It burned and itched so badly. I applied Salve, Salve and a salve my druggist recommended as his own, but got no relief. I then commenced using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bathed the burned parts with Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment on a linen bandage. I got relief from the first, and my arm healed nicely. I was soon able to be at work again. Had I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment at first I would have avoided lots of suffering." (Signed) Harry Junke, Mar. 2, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L. Boston." Adv.
