ANOTHER PIONEER PASSES AWAY

Ludwig Bunkelmann, Aged 81 years, a Resident of this Village Since 1893 Passes Away After Few Days Illness.

FUNERAL HELD THURSDAY

Deceased Was Janitor of the Lutheran Church of this Village for the Past 18 Years.—Also Had Charge of the Congregation's Cemetery for 19 Years.

Ludwig Bunkelmann, aged 81 years, 8 months, and 1 day, passed away at his home in this village on Monday, March 31, 1913, at 4 p. m. after a few days illness. Death being due to old age and dropsy.

Deceased was born on July 30, 1831 in Van Dish, Prebors, Mecklenburg, Schwereu, Germany. When a young man of 35 years he immigrated to this country with his family, settling in the town of Ashford, later moving to the town of Auburn, and on November 29, 1893 took up a residence in this village where he has resided ever since. In the year 1895, November 3rd, he was married to Sophia Botha. Their union was blessed with seven children, six of whom together with their mother still survive. The names of the children together with their residence are as follows: Fred of Fall Brook, Cal.; William and Louis of the town of Farmington; Bertha Mrs. Gates of Watertown, N. D.; Sophia, Mrs. Schmidt of Middleton, and Katie, Mrs. Hous Nordhaue of the town of Auburn. Besides these he leaves to mourn his loss 33 grand children and 8 great grand children.

Subscriptions Being Paid.

Since sending out letters to all subscribers, who have been in arrears for the STATESMAN for one year or more, a large number have responded, for which the management is thankful. There are still a number back, and in order to have this office report a clean statement to the post office department, we would greatly appreciate that those who have not responded, would do so immediately. Several of those who have received letters, have come to this office to pay, which we are sorry for. We did not send these letters out to offend the subscribers, but merely because we prefer to have the mails allowed us, and avoid being punished to an extent of having to pay a fine from $50 to $500.

The postal laws are very strict with newspapers and are being strictly enforced, therefore we were compelled to take the course that we have. If a subscriber, who is in arrears, fails to receive a copy of the STATESMAN in the very near future, he will know the reason. We regret very much to take the course of taking names off of our list, but will do so in order to protect ourselves. If we do take off names from our list for the reason of arrears in payment, we shall take steps to collect the account due us.

Buy Turkey Eggs Now and Avoid Black-Head.

Declaring that it is better to start raising turkeys from eggs in spring, than by buying old birds in fall, Prof. J. G. Halpin of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin advises farmers to secure their turkey setting now, so as to have the poult hatch some time during May. Prof. Halpin gives the following directions:

Buy two settings of eggs from different sources. Hatch the poult under hens, and mark one lot by means of a toe punch. In the fall select the best male from one of the lots and the best females from the other.

Turkeys should be raised on high ground away from the chicken yards. This is in order to prevent the introduction of black-head, the disease which is menacing the turkey industry in some sections of the country.

Turkeys have been advancing steadily in price, thus anybody who succeeds at all with them should find them highly profitable.

SECOND CHOICE BILL

Madison, Wis., Mar. (Special)—Second choice at the November general election, as well as at primary elections, is the purpose of a measure introduced by Assemblyman L. L. Johnson. The measure is calculated to encourage individual rather than straight party voting. The proposed law applies the primary second choice law to general elections and if passed, it is said, will do away with the voting machines.

To prevent the choice of a minority becoming the majority—as often was the case where four candidates were the intention of the second choice for primaries. The application of the second choice to November elections, it is claimed, will have the same effect, especially in Milwaukee county where there is often a three-cornered fight.

The Johnson bill goes even farther towards carrying out the voters' wish than the "Mary Ann" say's backers. They point out that just as a man may have a first and second choice for the nomination for Governor, so may he have a first and second choice between nominees at the general election.

STRICT INDIAN LAWS

Selling liquor to Indians will receive much greater penalties and sureness of conviction will be greatly increased if the bill introduced by the senate committee on state affairs is passed. The former penalty has been not to exceed $100 while this bill would make the fine not less than $100 nor more than $500. The Indian may be retained until he is sober and required to appear as to the place of the liquor and the evidence is turned over to a United States officer for securing conviction.

Stop Spread of Oat Smut.

Oat smut, which was practically eradicated from the state by the agronomy department of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin, is again assuming importance, through the failure of many farmers to use the simple formalin treatment to prevent the disease. The fact that oat smut caused serious losses last summer in some fields in the state should convince farmers that safety lies only in treating all their seed oats.

One pint of formalin, or formaldehyde, which may be obtained at any drug store, will treat thirty bushels of oats. The solution should be made by using one pint of formalin to 36 gallons of water in a tank or barrels. The oats should then be put in gunny sacks filled only two-thirds full, and submerged in the formalin for only ten minutes.

When the sacks of oats are withdrawn from the barrels or tank they should be allowed to drain, thereby saving considerable solution that would otherwise be wasted. The oats are then emptied on a threshing floor, and covered with blankets an hour or two so as to make the treatment more effective. After this the oats are allowed to dry. Oats treated with the formalin solution will usually dry sufficiently for sowing in one or two days. After treatment the oats swell considerably, and it is necessary for the seeder or drill to be set so that it will sow about one bushel more per acre.

Oats can be treated effectively several weeks or months previous to sowing if desired, and if properly dried the germinating power will not suffer. For the average farmer just previous to sowing will prove most convenient. The formalin solution of the strength recommended is not poisonous and will not injure the hands or clothing. Barley should also be treated as one of the smuts common to barley is effectively eradicated by this treatment and other diseases are also held in check.

Can Keep Soil Free from Potato Diseases.

"The new, disease-free soils on which a large proportion of Wisconsin's potatoe are grown, may be kept practically free from potato diseases, provided wise cultural methods are used," declares Prof. L. R. Jones of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin in the first annual report of the Wisconsin Potato Growers' Association recently issued.

"If Wisconsin seed potato growers can supply seed which they guarantee not only true to name and type but free from disease, the demand for Wisconsin grown seed will increase to an almost unlimited degree. Healthy northern grown seed potatoes are something the southern growers must have if they are to continue in business. As they have difficulty at present in securing such seed, it is Wisconsin's opportunity to meet this need."

ALFALFA AT THE FRONT

Wisconsin Will Have Two Hundred and Fifty Per Cent. Increase Over Last Year.

Indications are that the new seedings of alfalfa in Wisconsin will be at least 250 per cent greater in 1913 than in 1912, and it may go to 400 per cent. When it is considered that 1912 seeding was many times that of any other year, it is easy to see that we are "going some" in Wisconsin in this matter.

The Wisconsin advancement association has hammered away on this matter with a persistence that could not do otherwise than produce results. Its manager was preaching alfalfa in Wisconsin away back when alfalfa was thought to be a crop limited to the dry territory. It now turns out that Wisconsin is not only a winner in the matter of yield per acre, but has carried off the world's championship for quality.

The Wisconsin college of agriculture now has orders for forty tons of alfalfa seed against sixteen tons last year. What the total will be this year cannot now be stated.

The Wisconsin Advancement association holds that the displacement of 2,250,000 acres now seeded to other forage crops by alfalfa will add $100,000,000 to the annual value of the agricultural output of the state. We are making haste somewhat slowly in this matter, but with great profit.

Roast Chicken Costs 77 Cents Per Pound.

That roast chicken costs seventy cents a pound, exclusive of the cost of fuel and labor in preparing it for the table, even when chickens are purchased in quantities at nineteen cents a pound, is shown by investigation conducted by classes in home economics at the University of Wisconsin. These estimates were made on the basis of sixty-five pounds of chicken purchased for the cafeteria at Lathrop Hall, the woman's building at the university.

The investigations of the young women show that of the 65 pounds of chicken purchased for a meal at the cafeteria, 20 are lost in dressing, and nearly 17 more in cooking. Thus the 65 pounds of

DATES ARE FIXED FOR COUNTY FAIR

County Show Falls First Week in September

TO REVISE PREMIUM LIST

Committee Meeting Will Be Called Soon to Determine Improvements for the Year.

(FOND DU LAC COMMONWEALTH)

The officers of the county fair association decided Saturday morning to hold the 1913 fair September 2, 3, 4 and 5. These dates fall in the first week of September, it is hoped by the county fair officials that the exclusively September dates will put the fair into a week of warmth and sunshine. The days are Tuesday, Wednesday Thursday and Friday. There will be no night fairs.

The county fair association proposes within the next few weeks to call a meeting of the county board committee on county grounds and agree upon improvements that are to be taken up this season. Among the improvements in mind is some plan for draining the grounds and shingling some of the exhibition barns which are in need of that repair.

President C. W. Keys of the Co. fair association wants the premium list revised and the premiums in certain departments increased. The delay in setting the dates for the fair has been occasioned by the illness of President Keys, who has been confined to his home for several weeks with an attack of grip. He was in town this morning attending the meeting.

The state fair this year falls in the second week of September.

Election passed off very quietly last Tuesday. There was no opposition for town officers.

Dr. H. Dreissel and Dr. N. E. Hausmann of Kewaskum were professional callers here on Tuesday.

Mrs. John Hawig spent the forepart of the week with friends and relatives at Milwaukee and Allenton.

Louisa Hangartner from near Campbellsport spent last Sunday here with her sister, Mrs. John Petri and family.

Victor Husting, traveling salesman for the Frankfort Hardware Co. of Milwaukee called on the trade and his old friend, "Minchhausen" here Tuesday.

Arnold Bartelt of Cascade spent last Sunday here with friends. He returned home on Monday accompanied by Miss Frieda Petri, who spent two weeks here with her mother and other relatives and friends.

Mrs. John Guenther was tendered a surprise party at her home one day last week. The occasion being her birthday anniversary. A large number of friends and neighbors were in attendance. All report a good time.

The young women have also figured out that there are 77 servings in the edible portion of the chicken, and that the actual cost of the meat alone in each one of these servings is very nearly 16 cents. Taking into account the cost of fuel, labor for preparing the chicken, dishwashing, care of the kitchen, and general wear and tear on equipment, the cost for each serving of chicken is brought up to approximately 22 cents.

These results show that, since the cafeteria is now selling an order of chicken for fifteen cents, seven cents are being lost on each serving. To offset this loss, some other articles of food are sold at a small profit. However as the cafeteria, which is under the control of the university, is not being run as a money making proposition, only enough is charged to guarantee its being self sustaining.

T. R. ON BADGER SUFFRAGE

Calls Sex Line in Voting "Sheer Nonsense" in Telegram to Gov. McGovern.

Madison.—Asked as to his stand on woman suffrage, Theodore Roosevelt telegraphed the following to Gov. McGovern:

"I earnestly hope that all Progressives will support the suffrage movement. We, in America, should lead the day to this movement. We do not have to point to what has been done abroad. The Pacific coast and Rocky mountain states have tried the experiment and it has worked admirably.

"There is no difference between the work of the best women and the best men, and it seems to me sheer nonsense, when both are doing the highest kind of work for good citizenship, that the artificial line of sex should be drawn as regards one form and only one form of that work, the exercise of the right of suffrage."

DAYTON DEATH LIST IS NOT OVER 200

LIST OF FLOOD CASUALTIES GROWS LESS AFTER CAREFUL CENSUS.

MARTIAL RULE TO CONTINUE

Cleaning Up of City Will Be Done Under Direction of Soldiers—Sightseers Pressed Into Service—Seventeen Looters Shot.

Dayton, O., April 2.—The loss of life as a result of the flood in this city grows less as a careful census of the city is taken. Brig. Gen. Woods, adjutant general of Ohio, who is in military command of the city, said today:

"It looks now as though the loss of life will fall below 200. Certainly it will not exceed that."

To date 129 bodies have been located and the hope is expressed that it may not go above 150.

Martial Law to Continue.

An emergency form of government will rule in Dayton during the period of reconstruction and rehabilitation. Until the city has recovered from its disaster it will be kept under martial law. The soldiers will be directed by the citizens' relief committee, of which John H. Patterson, president of the National Cash Register company, is head.

The work of cleaning up is proceeding rapidly. The great need now is money with which to put the city in shape to defy any pestilence and to give those who lost their homes and all their personal effects in the flood a chance to get on their feet again.

Have Enough Food Now.

Supplies had been contributed in such generous measure that Mr. Patterson announces that the relief committee has at its disposal all the food and clothing needed to meet the loss of the flood sufferers in Dayton.

"Money, however," he said, "is urgently required for putting our city in a condition to prevent the outbreak of serious disease and to rehabilitate the thousands, many of whom lost their homes entirely and all of whom lost their household and personal effects."

Force Sightseers to Work.

The task of clearing away the debris, the slime and the mud left by the flood in Dayton is proceeding with great expedition. The soldiers are aiding with shovels and axes, gangs of laborers are busy everywhere, while men who venture into the devastated district merely to look on are being impressed into service by squads of soldiers and are forced to aid in cleaning up the city.

Seventeen Looters Shot.

Seventeen men have been shot and killed in the streets of Dayton as ghouls and looters since the declaration of martial law. Ten were killed between darkness Sunday night and daylight Monday morning. Nine were negroes and the tenth a white man, the only white man of the seventeen whose crimes brought instant death as punishment.

Orders Were Shot to Kill.

Individual and squad firing was heard throughout the night in the business district where jewelry and other valuables lie at the mercy of prowlers except for the invisible lines of the sentry's bullets. After the curfew bells tolled at 8 o'clock the orders were to shoot and shoot to kill all persons present in the guarded district who refused to answer calls and obey the guardsmen's commands. The orders were obeyed.

With Sixteen Stolen Watches.

The sentry noticed that the man held his right hand behind his back. He demanded credentials. The man said he had none other than the badge of the Red Cross. The soldier presented his rifle at the man's breast and commanded him to bring his right hand from behind his back and open it. The order was obeyed and the open hand held two gold watches.

Handling Paper Patterns.

Every woman who cuts out from paper patterns knows of the bother in pinning it flat to the cloth. Take a hot iron and smooth the tissue paper pattern over the cloth and it will remain flat without pins.

Sparrows Now in the Sudan.

LATEST REPORTS OF FLOOD'S HAVOC

Deaths in the floods still an unknown number, but latest estimates are:

Table with 2 columns: Location and Number of Deaths. Dayton: 200, Columbus: 60, Piqua: 200, Chillicothe, O.: 18, Middletown, O.: 4, Zanesville: 32, Venice, O.: 25, Peru, Ind.: 16, Brookville, Ind.: 12, Terre Haute: 12.

Exploration of all flooded parts of Dayton fails to show a death list of more than 200. Undertakers, however, say the fatalities will reach 800. Loss of life confined almost entirely to north side. Peril of disease following flood lessens. Rumors of epidemic denied by officials. It is denied any lives were lost in fire which destroyed block in central district.

At Columbus fifty-six bodies have been recovered. No one dead at Sidney, according to late reports.

The Ohio river is rising at Cincinnati; suburban sections flooded.

Flood death toll in Indiana remains uncertain. Panic attacks cities of southern valleys of White and Wabash rivers as waters rise. All stricken localities face problem in fighting off disease.

Fifteen hundred residents of South Terre Haute, penned on hill, face danger of epidemic; eight dead there from disease. Survivors unable to care for bodies of dead.

Sixteen other watches were found on his person.

Led to Bank Steps and Shot.

The man with the Red Cross brassier on his arm was led to the steps of the First National bank and told to stand on the second step, facing the entrance of the building. The corporal posted himself behind the firing squad, raised his lantern so that its rays glinted along the barrels of the raised rifles of the guardsmen, and gave the three commands. The six rifles spoke as one and the man on the steps pitched forward. His body rolled to the sidewalk and lay motionless. Later it was removed.

Dayton Must Feed 40,000.

George P. Burba, secretary to Gov. Cox, who represents the governor in relief work here, on Sunday summed up the situation in Dayton as follows:

Forty thousand persons must be fed and cared for a week.

Twenty thousand persons must be fed and cared for an indefinite period. Except for the clothes on their backs they are absolutely destitute.

They must eventually be financed so they can resume housekeeping. Fifteen thousand houses must be cleaned and plastered.

Two thousand houses are wrecked or must be torn down and destroyed. Untold thousands of tons of debris, wreckage of all kinds must be carted away.

The bodies of 1,500 horses and other animals must be removed and incinerated.

BELIEVES AID IS SUFFICIENT

Governor Cox Declares People of Ohio Are Now Able to Meet the Situation Alone.

Columbus, Ohio, April 2.—"Refreshed by the tears of the American people Ohio stands ready from today to meet the crisis alone," said Governor Cox this evening. "Ohio has risen from the floods."

"We cannot speak our gratitude to President Wilson for federal aid, to the Red Cross, to states, municipalities, trade organizations and individuals that sent funds and supplies. They will never know their contribution to humanity."

"The relief situation so far as food and clothing are concerned is in hand. Thankful to her friends who succored her Ohio faces tomorrow serene and confident."

Relief funds, received and in transmission, were estimated at approximately $1,000,000, of which $389,000 was reported by Colonel M. W. Wilson, treasurer of the state relief commission, as receipts in cash and sight drafts.

Governor Cox and members of the legislature are outlining a plan of "reconstructive legislation" which will be followed in all the flood districts by the state. It virtually was decided the San Francisco relief plan should be placed in effect. Under this plan the relief would be based on property loss of the individual and the income loss incurred. The amount of relief each person would receive would be prorated on such a basis.

J. P. MORGAN DEAD

CRITICALLY ILL FOR A WEEK

Aged Banker Made Last Public Appearance in America When He Gave Testimony at Money Trust Investigation—Then Left for Trip on Nile.

Rome, March 31.—J. P. Morgan, the world's greatest financier, died at 12:05 p. m. Monday (Rome time.) Mr. Morgan passed Sunday night in a comatose state, and at the Grand hotel early Monday Herbert L. Satterlee, the aged financier's son-in-law, admitted the banker's condition was increasingly critical.

The information of his death was held up until private cables could be sent to the London and New York houses of the Morgan firm. Then it was announced to the press.

Critically Ill for a Week.

Morgan passed away after a week of critical illness, and he was for the most part unconscious since last Wednesday. The last words he uttered were said on that day, when he aroused himself and asked that his legs be massaged, a treatment that before had relieved him when he suffered from nervous disorders.

J. P. Morgan's last public appearance in the United States occurred when he gave testimony at Washington in the money trust hearing a few months ago. Shortly after, he departed for Cairo. While cruising on the Nile he had a severe attack of indigestion and was hurried to Naples and thence to Rome on a special train. He recovered for a time, but a week ago he was ordered to bed by his physicians.

Son Takes Up Burdens.

New York, March 31.—J. P. Morgan, Jr., has been in active control of his father's affairs for several years, so that Morgan enterprises will not be disturbed by the death of the great financial king. Many years ago he made preparations for his death and the taking over of his business.

J. P. Morgan was the controlling factor in a series of big industrial corporations, railroads, life insurance companies and banks. Among the important industrial combinations effected by the Morgan company was the United States Steel corporation and the Harvester company. Most of the large combinations in industry in the United States were made with the assistance of the Morgan firm during the years from 1901 to 1909, during the administration of Col. Roosevelt.

For years the mighty name of Morgan has dominated America's finances. The smile of the monarch made unknown money princes. His frown unhorsed market leaders. Standing out in the memories of all Americans are many incidents in the Morgan career, but chief is his gruff declaration: "This country's affairs are sound," during the financial panic of the Roosevelt administration in 1907, when it was at its high water mark and banks were collapsing like houses of cards throughout the country.

This was really the last big victory of Morgan. After normal conditions had been restored, he sent for his son, J. P. Morgan, Jr., and began the transferring of the burden of his affairs to younger shoulders. And it was not the imperious emperor of former years that withstood the Undermyer grilling before the money trust inquirers in Washington last winter, but an old man, a very old man.

J. P. Morgan was 76 years old.

Origin of the Dollar Sign.

The earliest known occurrence of the $ in print is in an American arithmetic, Chauncey Lee's American Accountant, published in 1797 at Lansingburg. This fact was pointed out in 1899. A recent writer again calls attention to this arithmetic and then, with sweet simplicity of mind, conveys the idea that this publication constitutes the true origin of the dollar mark. By this mental short cut he saved himself the drudgery of a research which in our case has extended over several years.

SEGREGATION IN CITIES PROPOSED

BILLS DESIGNED TO IMPROVE MUNICIPAL CONDITIONS ARE INTRODUCED.

GERMAN SYSTEM IS CHOSEN

Assemblyman Estabrook the Author of Measures Giving Power to Cities of First Class to Define Factory, Business and Residential Districts.

Madison—An attempt is to be made at the present session of the legislature to lay the foundation for the adoption of the German system for defined residential, business and factory districts in cities.

Assemblyman Estabrook has introduced two bills along this line. One gives to cities of the first class power to set apart certain sections for residences, for factories, and for business. The other gives county boards in counties of over 150,000 inhabitants the same power. This can be exercised on the initiative of the county board itself or on petition of ten or more citizens.

The bills are certain to cause a great deal of discussion, changing as more residents of the district to be affected. They do the entire municipal policy of the present.

Columbus Bill Causes Trouble.

The senators are up a tree and would like very much, if some one would show them a way to get down safely. The cause of the tree climbing is a bill introduced by Assemblyman Nye of Superior, providing that Oct. 12, the day on which Christopher Columbus is said to have sighted the western continent, be a legal holiday. Not much attention was paid to the bill at first, but since its passage in the assembly a steady stream of petitions for and against the measure has been flowing in. The opposition to the bill comes largely from the Lutheran element throughout the state. It is supported by the Knights of Columbus.

Want Teachers Fund Retained.

Speaking of petitions, even leading those received on the Columbus day bill, are the petitions received against the repeal of the teachers' retirement fund law. These have been coming in steadily into both houses and continue to come with no signs of a let-up. As a result of these two measures alone the number of petitions in the senate is more than double those received at any former session, establishing a record for this class of legislative literature.

Dodge Monument Proposed.

Eighty years ago last July Gen. Henry Dodge led a pursuing force through the site of the present city of Madison in pursuit of Black Hawk, the Indian chief, and on July 21, 1832, fought a battle in the town of Roxbury, Dane County, known as the battle of Wisconsin Heights. As the first territorial governor at Wisconsin and one of its first two United States senators, it is now proposed in a bill by Assemblyman Richardson of Iowa county, to honor him with a monument to be erected at Dodgeville, county seat of Iowa county, and named in his honor. The bill asks for $5,000.

The assembly committee on judiciary recommends for passage the Frederick bill, to define and punish fee splitting between physicians, and recommended indefinite postponement for Assemblyman Walsh's bill relating to the carrying and sale of weapons and providing a penalty.

Madison, Wis., March 28.—Gov. McGovern has issued this proclamation:

WANT INDIANS PROTECTED

Government Agents Appear Before Excise and Fees Committee.

Madison.—Six representatives of the Indian department of the federal government appeared before the assembly committee on excise and fees to urge the passage of Assemblyman A. E. Frederick's bill to stop the selling of liquor to Indians. The federal officials were E. J. Bush of Wittenberg, W. M. Bennett of Carter, A. S. Nicholson of Newport, J. C. Hart of Oneida, W. A. Light of Jayward and L. N. Compton of Tomah. All stated that the Indian must be protected from unscrupulous saloonists and bootleggers, as his appetite for liquor was such that he could not protect himself. Unless this was done when the time came that the United States government turned these charges over to the state they would be expensive citizens.

Charged with Shooting.

STATE GAINS LAND BY COURT DECISION

IMPORTANT POINT IN BOUNDARY BETWEEN WISCONSIN AND MINNESOTA SETTLED.

MUCH PROPERTY AFFECTED

Coal Docks and Blast Furnace Sites at Superior Held to Be in Wisconsin by United States Circuit Court—Reverses Judge Morris' Decision.

Superior.—Real and personal property worth millions of dollars which has commonly been considered as located in Minnesota and which has been taxed in that state, is placed in Wisconsin and becomes subject to laws of this state by a decision just handed down by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Louis. The decision is a reversal of a decision of Judge Page Morris in the United States Circuit Court at Duluth, in February, 1912, and involves points at issue in the boundary dispute between the two states as to the line in the St. Louis river at the twin ports.

Judge Morris ruled in the case of the George W. Norton estate, against R. B. Whiteside and others, that the government jurisdiction over navigable waters, had the right to change the channel of the river by dredging a new one some distance from the original or natural channel and that the boundary followed the channel center when it was the dividing line of the properties of the two parties to the action.

Mr. Norton owned the Minnesota bank of the river and Mr. Whiteside holds a large island on the Wisconsin side of both the old and the new channels, together with property on the Wisconsin side of the old channel, but on the Minnesota side of the new one. It is the latter which Mr. Norton claimed through his ownership of the Minnesota bank of the river.

The St. Louis court in its findings reversed Judge Morris and remanded the case with the instructions to dismiss.

A sum sufficient to carry out the provisions of the act is appropriated.

The bill further provides that in any case of birth both unattended by a physician or midwife, if one or both eyes of the infant show symptoms of unnatural conditions, the nurse, parents or attendants shall report in writing to the health officer who shall take the necessary steps by employing at public expense a competent physician to treat the case.

BARS LICENSES FOR WOMEN

Senate Passes Bill to Put Female Liquor Dealers Out of Business Within a Year.

Madison.—If a bill given final passage by the senate is endorsed by the assembly no woman can in the future obtain a license in Wisconsin to run a saloon. RAPS N. Y. SENATOR

DEMANDS AN INVESTIGATION

Governor Sulzer Asks for Resignation—Solen Says Accusations by Bank Note Concern Are Both False and Absurd.

Albany, N. Y., April 3.—Senator Stephen J. Stilwell of New York, accused of attempted extortion by George H. Kendall, president of the New York Bank Note company, refused Tuesday to resign at the suggestion of Governor Sulzer and demanded a thorough investigation of the charges.

The senate ordered an inquiry and directed the judiciary committee to report a method of procedure.

Senator Stilwell, who is chairman of the codes committee, introduced, among other stock exchange reform measures, a bill designed to relieve the New York Bank Note company from alleged discrimination on the part of the New York Stock exchange, which, it is claimed, has refused to list securities if engraved and printed by the New York Bank Note company.

In a telegram to Governor Sulzer, Kendall alleges that Senator Stilwell asked $250 for drafting the bill, that the senator demanded $500 each for four members of the senate codes committee, and that a further demand of $1,500 was made to influence the assembly codes committee to report the measure.

Kendall says he declined to comply and notified the senator that unless the bill was reported he would telegraph the situation to the governor and every member of the legislature.

The senate bill was reported March 27, and the assembly bill was reported about the same time and is now on the order of final passage in the house.

Senator Stilwell declares the "entire story is so false and so absurd that it is scarcely worth a reply."

Governor Sulzer received the telegram from Kendall and conferred with the president of the bank note company. He later called Senator Stilwell to the executive chamber and suggested that he resign. Stilwell refused. The governor then took up the matter with Attorney General Carmody.

GOVERNOR IS SLAIN

CHIHUAHUA EXECUTIVE THROWN UNDER TRAIN.

Abraham Gonzales Meets Violent Death While in Custody of Diaz-Huerta Officers.

El Paso, Tex., April 2.—Abraham Gonzales, constitutional governor of Chihuahua and former minister of Interior under President Madero, was thrown beneath the wheels of a train Monday at Mapula, a small station south of Chihuahua by Diaz-Huerta army officers in charge of the escort conducting him to Mexico City, according to an investigation made by friends in El Paso of the murdered man.

The governor's body was almost cut in twain by the car wheels, but as this did not instantly kill him, one of the officers drew a revolver and shot him as he lay writhing in agony.

Shortly after the Diaz-Huerta coup de etat in Mexico City, Gonzales, loyal to the constitutional government, was arrested in Chihuahua by General Antonio Rabago. He was held prisoner for some time and then came an order for his removal to the City of Mexico.

When the special train carrying the governor reached Torreon it halted and on an order from a state court in Chihuahua, started back towards Chihuahua. Lieutenant Colonel Camarena, commanding the Diaz-Huerta escort, was in communication with General Huerta by wire during the stay at Torreon and it is thought that here he received direct orders from the general to "dispose" of Gonzales.

THE DEAREST BABY

Mrs. Wilkes' Fondest Hopes Realized—Health, Happiness and Baby.

Plattsburg, Miss.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved very beneficial to me, for now I am well and have a sweet, healthy baby, and our home is happy. "I was an invalid from nervous prostration, indigestion and female troubles.

"I think I suffered every pain a woman could before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I think it saved this baby's life, as I lost my first one. "My health has been very good ever since, and I praise your medicine to all my friends."—Mrs. VERNIA WILKES, R. F. D. No. 1, Plattsburg, Miss.

The darkest days of husband and wife are when they come to look forward to a childless and lonely old age.

Many a wife has found herself incapable of motherhood owing to some derangement of the feminine system, often curable by the proper remedies. In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

FLOWERS IN THE HOUSEHOLD

Simple Methods That Will Keep Them Alive, Fragrant, and a Pleasure for Many Days.

To make flowers last a week or more, four things are necessary. First, do not try to arrange them the moment you get them, but put them in a pail of water for a few hours, so that every stem will be under water up to the flower. Second, cleanse the vase thoroughly before putting in the flowers and change the water every day. Third, the cooler you keep the flowers the longer they will last. If you are too busy in the morning to enjoy them or have to go out for the afternoon, do not leave them in the living-room, for they are not used to such a temperature. Every night put the vase in a cool place, or better still, plunge the stems up to the flowers in a pail of water. Fourth, cut about a quarter of an inch off each stem in the morning. It is more trouble to do this under water, but it pays. If you cut the stems in the ordinary way air bubbles get into the stems and impede the taking in of water.—Dellatorre.

BEATRICE Cream Separator

Efficiency

Efficiency in a Cream Separator is measured by the amount of work the machine will do and the way it does it. With the BEATRICE you can skim more milk in the same time and skim cleaner, than with any other separator.

Durability

The construction of the BEATRICE, at all strength and durability. All materials used are the best. It is the strongest, best looking and simplest in construction. Trouble in operation is almost done away with and cost of repairs is very low.

Price

In the BEATRICE you get more than twice the skimming capacity for the same money—and we absolutely save you $25 to $40. Prices: $45 to $100. Capacity: 25 to 50 lbs. per day. $65 to $100. Price with each separator—BEATRICE, complete. The Working Boy and L. P. Cook Steel Mill.

"Feed Dr. Hess Stock Tonic on Three Months Test at Our Expense."—Dr. Hess & Clark.

John Marx, Kewaskum, Wis.

Dear Sir:—We want every stock raiser that comes into your store this Fall to go home with a package, sack or pail of DR. HESS STOCK TONIC. This is asking a good deal perhaps, but if you will read the conditions of this request we believe you will agree with us that there is not a single solitary farmer in your whole community that would not avail himself of this opportunity. Here it is:—

"Mr. Feester:—Take home from your dealer's store a package, sack or pail—or a ton if you like of Dr. Hess Stock Tonic, feed it to your horses, cows, hogs, etc. all Winter and Spring. It costs less than a cent a day for a horse, cow or steer, and 8 cts. a month for the average hog. If, after it is used you are not satisfied with the extra profit it has made you, in increased growth and milk production, besides keeping your animals healthy and free from worms, take back the empty packages and your dealer is compelled to refund your money."

We authorize you to make the same iron-clad guarantee on DR. HESS POLY-TRY PAN-ACEA, to make hens lay, to shorten the moulting period.

INSTANT LOUSE KILLER we guarantee to destroy lice on horses, cattle, sheep, ticks, etc.

Refund every cent if these preparations fail and we will reimburse you. Very truly yours, DR. HESS & CLARK.

To meet the demand of this guarantee, we have a large stock of Dr. Hess Stock Tonic, Poly Pan-acea, Etc. on hand. Come in and take home any quantity you desire. We will have more goods on the way, so we can supply every customer.

Comparative Digestibility of Food

Made with different Baking Powders

From a Series of Elaborate Chemical Tests:

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of three different kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

Bread made with Royal Cream of Tartar Powder: 100 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with phosphate powder: 68 1/2 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with alum powder: 67 1/2 Per Cent. Digested

These tests, which are absolutely reliable and unprejudiced, make plain a fact of great importance to everyone: Food raised with Royal, a cream of tartar baking powder, is shown to be entirely digestible, while the alum and phosphate powders are found to largely retard the digestion of the food made from them.

Undigested food is not only wasted food, but it is the source of very many bodily ailments.

Should Tighten Hoops on all Stave Silos.

Unless owners of stave silos tighten the hoops as the warm spring weather progresses, the silos may be partially or completely ruined. In the warning issued by Prof. C. A. Ocock of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin.

Loose hoops not only allow the staves to warp, thus making the silos no longer air tight, but the whole silo may be weakened to such an extent that a high wind will cause it to collapse. A stave silo once down or twisted out of shape can scarcely ever be successfully restored.

SYNOPSIS.

Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron which he later is in the room. The Chinese boy in the room was unoccupied and the next morning the head of Cameron's portrait is found in a tree, where it had been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to see that Cameron's independence is secured. He pretends to be investigating alleged intrusions of the game laws and speaks of finding the bow of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning. While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Neil Gwynne mirror is mysteriously broken. Johnson becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's desk. Johnson Street threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip. The yacht picks up a fisherman. He is the Chinese boy. He gives the name of Johnson. Cameron disappears from yacht while Clyde's boat is returning. A fruitless search is made for a motor boat seen by the captain just before Cameron disappeared. Johnson is asked to go after being closely questioned. Evelyn takes the letters to an expert in Chinese literature, who pronounces them of Chinese origin. He seeks assistance from a Chinese fellow college student, who recommends him to Yip Sing, most prominent Chinaman in New York. The latter promises to seek information of Cameron among his countrymen. Among Cameron's letters is found one from one Addison, who speaks of seeing Cameron in Pekin. Cameron frequently refers to Clyde as if he had never been in China. Clyde calls on Dr. Addison. He learns that Addison had taken Cameron some time intimate friends, but had a falling-out over Cameron's denial of having been seen in the city of Addison. Clyde goes to meet Yip Sing, sees Johnson, attempts to follow him, falls into a basement, sprains his leg and becomes unconscious. Clyde is found by Miss Clement, a missionary among the Chinese. He is shocked several days as a result of inhaling etheral fumes. Evelyn tells Clyde of a secretary acting as an anesthetist. Murphy, a person temporarily unconscious. Evelyn is discovered by having mysterious relations with the Chinese. Miss Clement, of which Cameron had taken him home. Cameron awakes from a long sleep and speaks in a strange tongue. He gives orders to an imaginary crew in Chinese. Then in terror cries: "I didn't kill them."

He was a liar and he was a coward; and all the sympathy, all the friendship I ever felt for him died utterly, as I thought how, probably, every untoward incident of the past month, with its chain of vexatious consequences, might have been avoided had he been brave to the point of confession.

It was now plain enough for the least astute to see that at some time he had committed an act which had aroused certain of the Chinese to retaliation. It was this which I had feared from the first. It was this which he had chosen to hide.

As I paced to and fro, his craven words rang once more in my ears: "No, no, for God's sake, not that! I didn't kill them! I swear I didn't kill them!" It was an accident! And I knew that he was lying. The very tone of his disclaimer convinced me of his guilt. He had killed, and he covered before the avengers.

"Disgust, abhorrence, anger, all were mine in turn.

At length I paused before a window, and remained there, with my back to the room, looking down on the withered garden behind the house, yet seeing nothing but the red of my own passion.

A touch upon my shoulder aroused me to a realization of my surroundings, and informed me that I was not alone. Startled as one awakened abruptly from a dream, I turned, and turning, there came a revulsion. Every surcharging emotion that had held and bound me gave way instantly to a violent self-reproach, excited by the paths of Evelyn's sad, questioning eyes and sadder, quivering mouth.

My impulse was to take her in my arms, and pacifying, to plead pardon for what must have seemed to her an inexcusable churlishness. But the conditions which so recently she had set upon me forbidding the coveted embrace, I compromised on a hand-clasp.

"My dear child," I began, earnestly, "I'm sorry. But then you must know how what we just saw and heard distressed me. I think I have been mad since we left that room. I hardly know what I have been doing. To see him so unstrung, demented, raving. To hear him—"

But she would not allow me to finish.

"Philip!" she cried, passionately. "Oh, Philip! Can't you see? Don't you understand? It is a mistake, an awful nightmare of a mistake. That creature over there is not my uncle. I am convinced that he is not my Uncle Robert."

When, later in the afternoon, Dr. Massey called, I told him everything, including this hallucination of Evelyn's.

"You did perfectly right," he said, in tone of cordial approval. "The malady with which Cameron is afflicted has a tendency to distort certain lineaments. Especially at times of excitement his face changes, so that Miss Grayson is justified in fancying that this is not the Robert Cameron she knew. I have noticed the dissimilarity myself, but it is due, of course, entirely to distorted expression. In a couple of days, at most, he will be fully restored, and then he himself will be the best one to rectify her error. Meanwhile, if I were you, I would not dispute her. She has gone through a great deal, and gone through it bravely; indeed with a courage that is quite phenomenal, and she is entitled to any little consolatory beliefs that she chooses to entertain." And then, as if such advice were not wholly superfluous, he added: "Be kind to her, Clyde! Be good to her. She is a wonderful young woman."

Whereat I grasped his hand, and promised him, lifting him a notch in my estimation because of his perspicacity. And all the while a lump kept rising in my throat and threatening my tear ducts.

On the following day I heard nothing from Miss Clement, which something surprised me, though she had told me that her prospective informants were likely to take their own time. Early, on the second morning, however, I had a note from her, the enigmatic character of which impelled me to speculation.

"Dear Mr. Clyde," she wrote, "I hope you can make it convenient to visit me this evening, at the Mission. I want to talk with Ling Fo, an exceptionally well-educated young Chinaman, who tells me that his people are much mystified over a recent event; and, if I never knew him to lie—a new complexion is placed upon this whole matter. Come about nine-thirty, after our service is over."

As Dr. Massey's orders forbidding any one save Mr. Bryan to enter Cameron's room, issued immediately after our hideous experience, had not yet been rescinded, our knowledge of his condition was, therefore, gleaned entirely through physician and nurse. Both now assured me that he was progressing satisfactorily, and that there had been no return of the dementia.

Evelyn still persisted in her notion that the patient was not her uncle, but his double, and following the doctor's directions I refrained from trying to convince her of the truth; even going so far as to pretend that I believed as she did, and planning to begin negotiations through Miss Clement and her Chinese confidants for an exchange of captives as soon as our hostage was able to be moved.

"I am to see Miss Clement, tonight," I told her, late that afternoon, "also an Oriental acquaintance of hers, who appears to be informed on the subject which interests us. It is possible that he will prove the very person who can arrange it all."

"Let me go with you," she urged, laying a beseeching hand on my arm. "Do let me go with you, Philip. I am so anxious. It will seem years if I have to wait here for you to bring me the news, and there are sure to be some things you will forget to ask about, if I'm not there to prompt you."

In spite of the unflattering of her speech I smiled, indulgent. Her great blue eyes, pathetically pleading as her words were, were able advocates. It was hard to deny her under any circumstances, and now, as I thought it over, I saw no reason why in this instance she should not have her desire.

"Yes," I agreed, "you shall go. But remember, you must be very careful, for the present at least, not to let slip the slightest inkling that we suspect our Cameron is not the real Cameron. We are seeking information, you know, Evelyn, not spandering it."

Pell street wore its night gaudy when the Cameron relief brouhama with Evelyn and myself as occupants glided to a halt before the door of the Mission over which Miss Clement ably and successfully presided. The pale, varnished light of lanterns from the balcony of a restaurant across the way, mingling with the flickering yellow beam of the city's gas lamps, threw into sharp relief the curious pendent black signs with their red cloth borders and gilded Chinese lettering, hanging before shop doors. It revealed, too, oddly contrasting figures of loungers and pedestrians, residents and visitors. And it bared, back of all that was bizarre, the commonplace brick fronts of the typically American buildings, with their marring gridironing of fire-escapes. To Evelyn, rarely observant, the combination was interesting, but disappointing.

"It does not look at all as I expected it would," she said to me. "It hasn't the air. It is neither one thing nor the other. It is like a stage scene, carelessly mounted."

As we alighted at the Mission door, the last notes of a familiar hymn, mangled in words and melody almost beyond recognition, flowed out to join the babel of street sounds; and before we could mount the high steps there had begun to pour forth a motley, malodorous fresher of felt-shod soles, that gave us pause; blocking, for a few minutes, not merely the ascent but the sidewalk as well.

When, at length, the way was clear, and by direction of a youth at the entrance, we had passed through the close, ill-smelling hall, where the lights had already been lowered, we came upon Miss Clement, alone in a little well-ventilated and brightly-lighted office or parlor, jutting off at the rear.

If she was surprised at seeing Evelyn, she gave no sign. She welcomed us both with the smiling cordiality of a life-long friend. But abruptly her smile died.

"I tried to get you on the telephone an hour ago," she explained, "but there was some trouble with the wire. I hoped to save you this journey for nothing."

"Your protegee couldn't come?" I queried.

"Unfortunately, no," she returned, with a little quaver in her voice. "My protegee will never come again. He was shot to death. Poor, poor Ling Fo!"

"Shot to death?" I cried, while Evelyn, with cheeks suddenly pale and eyes wide, held her underlip fast between her teeth, and gripped hard on the arms of the rocking chair in which Miss Clement had placed her.

"Yes." And this strong, sweet-faced, gray-haired woman in gray, her momentarily-lost composure quite recovered, laid a quieting hand softly over Evelyn's tensed clutch. "Yes. That sort of thing is not unusual down here, you know. There is always more or less bad blood between the tonges. But it was most unfortunate, just at this time, because I feel sure he could have told you something worth learning. I'm glad he was a good boy. He was one of the few converts that are really sincere."

"Perhaps he knew too much," I suggested.

But Miss Clement made no comment. I fancy it was out of consideration for Evelyn that she refrained from endorsing my conclusion; while I reproached myself for being less thoughtful, I was all the more convinced that I had voiced the motive for the shooting.

As Evelyn did not ask for particulars, I profited by the lesson thus taught and curbed my curiosity. But I was in no mood to drop the subject. From Miss Clement's note it was clear that Ling Fo had already communicated to her some of the more important facts in this connection, and of these I hoped to possess myself.

"And so, Miss Clement," I ventured, sharpening my wedge, "Chinatown is mystified, I understand."

She was seated, now, by her little desk, and for a moment had been turning up, searchingly, one paper after another, from an open drawer. At my observation, she paused and raised her glance, a folded sheet of note size in her hand; for a heart-beat her eyes held mine.

"Yes," she said at length. "Chinatown is all at sea, so to speak."

"Over what?" I pressed.

Slowly she unfolded the scrap of writing she held, and before replying she read it through, slowly and deliberately.

"If you don't mind," she proposed, "I would prefer not to talk about it. I am in a peculiar position here, Mr. Clyde, as you can well understand, and I can't afford to play false to those who trust me. At the same time I do not always know whom among these people to trust. Some one who knew them very well wrote, once upon a time, something like this:

You can take a Chinik away from his feet, his lotteries, fiddles and you can give him a queue to the barber, boss; But you can't get down to the roots that start From the yellow base of his yellow heart.

And it's very true. There are those here who pretend to adore me, who would think nothing of treating me as they treated poor Ling Fo. If they suspected I knew anything and gave information—

"I don't want you to think I'm a coward, Miss Grayson," she went on, turning to Evelyn. "I think I've proved to you that I want to help you and men to; but I'm rather upset tonight, and I'm so afraid we shall have to let matters rest a little longer. There is one thing, though, that you can do for me, if you will."

The last sentence was addressed to me, and I made haste to assure her that she had only to command me.

As she had spoken she had been folding and refolding the paper in her hand, until it was now a tiny, one-inch square.

"Take this," she said, banding it to me, her voice a low murmur, "and after you have read it, destroy it. I shouldn't want it found in my possession."

"I understand, Miss Clement," I returned, and the folded square went into my waistcoat pocket.

"It may mean more to you," she added, in a whisper, "than anything I could say."

When once more in the brouhama, speeding northward, Evelyn, who had been unusually taciturn throughout the interview, asked me a question.

"Did you mean what you said, Philip?"

"What did I say?" I queried.

"That you understood."

"I understood that it might not be well for her to have this letter of Ling Fo's about."

"But the rest? Her refusal to talk! Her uneasiness? Her fear of possible traitors?" she persisted.

Once more she had gone straight to the heart of the situation. I had been as puzzled as she by the missionary's attitude of constraint, which I could not attribute wholly to the tragedy she had told us of; and I admitted as much to Evelyn.

"If she suspected eavesdroppers," the girl argued, "she said too much. If she didn't fear being overheard, why couldn't she tell us all she knew?"

For want of a better answer I said: "Perhaps the letter will solve the enigma," and plucking it from my pocket with thumb and forefinger I began carefully to unfold it.

The interior of the vehicle was brilliantly alight, and though we were already far beyond the Chinatown zone and the chance observation of any lurking spies, I nevertheless chose discreetly to draw the shades prior to outreading the written page.

Before the sheet with its network of creases was quite flattened, Evelyn, who was bending attentively near, exclaimed in surprise, "It is her own handwriting! See, it is written by Miss Clement herself!"

Already absorbed, I made no response. Avidly my eyes were rapping over the lines; greedily, my brain was digesting them.

"Fidings of the cruel murder of Ling Fo have just reached me. When you come, as I know you will, I shall not dare to speak what I have written, and which is all that the poor boy ever told me. Already there are spies about me, and your visit is a risk to us both. I would have prevented it, if I could."

"Three weeks ago, according to Ling Fo, a white man was abducted by order of the Six Companies, and shipped to China for punishment, aboard a tramp steamer. Ling Fo would not give me the white man's name or any of the particulars, save that sixteen years ago he had committed a crime, known to every Chinaman in America as 'The Crime of the Sable Lorcha,' or 'black funeral ship,' by which nearly a hundred Chinese coolies lost their lives."

"It seems now that this man, who they thought was on the ocean, suddenly reappeared in New York, a few nights ago. He was recognized and set upon by two Chinamen, but he escaped, and the Six Companies and all the tongas are in a ferment over the mystery."

Evelyn's hand was on my arm as I read, her face close to mine, reading with me. Having finished, I held the sheet for a moment, waiting for her to signify that she, too, had reached the end. And in that moment the brouhama came to a sudden halt.

Before either of us could voice word the door on my side was wrenched violently open, and the blue steel muzzle of a revolver covered me for me, if you will."

Despite this turbulence he was not difficult to master. Together Bryan and I grappled him; in another moment we had him flat on his back once more, and the nurse was pressing home the piston of that little shining instrument of glass and silver which I had so recently seen him take up from the medicine table.

For a moment the patient rolled about restlessly, muttering strange words, mingled with suppliant murmurs. And to me this was the most sadly trying part of the incident. I would gladly have retreated, but Evelyn begged me to wait.

"Just until he is quiet," she pleaded; "just until he falls asleep."

At length he lay quite still and we thought from his regular breathing he had succumbed to the narcotic, and so were about to go, when he started up with a little feeble cry, low-voiced, but clearly distinct.

"No, no, for God's sake, not that! I didn't kill them. I swear I didn't kill them. It was an accident. She stole me a rock. I—I—didn't, I say! I didn't—"

His voice trailed into silence. He dropped back, heavily, upon the pillows. He slept.

It is one thing to have your faith in a friend shaken. That is serious enough in all conscience. But your faith may tremble, and sway and rock, and still there is always the possibility of its being restated and made firm again by explanation—by extenuation even. It is quite another thing to have your faith toppled headlong, by the snatching away of the last vestige of support, the last sliver of underpinning. That is more than serious. It is calamitous; it is catastrophic; it is tragic.

Back in the library again, I set to pacing the floor. I think Evelyn resumed her seat in the big leather chair I am sure. For a time I was not conscious that she was in the room. That it was inconsiderate of me, I admit. It was, perhaps, unparaphable. And yet it was not willful. Frankly, I had forgotten her, absolutely, in the stress of the emotional tempest raised by that revelation in the darkened bedchamber.

Back and forth, I strode from book case to bookcase, over the soft, neutral-tinted Persian rugs; and all the while there echoed those repeated denials of Cameron's that he had never been in China. "Never nearer than Yokohama," he had said. "Once I ate chop suey in a Chicago Chinese restaurant." "I have always been interested in China and the Chinese, but I know only what I have read." And the words of his quondam friend came back to me now, too, with redoubled emphasis. "He refused to admit what I knew to be the truth."

Nevertheless I had chosen to believe that Cameron should ever return to us, would be able to clarify this turbid stream of circumstance, and prove the fallibility of appearances.

The illusion to which I had clung, however, was now in shreds. Cameron, returning, with body enfeebled and brain confused, had spoken in his unguarded delirium. The mask was dropped, the screen thrown down, and barefaced and stark he stood revealed, a woeful figure in the impartial glare of truth.

At the moment I could see no exten-

CHAPTER XX.

An Enigma and Its Solution.

To my amazement I found that Evelyn meant more than I fancied. My interpretation of her words was that Cameron was not in his right mind—that he was not her Uncle Robert, as she had known him. But in a very brief moment she disabused me.

"It is not he, at all," she declared, with emphasis. "There is a resemblance, yes. But the man you found in the street is not Robert Cameron; I am sure of that."

The idea that I had brought there, not my friend, but my friend's double, seemed to me too preposterous for a moment's entertainment. I fear I suspected, just then, that Evelyn's reason had been warped a trifle by the racking scene of which we had been witnesses.

"I would to God, my dear child," I said, sympathetically, "that you were right. But there can be no question as to the identity of the sick man. Every one who has seen him recognized him at once—Cherkabeedy, Louis, Stephen, Dr. Massey. No, no, Evelyn, you must not be misled by his ravings." And at this point there occurred to me a tentative explanation—one in which I did not in the least believe, but which, at all events, was worth trying; one which, indeed, I prayed would serve.

"Cameron, you must remember, has been with his Chinese captors for four weeks. In that time he must have picked up something of their language. It is only natural that he should. So, you see, to hear him use a few words of pidgin-English in his insane gibberish is not so remarkable, after all. And as for that spritid denial just before he dropped off to sleep, it is very evident that they accused him of something with which he had no connection, though quite cognizant of the facts."

But the girl would have none of it. Tolerantly she listened, and tolerantly she smiled when I had finished.

"No, no, Philip," she insisted. "I see it all quite clearly. Whatever crime was committed, the creature lying there committed it. But he is not my uncle. Others mistook the resemblance for identity, just as you did, only the situation was reversed. Those who abducted Uncle Robert thought they were abducting that villain we are now housing."

It was an ingenious notion, but of course it was not possible. However, I saw that it would be idle to continue to dispute with her.

"What would you suggest, then?" Shall we send our invalid to a hospital?" I asked, in pretended seriousness.

But very sagely she shook her head. "Oh, no," she returned. "We must keep him. He is very valuable to us. Perhaps we can do as contending armies do—arrange an exchange of prisoners."

In spite of my wretchedness, I suppressed a smile. It was all very amusing; and yet the fear that she was suffering aberration due to hysteria, tempered pitifully the humor of it.

Food of European Peasants

Many Are the Substitutes for Bread Eaten by Poorer Classes of Europe.

In various parts of the world the poorer classes consume little or no bread, the London Globe observes. Baked loaves of bread are practically unknown in portions of southern Australia and Italy and throughout the agricultural districts of Roumania.

Austrians aver that in the village of Ostersternmark, not very far from Vienna, bread is never seen far from the ground, but is made of porridge made from ground beechnuts, taken at breakfast with fresh or curdled milk, at dinner with broth or dried lard and at supper with milk. This dish is also called heiden and is substituted for bread not only in the Austrian district mentioned but in Carinthia and other parts of the Tyrol.

Northern Italy offers a substitute for bread in the form of polenta, which is a kind of porridge made of boiled grain. Polenta is not, however, allowed to granulate like Scotch porridge or the Austrian sturz. It is instead heated into a solid pudding, which is cut up and portioned out with a string. It is eaten cold as often as it is hot and is in every sense of the word a daily bread.

There is a variation of polenta of ed numaliga, the favorite food of the poorer classes in Roumania. Mammally resembles polenta inasmuch as it is made of boiled grain, but it is unlike the former in one respect—the grain is not permitted to settle into a solid mass, but are kept distinct after the fashion of oatmeal porridge.

A False Alarm.

"Mrs. Gabbit felt quite foolish last night."

"How did that happen?"

"Mr. Gabbit opened his mouth several times, as if he were just about to get in a word edge-ways, and M Gabbit talked a blue streak for an hour before she found out he was merely yawning."

TARIFF LETTER READ

PRESIDENT WILSON READS HIS MESSAGE TO CONGRESS TO CABINET.

EMPHASIZE MONEY QUESTION

Chief Executive, in 1,200 Word Document, It is Stated, Will Confine His Suggestions to Duties—Wants Revision Downward.

Washington, March 31.—The final draft of his first message to congress, which he will send at the opening of the special session April 7, was read Friday by President Wilson to his cabinet.

The message, it can be said authoritatively, will confine itself to the tariff. In 1,200 words, it will give the president's views on this subject, and will state it is the president's position that nothing shall be done by either house to take from the tariff its place in the center of the legislative stage.

This does not mean that there is to be no other legislation during the session. It merely means that the president intends to use all his influence to see that nothing is allowed to interfere with first place for tariff revision downward.

The message is expected to put this in so many words, but it also will declare that a number of other subjects of vital importance to the American people are awaiting legislation—principally the currency question.

The president will specifically refrain from commenting upon these in his message, although reserving the right to touch upon them in later special messages should congress make sufficient headway with the tariff problem to leave room and time for other work at the special session.

In this connection it became known that Representative Carter Glass, chairman-to-be of the banking and currency committee of the new house, has completed the draft of a monetary revision bill and that it is ready for introduction whenever the president desires it. Representative Glass, however, will not put it in until President Wilson feels that its introduction will not interfere with tariff legislation.

Representative Glass and the president are said to fear that to start the money reform task and then to leave it open until the winter season will only add to the difficulties of the situation.

As far as President Wilson's views on the tariff are concerned, it can be stated that he will take the same ground he took in his speech of acceptance last summer. That the tariff must be taken out of politics, and that its revision downward should begin by taking out of every schedule every rate that can be construed as a "favor" to any industry.

"There should be immediate revision," he said at that time, "and it should be downward unhesitatingly and steadily downward. It should begin with the schedules which have been used most obviously to kill competition and to raise prices in the United States arbitrarily and without regard to the prices pertaining elsewhere in the markets of the world, and it should, before it is finished or interrupted, be extended to every item in every schedule which affords any opportunity for monopoly, for special advantages to limited groups of beneficiaries or for subsidized control of any kind in the markets or the enterprises of the country until special favors of every sort shall have been absolutely withdrawn and every part of our laws of taxation shall have been transformed from a system of governmental patronage into a system of just and reasonable charges which shall fall where they will create the least burden."

When we shall have done that we can fix questions of revenues and of business adjustment in a new spirit. We shall be partners with the business men of the country, and a day of freer, more stable prosperity shall have dawned."

GOLD IN THE HEAD

Is the First Chapter in the History of Chronic Disease.

A cold in the head is the first chapter in the history of disease and death. This has been so often repeated that there are few people indeed who have not witnessed many examples of it.

A cold in the head is rarely sovereign enough to confine a vigorous person to the house. As a rule, it ends in recovery without any treatment. This has led many people to regard a cold in the head as of no importance. It is a terrible mistake, however, to pass by a cold in the head as a trivial matter. Every case should be treated.

Those who have used Peruna for such cases will testify unanimously that a few doses is sufficient to remove every vestige of the cold. How much better it is to treat a cold in this way than it is to allow it to go on and on for weeks, perhaps months, leaving effects that will never be eradicated.

Yet there are those who neglect to take Peruna for a cold in the head. This neglect is due to the false notion that a cold in the head is hardly worth noticing.

A cold in the head is in reality a case of acute catarrh. It ought to be called so, in order to draw people from their lethargy on this subject. In a large per cent. of cases cold in the head will end in chronic catarrh. Unless properly treated with some such remedy as Peruna, perhaps 60 per cent. of cases of cold in the head will lay the foundation for chronic catarrh.

A teaspoonful of Peruna should be taken at the very first symptom of cold in the head. Usually where the cold is not very severe a teaspoonful of Peruna before each meal and at bedtime is sufficient. It may be necessary, however, where the attack is more serious, to keep strictly in the house and take a teaspoonful of Peruna every hour. Younger people, feeble or delicate women, should take a teaspoonful every hour.

Food of European Peasants

In various parts of the world the poorer classes consume little or no bread, the London Globe observes. Baked loaves of bread are practically unknown in portions of southern Australia and Italy and throughout the agricultural districts of Roumania.

Austrians aver that in the village of Ostersternmark, not very far from Vienna, bread is never seen far from the ground, but is made of porridge made from ground beechnuts, taken at breakfast with fresh or curdled milk, at dinner with broth or dried lard and at supper with milk. This dish is also called heiden and is substituted for bread not only in the Austrian district mentioned but in Carinthia and other parts of the Tyrol.

Northern Italy offers a substitute for bread in the form of polenta, which is a kind of porridge made of boiled grain. Polenta is not, however, allowed to granulate like Scotch porridge or the Austrian sturz. It is instead heated into a solid pudding, which is cut up and portioned out with a string. It is eaten cold as often as it is hot and is in every sense of the word a daily bread.

There is a variation of polenta of ed numaliga, the favorite food of the poorer classes in Roumania. Mammally resembles polenta inasmuch as it is made of boiled grain, but it is unlike the former in one respect—the grain is not permitted to settle into a solid mass, but are kept distinct after the fashion of oatmeal porridge.

A False Alarm.

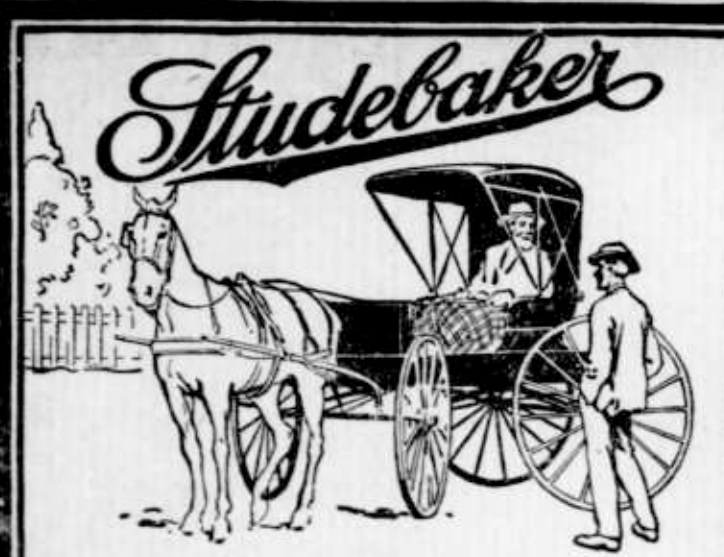

"Mrs. Gabbit felt quite foolish last night."

"How did that happen?"

"Mr. Gabbit opened his mouth several times, as if he were just about to get in a word edge-ways, and M Gabbit talked a blue streak for an hour before she found out he was merely yawning."

Studebaker

"Young man, when you buy a buggy, be sure it's a Studebaker"

Sound advice from the man who has been driving one for twenty years.

When you buy a Studebaker buggy you are buying all the skill, experience and science in buggy building that half a century can produce. You are protecting yourself against the mistakes of younger builders.

You will always be proud of the Studebaker nameplate, for there isn't a buggy on the road that is its equal for style, luxury and good looks.

Flexible bent-reach gear, graceful lines, solid corner, plugless body, double-ironed shafts, are a few of the special Studebaker features.

Where Quality Tells and Price Sells Campbellsport, Wisconsin

NO GREATER mistake can be made than in imagining that it is economy to buy the cheapest Harness and Saddlery Goods because the price seems low. The shoddy character of cheap goods takes away all apparent saving and always conduces to dissatisfaction. I make a special point on the character of workmanship and all material.

The lowest price consistent with high standard of excellence always obtained at my place.

I am mostly lavish inspection of goods and prices. I positively mean to do the best for my patrons. Now is the time to have your Harness, Oiled and Repaired and get your Horse Goods at

Mr. Stautz was born at Isingen, Herzogthum Nassau, Germany, in 1845. He came to this country in the year 1848 and at first resided at Fillmore, but later bought the farm about 1/2 mile east of this village where he had lived for 22 years. He was united in marriage to Augusta Friebe on Jan. 10, 1879. Their union was blessed with eight children, viz: Ida, Mrs. E. LaFever who preceded her father in death about eight years ago, Charlie, residing on the home stead, Edmund of LaSueur, Minn., Oswald of Lakota, N. D., Alvin, who died about five years ago, Arnold of West Bend, and Fred residing on a farm east of this village. Seventeen grand-children also survive. In the death of Mr. Stautz our village is the loss of a good citizen, one who respected and beloved by all who knew him. He was always willing to aid in the promotion of a worthy cause and his untiring devotion to his family will long be remembered and gratefully by them.
