Geo. H. Schmidt, Deputy Village Clerk

About Our Assemblyman

The Milwaukee Journal in one of its recent issues states the following of our Assemblyman, Jos. S. Guindice, of Schleisingsville: Democratic assemblyman from Washington County grew up in Germany, but he early resolved to come to America. He came over bringing a classical education with him, which was not much good until later, because his first job was on a farm. Later he became clerk in a store, and in this way mastered the language and became acquainted with American business methods. He is now cashier of the state bank of Schleisingsville, treasurer of the Farmers' Grain Co., treasurer and secretary of the Standard Machinery Co., and director of the Farmers' Supply Co. and the Washington County Telephone Co. He helped get all of them on their feet.

Gored to Death by Bull

Henry Gerth, aged 83 years, a well known resident of Dodge Co. was gored to death by a bull on his farm at Knowles at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Mr. Gerth was walking across the field intending to confer with a hired man when the bull attacked him. He was knocked down and then tossed about for nearly ten minutes before the hired man succeeded in driving the infuriated animal away. He is survived by his wife, two young daughters, and one son. The funeral was held at Knowles on Wednesday.

Gets Good Use Out of Auto

John P. Fellenz, a farmer residing two miles north of this village believes in making use of his automobile for all purposes. On Wednesday he came to market with a calf, transporting the animal to the village with his auto. Mr. Fellenz has built a rack, which he can attach to the auto in the rear. With this rack Mr. Fellenz is in a position to bring various things to market.

Meeting Next Thursday

The regular monthly meeting of the Kewaskum Advancement association will be held in the village hall on next week Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. All members are urged to be present as very important steps will be taken to advance the Homecoming to be held in this village on Saturday and Sunday, July 19th and 20th.

LOSE THEIR FIRST GAME

Campbellport Rexalls Defeat Kewaskum on the Local Grounds in the First Game of the Season

Last Sunday marked the opening of the season of baseball in this village when the locals crossed bats with the Campbellport Rexalls. The latter winning by a score of 6 to 2. The game was very interesting throughout. The only reason for defeat is that the local team is composed of all young players who were all given a tryout.
Olwin and Altenhofen started the battery work for the locals, remaining at their posts for four innings after which Heppel and Paul Urban did the stunts. Olwin during the four innings held his opponents to no score and no hit. The visitors were more fortunate against Heppel, getting six hits off his delivery, getting with several errors, which won their game. Lade and Lade held up the visitors end and at all times kept the locals at their mercy. In the ninth inning it looked like a rally for the locals, as three men were able to reach bases with no outs, but the next three were easy outs, and the side retired without getting a run.
Following is the score by innings:
Campbellport 0 0 0 1 4 0 0 1-6
Kewaskum 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0-2

NOTES

No game next Sunday.
Olwin kept his batters guessing. The crowd at the game was very good. Baseball appears to be wanted in Kewaskum.
M. Rosenheimer in left made several good catches, but also had the bad luck of dropping two.
The lineup of the locals was changed after the fourth inning to fit all candidates for the team a trial.

Home Coming Notes

The parade committee had a meeting last week and after a little canvassing, have received the following signatures that they could enter floats in the industrial parade to be held on Sunday morning. Those who have signed are:
Kewaskum Statesman Printing
Edw. Miller Furniture
Grell & Wollensak Creamery
Geo. F. Brandt Veterinary
Bank of Kewaskum Bank
L. Rosenheimer Merchant
I. Marx Bakery
Peter Mies Barber
John Marx Flour and Feed
Jos. Strachota Cement Walk
Mrs. K. Endlich Jeweler
Jos. Mayer Boots & Shoes
A. G. Koch Merchant
John W. Schaefer & Sons Automobiles
H. J. Lay Lumber Co. Lumber
Buss-Heppel Const. Co. Construction.

NEW PROSPECT

Anton Schladweiler spent Sunday with his parents at Boltonville.
Quite a number from here attended the Memorial exercises at Campbellport last Friday.
Joe and Henry Uelmen are at present building a barn for Hy. Ogenorth at Lake Seven.
Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Uelmen and Mrs. A. Krueger visited with the family at Five Corners last Sunday.
Walter Jandre received several severe cuts Sunday forenoon in an accident, which might have been serious. While out riding the tugs of the harness rope causing the tugs to bunch the horse, which became unmanageable thereby upsetting the buggy.

A Plan to Improve Roads

From the American Motorist of May 13 we take the following which has some point of merit.
"Mr. H. Leslie Smith, Secretary Treasurer of the Iowa State Automobile Association, advocates a unique plan for getting the country roads dragged. Country merchants are induced to advertise through newspapers and posters that they will on a certain day present $1 worth of coffee to every farmer who will hitch his team to a drag and ride the drag to town. To the farmer traveling the longest distance to town, using a drag, the merchant presents free barrel of flour. The dragged roads help business and the enterprise of the merchants who adopt the plan, of course, has its commercial reward."

Baseball Dance Transferred

The baseball dance, which was to have taken place in the North Side Park hall, to-morrow, Sunday, has been transferred to the South Side Park hall on the same evening. The reason for the transfer is because if the dance would be held in the North Side Park hall it would interfere with the picnic to be given by the St. Francis Aid Society. The Kewaskum Quintette consisting of six pieces will furnish the music. Everybody is invited to attend this dance. Every 50c will mean a boost for the Kewaskum baseball team.

Are in Favor of Library

At the village board meeting Monday evening the sum of $250.00 was donated to the public library to be established by the Woman's Club, providing satisfactory agreement can be made with the latter. A committee of three, consisting of John Marx, Herman Krahn and John Brunner was appointed by President Klassen to take the matter up with the Woman's Club. The library, if established, will be in the upper story of the village hall, a very appropriate place.

T. E. WORTHING IS COUNTY CHAIRMAN

Oakfield Man Elected to Lead the County Board. Dr. McKnight Vice Chairman

Supervisor T. E. Worthing of Oakfield was elected chairman of the county board at the opening meeting of the June session Tuesday evening. Dr. G. B. McKnight was elected vice president. At the first informal ballot for chairman Mr. Worthing received 39 votes, Dr. McKnight 6 and James Murray 2. The ballot was then made formal and Mr. Worthing was declared elected. Mr. Worthing in accepting the office declared that he considered it to be an honor to be classed with a group of men that included ex-Senator Lyman G. Thayer of Ripon Dr. S. Bowers, ex-Senator S. B. Schiefel, Maurice McKenna, Peter Schrooten and James Murray all of whom have served as chairmen of the county board. "It will not only be my duty," said Mr. Worthing, "but my pleasure to serve you honestly, faithfully and to the best of my ability."

On the first informal ballot for the vice chairman, Dr. McKnight received 20 votes, the balance being scattered. On the second ballot Dr. McKnight received 25, Peter Schrooten 16, the balance of 47 votes being scattered. The vote was then declared formal and Dr. McKnight was declared vice chairman for the ensuing year.
Chairman T. E. Worthing is one of the oldest members of the county board, having served in the neighborhood of twelve years. He is thoroughly conversant with county board procedure and makes a good presiding officer.

AUTOISTS PAY A FINE AND COSTS

Chicago Parties Without License are Haled Into Justice Court

MERRY CHASE FROM ALDERLY

Juneau was the finishing point of a merry automobile chase which started at Alderly last Friday, the principals being Constables Bliss and McAlavey, W. G. Steele and other citizens of Ash Grove and three strangers who gave Chicago as their home.
The three men had been at Alderly the previous night and their actions together with the fact that they were driving an auto without number or license, created a suspicion among the natives, rumors of auto bandits, stolen cars, etc., being rife, and the village officers decided to take the three into custody. However, the strangers managed to elude arrest and hastily motored out of town. The officers gave chase in other autos and after a thirty mile run over took the fugitives about three miles southeast of this city when one of the officers detained the men while the other came to this city and got sheriff Hinkes, who placed them under a charge of driving an automobile without a license.
The two young men mentioned in the complaint gave their names as Charles Moffat and Harry Lee and their home as Chicago. Moffat stated that the machine belonged to his brother, William Moffat and produced a letter from the secretary of state's office at Springfield, Illinois, acknowledging receipt of application for license. When questioned as to his business they stated that they were traveling for pleasure and incidentally selling automobile accessories. A plea of guilty to the charge was entered. The third member of the party, a much older man, acted as spokesman in court and paid the fine of $10 and costs, amounting in all to $33.00.
In the meantime the men went to county clerk Pautsch and made application for license, which was sent to the secretary of state, and they were informed that the permit and number would be forwarded the following day. They seemed anxious to get out of town and expressed a willingness to take chances on driving to Madison without a number. However, upon the advice of officers they decided to remain in town overnight and to return to the village the following morning they left the city.
The machine—a Ford car manufacturer's number 23703—gave evidence of hard usage and appeared to have been driven many miles over rough roads. The men were apparently in no wise short of funds and paid liberally for services to their car at the garage. There was much speculation as to the nature of the party and as to the exact nature of their business, but there was nothing unearthed that would connect them with any shady transactions and they were permitted to depart independent.
The above mentioned men were at Kewaskum for three days, doing nothing else but loafing around. Just before leaving this village they were questioned and questioned them. They gave a bona fide story as related by the Juneau Independent. The trio no doubt had reasons for being in this village for three days. They stated that they had been going to Milwaukee, but after reading the above article, it is plainly seen that they took a different course. When questioned in this village by Marshal Brandt, they stated that they had been in the village for three days. Since then it has been learned that at Wayne they gave the story that they were on their way from Fond du Lac to Sheboygan, but lost their way. The different statements are enough proof that they had a purpose in roaming around the country and if caught in some act would place them behind the bars.
The trio while in this village stayed at the Republican House and registered under the names given to the Juneau authorities.

To Enforce Speed Ordinance

At the regular meeting of the Village Board held Monday evening it was decided to enforce the speed ordinance of the village. It was also decided to purchase a stop watch for the village marshal. On Tuesday Marshal Brandt made the rounds measuring off certain distances and hereafter will have a good case against every speeder. The marshal has been instructed to enforce the law, no matter who it will hit. On Sunday evening the first offender was arrested, he being Theodore Eilenstraut. The latter appeared in justice Rosenthal's court on Monday and pleaded guilty. Sentence, however, was suspended, as this was the first case. Hereafter all offenders arrested will be dealt with according to law.

PRETTY JUNE WEDDINGS

Among Our Neighbors

QUET WEDDING

Rev. Hartman performed a quiet marriage ceremony last Wednesday morning at seven o'clock at Kilian's church. The bride was Miss Mary Bingenheimer of Schleisingsville and the bridegroom John Kletti of this city. The happy event was celebrated at the home of the bride's brother John, after which the young couple left on a wedding trip to Milwaukee. They will make their home in this city where Mr. Kletti is employed in the auto factory. —Hartford Press.

CITY TO HAVE SEWERAGE

Another move which reflects the progressive sentiment in this city was taken Tuesday evening when the city council took steps to start on the installation of a sewerage system as soon as possible. Civil Engineer Arthur M. Morgan of Chicago was present and gave the council some valuable information, not alone in the line of sewerage, but also in the line of granting franchises for lighting our streets by electricity. —Hartford Reporter.

FORMED A CO-PARTNERSHIP

John M. Barney and Carl B. Rix, former West Bend boys, have formed a co-partnership for the general practice of law in Milwaukee under the firm name of Rix & Barney, with offices at 833-836 Wells Building.

SCHEID-BACKHAUS

William Backhaus of Campbellport and Miss Anna Scheid of Wayne were married at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at Wayne church, town of Wayne, Rev. C. Schatlos performing the ceremony. They were attended by Charles Scheid and Miss Laura Bachman and Walter Belger and Lena Haback.
The bride was gowned in white messaline and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. Miss Laura Bachman was becomingly attired in light blue silk and Miss Haback wore a yellow satin gown.
Following the ceremony a reception was held and wedding dinner served at the home of Daniel Scheid.
Mr. and Mrs. Backhaus will be at home to their many friends after July 1st.

Mrs. Margaret Petri Dead

Mrs. Margaret Petri, aged 74 years, 1 month and 17 days passed away at her home in the town of Wayne on Monday, June 2nd at 3 A. M., after an illness of seven months, death being due to apoplexy, followed by bronchitis. She was born in Prussia, Germany on April 15, 1839. When a young girl of 15 years she immigrated to this country with her parents settling in the town of Wayne. In the year 1859 on February 16th she was married to John Petri, who preceded her in death on April 12th, 1904. Their union was blessed with ten children, five of whom still survive, namely: George of Saukville, Kathryn, Mrs. J. P. Klein, of the town of Auburn; Anna, Mrs. H. Schaub and Mathilda, Mrs. Wm. Lay, of the town of Wayne; and Marie, Mrs. F. Diesner on the homestead.
The deceased was a kind and loving wife and mother and an ardent christian and active member of the Reformed church at Wayne, Wis. In December 1911 underwent an operation for cancer, from which she never recovered. On November 1st, 1912 she suffered a stroke of apoplexy. She has made her home in this town since 1859. Besides her children she leaves to mourn her loss nineteen grand children and one great grand child. She was always held in high esteem by her many acquaintances.
The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock services in the Reformed church in the cemetery at Wayne Center Rev. Schatlos officiated. To the bereaved relatives we extend our deep heartfelt sympathy. May she rest in peace.

CLASS PLAY WELL ATTENDED THURSDAY

The Play Given by the Seniors of the High School in Groeschel's Hall Drew a Packed House

The play, "Higbee of Harvard", given by the Senior class of the Kewaskum High School in Groeschel's hall Thursday evening drew a packed house. It was full of many interesting pathos and climaxes. It was admirably rendered, and the stage settings were appropriately arranged for each act. The members of the cast carried out their parts well, and spoke their lines distinctly. Too much praise cannot be given to the teachers who had charge of the rehearsals.
The cast of characters consisted of John Strachota as Watson Higbee; Adolph Rosenheimer as Lorin Higbee; Edwin Miller as Hon. V. D. Withrow; Maurice Rosenheimer as Theo. Dalrymple; Theodore Schmidt as Higgins; Rose Ogenorth as Nancy Withrow; Laura Brandstetter as Madge Cummings; Lila Petri as Mrs. Ballou and Hilda Weddig as Mrs. Malvina Meddigew.

SPEAKER ATTACKS MARKET BILL VETO

HULL TAKES ISSUE WITH GOVERNOR ON LEGALITY OF MEASURE.

FAIR STAYS AT MILWAUKEE

Report of Legislative Committee Fixes Permanent Location on Present Grounds—Three of Nine Members Favored Removing Fair.

Madison.—Speaker Meritt Hull took direct issue with Gov. McGovern in a speech on the floor of the house when he disputed the executive's claim that the Hull direct marketing bill is unconstitutional.

To the governor's advice that it is also unwise, the speaker also took opposite views. The speech was delivered when the assembly was called upon to pass upon the governor's veto of the bill. The vote was 49 to 32, which lacked a two-thirds requirement, and the assembly refused to pass it over the veto.

Speaker Hull stated that his bill was based on supreme court decisions, and that backed by the ten commandments it has the strength of the best authorities. The state does not guarantee the reliability of producers or consumers, he said, the producers must look out for themselves.

Milwaukee to Keep Fair. The special legislative committee appointed to recommend a permanent location for the Wisconsin state fair grounds has filed a majority and a minority report in the two houses of the legislature.

The majority report recommends that the present state fair grounds at West Allis be retained as the permanent location of the fair.

Three Favor Oshkosh. The minority report recommends that a location be selected near the city of Oshkosh.

Those who signed the majority report were Senators George Weigle of Milwaukee and William J. Biecher of Belgium and Assemblyman Dennis D. Conway of Grand Rapids, Charles H. Everett of Racine, A. Gultkous of Cameron and Charles Lentz of Mayville.

Those who signed the minority report were Senator M. F. White of Winnebago and Assemblyman George Carpenter of Marinette and James Larson of Baraboo.

One for No Fair. The committee took three ballots. The first stood 5 for Milwaukee, 2 for Oshkosh, 1 for Janesville and 1 for no fair. The second stood 5 for Milwaukee and 4 for Oshkosh. The third stood 6 for Milwaukee and 3 for Oshkosh. The cities of Madison and Eau Claire did not receive a vote.

Big Claim Disallowed. The senate by a unanimous vote adopted a joint resolution disallowing the claim of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company of Milwaukee for $987,836.45 for excess taxes paid by the company last year and this year.

Recess Plan Rejected. The assembly by a vote of 57 to 29 refused to concur in the senate joint resolution for a recess from June 12 to Jan. 13, 1914.

LOWER FARE RATE IS ASKED

State Agricultural Boards Wants Cheaper Street Car Fares to Fair Grounds Each Ride.

Madison.—The state board of agriculture filed a petition with the state railroad commission asking that an order be issued requiring the Milwaukee street railway company to reduce rates of fare from the city of Milwaukee to the twenty-third street entrance of the state fair grounds, from 10 to 5 cents during the week of the fair. The board states in its petition that large numbers of persons travel back and forth from the state fair grounds and the city during state fair week and that the street car company should because of the increased traffic, lower the rates of fare.

FINDS NO LOBBY

SENATORS SWEAR NO ATTEMPTS HAVE BEEN MADE TO CORRUPT THEM.

WILSON WILL NOT APPEAR

President Calls in Supporters and Offers to Give What Information He Has to Show That Money is Being Spent.

Washington, June 4.—The United States senate Monday began its official hunt for the "insidious lobby" which President Wilson charged existed to modify the tariff bill. The inquiry was carried on by a special committee after the leaders of the undertaking had held a final conference with President Wilson.

Sixteen senators were examined and not one of them knew anything of the existence of the lobby referred to by the president. Not one of them knew anything of money being used by anybody. Everyone declared that no one had approached him improperly and to a man they defended the right of citizens to come to Washington to confer with members of congress over legislation that was vital to their business and industries.

One senator said: "The president will not be able to make good." He received his hardest jolt before the committee from members of his own party, when Senators Overman and Walsh, Democrats, began to ask questions that seemed to indicate their lack of faith in the charges that had been preferred.

A total disagreement with the views expressed by the president was held by Senator Clark of Arkansas, president pro tem of the senate, and by Senator Chamberlain of Oregon.

It was given out at the White House that President Wilson had taken personal charge of the inquiry, and that the Democratic members of the committee would operate under his direction. Senator Overman and Senator Reed were summoned to the White House for orders. Reed, who will vote against free wool and free sugar and a member of the committee, was ignored. The president submitted to these two senators such information as he had and urged them to do all within their power to enable him to make good.

The president has let it be understood that he will not appear before the committee. On his behalf Senator Reed will conduct the cross-examination of all witnesses.

It was explained that in his original statement the president was careful to make it clear that he did not charge the existence of a corrupt lobby or that corrupt methods were being used. Also it was said for him that he was not reflecting upon any senator, but was stating what he believes is the fact, that an insidious lobby is at work in Washington.

Senators deny that it is a correct interpretation of the president's original statement. They are indignant at the amendment of the Cummins resolution, which requires the committee as they express it, "to sneakingly inquire into the personal and private affairs of senators."

T. R. WINS LIBEL SUIT

ROOSEVELT GIVEN SIX CENTS DAMAGES AGAINST EDITOR.

Publisher Admits That He Cannot Prove Charge—Colonel Asks Only Nominal Sum.

Marquette, Mich., June 3.—Theodore Roosevelt Saturday won his libel suit against George A. Newett, editor of the Lehighing Iron Ore. Damages however, were only nominal. Allen, possibly by the attitude of the colonel who told the court he did not seek a punitive verdict.

Judge Flinnigan instructed the jurors to bring in a verdict for the plaintiff, which they did without leaving their seats. The colonel left for the east less than two hours after the conclusion of the case.

As a climax of the case which has been on trial here a week, Mr. Newett himself took the witness stand and retracted the charge he had made.

He said he had been impressed that an injustice had been done the colonel in the publication of the article and deeply regretted it.

"It is fair to the plaintiff," he said, "to state that I have been unable to find in any section of the country any individual witness who is willing to state that he has personally seen Mr. Roosevelt drink to excess, I am forced to the conclusion that I was mistaken."

Leaving the stand and returning to his seat, Mr. Newett looked in the direction of Colonel Roosevelt, but the latter was absorbed in whispering to Attorney Van Henshot. The latter whispered in turn to Attorney Puffer and he turned to Judge Flinnigan and said: "With the court's permission the plaintiff would like to make a brief announcement."

The judge nodded and Mr. Roosevelt rose. Poking to the court, the colonel said he would waive the matter of damages save for the national amount provided by law. Speaking of his purpose in instituting suit, he said:

"Your honor, in view of the statement of the defendant, I ask the court to instruct the jury that I desire only nominal damages. I did not go into this case for money. I did not go into it for any vindictive purposes. I went into it, and as the court said, I made my reputation an issue because I wish once for all during my lifetime to deal with these slanders so that never again will it be possible for any man in good faith to repeat them. I have achieved my purpose and I am content."

Nominal damages mean six cents under the laws of Michigan and no costs. Each party to the suit will pay the expenses of his side of the case.

GOUX WINS BIG AUTO RACE

Frenchman Lands 500-Mile Contest at Indianapolis—Gets $35,000 Cash Prize.

Indianapolis, June 2.—France won a sporting victory over America Friday on the Indianapolis Speedway when Goux, driving a Peugeot car, won the 500-mile motor race. Withhart, in an American Mercer, was second. Merz, in an American-made Stutz, captured third place.

Goux's time was six hours 31 minutes 42.45 seconds, and average of 76.50 miles an hour. His rewards were international honors, cash prizes worth $35,000, including the management of the speedway for the winner of the race, a kiss from a dirt-covered mechanic, and a shower of champagne made of grapes that grew in the country whence he came.

JAPAN TO REPLY SOON

CABLES KEPT BUSY FRAMING ANSWERS FOR BRYAN.

Not Thought Mikado's Government Will Ask for Exclusion Code—Canada Act Held Example.

Washington, June 3.—According to present plans Japan will submit to the state department at an early day a rejoinder to Secretary Bryan's answer to the Japanese protest against the alien land legislation adopted by the California legislature.

This was made known here Monday, but without any suggestion as to the probable contents of the note.

There have been numerous cable exchanges between the Japanese embassy here and the foreign office in Tokyo, necessitated by the demands for the exact information as to American national and state laws regarding alien land ownership and naturalization.

Notwithstanding the pressure from certain quarters at home, the Japanese is regarded as doubtful, however, that the Japanese embassy has concluded to turn to a request for amendment of the American naturalization laws as a solution of the present issue between the two countries.

The successful treatment by the Canadian parliament of complaints from British Columbia of the competition of Japanese, however, has attracted the attention of the negotiators on both sides in this negotiation.

EDITOR SUIT WON

Missouri Supreme Court Decide Unanimously for the Discharge of W. R. Nelson.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 4.—The Missouri supreme court Monday discharged William R. Nelson, owner and editor of the Kansas City Star, from contempt of the Jackson county circuit court. The decision of the supreme court was unanimous. Mr. Nelson, editor and owner of the Kansas City Star, was found guilty of contempt of court and sentenced to imprisonment of one day in the county jail February 1 by Circuit Judge Guthrie of Jackson county, who based his action upon the publication in Mr. Nelson's paper of an article which said that Judge Guthrie had refused to dismiss a divorce suit filed in his court until the parties to it, who had settled it out of court and asked for dismissal, had paid their attorney's fees.

REBELS TAKE CITY

HUNDREDS KILLED IN BATTLE WHICH RESULTS IN CAPTURE OF MATAMORAS, MEX.

FEDERAL LEADER IS SLAIN

Victors Possessed Plans of Fortifications and Under Guidance of Deserter Attacked Vulnerable Points—Victims Made Three Attacks.

Brownsville, Tex., June 5.—Hundreds are believed to have been killed in a battle that raged for 12 hours between the rebels under Gen. Lucio Blanco and the federal forces in Matamoras, the northern stronghold of the federal government, and which resulted, after desperate fighting, in the capture of the city in the evening by the rebels.

Much of the fighting was hand to hand. Maj. Estaban Ramos, one of Mexico's noted soldiers, made a heroic defense against terrible odds. His officers capitulated after their chief had been mortally wounded by a half dozen rebel bullets and lay at the point of death in a general in Brownsville.

The dying hero heard the shouts of the victors in the streets of the conquered town just before he passed away.

The attack began at 10:30 Tuesday morning, when the constitutionalists under General Blanco advanced in a skirmish line. The federals had practically no chances to hold the city, and their resistance throughout the day was called remarkable by American army officers who viewed the assault from this side of the river.

The rebels were in possession of complete plans of the fortifications. A federal deserter showed them where all the mines were laid and named the vulnerable points in the line of defense. Virtually the only defense the band of federals had was a high barbed wire fence charged with electricity.

The rebels charged this three times, and each time were hurled back. Sixty of their number were electrocuted. Finally they concentrated their assault upon the Matamoras light plant. Major Ramos dispatched Captain Velez, his most trusted aid, with two lieutenants and a picked band of 20 sharpshooters to defend the plant and save the wire fence.

The federals made a gallant defense, but were outnumbered four to one, and Captain Velez, the lieutenants and the squad of soldiers were killed to a man after they had retreated to the very doors of the electrification plant.

The plant fell at three o'clock, and the last hope of the federals went with it. Blanco appealed to Major Ramos to surrender, but the old Mexican fighter scorned the offer and sent the envoys back and ordered a delay to a heavy fire.

The rebels advanced and, after a repulse, the federal band was driven under cover. Cutting their way through the wire fence, now useless as a defense, the rebels swarmed into the town.

Slaughter followed. Retreating from street to street, the defenders slowly but surely were driven to bay. Scores of soldiers fled to the river and swam to the American shore, where they surrendered to the flag of the United States.

Not until the defending army had been so completely routed that it was impossible to marshal a squad of 20 fighting men at one place did a junior officer of Ramos' staff raise the white flag on his saber.

Bullets whizzed into Brownsville, where hundreds watched the fortune of the battle across the river. One automobile was wrecked by a shell, but no one was seriously hurt.

MEAT SUPPLY GROWS SHORT

For First Time in History of Nation Imports of Animals Exceeded Exports in 1912.

Washington, June 5.—The department of agriculture issued a bulletin Tuesday warning the nation that the supply of meat in the United States is getting shorter every year.

In the year 1912, for the first time in the history of this country, the imports of animals and animal products exceeded the exports. In 1907 the number of live cattle in the United States was 1,566,000, while at the beginning of the present year it was only 35,030,000. The same statement was made before Secretary Wilson went out of office, one of the reasons ascribed being the preference of the western ranchmen to grow crops instead of cattle.

A year ago the average price of native steers on the Chicago market was $7.35, as against $6.50 in 1911.

EKERN UPHOLD BY SUPREME COURT

DECISION HOLDS INSURANCE COMMISSIONER ILLEGALLY REMOVED BY GOVERNOR.

TWO JURISTS IN DISSENSION

Chief Justice Winslow and Justice Barnes Do Not Agree with Majority Opinion That Gov. McGovern Exceeded His Authority.

Madison.—A decision rendered by the Wisconsin supreme court holds that Insurance Commissioner Herman L. Ekern was illegally removed from office when Gov. McGovern issued the order against him on the ground of political activity in supporting the assembly speaker candidate who opposed the governor.

The decision, handed down by Justice Marshall, is a majority opinion of the court. Chief Justice Winslow and Justice Barnes dissenting.

The court holds that at the time the ouster proceedings were started, Ekern was commissioner in fact and in law, and that he is so now, and it directs that Ekern be so recognized.

The decision is complete, holding that an injunction was the proper proceeding to try the case, and that there is no ground upon which a suit in quo warranto or any other legal action may be brought in an attempt to oust Ekern.

The court's conclusions. The court reverses the order of Judge Stevens of the circuit court, with directions to enter judgment for the plaintiff on the following grounds:

"Under the jurisdictional requisites stated the supreme court found that the governor committed the following jurisdictional errors:

"1. No sufficient notice of the hearing was granted.

"2. The cause assigned for the removal was not within the statute.

"3. Fair opportunity was not afforded Mr. Ekern to present his case.

"4. The evidence produced, in no fair view of it, made a case against Mr. Ekern within the statute."

For these reasons the court issues the following mandate:

"The facts upon which the decision is grounded as to the governor's jurisdiction to make the order of removal is undisputed and indisputable. Therefore it would be a useless delay in the administration of justice to remand this case for any less purpose than a speedy termination of the litigation by judgment of the merits according to the prayer of the complainant, and as germane thereto that at the time of the commencement of this action appellant was de jure commissioner of insurance."

Ekern Denied His Rights. The decision holds that Ekern was denied his rights in the hearing before the governor that no offense was charged in the complaint because the election laws and the corrupt practice act do not apply to candidates for speakers; and that the governor was therefore without jurisdiction.

Saying that the governor, acting within the scope of his duties, could not be restrained, the court adds: "And when he steps aside from the sphere of his duty, and violates the law, he is amenable to the law the same as any other person."

Governor Subject to Court. The court expresses its appreciation of the deference it owes to the co-ordinate executive department, but adds that it must not go so far as to cast any doubt upon its own authority to deal with all judicial questions, regardless of whether it may be necessary to call in question some act of the governor.

Water Too Cold for Fish. Sheboygan.—The lake water here has been found too cold for hatching walleyed fry and the consignments sent here have been shipped to Delafield. The water is so cold the spawn will not hatch. In future the new local hatchery will be devoted to lake trout, whitefish and blue fish.

Fruit Outlook Is Splendid. Sheboygan.—Indications point to a record-breaking fruit year in apples, plums and cherries as well as berries. The strawberry crop will break all records, it is predicted. The canning companies in this section are preparing for a big season.

Guernsey Men Honor Badger. Ripon.—Charles Hill of Rosendale, member of the state board of agriculture, was elected president of the American Guernsey cattle association, at a meeting in New York.

Racine Student Is Winner. Tomahawk.—In the state oratorical contest here Fred Pickett of Racine, was awarded first honors. The competitors are high school students of Superior, La Crosse, Whitewater, Racine, Linden and Tomahawk.

Rev. Clapp Leaves Neenah. Neenah.—Rev. W. L. Clapp, local Baptist pastor, known throughout the state as executive secretary of the Laymen's Missionary movement, is removing to Waterloo, Ia.

Watch for Speaker Hull. Madison.—Speaker Hull was presented with a gold watch in the assembly as a testimonial of esteem, the presentation speech being made by Alex Johnson. The speaker responded with a speech of appreciation.

New Badger Postmasters. Washington, D. C.—President Wilson has made nominations of George Wildermuth postmaster of Sheboygan Falls, and William Redner postmaster at Columbus.

ANTI-EKERN VIEW IS FILED

Chief Justice Winslow Says Decision Breaks Precedents and Is a Step Backward.

Madison.—Chief Justice J. R. Winslow of the supreme court of Wisconsin has filed an opinion on his dissent from the decision of the majority of the court in the Ekern-McGovern case, in which Gov. McGovern was held to have acted outside the scope of his authority in issuing an order removing Ekern from the office of commissioner of insurance.

The chief justice says the governor acted within the scope of his authority in issuing the order of removal and that the decision is a step backward, as it will "tend to hamper the responsible heads of departments and seeks to return to the exploded idea that there is some private property right in an office, whereas the true idea is that it is simply an opportunity to serve the state."

Gov. McGovern on June 3 signed forty-seven bills, cleaning up all but one of the acts so far submitted to him by the legislature. He says he will be ready to pass on all bills now as fast as they come to him. Under the constitution he has six days in which to consider bills before attaching or refusing his signature.

Activities of the lobby are again to receive the attention of the Wisconsin legislature. Senator H. C. Martin introduced a bill authorizing the secretary of state to employ a detective to watch the lobby and prosecute lobbyists guilty of violating the anti-lobby law.

The bill probably will be passed by the senate, but will have considerable opposition in the assembly, which a few days ago rejected a resolution prohibiting all parsons and members and a few other persons from entering the assembly chamber either when the body was in session or between sessions.

STATE OWES EKERN $2,100

State Insurance Head to Receive Back Salary Held Up by Supreme Court Litigation.

Madison.—Some $2,100 is waiting for Herman L. Ekern in the state treasury. Back pay to this amount, which was held up by the supreme court litigation over his right to the office of insurance commissioner, will be turned over by State Treasurer Johnson as soon as warrants are issued by the secretary of state. Ekern's salary is $5,000 a year, and he has not drawn a cent since the first of the year.

An actuary in the insurance department to succeed Lewis A. Anderson will be appointed under the civil service. Examinations will be held soon. Mr. Anderson says he has made no plans for the future.

BADGERS ON COMMITTEES

Cooper on Foreign Affairs, Lenroot on Rules and Esch on Interstate Commerce.

Washington, D. C.—In the republican committee assignments recommended by Leader Mann and approved by the caucus, the Wisconsin members of the house were given the following places:

Browne—Good roads, labor.

Cary—District of Columbia.

Cooper—Foreign affairs.

Esch—Expenditures on public buildings, interstate, and foreign commerce.

Frenn—Elections No. 1, insular affairs.

Lenroot—Public lands, rules.

Nelson—Judiciary.

Stafford—Elections No. 2, postoffices and post roads.

New Bills Become Law.

Madison.—A new state policy is laid down in the bill permitting the state to pay the wages of convicts on convict labor to their dependents. This bill by Assemblyman Sharp of Oconto has been officially published and is now law. The governor has also signed Senator Cunningham's bill extending until June 1, 1915, the time in which the state will pay compensation for condemned tubercular cattle.

An appraisal as high as $70 may be awarded. Other bills now laws, prohibit a normal school at Eau Claire and prohibit physicians and surgeons from disclosing information received in their professional capacity.

Alleged Robbers Are Taken.

Milwaukee.—James Torrison and Thomas McCarthy, telegraph operators, wanted for the alleged robbery of the Soc Line depot in Holston, Wis., of $500, were arrested upon alighting from a train here.

Saloonman Takes Life.

Green Bay.—Ernest Volkman, proprietor of a saloon at Egg Harbor, committed suicide by shooting himself. The body was found after he had been missing two days.

Gored to Death by Bull.

SENDS A MESSAGE OPPOSING RECESS

Gov. MCGOVERN ADVISES LEGISLATURE AGAINST TAKING ADJOURNMENT.

ASKS THAT PLEDGES BE KEPT

People Have Right to Demand Fulfillment of Platform Promises, Declares Governor—Urges Passage of Marketing Bill.

Madison.—Gov. McGovern's message to the Wisconsin legislature upon the question of adjournment until next January is, in part, as follows:

Madison.—The following is a message of Governor F. E. McGovern to the Wisconsin legislature upon the question of the adjournment until next January:

The joint resolution providing for an adjournment of the present session of the legislature until next January, recently introduced and now pending before you, is so unique if not extraordinary in character that the reasons in support of it and the motives back of it should promptly be made public so all may understand. In effect, this proposal means two sessions of the legislature instead of one, with a corresponding increase of expense. Between now and next January members may die or move away, necessitating special elections to fill the vacancies thus created. Ground already gained will be lost and a new beginning will have to be made.

The Republican party has a clear majority in both the assembly and the senate of members elected upon a platform that specifically pledged the enactment of laws respecting mothers' pensions, a minimum wage for women, amendment of the election laws, prison reform, supervision of the sale of corporate stocks and bonds, and the regulation of water powers, and the approval of a number of constitutional amendments proposed two years ago. But no law has yet been passed upon any of these subjects.

Even more urgent still is the market commission bill, which has been before you for more than two months. It has attracted widespread attention and evoked favorable comment not only among the people of our own state but from every section of the country. No valid objection to it has been made. No good reason can be given why it should not speedily be enacted into law.

It is plainly demonstrable that the enactment of this bill will check the most pernicious trade abuses by which commerce is now beset and by means of which equality of opportunity is in many instances practically destroyed. Why allow oppression and exploitation to go unchecked for another year?

We have been accustomed in Wisconsin to regard platform pledges as binding contracts with the people. The people have a right now to ask that these pledges be kept without delay. If this be not done the people are very sure to locate the blame and will hold those who now counsel procrastination responsible for any betrayal of party honor that may occur.

Thus far over 250 bills have been enacted into law; but not more than a few can fairly be said to be of general interest, and these few consist principally of acts appropriating public money. The rest, taken singly or collectively, do not justify the expense incident to a legislative session.

It is true summer is approaching. Warm weather is at hand. Those who live by farming naturally suffer heavy loss by enforced absence from home. But it is still only May, and no member of this legislature has ever had reason to anticipate that the business of this session might be completed during the winter months. The legislature of 1909 continued until the middle of June; that of 1907 until the middle of July; that of 1905 until after the 20th of June. The last legislature continued until the middle of July and made an enviable record for legislative achievement—a well worthy of emulation at this time.

DON'T LET WRINKLES COME WHY TRIMMING ON LEFT SIDE

Use Preventive Measures to Keep Your Face Smooth, and Control the Emotions.

I once heard a woman say: "The best way to treat wrinkles is to avoid getting them." This may sound absurd but it is true. Wrinkles are caused by bad facial habits.

Laughing, crying, frowning or smiling will not make you wrinkled, unless you do one or the other habitually, then the face becomes "set." To keep the muscles of the face exercised will not give you wrinkles. Scowling and wrinkling the forehead when reading or studying, or when conversing, will, if continued persistently, soon show deep wrinkles in the forehead, and about the eyes. You can check your self of these habits and thus avoid acquiring wrinkles.

If the eyes are weak or overstrained it is easy to fall into the habit of drawing the forehead down in wrinkles about the eyes, thus giving yourself a cross look, that you probably do not deserve. Pressing gently the nerves around the eyes and stopping now and then to close your eyes is very restful to them. If your eyes are troublesome, however, better consult an oculist.

Do not allow yourself to be tortured by shoes that are too small or uncomfortable clothing. Your comfort has more to do with facial expression than perhaps you realize.—Mrs. Jeanne La Place, in the Woman's World.

Butterflies as Jewels.

Brilliant butterflies, brought back by travelers who have been exploring distant countries, serve only to enrich the collections of naturalists. It is only recently that the multi-colored wings of these brilliant and charming insects have tempted artistic jewelers. They have been imprisoned in the crystal some of these variegated wings and have made of them jewels which not only are ravishing but which reveal a very tempting originality. A brooch has been made with the two wings of one of these butterflies. They were arranged in the shape of a butterfly between two thin sheets of crystal. The edge of the wings was set with diamonds and an opal formed the body of the fly.

Bulgarian Ribbons Taken.

According to the Dry Goods Economist, the rogue for Bulgarian designs and colorings in ribbons continues unabated. The narrow Bulgarian novelties are especially favored for millinery decoration. In the forms of bands and flat bows, and neckwear manufacturers are using them for forming smart bow novelties and for color relief purposes. In both of these lines effort is made to use them in as simply a manner as possible so that the gorgeousness of the design and the coloring will not be lost. Two and three inch widths continue the biggest sellers for these purposes.

Buttonholes in Thin Goods.

If you have trouble in making buttonholes in thin material, here is a way of overcoming the difficulty. Hold a piece of the material on the under side and cut the hole through this as if it were part of the waist. When the buttonhole is finished, cut away the under cloth very carefully so that it will not show. There will be no difficulty, even with chiffon, if the cloth is folded two or three times.

Pocket Work-Box.

The tidy and provident woman will delight in the rolls containing cottons and needles of such convenient sizes that they may be carried in the purse or pocket. The rolls, which are made of leather fastened with a patent snap, contain three small reels of cotton, a needlebook and thimble.—London Daily Mirror.

FOULARD DRESS

This sweetly simple dress is of foulard with a pale grey ground, spotted with old blue. The skirt is trimmed above foot by a band of satin to match the blue spot. It is stitched along each edge. On the bodice a strap is used to edge the basque, collar and sleeves, and is also taken down each side of front in a line with edges of basque. Hat of pale gray Tagel, trimmed with large bow of old blue satin ribbon.

Materials required: 4 yards foulard 40 inches wide, 1 yard blue for trim m'g.

GOOD STORY WITH A MORAL

Excellent Illustration Showing That Nobody Amounts to Much Who Doesn't Hustle.

There was a large Thomas cat that had its habitation in a store, the Topka Capital says. It was reported to be a fine blooded animal from a family of distinguished rat destroyers. The cat was a beauty and everybody round the store took a turn at furnishing grub suited to the taste of a blooded cat.

It was observed, however, that there was no reduction of the rat or mice population, and the proprietor of the store commenced to inquire into the reason why. He first tried the cat on a rat that had been caught in a trap, but the feline expressed no interest or animation. He looked at the rat and then walked away. The storekeeper was disappointed, but not entirely discouraged. He thought perhaps that cat's speciality was mice, and as he had a mouse or two that had been caught alive in a trap, he turned them loose in front of the cat, but it paid no more attention to them than a sheep would do to a rare done beefsteak.

"I think," said the storekeeper, "that I am onto this situation. I will fire the next employe who gives that cat anything to eat." For two days the Thomas cat did a good deal of howling and wore a look of injured innocence. He felt that he had been wronged, and was ready to start an insurrection, but as that didn't seem to get him anywhere, he turned loose on the rats and mice in a way that was surprising.

The second day after this change of program the rats held a convention to consider what ought to be done. When the leading orator among the rats arose, he said: "Fellow rats, this is no time for talk. What we want to do is to move. That cat hasn't any more natural ability than he had before, but he has concluded that he either has to hustle or starve, and I have discovered that when a cat gets in that frame of mind his neighborhood is no place for rats."

Many men and women, as well as rats, have never amounted to a whoop just because they never had to hustle.

DEVICE TO MAKE GOLF BALLS

Sphere Rests on Plunger and is Pressed Up Against Die—Designed by Pennsylvania Man.

An apparatus for imparting to golf balls their peculiar pock-marked complexion has been designed by a Pennsylvania man. Arising from a metal base is a metal standard with an overhanging and bifurcated arm. In the bifurcations of this arm a rotary die is pivoted. Directly below this die is a vertically moving plunger that is operated by a little lever at the side and that has a spring attachment to control its movement. On top of the plunger is a cap into which a golf ball is placed. By pressing down on the lever the plunger rises and the ball is pressed against the die. The force of the impact is sufficient to set the die revolving and it continues to revolve as the ball rises against it. This has the effect of turning the ball around in the cup so that it is stamped around its entire circumference.

The Worst Yet.

Johnny handed the following note from his mother to the teacher one morning.

Dere Teacher—You keep tellin' my boy to breathe with his diafram. Maybe rich children has got diaframs, but how about when there father only makes $1.50 a day and has got five children to keep? First it's one thing, then it's another, and now it's diaframs. That's the worst yet.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Rewarded by the Boss.

The office boy had been discovered in a lie. It was not one of the ordinary prevarications of our everyday world, but quite a serious and deliberately mendacious effort.

"Do you know, my lad," asked a clerk in kind tones, "what becomes of lads who trifle with the truth?"

"Ay," was the content reply, "the boss sends them out traveling when they grow up!"—Weekly Telegraph.

In the Days of Pa's Youth.

Little Kendrick was making elaborate preparations to go to the zoo.

"Ob, say," he cried, "I must have a bag of lump sugar! I can have lots of fun with a bag of lump sugar and the elephants!"

"When I was your age," said his father, "I could have a lot of fun with a bag of lump sugar without any elephants!"—Judge.

An Interpolation.

"Mother, may I go out to swim?"

"Yes, my darling daughter. Hang your clothes on a hickory limb, but, since pulleys and cords have been combined by a California inventor into a machine to teach a person the correct swimming motions while stretched on a cushion, safe on dry land, you needn't go near the water."

UNIQUE AFTER-DINNER TRICK

Manner of Cutting Apple into Six Pieces by Two Straight Cashes Is Shown in Illustration.

Much amusement may be obtained after dinner by cutting a wedge out of an apple, as is indicated in the diagram, and make six gashes, as is shown.

When this has been done challenge any one to divide the apple into six pieces by only two straight cuts, so that there shall be one of the gashes in each piece.

Dividing the Apple.

The illustration shows how the apple may be divided into six pieces by two straight cuts, so that there shall be a gash in each piece.

First cut the apple through the dotted line, then place the upper piece shown at the side of the larger piece, and make the second cut straight through where the line is drawn.

The Farmyard.

The players must all arrange themselves in a circle. The leader then tells them that he is about to give each the name of some animal, and that when he drops the handkerchief which he is holding in his hand, he wants them all to make the cry of the animal which they are supposed to represent. He then goes round the circle and whispers to every player except one, the injunction to "remain silent." To the one player alone he whispers, "The donkey." This being done, he takes up his position in the center of the circle, and, holding the handkerchief aloft, says, "Now then, are you ready? All together," and drops the handkerchief. For half a second there is dead silence, which is broken by the voice of the victim being uplifted in a deep stentorian "bray."

RIDDLES.

What motive had the inventor of railroads in view? A locomotive.

Why are some men like glow-worms? Because it must be dark when they shine.

Why cannot a thief easily steal a watch? Because he must take it off his guar.

Why is a cautious, prudent man like a pin? Because his head prevents him from going too far.

Why is a banker's clerk necessarily well informed? Because he is continually taking notes.

Why should a man named Ben marry a girl called Anne? Because he would be Benny-fitted, and she Annie-mated.

What three notes in Hallulah's musical notation would brighten up a drawing room? So, la, re (solar ray).

Why is a cherry like a book? Because it is read (red).

What is the difference between a land surveyor and a scarf? One is agent for prosperity, the other a proper tie for a gent.

Why are ladies' eyes like persons remote from one another? Because although they may correspond, they never meet.

Why is a comet snore like a dog that bark? Because it has a tail and the dog bark hasn't.

When is a schoolboy like a postage stamp? When he is licked and put in a corner to make him stick to his letters.

Why what paradox would you make an army fly? Fly breaking its wings.

What is the difference between a light in a cave and a dance in an inn? On is a taper in a cavern, the other is a caper in a tavern.

LITHIA BEER FOR THE AGED

When with age the blood becomes impoverished and ceases to pulsate through the veins with the same vigor as in youth, there is nothing more beneficial than Lithia Beer. It is a happy combination of tonic, stimulant and nutrition. The tonic property is derived from the hops, a little alcohol furnishes the element of stimulation and the barley malt is highly nutritive.
Lithia Beer is a splendid drink for aged persons, anaemias, convalescents and nursing mothers.

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Varney, wife of a Confederate general, has lost one son and another is dying from wounds. She reluctantly gives her consent for Wilfred, the youngest, to join the army if his father consents. The federals are making their last assault in an effort to capture Richmond.

CHAPTER II.

A Commission From the President.
The door giving entrance to the hall was opened unceremoniously by the returned and privileged Martha. She came at an opportune time, relieving the tension between the mother and son. Wilfred was not inessential to his mother's feelings, but he was determined to go to the front. He was glad of the interruption and rather shamefacedly took advantage of it by leaving the room.

"Well, Martha, what is it?" asked Mrs. Varney, striving to regain her composure.

"Deys one ob de men fum de hospitable heah, ma'am."

"Another one?"

"Ah, 'clab to goodness, ma'am, dey jes' keeps a-comin' an' a-comin'. Peas like we can't keep no close 'o'ourse'; de sheets an' tablecloths an' napkins an' eben de young miss'es' petticoats, dey all hab to go."

"And we have just sent all the bandages we have," said Mrs. Varney, smiling.

"Den we got to git some mo'. Dey says dey's all used up, an' two mo' trains jes' come in crowded full o' wounded sojabs—an' mos' all ob 'em drefful bad!"

"Is Miss Kittridge here yet, Martha?"

"Yas'm, Ah jes' seed her goin' 'thru de hall into de libry."

"Ask her if they have anything to send. Even if it's only a little, let them have it. What they need most is bandages. There are some in Howard's room, too. Give them half of what you find there. I think what we have left will last long enough to—"

"Yas'm," said old Martha, sniffing. "Ah'm a-gwine. Does you want to see de man?"

"Yes, send him in," said Mrs. Varney.

There was a light tap on the door after Martha went out.

"Come in," said the mistress of the house, and there entered to her a battered and dilapidated specimen of young humanity, his arm in a sling. "My poor man!" exclaimed Mrs. Varney. "Sit down."

"Thank you, ma'am."

"Martha," she called to the old woman, who paused at the door on her way to the stairs, "can't you get something to eat and drink for this gentleman?"

"Well, the pantry ain't obahfowin', as you know, Mrs. Varney. But Ah reckon Ah might 'in' a glass o' milk ef Ah jes' had to."

"All our wine has gone long ago," said Mrs. Varney to the soldier, "but if a glass of milk—"

"I haven't seen a glass of milk for three years, ma'am," answered the man, smiling; "it would taste like nectar."

"Martha will set it for you in the dining room while you are waiting. What hospital did you come from, by the way?"

"The Winder, ma'am."

"And is it full?"

"They are laying them on blankets on the floor. You can hardly step for wounded men."

"I suppose you need everything?"

"Everything, but especially bandages."

"Have you been over to St. Paul's church? The ladies are working there tonight."

"Yes, ma'am, I've been over there, but they're not working for the hospital; they're making sand-bags for fortifications."

"And where are you from?"

"I'm a Louisiana Tiger, ma'am," answered the man proudly.

"You don't look much like it now," said the woman, smiling.

"No, I guess the lamb is more like me now, but just wait until I get well enough to go to the front again," admitted the soldier cheerfully.

"This is every scrap we have," she said, handing the soldier the parcel with a little bow. "If you will come back in an hour or two, perhaps we shall have more for you."

"Thank you, ladies, and God bless you. I don't know what our poor fellows in the hospitals would do if it weren't for you."

"Don't forget your milk in the dining room," said Mrs. Varney.

"I'm not likely to, ma'am," returned the soldier, as, in spite of his wounded arm, he bowed gracefully to the women.

In the hall Martha's voice could be heard exclaiming:

"Come right dis way, you po' chile, an' see what Ah's got fo' you in de dinin' room!"

"You must be tired to death," said Mrs. Varney to Miss Kittridge, looking at the white face of the other woman. Her brother had been killed a few days before, but the clods had scarcely rattled down upon his coffin before she was energetically at work again—for other women's brothers.

"No, no," she said bravely; "and our tiredness is nothing compared to the weariness of our men. We are going to stay late tonight, Mrs. Varney. If you will let us, there's so many more wounded come in it won't do to stop now. We have found some old linen that will make splendid bandages, and—"

"My dear girl," said the matron, "stay as long as you possibly can. I will see if Martha can't serve you something to eat after a while. I don't believe there is any tea left in the house."

"Bread and butter will be a feast," said Miss Kittridge.

"And I don't believe there is much butter either," smiled the older woman.

"Well, it doesn't matter," said the other. "Is—is your son—is there any change?"

"Not for the better," was the reply. "I am afraid his fever is increasing."

"And has the surgeon seen him this evening?"

"Not tonight."

"Why not?" exclaimed Miss Kittridge in great surprise. "Surely his condition is sufficiently critical to demand more than one brief visit in the morning."

"I can't ask him to come twice with so many waiting for him," said Mrs. Varney.

"But they would not refuse you, Mrs. Varney," said Miss Kittridge quickly. "There's that man going back to the hospital, he's in the dining room yet. I'll call him and send word that—"

She started impulsively toward the door, but Mrs. Varney caught her by the arm.

"No," she said firmly; "I can't let you."

"Not for your own son?"

"I am thinking of the sons of other mothers. The surgeon has done all that he can for him. And think how many other sons would have to be neglected if he visited mine twice. He will come again tomorrow."

The second woman stood looking at her in mingled sympathy and amazement, and there was a touch of pride in her glance, too. She was proud of her sex, and she had a right to be there in Richmond that spring, if ever.

"I understand," said Miss Kittridge at last. "I suppose you are right."

They stared at each other, entered to them, and beauty incarnate. There was enough resemblance between the pale, white-haired mother and the girlish figure in the doorway to proclaim their relationship. The girl's cheek had lost some of its bloom and some of its roundness. There was too much that was appalling and fearful in and about Richmond then not to leave its mark even upon the most youthful and the most buoyant, yet things did not come home to the young as they did to those older. She was still a lovely picture, especially in the soft radiance of the candles. She carried her hat in her hand. The flowers upon it were assuredly those of yesterday, it would not have passed muster as the mode anywhere except in besieged Richmond; and her dress, although it fitted her perfectly, was worn and faded and had been turned and patched and altered until it was quite beyond further change, yet she wore it as airily as if it had been tissue of silver or cloth of gold.

The mother's face brightened.

"Edith, dear," she exclaimed, "how late you are! It is after eight o'clock. You must be tired out."

"I am not tired at all," answered the girl cheerily. "I have not been at the hospital all afternoon; this is my day off. How is Howard?"

"I wish I could say just the same, but he seems a little worse."

The girl's face went suddenly grave. She stepped over to her mother, took her hand and patted it softly.

"Is there nothing you can do?"

"My dear," said her mother, "Howard—we are all to God's hands."

She drew a long breath and lifted her head bravely.

"Miss Kittridge," said the girl, "I have something very important to tell mother, and—"

"Well, my dear?"

"Mamma—what do you think? What do you think?"

"I think a great many things," said Mrs. Varney, "but—"

"Yes, but you wouldn't ever think of this."

"Certainly I shall not, unless you tell me."

"Well, I have been to see the president."

"The president—Mr. Davis?"

"Yes."

"And what did you go to see the president for?"

"I asked him for an appointment for Captain Thorne."

"For Captain Thorne? My dear—"

"Yes, mother, for the war department telegraph service. And he gave it to me, a special commission. He gave it to me for father's sake and for Captain Thorne's sake—he has met him and likes him—and for my own."

"What sort of an appointment?"

"Appointing him to duty here in Richmond, a very important position. He won't be sent to the front, and he will be doing his duty just the same."

"But, Edith, you don't—you can't—"

"Yes, it will, mother. The president—I just love him—told me they needed a man who understood telegraph work and who was of high enough rank to take charge of the service. As you know, most of the telegraph operators are private, and Captain Thorne is an expert. Since he's been here in Richmond he's helped them in the telegraph office often. Lieutenant Foray told me so."

Mrs. Varney rose and moved away. Edith followed her.

"Now, mamma!" she exclaimed; "I feel you are going to scold me, and you must not, because it's all fixed and the commission will be sent over here in a few minutes—just as soon as it can be made out—and when it comes I am going to give it to him myself."

Mrs. Varney moved over toward the table and lifted a piece of paper, evidently a note.

"He is coming this evening," she said.

"How do you know?" asked her daughter.

"Well, for one thing," said her mother, "I can remember very few evenings when he hasn't been here since he was able to walk out of the hospital."

"Mamma!"

"And for another thing, this note came about half an hour ago."

"Is it for me?"

"For me, my dear, else I shouldn't have opened it. You can read it, if you like."

"Has it been here all this time?" exclaimed Edith jealously.

"All this time. You will see what he says. This will be his last call; he has his orders to leave."

"Why, it's too ridiculous!" said the girl; "just as if the commission from the president would supersede everything else. It puts him at the head of the telegraph service. He will be in command of the department. He says it is a good-bye call, does he?"

She looked at the note again and laughed. "All the better, it will be that much more of a surprise. Now, mamma, don't you breathe a word about it, I want to tell him myself."

"But, Edith dear—I am sorry to criticize you—but I don't at all approve of your going to the president about this. It doesn't seem quite the proper thing for a young lady to interest herself so far—"

"But listen, mamma, and as she spoke the light went out of Miss Edith's face at her mother's grave and somewhat reproving aspect. "I couldn't go to the war department people. Mr. Arrelaford is there in one of the offices and ever since I—I refused him, you know how he has treated me! If I had applied for anything there, it would have been refused at once, and he would have got them to order Captain Thorne away right off. I know he would—why, that is where his orders came from!"

"But, my dear—"

"That is where they came from!"

"Isn't it lucky I got that commission today. There's the bell; I wonder who it can be?" She stopped and listened while the door opened and Jonas, the butler, entered. "Is it Captain Thorne?" asked Edith eagerly.

"No, ma'am."

"Oh!"

"It's another offshoot, ma'am. He says he's run de president an' he's got to see Miss Edith pusionally."

Jonas extended a card which, as he spoke, Edith took and glanced at indifferently.

"Lieutenant Maxwell," she read.

"Ask the gentleman in, Jonas," said Mrs. Varney.

"It's come," whispered Edith to her mother.

"Do you know who he is?"

"No—but he's from the president—it must be that commission."

At this moment old Jonas ushered into the drawing room a very dashing young officer, handsome in face, gallant in bearing, and dressed in a showy and perfectly fitting uniform, which was quite a contrast to the worn habiliments of the men at the front. Mrs. Varney stepped forward a little, and

Edith followed her.

"Now, mamma!" she exclaimed; "I feel you are going to scold me, and you must not, because it's all fixed and the commission will be sent over here in a few minutes—just as soon as it can be made out—and when it comes I am going to give it to him myself."

"That is where they came from!"

Edith followed her.

"Now, mamma!" she exclaimed; "I feel you are going to scold me, and you must not, because it's all fixed and the commission will be sent over here in a few minutes—just as soon as it can be made out—and when it comes I am going to give it to him myself."

Mrs. Varney moved over toward the table and lifted a piece of paper, evidently a note.

"He is coming this evening," she said.

"How do you know?" asked her daughter.

TEA TABLE BISCUITS

IN ALL SORTS OF FORMS THEY ARE IN HIGH FAVOR.

May Be Served in Whatever Manner the Hostess Desires, and Will Be Appreciated—Some Ideas That May Be Useful.

The housewife who understands how to make baking-powder biscuit, flaky inside and crusty out, has an unlimited number of possibilities at her command. For the afternoon tea table these tiny biscuits are in high favor and appear in many guises.

Roll a moist as this as a cookie, sprinkled with grated cheese and baked for about five minutes in a moderate oven, they furnish an acceptable accompaniment for either tea or coffee. Baked equally thin and spread with a mixture of sugar and cinnamon, moistened with melted butter, these crisp bits have a suggestion of the much liked cinnamon bread. A raisin is a good center decoration, or a few currants can be used instead.

For the hostess who likes a bit of novelty, what is sometimes called a "double biscuit," is an excellent addition to the afternoon tea table. After cutting the biscuit into thin rounds, put a half teaspoonful of jam or marmalade in the center of the remaining halves. Let the filling be kept well in the center, so that in baking it will not ooze out. Served fresh from the oven, these are delicious little mouthfuls. A light spreading of honey can be used in the same way, or cream cheese, softened sufficiently, offers another change.

The same biscuit dough, made soft enough to come under the heading of a "drop batter," can be used for the filling of tiny patty pans and baked as one would little cakes. These biscuits, so baked, have a delicious quantity of crust, and their cunning size always attracts attention from guests who see them served for the first time. Sets of these diminutive cake tins can be found in various sizes, the preferred style being arranged for the baking of a cake or biscuit scarcely more than an inch in diameter. The tins with fluted edges are especially good for the making of these little biscuits.

With the same combination of ingredients an appetizing bouchée is easily possible. Make the biscuit of suitable size and so that when baked it will be about an inch thick. With a pair of scissors clip away a bit of the top crust, and in the cavity place a dot of rich preserve. Leave uncovered, so that the bit of colored filling may show prettily. A single preserved strawberry is the best for this purpose. Not new, but always acceptable, are biscuits of this description, with sufficient of the inside crumb removed to allow of a teaspoonful of richly dressed chicken or lobster salad. A flaked sardine filling is also good, with just a squeeze of lemon juice to each portion.

Sunday Supper.

"Sunday—the day of rest—for everything but the digestion!—is many a family's idea of the Sabbath. You doubt? Then consider the Sunday supper. What but an ostrich could properly digest the combination of cold ham, potato salad, pickles and other indigestible commodities that are set before the sluggish members of the family who have been "resting" all afternoon? Perhaps the Sunday supper is to blame for blue Monday!

Then, too, in many families the dinner is served late in the afternoon and is generally heartier than usual. One needs therefore but little and that little capable of easy digestion—at the evening meal.

Custard Souffle.

Custard souffle is a delicious variation on the plain baked custard—perhaps more like a baked omelet than a custard. To make it, bring a cupful of milk to the boiling point and then pour it gradually on two tablespoonfuls of flour mixed with the same amount of butter. Cook the mixture for eight minutes, taking great care that it does not burn. Then add two tablespoonfuls of sugar beaten thoroughly with the yolks of four eggs. Let the custard cool, add the beaten whites of the four eggs and bake for twenty minutes in a moderately hot oven. Serve immediately with jelly or some light, frothy sauce.

Lenox Sauce.

Mix one and one-half teaspoonfuls of mustard, one and one-fourth teaspoons of salt, one teaspoon of powdered sugar, one-fourth teaspoon of paprika, two eggs slightly beaten, one-half cup of vinegar and one-fourth cup of olive oil. Cook over hot water until thick. Strain. Add two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one-half tablespoon of curry powder, one-half tablespoon of parsley and one-half teaspoon of onion juice.—Mrs. Charles H. Baldwin.

Baked Eggs in Tomato.

Cut slices from the stem end of a fine tomato and remove some of the pulp. Set in buttered ramekin and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Drop an egg into this tomato cup, sprinkle with melted butter on top of each egg and tomato. Prepare as many of the individuals as may be required and bake in a moderate oven until firm.

To Remove a Stopper.

When there is trouble removing a stopper from a bottle, lay the bottle over in very good. Take the bottle in one hand and pour hot water over the neck; the heat of the water will cause the glass to expand, but the stopper, remaining cool, will keep its normal size, and can therefore be quite easily withdrawn.

To Whiten Clothes.

White clothes that have become yellow may be whitened in the following simple manner: After having washed them in the usual way, lay them to soak over night in clear water into which a tablespoon of cream of tartar to a quart of water has been put. When ironed they are as white as snow.

IDEAS for HOME BUILDERS

WM. A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 115 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

One of the objections sometimes made to the use of concrete in building construction is the fact that the finished surface is rough and no attempt is made to give a finish to the surface, either in the molds or after their removal. This is probably due to an idea that interfering with the surface would destroy the skin of the concrete and lessen its usefulness.

Two methods are now being successfully employed giving a finish to concrete either in molded blocks, or monolithic construction in place. The first of these methods is to apply fresh granite to the face of the mold, which gives it all the finish and durability of granite ashlar. This finishing material is ground and sifted into various sizes, several of which are employed in making the facing mixture, on the same principle as mixing aggregates so as to fill the voids. The best proportion is one of cement, three of aggregate of different sizes. A small quantity of hydrated lime is added, which on account of its fineness, acts as a waterproofing, likewise preventing the block from sticking to the mold. The ingredients are thoroughly mixed while still dry. The face of the mold is wiped clean and dry. A thin layer of almost dry spar mixed with a little cement mixed with a little hydrated lime is spread on the plate. On top of this a half inch of ordinary mixture is spread, then a layer of rich backing and finally, the ordinary block mixture which should be tamped hard.

The above method is the one used when a face down concrete block machine is used, while the reverse process is used with a face up machine. In this case the grit or feldspar is sifted dry on the wet cement. The spar may be pressed into the surface by running a roller over it. After it has set the surface is washed with a house will be warmer in winter and much cooler in summer than it would be if built entirely of frame.

The cost of this house is estimated at $4,500.

Too Code.

Mayor Harrison of Chicago was being congratulated at a luncheon on his ordinance forbidding chauffeurs to blow their horns in the crowded business sections of the city.

"Chauffeurs think," he said, "that they need only blow their horns and the pedestrian will leap out of the way. Let the chauffeurs drive with solution of one part of muriatic acid to eight of water to remove any stains. Then it is washed with clean water to remove traces of the acid. In monolithic construction the sides of the forms are plastered with about a half inch of the facing material before the filling is placed.

The second method of finishing concrete surfaces is to give them an ashler like appearance by polishing the surface with carborundum bricks and water. This method is applicable to care, remembering that the pedestrian's right is supreme.

"Why, if something isn't soon done, the chauffeurs in their arrogance will be getting up a horn code for the pedestrian to learn and obey—a code something like this:

"One toot—Throw a quick back handspike for the sidewalk."

"Two toots—Drive over the car."

"Three toots—Lie down calmly; it is too late to escape; but we will go over you as easily as possible if you keep very still."

"One long and two short toots—Throw yourself forward and we will save both your arms."

"One short and two long toots—Throw yourself backward and one leg will be saved."

"Four toots—It's all up with you, but we promise to notify your family."

Wages in the Orient.
Five years ago Japan and China boasted but two small steel plants. Today these two plants are employing more persons than any steel company in the world with the exception of the United States Steel corporation, and one-third as many as the latter. These companies not only supply most of the needs of their own countries, but recently captured a big order from the Philippines on which American, British and German producers were bidding. They have the ore, their plants are modern and for wages they pay less for a month than our plants pay in a day. The highest grade of

HAIR CUT BY A SQUIRREL

Rodent Barber Gets Busy on Thatch of Sleeping Oregon Photographer.

Ernest J. Bloom, a photographer of Hood River, Ore., who has been passing the last two weeks at the ranch of R. E. Scott, secretary of the Commercial club, returned home with a portion of his hair gone.

Mr. Bloom had been working in the garden and making a lawn on the ranch. He was taking a nap after lunch when a squirrel had been making its home in the house this winter, evidently thinking his long black locks would make an excellent lining for a nest, trimmed off a portion of the hair while he slept.

"The rodent's teeth must have been sharp," says the photographer, "for I could scarcely feel him at work there cutting away the hair. I must have moved in my sleep and in his excitement he evidently pulled some of the hairs out instead of cutting them. This awoke me and I let out a yell that almost frightened the squirrel to death."—Portland Oregonian.

So strong is habit that when a burden falls from our shoulders we feel discomfort in the loss.

All Right.

Cook—There is sand in this sugar.

Grocer's Boy—That's all right if you use it for the dessert.

All Dead.

"Do you suppose there are any men who can prove they had no vices?"

"Certainly."

"Where's their proof?"

"On their tombstones."

Wayside Philosophy.

"Easy Street must be a nice street to live on," remarked the first bobo.

"That's nothing to me," declared the second waddler. "I never found that the alley back of it provided anything extra in the way of pickings."

A Careful Parent.

"Tommy, when can I interview your scout captain?"

"I'll make an engagement for you, dad. What do you want?"

"Want to see if there is anything in the rules to prevent your putting in a ton of coal tomorrow afternoon?"

Through the Phone.

"Hello! Is that the information editor?"

"Yes."

"There's a question I'd like to ask you, to settle a family dispute."

"Well?"

"Which is the proper implement to use in eating a beef stew—a tablespoon or a fork?"

The Verdict.

A Chicago politician invited his cousin from the old country and had him appointed a smoke inspector. This was in the old days. He was turned loose to inspect without any instructions whatever, and this is the report he rendered at the end of the first month:

"I certify that I have inspected the smoke of this city for the thirty days past. I find plenty of smoke and apparently of good quality. Respectfully submitted."

MEMORY IMPROVED.

Since Leaving Off Coffee.

Many persons suffer from poor memory who never suspect coffee has anything to do with it.

The drug—caffein—in coffee, acts injuriously on the nerves and heart, causing imperfect circulation, too much blood in the brain at one time, too little in another part. This often causes a dullness which makes a good memory nearly impossible.

"I am nearly seventy years old and did not know that coffee was the cause of the stomach and heart trouble I suffered from for many years, until about four years ago," writes a Kansas woman.

"A kind neighbor induced me to quit coffee and try Postum. I had been suffering severely and was greatly reduced in flesh. After using Postum a little while I found myself improving. My heart beats became regular and now I seldom ever notice any symptoms of my old stomach trouble at all. My nerves are steady and my memory decidedly better than while I was using coffee. I like the taste of Postum fully as well as coffee."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for booklet, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms. Regular (must be boiled).

Instant Postum doesn't require boiling but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

PASTE FILLING MOST HANDY

When Many Sandwiches Are to Be Made This Is Practically the Only Way.

When refreshments for an evening party are under consideration, the good old-fashioned way of making sandwiches—by first cutting the bread, then spreading it with butter, and then laying in a filling of sliced or chopped meats—is out of the question. Before the last sandwich has been added to the pile the first ones will have become hopelessly dried out and probably the party will be well under way.

A paste filling is the quickest and best concomitant when a number of sandwiches are to be turned out in a short time, and given two bowls of paste filling with different ingredients, several loaves of sandwich bread—purchased the previous day to insure just the right degree of dryness without staleness—and a good sharp knife, one can pile up sandwiches by the score in almost no time at all.

The best foundation for the filling is mayonnaise dressing. The oil in the dressing takes the place of butter, and into the mayonnaise may be stirred minced ham, chopped nuts, olives, peppers, or any other sandwich filling desired. If a boiled dressing is used, plenty of butter should be used in it, or the slices of bread should be brushed over lightly with melted butter applied with a pastry brush. Chopped nuts and cream cheese make a delicious filling. Soften the mixture with cream until it is the consistency of paste. Thin bread and butter sandwiches with a layer of chopped water-cress are appetizing and dainty, and everybody knows the delight of lettuce sandwiches with a dash of mayonnaise.

Use a long knife in cutting the bread, and if the latter is the least bit spongy warm the knife before cutting each slice and it will go through like scissors through paper. Trim the edges from the slices of bread; pile up and cover with a wet napkin for half an hour; then spread the seasoned filling between slices, "spank" the sandwiches smartly with the flat of the knife to make it thin and compact, and cover the plate of sandwiches with a damp napkin until ready to serve.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

To clean a stovepipe place a piece of zinc on the coals. The vapor produced carries off the soot.

A pinch of soda added to a berry pie before the upper crust is put on will keep it from running over.

A few minced dates added to fudge as it comes from the stove will make a novel and dainty confection.

When frying mush it improves the crispness if the mush is dipped in white of an egg before frying.

A little sugar or molasses added to the stove polish gives a brighter and more lasting polish, also prevents so much dust.

A bit of camphor in a small iron cup, placed over an alcohol lamp, which has its flame turned very low, will always put mosquitoes to flight.

When you undo a parcel fold the paper and tie the string around it—there will always be a string to fit a bundle without looking for one.

Cream of Corn Soup.

If corn on the cob is used, place the cobs (from which the corn has been removed) in three pints of boiling water and cook slowly for half an hour. Remove them, add a pint of grated corn and boil until soft.

When canned corn is used, turn the contents of the can into the water and boil until very tender. Press through a sieve, season to taste and let simmer while you make a smooth paste of three tablespoonfuls of butter and two even ones of flour. Add to the soup and stir rapidly until it thickens. Turn in one pint of boiling milk and then add the beaten yolks of two eggs. Serve at once.

Spanish Rice.

One-half cup rice, one-quarter can tomatoes, one-half green pepper, one small onion, one tablespoonful lard, one-half teaspoonful salt.

Heat frying pan, and when hot put in lard. Then add rice, and brown thoroughly, but not enough to color. Add 1 1/2 pints of boiling water, salt, pepper, onion and tomatoes, all chopped fine. Cook until rice is tender. Add a little more water if rice is dry. Serve with fish, or as luncheon dish.

Good Veal Loaf.

Three and one-half pounds chopped veal, one-half pound chopped salt pork, three well beaten eggs, two tablespoonfuls melted butter, crumbs of five soda crackers, 1 1/2 teaspoonfuls pepper, one teaspoonful salt, one full teaspoon of powdered marjoram.

Mix all ingredients thoroughly. Mold into brick pan and bake covered, and in a pan of water for one hour or more. Serve cold in slices.

Wicker Flower Holders.

Tall wicker vases and baskets of all shapes and sizes are favorite flower holders this season. They are to be found at all prices and may be stained or painted any color, although the natural colors are appropriate for some porches. Grays, greens and browns are very effective and come in numberless shades this year.—Harper's Bazar.

American Sauce.

Chop one fair-sized onion very fine, one green pepper, half a peeled clove and a little garlic. Season with a little salt and red pepper, together with a wineglassful of good white wine. This should be reduced for two minutes, then add about a gill of good tomato sauce and a fair-sized peeled tomato cut into dice. Cook for ten minutes.

For Cane-Seated Chairs.

When a cane-seated chair begins to sag, turn the chair upside down and scour the under part of the seat with hot soapuds. Then rinse with boiling water and let dry in the open air. If possible, this saves quite a little sum and makes the seat of the chair almost like new cane.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Ventilate all stables.

Cull all pure bred animals.

Keep the little pigs growing.

Provide the chicks with shade.

Pasteurization is universal in German cities.

Wash the calves' pails as well as the milk pails.

Corn silage produces a very rapid finish on the cattle.

Equal parts of lard and kerosene is effective against lice.

Have everything ready beforehand and start your hatching operations.

Do not uncover roses or other plants until their new growth makes it necessary.

Put your thinking cap on and don't let other work crowd out the chicks.

Don't allow broody hens to remain on the same nests that are used by the layers.

Farms that are lacking in natural timber should be producing an artificial grove.

There never will be too many good poultrymen, but we can strive to be among the best.

A sow can be kept too long, and often many of us keep some old thing a year too long.

Do not give nitrate of soda to plants until well above soil, and then apply very sparingly.

Grass seed is quite the opposite of clover, so the mixtures are very apt to contain more grass than clover.

Imagine what could be accomplished in the way of community breeding with fifty herds in the same community.

If you have windows in the hen house keep them clean, as the hens need all the sunlight they can get these days.

Lay your plans for the bulk of the feedstuffs on the farm this year. Buying much high-priced feed cuts into the profits.

If a hog misses a feed watch him; if he misses the second feed, remove him from the herd and thoroughly disinfect where he has been.

Better run a dairy without a dog than have one that is irritable to the cows. Many kicking cows are caused by the dogs nipping at their heels.

In mating be sure and mate even-colored birds. For instance, not a dark male to a lighter hen. This kind of mating produces mottled chickens.

It has been proved many times that the large, plump, well-formed seed will give the best and quickest crop returns. Moral: Plant only large, well-developed seeds.

The three-year rotation is probably the best for average purposes, but the dairymen may find the four-year rotation more convenient, on account of the pasturage it provides.

Plants send their rootlets a surprising distance in search of food and water, and these rootlets show almost human intelligence in traveling around stones and other obstructions to gain their end.

The man who catches a sheep by the wool wouldn't like to have his hair pulled every time a neighbor meets him. Hurts a sheep just as bad as it would a man to be handled that way, though.

Dehorn the calf as soon as you take it from the cow. The newborn calf seems to be in a sort of stupor and does not feel the drug as keenly as after it gets frisky. Of course, the cow in a pan of water for one hour or more, you will detangle her.

The silo will help you meet the feeding problem, enable you to save about 40 per cent. of the feeding value of the corn plant and make it possible for the farm crop to maintain more animals. The silo is a good investment.

It takes from fifteen to twenty ears of corn to plant an acre. If one ear falls to grow, about 6 per cent. of the stand is lost. About fifteen minutes of time are required to test enough corn, by the ear method, to plant an acre.

Fresh bones contain a small quantity of animal matter which is useful for food. They are in their best condition when fresh and unburned. Burning or charring consumes the animal matter and makes them just so much less valuable.

Where it is difficult to obtain a stand of alfalfa, it is quite possible that sowing sweet clover a year or two before seeding to alfalfa would prove advantageous. Sweet clover will inoculate the soil and put it in good condition for seeding alfalfa.

Spray for Insect Pests.

Many gardens need lime.

All chickens delight in the sun.

Never mix chicks of different ages.

The perches for fowls should be low.

The sire is the mainspring in the dairy works.

You cannot afford to overlook the health of your fowls.

Early hatches are nine times out of ten more profitably than late ones.

It's no longer possible to farm successfully if you depend upon guesswork.

The sheep is just as efficient a manure spreader as he is a manure maker.

Hens suffer from a damp hen house, so it is well to keep the floor covered with litter.

Grow your peach trees so that a six-foot ladder will be long enough for harvesting.

If applying nitrate of soda sprinkle around the plant and then stir or rake into the soil.

If you intend to use hens for hatching set them in a dry place where the ventilation is good.

If you do not intend to use hens for hatching break them up at once and get them to laying again.

Remember all kinds of stimulating fertilizers should by no means be allowed to touch the leaves of a plant.

Red raspberry rows should be about six feet apart, plants spaced two feet apart in the row (3,630 to the acre).

Start the brooder a day or two before putting in the chicks to see that the heating apparatus is working properly.

Herole pruning measures are needed to bring many old trees into bearing; but it need not all be done the first year.

In cool weather 10 to 13 chicks are sufficient for one hen, while in warmer weather 15 to 20 can be cared for successfully.

A pound of clover seed to the bushel of small grain helps to give one's land the clover habit, and prepares the way for a good stand.

A 200-bushel yield of potatoes per acre removes from the soil 46 pounds of nitrogen, 21 pounds of phosphoric acid and 74 pounds of potash.

An apple tree that has been properly pruned from the time it is set needs comparatively little attention when it reaches bearing age.

If you have a real love for the poultry tribe, and do your best by them in any and all ways, you are certain to come out the winner in the long run.

The scratching hen will have better vitality, and a better laying record than the lazy hen that waits by the gate for the next feed to be doled out.

If you have not had the nerve to use the open front house during the winter you had better begin now by removing the windows on the south and use muslin.

There is this to say for incubator hatching: Mites and other pests are not waiting outside the shell ready to pounce on the helpless chick as soon as it emerges.

Ground sometimes is made hard to cultivate by being plowed while too wet, and crops often are ruined by putting the seed in the earth when it is not in proper condition.

High fertility is exceedingly important for cabbage. This crop must have an abundance of quickly available plant food. Application of nitrate of soda usually pays.

For a straight hog fence it has been found that twenty-six inches is not high enough. If there are to be no barb wires on top of the hog fence should not be less than thirty inches high.

The soil may be worked deeper when underdrained; it is also considerably warmer, and much of the frost elements are held in the ground that would otherwise run off with the surface floods.

The person who is in too big a hurry to feed newly hatched chicks usually has "bad luck" with them. They need and should have nothing to eat until 36 to 48 hours old. Nature looks after them that long.

A pig must not be allowed to stop growing. If it does, the loss is not confined only to the days of unthrift, but all the food consumed afterward is likely to give less profit.

When plowing the land for parsnips and other deep-growing root plants, plow deep and keep the manure down deep; otherwise you will have a lot of surface roots instead of the long, straight roots desired.

Full plowing is to be preferred to spring plowing. This applies also to land for corn that is to be manured during the winter and spring. A reasonable dressing of coarse manure may be disked in without difficulty, and is in better position to aid the crop than when plowed under.

To hold a sack open for filling it with potash, beet turps, or anything to be sacked, use a 50-pound lard can with the bottom removed. Place the can in the sack and let the sack come up to the top of the can. Fill the can, raise it and the sack; let the can remain and fill again until the sack is full.

FUNERAL HONORS FOR A MARE

Trotter Destroyed in Fire Is Given Obsequies in Keeping With Affectionate Regard of Owner.

Betty Green, a trotting mare destroyed in a fire at Belleville, Ill., was given funeral honors in keeping with her record of 2:10 and with the affectionate regard of her owner, William H. Reichert. The body was drawn to the grave on the Walnut Grove stock farm, by six blooded youngsters, and was lowered by stable boys. The coffin was rose lined. Mr. Reichert pronounced a eulogy after recounting the mare's track achievements.

Perhaps Betty Green's terrible form of death aroused Mr. Reichert's sympathies the more keenly, but the intense love of a great race horse by an owner is a primary sentiment. Maud S. had more friends than any horse in history, being approachable, inquisitive and fond of contact with the many whom Robert Bonner delighted in taking to her paddock.

James R. Keene mourned Snyson as he would one of his family. This superb runner had the admiration of the east without the popularity of Maud S., a trotter and a record breaker in times when trotting was the consuming passion. Mr. Keene, who never bet on the races, was a devotee of Snyson's, remaining preserved, but his only monument is his unique position among American thoroughbreds.

HAIR CAME OUT IN BUNCHES

813 E. Second St., Muncie, Ind.—"My little girl had a bad breaking out on the scalp. It was little white lumps. The pimples would break out as large as a common pinhead all over her head. They would break and run yellow matter. She suffered nearly a year with itching and burning. It was sore and itched all the time. The matter that ran from her head was very thick. It did not comb her hair very often, her head was too sore to comb it, and when I did comb, it came out in bunches. Some nights her head itched so bad she could not sleep.

"I tried several different soaps and ointments, also patent medicine, but nothing could I get to stop it. I began using Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment this summer after I sent for the free samples. I used them and they did so much good I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and some Cuticura Ointment. I washed her head with Cuticura Soap and rubbed the Cuticura Ointment in the scalp every two weeks. A week after I had washed her head three times you could not tell she ever had a breaking out on her head. Cuticura Soap and Ointment also made the hair grow beautifully." ### Tanbark as a Fuel.

Perhaps the most important of waste fuels in the United States has been spent tanbark. A rough estimate would indicate that this material generated a few years ago an amount of steam that would have otherwise required the yearly consumption of about 2,000,000 tons of high grade coal. Yet this valuable fuel was at one time considered a mere detriment and an expense to the leather industry. It was disposed of by dumping it into rivers, filling in waste grounds, and by making roads with it, often necessitating the paying out of large sums for its disposition. This strikingly illustrates a case of how the improvement of a furnace converted a hitherto supposed combustible into a valuable waste fuel of the auto-combustible class, and shows how an enormous waste was converted into an equally great economy.—Engineering Magazine.

Exonerating the Kingbird.

The department of agriculture has granted a certificate of good character to the kingbird, sometimes known in the rural districts as the bee martin, a species of fly catcher which inhabits nearly every part of the United States. The kingbird has been under indictment in many sections as a destroyer of bees and a foe of apiarists, and by Experts now declare that it kills only the drones and the useless bees, and is, therefore, a boon to the bee raiser. Besides that, it preys on many harmful insects and protects farmers' chicken yards from depredations of crows and chicken hawks, which it savagely attacks.

Not Worth It.

"Why did you name the baby Nebuchadnezzar?" "His Uncle Nebuchadnezzar has promised to leave him $5,000." "The boy may not thank you in after life. I think he'd rather go out and earn $5,000 than to carry around that name."

Important to Mothers.

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Atkinson In Use For Over 30 Years. Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

His Hair.

Mrs. Newell (to tramp)—Aren't you the man who called her last week? Tramp—You mean the pore feller you gave the 'ome-made pie to? No, mum, I ain't him. He left me his bits of tugs when he pegged out, dat's all.

Always Trying.

"He's always trying to start something." "A scrapper, eh?" "No, he owns a motorcycle."

As often as not it is the consciousness of a lack, not of a possession, that prompts us to preach or to brag.

THE LURE OF THE WEST

WESTERN CANADA ATTRACTING THOUSANDS OF SETTLERS.

Writing on the Canadian West, an eastern exchange truthfully says: "The West still calls with imperative voice. To prairie and mountain, and for the Pacific Coast, Ontario's young men and women are attracted by tens of thousands yearly. The great migration has put an end to the fear, freely expressed not many years ago by those who knew the West from the lakes to the farther coast of Vancouver Island, that Canada would some day break in two because of the predominance of Continental European and American settlers in the West."

This is true. While the immigration from the United States is large, running close to 150,000 a year, that of the British Isles and Continental Europe nearly twice that number, making a total of 400,000 per year, there is a strong influx from Eastern Canada. It is not only into the prairie provinces that these people go, but many of them continue westward, the glory of British Columbia's great trees and great mountains, the excellent agricultural valleys, where can be grown almost all kinds of agriculture and where fruit has already achieved prominence. Then the vast expanse of the plains attract hundreds of thousands, who at once set to work to cultivate their vast holdings. There is still room, and great opportunity in the West. The work of man's hands, even in the cities with their record-breaking building rush, is the smallest part of the grand panorama that is spread before the eye on a journey through the country. Nature is still supreme, and man is still the divine pigmy audaciously seeking to impose his will and stamp his mark upon an unconquered half continent.

The feature that most commends itself in Western development today is the "home-making spirit." The West will find happiness in planting trees and making gardens and building schools and colleges and universities, and producing a home environment so that there will be no disposition to regard the country as a temporary place of abode in which every one is trying to make his pile preparatory to going back East or becoming a lotus-eater beside the Pacific.

The lure of the West is strong. It will be still stronger when the crude new towns and villages of the plains are embowered in trees and vocal with the song of birds.—Advertisement.

Convicts College Students.

More than fifty convicts are enrolled at the State Agricultural College at Manhattan, taking the various courses offered at the college. They are, so far as is known, the only convict college students in the United States. Few, if any of the convicts have ever seen the college building, and it will be some time before any of them can see it, but nevertheless they are enrolled students doing regular work.

All the convict college students are inmates of the United States penitentiary here. They do their class work in their cells and mail their lesson papers to the college for correction. Some of the convicts are studying agriculture, some civil engineering, others mechanics, and some are studying dairying. Nearly all of the students enrolled in the agricultural or dairy courses are men employed on the prison farm or in the dairy.—Leavenworth Dispatch to New York Times.

Parliamentary Suspension.

Sir Henry Lucy drops a hint from the "Cross Benches" in the Observer as to the "suspension" of members of the house—and the vagueness of the reality. Can it be true that members get themselves named and suspended on purpose to achieve a compulsory holiday? Eight pounds a week will make for modest comfort at Brighton or Eastbourne. The member of parliament is paid whether he is in the house or at Margate or in the Clock Tower. Budapest has a more drastic way. If the member is suspended he is fined 26 shillings a day. That teaches him to behave. No, that we pay our representatives we might make payment conditional on their representing us in the proper place.—London Chronicle.

A New Metal.

Some remarkable qualities are claimed for steelite, a new metal which is composed of 75 per cent. of cobalt and the remainder of chromium. It may be cast and ground to a fine edge, is impervious to rust and the sort of acid and highly flexible as a lathe tool it will cut steel at the rate of 200 feet a minute, a speed at which steel would ordinarily burn. Certain modifications of this alloy will cut glass, and even quartz crystals. Steelite is said to be particularly suitable for watch fittings.

Studebaker

"That's the sixth Studebaker we've passed—the only kind to invest in"

"The only kind—because, as I always say, when a man puts money in a thing he wants to know that he's going to get the worth of it out again."

"That's plain business as I look at it."

"That's why I say the price doesn't tell you anything at all. There's only one thing that talks—except the wagon itself. That's the name of the maker."

"When you buy a Studebaker you're buying a vehicle that has behind it and in it sixty years of experience—sixty years of success—and sixty years of reputation for the square deal. That's why a Studebaker always looks good to me."

"My father used to say that Studebaker honor was as sure as a United States bank note. He was talking after having used Studebaker vehicles since he was a lad, and he told me his father before him said, 'Be safe—get a Studebaker.'"

"Vehicle builders can't hold that sort of reputation now-a-days without delivering the goods. A Studebaker wagon has the best in it. That's why a man gets the most out of it—why it's always an economy."

"Dealers may say to you something else is 'just as good.' But when you buy a Studebaker, you're making a safe investment every time."

DID YOU EVER STOP TO "THINK" About the "Twin Tables"

Up to this time, Pedestal Tables have been made with a single pedestal, but their shortcomings are so many that one manufacturer has succeeded in overcoming them by using two pedestals—each oval or oblong and complete in itself. They are called

"Twin" Pedestal Extension Tables

They are superior to others because:

- No troublesome lock necessary. Gaping or standing open at bottom impossible. As perfect extended as when closed.
- In extending a "Twin" to 6 ft. the tops open without spreading pedestals. Prevents marring of finish on legs. If extended farther than this the pedestals spread, giving the most rigid support possible without exposing unfinished surfaces, locks, bolts, etc., as in the case with the single pedestal tables, a feature worthy of your attention, especially when entertaining friends at luncheon or if table is continually used, in the extended position.
- "Twins" are made in numerous designs and finishes.
