

WIN TEN IN-NING GAME

Port Washington Columbias Defeated by Locals in a Very Fast and Interesting Game Last Sunday

HEPPE WAS IN GRAND FORM

Heppes of the Locals Pitched Great Ball All Through the Game. Tomorrow the Locals Will Meet Fond du Lac on the Home Grounds.

In the most interesting and fastest game of baseball ever played in this village, the locals on last Sunday defeated the Port Washington Columbias by the close score of 6 to 5 in a ten inning game. The Columbias are known to be the fastest amateur teams in the state. Fiedler of Milwaukee and Berger of Port Washington did the umpiring, and as a whole gave entire satisfaction throughout the game.

The game started but for Kewaskum, the visitors scoring three runs in the first inning on two hits and a few errors. Not one of the runs being earned. The locals, however, came back in their half with two runs. Schaefer first up was an easy out. Derse drew a pass was advanced to second on a hit by P. Urban and forced to third when Fohey was allowed first on four balls. Olin next up made a hit which scored Derse and Urban. Miller was an easy out. The locals again scored in the second and third, making the score 4 to 3 in their favor. The Columbias tied the score in the fifth and took the lead in the seventh. The locals came back again in the ninth tying the score and won it in the tenth.

NOTES
Schaefer secured three hits out of five times at bat. Olin is some fielder. He certainly covers some ground. Romaine and Altenhofen exchanged places in the fifth. Altenhofen made a grand catch in right garden in the ninth. Fohey grabbed a nice one in the ninth, which helped save the game. Heppes was in perfect form. Urban on the receiving end did excellent work. Derse and Fohey are some help. The combination of the locals is now hard to beat. Romaine received the glad hand from the audience when he made a spectacular catch in right field with one hand. Hoska batted for Miller in the tenth, but the best he could do was to be an easy out. Koopman relieved Miller at the pitching end for the visitors in the ninth. Who should we give credit for winning the game? Although the hit that Miller made in the tenth scored the winning run, credit must be given to the entire team. Fohey and Derse, the two hard hitters had to be contented with the no hit record. Their new club which they purchased was the hoodoo. Perhaps they will make up for it next Sunday. To-morrow, Sunday, the locals will cross bats with Fond du Lac on the home grounds. The game with Port Washington Columbias has been postponed to a future date. The Fond du Lac bunch is one of the fastest amateur teams in the state. Every fan is requested to be present and root for the home team.

ALLEGED YEGGS BATTLE POLICE

Four Wanted for Attempted Postoffice Burglary Taken From Soo Train.

WOMEN WITNESS FIGHT

Sleuths Overpower Notorious Safeblowers and Capture Kit of Tools.

(Chicago Tribune)
Four alleged safe blowers suspected of attempting to rob the postoffice at Kewaskum Wis., last Tuesday night were taken off a passenger train of the Soo line Wednesday at Forest Park. The suspects resisted arrest and the struggle that ensued caused a small panic among the women passengers. Those arrested were: William Houlihan, alias "Bid" Houlihan, 59 years old, 1766 West Fifteenth street; William Burns, alias "Baily" 25 years old, 22 East Eighteenth street; Daniel Murphy, 58 years old, Alhambra hotel; James Moor, 30 years old, Kansas City. They were taken to Capt. Halpin and later turned over to the federal authorities and arranged before United States Commissioner Mark A. Foote, who held them in bonds of $10,000 each. They were locked up in the county jail in default of bonds.

TIP COMES IN TELEGRAM
Their capture was made possible by a telegram received from Fond du Lac early in the day by Postoffice Inspector James E. Stuart. The authorities there had been notified by Arthur W. Koch of Kewaskum to be on the lookout for four men who broke into the village postoffice and attempted to blow the safe. The attempt failed.

Postoffice Inspector E. E. Fraser and Detectives McGurk, Kelly, McCarthy, and Cikanek, from Capt Halpin's office, were detailed to intercept the train at Forest Park. Moore was found in the day coach and the other three were in the smoking car. They were covered with revolvers. Moore put up the stiffest fight. It took three policemen to subdue him. The suspects were heavily armed with magazine guns and army colt revolvers.

FRASER SAFEBLOWERS' KIT
Fraser seized a satchel the men carried. In this was found a complete kit of safe blowers' tools, two bottles of nitro glycerine, drills and fuses. Murphy and Burns are suspected of being implicated in a postoffice robbery at Horicon, Wis., a month ago. Inspector Stuart said Houlihan has served two penitentiary terms for postoffice robberies.

EXTRA BUY ENTIRE STOCK

A. L. Rosenheimer and J. B. Day Purchase Entire Stock of Campbellsport Co-Operative Store

TRANSACTION CLOSED ON THURSDAY
On Thursday evening A. L. Rosenheimer and J. B. Day, the well known real estate men from the village, purchased the entire general merchandise stock of the Campbellsport Co-Operative Store, located at Campbellsport, Wisconsin.

The Co-Operative company was a concern composed of farmers from the vicinity of Campbellsport. Early last winter they purchased the stock of M. McCullough of Campbellsport, but on account of some litigation business was never transacted, hence the store closed. The new owners are unable to state at the present time their future intentions as to what they will do with the stock. They however state that the store will be re-opened in the very near future.

INTERURBAN LINE TALKED OF AGAIN

Fond du Lac to be Center of Big System. Line to Run Through Kewaskum

With the purchase of the Lewis house property, together with the two store buildings at No. 13 and 15 North Main street at 4 o'clock on Fond du Lac last week, the Eastern Wisconsin Railway & Light company took the first step toward making Fond du Lac the hub of a great interurban system.

Fond du Lac, it is understood, is to be made the central point of a great interurban system extending from Milwaukee on the south to Green Bay on the north. Fond du Lac is already connected by interurban with Green Bay and work on the line to the south, to connect with Milwaukee will begin within a year or so, the route having been surveyed some time ago. An interurban line to connect Fond du Lac with Madison and Brandon is also contemplated and will probably be built within the course of the next few years.

The plan to make Fond du Lac the "hub" of a great interurban system in this part of Wisconsin has been proposed many times, but the purchase of the old Lewis house property, on which the Eastern Wisconsin Railway & Light company proposes to erect a modern public service building and terminal, is the first real step taken in the matter.

Lecture in Temperance Hall
A superb stereopticon Lecture depicting the history, activity and achievements of the German Evangelical Synod of N. A. was given in the Temperance hall last night Friday, July 11th. The lecture was very interesting, instructive, and inspiring. It was a new, novel and authentic lecture lasting one hour. There were one hundred and twenty superb views of original photographs from the home and foreign mission fields, seminaries, Sunday schools, hospitals, and asylums, publishing houses and also views of the recent flood in Ohio.

A Very Quiet Fourth
The Fourth this year was the quietest ever held in this village. Although a picnic was held in the North Side Park, the attendance was very small, which was due to the fact that a large number of the citizens together with people from the vicinity attended the homecoming celebration at West Bend. The dance in the North Side park hall in the evening of the Fourth was largely attended, nearly two hundred dance tickets were sold. The dance in the South Side park hall on the evening of the Fifth was also fairly well attended.

POSTOFFICE ROBBERS IN VILLAGE

Burglars Enter the Local Post Office, But Do a Bungling Job. Nothing Taken.

ESCAPE WITH STOLEN RIG

A Team of Horses Belonging to Grell & Wollensak Are Taken. Horses are Found Near Fond du Lac.

Burglars broke into the post office in this village during Tuesday night, and escaped with a team of horses and rig, which they stole from the Grell & Wollensak creamery barn. The team was found at Calvary cemetery at Fond du Lac early Wednesday morning. They were tired and jaded and bore the marks of a hard night drive. They were found abandoned by one of the men employed at the creamery. The horses had evidently been driven into the field in the rear of the cemetery and left there. The rig was brought back to this village by Otto Backhaus.

The veggmen did a bungling job in this village. They entered the post office building by prying open a rear window. They then attempted to drill through the vault door, but failing to open it in this way, knocked off the combination with a sledge hammer, which was found on the floor beside the vault. This hammer was stolen from the A. A. Perschbacher blacksmith.

They then drilled another hole in the door. This second attempt to force the door was also unsuccessful, as after the vault door was opened late in the afternoon by an expert from Milwaukee, it was found that nothing was disturbed. The post office records and stamps and some change was all in the safe in the vault. It was estimated by Postmaster Arthur Koch that the amount of stamps on hand amounted to over $600. There was also about $50 in change. All of the drawers in the various desks of the office were rifled, even a revolver which was securely hid was found by the veggmen and left on the distributing counter.

The burglary was discovered by Assistant Postmaster Ervin Koch shortly after 8 a. m. after he opened the post office to distribute the morning mail. He at once notified the local authorities and Postmaster Arthur Koch notified the postal authorities at Chicago. It was learned on Thursday morning that the authorities at Chicago captured four suspects. An account of their capture is given elsewhere.

As the veggmen hampered with the vault door it was impossible for the post office authorities here to open same, consequently no stamps or records could be used, as all were in the safe. Postmaster Koch, as once telephoned for a supply of stamps from Campbellsport, which arrived here at 10 A. M. No money orders were issued until after the opening of the vault.

The vault was opened at 4 P. M. by an expert from Milwaukee. It was found necessary to break the lock, which took about 10 minutes. A new lock was placed on the door by him. The expert stated that the men who were known for about one and one-half hours.

That the veggmen were frightened is self evident. Miss Frieda Bilgo gives about the most correct story. She happened to attend the Klimes dance at St. Kilian that night and arrived home at about 2 A. M. She resides just opposite the post office building. When coming home she noticed a rig in front of the building, but paid no attention to same, after entering her home she heard some men get on the rig and drive away. The veggmen no doubt thought that Miss Bilgo would give the alarm so they thought best to make their escape beforehand.

This is no doubt the second attempt made to rob the local post office. Everyone well remembers the time when Marshal Brandt captured Collier with a complete outfit. The gang hailed from Chicago and are supposed to be notorious post office robbers. Collier at present is serving time at Waupun.

Daylight Robbers
Last Sunday afternoon during the absence of Chas. Raether and his family, living two miles north of this village, Mr. Raether's farm residence was entered and several articles stolen. The burglar entered the house through the basement door. He made his getaway with a new coat, three rings, a watch, a revolver and several small articles. The burglary was first noticed Monday evening, when Mr. Raether found an old coat, upon further investigation he found that his house had been entered and several articles stolen.

It was a meeting that was very well attended, about 65 voters and taxpayers being present. The meeting was called to order by Director N. J. Mertes, who also read the call for the meeting. F. C. SOLONS VOTE FOR FORESTRY PROBE

WHITESIDE BILL CALLING FOR INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE WINS IN SENATE.

HOME RULE BILL IS PASSED

Measure Giving Additional Powers to All Cities of State Wins in Upper House and Goes to Governor—Mineral Rights Resolution Is Voted.

Madison.—The senate passed the Whiteside bill, by a vote of 19 to 10, providing for a legislative committee of five assemblymen, appointed by the speaker of the assembly, and three senators, appointed by the president of the senate, to investigate forestry conditions in the state, and prohibiting the purchase of additional lands for forestry purposes until July 1, 1915. The bill was recently passed by the assembly. This does not mean that the legislature desires to overturn the forestry policy of the state adopted ten years ago, rather it is a suspension of certain features of forestry activities pending an investigation.

RATE CASE GOING TO COURT

Express Companies Operating in Wisconsin File Notice of Appeal from Commissioner's Order.

Madison.—Notice of an appeal to the same county circuit court to attempt to overturn the decision of the railroad commission in the express cases has been served upon Attorney General Owen. The notice asks for the setting aside of the order on the ground that the decision is confiscatory and a temporary restraining order is asked for to deter the railroad commission from putting the order into effect.

Computations made by experts indicate that the recent decision of the railroad commission in these cases would save the public upwards of $100,000 annually. Under the railroad commission decision the express order would go into effect July 15. Five days after the notice is served a hearing must be given in the circuit court to determine if the temporary injunction should be granted. The express cases were originally started by the Merchants and Manufacturers Association of Milwaukee, but later the commission issued a general order against all companies operating in the state.

Boy Killed by Elevator. Marinette.—Edwin Goodfellow, aged 17, was crushed to death in an elevator of the Lauerman Bros. department store. He was in charge and stepped out of the elevator when it started to ascend. He grabbed for the ropes and was carried up the shaft, with his body hanging from the elevator floor until he was crushed to death between the car floor and shaft.

Well-Known Educator Dead. Walter Allen, a leading educator in Milwaukee for more than a quarter of a century, is dead after an illness of two years. Mr. Allen came to Milwaukee thirty years ago from Lake Geneva to take the principalship of the Twelfth district school. Previously he had been principal of the Ripon and Lake Geneva high schools.

Progressives Not on Ballot. Madison.—Attorney General Owen advised, in an unofficial opinion, that the National Progressive party is not entitled to have a party column on the ballot but may have a separate party ticket for state and national officers in the primary. The reasoning upon which this view depends is the fact that the party did not have a candidate for governor last fall.

Will Study Foreign Markets. Madison.—Dr. Charles M. McCarthy, with several eastern experts, will leave at the close of the legislative session for Europe to study market problems.

Body Found in Woods. Wausau.—The body of Anton Kemp, a farmer of Harrison, was found in the woods near the county road. Kemp was a bachelor and had been in poor health.

Hand Shake Breaks Arm. Reedsburg.—Andrew A. Jansen returned from the Gettysburg celebration with a broken arm. He broke the limb last spring and when greeted by a comrade whom he had not seen for fifty years it was broken again.

Jefferson Brewer Dead. Jefferson.—Rudolph Heger of Jefferson, who made the trip to Europe with the Milwaukee German singers, died in a New York hospital, where he was taken when the steamer reached port.

Auto Rides on Engine Pilot. Grand Rapids.—E. S. Jostly of Oshkosh rode into this city on the pilot of a 300 line engine, in his automobile. The machine had been struck and hoisted on the cowcatcher without Mr. Jostly being thrown from his seat.

LAMAR, THE 'VILLAIN'

TELLS LOBBY PROBERS HE IS 'THE ONE BAD MAN OF WALL STREET.'

BODY SURPRISED BY TALK

Witness Declares "That All the Rest of Them Are Good and Innocent"—Says He Makes Statement and Not Testimony.

Washington, July 10.—David Lamar resumed the stand before the senate lobby committee on Tuesday at his taking up the recital of the motives back of his relations with Lauterbach. "I realize perfectly that my life and character are on trial," he began. He argued that his testimony and Lauterbach's bad show they were not engaged in any effort to get money from anyone.

Lamar surprised the committee with some of his bold statements. "I am the one villain in Wall street. I am the one bad man there, and all the rest of them are good and innocent," he said, explaining why he had impersonated Palmer and Riordan and why he had sent Lauterbach to Ledyard with a "political arrangement" designed to head off the steel trust litigation.

Lamar then told Chairman Overman and other members of the committee that he had perfect confidence in them and said his purpose in calling attention to an alleged forgery of $2,000,000 in the books of the Union Pacific and his exposition of the situation existing between the financial interests and himself and Lauterbach was to compel these men to recognize the folly of their course against Lauterbach. If they did not do so he hoped to compel them to come out in the open and display the conspiracy and the surreptitious statements "they had circulated against us in New York for years." "Part of this has been accomplished," he concluded.

Referring to the impersonation of Representative D. J. Riordan two years ago, Lamar swore that he told Charles Steele of J. P. Morgan & Co. two days after the conversation that he had impersonated Riordan.

Washington, July 9.—Edward Lauterbach confessed to the Overman lobby inquiry committee on Tuesday that he had told Lewis Cass Ledyard that he was able to prevent or head off the congressional investigation of the steel trust.

Lauterbach admitted that when he told Ledyard of coming to Washington "to look over the situation" he had actually seen no member of the house or senate nor any other official. He said he had learned "that President Taft was opposed to the investigation" from Lamar and Henry B. Martin, secretary of the Anti-Trust league.

"Then your statement to Ledyard that you had been to Washington and learned things that prompted you to say the investigation could be stopped was a falsehood," demanded Senator Reed.

"It was an exaggeration," replied Lauterbach.

EMPLOYES FAVOR RAIL STRIKE

Officials of Erie Railroad Announce That They Are Unable to Meet Any Advance in Wages.

New York, July 10.—Ninety-four per cent of the members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and of the Order of Railway Conductors out of 76,982 participating in a strike vote in the wage dispute with the eastern railroads are in favor of a strike. These figures were announced on Tuesday at a joint meeting of union representatives and a committee of railroad managers.

The Erie railroad says that it is willing to consider wages and conditions of individuals, but will not agree to a general increase for any class of employees at the sacrifice of needed safety appliances and improved equipment.

RAND RIOTS RENEWED TO PROBE FAILURES

REIGN OF TERROR CONTINUES IN JOHANNESBURG.

Government's Effort to Quiet Strike Disturbance in Gold District Ineffective.

Johannesburg, July 8.—The strike among the gold miners in the Rand district, which the government arranged to settle with a committee, has proved ineffective.

The mobs reassembled late Sunday. All trains and street cars suspended service, the crews refusing to work. No newspapers were able to issue editions. Additional troops guarded the Rand club, the scene of serious encounters Saturday. A great mob assembled there, hooting and jeering the troops.

Up to midnight there had been no serious trouble, but armed police everywhere were guarding property.

The recall of the governor general of the Union of South Africa, Viscount Gladstone, is demanded by the Federated Trades Unions. At a meeting of 1,200 delegates it was unanimously resolved to petition the imperial government to take this action because the governor general employed troops to suppress the strike.

The opinion is very general that the government has made serious blunders throughout the present trying situation. When Gen. Louis Botha, the premier of the Union of South Africa, and General Smuts, minister of the interior, mines and defense, arrived at Johannesburg they were amazed at the strikers' organization and the desperate spirit of the leaders.

A great crowd of strikers wearing red badges surrounded the Carlton hotel where the terms of settlement were being arranged. When the strike leaders announced from the balcony that a settlement had been agreed to they were greeted with shouts of: "What about the dead?" "You've been bought!"

Bloodiest Fighting in All Balkan War Revealed in Report of Disaster to Serbian Army.

London, July 8.—After ten days of fighting, more severe and deadly in character than any in the last Balkan war, light begins to break upon the hitherto obscure operations.

The Servians have lost more men than in the whole previous campaign, and semi-official statements issued at Belgrade have the appearance of an intention to prepare the public for news of a disaster.

A Belgrade dispatch describing the five days' operations between Vardar and Kvitvolak says that after holding a greatly superior force in check the Servians were obliged to retire. Thus Kvitvolak fell into the hands of the Bulgarians. It contends, however, that this Bulgarian success was insignificant compared with the Servian successes against the Bulgarian right wing.

Another semi-official communication says the Servians lost 15,000 killed and wounded and the Bulgarians 20,000. The Bulgarian losses were increased by the poor organization of their Red Cross service and lack of communication and transports. Their wounded were left on the battlefield and the dead were unburied.

There is heavy fighting also between the Servians and Bulgarians to the south of Istip and in the neighborhood of Kotechna. About 200,000 men are engaged and the losses on both sides appear to be terrible.

The president extended clemency when he was assured by eminent physicians that imprisonment would only hasten the convicted man's death which would occur before many months. DISHES TO TRY.

When a change is desired from the ordinary frozen dishes, Grape Sherbet will be worth preparing. Soak half a box of gelatine in cold water to cover, half an hour; cover with a cup of boiling water and let stand in a warm place until thoroughly dissolved. Boil two pints of water with one of sugar and a pint of grape juice, the juice of two lemons and the dissolved gelatine. Cool and freeze. Serve in small glasses on grape leaves.

Dutch Rabbit.—Prepare the rabbit and put an onion inside; put it into a baking pan and pour over it a cup full of water. Cover with another pan and bake with the following mixture: A tablespoonful of currant jelly, half a cup of vinegar, a tablespoonful of fresh butter and a teaspoonful of prepared mustard. Serve with baked onions and brown gravy.

Roast Duck and Rice.—Stuff the duck with five apples, five onions, four leaves of sage and thyme, fry brown in three tablespoonfuls of butter, add sufficient boiled rice to make of the consistency to handle, season with salt, celery seed and cayenne. Roast, basting often.

Tutti Frutti Pudding.—This is a very rich pudding and should be served in very small portions: Use half a cup of beef suet chopped fine, one-half cup of butter, one cup of maple sirup, half a cup of sugar, one cup of sour cream into which has been stirred a teaspoonful of soda, two eggs (whites and yolks beaten separately); fold in a cup of flour, a cup of Graham and a teaspoonful of cream of tartar sifted with the flour. Lightly flour a third of a cup of candied cherries, a half cup of raisins, a fourth of a cup of citron and a half cup of almond meats. Mix into the mixture and steam in small molds for two hours. A hard sauce flavored with nutmeg is good for this pudding.

Cherry Ice.—Put and crush two quarts of cherries, sprinkle with a quart of sugar, add the crushed kernels of a dozen cherries and let them stand two hours; add a pint of water, press through a strainer and nearly freeze. When partly frozen, add the whites of two eggs beaten stiff. Serve in glasses with fresh cherries to garnish.

The importance of scientific cookery has hardly been exaggerated. Intellectual labor is, in its origin, as dependent upon the art of cookery as the dissemination of its results is dependent upon paper-making and printing.

SUMMER DESSERTS.

There are any number of flavors and kinds of gelatine desserts on the market which, by the addition of boiling water, are ready, when cold, to serve with cream and sugar. These desserts are good and easy to prepare and have two qualifications which make them popular; but one tires of things too easy and unvaried.

Banana Cream.—Beat the whites of two eggs slightly, and add one-fourth of a cup of powdered sugar and, gradually, three-fourths of a cup of hot cream. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until the mixture thickens, then add two tablespoonfuls of gelatine soaked in half a cup of cold water and two-thirds of a cup of sugar. Of ice water and add the mashed pulp of four bananas and one tablespoonful of lemon juice. Stir until the mixture begins to thicken, then fold in the whip from three and a half cups of cream. Turn into a mild and chill thoroughly.

Fragrant Pie.—Make and roll out to a fourth of an inch in thickness a good rich pastry. Cut the size of layer cake, using a pan for a market. Bake three of these crusts and put them together with sweetened, flavored whipped cream. Any fruit may be added to the cream, if desired, or nuts may be used for variety. Strawberries are especially nice for this pie. A cupful of berries crushed and added to the cream makes a delicious flavor.

Fruit Blanc Mange.—Mix well two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch and half a cup of sugar, add to a pint of hot milk and cook until smooth, thick and the raw taste of the starch is removed, then add a beaten egg, and when cold pour over any fruit. Serve with cream or a thin custard.

CAPITAL STIRRED BY LAMAR STORY

New York Broker Admits Having Posed as Various Congressmen.

INQUIRY PLANNED BY HJUSE

Lamar Tells Amazing Story of His Activities in Lobby Work—$32,000,000 Fraud in Union Pacific is Charged.

Washington, July 5.—Extraordinary developments occurred in the lobby situation in the house of representatives and before the senate lobby committee. They were:

A brazen confession by one David Lamar, who admitted this name to be an alias and who described himself as a New York operator in stocks, that he had impersonated members of congress in behalf of the employment of Edward Lauterbach, a New York lawyer, to prevent national legislation hostile to big financial interests.

A detailed charge by Lamar that the Union Pacific company's books had been forged in 1901 on an item covering $32,000,000, one of the results of which, he alleged, was that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the late E. H. Harriman amassed enormous fortunes.

Denials by Congressman Sherley of Kentucky, Calder of New York, Webb of North Carolina, and Bartholdt of Missouri on the floor of the house of representatives that they had had any connection whatsoever with or that they had been controlled or influenced in the slightest degree by the National Association of Manufacturers or its agents.

Demands by these congressmen and others for an immediate investigation of the Mulhall revelations by a special committee to be created by the house.

Reference of these several resolutions to the committee on rules, with instructions to report a comprehensive resolution on Saturday next calling for a thorough investigation of all lobbying operations directed on members of the house.

Witness Enjoys Own Tale.

Lamar, or whatever his real name may be (and the committee proposes to force him to reveal it before he is finally excused), deserves study by psychological experts. As if he were telling a joke the whole country would relish he smilingly related his telephone conversations with presidents of and counsel for the Union Pacific Railroad company, the Standard Oil company, the United Cigars company, and others, all designed to bring about the employment of Lauterbach as their legislative agent.

At one time he said he was Congressman Palmer, at another Congressman McCormack of the national Democratic committee endeavoring to make an arrangement with Chairman Hilles of the Republican party to benefit through pressure on senators and congressmen the interests with which Hilles now is associated.

He impersonated so many congressmen that he could not remember them all.

Claims He Aided Public.

His sole motive, he claimed, was to impress the big financiers with the ability of his friend Lauterbach. Nor was Mr. Lauterbach the sole beneficiary of his philanthropic conduct. The American people, he declared, were heavily in his debt, for he had saved them the tidy little sum of $30,000,000 in connection with the reorganization of the Union Pacific in 1897. For this patriotic act he said that he and the late Russell Sage, with whom he cooperated, were denounced as a "pair of conscienceless blackmailers."

But this was not all of Mr. Lamar's disinterested service for others. He told how James R. Keene and his son-in-law and some friends acquired $12,000,000 of the stock of the Union Pacific, how he took measures to save them.

He told how "the golden moment" for which he was working arrived, and how Mr. Keene failed to grasp it when he told him to do so, with the result that Keene lost the greater part of his fortune, and the firm of which Keene's son-in-law was the head was forced to suspend.

Tells of "War" on Lauterbach.

And then, touchingly, he described how J. Pierpont Morgan, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and E. H. Harriman, forced into consolidation of their interests by the panic of 1907, determined to starve Mr. Lauterbach out in the practice of his profession and bring about his ostracism from the business and professional world.

The price of the withdrawal of their opposition was that Lauterbach should have nothing further to do with the witness, Lamar. Magnanimously Lamar offered to release Lauterbach, but the latter magnanimously refused.

"But, Mr. Chairman," continued Lamar, in the most convincing tone, "it was most distressing to me to see the mental condition of my friend, to see the low estate into which he was falling in the practice of his profession, and the curtailment of his income. I would have done anything in my power to change that to any ameliorate those conditions."

"I realize perfectly that I could not talk with these men directly. Their hatred and dislike of me was so bitter that they would not even confer with me on any subject."

Overheard on the Train.

"O, that's the oldest story in the world. Noah told it to his boys in the ark."

"Yes, old chap; I know it's a chestnut; only new stories are the ones you tell."

"Well—er—it's a fact that I generally do get hold of the freshest ones."

Alps' Tell of Human Life.

ter that they would not even confer with me on any subject. "And it is perfectly true, therefore, that for the purpose of endeavoring to restore the condition of former friendship and harmony that had existed between Mr. Lauterbach and the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and Mr. Schiff, I did, using the names of other persons, have a number of conversations over the telephone with men connected with the Union Pacific company."

Testimony Given by Lamar.

Lamar, when he first took the stand this morning, admitted he was the man mentioned in the testimony of Robert S. Lovett as having called Wall Street financiers on the telephone and impersonated congressmen.

He then gave a history of his alleged dealings with financiers and railroad magnates. In 1897, he said, the late Russell Sage authorized him to proceed to compel the Union Pacific to pay the government $38,000,000 in bonds owing it. Lamar, with Senator Foraker, came to Washington and conferred with President McKinley.

"We were charged with being a pair of conscienceless blackmailers," Lamar said, "but that had no effect on us."

When Sage retired from business in 1901, on Sage's recommendation, Lamar said, he became associated with James R. Keene. Lamar said he warned Keene when the latter was buying Union Pacific stock, that the railroad would ruin him to get revenge for Lamar's previous activity.

He detailed how, when Keene and his associates had $43,000,000 in Union Pacific, he took steps to enjoin the voting of certain stock so that E. H. Harriman would be compelled to buy Keene's stock at a high figure. With Keene's approval he retained Lauterbach's law firm and paid $25,000. Lauterbach and Lamar came to Washington, paid Foraker a fee, and engaged him.

When the injunction was finally decided against Keene, Union Pacific went down and Keene and his friends lost most of their fortunes.

Tells of Phone Talks.

"As the result of the panic of 1907," said Lamar, "Harriman, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the National City bank, and Morgan & Co. became bound together as with an iron band."

"For the purpose of doing my friend, Lauterbach, a service," he said, "and to restore him to his former friendly relation with Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Jacob Schiff and the Union Pacific officials, and others, did have conversations with Union Pacific officials, and in those conversations I did use the names of other persons. But there was no suggestion of a fee to Mr. Lauterbach. On the strength of these telephone messages Mr. Lovett came here and charged that Edward Lauterbach had tried to blackmail him."

The Lauterbach incident, added, "paled into insignificance," compared with an $32,000,000 forgery which he alleged was committed on the Union Pacific books in 1901.

"I don't know who did it," said Lamar, "the chairman of the board or the office boy, but I do know this $32,000,000 was the fulcrum which enabled Harriman and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. to gain control of these corporations."

Tells Story of "Forgery."

He described a double entry of $32,000,000 representing securities the Union Pacific assumed in taking over the Oregon Short Line and the Oregon Railway and Navigation company. The items, he said, were carried in the "consolidated balance sheet" of the Union Pacific June 30, 1900, but between that time and June 30, 1901, he alleged, some one had erased the $32,000,000 item from one side of the ledger, leaving it as a credit balance on the other side.

"They took all the securities of the Oregon Short Line and the Oregon Railway and Navigation," he said, "and used them as security for an issue of bonds. They got that money and used it to finance the deal for the Northern Pacific and Great Northern transactions and the flotation of Great Northern Ore properties, which they sold out at an enormous profit."

Later, Lamar alleged, the principals in the transaction went to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and secretly set nearly $200,000,000, which he believed was for their own use.

Denial Made by Cravath.

Immediately after Lamar had finished this phase of the story, Paul D. Cravath, counsel for the Union Pacific railroad put in this reply:

"In view of the statement regarding the account of the Union Pacific Railroad company which David Lamar has gone out of his way to make before this committee, and inasmuch as persons not familiar with David Lamar's character, who may read this statement in the newspapers, may be misled thereby I deem it my duty to make the following statement for the records of the committee:

"For several days persons connected with the Union Pacific Railroad company have been informed that an effort was being made to circulate and secure publication of a prepared story about an alleged falsification of the accounts of the Union Pacific company involving $70,000,000 or $50,000,000 of its surplus."

"We were informed, in substance, that this story was so palpably false and scandalous and so plainly offered for an improper purpose, that the newspapers would not publish it. Information then came that the story would soon be made public in such a way that the newspapers would have to publish it."

"It now appears that the medium for the publication of this story was to be this man David Lamar, who has confessed himself to be the most unconscionable of liars of modern times."

Rara Avis.

"A likeable fellow, Wigley. Everybody seems to have a good word for him. What do you suppose is the secret charm about him that attracts so?"

"Oh, I dunno. Maybe it's because he's one of the common people and it's always so modest about it."

GREAT DAMAGE IS RESULT OF STORM

SOUTHERN WISCONSIN SWEEP BY A DESTRUCTIVE WIND AND DELUGE.

HAIL HITS TOBACCO CROP

Janesville, Beloit and Madison Light Plants Are Put Out of Commission and Interurban Traffic Halted—Small Buildings Blown Over.

Janesville.—Thousands of dollars' worth of damage was done to growing crops in Rock county by a storm which swept over this section of the state. For a half hour the city was in entire darkness until lights were turned on owing to the intense blackness of the clouds. The main streets of the city were impassable during the fury of the storm, running perfect rivers several feet deep down the side hills. Hail ruined thousands of dollars' worth of tobacco and corn, and the wind blew down windmills, tobacco sheds and unroofed houses. All interurban traffic was suspended.

Madison.—A heavy wind, hail and rain storm struck Madison and vicinity lasting nearly an hour and doing much damage to property. Small buildings were blown over, trees blown down, street car traffic stopped and telephone and telegraph lines put out of commission. The wind blew at forty-five miles an hour and nearly a inch and a half of water fell. The hail and heavy rain did thousands of dollars in damage to tobacco and other growing crops.

Beloit.—High winds, much rain and heavy hail were part of a great storm which struck this city. Much damage was done to the growing crops and by the lightning, which struck repeatedly in this city and vicinity. The storm was preceded by a period of intense darkness. In the midst of the storm all of the electric lights and street cars went out of commission, while many of the telegraph and telephone wires were blown down.

LEGISLATURE WORKS AGAIN

A Calendar of Seventy-four Bills Awaiting Senate When It Resumes Sessions.

Madison.—After nearly two weeks of inaction the senate met on July 8 to take up the work of legislation where the assembly left off before July 4.

A long calendar of seventy-four bills awaited consideration, most of them, however, of minor importance. The most important measures on the schedule are the Ballis bill authorizing the Wolf River Improvement company to build dams on the Wolf river; the sterilization bill, the Martin anti-lobby law, appropriation for the board of control, and the bill amending the workmen's compensation act.

COL. G. E. TOWNSEND DEAD

He believed himself to be, and probably was, the only survivor who attended the session of the first Wisconsin territorial legislature at Belmont in 1836. He was remarkably well preserved and did not look to be over 65.

Thousands of dollars' damage was done to growing crops in this immediate vicinity, grain being laid low over a wide expanse of territory. Many windmills were demolished by wind, while dozens of farmhouses were unroofed and fences blown down.

The greatest damage in this city was done along the river front, where many bathhouses were destroyed and launched were blown upon the shore. Trees eighteen inches in diameter were broken off close to the ground. One of the new factory buildings of the La Crosse Plow company was demolished.

BUDGET TO TOTAL TWENTY MILLION

HUGE SUM APPROPRIATED TO PAY RUNNING EXPENSES OF WISCONSIN.

ONE BILL YET TO BE PASSED

Estimated Receipts for Next Two Years Will Be Largely in Excess of All Expenditures, However—Four Large Bills Get Bulk of Money.

Madison.—The appropriation bills that will be passed by the present legislature will total $20,000,000 for the next biennial period. The total receipts for the same period, from all sources, will total $21,400,000. Of this sum about $11,000,000 will be returned to the towns, counties and school districts.

The total appropriations and total receipts are to some extent estimated. Until the session closes it can not be known exactly what the appropriations are. The receipts, too, can not, as yet be exactly known, but they will differ but little from the figures given.

Both appropriations and receipts include everything connected with the state finances. Each represents everything that will be paid out and all income from all sources that will be received. Of the latter, as stated, about one-third is returned directly to the towns and counties, the state treasury being merely a junction point or clearing house.

The appropriations already made, or contained in bills passed and the three big appropriation bills passed by the assembly this week, total about $17,500,000 for the biennial period. There is still to come one other big appropriation bill for the state departments, which will carry about $1,000,000.

This, with other appropriations, will bring the total up to nearly if not quite $20,000,000. Two-thirds of this is carried in the four large appropriation bills—the university and normals, the state penal and charitable institutions, the state departments, and the highways. The remainder is made up of odds and ends.

CATTLE DISEASE A MYSTERY

Malady Makes Appearance Over Night and Animals Are Starved and Choked to Death.

Grand Rapids.—A new and strange disease is attacking cattle in the vicinity of this city. It has proven fatal to almost every animal that has contracted it and veterinarians have been unable to check the growth of the disease after it has secured a grip on an animal. A cow may be all right when milked at night and the following morning be found with a huge swelling under the neck, unable to eat and apparently choking. It is thought it is the same disease which attacked cattle in Massachusetts several years ago and for which no cure has been discovered. The only fact known in regard to the malady is that it is contagious.

GIRL CLUBBED WITH PISTOL

Chippewa Falls Miss May Die as Result of Beating Received from Youth.

Chippewa Falls.—Raymond Short, 18 years old, is in jail here, charged with entering the home of Roderick McPhee, the next door neighbor, going to a bedroom occupied by McPhee's three daughters, and attacking Miss Mauretta with a revolver. It is claimed he attempted to shoot the girl and the revolver cylinder failed to work. He then turned the gun and bent her over the head until she was insensible. Short ran from the house and barricaded himself in his father's barn, where he was later captured by the police. It is thought the girl will die.

Takes Much Tetanus Serum.

Oshkosh.—William Milbriet of Anherst, who is being treated for lock jaw here, has had 54,000 units of tetanus antitoxin injected into his system and is recovering. The cost of this serum was $75 and it is over thirty times the usual dose given.

Green Bay to Have Auto Club.

Green Bay.—An automobile club is about to be formed in Green Bay, the motorists to join with members of the yacht club and have a clubhouse on the bay.

Injured by Cannon Explosion.

Green Bay.—Edward Wrynski of Pulaski was brought to the hospital here in a critical condition as a result of the premature explosion of a cannon on the Fourth.

Gift for Bridesmaids.

How Milady Wears Her Belt.

It hangs on. It is so loose. It fairly sags in back. They fasten at the waist line. But only a few inches in front. Then they really hang down at the back.

Wardrobe Stand for the Baby.

From a book rack of natural bamboo fitted with boxes whose covers are altered into lids which work on ribbon hinges can be evolved a very pretty wardrobe for the baby. The cardboard receptacles for the three lower shelves are covered at sides and top with strips of white crash worked with a floral design done in pale green crevels, and inside are padded with sachet-scented white cotton batting, overlaid with fine white linen. These three boxes with accommodate all the alpins and petticoats of the baby.

Skyscraper hat of black English straw with ostrich fancies overshadowing the high crown.

New Sleeveless Coats.

Some curious sleeveless coats are being worn. These are taken over back and front like scalpers, but they are not cut on quite such straight lines. The sides are entirely cut out until toward the hem, where the back and front are continued round to button over and meet each other. A belt, which is often of black satin and matches the collar, holds the coat down at the back, then passes under the material, showing again at the sides, and is continued over the front.

SECRET SERVICE

BEING THE HAPPENINGS OF A NIGHT IN RICHMOND IN THE SPRING OF 1865

THE PLAY BY WILLIAM GILLETTE; BY CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY ILLUSTRATIONS BY EDGAR BERT SMITH

COPYRIGHT 1912 BY DODD, MEAD AND COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Varney, wife of a Confederate general, has lost one son and another is dying from wounds. She reluctantly gives her consent for Wilfred, the youngest, to join the army. His father consents. The federalists are making their last assault in an effort to capture Richmond. Edith Varney secures from President Davis a commission for Capt. Thorne, who is just recovering from wounds, as chief of the telegraph at Richmond. Capt. Thorne tells Edith he has been ordered away. She declares he must not go and tells him of the commission from the president. He is strangely agitated and declares he cannot accept. Thorne decides to escape while Edith leaves the room to get the commission, but is prevented by the arrival of Caroline Mifflord, Wilfred's sweetheart. Mr. Arrelsford of the Confederate secret service, a rejected suitor of Edith's, detects Jonas, Mrs. Varney's butler, carrying a note from a prisoner in Libby prison. Arrelsford suspects it is intended for Thorne. The note reads: "Attack tonight. Plan is to use telegraph." Arrelsford declares Thorne is Lewis Dumont of the Federal secret service and that his brother Henry is a prisoner in Libby.

"His character?—What did he come from—what is he?"

"For that matter," said Edith intensely, "where did you come from, and what are you?"

"That is not the question," was the abrupt reply.

"Neither," said the girl, "is it the question who he is. If he were, I'd answer it—I'd tell you that he is a soldier who has fought and been wounded in the service, while you—"

Arrelsford made a violent effort to control himself under this bitter fling and gazing, and to his credit succeeded in part.

"We are not so sure of that, Miss Varney," he said more coolly.

"But I am sure," answered the girl. "Why, he brought us letters from Stonewall Jackson himself."

"Has it occurred to you that General Jackson was dead before his letters were presented?" asked Arrelsford quickly.

"What does that signify if he wrote them before he was killed?"

"Nothing certainly," assented the other, "if he wrote them."

"The signatures and the letters were verified."

"They may have been written for some one else and this Thorne may have possessed himself of them by fraud, or—"

"Mr. Arrelsford," cried the girl, more and more angry, "if you mean—"

"My dear child," said Mrs. Varney, "you don't understand. They have proofs of a conspiracy. The Yankees are going to try to break through our lines tonight, and two men in the northern secret service have been sent here to do this work. One is in Libby prison. Our faithful Jonas has been corrupted. He went there today and took a message from one and brought it here to deliver to the other. They are trying to make him speak

"You are going to spy on him, are you?"

"I am going to prove what he is." "Then prove it openly at once. It is shameful to let such a suspicion rest upon an honorable man. Let him come in here, and—"

"It is impossible."

"You do something, something, but do it now!" cried the girl. "You will soon know that he is innocent, you must know it. Wait! You say the prisoner in Libby is his brother—that's what you said—his brother—bring him here. Go to the prison and bring that man here."

"What?"

"Let them meet. Bring them face to face, then you can see whether—"

"You mean bring them together here?"

"Yes."

"As if the prisoner were trying to escape?"

"Exactly."

"There is something in that," said Arrelsford; "when do you suggest—"

"Now."

"I am willing to try it, but it depends upon you. Can you keep Thorne here?"

"I can."

"It won't take more than half an hour. Be out there on the veranda. When I tap on the glass bring him into this room and leave him alone. And I can rely upon you to give him no hint or sign that we suspect—"

"Mr. Arrelsford!" said the girl, indignant and haughty, and her mother stepped swiftly toward her, looking at him contemptuously, as if he should have known that such an action would be impossible for either of them.

Arrelsford gazed at them a minute or two, smiled triumphantly, and passed out of the room.

"Mamma, mamma!" moaned the girl, her eyes shut, her hand extended. "Mamma," she repeated in anguish.

"I am here, Edith dear; I am here," said Mrs. Varney, coming toward her and taking her tenderly in her arms.

"Do you think—do you think—that he—he could be what they say?" Her hand fell upon the commission in her belt. "This commission I got for him this afternoon—"

"Yes?"

"The commission, you know, from the President, for the telegraph service—why, he refused to take it," her voice rose and rang triumphantly through the room; "he refused to take it! That doesn't look as if he wanted to use the telegraph to betray us."

"Refused! That's impossible!" said her mother.

"He said that it was for me that he couldn't take it."

"For you! Then it is true," answered Mrs. Varney.

"No, no," said the girl; "don't say it."

"Yes," said her mother; "the infamously—the gether to settle with her hand upon her mother's lips. Words, but Mrs. Varney shook off her hand. "The spy, the traitor," she added wretchedly.

"No, no!" cried the girl, but as she spoke, conviction seemed to come to her. Why was it that her faith was not more substantially based and enduring? she asked herself. "Mamma," she said, "it can't be." She buried her face in her hands for a moment and then rose them away and confronted her mother boldly. "Won't you leave me alone for a little while, mamma?" she asked plaintively. "I must get—"

"I will go to Howard; I will be back in a short time, my dear," said her mother, gently laying her hand on her daughter's wet head.

Left alone, the girl took the commission from her belt, opened it, smoothed it out, and read it through, as if bewildered and uncomprehending. She folded it up again, and walked slowly over to one of the front windows, drew aside the curtains, and pushed it open. All was still. She listened for she knew not what. There was a footstep from the far end of the walk leading from the summerhouse, a footstep she knew. Edith moved rapidly away from the window to the table and stood by it, her hand resting upon it, her knees fairly trembling in her emotion, as she waited. The next moment the open space framed the figure of Captain Thorne. He entered fearlessly, but when his eyes fell upon her there was something so strained about her attitude that a spark of suspicion was kindled in his soul. Yet his action was prompt enough. He came instantly toward her and took her hand.

"Miss Varney," he said.

Edith watched his approach fascinated, as a bird by a serpent. His touch awakened her to action. She snatched her hand away and shrank back.

"No; don't touch me!" she cried.

He looked at her in amazement. The spark of suspicion burst into flame, but she recovered herself instantly.

"Oh, it was you," she faltered. She forced a smile to her lips. "How perfectly absurd I am. I am sure I ought to be ashamed of myself. Come, let's go out on the veranda. I want to talk to you about so many things. There's—there's half an hour—yet before we must go to Caroline's."

She had possessed herself of his hand again as she spoke. She now stepped swiftly toward the window. He followed her reluctantly until they reached the opening. She stepped through it and archly looked back at him, still in the room.

"How lovely is the night," she said with tender persuasiveness. "Come with me."

The man looked around him hastily.

Every moment was precious to him. Did Miss Varney know? If so, what did she know? What was to be gained or lost by half an hour's delay on his part? He drew out his watch and glanced at it swiftly. There was time. He would never see her again. He might say he would possibly never see anyone again after the hazards of this night. He was entitled to one brief moment of happiness. How long had she said? Half an hour. He would take it.

"Aren't you coming, Captain Thorne?" cried the girl from the porch, all the coquettish witchery of youth and the South in her voice.

"I am coming," answered the officer, deliberately stepping through the window, "for just half an hour," he added.

"That will be time enough," replied the girl, laughing.

CHAPTER VII.

Wilfred Writes a Letter.

Half an hour is short or a long time, depending upon the individual mood or the exigencies of the moment. It was a short half hour to Captain Thorne—to continue to give him the name by which he was commonly known—in the moonlight and the rose garden with Edith Varney. It was short to him because he loved her and because he realized that in that brief space must be packed experience enough to last him into the long future, it might be into the eternal future!

It was short to Edith Varney, in part at least for the same reason, but it was shorter to him than to her, for at the end of that period the guilt or innocence of the man she loved and who loved her would be established beyond peradventure; either he was the brave, devoted, self-sacrificing Confederate soldier she thought him, or he was a spy; and since he came of a Virginia family, although West Virginia had separated from the Old Dominion, she coupled the word spy with that of traitor. Either or both would be enough to condemn him. Fighting against suspicion, she would fain have postponed the moment of revelation, of decision, therefore too quickly passed the flying moments.

It was a short half hour to Thorne, because he might see her no more. It was a short half hour to Edith because she might see him no more, and it might be possible that she could not even allow herself to dream upon him in his absence in the future. The recollection of the woman would ever be sweet and sacred to the man, but it might be necessary for the woman to blot out utterly the remembrance of the man.

It was a short half hour to young Wilfred in his own room, waiting patiently for old Martha to bring the altered uniform, over which Caroline was busily working in the large old-fashioned kitchen. She had chosen that odd haven of refuge because there she was the least likely to be interrupted and could pursue her task without fear of observation by any other eyes than those of old Martha.

Now that Wilfred had taken the plunge, his impatience to go was at fever heat. He could not wait, he felt, for another moment. He had spent some of his half hour in composing a letter with great care. It was a short letter and therefore was soon finished, and he was now peering up and down his room with uneasy steps waiting for old Martha's welcoming voice.

It was a long half hour for little Caroline Mifflord, busily sewing away in the kitchen. It seemed to her that she was taking forever to turn up the bottoms of the trouser legs and make a "hem" on each, as she expressed it. She was not very skillful at such rough needlework and her eyes were not so very clear as she played at tailoring. This is no reflection upon their natural clarity and brightness, but they were quite often dimmed with tears, which once or twice brimmed over and dropped upon the coarse fabric of the garment upon which she worked. She had known the man who had worn them last, he had been a friend of hers, and she knew the boy who was going to wear them next. If she could translate the emotions of her girlish heart, the new wearer was more than a friend. Was the same fate awaiting the latter than the former had met?

The half hour was very long to Jonas, the old butler, trembling with fright, suffering from his rough usage and terror-stricken with anticipation of the further punishment that awaited him.

The half hour was longest of all to Mrs. Varney. After her visit to How ard, who had enjoyed one of his lucid moments and who seemed to be a little better, she had come down to the drawing-room, at Mr. Arrelsford's suggestion, to see that no one from the house who might have observed, or divined, or learned, in any way what was going on within should go out into the garden and disturb the young couple, or give an alarm to the man who was the object of so much interest and suspicion, so much love and hatred.

About the only people who took no note of the time were the busy sempstresses in the room across the hall, and the first sign of life came from that room. Miss Kilbridge, who appeared to have been constituted the messenger of the workers, came out of the room, went down the hall to the back of the house, and presently entered the drawing-room by the far door.

"Well," she began, seeing Mrs. Varney, "we have just sent off another batch of bandages."

"Did the same man come for them?" asked the mistress of the house.

"No, they sent another one."

"Did you have much?"

"Yes, quite a lot. We have all been at the bandages, they say that it is what they need most. So long as we have any linen left we will work at it." She turned to go away, but something in the elder woman's face and manner awakened a slight suspicion in her mind. She stopped, turned, and came back. "You look troubled, Mrs. Varney," she began. "Do you want anything?"

"No, nothing, thank you."

"Is there anything I can do or anything any of us can do?"

"Not a thing, my dear," answered Mrs. Varney, trying to smile and failing dimly.

"Is it Howard?" persisted the other, anxious to be of service.

"He seems to be a little better," returned the woman.

"I am glad to hear it, and if there is anything any of us could do for you, you would certainly tell me."

REVIEWED HIS WHOLE LIFE

Drowning Man Even Remembered Where He Had Put His Rescuer's Promissory Note.

The undertow had been playing rather roughly with Dubbleigh, and when they got him ashore there was considered desirable to roll him over a barrel of half dozen or more times in order to send him into liquidation. It was with a sigh of relief that the lifesavers observed his return to consciousness and assured safety.

"By George, boys," said he, as he opened his eyes and realized the significance of what had happened, "that was a terrible experience! I don't want to go through that again."

"I should say not," said Biddad, who had been instrumental in pulling him out. You had a narrow escape."

"I guess I did," said Dubbleigh. "And, say, Bill, do you know that statement is a fact that the drowning man lives over again the whole story of his past life? By Jove! It was mighty interesting—right, from my boyhood up, every incident in my life passed in review before my consciousness. I was even back in school again, and then in college, and all those years after graduation, from my beginnings as a bank messenger up to this morning when I jumped into the surf."

"It's a wonder you didn't die of mortification."

"Yes," said Dubbleigh; "but I'm glad I didn't, for among other things that came along was a vision of where I put that lost promissory note of yours for $50—the one you wouldn't pay because I couldn't produce the document."

"Gee! I'm almost sorry I pulled you ashore!"—Judge's Library.

Love of Country.

"When do you sail for Europe?"

"Next week. And oh, I can't tell you how I hate to leave the country of my birth! Others rejoice on leaving for abroad—I weep!"

"I honor your emotion. Where do you sail from?"

"Philadelphia."

"Why are you sailing from New York?"

"Because I love my country. And it is much easier to bid farewell to America in Philadelphia than it is in New York."

WOMAN SURVIVOR OF BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG

That woman played a prominent part in the greatest battle of the Civil war that was fought just fifty years ago, is apt to be forgotten until a mute reminder such as is seen in the photograph is brought to our attention. Fifty years back is a long time to remember, yet here one of those who fought under the stars and bars, five decades ago, is greeting one of the women nurses and one of the few remaining ones whose husband was the comrade in arms of the grizzled old veteran.

SIDELIGHTS OF GETTYSBURG REUNION

The great reunion of the blue and the gray on the battlefield of Gettysburg has passed into history. It was in all respects the most unique gathering of the soldiers of the 60's ever held. Men who fought each other fifty years ago this year fraternized as long-separated brothers. Naturally such a gathering would be productive of many incidents, both pathetic and humorous. As many stories were floating about as there were veterans at the reunion.

The camp is full of unexpected meetings. Every day brings forth numerous meetings between men who have not seen one another for many years. Many are commonplace, but some are extraordinary. For instance, here is one:

I. D. Munsee of Erie county, Pennsylvania, a soldier in the 11th Pennsylvania, was captured by the confederates at Peachtree Creek, Ga., when he was one of Sherman's army on the celebrated march to the sea. He was being conveyed to the rear by a confederate soldier when the union batteries opened fire upon the party among whom he was a prisoner. The man who was guarding Munsee was hit and fell, knocking Munsee down and lying on top of him.

Seeing his chance of escape, Munsee lay very still under the unconscious confederate while the battle raged around them. That night he slipped from under the body and escaped to the union lines.

"I thought that fellow was dead," said Munsee, "but I saw him today. Poor fellow, his mind's bad, and he didn't recognize me, but I was sure of him. I couldn't even get his name, but I'm going over later to the Georgia camp and try to find out who he is."

Here is a story which was told by A. T. Dice, vice-president of the Reading railway:

Once upon a time there were a veteran in gray and a veteran in blue. They came to Gettysburg and in the course of events and visits to hotels they happened to meet. They looked over the sights of Gettysburg and the monuments of the field. But they found they must part.

The one in blue lived in Oregon; the one in gray in New Orleans. They went weeping together to their station and passed by train after train, deferring the parting that must come. Just what they said, just how they reached the final grand idea of the meeting, Mr. Dice did not know.

But, however, yesterday they finally decided that the time for parting had come. The one from Oregon could not figure how to reach home via New Orleans and his gray comrade, while willing to see the west, didn't have the money for a ticket.

They lined upon on the platform as their trains stood waiting and then before the crowd, they slowly stripped off their uniforms and exchanged them there while the curious flocked to see them.

The Oregonian who came proudly to town with a coat of blue, went as promptly away with one of gray and the veteran from Louisiana who boasted the gray of the south sat with exulting chest in his new uniform of blue.

Wearing a tattered uniform of gray, Alexander Hunt of Virginia was the central point of interest on the streets of the town. Mr. Hunter was wearing the identical suit and hat which he wore at Gettysburg fifty years ago.

The suit was in rags and had a bullet hole through one of the sleeves. He carried all his accoutrements used at Gettysburg and wore a union belt taken from a foe here. Mr. Hunter was a member of the Black Horse cavalry.

Fifty years ago to the hour from the time when the first shot proceeding the battle was fired a reunion meeting of the blue and the gray was held in the big tent. The gray cavalry men who fought the skirmishes that led up to the three days' fight pledged themselves in the shadows of the stars and stripes to "forget" and their brother, in blue swore by the stars and bars that the fight was over for all time.

There were several women from the village in the tent and six one-time schoolgirls, gray-haired and aged now, sang "Rally 'Round the Flag, Boys," while the veterans wept like boys, but with pride. The six women who sang the battle song were among those who thronged the streets of Gettysburg after the advance guard of the southern army left it 50 years ago. On the night when Buford's men came riding into the village on the heels of Wheeler's men in gray, maidens strewed flowers along the streets and bells in the churches pealed out the news of the coming of the blue and the town went wild.

Of all the scores of girls who welcomed the vanguard of Meade, only a half dozen could be found, and they stood, white-haired with tears in their eyes on a platform in the big tent and sang to the weeping soldiers in the seats below.

"I'm afraid we can't sing like we sang 50 years ago," said the matronly woman who acted as leader as she led the way up the steps to the platform.

"We don't care; just sing again," shouted the veterans. As the first notes of the war-time melody came from them in quivering tones, the veterans both of the north and of the south sat quiet with eyes fixed upon the singers. The hum of the chorus came from every side, and the old men wept openly.

Aside from the old soldiers themselves, an interesting figure is Mrs. Longstreet, widow of the commander at the front of the Confederate lines in the third day's battle. Mrs. Longstreet walked a mile through the broiling sun out to the old Rogers house to interview General Sickles.

Some time ago Mrs. Longstreet sent a long telegram as representing the southern veterans in protest against the old Union veteran being thrown in jail in New York because of some financial affairs. It was said that Sickles misunderstood the spirit and his pride was so hurt that their meeting today would not be cordial.

"General, I have written an article about you for publication," said Mrs. Longstreet at the meeting, and she read several pages of the highest tribute to the old corps leader, whom she characterized as having come back and being once again in the saddle. Half a hundred old Sickles' men gathered on the lawn and the reading became dramatic. General Sickles leaned back in his big chair, closed his eyes, and looked back to meeting with Longstreet.

Here his widow was praising to the world the valor which she claimed had gone unrecognized by the government. Tears flowed down the Sickles cheeks now tanned by his ninety-third summer, and his old followers doffed their hats and mingled their tears with those of their old leader, wetting the ground upon which long ago had been soaked by their blood.

James H. Lansberry of St. Louis, Mo., who enlisted in the Third Indiana cavalry from Madison, Ind., recited to his comrades the details of his capture in the town of Gettysburg by Confederates 50 years ago. Following the skirmish just outside of town which marked the opening of what was to be a world-famed engagement, he had been detailed to assist in carrying a wounded officer to the old seminary in Gettysburg. While in town frantic women flocked about him and begged that he tell of the battle. He remained silent for several days in following the Confederate army as a prisoner. After tramping 50 miles over rough country without shoes he succeeded in escaping and finally made his way back to Gettysburg, where he remained till August in assisting in the care of the wounded, which were housed in the seminary, churches, barns and public buildings.

One of the unadvertised reunions of the celebration occurred in the confederate section of the camp. A file and drum corps of men in blue tramped up and down the streets of the confederate part of the city of tents.

They stopped before the tents, played such a fanfare as only drums and fife can make, summoned forth the occupants and shook hands, threw their arms about the gray shoulders and in a dozen other ways showed their feelings of friendship.

They kept it up for hours and visited practically every "reb" tent. Their reception was as warm as their greeting.

One of the most interesting places in camp was the lost and found bureau, located under the benches in the big tent. Everything found on the grounds was brought there and thousands applied every day for missing articles.

There were at least 100 crutches piled up in the bureau, dozen or so applicants having called for them. Those who come to redeem their lost crutches seldom can recognize them and most of them go away with somebody else's.

There was one wooden leg also lying unclaimed. It was brought in by a Boy Scout, who had found it under a tree.

Several sets of false teeth were found.

One of the big events was the "charge" of the survivors of Pickett's division on the "bloody angle."

Under the hot sun the men in gray marched across the field that had not seen anything more warlike than a blacksnake in 50 years, up to the walls that form the angle. The "enemy" in blue was waiting with weapons ready, and when they met across the wall they shook hands. Afterward they looked over the ground for the site of a $250,000 monument they hope to have congress erect there.

Where Did You Come From, and What Are You?

out there to tell who— Our country, our cause, is at stake."

"Is this Mr. Arrelsford's story?" asked the daughter stubbornly, apparently entirely unconvinced.

"No; these are facts. We had Jonas in here," answered her mother; "caught him off his guard, and found the incriminating paper on him."

"But he has not said it was for—"

"Not yet," whispered Mr. Arrelsford, "but he will. You may be sure of that; we have means to—Oh, Corporal," he broke off eagerly, looking toward the door where the corporal stood, his hand at salute. "Well, speak out, what does he say?"

"Nothing, sir."

"What have you done with him?"

"Strung him up three times, and—"

"Well, string him up again," snarled Arrelsford. "If he won't speak, shoot it out of him, kill the dog. We don't need his evidence anyway, there's enough without it."

"There is nothing," said Edith tersely.

"By midnight," answered Arrelsford, "you shall have all the proof—"

"There is no proof to have," persisted the girl.

"I will show it to you at the telegraph office, if you dare to go with me."

"Dare! I will go anywhere, even with you, for that—"

"I will call for you in half an hour, then," said Arrelsford, going toward the door.

"Wait," interrupted Edith; "what are you going to do?"

"I am going to let him get this paper," said Arrelsford, coming back to the table. "He will know what they want him to do, and then we'll see him try to do it."

MUSIC IN THE HOME

is one of the best ways to make that home attractive. Many a man has been kept at home nights through the influence of music, when all other attractions have failed. A piano is always a source of enjoyment, and the home that is without one, is missing something. Our stock of pianos is large.
