LOWER RATE MADE ON POSTAL PARCELS

Weight Limit is Increased From Eleven to Twenty Pounds at Same Postage

Official notice of a reduction in parcel post rates was received by Postmaster G. H. Schmidt. According to the revision, the weight has been increased from eleven to twenty pounds. For the first pound five cents will be charged and one cent for every two additional pounds. Under the old rates, the maximum weight allowed by the postal authorities was eleven pounds and the rate was five cents for the first pound and one cent for each additional pound. This means that a package weighing twenty pounds may be forwarded at the same rate of postage that was formerly demanded for an article weighing eleven pounds. The rates in the first and second zones will be the same following the reduction, and the weight will be twenty pounds. A charge of five cents will be made for the first pound and one cent for each additional pound. In the first zone, under the old rates, the weight was limited to eleven pounds and the rate was charged for the first pound and three cents for each additional pound. In the second zone six cents was charged for the first pound. The first zone comprises territory that can be reached by rural carriers of the local postoffice.

Takes Charge of Post Office

Yesterday, Friday, the editor of the Statesman, succeeded Arthur W. Koch as postmaster of the village of Kewaskum. A brief statement at this time may be of interest to our readers and patrons of the office.

Assuming charge of the office I fully realize the responsibility and duties connected with the position. It will be my aim to fulfill the trust imposed upon me to the best of my ability. Although most of my time will be necessary in the post office, I will still continue as editor of the Statesman, and will strive to give the readers all the news available to hold up the standard of the paper. I have also added another member to the staff, my brother, Theodore Schmidt, who will be the associate editor. The latter will also have charge of the office work. With this additional help I see no reason why we cannot uphold the Statesman and give the readers one of the most newsworthy papers in the West.

Geo. H. Schmidt.

Are they feverish, restless, nervous, irritable, dizzy or constipated? Do they continually pick their nose or grind their teeth? Have they cramping pains, irregular and ravenous appetite? These are all signs of worms. Worms not only cause your child suffering, but stunt his mind and growth. Give "Kickapoo Worm Killer" at once. It kills and removes the worms, improves your child's appetite, regulates the stomach, liver and bowels. The symptoms disappear and your child is made happy and healthy, as nature intended. WAS ARRESTED TUESDAY

Robert Schoening, Charged With Non-Support, Arraigned Before Justice at Fond du Lac

Robert Schoening, a laborer, for whom a warrant alleging non-support was issued several weeks ago, was arrested near this village on Tuesday afternoon by Constable James Carew of Fond du Lac and was arraigned in court before Justice Blewett on Wednesday morning. The hearing of the case was set for August 13. Schoening was arraigned once before and a date for the hearing was agreed upon but he and the officials failed to get together at that time. The officers thought that he left the city to avoid trial and conviction; but he stated on Wednesday morning that he had appeared at the date set for his hearing and found no one there. He waited some time, he said, but when no one appeared he left. The following day he came to this village and secured employment with Ogenorth & Sons, with whom he has been working ever since. Schoening's two children, a little boy and girl, were on Saturday placed in charge of a Lutheran home finding society, an organization which expects to place them in permanent homes. The mother died five years ago, and their father, it is said, has failed to support them for several months. They lived with their grandmother, but she had them placed in charge of the Lutheran society. In court Wednesday morning Schoening said he did not know until he was brought back to Fond du Lac that his mother-in-law had given up the children. He stated that he is willing to take care of them so far as it is in his power. He was released upon furnishing $500 bail.

FOUND BORN OF MISSING MAN
While cutting grain on the farm of the county insane asylum at Wauwatosa last Monday, Edward Brown, a farm hand, discovered the decomposed body of Fred Hartman, aged 45, who had been missing from the asylum since June 2. Several times before he had left, and it was not for two days after his last disappearance that a search was made. It is thought he died of the heat during the last torrid spell.

Hartman is survived by a sister Mrs. Andrew Christopherson, who resides near Toland. He was committed to the asylum in 1889. Mr. and Mrs. Christopherson went to attend the funeral evening to meet the funeral.

OIL ARRIVED
The oil for use of sprinkling certain streets of this city arrived the forepart of the week, and the Standard Oil company's man was expected here Wednesday to start the work on the newly macadamized road at Wisconsin St. The rain that day however, put it off to the work at that time.

This move ought to be followed by the officials of this village. The oiling of streets has proven more than satisfactory in every place it was used. Why not agitate it for next year?

LOCALS WIN FROM CEDARBURG

Win Out in An Eighth Inning Rally, Scoring Six Runs

HEPPE IN EXCELLENT FORM

Heppe, Who Twirled for the Locals, Was in the Best of Condition, Allowing But Five Hits. Final Score 9 to 4

In a game devoid of any features, the locals defeated the strong Cedarburg team on the local grounds last Sunday by a score of 9 to 4. F. Dietrich started to pitch for the visitors, but he was taken out in the eighth and L. Dietrich was put in. Heppe of the home team opposed him. The latter was in grand form, allowing but five hits, issuing only one pass and striking out eight men. The third inning looked blue for the locals, Cedarburg scoring three runs on a base on balls, two errors and a two base hit. One more run was netted to them in the fifth inning on a hit, an error and a wild throw. After this inning they were at Heppe's mercy all the time. The locals started their scoring in the fifth, two runs being netted them on two hits and an error. Another run was given to their credit in the sixth on a hit and an error. Not satisfied with this they came back strong in the eighth. F. Dietrich who was pitching for Cedarburg up to this inning was taken out and L. Dietrich was put in the pitchers box. This move proved very disastrous for the visitors, for the new pitcher lacked control and our boys ended the inning with six runs. Held the first man up was an easy out. Foye got to base on an error and stole second. Olwin went to second on the throw and advanced to third on an error. A wild throw by the center fielder enabled him to come home, trying the score. Miller next up was hit on the head by a pitched ball, and Backus, Attenhofen and Heppe drew passes, forcing in Miller and filling the bases. Schaefer made a hit, which proved to be a home run, forcing in four more runs. Darse next man up got to base, out Held fanned, ending the inning. Cedarburg tried hard to score in the ninth, but the best they could do was to get to second base.

CALLS MULHALL LIAR

FORMER LOBBYIST FOR N. A. M. DENOUNCED IN SENATE BY UNDERWOOD.

SAYS HE IS "BLACKMAILER"

Majority Leader of the House Ascertains Man Who Takes Liberty With Names of Public Men Should Be Forced to Prove Charges.

Washington, July 31.—Representative Underwood, Democratic leader of the house, appeared before the house lobby investigation committee on Tuesday and charged that Col. M. M. Mulhall, the lobbyist, was a blackmailer. The appearance of Underwood was an event not on the program. He came unexpectedly.

At the night session Minority Leader James R. Mann and Speaker Champ Clark also made most emphatic denials of Mulhall's statement that Representative J. T. McDermott of Chicago had offered them the "Mulhall letters" for use in the house of representatives investigation. Both insisted they never heard of the letters until after they were sold for publication. They probably will repeat their denials on the witness stand next week.

The letters themselves, however, purported to give much information alleged to have been furnished Mulhall by Mr. Underwood, and the latter took the stand to give the lie direct, and at once, to Mulhall.

"I think," replied Chairman Underwood, "that it is in the interest of the public that a man who has taken liberties with public men as this man has should be contradicted."

"I regard a man of this kind as a blackmailer. That man has never been in the ways and means committee room since I have been chairman of the committee. He may have had conversations with me, but when he says he had an interview I want to say that statement is a lie."

Mr. Underwood also said he did not believe he ever had seen Mulhall before in his life.

Mulhall practically finished his identification of letters he wrote and received in the ten years he claims to have been the lobbyist for the National Association of Manufacturers.

Mulhall's last day as an identifier of letters proved the most exciting of his two weeks on the stand.

He swore that he had tried to get Chairman Wilson of the labor committee interested in the story he is now telling and that Speaker Clark and Minority Leader Mann of the house had turned down an opportunity to conduct an investigation of his activities. The speaker and Mr. Mann, he said, had been approached on this subject by Representative James T. McDermott of Illinois.

"Neither Mr. McDermott nor anybody else ever showed me the Mulhall letters and papers," said Speaker Clark in a statement.

"Neither Mr. McDermott nor anybody else ever spoke to me about them. I never knew that Mulhall had any letters or papers until I saw in a newspaper that he had sold them to a New York paper."

He testified he also had offered his correspondence to Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and that Gompers had declined.

"Were the letters or their substance laid before Mr. Wilson?" asked Senator Walsh.

"I gave Mr. Wilson an understanding of what I had," replied Mulhall. Speaker Clark and Mr. Mann, Mulhall said, would not have the matter "come up."

"Did you have a talk with either?" asked Senator Cummins.

"No, sir."

"Did you offer to sell them to Gompers?"

"No. I offered to give them."

When the senate lobby investigating committee resumed its session on Monday Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts took the stand and gave the lie direct to the "confession" made by Martin M. Mulhall, confessed former agent for the National Association of Manufacturers.

Mulhall was taken off the stand long enough to permit Senator Lodge to put into the record his emphatic denials of Mulhall's testimony.

CHARGE DRAWS FIRE

INQUIRY DEMANDED INTO M'ADOO'S CLAIM.

Senator Weeks in Statement Demands That Secretary Make Public Information He Has on Subject.

Washington, July 31.—Following his charge that New York bankers have organized a campaign to depress the value of government two per cent bonds, Secretary McAdoo was attacked by members of congress.

Representative Henry, in a statement, demanded an inquiry into the charges.

Senator Weeks challenged Secretary McAdoo to produce his evidence.

Chairman Glass said the house banking committee had its hands full considering the currency bill and did not propose to be diverted.

He and other members of the committee made it clear that they agreed with Secretary McAdoo as to the reasons for the depression.

Senator Weeks of Massachusetts, a republican member of the senate committee on banking and currency, in a statement attacked Secretary McAdoo for his charges and demanded that he make public the information on which he based the charge.

The Democrats of the house committee struggled along with the consideration of the administration bill. Representative Bulkley of Ohio continued his attack on the broad powers conferred by the bill on the proposed federal reserve board.

By a vote of 8 to 33 the committee declined to adopt an amendment striking out the section of the bill allowing the board to suspend the requirements of the bill for periods of thirty days and to renew such suspensions for fifteen-day periods.

Representative Bulkley also proposed an amendment providing for a graduated tax on banks as a penalty for allowing their reserves to fall below the required percentage, but this, too, was rejected.

Dixon, Jr., the United States immigration inspector who was shot in the back on Saturday by Mexican federal troops at Juarez, Mex. Mr. Dixon was taken to a hospital at El Paso, Tex.

The demand of Consul Edwards was in vigorous language. The consul said relative to the arrest.

"I do not merely request the arrest of these men, but in the name of the United States government, which I have the honor to represent, I demand their immediate punishment for this crime. My government will hold the military authorities of Juarez personally responsible for failure to obey this command."

Arthur Walker, the negro who Dixon was investigating when he was arrested, and the soldiers who made the arrest were immediately placed in jail, according to the report of Colonel Castro, commanding the Juarez garrison, to F. W. Hershler, supervising inspector of immigration for the United States on the Mexican border.

Dixon was released to Mr. Berkshiro and brought to El Paso to a hospital. When the Mexican soldiers had apprehended Dixon they marched him to the suburbs of the city instead of the military barracks or city hall. This, according to Dixon's statement, gave rise to the suspicion that he was going to be executed. As a matter of self-preservation, he declared, he took to flight and became the target of many bullets.

Wounded, he was taken to the Juarez hospital by his captors, and there, under a military guard of three soldiers, he was kept from Saturday afternoon until late Sunday, when he was removed to El Paso.

MARSHALL LIKES JOB

VICE-PRESIDENT SAYS SENATORS ARE ALL GOOD FELLOWS.

Asserts Business Is Entitled to Settle Conditions—Guest of Moose Order in Chicago.

Chicago, July 28.—While a guest of the Royal Order of Moose in this city, "Tom" Marshall of Columbia City, Ind., declared that he liked the job of being vice-president of the United States and gave his reasons. Mrs. Marshall is with him.

"The senate is a great institution," he added. "The senators are all fine fellows—all of them—Republicans as well as Democrats. So is 'Charley' Higgins, the sergeant-at-arms. It's a nice place to work."

The vice-president was guest of honor of the Royal Order of Moose at a banquet. The banquet was the closing function prior to the cornerstone laying of the industrial university at Mooseheart, near Aurora, which will be celebrated with the vice-president as the chief actor.

Mr. Marshall announced to a group of interviewers that he wanted to be quoted as a citizen of Indiana and not as a member of the administration. He was induced, however, to discuss briefly the tariff and currency bills, the lobby inquiry, and the responsibility resting on the party in power.

The cow with the biggest appetite, other things being equal, is the one which will give the most milk and butterfat.

If you wish that young heifer to develop into a wild cow, turn her in an out-of-the-way pasture where you seldom see her.

The lower the temperature at churning the smaller will be the loss of butter fat and the less washing the butter requires.

Oftentimes the one who has dairy butter for sale must keep his pay in trade, while those who sell cream get nothing but cash.

A good way to strain milk is to put several thicknesses of cheese cloth over the can and hold the cloths in place with clothes pins.

A large digestive tract should be developed in the heifer so she will be able to handle large quantities of food when she reaches milking age.

Manure does not improve the taste or quality of the milk. See that the cows are clean before milking, especially about the thighs and flanks.

Young turnip, cabbage and beet plants make the best of greens. It is but a small job to plant these at different times, and they can be had all summer.

Lack of care in feeding is far and away the most fruitful cause of trouble, and the man whose horse is troubled with indigestion has usually only himself to blame.

If you haven't a silo, a small patch of roots will make excellent for your cows next winter. Mangels yield heavily per acre. Only a small amount need be planted.

According to the New York export station, the cost of food, per chick, to weigh one pound, on ground grain, is three cents; on whole grain, three and seven-tenths cents.

If celery rots quickly in your cellar it may be retained in the garden through the early winter by banking up well and covering with boards and straw. There is a fresher flavor when it is kept near the soil than when grown in the cellar.

After the vegetables are matured there is a tendency to let the weeds take care of themselves and they do it to the tune of hundreds or thousands of seeds annually. If they are kept down there will be much work saved next year.

The worth of a mower is principally in the cutter bar and pitman. A tough hickory pitman is the best of all, and a cutter bar that is "linable" is a good feature. Half the cause of poor cutting in a mower is because the pitman bar drags back of a true line, and the other half is due to dull and nicked knives and guard plates.

It is taking a rather long chance to purchase young stock from dealers unless something is known regarding their ancestors, or unless a person is somewhat of a judge of dairy cattle.

NOTES from MEADOWBROOK FARM

Never excite a dairy cow.

Furnish homes for the birds.

Comfort is cheaper than corn.

The colt needs good attention.

The charge of milkers is, as a rule, detrimental.

Clip the horse. It will help to keep him healthy.

Irregular times of milking are always damaging.

Plenty of shade for yarded poultry flocks now is required.

It is not a good plan to mix warm milk with that already cooled.

Keep the chicks growing. They will appreciate any tender green feed.

For the fence flying habit, try clipping the larger feathers off one wing.

Corn stalks are good fertilizer and should be left on the field after cutting.

Exercise is better yielding stimulant for the hens than heat-producing condiments.

Eggs deteriorate rapidly in the pantry or kitchen these days. Keep them in a cool place.

Establish, if possible, a brand of eggs which will in itself be guarantee of good quality.

A small box to sit upon is a great back saver in the garden. Try one when picking the currants.

Overfeeding of green cut bone is apt to cause leg troubles, diarrhoea, bowel complaints and worms.

Nothing aids so much in destroying a herd by tuberculosis as a poorly lighted and ill ventilated stable.

Every heifer calf should have an inheritance that will make it possible for her to make a better cow than her dam.

The cow with the biggest appetite, other things being equal, is the one which will give the most milk and butterfat.

Lack of care in feeding is far and away the most fruitful cause of trouble, and the man whose horse is troubled with indigestion has usually only himself to blame.

Feed sheep regularly. Keep the lawn well rolled. Give the hens a dust bath. The bean can be grown anywhere. Give the cows all the roughness they will eat. Crop rotation is the best way to get rid of the corn root worm. We can pain off stale eggs to our customers once, but only once. Many a cow that is almost a failure can be made good by proper feeding. Do not forget that good water should be within reach of the calves at all times. Dynamiting is coming into favor rapidly for tree planting and stumping new land. Fruit of fine appearance sells better than fruit of extra quality, but not so showy. Silage made of corn and soy beans is more digestible than that made from corn alone. In hot weather, renew the water for poultry two or three times a day and keep it in shade. Onions make a good tonic for poultry of all ages. Cut them up in the mash occasionally. If the geese are hiding their eggs, watch them early in the forenoon, the time of day they lay. Be careful with the mares in foal, and don't let them slip down nor hold heavy loads down hill. Wire strainers get only part of the dirt out of milk. Several thicknesses of cheesecloth are better. The number of chicks brought to the frying stage is what really counts—not the number hatched. Don't keep unsightly or crippled chickens, even though they have been valuable birds in their day. The Arrshire and Gurnsey types of dairy cattle are increasing in favor in the middle western states. Dry mash, charcoal and grit can be fed in a box covered with half-inch poultry netting, without waste. Use insect powder freely on the sitting hen and her nest. Nothing worries a sitting hen more than lice. Cream should have a uniform consistency as well as being of uniform ripeness when it goes into the churn. As soon as it can be had give the hens some good fresh loam. If the sods are with the earth so much the better. Properly conducted the poultry business will give a fair profit, steady work and a good living for the average man. The silo today furnishes the most economical, the safest and the best means of storing the corn crop for feeding purposes. Dust the hens with insect powder before sitting, and twice more while hatching, then chicks will not be full of lice to begin with. According to a report issued by the United States agricultural department, there are in the world more than 300 different kinds of cheese. Keep the cultivator going in the garden. It is easier to get rid of the weeds when they are small than when they are well established. Begin picking the cucumbers as soon as the pickles form. Every cube one and one-half inches long should be cut off with a knife or shears. Not enough shade in some chicken yards. Hens need a shaded loafing place when they go around with their mouths wide open panting for breath. It may be thought clever to deceive a man in a horse trade, but if you want to secure a permanent customer it is mighty poor business to do so. Keep a sharp lookout for new weeds. They appear in all places and at all times. Some of them may prove hard to get rid of if they once gain a footing. Clean the incubators up thoroughly and store them away until next spring. The way you do this work may tell more than you think on another season's success. Do away with the weeds. The weeds often rob the soil of the food materials that would make some other crop a bumper. Do away with them before they go to seed and make trouble for another year. If you have no elstern, and the water in your well is too hard to wash with, a large oil or molasses barrel set under the leader which takes the rain from the roof at the corner of the house nearest to the kitchen, will supply plenty of water, except in a dry time. Watch the currants and gooseberries for the currant worm. As soon as it appears use paris green and lime—enough paris green in slaked lime to give the lime a greenish tinge. Dust over the plants while wet. If the worms appear near fruiting time, pick the fruit and then apply the poison, as it will otherwise disfigure the fruit. When we consider ourselves as farmers for life, and make farming a practical study, then we will take pride in our farms and livestock.

IDEAS FOR HOME BUILDERS

By WM. A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 12 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

It often seems that the style or appearance of the house doesn't make so much difference as the site on which it is built. In every town and village there are examples that prove this. There are delightful little places set back among shade trees and flowers, which give one a restful, home-like feeling just by walking past; yet the house is really very plain and ordinary in design.

Then for every one of this kind there is one of the other sort to keep the balance, probably. Every town has them—the house is large and pompous, quite an architectural creation in fact, but it is set down onto a small lot, crowded in, with all the trees and shrubbery cut down to make room for it. In spite of its size and cost a residence of this kind is very far from attractive. The home builder would not knowingly take such a model; yet, many times he does because he does not understand the real elements of success in planning an attractive home; and a barren uninviting place is the result.

The experienced home builder will always, if possible, select a rough and wooded site; if it is slightly hilly so much the better. The labor and expense, it is true, for grading and preparing the site for the building, and for smoothing up the ground afterwards are greater; but the satisfac-

There is a large central hall, with a living room occupying the entire space at the left, while the dining room with the kitchen back of it is at the right. On the second floor there are three bedrooms and a bath room, also four closets.

It is a design and arrangement that would be hard to improve upon for any one desiring a comfortable residence of artistic appearance. The cost is estimated at $4,000 including a good grade of plumbing and lighting and first class basement heating plant.

tion and success of the project is also greater and the attractiveness of the place increases as the years go by, while the extra labor at the beginning is very soon forgotten.

Almost any style of house harmonizes well with such surroundings and is improved in appearance by the natural beauties of the building site. Some materials and some styles of domestic architecture seem especially well suited, however, for such use. The accompanying design is one of these.

It is planned something on the bungalow order, with prominent roof, broad on the ground and not overly high.

A distinctive feature of this design is the use of cobble stones in the large chimney and fire place. These could also be employed very effectively for the foundation of the building.

A cobble stone wall can be made very attractive if the man laying it properly understands the work. In any kind of stone work the mason must use his head as well as his hands. The more variety of color, shape and size can be obtained the more attractive appearance will a cobble stone wall present. The stone should be rather large and laid at random, not in rows, and should fit together closely, so that few of the mortar joints are more than one-half inch thick. The stones should stand out prominently and should not be plastered to a smooth surface with mortar, neither should any broken edges be visible. A good workman, by the proper use of cobble stones, as shown in this design, can secure a very ornamental effect and one exactly in keeping with the general atmosphere of the rustic site on which the house is built.

For the walls of this house either clapboards or shingles may be used. Shingles are always appropriate for the walls of a house of simple design, especially in connection with cobble stone work. There are various pleasing ways in which shingles may be laid to suit those who consider the ordinary method of laying the shingles in uniform rows, five inches to the weather, too monotonous. A pleasing variation is to place the shingles in alternate rows of two and eight inches to the weather. This requires no more material or labor and gives a very attractive appearance. The shingles on the roof, however, should always be laid in the regular way.

A glance at the floor plans will show a very convenient and comfortable arrangement of space in this house.

TEN AMENDMENTS GO BEFORE PEOPLE

VOTE ON CHANGES IN STATE CONSTITUTION PROVIDED BY LEGISLATURE'S ACTION.

RAISE IN LEGISLATORS' PAY

Initiative and Referendum is Another Proposed Alteration to Wisconsin's Basic Law to Become Effective if Ratified by Voters of State.

Madison.—Ten proposed amendments to the state constitution will be submitted to the people at the general election in November, 1914, as provided by action of the legislature at the session now drawing to a close.

Provisions for submitting these proposed amendments to the electors are contained in bill No. 629S, which passed during the final rush hours of business and await the governor's approval. These proposed amendments have now passed two legislatures and will become effective on approval by the voters of the state.

The bill provides that the form of the ballot to be cast on the question of adopting or rejecting the proposed amendments shall be as follows:

"For amendment to section 1 of article XII, authorizing changes in or additions to the constitution by a vote of the people after being submitted to the people by three-fifths of the members elected to both houses of the legislature.

"For amendment to section 1 of article IV, providing for the initiative and referendum and giving to the people the power by their votes to enact, adopt or reject laws or proposed laws.

"For amendment creating section 11 of article VIII, permitting insurance by the state and providing that the state may grant annuities, with an annual accounting, a separation and safeguarding of all insurance funds.

"For amendment creating section 3a of article XI, giving to the people of cities and villages the right of home rule.

"For amendment to sections 6 and 7 of article VII, authorizing the legislature to decrease the number of judicial circuits and to provide for judges in the several circuits.

"For amendment to article XIII, giving the people the right to recall any elective officer except judicial officer.

"For amendment creating section 5b of article XI, defining the property which may be taken by municipal corporations for public purposes.

"For amendment creating section 3 of article XII, requiring the legislature upon petition to submit constitutional amendments to the people for adoption or rejection.

"For amendment creating section 13 of article VIII, permitting the state to provide for state insurance with an annual accounting and separation and safeguarding of all insurance funds.

"For amendment to section 21 of article IV, changing the compensation of members of the legislature to $600 per year and decreasing the mileage allowance."

In addition to these proposed amendments to the constitution the legislature adopted resolutions providing for several more, but these will have to be adopted also by the next legislature before being submitted to the voters for approval.

Will Test Income Tax Law.

Madison.—The Wisconsin income tax law as it applies to taxation of incomes of outside companies will be tested in the Dane county circuit court on the grounds of unconstitutionality. BIG BILLS PASSED BY LEGISLATORS

OUTPUT OF LONG SESSION OF LAWMAKERS MAY TOTAL 807 MEASURES.

138 STILL WITH GOVERNOR

FOUR ARE KILLED IN WRECK

Train Running Through Tornado in Marinette County Derailed by a Tree Blown Across Track.

Marinette.—Three men and a boy were crushed to death and another man was fatally scalded in a wreck on the Milwaukee road during a tornado two miles north of Peshigo, Marinette county.

The dead are:

FRANK J. O'CONNOR, engineer, Green Bay, Wis.

FRANK KNEINSMITH, fireman, Green Bay, Wis.

Ten-year-old son of Express Messenger Way.

Unknown man who was riding blind baggage.

The wreck occurred while the train which was made up of nine cars and carried 400 passengers, was running at forty miles an hour through a tornado in the wooded hills north of Peshigo. A giant tree uprooted and thrown across the track by the wind, derailed the engine, which ran on the ties for 400 feet and overturned. None of the passengers were injured.

Brakemen's Voices Too Harsh.

La Crosse.—Declaring that brakemen disturb the passengers with raucous calling of stations, the Milwaukee road has ordered that hereafter announcements must be made in a gentle tone.

Bullhead Kills Woman.

Green Bay.—Mrs. Jane Walker stepped on the head of a bullhead fish. One of the "horns" of the fish penetrated her foot. Blood poison developed and she died three weeks later.

Clam Hunters Drowned.

Dodgeville.—Word was received here of the death of Henry Smith and a son, Alfred, of Muscoda. They were hunting clams in the Wisconsin river when the son got into a whirlpool. The father, attempting to save his son's life, lost his own.

Investigate Factory Fire.

Oshkosh.—Investigation is being made of the cause of the fire at the sawing factory of the Wisconsin Canning company at Wintona.

VARYING IDEAS FOR BATHING COSTUMES

AMERICAN and Parisian designers agree that white makes an attractive tone for bathing garments. The two models shown give one an idea of the bathing garments very much in vogue at American and Parisian seaside resorts. The American costume on the left is of white silk with sandals to match and headgear of the same color. The Parisian garment, on the right, is of white taffeta trimmed with broad silk braid of the same color, and cap to match.

FIVE-MINUTE SCALP MASSAGE IMPROVING SKIN OF THROAT

Persuaded In, This Treatment Will Bring Best Results and Hair Will Not Become Oily.

If your scalp is dry and shows dandruff, get a bottle of ordinary red vaseline. Put a very little of the vaseline on the tip of each finger of your hand; then rub the tips of the fingers of the other hand against those that have vaseline on them. There should be apparent then only a slight oiliness of all the finger tips. Next place the finger tips upon the scalp at the edge of the hair, one hand at either side of the head. It does not matter much whether you start at the nape of the neck, or on the forehead, but wherever you do start, let the hands be an even distance apart. For instance, place one in back of each ear. Once started rub the finger tips above each temple, slowly and gently forward, until they meet at the crown of the head, then draw them back to the starting point in the same manner. Repeat this operation until the finger tips become dry, when more vaseline should be applied to them. By means of this five minute massage more vaseline is rubbed into the scalp than one realizes, and it is well nourished thereby.

If the massage is properly carried out, that is to say, always started on the hair line, and little vaseline used, the hair will not become the least oily as a result.

Draped Lace Tunics.

Although perhaps the lace tunic has a tendency to age its wearer it has compensating merits which recommend it to women of middle age and even younger women who have a tendency to stoutness. For the close-fitting pointed tunic of black lace cut with the upper part in the form of a coat tends to make the figure look slim in a manner that many, alas! find eminently desirable as years come fast upon them.

The favorite lace employed is Chantilly, and when one knows how to drape artistically nothing can be more elegant. On the contrary, nothing can be dowdier than a drapery which seeks to be artistic—and fails lamentably in the attempt.

Wash Silk Petticoats.

Wash silk petticoats are a useful addition to any wardrobe, be it limited or not. They are made of somewhat heavy silk. Silk and cotton so-called tub silk, is almost as durable as heavy all-silk material and is more durable for petticoats, at least, than cheap all silk. The petticoats are made in striped pattern with neat bias flounces at the bottom. They can be worn with any light street costumes. One of violet and white in narrow stripes could be worn with tan, green or violet outside skirts; one of tan and white would find many uses, and more decided colors would be useful to wear with a few frocks.

To Gain Health and Beauty.

A teaspoonful of olive oil before each meal is an excellent thing for the nerves as well as a tissue builder, and is said to prevent the joints from becoming stiff and rheumatic. Outwardly applied, it prevents wrinkling, which is caused by a deficiency of fat in the cells of the skin. In cases of extreme waste of tissue larger doses are advised, as the oil is absolutely pure nourishment. Keeping oil in darkness is the secret of its remaining sweet. Cold is less essential than darkness.

Fan Again in Fashion.

The fetching neck ruff remains a great favorite with the girls of the season. A chic girl at a smart afternoon gathering the other day wore the latest and sheerest development of this ruff, which consists of but a single thickness of fine tulle, with nary a pl-

SECRET SERVICE

BEING THE HAPPENINGS OF A NIGHT IN RICHMOND IN THE SPRING OF 1865.

THE PLAY BY WILLIAM GILLETTE; BY CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Varney, wife of a Confederate general, has lost one son and another is dying from wounds. She reluctantly gives her consent for Wilfred, the youngest, to join the army if his father consents. The Federalists are making their last assault in an effort to capture Richmond. Edith Varney secures from President Lincoln a commission for Capt. Thorne, who is just recovering from wounds, as chief of the "Secret Service." Capt. Thorne tells Edith he has been ordered away. She declares he must not go and tells him of the commission from the president. He is strangely agitated and declares he cannot accept. Thorne decides to escape while Edith leaves the room to get the commission, but is prevented by the arrival of Caroline Stafford, Wilfred's sweetheart. Mr. Arrelsford of the Confederate secret service, a rejected suitor of Edith's, detects Thorne's plan. Thorne's butler, carrying a note from a prisoner in Libby prison, Arrelsford suspects it is intended for Thorne. The note reads: "Attack tonight, Plan 3. Use Telegraph." Arrelsford declares Thorne is Lewis Dupont of the Federal secret service, and that his brother Henry is a prisoner in Libby. Edith refuses to believe and suggests that Thorne be confronted with the prisoners as a test. Caroline and Wilfred collaborate on a letter to the general asking permission for Wilfred to join the army. Thorne reports from General Varney for Wilfred to report to the front at once.

CHAPTER VIII.—Continued.

"Are those women in there yet?" he asked peremptorily.

"Yes."

"Where is the key?"

Mrs. Varney left the room and went to the door.

"It is on this side," she said.

"Will you lock it please?"

The woman softly turned the key in the lock, and returned to the drawing room without a sound. As she did so the noise of the opening of one of the long French windows in the front of the room attracted the attention of both of them. Edith Varney entered the room nervously and stepped forward. She began breathlessly, in a low, feverishly excited voice.

"Mamma!"

Mrs. Varney hurried toward her and caught her outstretched hand.

"I want to speak to you," whispered the girl.

"We can't wait," said Arrelsford, stepping forward.

"You must," persisted the girl. She turned to her mother again, "I can't do it, I can't! Oh, let me go!"

"But, my dear," said her mother, "you were the one who suggested that—"

"But I was sure then, and now—"

"Has he confessed?" asked Mrs. Varney.

"No, no," answered the girl with a glance of fear and apprehension toward Arrelsford, who stood staring menacingly at her elbow.

"Don't speak so loud," whispered the secret service agent.

"Edith," said her mother soothingly, "what is it that has changed you?"

She waited for an answer, but none came. The girl's face had been very pale, but it now flushed suddenly with color.

"Dear," said her mother, "you must tell me."

Edith motioned Mr. Arrelsford away. He went with ill-concealed impatience to the far side of the room and waited nervously to give the signal, anxious lest something should miscarry because of this unfortunate unwillingness of the girl to play her part.

"What is it, dear?" whispered her mother.

"Mamma," said Edith, she forced the words out, "he—loves me."

"Impossible!" returned Mrs. Varney, controlling her voice so that the other occupant of the room could not hear.

"Yes," faltered the girl, "and I—some one else must do it."

"You don't mean," said Mrs. Varney, "that you return—"

But Mr. Arrelsford's patience had been strained to the breaking point. He did not know what interchange was going on between the two women, but it must be stopped. He came forward resolutely. The girl saw his determination in his face.

"No, no," she whispered, "not that, not now!"

She shrank away from him as she spoke.

"But, Edith," said Mrs. Varney, "more reason now than ever."

"I don't know what you are talking about," said Mr. Arrelsford, "but we must go on."

"But why—why are you doing this?" asked Edith, pleading desperately.

"Because I please," snapped out the secret service agent, and it was quite evident that he was pleased. Some of his satisfaction was due to the fact that he had by his own efforts at last succeeded in unearthing a desperate plot, and had his hands on the plotters. That he was thereby serving his country and demonstrating his fitness for his position of responsibility and trust also added to his satisfaction, but this was greatly enhanced by the fact that Thorne was his rival, and he could make a guess that he was a successful rival in love as well as in war.

"You have never pleased before," persisted Edith. "Hundreds of suspicious cases have come up—hundreds of men have been run down—but you preferred to sit at your desk in the war department, until—"

"Edith! Edith!" interposed her mother.

"I can't discuss that now," said Arrelsford.

"No, we will not discuss it. I will have nothing more to do with the affair."

"You won't," whispered Arrelsford threateningly.

"Don't say that," urged Mrs. Varney.

"Nothing, nothing, at all," said Edith.

"At your own suggestion, Miss Varney," persisted the secret service agent vehemently, "I agreed to accept a plan by which we could criminate this friend of yours or establish his innocence. When everything is ready you propose to withdraw and make the experiment a failure, perhaps allowing him to escape altogether and being a party to treason against your own country?"

Edith looked down at Arrelsford's set face, with his bitter words, the truth of which she was too just not to acknowledge, ringing in her ears, to the face of her mother. It was a sweet face, full of sympathy and love, but it was set in the same way as the man's.

The patriotism of the woman was aroused. "The kind of help that Edith wanted in her mother's look she did not find there."

"You mustn't do this, Edith; you must do your part," said Mrs. Varney.

The resolution of the girl gave way.

"He is there," she faltered piteously, "he is there at the further end of the veranda. What more do you want of me?" Her voice rose in spite of her efforts to control herself.

"Call him to the room, and do it naturally. If anyone else should do it he would suspect something immediately and be on his guard."

"Very well," said the girl helplessly. "I will call him."

She turned toward the window.

"Wait," said Arrelsford, "one thing more. I want him to have this paper." He handed Edith the communication which had been taken from Jonas earlier in the evening.

"What am I to do with this?" asked the girl, taking it.

"Give it to him, and tell him where at lightness, although her heart was torn to pieces with the emotions of the moment, "what a lot of time there is."

"No," said Thorne, "there is only tonight."

Edith threw out her hand to check what she would have heard, but Thorne caught it. He came closer to her.

"There's only tonight, and you in the world," he said.

"You overwhelm me."

"I can't help myself. I came here determined not to tell you how I loved you, and for the last half hour I have been telling you nothing else. I could tell you all my life and never finish. Ah, my darling, my darling—there's only tonight and you."

Edith swayed toward him for a moment, captivated, influenced by his ardor, but then drew back.

"No, no," she faltered. "You mustn't." She glanced around the room apprehensively. "No, no, no now!"

"You are right," said the man. She dragged herself away from him. He would not retain her against her will, and without a struggle he released her hand.

"You are right. Don't mind what I said, Miss Varney. I have forgotten myself, believe me. I drew further away from her. 'I came to make a brief call, to say good-bye and—'

He turned and walked toward the hall door, after making her a low bow, and it was not without a feeling of joy that she noticed that he walked unsteadily, blindly.

"Oh, Captain Thorne," she said, just as he reached the door, "I—"

He stopped and looked back.

"Before you go I want to ask your advice about something."

"My advice?"

"Yes, it seems to be a military matter, and—"

"What is it?" asked Thorne, turning back.

"What do you think this means?" said the girl, handing him the folded dispatch.

She had intended to look him full in the face as he took it, but at the last moment her courage failed her. She looked away and did not see the instant but quickly mastered start of surprise. She was only conscious that Thorne had possessed himself of the document.

"What is it?" asked Thorne, holding it in his hand.

"That is what I want you to tell me," said the girl.

"Oh, don't you know?" said Thorne, now entirely master of himself.

"No," answered the girl, but there was something in her voice which now fully aroused the suspicions of the man.

"It appears to be a note from some one," he said casually, "but it is so dark in here. With your permission, I will light some of the candles on the table, and then we can see what it is."

He took one of the candles from the sconces on the wall and lighted the candelabra that stood on the nearest table. Holding the paper near the light, he glanced around rapidly, and then read it, giving no outward evidence of his surprise and alarm, although the girl was now watching him narrowly. He glanced at her and then looked at the paper again, and slowly read aloud its message.

"Attack tonight!" he said very deliberately. "Umph, 'Plan 3? Attack tonight, plan 3!' This seems to be in some code, Miss Varney, or a puzzle."

"It was taken from a Yankee prisoner."

"From a Yankee prisoner?" he exclaimed in brilliantly assumed surprise.

"Yes, one captured today. He is down at Libby now. He gave it to one of our servants, old Jonas, and—"

"That's a little different," said Thorne, examining the paper again. "It puts another face on the matter. This may be something important. 'Attack tonight,'" he read again, "'Plan 3, use telegraph.'" This sounds important to me, Miss Varney. It looks to me like a plot to use the department telegraph lines. To whom did Jonas give it?"

"To no one."

"Well, how did you—"

"We took it away from him," answered Edith.

This was a very different statement from her original intention, but for the moment the girl forgot her part.

"Oh," said Thorne, "I think that was a mistake."

"A mistake?"

"Yes."

"But why?"

"You should have let him deliver it, but it is too late now. Never mind." He turned toward the door.

Edith caught him by the arm. Was he going out to certain death or what?

"What are you going to do?" she asked breathlessly.

"Find Jonas, and make him tell for whom this paper was intended. He is the man we want."

The girl released him, and caught her throat with her hand.

"Captain Thorne," she choked out, and there was joy and triumph in her face, "they have lied about you."

Thorne turned to her quickly.

"Lied about me?" he exclaimed.

"What do you mean?"

He caught the girl's hands in his and bent over her.

"Don't be angry," pleaded Edith, "I didn't think it would be like this."

"Yes, yes, but what do you mean?"

Edith sought to draw her hands away from him, but Thorne would not be denied.

"I must know," he said.

"Let me go," pleaded the girl, "don't you understand?"

But what she might have said further was interrupted by the sharp, stern voice of the corporal outside. He spoke loud and clearly, there was no necessity for precaution now.

"This way! Look out for that side, will you?"

Thorne released the hands of the woman he loved and stood listening. Edith Varney took advantage of such a diversion to dart through the upper door, the nearer one, into the hall.

"Don't want to be here now," she said, as she flew away.

Thorne's hand went to his revolver which hung at his belt. He had not time to draw it before the corporal and the two men burst through the door. There were evidently others outside. Thorne's hand fell away from his revolver, and his position was one of charming nonchalance.

"Out here!" cried the corporal to one of the soldiers. "Look out there!" pointing to the doorway through which the two men instantly disappeared.

"What is it, corporal?" asked Thorne composedly.

The corporal turned and saluted.

"Prisoner, sir, broke out of Libby! We've run him down the street, and he turned in here somewhere. If he comes in that way, would you be good enough to let us know?"

"Go on, corporal," said Thorne coolly. "I'll look out for this window."

He stepped down the long room toward the far window, drew the curtains, and with his hand on his revolver, peered out into the trees beyond the front of the house.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

"Prisoner, Sir, Broke Out of Libby," it came from. Tell him old Jonas got it from a prisoner at Libby prison and brought it to you."

"But why am I to do this?" asked the girl.

"Why not? If he is innocent, what's the harm? If not, if he is in the plot and we can't catch him otherwise, the message on the paper will send him to the telegraph office tonight, and that's where we want him."

"But I never promised that," said the girl with obvious reluctance to do anything not only that might tend to harm the suspected, but that might work to the furtherance of Arrelsford's designs.

"Do you still believe him innocent?" sneered the man.

Edith lifted her head and for the first time she looked Arrelsford full in the face.

"I still believe him innocent," answered the girl slowly and with deliberate emphasis.

"Then why are you afraid to give him the paper?" asked Arrelsford, directly with cunning adroitness.

The girl, thus entrapped, clasped the paper to her breast, and turned toward the window. Her mind was made up, but it was not necessary for her to call. Her ear, tuned to every sound he made, caught the noise of his footfall on the porch. She turned her head and spoke to the other two.

"Captain Thorne is coming," she whispered expressionlessly, "unless you want to be seen, you had better go."

"Here, this way, Mrs. Varney," said Arrelsford, taking that lady by the arm and going down to the far end to the door covered by the portieres.

The two disappeared, and it was impossible for a soul to see them in the darkness of the hall, although they could see clearly enough, even in the dimly lighted drawing room, everything that would happen. Edith stood as if rooted to the floor, the paper still in her hand, when Thorne opened the door and entered in his turn the window through which she had come a short time before. He stepped eagerly toward her.

"You were so long," he whispered, "coming for me, that—"

"No," said Edith, "I stopped abruptly and looked at her face, "is anything the matter?"

"No."

"You had been away such a long time that I thought—"

"Only a few minutes."

"Edith! Edith!" interposed her mother.

"I can't discuss that now," said Arrelsford.

"No, we will not discuss it. I will have nothing more to do with the affair."

"You won't," whispered Arrelsford threateningly.

"Don't say that," urged Mrs. Varney.

"Nothing, nothing, at all," said Edith.

"The Difference in Men. One man will settle down into the routine of his calling, digging the ruts deeper each day, until he loses power to see out from them. Another, in the same vocation, shows an ability to make each day's work a source of new growth in power and in appreciation. So, one person will rest passively on the fact of some well-established love or friendship, and thus lose, after a time, the beauty of the relationship and the meaning once possessed for his life; while another actively weds the love of his friend every day, and so finds a deep, ever opening below deep in the relationship, with an ever fresh realization of the truth and wonder of life—Edward Howard Griggs

"Wonderful Work of Dogs. If These Are Not Inventions of Drummers, They Surely Are Remarkable Animals. The grocery drummer from Chicago had just made some remarks about household pets, which awakened a memory in the mind of the agent from the New York house, out selling securities. 'Speaking of that,' said he, flicking the ashes off the end of his cigar, 'I'm very fond of dogs. I have a pointer at home that's a wonder. Taking him altogether, he is the most intelligent animal I ever saw. You gentlemen may not believe it, but it is nevertheless a fact that whenever I go out riding in my motor through a hitherto untraveled country I always take Roger along with me, and he sits up alongside of me in front. Whenever we come to a crossroad, and I find myself up a tree as to which turning to take, I simply put the question to him, and in every blessed case he has instinctively pointed in the right direction.'

EXCELLENT WAY TO PITCH TO SLUGGERS

Ira Thomas, Veteran Catcher of Athletics.

The question often arises among fans and players as to what ball should be pitched to heavy sluggers. Have they, every one questions, a so-called "hole" where it is impossible for them to hit, or would it be better for the pitcher to stick them over and trust to luck to have them hit the ball at some of the fielders.

Ira Thomas, the veteran catcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, probably gives the best answer.

"I think the best thing to do," says Thomas, "is to let them hit, taking care, however, that the ball be thrown across their shoulders where they can't get the benefit of a powerful shoulder swing."

"It probably has been shown, through years of big league batting, that these heavy hitters crack everything, low or high, wide or on the inside side. The records show them to hit far above 300 each year. Such statistics show, of themselves, that these hitters can't be fooled consistently. The best pitchers in the league have tried it and have failed."

PLAYERS AMISS IN RUNNING

Most of Them Would Benefit Greatly by Instruction in Scientific Principles of Sprinting.

"A man that is continually losing the decision by half a step," said John J. McGraw, manager of the champion Giants, in talking on the subject of base running, "will never win a close game for you. As far as results are concerned the ball might just as well beat him to first by thirty feet as by three. Real speed on a team consists of just that extra half step."

It is probable other managers realize this fact as well as McGraw. It seems strange, therefore, that spring training does not include expert coaching in the art of sprinting. There are few ball players who in the hands of Mike Murphy would not learn to run much faster than they do.

Few of the men have any idea of the scientific principles of sprinting. Any one who has watched ball players closely and noticed the manner of running and the length of their stride will realize they do not run with the same power and efficiency as the trained short-distance man. In the first place most of them, while they move their feet and legs fast, take a short stride and run with an up and down motion. They also waste time by throwing the foot far out behind them. Then, too many of them turn their toes out.

Any trainer will tell you that a man is capable of taking only a limited number of strides in a specified time. The object is, therefore, to carry him over every inch of ground possible at each stride and to do it with the least waste of effort. Barney Wefers is said to have taken a nine-foot stride. Many ball players with limbs just as long do not stride over five feet. It seems reasonable to suppose that a really good coach by teaching players quick starting and the proper method of sprinting could give many of them that extra step or half step which in a ball game often measures the distance between victory and defeat.

HOPE OF THE BOSTON TEAM

Hub Purdue Has Been First Class Pitcher for Last Two Years and With a Losing Club.

No baseball club is so weak that it does not boast of at least one star, and the lowly Boston Doves is no exception to the rule. The Boston team has three players who would strengthen any team in either major league—Second Baseman Sweeney and Pitchers Tyler and Purdue. "Hub" Purdue has been a first-class pitcher for the last two years, even with a losing team behind him, and he started in again this year by blanking the champion New York Giants in the opening game in New York city, allowing McGraw's men but two hits in nine innings.

FREAKIEST HOMER ON RECORD

"Granger" Woods Knocks Ball Into Gopher Hole and Scores Winning Run of Exciting Game.

"Granger" Woods, who used to star in the box for Oklahoma City during that city's participation in the old Western association, won a hotly contested baseball game, during last season, at Canton, Okla., when a ball that he hit through the shortstop, rolled into a gopher hole, giving Woods a home run and the only tally in the game. The play happened in the ninth inning.

Both Woods and Woodworth, who opposed him at Canton, were pitching for Watonga regularly, but having an off day they agreed to pitch for Canton and Hitehook. Both pitchers were going at their best and the two teams were unable to hit when hits would bring in runs. There was considerable rivalry between the two boxmen and this was the first time they had pitched against one another.

In the ninth inning, with the score 0 to 0 and hits very few, Woods came to bat. The second ball thrown by Woodworth was knocked through the shortstop and rolled into a gopher hole, about a third of the distance out toward the center fielder. The outfielders worked hard to get the ball but before they could recover it, Woods had made the circuit and won the game.

Takes Addie Joss' Place.

Fred Falkenberg, who looks like the late Addie Joss and pitches like him, too, has taken the place in the hearts of the Cleveland fans once held by Joss. While Joss was alive many fans aimed their visits to ball games to strike those days when Addie was slated to pitch, and now many who can't attend regularly pick the days when Falky is due to work for the Naps. For Falky is Cleveland's most consistent winner, just as Joss was the Naps' best heaver.

Champion Base Stealer.

Clyde Milan, the Washington outfielder, is leading both leagues in base stealing.

CAREER OF CLAUDE ROSSMAN

Former Detroit First Sacker Now Playing in the Outfield With Minneapolis Team.

Claude Rossman, the former Detroit Tiger, playing with the Minneapolis team, was born in Columbia county, New York, June 15, 1881. Rossman has the unique distinction of having been a member of seven pennant-winning teams. The list of championship outfits consists of Holyoke (1903), Des Moines (1905), Detroit (1907-8), Minneapolis (1910-11-12). He began his career at Holyoke in 1903, and the next spring was tried out by Cleveland, but returned to Holyoke and finished the season of 1904 there.

The following season he was with Des Moines. Rossman returned to Cleveland in 1906, and after a season with the Naps was traded to Detroit. He was with Detroit two years, and then was traded to the St. Louis Browns. He refused to report, and

NOTES OF THE DIAMOND

Earl Moore is the widest crossfire pitcher in either league.

Ed Kinetchy of the Cardinals is after his 1912 record in long hitting.

Jack Daubert's heavy stick work is helping the Dodgers win many games.

Robby Wallace is doing service for the eighteenth year in the big leagues.

Pittsburgh's ray of comfort is that Kommer, the Koming Kid, was once rejected by McGraw.

Stuffy McInnes is said to play closer to second base than any other first baseman in the business.

Ivy Wingo, the Cardinal's catcher, is accused by Charley Doin of possessing even redder hair than he (Doin) totes.

The early starting hour for ball games has taken a pretty firm hold on the minors as well as the major leaguers.

Bill Carrington and Billy Sullivan can do more quiet and effective kidding of batsmen than almost anyone else in baseball.

Bill Carrington has rounded to his proper form and his great work has had much to do with the recent success of the Red Sox.

Manager Griffith is looking for southpaws. Griff believes the portside would help him along greatly in his pennant chase.

"And still the Giants have a weakness," says a New York scribe. "They cannot bunt when they want to advance a runner."

President Hedges of the St. Louis Browns is thinking of closing a contract for the Browns to train in Key West, Fla., next spring.

King Cole has the promise of President Murphy of the Cubs that he will be bought by the Chicago club if he makes good in the minors.

Wingo has the best batting average of the St. Louis Cardinals, but Kinetchy has driven in more runs and Huggins has scored more.

President McAleer of Boston, is seeking another substitute infielder, as both Hall and Janvrin are lacking in important respects—particularly batting.

The Red Sox possess a battery of identically the same age. Wood and Nunamaker both were born on October 25, 1889. Bedient was born two days earlier.

Jake Northrup, the young pitcher, dropped in Louisville in the spring of 1912 by the Cubs, has been doing some very effective work for the Colonels this year.

Claude Rossman.

was out of the game during 1909. The next season he signed with Columbus. Later he was released to Minneapolis, where he changed his position to the outfield. Rossman ranked fourth in the American association in batting last season.

Record Rise for Pitcher.

Pitcher Dave Griner of the St. Louis Cardinals has risen rapidly, in fact jumped up. A year ago he was pitching for the Mooney school team of Harrison, Tenn. When the school year closed he joined the Cardinals and now is one of their most dependable twirlers.

Lajole Lauds Ray Morgan.

Ray Morgan, the second sacker of the Senators, is being lauded by Larry Lajole. "He is the most improved ball player I have seen in one year's time, and in a couple of seasons I believe will be the leading second baseman in the league," said the Frenchman.

Wonderful Work of Dogs

"I can well believe that," said the grocery drummer. "I have a retriever in my house that is quite as wonderful. I don't believe my wife and I could possibly get along without him. If my wife mislays anything, from a rolling pin to a bridge score, anywhere around the house, all she has to do is to set Bob after it, and he finds it. When I am in a hurry to catch a train in the morning and my collar button slips out of my hands and disappears, as collar buttons are almost certain to do at such moments, good old Bob gives a yelp of delight and goes after it, saving me no end of trouble, much time, and some language."—Lippincott's Magazine.

A Testimonial.

"I admire that old plug of a car you sold me, Dubbs," said Winkleton sarcastically. "It shows such admirable self-control."

"What do you mean by that?" retorted Dubbs, seating trouble.

"Why, as you said when you induced me to buy it, it can go 75 miles an hour, but it won't," said Winkleton.

NOT YET THE SINLESS WORLD

Spanish Penology Expert Illustrates Point With an Appropriate "Watermelon" Story.

Secor Fernando Cadalso, Spain's inspector general of prisons, said recently in New York that he thought the time had not yet come for the abolition of capital punishment.

"The world is not yet civilized enough for this experiment," he continued. "The world, you know, is still a good deal in the state of the colored people in the watermelon story. I heard this story from one of your clever southern editors. He said that a man was a good deal troubled by thieves in his watermelon patch and so he called up his old gardener and began:

"Uncle Eli, I'm trying an experiment with Doc Sawyer in the south watermelon patch. The melons there are a poison variety, and if any of your colored friends touch them they'll be killed, sure. You'd better warn them, hadn't you?"

"Sartenly I had, sah," said Uncle Eli. "I'll warn 'em, sah. Trust me."

"And do you think your warning'll have any effect? Do you think it will protect the south patch from theft?"

"What I think, sah," said Uncle Eli, scratching his head, "is dat there'll be a lot o' dade niggers round dat patch, dat's what I thinks, sah."

For "Mr. Fragile." A man with an express package under his arm, stepped up to the box office window of a New York theater and, addressing Frank Loomis, asked: "Anybody here named Fragile?"

"No," replied Loomis. "Well, that's the name on this package."

Loomis took a look. The box was addressed to the manager of the London pictures. Over the address was subscribed: "Fragile!"

Good Reason. "Does Larkin boast of his family tree?"

"No. It's too shady."

Horrible examples are the kind a schoolboy encounters in his arithmetic.

POLISHED FLOOR NEEDS CARE

Methods by Which It May Be Made to Last Long and Always Appear at Its Best.

The first step in polishing a soft wood floor is to see that it is perfectly smooth and clean. It has been already painted or varnished the stains should be removed with strong ammonia and thorough scraping. When all cracks and dents should be closed with putty and a "filler" applied all over. This can be purchased at most oil and varnish shops, and should either be mixed with a little color or a sufficient quantity of floor stain should be added. The filler should be put on with a flat brush or piece of cloth and worked in one direction with the grain of the wood, while on completion of the process the room should be closed for 24 hours. At the end of that time the boards should be rubbed until they shine, with a long-handled, heavy weighted broom, over which a piece of carpet has been tacked, and this process may be repeated at intervals. Finally the floor may be polished with boiled linseed oil and turpentine, this mixture being rubbed well in with a cloth and then left for an hour or two to dry, after which it must be again polished with the weighted broom.

Instead of a final touch of this description, the floor may be finished with a coat of varnish or shellac or with some prepared hardwood treatment, both of which should be put on evenly and thinly with a weighted brush or with an old piece of carpet. In order to keep the floor at its best after the polishing process has been completed, it should never be washed with water, but after all the dust has been removed crude petroleum should be rubbed in and left to dry.

MAIL AROUND THE HOUSE

Endives, stewed, make a pleasant change as a vegetable. Cold sauce or fruit added to junket makes a pleasant change. To cook macaroni without sticking use a vessel with a sieve bottom. To clean rusty knitting needles rub with kerosene and polish with pumice.

People who suffer from acidity should eat acid fruit with farinaceous food.

Fishes don't come around without being invited and the invitation consists of refuse.

With a steam cooker an entire meal can be cooked over one burner of the gas stove.

In cooking asparagus for salad it should be dropped into cold water when done.

Flowered cretonnes make the best covers for beds on the out-of-doors sleeping porch.

The most economical way to cook mushrooms is to stew them, because all the stalks can be used.

Left-over strips of wall paper can be used for the "lining papers" that are put under straw matting.

Fruit Frappe With Nuts. Almost every woman nowadays has her own special frappe combination, with which she delights to mystify her guests. Into the bottom of the frappe glass put a generous spoonful of preserved strawberries, on top of the berries come the ice cream, vanilla in this case, then a spoonful of whipped cream, and on top of the cream a grating of English walnuts. All sorts of fruit combinations are used as foundation for the frappes, and the covering for the whipped cream is variously cocoa, grated macaroons, chopped nuts, a sprinkle of cinnamon or candied rose leaves.

Pretty little frappe glasses in the American pressed ware light and dainty, can now be purchased as low as 80 cents a dozen. In serving, each glass is set on a pretty china plate with a little doily between the glass and the plate. A spoon, of course, goes with it.

Vegetarian Sausages. One and one-half cups lima beans, two tablespoons butter, one teaspoon salt, a dash tabasco sauce. Soak the beans over night, cook them in salted water until soft, drain perfectly dry and then squeeze the pulp through a potato ricer. Beat in the butter and seasoning. If not moist enough, add one beaten egg or as much of it as required, making the paste so soft that it can be rolled into croquettes. Shape like sausage, dip in beaten egg and flour, and fry in butter until brown.

Useful for Carrying Dishes. A cheese box with part of a barrel hoop for a handle makes a very convenient tray for carrying several dishes of food—to or from the cellar, from kitchen to dining room, etc., says Farm and Fireside. One can use it also for bringing vegetables from the cellar or in from the garden. A coat of enamel paint makes the tray easy to keep clean and fresh-looking.

Bran for Cleaning. Bran filled into cheesecloth bags is excellent for cleaning wall paper. It is also better than soap for the bathtub and for the neck, face and hands nothing is better. It is as cleansing for clothes as for the body. Boiled and the water used the same as soap suds, it is as satisfactory for delicate fabrics as soap and does not injure the color.

To Bleach Faded Blouses and Dresses. The colored dress or blouse that has become faded with frequent launderings, or from wear in the sun, may be bleached to a clear white by boiling in cream of tartar water. The correct quantity to be used to make the garment a pure white is a teaspoonful of the powder to a quart of water.

Useful Hint. When washing sateen always use a good-sized pearl button to one corner of the dishcloth. This is very good, as it simplifies washing up tremendously.

THE CHILDREN

THOUSANDS OF DRAGON FLIES

Queer Sight Witnessed by a French Naturalist While Making a Tour Through Morbihan.

A professor of zoology at Lille, M. Charles Barrios, was making a tour through Morbihan, in France. As he was walking along the road he noticed that a multitude of dragon flies were alighting on the telegraph wires. The singular thing about it was that they all rested at an equal distance from each other, and all occupied the same position, with head turned toward the west.

From all sides the dragon flies arrived and always placed themselves in the same position, and at the same distance from each other. They remained as if glued to the wire, motionless and paralyzed. Each new arrival flew over the fixed bodies of the others and took its place in the line. This chain stretched itself out toward the west, and turned toward the setting sun. Professor Barrios followed the route for a long distance and found the same strange phenomenon. He estimated the number at 60,000, at least. At an abrupt turn of the road to the south, the telegraph line turned also. There not a dragon fly was in sight! The wire was absolutely free from them! With the change of direction it seemed to have lost attraction for them.

Was this chance? Did the electric currents running from the east to the west exercise any influence upon these insects? Was it the solar refraction? Explain it, who can. In any case it would be interesting to know whether this phenomenon be an isolated one or not.

KING'S SIGNPOST IS QUaint

Surmounted by Device in Oak, Depicting the God Tyr and the Great Mythological Wolf.

The illustration shows a signpost remarkable for its decorative qualities which King George of England has just had erected by the roadside near Wolferton railway station on the Sandringham estate. The post is surmounted by a device in oak, carved, painted, and gilded, depicting the god

Tyr trying to wrench his arm from the jaws of Fenrir, the great mythological wolf of the old Norsemen, after whom, it is supposed, Wolferton was named. The wolf was symbolical of Fate. In the background is a representation of the gilded rooms of Asgard.

RIDDLES.

Why are fishermen and shepherds like beggars? Because they live by hook or by crook.

Why is a thief picking a corner's pocket reminded of a line in Othello? Because "who steals his purse steals trash."

Why is a shoeblack like an editor? Because he polishes the understanding of his patrons.

Why is a whisper like a forged note? Because it is uttered but not aloud (allowed).

When is a sheep like ink? When you take it up into the pen.

What is the best way to keep a man's love? Not to return it.

What is a button? A small event that is always coming off.

What are the most difficult ships to conquer? Hardships.

Why is an ass the most unfortunate creature? Because he gets nothing in the pound.

Why have we reason to doubt the Quaint causeway? Because Ireland abounds with sham-rocks.

In a Cow's Mouth, Too. Tom, five years old, sat looking at a plate of cold tongue, says the Indianapolis News.

"What's that?" he asked at last. "Cold tongue," was the answer. "Are we going to eat it?" "Certainly."

"Well, have we ever had any before?" "Yes."

"Did I eat it?" "Of course you did."

"Well, what do you think of that? And after it had been in a cow's mouth?"

NEAT AFTER-DINNER TRICKS

Really Interesting Scientific Experiment Showing How Compressed Air May Be Used.

An apparently empty bottle may be made to blow out a candle. The trick is really an interesting scientific experiment, showing how compressed air, directly the pressure which confines it is removed, tends to assume the normal density of the atmosphere. We take an ordinary bottle and, sealing that it is empty and dry, we place the ball of the thumb over the mouth and just a small aperture uncovered. Then, placing our mouth to this, we blow steadily and continuously into the bottle.

The result is that the air in the bottle is compressed. When we take our mouth away we insure that no air shall escape by instantly closing the whole aperture with the ball of the thumb which is already pressed over part of the opening.

Now we invert the bottle and, placing the mouth against the flame of a lighted candle, we remove so much of our hand as will make an opening similar to that into which we blow.

The result is that the compressed air, directly the pressure is removed, rushes out and blows upon the flame. It is well to use a small candle, as if we have a large candle with a big flame the pressure may not be sufficient to extinguish the flame. If we perform the trick in front of a number of spectators we must not let them see us blow into the bottle. This part of the performance can be done outside the room, and we can bring the bottle in with our thumb over the opening, keeping it there till the moment when we want to release the air. This can be done in such a way as not to attract notice.

METALS DEARER THAN GOLD

Iridium, for instance, is Three Times as Expensive—Osmium is Dearer and Heavier.

Gold is generally looked on as the last word in costliness, but, as a matter of fact, there are more metals dearer than gold than there are cheaper. The number of known metals is about seventy.

Iridium, for instance, of which a big find was made the other day in Austria, is three times as expensive as gold. Gold is worth nearly $20 an ounce. Iridium is worth some $62, though the price will probably come down now.

Osmium is another metal much dearer than gold. It costs about $60 an ounce. It is by far the heaviest of all known substances, being more than 22 times as heavy as water. If pennies were made of osmium it would take one's strength to carry the change of half a dollar. This metal has the peculiar property of being able to stand without melting the most intense heat known.

Palladium, about $40 an ounce, is just the reverse. It is quite easy to make palladium vanish in steam. Being of a white, silvery color, and unmarkable, it is used for the division marks on scales and delicate scientific instruments.

VEHICLE SWING IS INVENTED

Mechanical Device Affords Exhilarating Exercise and Considerable Amusement for All.

The Scientific American in describing a vehicle swing, invented by O. Zimmerman of Los Angeles, Cal., says: "The object of the invention is to provide a mechanical swing arranged to provide an exhilarating exercise and considerable amusement to young and old using the swing, to insure safety in the use of the vehicle swing and to guard against a tendency of producing dizziness of the user. For the purpose named, use is made of a suspended link pivotedly supporting at its lower end a supporting frame provided at one end with wheels and seats, the wheels being adapted to travel on the ground, on the floor, or rails or other suitable support.

ODDITIES OF FEW LANGUAGES

Germans Call Thimble a "Finger Hat" and French Have No Words for "Baby or Home."

The following are a few linguistic whimsicalities. The Germans call a thimble a "finger hat," which it certainly is, and a grasshopper a "hand shoe," showing evidently that they wore shoes before gloves. Poultry is "feather cattle," while the names for the well-known substances oxygen and hydrogen are in their language "sour stuff" and "water stuff." The French, strange to say, have no verb "to stand," nor can a Frenchman speak of "kicking" anyone. The nearest approach a Frenchman makes to it in his politeness is to threaten to "give a blow with his foot"—the same thing in either case, but it is not to want the directness, the energy of our "kick." Neither has he any word for "baby" or "home" or "comfort." The terms "upstairs" and "downstairs" are also unknown in French. The Hindus are said to have no word for "friend." The Italians have no word for "humility."

SOME GOOD EATING.

Here is the ideal summer dessert. Peach Sherbet.—Put a pound of sugar and a quart of water on to boil twenty minutes, let cool, then add one and a half cups of peach pulp, the strained juice of an orange, and the juice of half a lemon. Freeze.

A Novel Sponge Cake.—The ingredients for this cake are four eggs, a cup of sugar and a cup of flour. Beat the whites very dry and fold in the sugar, a quarter of a cup at a time. Add the yolks one at a time, cutting and folding them in, adding so lightly that the whites will be streaked with yellow. Cut the flour into the mixture in the same way and bake in a slow oven in a buttered pan. Do not stir to remove the streaks for it will spoil the texture of the cake.

Grilled Chicken and Mushrooms.—Any pieces of cold chicken will serve for this dish. Sprinkle the pieces with red pepper and salt, brush with melted butter and toss in fine bread crumbs. Place in a hot oven, cut the stalks from half a pint of mushrooms, place them in a saucer with two table-spoonfuls of butter, a dust of mace, pepper, salt, a squeeze of lemon juice, a quarter of a cup of stock or water and a tablespoonful of flour. Cook gently for five minutes, then pour on to small pieces of toast. Prepare the chicken and serve around the toast. Serve hot.

Bacon, Toast and Tomatoes.—Cook very thin slices of bacon until crisp, place on narrow strips of toasted bread. Cook tomatoes in the hot fat and serve with the toast and bacon.

Cucumbers With Brown Sauce.—Put three or four medium sized cucumbers sliced in halves lengthwise then in halves crosswise. Scrape out the seeds, season each with salt and pepper, and roll in flour; saute in hot drippings until well browned, drain, place in a saucer and cover with brown stock, simmer until tender. Arrange on toast and pour the sauce over.

Raspberry Jam spread between the layers of a plain cake and the top covered with whipped cream, makes a delicious cake to eat fresh.

If the women of the world would develop a sense of beauty, would apply it first, to that body which is the fairest thing God ever made; second, to the fit clothing of that fair body; in all honor to the immortal soul within, they would do more to elevate the race and purify politics than even the right of suffrage will accomplish. —Ellen Richards.

GRUELS FOR THE INVALID.

For those who have the care of the "What shall I prepare that my patient will enjoy and be able to digest?" Gruels are cooked mixtures of flour and grains with water or milk. The milk should not be added until the gruel is thoroughly cooked.

The important point to remember in preparing gruel is that a long time is needed to soften and dissolve the starch of the grains, which is not easily digested unless well cooked.

Gruels should be taken slowly, in order to allow the saliva to act upon the starch and be thoroughly mixed in the mouth.

Cracker Gruel.—Mix together four tablespoonfuls of fine sifted cracker crumbs, a teaspoonful of sugar and a teaspoonful of salt; cook with a cup of boiling water for two minutes, then strain it with a sieve. Serve without straining. This gruel may be more palatable to some if the sugar is omitted.

Indian Meal Gruel.—Blend a tablespoonful of Indian meal, a half tablespoonful of flour, a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of cold water and a cup and a half of boiling water. Boil on the back of the stove an hour and a half. Dilute with milk or cream. Strain and serve.

Oatmeal Gruel.—Pound or grind a half cup of oatmeal, put into a tumbler and fill it with water. Stir and pour off the meal water into a saucer. Fill the tumbler again, stir and pour off, and repeat as long as the water looks milky. Set the sauce pan on the back of the stove and let the mixture simmer for an hour, or cook in a double boiler two hours. Strain, season with salt and serve. Thin with milk or cream. If too thick.

Don't Poison Baby.

Forty years ago almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

TRUE SPIRIT OF THE HOME

Serenity and Wisdom of Wife and Mother Dew and Sunshine to Growing Souls.

Wherever the great and beautiful work of art, a home, had come into being, the wife and mother has had her paramount existence in that home though her interests and activities have not necessarily been limited to its sphere, declares Ellen Key in the Atlantic. But husband and children have been able to count on her in the home as they could count on the fire on the hearth, the cool shade under the tree, the water in the well, the bread in the sacrament. Thus upon husband and children is bestowed the experience which a great poet gained from his mother. "All became to her a wreath!" A wreath where every day's toil and holiday's joy, hours of labor and moments of rest, were leaf and blossom and ribbon. The wise educator is never one who is "educated" from morning to night. She is one who, unconsciously to the children, brings to them the chief sustenance and creates the supreme conditions for their growth. Primarily she is the one who, through the serenity and wisdom of her own nature, is dew and sunshine to growing souls. She is one who understands how to demand in just measure, and to give at the right moment. She is one whose desire is law, whose smile is reward, whose disapproval is punishment, whose caress is benediction.

Assisted by Cuticura Ointment, it is most valuable in the treatment of eczemas, rashes and itching, burning infantile eruptions. Cuticura Soap wears to a wrath, often outlasting several cakes of ordinary soap and making its use most economical.

His sister's French teacher arriving shortly after, it fell to Thomas to entertain her until his sister appeared.

BETTER BARGAINS IN FURNITURE

cannot be found in this town, than at our store. Do you ask why? The answer is, because the quality of the material is a little better to begin with, than is generally used, which gives a better appearance to the finished product. Another reason is that we are in such close touch with the manufacturers we can buy better than many others. If you want better furniture than others are selling, you had better see us.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses of from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. Cheney & Co. Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

—Don't correspond on plain paper. Printed in much nicer and costs little or no more. See the Statesman.

About the "Twin Tables"

"Twin" Pedestal Extension Tables

We also carry a full line of FURNITURE, PIANOS, SEWING MACHINES, VACUUM CLEANERS, TRUNKS, SUIT CASES, SHEET MUSIC, MUSIC BOOKS, BEDS, BEDDING, CURTAINS AND SHADES.

Up to this time, Pedestal Tables have been made with a single pedestal, but their shortcomings are so many that one manufacturer has succeeded in overcoming them by using two pedestals—each oval or oblong and complete in itself. They are called "Twin" Pedestal Extension Tables.

They are superior to others because: No troublesome lock necessary. Gaping or standing open at bottom impossible. As perfect extended as when closed.

In extending a "Twin" to 6 ft. the tops open without spreading pedestals. Prevents marring of finish on legs. If extended further than this the pedestals spread, giving the most rigid support possible without exposing unfinished surfaces, locks, bolts, etc., as is the case with the single pedestal tables, a feature worthy of your attention, especially when entertaining friends at luncheon or if table is continually used, in the extended position.

"Twins" are made in numerous designs and finishes. CALL AND INSPECT THEM
