PRIZES NOW ON EXHIBITION

Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers of Milwaukee Have Made Final Arrangements

The fifth annual picnic and dance to be given by the Phil Sheridan Lodge No. 385, B. of L. F. and E. of Milwaukee in the North Side Park in this village on Sunday, August 17th, promises to be a bigger and grander affair than ever before.

A committee in charge of the picnic was in the village Monday, and placed on exhibition in the E. J. Lay Lumber Co's. show window all of the prizes to be awarded. The prizes to be given away this year are better than were given before by the Lodge. The committee as a whole request and urge that more of the people of Kewaskum and vicinity participate in the various games.

The program for the day will be opened with the arrival of a special train, which will leave Milwaukee at 9 A. M., and arrive here about 10:30 A. M. Immediately after the arrival of the train, a ball game between the C. M. & St. P. and Kewaskum will be played on Bilgo's grounds, near the park. For a special prize, the game will be a hummer. The games and contests will be pulled off at 2 P. M. These will be open to all. In the evening a grand ball will be held in Eberle's large hall. Music throughout the entire day will be furnished by Dunker's orchestra of Milwaukee.

The visit of the Phil Sheridan Lodge is made to this village annually. Their visits have always been welcome and the businessmen as a whole this year extend to them a most cordial welcome. The admission to the park will be free, and dance tickets will cost 50 cents. Be sure to attend this picnic and dance and enjoy a pleasant days outing.

Elsewhere in the paper you will find a complete program for the day.

Small Flock Fattening Best For Market Poultry

That chickens intended for market should be divided into small flocks and should be fed heavily on fattening feeds, which give them range in a small grass enclosure is the belief of Prof. James G. Halpin of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin. It has been found that as a rule the average farmer pays little or no attention to the fattening of his market fowls, taking them to market directly from the range.

A mixture of four parts of ground corn and one part of wheat bran mixed with enough water to make a moist mash is the ration best adapted to small flocks, according to Prof. Halpin, who recommends that they be fed only such quantities of the feed as they will clean up in 20 minutes.

Mothers! Have Your Children Worms!

Are they feverish, restless, nervous, irritable, dizzy or constipated? Do they continually pick their nose or grind their teeth? Have they cramping pains, irregular and ravenous appetite? These are all signs of worms. Worms not only cause your child suffering, but stunt its mind and growth. Give "Kickapoo Worm Killer" at once. It kills and removes the worms, improves your child's appetite, regulates stomach, liver and bowels. The symptoms disappear and your child is made happy and healthy, as nature intended. All druggists or by mail, 25c. KICKAPOO INDIAN MED. CO., Philadelphia, Pa. St. Louis, Mo.

Takes Interest in You

Your home newspaper heralded to the world your birth. It told of your entry into school. Mentioned your birthday party when you were sweet sixteen. Applauded your graduating from the high school, started you in college and upon your return mentioned the first job you secured. Told of your marriage to the sweetest town girl and also mentioned the advent (or event) of your first born. Told of the visit of pa and ma, sympathized with you in your sorrow, laughed with you in your joy, and when you die it will do its best to get you through the pearly gates at only $1.50 a year.

Have Close Call

Theodore Eisenbraut and Esther Raether narrowly escaped serious injury, or perhaps fatality, last Saturday evening from an incoming passenger train. They were returning home in the former's Metz runabout, and were nearing the railroad crossing when passenger train No 107 was pulling into the village. Several people from the platform of the depot halted Mr. Eisenbraut, and by his quick presence of mind, he turned his auto toward the sidewalk, thereby preventing a collision.

Place of Interment Changed

On Tuesday, undertakers Meisler and Hart transferred the remains of the late Paul Konitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Konitz of this village, from Gage's cemetery to Union cemetery at West Bend. It was upon wish of Mr. and Mrs. Konitz, that the remains of their late son, were transferred.

Clean Out Those Rascals

"Bug-Mite" liquid or powder, will positively rid Ants, Roaches, Buffalo Bugs, and Bed Bugs. Sure death. For sale at all stores, 25 and 25 cents per can. Take no substitute.—Adv. 3m

DECAPITS AFTER MURDEROUS ASSAULT

Herman Benike, who on Sunday evening, July 27th, committed a murderous assault on Wm. Obermeyer, assessor of the town of West Bend, has escaped to Ohio and will, unless he returns, remain unpunished. The attack occurred at the Obermeyer home, and was caused by Obermeyer reprimanding Benike for using foul language, whereupon he was clubbed with a slab almost three feet long until unconscious and apparently lifeless. John Kobelt attempted to assist Obermeyer but was also attacked, and not until John, Math, Michael and Jacob Jaeger appeared on the scene did Benike stop his murderous attack. A doctor was then called and Obermeyer's wounds and bruises attended to. He has again recovered.—West Bend News.

Later the little boy was missed and when a search about the place failed to bring him to light, the cistern was searched and the body was found. It is supposed he entered the house during his mother's absence and fell through the trap door. His parents are prostrated. The funeral took place Saturday at St. Anthony.—Hartford Press.

N.A.M. LETTERS READ

HOUSE INVESTIGATORS LISTEN TO CORRESPONDENCE FROM FILES OF ASSOCIATION.

FEUD WITH LABOR SHOWN

Correspondence Tells of Political Work From Legislative Districts to the White House—Forker Defends Late Vice-President.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Details of legislative activities of the widest range, extending from the home districts of members of congress to the White House and capitol, were revealed on Tuesday when the letter files of the National Association of Manufacturers were read by the house lobby probers.

Discussing the recent sundry civil bill, with its provisions prohibiting the expenditure of certain funds for the prosecution of farmers' and labor unions under the Sherman law, Emery wrote to John Kirby, president of the association, on March 7, 1913, after President Taft had vetoed the bill:

"I want to emphasize as hard as I can the importance of lining up for a tremendous demonstration when this bill reaches President Wilson, as it undoubtedly will, with the same provision in it. You will then have an early opportunity to decide whether the glittering Democratic motto, 'Equal rights for all, special privileges for none,' means anything, or whether the administration has surrendered completely or will merely turn over the department of labor.

"I note, by the way, your reference to a letter from C. W. (Post) on the question of a protest over the appointment of Wilson (secretary of labor). A protest on this subject is a mere waste of breath, and, on the whole, I am inclined to think that the whole purpose of the department will be shown up quicker with the unions in control of it than in any other way.

"Gompers will run it characteristically with a high hand, and if the whole thing does not smell to heaven within a year I shall be very much astonished."

In this same letter Emery advised Kirby: "If you have any idea that Taft would have vetoed this bill of his own motion, get over it. A list of public men who had 'piled' in this $113,000,000 appropriation bill included many prominent men in both houses."

Kirby forwarded to Emery a series of letters between William de Hertburg Washington of New York and A. B. Farquhar, a manufacturer of York, Pa., and a director of the National Association of Manufacturers. Washington told Farquhar in a letter dated January 6, 1913, that he "had recently spent three days on a trip to Virginia with the president-elect," and was satisfied that the tariff would be taken up at an extra session. He proposed that currency reform be coupled with the tariff at the present session of congress and asked the support of the National Association of Manufacturers for that proposition. Both Farquhar and Kirby in letters endorsed his proposal.

In a letter to Daniel Davenport of Bridgeport, Conn., in March, 1911, Emery told of interviewing with Mr. Kirby, Majority Leader Underwood on the organization of the committees of the new Democratic house.

"We have kept the south pretty busy pounding the committee on committees for the past two weeks," he wrote. "Mr. Kirby was here Thursday and we had a long and frank talk with Oscar Underwood. I really believe now that we will have a fairly conservative judiciary committee, as good as we could expect from your Democrat brethren, but we are undoubtedly going to have a bad labor committee. Underwood has frankly told me that it does not please him and undoubtedly would not please us. He says it is the result of compromises that have been made necessary by internal dissension, and when he is frank enough to say that it won't please him I can imagine how it will strike us."

The letters contained illuminating details of the methods of the National Association of Manufacturers' agents in their opposition to anti-injunction bills, the bill creating the present department of labor, bills providing for jury trial of contempt cases and other legislation urged by organized labor.

The Mulhall letters presented related to Colonel Mulhall's activities in the campaign of Representative Jenkins of Wisconsin for re-election in 1908.

Former Senator Forker took the stand in the senate hearing to defend the good name of his dead friend, James Schoelcraft Sherman, late vice president of the United States.

John Lind of Minnesota, Special Envoy to Mexico, Not Given Credentials of Officer—Wilson Believes "Iron Hand" Is Not Necessary.

Washington, Aug. 6.—President Wilson on Monday accepted the resignation of Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson to take effect October 14. The president took the first step in the policy which he proposes to deal with the Mexican situation. He sent to Mexico City as his personal representative former Gov. John Lind of Minnesota, a personal friend of Secretary Bryan.

Mr. Lind is not accredited to the Huerta government, but the understanding is that when a stable administration is established in Mexico he will formally be named as ambassador.

Ex-Gov. John Lind of Minnesota has been sent to Mexico as the personal representative of the president to act as adviser to the embassy in the present situation. When the president is ready to communicate with the Mexican authorities as to the restoration of peace he will make public his views. Governor and Mrs. Lind departed for Mexico on Monday night by rail to proceed via New Orleans or Galveston.

It became known that a further announcement would be made by President Wilson in a few days, possibly on the arrival of Mr. Lind in Mexico City.

While officials of the administration here look with disfavor upon the processes of armed revolution to overthrow constituted governments in Latin America, there is a distinct feeling of sympathy manifest toward the Liberal movement in Central America, of which Madero's administration was the beginning in Mexico. Arguments, therefore, that it was necessary to have in Mexico the "iron hand of Diaz," which might be expected in Huerta, failed to make an impression on government officials here, who believe that the Latin-American governments cannot thrive on the extremes of civil tyranny or military dictatorships.

AMENDS MONEY BILL

FEW CHANGES ARE MADE BY HOUSE COMMITTEE.

Changes Alter Division of Federal Reserve Earnings and Provision for Mutual Rediscunts.

Washington, Aug. 4.—The Democratic of the house banking and currency committee practically concluded consideration of the administration's currency bill on Friday, after more than five weeks of continuous and stormy discussion.

The bill was ordered closed and reprinted, and on Monday the Democratic committee members will take a formal vote recommending the measure to the Democratic caucus.

The bill differs little in its essentials from the administration measure framed by Representative Glass, Chairman Owen and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and approved by President Wilson. The complete government control of the federal reserve board which will direct the new banking and currency system, deemed by the president the all-important factor of the bill, was retained.

At the eleventh hour the Democratic members of the committee incorporated an amendment providing for an advisory board of bankers to "advise" the federal reserve board. This amendment was in the nature of a compromise with the banking interests, which protested vigorously against the exclusively governmental feature of the control of the board.

Another important amendment incorporated in the bill altered the discount section conferring the power to require federal reserve banks to mutually rediscount paper.

She will not only present the matter before the board in person but has enlisted the support of many local society and suffrage leaders. Petitions will be circulated and many Milwaukee and state women will appear before the board to request consideration of the proposal.

"I know enough about the state fair and what is going on about the grounds to know that women police officials are an absolute necessity," said Mrs. Jensen. "Two or three or even more women actively employed on the grounds could do much good. The fair now has a regularly organized police system, but in the past every member has been a man. There is an absolute need of a woman with authority and ability to act."

HOT WEATHER DRINKS.

During the hot weather there is great demand for cooling drinks, and we prefer those made at home with materials which are unquestionable, rather than many which are served in bottles or at the fountains. In the following, there surely will be found one which will suit the palate of all.

Ginger Water.—This is the old-fashioned drink which used to be carried to the fields to refresh the tillers of the soil who have made our country what it is today. This drink is just as popular today among the descendants of the early fathers of our country, and is so easily prepared that it should be more frequently used. Take a tablespoonful of ground ginger, add three of sugar and a pint of ice cold water, stir well and serve. In the olden times they sweetened this with molasses.

An attractive design for a six-roomed house of one and a half stories, comprising many desirable features, is shown in the accompanying perspective and plans.

ished and kept in good repair, it may be made more attractive than some of the larger houses on the wide street.

When a man starts to build a house, he usually has some particular ideas in mind that he wishes to have worked into the plan.

Downstairs the main feature is the dining room, which is large enough to make a comfortable sitting room; and it is especially attractive on account of the three windows and the grate.

idea from a different style of house built on a wider lot, and it was so thoroughly fixed in his mind that he was prepared to sacrifice much more desirable features to carry out his idea.

First Floor Plan.

build any kind of freak house or hitch on any sort of attachment, and take plenty of time afterwards to regret doing so.

neither like this are that it usually draws better; it climbs into the upper air through the peak of the roof, where it is better supported by the house and where it is easier to fix the roof around it so that it will not leak.

This little house is only 22 feet wide by 36 feet long, without measuring the porch. A 23-foot house can be comfortably placed on a 30 or 35-foot lot and leave plenty of breathing space on all sides.

The chairman said, however, that many freeholders were now taking advantage of the so-called "Force" provision of the highway law which enables them to compel the improvement of any portion of the county system of roads by filing a petition with the town board requesting that the improvements be made, together with a receipt from the town treasurer showing that 50 per cent of the town's share of the estimated cost of the improvement has been paid.

KEEPING DOWN THE ICE BILL

Home-Made Refrigerator Will Reduce Expense of That Summer Necessity at Least a Third.

Now that summer is here, all who are not fortunate enough to have an ice house of their own, but must depend on the ice company for it, with no compulsion to keep prices down, will be glad to know of a way to lessen consumption of this most necessary article.

The plan proposed is really a money saver. While a refrigerator and ice chest are not built the same, the "wrinkle" works in both. Procure a piece of thick felt, such as harness makers use. You can get it in white, gray or other colors, and it should be one-half inch thick. Buy also a piece of coarse wire, such as ash-vees are made of, about one yard wide, or according to the length of your ice-box. Measure the bottom of the box and cut the wire and felt about one inch smaller all around, leaving that distance between box and pad so that the air will have free circulation. Have two pieces of wire and one piece of felt, the same size.

Soak the felt thoroughly, place it between the wires, place it in the chest, put the ice on top of it, and in fifteen minutes you will have one of the coldest ice-chests imaginable; that is, you will find the plan works the same for you as for me. It cuts the ice bill at least one-third. I have heard women advocate wrapping ice in blankets or paper to keep it from melting, and I always smile. It is the melting or evaporation of the ice that cools the chest, and those who put their ice in overcoats to save it lose more than its price in food unless they adopt a device such as I have suggested.—R. A. Bird.

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Varney, wife of a Confederate general, has lost one son and another is in the commission from a great diving from wounds. She reluctantly gives her consent for Wilfred, the youngest, to join the army if his father consents. The federals are making their last assault in an effort to capture Richmond. Edith Varney secures from President Davis a commission for Capt. Thorne, who has just recovered from wounds, as chief of the telegraph at Richmond. Capt. Thorne tells Edith he has been ordered west. She declares he must not go and tells him he is strangely agitated and declares he cannot accept. Thorne decides to escape while Edith leaves the room to get the commission, but is prevented by the arrival of Caroline Mifflin, Wilfred's sweetheart. Mr. Arrelsford of the Confederate secret service, a rejected suitor of Edith, detects Jonas, Mr. Varney's brother, carrying a note from a prisoner in Libby prison. Arrelsford suspects Edith intended for Thorne. The note reads: "Attack tonight, plan 3. Use telegraph." Arrelsford declares Thorne is a Jew and that his brother Henry is a prisoner in Libby. Edith is forced to marry out but she is not satisfied. She goes to the front and the message is intercepted from Jonas which he reads without betraying himself. He suspects that he is being watched.

CHAPTER IX.

The Shot That Killed.

A glance through the window showed Captain Thorne that the yard beyond, which had been empty all evening, was now full of armed men. The corporal had gone out through the hall door back of the house, whence he had entered. There was no doubt but that the back windows would be equally well guarded. The house was surrounded, no escape was possible. He was trapped, virtually a prisoner, although, for the time being, they had left him a certain liberty—the liberty of that one large room! It was quite evident to him that he was the object of their suspicions, and he more than feared that his real affiliations had been at last discovered. Apparently, there would be no opportunity now in which he could carry out his part in the cunningly devised scheme of attack. "Plan 3" would evidently result in failure, as so many previous plans had resulted, because he would not be able to send the orders that would weaken the position. The heat he could hope for, in all probability, was the short shift of a spy. He had staked his life on the game and it appeared that he had lost. Nay, more than life had been wagered, honor. He knew the contempt to which the spy was held; he knew that even the gallantry and intrepidity of Andre and Hale had not saved them from opprobrium and disgrace. And there was even more than honor upon the board. His life! Not the remotest idea of succumbing to the attractions of Edith Varney ever entered his head when he attempted the de-

The Yard Was Full of Armed Men.

perate, the fatal role. At first he had regarded the Varney house and herself as a chessboard and a pawn in the game. The strength of character which had enabled him to assume the unenviable part he played, because of his country's need, for his country's good, and which would have carried him through the obloquy and scorn that were sure to be visited upon him with death at the end—did not stand him in good stead when it came to thoughts of her. Until he yielded to his passion, and broke his self-imposed vow of silence, he had fought a good fight. Now he realized that the woman who should accept his affections would compromise herself forever in the eyes of everything she held dear, even if he succeeded, and lived, which was unlikely. He had never, so he fancied, in the least and remotest way given her any evidence that he loved her. In reality, she had read him like an open book, as women always do. He had come there that night to get the message from Jonas, and then to bid her goodbye forever, without disclosing the state of his affections. If he succeeded in manipulating the telegraph and carrying out his end of the project, he could see no chance of escape. Ultimate detection and execution appeared certain, and any avowal would therefore be useless. But he had counted without her. She had shown her feelings, and he had fallen. To the temptation of her presence and her artless disclosure, he was not able to resist. He made a dash for the door on earth to leave her or to reproach her for that; but the force, impetuous temperament of the man was overwhelming when it once broke loose, and he felt that he must tell her or die.

Because of his iron self-repression for so long he was the less able to stand the pressure in the end. He had thrown everything to the winds, and had told her how he loved her.

Out there in the moonlight in the rose arbor, the scent of the flowers, the southern night wind, the proximity of the girl, her eyes shining like stars out of the shadows in which they stood, the pallor of her face, the rise and fall of her bosom, the fluttering of her hand as unwittingly or wittingly, who knows, she touched him, had intoxicated him, and his love and passion had broken all bounds, and he had spoken to her and she had answered. She loved him. What did that mean to him now?

Sometimes woman's love makes duty easy, sometimes it makes it hard. Sometimes it is the crown which victors wear, and sometimes it is the pall that overshadows defeat. What Edith Varney knew or suspected concerning him, he could not tell. That she knew something, that she suspected something, had been evident, but whatever her knowledge and suspicion, they were not sufficient to prevent her from returning love for love, kiss for kiss. But did she love him in spite of her knowledge and suspicion? The problem was too great for his solution then.

These things passed through his mind as he stood there by the window, with his hand on his revolver, waiting. It was all he could do. Sometimes even to the most fiery and the most alert of soldiers comes the conviction that there is nothing to do but wait. And if he thinks of it he will sympathize with the women who are left behind in times of war, who have little to do but wait.

The room had suddenly become his world, the walls his horizon, the ceiling his sky. At any exit he would find the way barred. Why had they left him in the room, free, armed, his revolver in his hand?

None but the bravest would have entered upon such a career as he had chosen. His nerves were like steel in the presence of danger. He had trembled before the woman in the garden a moment since; the stone walls of the house were no more rigidly composed than he in the drawing room now. It came to him that there was nothing left but one great battle in that room unless they shot him from behind door or window or portiere, giving him no chance. If they did confront him openly he would show them that if he had chosen the secret service and the life of a spy he could fight and die like a man and a soldier. He held some lives within the chamber of his revolver, and they should pay did they give him but a chance.

In the very midst of these crowding and tumultuous thoughts which ran through his mind in far, far less time than it was taken to record them, he heard a noise at the window at the farther side of the room, as if some one fumbled at the catch. Instinctively Thorne shrank back behind the portieres of the window he was guarding, not completely concealing himself but sufficiently hid as to be unobserved except by careful scrutiny in the dim light. Once more he clutched the butt of his revolver swinging at his waist. He bent his body slightly, and even the thought of Edith Varney passed from his mind. He stood ready, powerful, concentrated, determined, confronting an almost certain enemy with the fierce heart and venomous glance of the fighter at bay.

He had scarcely assumed this position when the window was opened, and a man was thrust violently through into the room. At the first glance Thorne, as yet unseen, recognized the newcomer as his elder brother, Henry Dumont. Unlike the two famous brothers of the parable, these two loved each other.

Thorne's muscles relaxed, his hand still clutched the butt of his revolver, he was still alert, but here was not an enemy. He began at once to fathom something at least of the plan and the purpose of the people who had trapped him. In a flash he perceived that his enemies were not yet in possession of all the facts which would warrant them in laying hands upon him. He was suspected, but the final evidence upon which to turn suspicion into certainty was evidently lacking. He could feel, although he could not see them, that every door and window had eyes solely for him, and that he was closely watched for some false move which would betray him. The plan for which he had ventured so much was still possible; he had not yet failed. His heart leaped in his breast. The clouds around his horizon lifted a little. There was yet a possibility that he could succeed, that he could carry out his part of the cunningly devised and desperate undertaking, the series of events of which this night and the telegraph office were to be the culmination. A less cautious and a less resourceful man might have evinced some emotion, might have gone forward spoken to the newcomer, would have at least done something to have attracted his attention, but save for that relaxation of the tension, which no one could by any possibility observe, Thorne stood motionless, silent, waiting; just as he might have stood and waited had he been what he seemed and the newcomer been utterly unknown and indifferent to him. Henry Dumont had been thrust violently into the room by the soldiers outside. He had been captured, as Arrelsford had said, earlier in the day; he had allowed himself to be taken. He had been thrust into Libby prison with dozens of prisoners taken in the same sort. He had not been searched, but then none of the others had been; had he been selected for that unwatched immaturity alone it would have awakened his suspicions, but the Confederates had made a show of great haste in disposing of their prisoners, and had promised to search them in the morning. Therefore Henry Dumont had retained the paper which later he had given Jonas, when by previous arrangement he made his daily visit to the prison.

He had been greatly surprised, when about a quarter to nine o'clock a squad of soldiers had taken him from the prison, had marched him hurriedly through the streets with which he was entirely unfamiliar, and had taken him to the residence section of the city, and had halted at the back of a big house. He had asked no questions, and no explanations had been vouchsafed to him. He was more surprised than ever when he was taken up to the porch, the window was opened, and he was thrust violently into a room, so violently that he staggered and had some difficulty in recovering his balance.

He made a quick inspection of the room. Thorne, in the deeper shadows at the farther end of the room was invisible to him. He stood motionless save for the turning of his head as he looked around him. He moved a few steps toward the end of the room, opposite his entrance, passed by the far door opening into the back hall which was covered with portieres, and went swiftly toward the near door into the front hall. The door was slightly ajar, and as he came within range of the opening he saw in the shadows of the hall, crossed bayonets and men. No escape that way!

He went on past the door toward the large windows at the front of the house and in another moment would have been at the front window where Thorne stood. The latter dropped the curtain and stepped out into the room.

For the thousandth part of a second the two brothers stared at each other, and then, in a fiercely intense voice, Thorne, playing his part, desperately called out:

"Halt! You are a prisoner!" Both brothers were quick witted, both knew that they were under the closest observation, both realized that they were expected to betray relationship, which would incriminate both, and probably result fatally for one and certainly ruin the plan. Thorne's cue was to regard his brother as the prisoner whom it was important to arrest, and Dumont's cue was to regard his brother as an enemy with whom it was his duty to struggle. The minds of the two were made up instantly. With a quick movement Dumont sought to pass his brother, but with a movement equally rapid Thorne leaped upon him, shouting again:

"Halt, I say!" The two men instantly grappled. It was no mimic struggle that they engaged in, either. They were of about equal height and weight; if anything, Thorne was the stronger, but this advantage was offset by the fact that he had been recently ill, and the two fought therefore on equal terms at first. It was a fierce, desperate struggle in which they met. As they struggled, both by a common impulse, reeled toward that part of the room near the mantel which was farthest away from doors or windows, and where they would be the least likely to be overheard or to be more closely observed. As they fought together, Thorne called out again:

"Corporal of the guard, here is your man! Corporal of the guard, what are you doing?" At that instant the two reeling bodies struck the wall next to the mantel with a fearful smash, and a chair that stood by was overturned by a quick movement on the part of Henry Dumont, who did not know his brother had already received the important message. In the confusion of the moment, he hissed in Thorne's ear:

"Attack tonight, plan 3, use telegraph! Did you get that?"

"Yes," returned Thorne, still keeping up the struggle.

"Good," said Dumont. "They are watching us. Shoot me in the leg."

"No, I can't do it," whispered Thorne.

All the while the two men were reeling and staggering and struggling against the wall and furniture. The encounter would have deceived the most suspicious.

"Shoot, shoot," said the elder.

"I can't shoot my brother," the younger panted out.

"It is the only way to throw them off the scent," persisted Dumont.

"I won't do it," answered Thorne, and then he shouted again:

"Corporal of the guard, I have your prisoner!"

"Let me go, damn you!" roared Dumont furiously, making another desperate effort—"If you don't do it, I will," he added under his breath. "Give me the revolver!"

"No, no, Harry," was the whispered

Look Out, Harry! You'll Hurt Yourself.

reply, and "Surrender, curse you!" the shouted answer. "You'll hurt your self," he pleaded.

"I don't care," muttered Dumont. "Let me have it."

His hands slipped down from Thorne's shoulders and grasped the butt of the revolver. The two grappled fiercely, but the struggle was beginning to tell on Thorne, who was not yet in full possession of his physical vitality. His long illness had sapped his strength.

"Don't, don't, for God's sake!" he whispered, and then shouted desperately: "Here's your man, corporal, what's the matter with you?"

"Give me that gun," said Dumont, and in spite of himself his voice rose again. There was nothing suspicious in the words, it was what he might have said had the battle been a real one; as he spoke by a more violent effort he wrenched the weapon from the holster and away from Thorne's detaining hand. The latter shouted desperately to repossess himself of it.

"Look out, Harry! You'll hurt yourself," he implored, but the next moment by a superhuman effort Dumont threw him back. As Thorne staggered Dumont turned the pistol on himself. Recovering himself with incredible swiftness, Thorne leaped at his brother, and the two figures went down together with a crash in the midst of which rang out the sharp report of the heavy weapon. Instead of shooting himself harmlessly in the side, in the struggle Dumont had unfortunately shot himself through the lung.

ANCIENT CRIME UNPAID FOR

Murder 700 Years Ago Still Causes Annual Tribute to Be Paid by the Community.

Seven hundred years ago some shepherds of the Valley of Roncal, in Navarre, were murdered by shepherds of the Valley of Barotzen, in Bearn, the crime taking place on the high pasture lands of Arles, in the Pyrenees.

It would have been difficult to bring the murderers individually to justice, and the Spaniards were preparing to make war upon the valley from which the French murderers had come, when the French village proposed that peace be maintained at the price of a yearly tax or tribute, to endure for all time, and this proposition was accepted without demur.

The payment of this blood tax—originally three white mares, but later three cows of a particular breed and color—has been made ever since, the custom—it is nothing more—in which both France and Spain have engaged, and the storm of the French revolution. Yearly the representative men of the two valleys meet on the frontier, at a certain stone, remote from any town, and go through the ceremony of presenting and receiving the cattle. The order of procedure, which is elaborate and impressive, is fixed by a document bearing the date 1375, though the tax was paid a hundred years prior to that time.

Four Great Sauces.

A Frenchman has declared that "man has created the culinary art; he does not eat like an animal—he breakfasts, dines and sups." The French are particularly eloquent on the subject of sauces. Among their famous chefs are recognized four great sauces: Spanish Veloute, Bechamel and German. The Spanish and Veloute were known as far back as the seventeenth century. In the eighteenth they were modified by the masters of cookery, particularly by Careme, who was called "the Raphael of the kitchen."

The Spanish sauce is composed of juices extracted from a mixture of lamb, veal, chicken and pheasant. Veloute is similar, but is not colored. Bechamel is Veloute to which cream has been added, and the German sauce is Veloute plus the yolks of eggs.—Harper's Weekly.

EXCELLENT FOR TENDER SKIN

Victim of Sunburn Will Find Relief in This Preparation, Which is a Home Remedy.

A preparation that will soothe tender skins or skin that has been sunburned is made by mixing together four ounces of pure almond meal, an ounce of powdered orris, two ounces of powdered castile soap, one-half drachm oil of bergamot, four drops of bitter almond oil and a quarter of a drachm of extract of musk.

Only tepid water should be used on the skin and after wetting it rub on some of the above preparation instead of using soap, using the hands to make the application because a wash cloth usually causes friction and this, added to a sunburned skin, would make it sore and tender. More water is used and the skin is cleansed with the hands and finally rinsed several times and with old soft towels patted dry. Then a mere suspicion of cold cream is massaged into the skin and so left for the night.

Any girl or woman who will be careful to protect her skin and care for it as just described even though it is naturally of a dry texture will not burn or tan nearly as quickly as will the girl with the oily skin. One would think that a girl with oily skin would not burn as readily as the girl with the dry skin on account of sufficient oily moisture, but nevertheless it has often been proven that she burns even more quickly. Why this is so is because of the difference in the skin tissues.

For the Rose Jar.

The following mixture has kept its fragrance for twenty years: Gather the rose petals on a sunny day, in the morning. The common, sweet-scented varieties are best. Let stand in a cool place for two hours, toss them and put into a bowl or covered dish in layers. Sprinkle each layer with salt. Keep adding to these until you have enough "stock." Into a large glass jar place two ounces of crushed cinnamon; then put in the stock, which has been shaken up every morning for two weeks. When all is in the jar, let stand for eight weeks, covered. It is now ready for the permanent jar. Add two ounces of lavender flowers and one ounce of shredded (not powdered) orris root. Mix well, put into rose jar in alternate layers with the rose stock and a few drops of oil of roses. Over this pour a wine glass of good cologne, and from time to time add fresh lavender flowers and rose petals.

SMART TAILOR-MADE SUIT

Model of black and white checked shepherd goods with cutaway jacket. Long lapels and shawl collar.

Draped Lace Tunics.

Although, perhaps, the lace tunic has a tendency to age its wearer, it has compensating merits which recommend it to women of middle age and even younger women who have a tendency to stoutness. For the close fitting pointed tunic of black lace cut with the upper part in the form of a coat tends to make the figure look slim in a manner that many, alas, find eminently desirable as years come fast upon them.

The favorite lace employed is Chantilly, and when one knows how to drape artistically nothing can be more elegant. On the contrary, nothing can be dowdier than a drapery which seeks to be artistic and falls lamentably in the attempt.

Baby's Bib.

A dress shield may be cut in half, and each half used as the lining for the baby's bib. Make a removable cover of linen or lawn edged with lace or embroidery.

BETTER THAN ANY COSMETIC

Combination of Repose and Relaxation is the Only Beauty Secret That is Worth Knowing.

There is a beauty secret, not found in cosmetics, and which does not linger in the perfume-laden hangings of the parlor of the masseuse. It is a secret which any woman can possess, and its magic effect is almost instantly noted. The secret is merely a combination of repose and relaxation.

A restful woman always appears to advantage. There is culture in a repose of manner that makes itself felt, both at home and in public. There is a suggestion of reserve intellectual strength, more impressive than the uneasiness of the woman who feels that her tongue or her body must be in motion to let the world know she is in it.

At the same time, the wear and tear will leave the marks of strain on complexion and figure, which no creams or lotions can remove. To grow old gracefully and beautifully learn to take things easy. Repose is more beautifying than rouge, and relaxation more body-building than massage.—Leslie's Weekly.

Delicious Picnic Eggs.

Six hard-boiled eggs, three table-spoonsful of lemon juice or vinegar, one-half cup chopped celery or meat, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of onion; rice and a few grains of cayenne. Boil the eggs 20 minutes to make a yolk meal. When cooked place in a pan of cold water, crack the shells and leave for five minutes, and you will have no difficulty in removing the shells. After filling the eggs pierce the two halves with a toothpick and wrap each in a piece of white tissue or paraffin paper, twisting the paper at both ends to keep in place.

Cook a Tough Chicken.

A chicken which is too tough for roasting can be cooked and made most delicious by cooking it like a pot roast of beef. Let a good tablespoonful of butter brown in the bottom of a kettle. Brown the chicken thoroughly in the butter, turning it until it is well browned on all sides. Cover the bottom of the kettle with about two inches of boiling water and simmer until the chicken is tender. A large chicken will require about three hours. An otherwise quite inedible fowl can be utilized in this way. It will have none of the fat boiled taste.

Pressed Flank of Beef.

Wipe, remove superfluous fat and a flank of beef. Put in a kettle, cover with boiling water, and add one tablespoonful salt, one-half teaspoon peppercorns, a bit of bay leaf and a bone or two which may be at hand. Cook slowly until meat is in shreds. There should be but little liquor in the kettle when meat is done. Arrange meat in deep pan, pour over liquor, cover and press with a heavy weight. Serve cold, thinly sliced.

Cherry Water Ice.

Wash a quart of sweet red or black cherries, pound them so as to break the stones, and pass the juice through a strainer into the broken cherry pulp, with some sugar and water, in order to extract the flavor from the kernels, and pass that also through a strainer. Add a pint of water and about three-quarters of a pound of sugar, and freeze. Do not use whites of eggs as a stiffener in this ice, as the color is not good unless it is frozen naturally. It makes an attractive ice for the third color in a Neapolitan.

Pineapple Peel Juice.

Cut the peel of the pineapple in small pieces, weigh and take the same weight of sugar. Make a syrup by adding one cup water to each pound of sugar, then boil fruit in the sirup, 15 minutes, slow, steady boiling. Let stand over night, then strain and squeeze in a sugar bag. Boil and put on ice. This makes a fine pudding sauce and is delicious on boiled rice.

Thousand Island Dressing.

Take one cup mayonnaise dressing, mix with one-half cup whipped cream, add small amount of Tarragon vinegar, one-half teaspoonful of imperial sauce, then chop one hard-boiled egg, one green pepper, one pinch to one pinch chives, mix well together and squeeze the juice of one lemon before serving. This sauce can be served with any kind of salad.

Black Evening Gloves.

Black gloves for evening wear are coming back into fashion, as are dark gray and brown instead of white as accessories for afternoon wear. The novelty in the new black gloves lies in the fact that many are buttonless, while others have fancy buttons from the wrist to the extreme edge of the gloves, only a few of the upper ones being used as fastenings.

Buttons as Trimmings.

Porcelain buttons decorated with pompadour designs in dainty colorings are used on small vests, and linen dresses are trimmed with white porcelain buttons with tiny figures of the same color as the dress.

YET SHE WAS NOT SATISFIED

Bathhouse Attendant's Explanation About as Satisfactory as That Made by Some Trusts.

Senator Vardaman, at a luncheon, said of a certain trust's defense: "The defense is worse than the offense. It takes me back to Bath Beach."

"A young lady at Bath Beach had occasion to complain about one of the bathhouse attendants, and old fellow who in the hurry of cleaning up would sometimes burst in upon her in her bathhouse without knocking."

"One morning after this had happened for the sixth or seventh time the young lady took the old fellow to task. "See here, Peters," she said there's no lock on my bathhouse, as you know, and I must insist on your knocking before you enter. It hasn't happened yet, but it might very well happen, that you'd come in on me when I was all undressed."

ECZEMA ON ENTIRE SCALP

R. F. D. No. 2, Sunfield, Mich.—"I was troubled with eczema. It began with a sore on the top of the scalp, broke out as a pimple and grew larger until it was a large red spot with a crust or scab over it. This became larger finally covering the entire scalp and spread to different parts of the body, the limbs and back and in the ears. These sores grew larger gradually until some were as large as a quarter of a dollar. They would itch and if scratched they would bleed and smart. The clothing would irritate them at night when it was being removed causing them to itch and smart so I could not sleep. A watery fluid would run from them. My scalp became covered with a scale and when the hair was raised up it would raise this scale; the hair was coming out terribly."

"I treated about six months and got no relief and after using Cuticura Soap and Ointment with two applications we could notice a great difference. It began to get better right away. In a month's time I was completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. Bertha Underwood, Jan. 3, 1913.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

Even an empty head may contain a lot of useless information.

Nothing New. "Did that palmist tell you the truth about yourself?" "Yes, but my wife has been doing that for years."

Declares Women Drink More. A S. Shoemaker, attorney for the Anti-Saloon league, whose home is in Washington, says the women of the present day drink more intoxicating drinks each year.

Novelist Misquoted Scripture. Novelists do not seem to be very strong in their knowledge of the scriptures somehow, and Sir Walter Scott in "The Heart of Midlothian" attempts to point a moral with the words: "Our simple and unpretending heroine had the merit of those peacemakers to whom it is promised as a benediction that they shall inherit the earth." The fact is that the peacemakers did not receive any such promise, but it is said that "the meek shall inherit the earth."

Disputed "Fan." George McConnell, the Yankee pitcher, has a very bright little boy of five. The youngster, who goes to most of the ball games with his mother, is a very "sore" loser. One day he was disputed to see his father knocked out of the box. The next day Jack Warlop suffered the same sort of treatment, and after he had dressed he went to sit with the McConnell family in the grand stand.

He and the little McConnell boy are the best of chums, but this day "Hops" could not get a rise out of the little coder. Every advance was met with cold disdain. Finally the boy could repress his wrath no longer.

"Go on away from me, he said, "and don't ever talk to me again till you win a game. You're almost as rotten as dad."

PANTRY CLEANED

A Way Some People Have.

A doctor said: "Before marriage my wife observed in summer and country homes, coming in touch with families of varied means, culture, tastes and discriminating tendencies, that the families using Postum seemed to average better than those using coffee."

"When we were married two years ago, Postum was among our first order of groceries. We also put in some tea and coffee for guests, but after both had stood around the pantry about a year untouched, they were thrown away, and Postum used only."

"Up to the age of 28 I had been accustomed to drink coffee as a routine habit and suffered constantly from indigestion and all its relative disorders. Since using Postum all the old complaints have completely left me and I sometimes wonder if I ever had them."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for booklet, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms. Regular (must be boiled). Instant Postum doesn't require boiling but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

NOTES From MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Swat the fly.

Apply manure while fresh.

Be regular in milking cows.

Fine salt for the butter always.

Overfeeding chickens is harmful.

Any disk tool is a great pulverizer.

Steer clear of dry cows and indifferent producers.

Good, pure food gives eggs all the flavor they ought to have.

Dust the hens and little chicks frequently and save a great loss.

If the chicken flock is not culled every year it will deteriorate rapidly.

Don't let your supply of insect powder run short. Use it regularly and liberally.

Teach the colts to walk well and you will lay the foundation for all the faster gait.

If cows are pastured there should be shade trees for them during the hot weather.

Ducklings are better off for not having water to swim in until they get their feathers.

The exercise of good judgment is most necessary in handling the dairy herd profitably.

Early morning is the best time to have "good luck" in churning, if the weather is hot.

In its last analysis, silage is nothing but canned corn fodder, and is the very best of feed.

If the little colts are slow to shed their coats, feed a little oil meal or use the horse clippers.

Allow chickens of all sizes a good dust bath. They enjoy it, from the smallest to the largest.

As soon as the early chicks reach a weight of a pound and a half, get the broilers started for market.

It is well to plant peas where the garden is a little moist. A spell of dry weather tests them severely.

Regular, careful, quiet milking will permanently improve an animal as a milk producer and will increase her flow.

A good poultryman is industrious, not easily discouraged, filled with pluck and grit, and full of ambition.

Instead of rushing things on churning day, take it steady and give the cream a chance to cling as it revolves.

Soft-shelled eggs are often caused by fowls being confined, becoming overfat, and from lack of mineral matter.

It is safe to say that once a calf gets the rot, no matter from what cause, it will never do as well as it should.

Beware of the agent who sells a preparation which, he claims, will prevent milk from souring when used to rinse cans.

It is a fine thing for a girl on the farm to know how to milk a cow these days when men folks are busy and work presses.

As soon as the cockerels reach the crowing stage they should be put in a separate run and fed all they will eagerly eat up clean.

If the cows are carefully fed and are bred right, it is not uncommon to make a net profit of $10 per cow per year above cost of feed.

Land plaster and acid phosphate are excellent absorbents to use in the gutters and their use increases the value of the manure to a large extent.

Mutton can be raised cheaper than any other meat, because the wool can be made to almost, if not altogether, pay the expense of its production.

The dirt and hair should be removed from the horse collar pads each night. This will help cure sore, swollen shoulders on your work animals.

The successful farmer has two things in mind in not the amount and the quantity of his produce, but that they may realize him the most cash in market.

If any cows that are large milkers are about to calve, keep them in from the pasture and feed hay for a time, so that the udders will not become too much distended.

The finer ensilage is cut the better, for it packs more firmly, and is more easily chewed by the animals than if cut coarse. Maize chaffed into one-half inch lengths will not injure an animal's mouth.

Eggs should be sold by weight rather than by the dozen. They vary so widely as to size and weight that the seller or the buyer is sure to lose when sold by count. If sold by the pound, both get justice, because if the eggs are small it requires more to weigh a pound.

Keep the weeds down in the strawberry bed and the runners properly directed and trimmed. Even if there are no weeds the better the condition of the soil the greater the returns. The weed cutting attachment to the wheel hoe is excellent for this purpose, cutting out all the plants which tend to fill up the space beyond their proper limits.

Every farmer should be part dairyman, and every farm dairy should be equipped with a milk tester, thermometer, separator and a pair of scales.

For a good churning it is better to have the churn less than half full, than to have more than that amount.

FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE

TELL A MAN'S NATIONALITY

By the Way an Egg Is Eaten One May Discover Country From Which Consumer Comes From.

Sherlock Holmes might have figured this out, but he did not.

The average Englishman will always demand his egg boiled just three minutes, then he places it in an egg cup just large enough to comfortably have the egg fit in, taps the top of the shell and removes the broken shell with his fingers. The egg is eaten a spoonful at a time.

A Frenchman, much like the Englishman, likes his eggs of three minutes, exactly. He then "peels" them, places them in a glass, stirs and mixes well together with salt, pepper and butter. He makes a practice of dipping bread into the mixture and eating it along with the eggs.

A Spaniard wouldn't think of letting his eggs boil more than one minute. He then breaks it and lets the contents run into the glass, and consumes it as though he were draughting down a glass of wine.

An egg is only fit in an Italian's estimation when it has been placed in cold water and removed just as the water begins to boil. He then breaks it, pours it on a plate and proceeds to sop it up with bread.

The German, like the Italian, demands his eggs as near the liquid state as possible. He breaks his eggs in an unsightly cup and sours the liquid out as though it were soup.

The American is about the only one that prefers his eggs boiled hard. When they are served up to him, he knives them in half, removes the contents into a glass, after which he adds a plentiful supply of pepper, butter and salt. He then mashes the eggs fine, mixing them well with the spices, and eats them with his toast.

SIMPLE LITTLE CARD TRICK

Game Described That Will Afford Ample Amusement for an Evening's Entertainment Indoors.

Here is a good and simple card trick.

Ask any one to choose three cards from a pack and to place them face downward on the table. Then, beginning to count with the number of pips on each card laid down, let him place other cards upon these on one heap at a time, until in every case he has counted up to 15, adding mentally as he places down each card.

When he has thus completed the three heaps take from him the remaining cards and count them. Their number, less four, will always be the number of pips on the three chosen cards. An ace counts 11, and a court card 10.

Thus, if he has chosen a 7, 10 and ace (11) he must cap these with 8, 9 and 4 cards respectively. There will then be 32 cards left, and 32 less 4 equals 28, which is the sum of 7, 10 and 11.

FAVORITE SHADOW PICTURES

LARGE HEAD OF THINKERS

They Keep Right on Growing as Long as Brains Are Active—Opinion of Expert Given.

After 25 human beings are not supposed to grow except to put on weight, increase their waist measure or grow stout all over, but the claim has been made by J. Millet Severn, an English phrenologist, that there are many instances where the human head continues to grow and that men's heads have been known to increase in size after they were 40 years old. Mr. Severn's claim is of much interest, regardless of the matter of phrenology, but they are actually new claims. For Dr. J. B. Moeg, of Paris, says the brain does not become fully developed until a man is from forty-five to fifty years of age.

Mr. Severn says he has measured the heads of many prominent people from time to time and he has discovered by means of these measurements that the head continues to grow at a considerably greater rate than is generally believed. By taking careful cranial measurements at various times of the same heads he is able to give figures.

He has, he says, taken measurements and examined measurements of more than a hundred thousand heads during the last 25 years, and he has come to the conclusion that just so long as the human brain is active and kept vigorously at work, it develops and the head increases, in very many instances, in size.

Spanish Shortcake.

Three eggs, half a cupful of butter, one cupful of sugar, two-thirds of a cupful of sweet milk, a teaspoonful of cinnamon, two cupfuls of flour and one teaspoonful of baking powder. Stir the flour in, do not knead; the eggs, butter and sugar should be beaten together until very light. Bake in a shallow tin. When it is done spread a thin frosting of flour and one teaspoonful of water over the top. Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon. Set in the oven to brown.

To Remove Rust.

Having trouble with the steel in my kitchen range becoming rusted while not in use last summer, says a correspondent, I have found the following method very good for polishing it. Moisten a piece of soap and rub it all over the steel. Then powder the range with some bath brick and with a dry rag rub the steel well with this. This polishes the steel for the last time with another clean dry rag and you will be surprised at the change this makes.

Cherry Tart.

Pick over 1 1/2 pounds of cherries, turn a tiny cup upside down in the middle of a deep pie dish, fill all around it with the fruit, add sugar to taste. Lay a wide strip of plain paste around the edge of the dish, cover and press the edges firmly together, bake in a hot oven, and serve with powdered sugar sprinkled thickly on top.

DAINTIES FOR HOT DAY

PARFAITS MAKE MOST DELICIOUS DESSERT IN SUMMER.

Particularly Good in That They May Be Prepared in Advance of the Rest of the Meal—Whipped Cream the Best Base.

The parfaits, and mousses and biscuits (pronounced in French, "biskuits") are particularly practical desserts, as they need no stirring during the freezing process. They can be made and left to ripen some hours before serving. This enables the cook to set the dessert aside and do all the rest of her work up to the last minute. And, again, they are less trouble to prepare than pies, cakes or puddings. They should, however, be eaten very slowly, that the digestion may not be retarded by chilling.

These simple concoctions are in general light ice creams, having as a base custards, creams, whipped eggs reinforced with fruits, sirups and gelatin or combinations of these. The most frequent base is whipped cream. The cream must be beaten until very stiff, flavored as desired and placed in a mold in the ice for three to four hours. All ingredients must be carefully folded into the cream to preserve the mosslike texture of the frozen product. Gelatin can be used with this cream and the whip of thin cream as well. The proportions of sugar and flavorings are about double those needed for an ordinary pudding.

When using fruit it is generally better to use the juices, or pulp, as bits of fruit become too much like lumps of ice to be pleasant eating.

The difference between parfaits and mousses may be said to consist in the use of eggs and sirups in parfaits and the sugar and gelatin in mousses. The biscuit is merely moussed molded in individual forms.

While preparing the mixture, place the mold on ice until it is thoroughly cooled, then put in the mixture by spoonfuls and spread it carefully throughout the mold. Fill so that when the cover is put on some of the mixture will be forced out. Cover the top of the mold (before putting on the lid) with buttered paper or soft wrapping paper a little larger than the surface to be covered. Put on the cover, and bury the mold in the freezing mixture for three to four hours. If this method is followed, no salt can possibly enter the mold.

The ordinary proportion for freezing is three parts of ice to one of rock salt, but here we suggest two parts of ice to one of rock salt. When rock salt and ice about the same size are mixed, the salt melts the ice in order to unite with it. In this way the salt, too, dissolves, so that both solids are liquefied. The heat which causes this to happen is drawn from the ice cream which is to be frozen, as it is by the extraction of heat that the freezing process is porous or snow ice, as the air holes permit the salt's easy access to the ice, causing it to melt rapidly. Do not draw off the water in the freezer until the ice floats on top (this liquid being colder than the unmelted ice), because the freezing process is at its height and the water from this time on will rise in temperature and can then be drawn off. If necessary at this point, more of the freezing mixture can be added.

Wash the mold in cold water, remove all brine, and wipe perfectly dry. Remove cover and paper. Invert the mold on a flat dish, and if the room is warm it should slip out comfortably. If it does not rime a cloth in hot water and wrap it about the mold for a minute or so until the contents slide out readily.

It is better not to let mousses or parfaits freeze very hard, as they are difficult to remove from molds and are not so pleasant to eat. Very often to obviate the difficulties encountered in removing these lightly frozen desserts, the mold is lined with a kerbet whose melting point is higher than the mousses or parfait.

To Make Smooth Gravies.

First, have the liquor to be thickened ready to boil, then take a spoonful of flour and with a little milk or water work free from lumps; then thin so that it will pour easily. With a stirring spoon in one hand stir the boiling liquid vigorously, with the other hand pour in the butter. The secret here is to stir the flour in so that the liquid has enough to cook the latter at once, and to keep stirring it until it is well cooked. Never try to stir raw flour into hot liquor, nor to make smooth gravies in lukewarm stock.

Spanish Shortcake.

Three eggs, half a cupful of butter, one cupful of sugar, two-thirds of a cupful of sweet milk, a teaspoonful of cinnamon, two cupfuls of flour and one teaspoonful of baking powder. Stir the flour in, do not knead; the eggs, butter and sugar should be beaten together until very light. Bake in a shallow tin. When it is done spread a thin frosting of flour and one teaspoonful of water over the top. Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon. Set in the oven to brown.

To Remove Rust.

Having trouble with the steel in my kitchen range becoming rusted while not in use last summer, says a correspondent, I have found the following method very good for polishing it. Moisten a piece of soap and rub it all over the steel. Then powder the range with some bath brick and with a dry rag rub the steel well with this. This polishes the steel for the last time with another clean dry rag and you will be surprised at the change this makes.

Cherry Tart.

Pick over 1 1/2 pounds of cherries, turn a tiny cup upside down in the middle of a deep pie dish, fill all around it with the fruit, add sugar to taste. Lay a wide strip of plain paste around the edge of the dish, cover and press the edges firmly together, bake in a hot oven, and serve with powdered sugar sprinkled thickly on top.

HAD SOME JOYS TO RECOUNT

Small Boy Didn't Get Looked For Tickets, but Day Was Not Altogether Without Fun.

When that spectacular drama of Africa, "The Garden of Allah," recently appeared in Washington, with its troop of camels and donkeys to lead atmosphere to the scene, Beverly, a tropical small boy of ten, hastened to offer his services, when they arrived in the city Monday morning, as a carrier of water and food for the beasts, hoping thereby to get a seat among the gallery gods for his labors.

The next afternoon Beverly was seen sitting enthroned among a party of his companions, all evidently listening eagerly to the tales of his last night's experience.

"Well, Beverly," said a passing acquaintance, "did you get into the show for looking after the animals?" "No," replied Beverly. "But," he added, swelling with pride as his comrades gazed eagerly upon him. "A donkey kicked me and a camel tried to bite me!"

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses of from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. Cheney & Co.
