LET CONTRACT FOR STEEL BRIDGE

J. B. Day, A. L. Rosenheimer and John Etzel to Have Bridge Built at Hartford

J. B. Day, A. L. Rosenheimer and John Etzel let the contract last week to the Warden Allen bridge company to erect a steel girder bridge of forty foot span, across the Rubicon river at the point north of Summer street, through the Uber property, to the seven-acre Wilson tract which they recently had surveyed and platted. The bridge is to be completed Nov. 15. It will have concrete foundation and abutments, and be of fifteen tons capacity, approved by the state highway commission. This will open up a road through the Uber property just west of the Gessner place, and which if continued across into the second ward would bring a street up past the west line of Thos. Robert's property to Union street. This extension should and probably will be made by the city, as the bridge can then be used for a great deal of the hauling and driving now going on through Main street, and will open a very convenient route to the freight depot and stock yards.

The firm bought the Wilson tract some time ago with the intention of selling building lots, but as they lay some what inconveniently from the main roads the bridge is to be installed which will make the addition very convenient and desirable as a residence place. No doubt the lots will sell rapidly.

The cost of the bridge is $1400. The foregoing clipping, which is taken from the Hartford Press, may be of local interest, for Mr. A. L. Rosenheimer is from this village and Mr. J. B. Day is well known here. We wish the men success in their new undertaking.

Plumbers Must Have License

By a recent act of the legislature, all plumbers, hereafter, must pass a state examination and receive a license from the state board of health.

The license fees are $2 for journeyman plumber, $10 for master and $40 for contracting plumber. Examinations will be held at the county seat of each county periodically after the organization of the examining board. Under the new law, a contracting plumber must hire a master plumber as his superintendent. He cannot be his own master. The law also provides for the employment of a city plumbing inspector in cities of the first, second and third classes and for a state inspector.

Local Cases Postponed

The cases of the State of Wisconsin vs. Fred Meinecke and Dennis McCullough, were postponed until the spring term of circuit court, the reason being that the complaining witness could not be present on account of serious illness. Messrs. Meinecke and McCullough, who are from this village appeared in court Tuesday, but upon notice returned to this village. The complaint brought against them is assault with intent to rob.

LATER.—Aug. Martin one of the main witnesses for the state passed away on Tuesday. We have been informed by the district attorney that on account of the death, the cases will not be dismissed but fully prosecuted at the next term of court.

NOTICE.—Anyone caught trespassing over my land will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. Warning is also given to keep all dogs off my land, or they will be shot.—Otto Ramthun

FOUND DEAD ON THE ROAD

Town of Richfield Farmer Dies While on Way Home

John Prisching, a farmer living in the town of Richfield, was found dead Tuesday night. Mr. Prisching left home at about ten o'clock in the morning for Hartford, and spent the day there. He left for home at four o'clock. John Lohr of the town of Hartford noticed a driverless horse, which he stopped and after a search found the body of Mr. Prisching, 100 feet west of Radke's cheese factory about four miles southeast of Hartford. Death was due to heart failure. Sheriff Benike was notified and he went over and took the body to his home.—West Bend News.

Income Tax Facts

Here are a few facts and dates that the income taxpayer must fix in their mind:

Everybody with a net income of more than $3,000 a year if single and $4,000 if married, is subject to the tax.

The taxpayer must file a return with the internal revenue collector by March 1, 1914, showing all sources of his income and the deduction to which he is entitled.

All incomes are to be computed by the calendar year, but taxes for the first year will be levied only from March 1, 1913, to Dec. 31 next. Notifications of assessments will be sent out by the government before June 1, next.

Taxes must be paid by June 30. Failure to file a return means a fine of from $2 to $1,000.

A fraudulent return makes the taxpayer liable to a fine of $2,000 or imprisonment for a year or both.

The man whose income tax is withheld by his employer must file an affidavit by Feb. 1 with the employer or the internal revenue collector in claiming deductions.

All holders of cooperative bonds must file by the same date a statement in writing claiming exemptions from the tax if it is not to be deducted from interest payments.

CARD OF THANKS.

WE WISH to thank all those, who so kindly assisted us during the illness and burial of our beloved husband and father.

Mrs. Frank Falk and children.

SEASON'S FIRST BLIZZARD MONDAY

Temperature Falls Below the Freezing Point

This village experienced the first blizzard of the season last Monday afternoon. The storm breaking out late in the afternoon and continuing throughout the night. Although not much snow fell, it was very disagreeable. The wind which came from the north, was very strong and affected the thermometer, so as to make the mercury drop below the freezing point. Overcoats, even fur coats were donned by the people, and the sizzing of the radiators and the glare of the coal stoves could be heard and seen in the various buildings. The storm appeared to be general and some of the northern cities reported that it was one of the worst storms that ever struck them so early in the season.

Fox Lake Ships Apples

Fox Lake people have been busy this week filling a car of apples to be shipped to Milwaukee for free distribution. The offer of D. J. Hotchkiss to send the apples providing some one paid the freight, was taken up by the Milwaukee Journal. Lack of help to pick apples from the ground has hampered Dean and those working with him and women had to be impressed into service to save the day. The car load has been shipped to Milwaukee.

The New Auto Plates

The auto plates for 1914 are to be black and white, this decision having been made by Secretary of State John C. Donald. The plates are to be five inches high and four inches long. The figures are to be in relief in black on the white face of the plate. The new motorcycle plates are to be of the same color but much smaller. The new plates of which the state has ordered 25,000 pairs will cost 36 cents a piece, or 1 cent more than the plates for 1913.

FOR SALE.—A second hand milk wagon. Good as new. Can be bought for half the regular price. Inquire of Henry Schnurr, Kewaskum, Wis.—Adv. 10-25

BUSINESS PHILOSOPHY

The Local Trading Point

The Nearer the Marketing Place, the Better for the Farmer.

Copyrighted 1913 by National Business Publicity Association, Milwaukee.

By THOMAS J. SULLIVAN.

No powerful argument, no great display of intelligence is necessary to convince the most dense mind that the best market for the tittle of the soil is the home market.

What greater contributory to the benefit and prosperity of the farmer than to have his farm located near an enterprising manufacturing town, where marketing is conducted on a scale satisfactory to both producer and consumer.

To supply the needs and demands of the people living in the large cities, great quantities of country produce are daily shipped to the commission merchants operating there. The city consumer pays the price for living in the center of excitement, as he joins with the producer in sharing the cost of moving the farm products to the large cities, also the expense entailed in handling, storing and disposing of same to final consumer.

Did the farmers have in their local town a market for their products, or a great part of same, they would obtain a much better price for everything they raise and the consumer would pay considerably less than the people living in large congested centers.

The above statements, we assume, are common knowledge and no evidence is necessary to prove their reliability. A very little wisdom is required to understand that the farm situated in the vicinity of a thriving, prosperous trading center, a manufacturing town if you please, is of much greater value than a farm located near a town which is dead commercially.

What is the logical conclusion?

The resident of a town who does not exert his every effort in its interest to build it up and make it strong and prosperous, is indeed retarding his own advancement—that's the logical reply.

The first step in the right direction is the creation and development of a home market. Everything within your power should be done to make your town the trading Mecca of your vicinity. You should volunteer your services and co-operate with the other citizens in making your town the trading envy of your section of the state.

Give the question a little thought, and when you have reached a conclusion, do not hesitate to voice your sentiments. Go to your local newspaper publisher, your banker, your merchant, your lawyer, your hotel keeper and your druggist and tell them what you think would be the best way to build up and advance your town.

The efforts spent should not be directed in specific channels, but should embrace the betterment of rural life and conditions. The work for the improvement of both town and country ought to be made a community job, and every resident engage in the work with equal zest.

And above all things, wild cat speculations should be avoided. Imaginary mines, plantations and other fakes have drained many communities of their dollars which could have been safely and profitably invested in home industries, benefiting both the community and the investor.

Buying silver lining in the clouds of chance, and trading with mail order and catalogue houses, have done more injury to the local town than any other cause, except the lack of enterprise and petty jealousness.

Local development will be hindered just so long as the thoughtless citizens line up at the counter of the fakir and tender him their hard earned dollars, and while they continue to aid in increasing the bank accounts of the enormous corporations engaged in selling goods by mail by means of deceptive pictures to expensive catalogues.

Let the community rise up in one body and put a stop to this infamous practice.

ANNUAL SALE NEXT WEEK

The L. Rosenheimer Co. to Conduct Their Fall Opening Sale Next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday

The L. Rosenheimer Co., will on next week Wednesday, Thursday and Friday hold their annual fall opening sale at their store. They have this week sent out circulars to everybody in this neighborhood announcing the sale, which will be larger and better than ever before.

On every day of the sale special bargains can be obtained at very low prices. Wednesday, Oct. 29, has been set as cloak day, when special garments will be on hand to select from; Thursday, Oct. 30, from 9 to 12 M. has been set as calico day, when 10 yards of best calico will cost 3/4 cents per yard; and Friday, Oct. 31, has been set as flour and sugar day.

A special feature of this sale is that three $7.00 white lily wash machines will be given away absolutely free. Every $100 purchase entitles a person to a chance on one of these fine machines.

Do not miss this money saving sale, for the firm's aim is to make this their big sale, and the bargains will be bigger and more numerous than ever before.

West Bend Establishes Important Ratings

The city council of the city of West Bend has established fire limits or zones. This will mean that hereafter only fire proof buildings will be allowed in certain districts of that city.

This is a good move. How about the village fathers of this village following suit. It is very necessary to have an ordinance to this effect, the sooner the better.

DEATH OF AUGUST MARTIN

Old Resident of Town of Kewaskum Passed Away Wednesday. Funeral Held Friday

August Martin of the town of Kewaskum died at his home last Tuesday at the age of 62 years, 4 months, and 16 days. Deceased had been ill for seven months, death resulting from cancer of the stomach.

Mr. Martin was born June 6, 1857 in Germany and when a young boy of 17 years, he immigrated to this country, settling in Ohio. After residing in Ohio for a short time he moved to Horicon, from where he moved to his present home in the town of Kewaskum in 1881. He was married in 1877 to Mary Behm, who survives him. 6 children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Martin, three of whom survive, the rest having died in infancy. Those living are: Mat. of Chicago; Matilda at home, and Rose, Mrs. Ed Campbell of Campbellsport.

The funeral was held yesterday, Friday, in the St. Michaels church at St. Michaels, Rev. Beyer officiating. Interment was made in the congregation's cemetery. To the bereaved family we extend sympathy.

High School Notes

Freshie in the high school chair Who put you up there, Teacher taught you how to run, Oh! you baby Freshman.

The report cards for the first six weeks of school were given out to the pupils of the high school last Monday afternoon when Ignorance is Not Bliss.

The Juniors held a class meeting at the Wednesday morning recess and elected officers for this term as follows: Erwin Mohme, president; Irene Oppenorth, vice president and Ida Jung secretary and treasurer.

The following is the list of the high school pupils who have been neither absent nor tardy for the first term of six weeks: Walter Schaefer, Carl Schaefer, Harvey Brandt, Ida Jung, Erwin Mohme, Lazetta Schaefer, Roland Backus, Ralph Schaefer, Elmo Rosenheimer, August Bilgo, Harvey Schaefer, Elva Weddig, Manila Groeschel, Lorinda Schaefer and Hulda Quandt.

They say, 'Tis folly to be wise, And Ignorance is bliss. But I just wonder who's the guy That first invented this.

He's never been in high school, Where wisdom is on deck, And cashiers on the report card stood,

For when the quizzes fly around And school kids look so wise, Then bliss is nowhere to be found, "Zip" and Ignorance is surprised.

Suppose that Freshies work a while, Before exams are here, Then wisdom means a handsome smile, And Ignorance knows no fear.

But when the bravest Soph. grows sorry, Because a zero is his fate, He says a simple "I should worry."

Fishing zeros needs no bait." Just a test a Junior sighs, If I fail don't raise my Math, Then the questions and "Oh my" That escape would make you laugh Seniors ever "Model class, They would study if they could, But they lack the grit alas, And say nothing just saw wood.

Say then, Ignorance is bliss, And 'Tis folly to be wise, Does not work when there's a quizz, Cause wisdom takes her wings and flies.

Raising Clover Seed Profitable

That raising clover seed is a very profitable industry is proved. For William Jandrea of New Prospect sold to L. Rosenheimer of this village three loads of clover seed consisting of 126 bushels. He received in the neighborhood of $1000.00 for the three loads, which shows that the industry must be profitable.

Canning Company Organized

The Fredonia Pea Canning Co., of Fredonia was organized on Tuesday evening, with a capital stock of $25,000. A board of directors was elected as follows: Geo. Meyer, B. Franzen, John Pintzen, J. J. Freeman, Aug. Kettel. Work of erecting the building will commence soon so as to be ready for the canning season next year.—Port Washington Pilot

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

Meets With Accident

A bad hunting accident happened near Rogersville on Sunday afternoon when Geo. Bierne, son of James Bierne of Oakfield, was accidentally shot in the leg by Geo. Laing of Oak Center. Laing who was hunting rabbits with Mr. Bierne, was standing three rods from Bierne when the former seeing the bushes move, thought it was a rabbit causing them to move raising his shotgun fired the contents of one barrel. Twenty-four shots entered Mr. Bierne's leg from his knee up and two in his hand. The injured man was immediately taken to Oakfield in an automobile where the physician looked after the wound and probed for some of the shot. It is expected that Mr. Bierne will recover rapidly. He will be confined to his home for some time as he suffered great pain.—Lomira Review.

Set Fire to Box Cars

A little excitement was stirred up in our burg last night, when fire was set to several boarding cars on the sidetrack in Chicago & Northwestern railway company's yards.

Enough citizens responded to the call of the fire bell to extinguish the flames, but it seems the miscreants did not consider the fact, that elevators, coal sheds and lumber yard were so close, that through their prank the entire town might be a pile of ashes the next morning.—Campbellsport News.

Has Narrow Escape

While S. H. Smiley of Sheboygan Falls was crossing the C. & N. W. tracks at that place on Monday evening with his automobile a special train came along and took off two wheels of the machine. Smiley was about to cross the tracks which run somewhat parallel with the road. It had been snowing and raining and the rails were slippery. The machine skidded and the train was upon him taking off the two side wheels. Fortunately no one was injured.—Port Washington Pilot.

Money for Highways

Over $4,000,000 will be spent on roads in this state next year, according to the report of the highway commission. This represents 1,400 miles of highways to be built, an increase of 500 miles over work done this year. Requests totaling $1,550,000 were made, but the state fell short, and the sum donated by the state will be $1,240,000. Dodge county ranks third in the amounts received, with $34,200. Washington county's share is $15,000.

Children Poisoned by Cheese

Seven children of Mr. and Mrs. C. Koehner of this city became seriously ill last Friday evening with ptomaine poisoning, the result of having eaten brick cheese. Physicians worked over the patients all night before they were pronounced out of danger. The parents also ate some of the cheese but they escaped the poisoning.—West Bend Pilot.

Another New Building

J. B. Day, who owns the building over the river now occupied by Frank Haupt as a shoe store contemplates erecting a new building on the site in the near future. He owns a frontage of 30 feet and will make the building 90 feet long. We understand that it will be fitted up for a garage.—Hartford Times.

Mr. Heise expects to move to Florida in the near future to make his future home there.

BRAZIL GREET'S T. R.

ROOSEVELT GIVEN MILITARY WELCOME ON HIS ARRIVAL AT RIO JANEIRO.

IS GUEST OF THE PRESIDENT

Republic's High Officials and Diplomats From All Lands Meet Former U. S. Chief Executive—Makes Address at Y. M. C. A.

Rio Janeiro, Oct. 23.—Theodore Roosevelt, who was given a military welcome on his arrival here on Tuesday, visited President Hermes Fonseca.

Edwin V. Morgan, United States ambassador to Brazil, with the staff of the embassy, went on board before the vessel docked with a reception committee including Senator Barros-Moreira, representing the ministry of foreign affairs; Lieutenant Colonel Achilles de Fedeles, Brazilian attaché at Washington; Don Jose Carlos Rodriguez, Admiral Antonio Coutinho Gomes Pereira and Antonio Olinto de Magalhães of the historical institute.

The party disembarked on the naval ordnance quay, where a company of soldiers saluted, while bands played the Brazilian and American national anthems. Several committees presented bouquets of flowers to Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Margaret Roosevelt.

Marshal Hermes Fonseca, president of the republic, was unable to be present, but he sent a special representative. All the cabinet ministers of Brazil, the minister of Argentina, with the members of his legation; the presidents of the Brazilian senate and chamber of deputies, a representative parliamentary committee, the chief commissioner of police, the presidents of the various tribunals of the high court of justice, the members of the municipal council, headed by the mayor of Rio Janeiro. Many members of the diplomatic corps, high functionaries of the government and military and naval officers in full uniform were among the welcoming delegations.

A procession, headed by Colonel Roosevelt and the representative of the president of Brazil, proceeded to a reception room in the naval arsenal, which was decorated with Brazilian flags and the Stars and Stripes intertwined. Here Colonel Roosevelt and the members of his party were introduced to the leading officials.

After the ceremony Colonel Roosevelt was conducted to the Guanabara palace, where he will reside during his sojourn here.

All the newspapers published articles welcoming Roosevelt.

Colonel Roosevelt paid his respects to the president of the republic in a cordial visit. The meeting was most cordial. He then called on Dr. Lauro Muller, minister of foreign affairs, and together they inspected the port works and the avenues for which Brazil is noted.

In the morning he was the guest of the president at breakfast. Later he visited the military college and spoke before the Young Men's Christian association. In the evening he attended a performance at the Municipal theater.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRE

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 18.—Bruce Mounts, son of former State Senator W. L. Mounts, was killed and A. Crawford, Jr., son of A. W. Crawford of the state board of equalization, was seriously injured by Mount's automobile.

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 18.—Miss Francis A. Clark, a sixteen-year-old pianist, saved 200 women and children from being trapped to death in a theater panic at Newcastle. A 3,000-foot fire caught fire at a show house and when smoke poured from behind the curtain panic started. Miss Clark sang popular airs to rag time when the smoke was so thick she could not see the piano keys, and shouted to the excited audience to mark time with her music.

SENATOR LEWIS AND H. T. PINDELL

H. T. Pindell of Peoria, Ill., here seen with his sponsor, Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, has been slated for appointment as ambassador to Russia, but opposition has developed on the ground that he has not always been a consistent Democrat, and there is likely to be a fight in the senate over his confirmation.

SULZER FOR ASSEMBLY

EX-GOVERNOR ACCEPTS NOMINATION ON PROGRESSIVE TICKET.

Says Impeachment Trial Resulted From Refusal to Obey Murphy and Accept Money.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 23.—William Sulzer on Tuesday night departed from Albany in silence. Not a friend outside of his official family accompanied him to the railroad station. Not a cheer greeted him as, with his hat drawn over his eyes and his chin buried in his overcoat collar, he walked slowly down the platform and boarded his car—by coincidence the "Empire State."

William Sulzer, impeached as governor of the state, was nominated for the assembly Monday night by the Progressives of the Sixth assembly district. Mr. Sulzer in 1889 began his public career as a member of this branch of the state legislature.

Mr. Sulzer had agreed to accept the nomination, it was announced at the meeting where he was chosen as the candidate. Max Steindler, Progressive leader in the district, who placed the former governor's name in nomination, said Mr. Sulzer reached him by telephone from Albany, inquiring if he had been designated. Mr. Steindler replied in the affirmative. He said he asked Mr. Sulzer if he would accept, and Mr. Sulzer replied he would gladly do so.

That Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, offered money to William Sulzer and that the impeachment of Sulzer resulted from his refusal to take orders from the chief of the Tammany clan was the charge made.

28 DIE IN ZEPPELIN AIRSHIP

German Admiralty Board Among Those Slain When Balloon Crashes to Earth.

Berlin, Oct. 20.—The newest of the Zeppelin airships, the L-2, was destroyed in midair by an explosion on Friday. All but one of the 28 military men were killed.

The 28 represented the entire personnel of the admiralty board which was conducting the final trial of the dirigible, looking to its acceptance by the German government as a new unit of the German aerial navy, the pilot and crew and invited guests.

Every person that went aloft to the big airship is dead.

Four Killed on Rail Crossing

MILITANT IS FREED

MRS. PANKHURST ADDRESSES CROWD AT BATTERY AFTER BEING RELEASED.

IS AT MRS. BELMONT'S HOME

Well Known Suffragette Asserts Biggest Show Has Been Dealt at English Opposition—Receives Big Reception.

New York, Oct. 22.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English militant suffragette leader, landed on Manhattan island on Monday from Ellis island, where she had been detained by the immigration authorities. She had been ordered deported as an undesirable alien. She made a speech to a large crowd at the Battery.

Mrs. Pankhurst left Ellis island Monday on a government tug and was landed at the Battery. She had been accompanied across the bay by 25 ardent suffragettes, who had gone on the island earlier in the day to serenade her, and when she left the boat she found awaiting her a crowd of several hundred, mostly women, who cheered wildly for the liberated woman.

"What has happened today is one of the greatest slaps in the face that official Great Britain has ever had in its fight against the irresistible wave of sentiment for women's suffrage," she said. "Great Britain does not want me to tell the truth. Great Britain did not want me to come to the United States for that reason. But I am here to tell the whole truth about the suffrage workers in Great Britain."

"I have come here to tell everything I know about suffrage. It is a great battle because it is for a great cause. We are being opposed bitterly in England.

"I believe our most bitter opponents are Premier Asquith and Home Secretary McKenna. McKenna is pig headed, narrow minded and ignorant. He and Asquith are doing all in their power to block suffrage, but their efforts remind me of Canute speaking to the sea."

From the Battery Mrs. Pankhurst went to the home of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont. She dined with prominent suffrage leaders at the Aldine club at night and her first speech will be delivered Friday night.

FIVE DIE IN BLIZZARD

MIDDLE WEST IS SWEEP BY SNOWSTORM.

Gale Wrecks Vessels on Great Lakes and Crops in South Suffer From Cold Wave.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—The first snowstorm of the season blew into Chicago Monday night on the wings of a 30-mile northwest wind. The snow did not last long, but it was of the blizzard variety for a short time. Wisconsin suffered severely from a gale that swept the state.

Dispatches from widely scattered Wisconsin cities brought the same news—that a frightful blizzard was raging. Railroad traffic is practically at a standstill; telegraph and telephone service is demoralized, and in one city, Ashland, the street cars were forced to suspend operation because of the snow.

Other points in the Mississippi valley where the sudden advent of winter was reported included St. Paul and Minneapolis, registering temperatures from ten to twelve degrees below freezing. It was the coldest October day for the Twin Cities since October 18, 1896, and a snowstorm, almost of blizzard proportions, raged all afternoon and night.

The Wisconsin blizzard, however, easily outclassed all other reports of bad weather. The snow belt at midnight was from Fond du Lac, 150 miles north of Chicago, across the state to the west and north to the Lake Superior line.

All shipping on Lake Superior has sought shelter, and three men were drowned in Chequamegon bay at Ashland when their gasoline launch was upset by the heavy seas. Details of the Ashland blizzard are meager. Two hunters on Shawano lake, George McEachron and Thomas Stoltz of Milwaukee, were drowned when the gale upset their skiff half a mile from shore.

A dispatch from Alpena, Mich., states that the wooden steamer Norwalk of Detroit was driven on the rocks at False Presque Isle.

DEMOCRAT WINS IN ILLINOIS

Charles C. Craig of Galesburg Elected to Supreme Court Over L. D. Puterbaugh by 3,000 Majority.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 22.—Returns from all of the ten counties in the Fifth supreme district on Monday showed the election of Charles C. Craig, Democrat, of Galesburg, to the supreme bench by a majority over Leslie D. Puterbaugh of 3,000.

Judge Puterbaugh carried Peoria county by 1,200 majority. It is said to be the first time in the history of Illinois judicial elections that a millionaire has been sent to the supreme bench. Judge J. M. Niehaus, Democrat, won in the Tenth judicial district. In the race for the probate judgeship Walter A. Clunch was victorious.

BUSH'S BODY REACHES N. Y.

Special Train Will Take Wealthy Brewer's Remains to St. Louis for Burial.

New York, Oct. 22.—The body of Adolphus Busch, millionaire brewer and philanthropist, arrived here from Bremen on board the liner Kron Prinz Wilhelm. When the liner arrived at quarantine there was already in readiness at Jersey City a special funeral train to take the body to St. Louis, where it will be buried. The train was made up of a baggage car, a diner, a Pullman sleeper, the private car of Adolphus of the Busch family, and a combination observation and sleeping car, in part of which had been placed a catalogue to support the coffin.

STATE LEADER IN GRAIN AND GRASS

REPORT OF THE AGRICULTURAL BOARD PUTS WISCONSIN AHEAD IN UNION.

GREAT RECORD FOR NORTH

Past Year Has Been Unusually Prosperous One for Farmers Throughout Commonwealth—Potatoes Suffer From Blight.

Madison.—The report of the state agricultural department just issued shows the year 1913 has been highly productive to the farmers of the state of Wisconsin, this state leading all other states in the union in the production of grains and grasses. This is accounted for by favorable climatic conditions, and the fact that Wisconsin farmers are giving more attention to the selection of seed and the preparation of the soil for planting, and cultural practices throughout the season.

The average yield of wheat for the state is 19.2 bushels, the central and southern divisions showing a yield of 19.4 as against 18.7 for the northern section. The average yield of rye in the northern division is 17.9 bushels; central division, 17.5; southern division, 18.2; the general average for the state being 17.9. The average yield per acre of barley for the entire state is 28.7 bushels, each division of the state showing about the same yield per acre. This is also true of oats, the general average yield per acre for the entire state being 29.3 bushels. The yield per acre of corn (shelled) is 38.1 bushels, the northern division of the state showing a yield of 36.8 bushels; central division, 38.3; southern division, 39.2. The average yield of buckwheat is 15.8 bushels per acre. Flax, 14.6 bushels per acre; beans, 15.9 bushels per acre. Blight and early frost damaged potatoes to a considerable extent in some of the larger potato producing counties.

The average yield of tobacco for the entire state is 120.4 bushels. The yield in the principal tobacco producing counties of the state is as follows: Dane county, 1,275 pounds; Vernon county, 1,150 pounds; Rock county, 1,100 pounds; Columbia county, 1,100 pounds; Crawford county, 975 pounds.

REUBEN G. THWAITES DEAD

Secretary of State Historical Society Expires at Madison After Short Illness.

Madison.—Dr. Reuben Gold Thwaites, for twenty-five years superintendent of the state historical society, and one of the most noted historians of the west, died at the Madison general hospital after an illness of four days with kidney trouble.

Dr. Thwaites was born in Dorchester, Mass., May 15, 1853. He prepared himself by study at home for a university degree. He went to Yale and did post-graduate work there for a year, in 1874-75, then came to Wisconsin and in 1876 became managing editor of the Wisconsin State Journal, continuing in that capacity until 1886.

In 1882 he was married to Miss Jessie I. Turville, who has assisted him in much of his literary work. In 1886 he was chosen secretary and superintendent of the Wisconsin State Historical society, which position he has held ever since, and to his indefatigable efforts is largely due the building of the great historical library.

News Notes of Wisconsin

Marquette.—Mayor Joseph Fisher, president of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, has appointed a committee of five to devise a plan for organizing cities into mutual organizations, carrying their own insurance. The members of the committee are as follows: H. E. Marquardt, comptroller of Wisconsin; John Malva, mayor of Oshkosh; Henry Stultz, Jr., mayor of Manitowoc; A. J. Sorenson, mayor of La Crosse; and Peter Stoffel, alderman of Racine.

Madison.—Losing her mind as the result of being frightened at the university Freshmen-Sophomore class rush Oct. 9, Miss Othilda Titch, aged 23, a domestic, was committed to the Mendota asylum by County Judge Zimmerman. The rush was the first one she ever witnessed and when the students fought for the sacks she became hysterical and since has been under the impression that she was being persecuted.

Milwaukee.—Pietro Manto, aged 18, who came to this country from Italy four months ago, was sentenced to twelve years in Waupun prison by Judge Backus, for shooting Napoleon Lindsay, colored, with intent to kill. Both men were street laborers.

Madison.—The five branches of the Wisconsin Pea Cannery company, against whom the federal commission lodged ninety-five counts for alleged violation of the women's hours of labor law, had filed notice with Attorney General Owen that they will admit the charge and await judgment by the courts.

Madison.—Work on the state capitol is being delayed by a strike of marble workers who want the question of membership in the bricklayers' union decided.

Eau Claire.—Andrew Nelson, aged 61, of Stanley, died in a hospital here a few hours after he was brought from an Alnham lumber camp, where he was crushed by a falling tree.

Oshkosh.—George H. Buckstaff, 76 years old, a retired lumberman, veteran of the civil war and former state senator of Winnebago county, passed away at his home here of inflammatory rheumatism, from which he had suffered for many years.

La Crosse.—John Granlich, aged 14, son of a farmer south of here, climbed a tree in pursuit of a squirrel. Fifteen feet above the ground he came in contact with an electric wire and was electrocuted.

Racine.—Alex. Miller, a prisoner in the city lockup, probably succeeded in an attempt to end his life when he used a pair of suspenders to hang himself in a cell.

Green Bay.—While John Memaerts was walking in the woods with a gun over his back the weapon was accidentally discharged and tore away half of his right leg.

Fond du Lac.—Max Goll and Charles Mack escaped from the county jail by sawing through the bars. Goll was being held for trial on a statutory offense and Mack for embezzlement.

De Forest.—A fire destroyed $5,000 worth of property of the De Forest Lumber company.

Madison.—The bonded debt of the city now is $1,091,800.

Madison.—Wisconsin has less rabies than any other state, according to Dr. M. P. Ravenel, bacteriologist, in charge of the state hygienic laboratory. For nine months there has not been a rabies patient and the state veterinarian reports no cases, said the doctor. Pennsylvania ranks second.

Manitowoc.—Income tax collections in Manitowoc county this year will be double the aggregate collected in 1912.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

EXTRA VAGANCE and plenty cannot long dwell in the same house.

PREPARING SHELL FISH.

After the rest from oysters during the warm months, one comes back to them with a new relish when the cool days of fall are here.

Broiled Oysters With Brown Sauce.—Dry and season the oysters as for frying. Have ready a wire broiler and a good clear fire; arrange the oysters on the broiler and cook a minute on each side. Put them on a hot dish, add a tablespoonful of butter, one of lemon juice and a sprinkling of salt and red pepper to each oyster. The brown sauce is usually that which is made from the liquor of the oysters that are cooked on a cake griddle, adding flour and butter for thickening.

A delicious bouillon to serve for company is prepared thus: Chop fine fifty oysters, put them in a double boiler and cook slowly for an hour; add a pint of water, a teaspoonful of celery seed, and strain through two thicknesses of cheese cloth. Reheat, add butter and salt and serve in cups.

Panned Oysters Served on Toast.—Drain and wash the oysters. Have ready a smoking hot spider, throw in the oysters and add a tablespoonful of butter to each two dozen oysters. Shake often, season with salt and pepper and add ten drops of onion juice. When boiling hot serve on squares of toast.

It is always wise to throw away the water in which the oysters are received.

A green tinge in an oyster does not denote decomposition necessarily, for often the green food on which they feed gives them that color.

When preparing oysters, put them into a colander and pour a quart or two of cold water from the faucet through them. By handling each one the bits of shell may be discovered and removed.

Oysters, Escalloped.—When preparing escalloped oysters, it

Manitowoc.—Charles F. Schmetz, proprietor of the Manitowoc Church and School Furniture plant, has formed a corporation and will conduct the business at Waukesha.

WILL AID SMALL SHIPPERS

Nye Law Gives Every Shipper Right to Present Transportal on Bills to Rate Board for Revision.

Madison.—The state railroad commission is prepared to verify freight and express bills of shippers of the state and order refunds of overcharges in accordance with the Nye law passed by the last legislature. This law, it is expected, will be of great benefit to all shippers of the state who have no present means of finding out whether the railroads and express companies are overcharging them for transporting property. Many large shippers employ clerks to revise all of their freight and express bills, but the smaller shippers, who are largely in the majority and who furnish most of the business for the transportation companies, do not and therefore have no means of knowing definitely whether they are being overcharged.

Under the Nye law every shipper of the state has the right to send his freight and express bills to the commission for verification, or as the railroad companies term it, revision. The commission will check up all of the bills submitted and see if the weights, classification, rates and charges are correct, and will inform the shipper of any errors found and also issue an order requiring the transportation companies to make such refunds to which the shipper may be entitled. The commission is required by law to do this revision work without charge to the shipper. Freight and express bills running back for months or years may be forwarded to the commission for revision. The commission intends to increase its force of traffic clerks so as to handle this new business quickly.

STATE LAND PROBE BEGUN

Legislative Committee Will Determine Adaptability of Ground for Agriculture or Forestry.

Minocqua.—The Wisconsin legislative forestry committee, created by the last legislature to investigate the character of the lands in the state forest reserve and determine whether any of them are better adapted to agricultural purposes than to forest reserve purposes and report to the next legislature has begun its work in this section. The committee expects to spend three weeks in personally examining the forest reserve land in Oneida and Vilas counties. It does not expect to finish the examination this fall, but will do so much as it can and will resume it next spring. During the winter months it will hold a number of hearings at different villages and cities in or near the reserve and take testimony of residents of the territory regarding the character of the lands under investigation.

The investigation committee was appointed by the presiding officers of the two houses of the legislature in accordance with chapter 670, laws of 1913. The committee consists of Senators A. Pearce Tompkins of Ashland, H. A. Huber of Stoutenot and W. L. Richards of Milwaukee, Assemblyman Axel Johnson of Turtle Lake, R. J. Nye of Superior, H. M. Laursen of Shell Lake, C. F. Roessler of Jefferson and E. J. Kneen of Bangor. Senator Tompkins is chairman and Assemblyman Johnson secretary of the committee.

The committee has its headquarters at the main camp of the state forestry commission at Trout Lake, fifteen miles north of Minocqua, where it will have a comfortable cottage equipped with all the necessary conveniences for living in the woods.

CONFESSES SLAYING WIDOW

Prisoner Who Strangled Woman at Milwaukee Is Identified as Ex-Convict.

Milwaukee.—The identity of a woman who was strangled with her own silk scarf and her face and head crushed by blows from a piece of gas pipe, by a man giving his name as George Schultz, has been established as that of Mrs. Amelia Wille, 52 years old, a widow, who was a sister of Police Lieutenant William Maas.

The police by Bertillon records have identified Schultz, who confessed, as Harry Dorow, son of a Milwaukee saloonkeeper. Dorow was a prisoner at the Green Bay reformatory, where he served eighteen months for forgery. After attacking Mrs. Wille and beating her face beyond recognition, Dorow dragged her body into an alley. Passersby witnessed the act and attacked him, but he escaped. Later in the evening he surrendered to the police. Dorow claims the motive of his crime was robbery.

MAY CLEAR MURDER MYSTERY

Case of Slaying Near Altoona in 1908 Reopened by Confession of Man Held in Chicago.

Eau Claire.—The mystery of a murder committed near Altoona more than five years ago may be cleared up by the confession of Henry Hodgins, held in Chicago, who admits that he perpetrated the crime for the purpose of robbery. In November, 1908, the body of W. E. Murray, a railroad laborer, was found on the outskirts of Altoona. His skull had been crushed and a large sum of money he was supposed to carry was missing. George White, another laborer, was arrested for the crime, but finally acquitted for lack of evidence. The story told by Hodgins to the Chicago officers closely corresponds to the facts of Murray's murder and the Eau Claire county officials will probably bring him here and reopen the case.

Engineer Saved Many Lives.

La Crosse.—Investigation by officers of the Burlington wreck at Nelson, in which one man was killed and eighteen were injured, shows that Engineer M. H. Dorsey undoubtedly saved the lives of many of his passengers by prompt action in face of the impending collision. Dorsey had started to pull out on a siding when an express train appeared close by, running sixty miles an hour. There was not time for Dorsey to pull his train clear onto the siding, so he backed onto the main track and took upon his locomotive the force of the collision.

"Baby Farm" Broken Up.

Green Bay.—Sheriff Kolochecki broke up the "baby farm" of Mrs. Olive Murphy, who was arrested on a warrant charging her with placing a baby in a home for adoption without having a state license. Six babies were taken from the hospital and placed in care of trained nurses. District Attorney Davis will ask for a circuit order to have the children placed in the state home at Sparta. Mrs. Murphy probably will be arraigned in connection with the death of a boy named Paul Bonnen.

Selling Prairie du Sac Power.

Madison.—The million-dollar dam of the Wisconsin River Power company at Prairie du Sac is nearly completed, and agents are busy negotiating for the sale of the current to many cities.

Pays $1,100 for Four Cows.

Neenah.—Mrs. John Clovis, owner of a large farm north of here, has purchased four head of registered Holstein cattle, paying $1,100 for the animals. She has a herd of fifty-two.

Theron G. Haight Dead.

Waukesha.—Theron W. Haight, Civil war veteran, historian, former state and military official, educator and editor, passed away at his home here after a year's illness with heart trouble.

Trout Eggs for Hatcheries.

Madison.—Two hundred bushels of lake trout eggs will be taken during the next thirty days from the great lakes to be transplanted in the various hatcheries.

Most Graceful Mounting of Plumes

GOOD ostrich feathers require the investment of more money than almost any other millinery trimming, but they last much longer. They are always in fashion and they stand cleaning and dyeing so that the life of a good feather extends over several years. A handsome pair of plumes is shown here. They are the only trimming required on a shape, and it is a mistake to use any other with them unless it is a little band and bow of ribbon about the crown. This will serve to conceal the mounting of the feathers. As will be seen in the picture, the plumes are mounted at the back of the hat, with one falling toward the front and the other standing almost upright. They are placed back to back. By buying a ready-made velvet shape the owner of a plume, or of two or three, may mount them herself by going about it in the right way. It is usual to first sew the wire stem of each plume to a little square or disk of buckram. This should be about the size of a half dollar. The stems must be sewed securely to the buckram with a strong linen thread. When the needle is thrust through the buckram first, leave several inches of the thread free. After many stitches are made (holding the plume securely to the buckram), this free end is used to tie with the remainder of the thread. The piece of buckram fastened in this way to the stems of the plumes make it possible to mount them gracefully. When sewing the buckram to the shape an end of thread is left free for tying. This is necessary because plumes sway in the wind and will pull stitches that are not tied, loose, and one is liable to lose a plume. Whenever a plume is fastened to the hat it should be tied rather than sewed, but several stitches are needed as well as the tied thread, to hold the plume securely. Do not make the mistake of drawing the plume tightly against the hat. Let it fall naturally. Then, to keep it in position, tie the thread about the rib and then attach it (the thread), to the hat, leaving the thread sufficiently long to give the plume a little play. The whole object is to fasten the plume in place, but in such a way as to make the fastening unnoticeable. It is a feature of this reason's millinery that a pair of plumes back to back, or one curling within the other, is mounted at the same point on the hat. One or two plumes are seen more often than a great number. For the season demands that the lines of shape must be preserved, not lost, by too abundant trimming. White plumes clean and dye satisfactorily. In buying black plumes, a good quality may be depended on for many seasons' wear. But one must select glossy and deep black ones, for the color of these will not grow less rich with wear. Very good plumes are not much affected by moisture. If they become damp hold them over the stove or a radiator, and shake them until thoroughly dry. JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

BASKETS FOR THE HOME-MADE CANDIES EASY TO FASHION

NOW that it has become difficult to buy really good candy without paying an extravagant price, those who know how to make the delicious homemade candies can be certain of making the most palatable of gifts for friends who haven't time or ability to make them. It is too early to make up candies for the holidays, but one may prepare in advance pretty boxes or baskets in which to place them when they are made. Secure at the ten cent store or wherever you can find them the bright little splint baskets, such as are pictured here. Cut and pull out the strand of colored shavings that have been placed in them for ornament. Run in, instead of the shavings a ribbon of the same width. A thin, inexpensive satin ribbon is just the right kind for this purpose. Tie the ribbon in a small bow at the front of the basket. Light green and light blue, or colors corresponding with those in the basket, are prettiest. Red and green are fine, if the basket is in the natural wood or bamboo color. These little baskets may be gilded with gold paint and made very attractive. After the candy has been eaten the basket will remain a pleasant reminder to the recipient of the donor's delicious Christmas gift. Paraffine or tissue paper should be placed in them to protect them from the candy. They will serve so many purposes later—thread boxes, handkerchiefs, ribbons, laces, gloves—all these need boxes. But the prettiest use for them is as a receptacle for small flowers used in table decorations. By fitting them with a scallow tin cup or part of a can, and throwing back the lid, they make a charming decoration for the table, filled with foliage and flowers. JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

Instead of sewing or pinning shields in a waist, sew a narrow piece of tape or baby ribbon at each end of the shield, and sew similar pieces at the proper distance apart in the armholes of all your waists. The shields are quickly tied in place, they are easily changed in wash waists, and there are no pins to rust or prick.

Take two cupfuls of cracker or bread crumbs, one-quarter of a pound of deviled ham and two cupfuls of milk, using a portion of it to moisten the ham. Stir in two well beaten eggs, add one spoonful of salt, pour into a buttered bread pan and bake in a moderate oven for an hour. Serve cold cut in thin slices.

When stoning raisins the following method is excellent: First free them from their stems, then put in a bowl and cover them with boiling water, letting them remain in it for two minutes; finally pour off the water and open the raisins, and the seeds can be removed quickly and easily without the usual stickiness.

Beat one pint of heavy cream until stiff, fold in one-half cup of powdered sugar, and three-fourths cup of marshmallows cut into small pieces; flavor with one teaspoon of vanilla, turn into a mold, pack in salt and ice and let stand from four to six hours before serving.

French knots make a very handsome monogram, especially in old English. No padding is required, and the paper-mache letters cannot be used. Stamp the monogram upon the article and then simply fill it in closely and solidly with small French knots. The result will be highly satisfactory.

Mend the fences. Poultry relish charcoal. Early plowed is profits made. Make the poultry house rat proof. Don't neglect the newly planted orchard. Corn must be the chief grain crop on a stock farm. Always put bran or a little grain in manger at milking time. A good spray pump is an effective weapon in fighting lice and mites. Good care is as important as good feed, especially in the fall and winter. Failure to secure profits in hog raising is usually due to mismanagement. Roosting poles that have a smooth surface with no rough places to harbor lice are best. On cold nights sash can be covered with old carpet or heavy canvas instead of straw mats. Those who have succeeded in getting a good stand of alfalfa are enthusiastic over its value. There is no better way to stiffen up a horse than to have him stand on a plank floor when not at work. Skim milk in place of water will make the fattening mash more palatable and the bird will do better on it. Ground oats, middlings and corn meal, mixed with skim milk, make a good fattening ration for young stock. Filth and dirt in a poultry house make good breeding places for lice, and it always pays to keep the house clean. Intensive cultivation demands intercropping, and when this is done most liberal manuring is necessary for the highest returns. If cows are fed grain when the pastures are succulent and abundant, it will increase the yield of milk and also add flesh to the cows. A cow cannot give a full flow of milk unless she is provided with feed from which to make the milk. It is wrong to expect something for nothing. Apple trees will thrive and do well on almost any soil which is well prepared, but the different kinds of soil may require different treatment and after care. Hauling up a few loads of chaff from around the straw stack is a reasonable job now. The chaff makes good scratching litter and also contains some grain. Creameries are of no benefit to a neighborhood unless there are a sufficient number of cows to supply the milk necessary to run them economically and successfully. Tar may be removed from the hands by rubbing with the outside of fresh orange or lemon peel and drying immediately. The volatile oils dissolve the tar so that it can be rubbed off. You can prolong your tomato season by taking up all plants and piling them in a heap. The small green tomatoes should be pulled for pickling and the large ones allowed to remain for ripening. Do more than look at the cattle when you visit the fairs and exhibitions this fall. Watch the judge and see if you cannot carry home a point or two that will help you in picking out a good individual. The draft horse does the work on the farm most satisfactorily and with less expense and worry; sells higher and more rapidly; costs less to get him ready for market; and it costs less time and labor to train him and get him ready for market. Another thing that goes to make vegetable growing a success is irrigation, have water at hand where you can irrigate when your garden demands it; there isn't anything that makes vegetables tough and woody as lack of water. This is the getting ready season for the winter's work. A leaky roof, cracks in the wall or floor, broken roofs, and the like are calling for attention now. Banking earth around the foundation of the hen house is also a timely odd job. Don't be in any particular hurry about separating the calf from the cow with a caked or highly inflamed udder, as the little fellow will, by sucking, draw more inflammation from her udder than any application of medicine known to science. One of the best features of some of the large state fairs in the Mississippi valley is the encampment, or rather the camp for boys. Different counties are sending these youngsters to the fairs and the benefit will be seen in years to come. It is a splendid plan.

Grade all small fruit. Apple trees like any soil. In breeding a heifer use a pure bred sire. Poultry keeping is no pathway of ease. Never carry poultry with their heads hanging downward. Remember the great law of breeding—that "like begets like." To get the maximum profit keep chicks growing right into market. A pound of mutton can be produced at less cost than any other kind of meat. The fungicidal value of lime-sulphur is increased by the addition of arsenate of lead. The best dairy cows will give the best returns if handled quietly and treated gently. Be sure to market all the poor specimens in your flock before they increase the feed bills. There are some cattle that are no better in the dairy barn than are the weeds in the corn field. Do not feed all of the separated milk to the pigs. The chickens will return a good profit for some of it. The best pastures are made up of blue grass, timothy and orchard grass, and of common red, white and alsike clover. Good sheep require good care to maintain their excellence. Poor sheep are always a burden upon the rest of the flock. Of the serious parasitic diseases affecting sheep, stomach worms probably cause the heaviest losses to sheep raisers. More than in any other branch of farming, success in poultry raising depends on regularly and faithfully doing the little things. Dairying brings its best returns when it is made a systematic line of work, not merely an incidental to the other farm activities. Screened coal ashes are a good thing for all poultry. A quantity should be accessible at all times in a box sheltered from rain. In catering to the trade where fruit is marketed try to put yourself in the position of the buyer and then furnish the quality of fruit the trade wants. A chicken with a properly developed frame, well formed bones, and good muscles will take on fat readily when the times comes for such development. Use a liberal amount of slaked lime on all old run or yards before spading or plowing them up. It may save you serious trouble and losses, later on. Success in intensive cultivation depends a great deal on raising the proper kind of vegetables; do not try to sell your customers a poor-looking or a tasteless vegetable. As a result of the fight of the department of agriculture for purer milk, thousands of farmers have introduced new and sanitary methods of producing and shipping milk. It is economy of time and labor to wash milking utensils as soon as possible after using. If you can't wash them right away, rinse them with cold water and you will save time in washing. It is always more profitable to grow a crop that your neighboring truck gardener is short on, also always plant just enough of each crop that will allow you to sell as long as the demand is good. When you dig the potatoes save the small ones for the hens. They are very fond of them when boiled and mixed with a little bran. A mess of them fed once in a while makes a variety for them and is a treat. Fertility may be restored to worn-out land by saving all animal manures and putting them onto the land; by making use of all crop residues, that is, putting back into the soil everything not used for feed; by turning under green manuring and catch crops. Why should we annually spend thousands of dollars searching for methods to eliminate the most destructive enemies of agriculture, when the Creator has placed the quail in every state in the Union for that especial purpose? But we can not have the quail and eat him too. When crops begin to look poor and there seems to be a scarcity of feed, the farmer always hangs on to the good dairy cow and lets the rest of his stock go first. The cow is what helps to bring the profit and tide over hard times. To secure the best returns from sheep raising it is not necessary to keep them exclusive of all other live stock, but a small flock, just what can conveniently be accommodated along with other farm animals and given the best of care. Feeding the milk cows on pasture alone has more to do with the condition of the cow afterwards than just exactly at the time. Often it pays in later months, sometimes in the next lactation periods, to feed well even though the pasture looks good. The farmer's attitude towards education has changed very rapidly. It is not so long since book farming was laughed at, but today it is received favorably wherever intelligent men gather. The book farmer is the man who often gets ahead of his neighbor.

Have You Seen Those Beautiful Autumn and Winter Cloaks & Suits?

Remember, the newest modes in Cloaks and Suits always appear here first.

Women's and Misses' fashionable outer garments will be the powerful attraction here this week. Please don't judge the garments by the modesty of the prices.

Every Stylecraft garment is a work of art, worthy of all the thought and care and consideration bestowed upon it in the designing and making. That's why the best dressed women everywhere delight in wearing them.

Our Line of Ladies' and Misses' Furs is by far the best selection ever shown here, and the prices you will find lower than elsewhere. Give us a chance to show you before buying elsewhere.

A Distinction And A Difference.

Comparing the market report of Milwaukee and Calgary the same week, we find that the range in price of wheat was from 63 to 67 1/2 cents in Calgary and from 84 to 88 1/2 cents in Milwaukee; barley from 30 1/2 to 49 1/2 cents at Calgary and 70 to 84 cents at Milwaukee, and oats from 22 1/2 to 25 1/2 cents in Calgary and 40 to 41 1/2 cents in Milwaukee. This is a distinction with a difference.
If the price in Milwaukee is low enough, and we will all agree that it is, what about that of western Canada? But the situation is still stronger as to Wisconsin for the reason that most of the grain that is sold in Wisconsin goes to the seed grain market at several times the above prices.
Moral: Stay in Wisconsin.

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Varney, wife of a Confederate general, has lost one son and another is dying from wounds. She reluctantly gives her consent for Edith, the youngest daughter, to join the army if her father consents. The Federals are making their last assault on an effort to capture Richmond. Edith Varney secures from President Davis a commission for Capt. Thorne, who is just recovering from wounds, as chief of the telegraph at Richmond. Capt. Thorne tells Edith he has been ordered to leave the secret service, a rejected suitor of Edith's, detects Jonas, Mrs. Varney's butler, carrying a note from a prisoner in Libby prison. Arrelsford suspects it is intended for Thorne. The note reads: "Attack tonight. Plan 3. Use Telegraph." Arrelsford declares Thorne is a prisoner in Libby. Edith refuses to believe and suggests that Thorne be confronted with the prisoner as a test. An order comes from General Varney for Edith to report to the front at once. Edith is forced to carry out her part in the test of Thorne. The prisoner, who recognizes him as his elder brother, Henry Dumont. Thorne takes the note and Henry accidentally kills himself. Caroline Milford, Wilfred's sweetheart, goes to the war department telegraph office to send a message to Wilfred. Arrelsford suspects a double meaning and refuses to let it be through. Edith and Thorne secretly themselves to shake Thorne, whose arrival at the front is expected. Arrelsford and Edith see Thorne after a dispatch from the front. Thorne is shot in the wrist by Arrelsford when he attempts to send it. Arrelsford calls the guard and when they arrive Thorne turns the tables by ordering the arrest of Arrelsford. The removal of Arrelsford is stopped by the arrival of General Randolph. Thorne again begins sending the dispatch. Arrelsford protests, declaring Thorne is sending a forged order to weaken the lines of defense. Thorne is saved by General Varney, who produces his commission as chief of telegraph. She, having seen enough to convince her he is a spy, plans to send the forged order. After she leaves he tells her to escape. Arrelsford calls at the Varney home and demands to see Edith. Mrs. Varney refuses. A sergeant appears with an order to search the house for Thorne. Wilfred Varney returns from the front wounded. Thorne appears, is arrested by Wilfred and turned over to the guard. Arrelsford immediately convenes a drumhead court-martial. Edith sees Jonas draw the bullets from the side of the guard's name is sentenced to immediate execution. Edith tells him what Jonas has done, and suggests he feign death in order to escape. He refuses and tells the sergeant what has been done. The execution is halted by the arrival of General Randolph.

CHAPTER XX.—Continued. Now Edith Varney had scarcely moved. She had expected nothing, she had hoped for nothing from the advent of the general. At best it would mean only a little delay. The verdict was just, the sentence was adequate, and the punishment must and would be carried out. She had listened, scarcely apprehending, busy with her own thoughts, her eyes fastened on Thorne, who stood there so pale and composed. But at this remarkable statement by General Randolph she was suddenly quickened into life. A low exclamation broke from her lips. A hope, not that his life might be saved, but that it might be less shameful to love him, came into her heart. Wilfred stepped forward also. The terse statement of the general had caused a great deal of excitement.

"I Say That Dispatch Was Not Sent," He Roared.

and commotion in the room. Only Thorne preserved his calmness. He was glad that Edith Varney had learned this, and he was more glad that she had learned it from the lips of the enemy, but it would make no difference in his fate. He was not guilty of that particular charge, but there were dozens of other charges for which they could try him, the punishment of any one of which was death. Besides, he was a spy caught in the Confederate lines, wearing a uniform not his own. It was enough that the woman should learn that he had not taken advantage of her action; at least she could not reproach herself with that. "Why, general," began Arrelsford, greatly dismayed. "I hardly understand what you mean. That dispatch—I saw him myself." General Randolph turned on him quickly. "I say that dispatch was not sent," he roared, striking the table with his hand. "I expected to arrive in time for the trial. There is one here who can testify. Lieutenant Foray?" From among the group of staff officers who had followed General Randolph, Lieutenant Foray stepped forward before the general and saluted. "Did Captain Thorne send out that dispatch after we left you with him in the office an hour ago?" asked the older officer. "No, sir," answered Foray promptly, glancing from Arrelsford's thwarted and flushed and indignant countenance to Edith Varney's face, in which he saw the light of a great illumination was shining. "No, sir," he repeated; "I was just about to send it by his orders, when he countermanded it and tore up the dispatch." "And what dispatch was it?" "It was one signed by the secretary of war, sir, removing Marston's division from Cemetery Hill." "You hear, gentlemen," said the general, and, not giving them time to answer, he turned again to Foray. "What were Captain Thorne's words at the time?" "He said he refused to act under that commission, and crumpled it up and threw it away." "That will do, lieutenant," said General Randolph triumphantly. He turned to Arrelsford again. "If you are not satisfied, Mr. Arrelsford, I beg to inform you that we have a dispatch from General Chesney at the front, in which he says that no orders were received from here. He got an uncompleted dispatch, but could not make anything out of it. Marston's division was not withdrawn from Cemetery Hill, and our position is not weakening in any way. The attack there has failed." There was a low murmur of astonishment from the group of men in the room. Edith Varney did not seem to care. She made two steps in Thorne's direction. That young man did not dare to trust himself to look at her. "It is quite plain," continued the general, "that the court order to weaken the lines of defense. Thorne is saved by General Varney, who produces his commission as chief of telegraph. She, having seen enough to convince her he is a spy, plans to send the forged order. After she leaves he tells her to escape. Arrelsford calls at the Varney home and demands to see Edith. Mrs. Varney refuses. A sergeant appears with an order to search the house for Thorne. Wilfred Varney returns from the front wounded. Thorne appears, is arrested by Wilfred and turned over to the guard. Arrelsford immediately convenes a drumhead court-martial. Edith sees Jonas draw the bullets from the side of the guard's name is sentenced to immediate execution. Edith tells him what Jonas has done, and suggests he feign death in order to escape. He refuses and tells the sergeant what has been done. The execution is halted by the arrival of General Randolph.

"General Randolph," he said, and to do him justice, he did not lack courage, "this was put in my hands, and—" "I take it out of your hands," he said curtly. "Report back to the war office, or the secret service office, with my compliments, and—" "But there are other charges upon which he could be tried," persisted Arrelsford. "He is a spy anyway, and—" "I believe I gave you your orders, Mr. Arrelsford," interrupted the general, with suspicious politeness. "But hadn't I better wait and see—" "By God, sir," thundered Randolph, "do I have to explain my orders to the whole secret service of the Confederacy? Don't wait to see anything. Go at once, or I will have you escorted by file of soldiers." Arrelsford would have defied the general if there had been the least use in the world in doing it, but the game was clearly up for the present. He would try to arrange to have Thorne rearrested and tried as a spy later. Now he could do nothing. He walked out of the room, pride enabling him to keep up a brave front, but with disappointment and resentment raging in his heart. He did not realize that his power over Thorne had been withdrawn. In the great game that they had played, he had lost at all points. They all watched him go, not a single one in the room with sympathy, or even pity. "Now, sergeant," said the general, as they heard the heavy hall door close; "I want to speak to the prisoner." "Order arms!" cried the sergeant. "Parade rest!" As the squad assumed these positions in obedience to his commands, the sergeant continued, "Fall out, the prisoner." Thorne stepped forward one pace from the ranks, and saluted the general. He kept his eyes fixed upon that gentleman, and it was only the throbbing of his heart that made him aware that Edith Varney was by his side. She bent her head toward him; he felt her warm breath against his cheek as she whispered: "Oh! Why didn't you tell me? I thought you sent it, I thought you—" "Miss Varney!" exclaimed the general in surprise. But Edith threw maidenly reserve to the winds. The suddenness of the revelation overwhelmed her. "There is nothing against him, General Randolph, now, is there? He didn't send it. There's nothing to try him for!" she said. General Randolph smiled grimly at her. "You are very much mistaken, Miss Varney," he answered. "The fact of his being caught in our lines without his proper uniform is enough to hang him in ten minutes." Edith caught her breath with her hand to her throat, and she turned to General Randolph with a sharp exclamation, but General Randolph turned to speak to the prisoner. "Captain Thorne," he said, "or Lewis Dumont, if that is your name; the president is fully informed regarding the circumstances of your case, and I needn't say that we look upon you as a cursed dangerous character. There isn't any doubt whatever that you ought to be shot right now, but, considering the damned peculiarity of your behavior, and that you refused to send out that dispatch when you might have done so, we've decided to keep you out of mischief some other way. You will be held a prisoner of war."

And so the great adventure is over, the story is told, and the play is played. It is hard to tell who lost and who won. It made little difference in the end that Marston's division had not been withdrawn, and that the attack on Cemetery Hill had failed. It made little difference in the end that Arrelsford had been thwarted in his attempts to wreak his vengeance upon Thorne. It made little difference in the end that Thorne refused to enter the service of the Confederacy, preferring imprisonment for life. For the away at once I shall send for an undertaker and have you removed to the nearest cemetery." Then the dreadful situation in which his own precipitate folly had placed him was revealed, and he removed himself with promptness and dispatch. Willow Life-Boats. Aboard one of the ships which sail between London and Rotterdam there has been recently installed a species of lifeboat which is quite novel. These boats, which do not weigh more than the ordinary lifeboat of wood, are made to hold thirty-five people and are composed of several concentric layers. The exterior is of willow, then comes a layer of wood, then another of canvas, a second layer of wood, and a second layer of canvas. The interior of the boat is of wood. Experiment has demonstrated that this kind of lifeboat is practically "unbreakable," and it is guaranteed to resist the kind of shock which so easily overturns the ordinary lifeboat. It is also expected that this new boat will keep afloat indefinitely in the stormiest weather.—Harper's Weekly days of the Confederacy were numbered. It was even then tottering on the verge of its grave, in spite of the brave front it kept up. Three days after the events of that night, and Richmond had fallen, and presently the last of the Confederate defenders halted at Appomattox. The stars and bars were hauled down for the last time. The prisoners were released. There was a quiet wedding in the old house. Howard, happily recovering from his wounds, was present. General Varney himself gave away the bride—reluctantly, to be sure, yet he did. Wilfred took the place of the brother of Captain Thorne—to continue to call him by the name he had assumed—and acted as the best man. To whom should be given the coveted privilege of attending the bride but to Miss Caroline Milford! And Miss Kittridge and the few other guests, including General Randolph, saw in the younger couple indications that when a few more years had made it suitable, the two who played the second part of this interesting occasion would be principals themselves. There was much opposition, of course, to the wedding of Captain Thorne and Edith Varney, and many bitter things were said, but there was no restraining the young people. They had lived and suffered, they had almost died together. The years of peace and harmony and friendship that came to the sections at last, and the present happiness that was theirs immediately, convinced even the most obtuse that what they had done was exactly right.

THE END. First Aid From King Manuel. King Manuel, in rendering first aid to one of the audience at a Munich theater, follows in the footsteps of his ancestor, Louis Philippe. The king of the French in his early youth studied medicine and surgery at the Hotel Dieu. He habitually carried a lancet in his pocket, and said he had found it useful on many occasions in the course of his wandering life. Even after he came to the throne Louis Philippe's surgical knowledge served him in good stead. In 1839 one of his outriders was struck with apoplexy on the road between Paris and Compiègne, and the king bled him most scientifically with his own hands.—London Chronicle.

"Caddy." (1) Is it a corruption of the word "caddy," meaning one who holds the "tee?" (2) Or is it the diminutive cad—a small cad? (3) Or is it from "Kados," the Doric form of the Greek word "Kedros," meaning "one who suffers sorrow or affliction; one who mourns; one who attends a funeral procession?" (4) Or is it from another Greek word, "Kados," which may mean either "a collection jar" or a cask containing liquor?—World of Golf.

FINALLY GOT RID OF SUITOR Tired Maiden Accepted His Offered Life, and Under the Circumstances What Could He Do? He was a theatrical lover, and she didn't like his style in the least, for he was constant in his devotion, which made matters worse. She had tried gentle means to get rid of him, but he had disregarded them with painful persistency. "Dear one," he exclaimed, hurrying himself tragically at her feet, "I love you! My life is yours! Will you take it?" She did, and not like a murderess, but she responded, with calm determination: "I will." He gazed at her rapturously. "Don't do that," she begged, drawing back from him as if in horror. "I have taken your life, as you request, and I do, and you are henceforth to all intents and purposes dead." He seemed dazed. "I do not," she continued, turning aside, "desire to have a dead person in the house, and if you do not go

AMUSING LITTLE FUN MAKER

Game of "Word Rhapsody" Gives Much Entertainment—Excellent School Exercise Afforded.

With the coming of the long autumn evenings and the entertainments and parties which they bring, comes the old question: "Isn't there something new that we can play?" It is always difficult to find anything altogether fresh and original, and some of the older games, a trifle worked over and freshened up, will be found quite as interesting as anything else. For instance, there are many word games, but not one is quite like the little fun-maker known as the "word rhapsody." In playing this game each of the guests is called upon to choose one word. This word is written upon a little card furnished by the hostess. It may be an adjective, a verb, a common or proper noun, or any other word that may suggest itself. The cards are then gathered up and the hostess writes all the words on a large piece of white paper with a red pencil, so that, when hung up, it can be seen all over the room. Then each guest is invited to write a short story in which every one of the words appears, all of them being used grammatically and in a manner to make sense. The time of work should be limited to ten minutes. When the stories are complete the authors are invited to read them aloud, or the hostess collects them and reads them herself. The results are often very amusing. The rhapsody also makes a good school exercise.

PROPER EXERCISE FOR BOYS

Half Hour's Daily Practice on Machine Will Keep Growing Youth in Best of Condition.

As indicated by the illustration this simple device will serve for a swing flying ring and trapeze. In setting it up keep in mind the fact that it must necessarily be strong. It must not wobble very much, and the timbers used must be at least 4 by 6 and of a strong, sound oak. For a fifteen-year-old boy of ordinary stature the height above the ground should be ten feet. The best way of setting the posts is to bed them in concrete. Dig your holes three feet deep and erect the timbers in a perfectly upright position. You will need a level to do this, and you must have light slats or props nailed to the uprights to keep them from moving while you are shoveling in the concrete. The concrete mixture is one sack of cement (100 pounds) costing 40 cents, and eight cubic feet of broken stone and sand or river sand. Mix it thin and put in around the posts, a little at a time. Fig. 5 makes the idea clear. It will take three weeks for the concrete to set firm and hard and during that time you must not touch the posts.

The top crosspiece has two holes bored for the rope, and a rounded notch "Y" for the rope to slide in. The cleat Fig. 4 is used to shorten the rope by tying it around same. Fig. 2 shows the shape of the swing seat and the method of setting it in place. A half hour's daily practice on this device will go a great way toward keeping a growing boy in good condition. Begin with ten minutes of light work and gradually increase it.

A Peacemaker.

The proprietor of the leading drug store in a small Kentucky town was coming out of the front door of his place not long ago, when a small boy came tearing round the corner at top gait with his head down and butted squarely into him. "Hey, kid!" demanded the druggist. "What's the matter?" "I'm trying to keep two boys from gettin' into a fight," panted the youngster. "Who are the boys?" asked the druggist. "I'm one of 'em."—Saturday Evening Post.

Best of Reasons.

The benevolent citizen while walking along Park place spied a little tot weeping. So he walked up to the child and said: "Now, be a good boy and stop your crying." The child replied: "I can't." "But why can't you?" "I can't." "Well, here's a cent. Tell me why you can't be a good boy and stop crying." "Cause I'm a girl."

Two Sorts of Operations. "I see they have operated on a Philadelphia boy's head in order to make a better boy of him." "That isn't where my dad used to operate on me to make a better boy of me."

DEVELOP A CHILD'S MUSCLES

Exercising Device Attached to Table Pedestal Has Been Designed—Spring Holds Him Up.

For developing a child's muscles and otherwise exercising him a New York man has designed the accompanying attachment for tables. Through a slot in the pedestal of the table a horizontal arm is thrust and pivoted. A short downward curved end of the arm is fastened to the bottom of the pedestal by means of a coiled spring, and on the other and longer end of the arm is a ring to support a child. The child can walk back and forth until his legs are strong enough to bear his weight unaided, the spring supporting him in the meantime, while a bracket limits the lateral movement of the arm in one direction. Even after he is well developed a child will probably find lots of pleasure and exercise in riding about on this device.

ALPHABET IS EVER CHANGING

Painters Cause Certain Letters to Assume New Shapes—Cultivating Artistic Side of Trade.

Alphabets are suffering a change of form at the hands of modern sign painters, remarks the Philadelphia Record. For many years letters have held certain distinct forms, which gave them their names and classes. Sign painters, however, are cultivating the artistic side of their trade, and from various signs displayed all over the city there seems to be a great unanimity of opinion among them as to the appearance of certain letters in one of the alphabets. This new idea seems to be a tendency to fill in and "balance" blank spaces. It was first to be observed on the letter "L." The painter saw fit to add a frill about the middle of the space between the base and the upright. Next the letter "O" of the series was attacked and the ornamentation went in the middle, making the familiar letter resemble an old Greek "theta." "A" and "V" and "Q" have been the latest to be touched up.

ILLINOIS YOUTH WAS PLUCKY

While Hunting for Squirrels Boy Discovers Hiding Place of Wolf and Cubs—Kills Them All.

A boy of fourteen, in Illinois, started out with a dozen, a revolver and an axe, hunting for squirrels, and found something else. After getting into the deep woods, the dog suddenly charged a hollow log, and barked furiously. The boy tried to "steal" him on, but without avail. Then the boy knelt down and peered into the cavity, and saw a whole lot of eyes glistening at him. When he recovered from his surprise, he took another look, and made out the group to be a she-wolf with six cubs. She snapped her teeth viciously, and would have come out had it not been for the presence of the cubs. The boy was a strategist. He sharpened some stakes with his axe, and drove them into the earth in front of the opening; and having thus imprisoned the wolf, killed it with his revolver. When she was dead, the boy up ended the log, tumbled out the cubs, killed them with the axe, and then marched home with seven scalps, for which he received a handsome bounty.

TO UNTIE CAPTIVE SCISSORS

Considerable Amusement is Furnished by Releasing Instrument When Once Fastened.

A neat trick for affording amusement at an entertainment of young people is shown in the illustration.

The Captive Scissors.

Fasten a pair of scissors securely with a piece of string to some convenient article.

Can you release them without cutting or unfastening the string? The scissors can be easily released by passing the loop upward through the handle, and then completely over them.

The Sheep.

The other day in a Cleveland school this composition was handed in by a little German boy: "The sheep are weak and foolish animals. They are very useful. We can use everything on them except their bleat. The sheep learn their shepherd very easy, but otherwise they are dumb animals. They eat hay, grass and carrot soup. And the captain of the sheep is called the Belluck."—Woman's Home Companion.

MRS. MANGES ESCAPES OPERATION

How She Was Saved From Surgeon's Knife by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mogadore, Ohio.—"The first two years I was married I suffered so much from female troubles and bearing down pains that I could not stand on my feet long enough to do my work. The doctor said I would have to undergo an operation, but my husband wanted me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got a bottle first. I took three bottles and it made me well and strong and I avoided a dreadful operation. I now have two fine healthy children, and I cannot say too much about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. LEE MANGES, R. F. D. 10, Mogadore, Ohio.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

After long meditation Earl arrived at the conclusion, evidently, that when death removed a father or mother, it became the duty of the remaining parent to supply the loss to the child as expeditiously as possible. But he foresaw difficulties and sought his mother. NOW THAT AUTUMN IS HERE

Some Good Ways of Taking Advantage of the Season's Fruits and Vegetables.

Instead of the cool greens of summer, so refreshing and grateful during the extreme heat and dryness, in the markets we now find the late peach and pear, the pumpkin and sweet potato, the luscious tomato and all the other vegetables and fruits so abundant in autumn.

Baked Beets.—Take well-grown new beets and bake instead of boiling them. Take off the hard outside and you will be agreeably surprised with the sweetness of the beet. Slice into a heated vegetable dish and pour over them two tablespoonfuls of melted butter (not oily), mixed with the juice of half a lemon and half a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper.

Sugar Beet Fudging.—Here is a favorite Carolina dish: Boil the beets until just tender; peel and cut in small slices. Allow a pint of milk to a pint of beets, two or three well-beaten eggs, salt and pepper to taste and a light grating of nutmeg. Put all into an earthen or heavy baking dish that can be sent to the table, and bake until the custard is set in the middle. Serve hot, as a vegetable.

Holland Cabbage.—A Dutch housewife contributes this good, substantial dish: Take a small head of white cabbage; cut it in fine shreds; four tart apples, peeled and sliced; one quart tablespoonful of butter or drippings; a tablespoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of pepper, a sprinkling of cheese or nutmeg. Stir over a slow fire for at least three hours. Mix together one tablespoonful of vinegar, a little flour (not more than a level teaspoonful) and a tablespoonful of jelly. Just before taking from the fire add this mixture to the cabbage; let it boil up once or twice, and serve.

MEASURING POTS AND PANS

Knowledge of Just How Much Each Holds Will Be Found to Make for Economy.

It seems that only in catalogues do we know or learn how large our pans are. But the housewife who really measures the quantity held by her pots and pans will be a better cook and more efficient housewife. What do you wish this pot for? Merely to warm a can of tomatoes, or to cook two quarts of spinach? How much should this pot hold to be just the right size for your purpose? Do you know how much, for instance, your yellow mixing bowls hold? Have you ever been deceived, and prepared to use a bowl for a certain purpose and find you had to take a larger one? Are you sure that your frying pan is the best depth for your special purpose? Is it nine, or ten, or eleven inches across? If you knew just how big it was, perhaps you wouldn't need two pans, or three or five, if you could estimate just the best depth and diameter for your needs.

Hindu Curried Potatoes.

Cut two large potatoes in cubes about an inch square, place in saucepan with one tablespoon melted butter. Season to taste with salt, cayenne pepper and one teaspoon curry powder. Stir thoroughly, then add one pint hot water. Let cook till potatoes are well done, but not mushy. Leave enough liquid to form a gravy when they are served. If you like a milk sauce an East Indian would put one-eighth cup of milk in a bowl, add one-half cup of cold water and with his fingers he would blend in two tablespoonfuls of flour. Pour this over the potatoes and cook till quantity of liquid is reduced about one-half.

Lamb Kidneys with Bacon.

Split six kidneys in halves and remove the thin outer skin. Fry six slices of bacon until crisp. Remove them from the fat and keep hot. Dip the kidneys in flour and brown quickly on both sides in the bacon fat. When brown add hot water to nearly cover, a tablespoon of tomato ketchup, a tablespoon of table sauce, and cook for five minutes, keeping them just below the boiling point. Serve on a hot platter, with the bacon as a garnish.

Orange Cream Filling.

Put into a cup the rind of one-half and the juice of one orange, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, and fill with hot water; strain and put on to boil; add one tablespoonful corn starch, wet with cold water and cook ten minutes, being careful not to scorch; beat yolk of one egg with two heaping tablespoonfuls sugar; add to the mixture with one teaspoonful butter; cook until butter is dissolved; let cool.

Clean Flatirons.

I always keep my flatirons clean and smooth by a very simple method, writes a contributor to the New York Times. When I finish on washday, before emptying the water out of the tubs, I put the irons in for some minutes. Then take them out and scrub with a soft, dry cloth. I find that done in this way each week keeps the irons in very good order.

Shrimp Wiggle.

Three tablespoonfuls of melted butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour stirred in, 1 1/2 cups of milk; cook until it thickens, then add two cans of shrimp and one can of peas; drain the liquid off of each and add them to the mixture, then stir all together; salt to taste; serve on toasted bread. But to have ours with mashed potato.

When Sprinkling Clothes.

If you wish to iron your clothes immediately after you sprinkle them, try dampening them with hot water. Roll them tightly for a moment or two, shake them out well and iron with a hot iron.

Pretty Garnish.

A pretty garnish for salads is mayonnaise jelly. Melted gelatin is added to the mayonnaise and then the dressing is allowed to harden. Cut into cubes as one would aspic jelly.

Bureau Drawers.

To make bureau drawers slide easily rub the parts that catch with common yellow soap

THE AMERICAN HOME

WILLIAM A. RADFORD EDITOR

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF CHARGE on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 171 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Although we deplore the steadily advancing prices of building material and labor we are often reminded of the truth of the old adage that there is no great loss without some gain.

In endeavoring to present houses that all could afford, even at present prices, we have learned to economize in ways that otherwise would not have been thought of. Particularly in this true in regard to space that heretofore has been wasted in angles and irregularly shaped rooms. We are learning that by making the rooms compact we can accomplish as much in a moderately proportioned house as we previously did in houses much larger. We gain much by throwing the small rooms together with wide openings, thus getting the effect of large, airy apartments.

In these days of flats and apartment houses small families are not accustomed to living in a great big house with a parlor and sitting room and one or two chambers. Consequently the story and a half cottage is becoming very popular, and the bungalow even more so, having all its rooms on one floor. One large livable room is a splendid substitute for the parlor and sitting room. The small kitchen is very popular among the modern housewives, especially among those who are accustomed to the small kitchenette of the flat. The small house diminishes the fuel bill and is much more easy to care for.

Many home builders are of the opinion that pantry is a waste of space. The cupboard can be much more conveniently arranged about the kitchen where they are in easy reach.

There is an independence about owning one's home that is not felt when a rented flat is occupied. And there is a pleasure about caring for the lawn and garden, keeping the place in order, that one who pays rent does not have. Every time you go out into the yard your chest expands just a little as you contemplate the fact that you are treading your own ground. There is nobody overhead making a noise and nobody in the

WANTS NO WOMEN TRADERS

Wall Street Broker Had One Experience, and He Vows Never to Have Another.

"Women traders!" exclaimed a prominent broker, throwing his hands above his head. "Never again. And I'll tell you why."

He walked over to the ticker and glanced at the tape a moment and then resumed: "About five years ago a lady friend of mine came down to the office and wanted to buy some stock."

"I want something that is a good investment," she told me, "a stock that pays a seven per cent. dividend and one that will always pay it."

"Well, I told her I thought so-and-so was a good buy, and that I thought it would always be able to pay its seven per cent. The market was 102 and she bought 100 shares, giving me her check for $10,200. She went away and in a week or so the stock rose to about 125."

"A few days later she came to the office, but the market had had one of those healthy reactions and her stock was selling for 95."

"I sold it for her and had the cashier make out a check for $9,500. When I handed it to her she nearly fainted."

"Why, I gave you my check for $10,200 and you're only giving me back $9,500?" she cried.

"I explained to her that she had sold it after it had declined."

"But you told me I was buying a stock that would never go down," she insisted.

"Try as I would I could not make her understand I had told her the stock would always pay its seven per cent. dividend and to save any further complication I had another check made out for $10,200. But since then we have never allowed a woman to trade in our office."—Wall Street Journal.

Hard to Escape.

"A elch to dodge a trolley," said Ebenezer Prude.

AND THE "BLUES" WENT AWAY

Showing How Easy It is to Scatter Sunshine if One Has It in the Heart.

I was going officeward one day in a very overcrowded trolley car. It was pouring outside and my gloves clung damply to my fingers. A stray wisp of hair was tickling my nose and my hands were too full of dripping umbrella and swaying strap to brush it away. I could feel that my forehead was wrinkled up, and my mouth drawn down. I thought of all the unpleasant things that had ever happened to me, and, glaring at the unrelenting sky, I wondered why I had to rain so hard.

Then, looking along the car, I saw another girl hanging to a strap. She was ever so much wetter than I. The dampness oozed out of a crack in her worn shoe; the bare hands that gripped her umbrella and strap looked cramped and tired, and two straggly locks of hair tickled her rather small, inoffensive nose. But as I looked at her and pitied her, she glanced up and caught my eye, and she smiled at me! Then, somehow, the raindrops looked very bright and jewel-like, and the gray of the sky seemed warmer and more friendly. I forgot that my feet were wet, and I smiled back. All that day, through the work and hurry of the hours, I carried a sunbeam hiding my heart—Margaret E. Sangster, Jr., in the Christian Herald.

Zero in Various Lines of Endeavor. "My notion of nothing to be when you have become one," grimly remarks the Old Coderger, "is a golf champion. My idea of nothing to believe is a railroad official's explanation of the cause of a wreck; of nothing to listen to is a reminiscence of the hard winter of eighteen hundred and something; of nobility to hold a reception for is Mrs. Pankhurst, and of nothing to write pieces to the Speaking the Public Mind department about is why there is no gas, why there are so many holes in the pavements, why all the foolishness about the Metropolitan franchise, and so on and so forth, as long as Kansas City is without commission government."—Kansas City Star.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONY.

The Rev. Edmund Heslop of Wighton, Pa., suffered from Dropsy for a year. His limbs and feet were swollen and puffed. He had heart fluttering, was dizzy and exhausted at the least exertion. Hands and feet were cold and he had such a dragging sensation across the joints that it was difficult to move.

After using six boxes of Dodds Kidney Pills the swelling disappeared and he felt himself again. He says he has been benefited and blessed by the use of Dodds Kidney Pills. Several months later he wrote: I never changed my faith in your remedy since the above statement was authorized. Correspond with Rev. E. Heslop about this wonderful remedy.

Airman's Dream. M. Esnault, a French aviation expert, is of opinion that the day will come when communication between the earth and the moon and stars will be possible in aeroplanes.

Providing that radium is one day found in large quantities and that some way of harnessing its energies is discovered by scientists, he calculates that an aeroplane weighing a ton apropos of an administrative mission which repatriate the earth the moon in three hours and five minutes.

About 800 pounds of radium would be necessary to provide the fuel for the journey. At the current price about $10,000,000,000 worth would be required.

Trips to certain of the stars he considers equally practicable.

RED, ROUGH HANDS MADE SOFT AND WHITE

For red, rough, chapped and bleeding hands, dry, fissured, itching, burning palms, and painful finger-ends, with shapely nails, a one-night Cuticura treatment works wonders. Directions: Soak the hands, on retiring, in hot water and Cuticura Soap. Dry, anoint with Cuticura Ointment, and wear soft bandages or old, loose gloves during the night. These pure, sweet and gentle emollients preserve the hands, prevent redness, roughness and chapping, and impart in a single night that velvety softness and whiteness so much desired by women. GO BACK TO MOTHER NATURE

Scientists in Their Discoveries Uncover Lead That May Mean Much to the Race.

If the green plant in sunlight can elaborate from water and carbon dioxide one of our chief food substances, starch, there is no reason why the biological chemist should not discover the secret of this process and imitate it on a commercial scale. Starch, I believe, has never been synthesized but some sugars have been so constructed. Two years ago Stolbass and Sdobnick made the remarkable discovery that by the action of ultraviolet light on nascent hydrogen and carbon dioxide sugar was formed. Such discoveries as this suggest the means by which we are to throw off our slavery to the green plant, and I am convinced that in time this overthrow will become so complete that our staple foods will be the products of the biological chemist.—Popular Science Monthly.

Mr. Growcher says he believes that the only man who ever went into the country for rest and quiet and actually found them was Rip Van Winkle.

TORTURING TWINGES

Much so-called rheumatism is caused by weakened kidneys. When the kidneys fail to clear the blood of uric acid, the acid forms into crystals like bits of broken glass in the muscles, joints and on the nerve casings. Torturing pains dart through the affected part whenever it is moved. By curing the kidneys, Doan's Kidney Pills have eased thousands of rheumatic cases, lumbago, sciatica, gravel, neuralgia and urinary disorders.

AM ILLINOIS CASE

Charles Eater, E. Walnut St., Waukegan, Ill., says: "I had sciatic rheumatism and kidney trouble for years. I was laid up for months and spent hundreds of dollars unsuccessfully for doctors' treatment. After hope had fled, Doan's Kidney Pills came to my aid. They cured the awful misery and I have never suffered since."

INTEREST TO FARMERS

Lee Tells Farmers How to Handle Cream

As the quality of butter is largely governed by the care given to the milk and cream by the patrons of the creameries, cooperation between the farmer and the buttermaker will help to overcome many of the common troubles incident to the manufacturer of this product of the dairy.

This is the opinion of C. E. Lee of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin, who has been making careful study of creamery butter making methods.

As the making of butter of highest quality means a greater demand at a higher price, consequently greater returns per cow, every dairyman contributing milk to a creamery is at least financially affected, declares this expert in dairying.

"The difference between butter made from cream skimmed at the creamery and that made from skimmed cream is far greater than it should be. In the monthly scoring contests carried on at the College of Agriculture last year the butter made in the factories receiving only whole milk scored two points higher than that made in the factories to which farm skimmed cream was delivered.

"Despite many notions to the contrary, every farmer in Wisconsin can produce cream from which superior butter can be made. If he cannot afford a mill house a small tank for holding the cream cans could be so constructed and so located that all the water pumping for the stock will pass through it. It is not advisable to store the cream in a large stock watering tank nor in the cellar. Nor should the cream obtained from oneskimming be poured with the supply from previous milkings until it has stood in the water tank for several hours. The large delivery cans should be stirred after each new lot is added and once during the day.

"Delivery to the creamery should be made three or four times each week, and a clean can, free from rust spots should be used.

It is best to skim a cream that will test between 30 and 40 per cent. When cream testing under 30 per cent is hauled away from the farm, the loss in skim milk alone is considerable. For example, the patrons of one factory in northern Wisconsin last year lost $2700 worth of skim milk because skimming cream testing under 30 per cent.

Up To Wisconsin.

A sufficient start has been made in alfalfa growing to demonstrate that Wisconsin is suited to become one of the greatest alfalfa states in the country. It is now up to the people of the state to go ahead and make the production of this "king of forage" crops general throughout the state. Thousands of farmers in Wisconsin are getting an average yield of upwards of four tons to the acre, and it is figured by good authorities and a million acres—when converted into milk and meat would add $100,000,000 annually to the output of the state. Should it be lost through neglect?

Journalist Students Increase at Wisconsin

Registration records show that 138 students enrolled for the Journalistic work at the University of Wisconsin at the end of one week's activities. There are 40 freshmen in this department. The enrollment shows an increase of 20 per cent over figures for last year.

Farm Profits Depend on Soil Management

To be careless in the treatment of the soil is fatal to profitable agriculture as to be indifferent in the care of live stock upon the farm, declares A. R. Whitson, chief of the State Soils laboratory, established by the last legislature to aid Wisconsin farmers.

"We seem content to stop with the knowledge that there is something decidedly wrong with our fields. We know that at one time they yielded much better crops but we willingly rest with the conclusion that they are wearing out. Large areas of soils even in this state are acid and, as a consequence, will not yield as plentifully as they should. We have to determine by means of a very simple test whether or not our fields are acid, and if so apply a known and dependable remedy.

"When a farmer finds that he cannot get a good stand of rye or clover on his land, when he sees that certain weeds, such as corn spurry and sheep sorrel, grow readily in his fields, he could, by obtaining a small quantity of blue litmus paper at his drugstore, easily test his own soil to find if it is acid. Soil acidity is responsible, in many instances, for the failure of seeding of alfalfa and clover. Growing in soils well supplied with lime, these plants are able to obtain the nitrogen essential for their growth through the work of certain kinds of bacteria or germs which penetrate the smaller roots forming lumps or swellings, called nodules. Each of these nodules is a tiny chemical laboratory, in which nitrogen gas is built up into compounds for use by the plant."

Women Who Get Dizzy

Every woman who is troubled with fainting and dizzy spells, headache, weakness, depression, constipation or kidney troubles should use Electric Bitters. They give relief when nothing else will, improve the health, adding strength and vigor from the first dose. Mrs. Laura Gaines, of Avoca, La., says: "Four doctors had given me up and my children and all my friends were looking for me to die, when my son insisted that I use Electric Bitters. FLOUR and FEED

There is A Difference

The government has gotten out a bulletin that has been largely quoted to the effect that the average return to the farmers of the country is only $600 annually. Upon the face of the situation that figure is manifestly incorrect, but there is no way of determining closely what the actual return is.

An analysis of the census figures for Wisconsin would indicate that the actual return to our farmer is near $1,500 per year. This is a long way from $600, and leads us to say a word in favor of the farmers of the country. One of the reasons why the government bulletin—apparently written by some clerk—is wrong is that the millions of acres of pastures are included in the total acreage without crediting them with the meat and milk they produce. This is a big item in Wisconsin, and amounts to something in all the states.
