HIGH SCHOOL BASKET-BALL TEAM WINS

Defeated the Village Team Last Friday Evening by a Score of 41 to 14

The opening of the basketball season in this village last Friday resulted in a victory for the local high school team who defeated the village team by a score of 41 to 14.

Although the score seems to be one-sided, nevertheless, the game was very exciting from the time the whistle blew to the finish of the game. The high school boys have been practicing for quite a while, and together with their good team work, were able to out play the village team at all times of the game.

The high school team this year consists of Harvey Brandt, manager; Edgar Romaine, captain; Walter and Carl Schaefer, Erwin Mohme, Reuben Frohmann and Armo Schools. The village team is not an organized team and most of the players did not have any practice this year. The management of the high school team has arranged game with Hartford, West Bend and Oakfield thus far and is trying to arrange games with other high school teams.

The Lecture Course

The second number of the lecture course was given in the Good Templars hall last Monday evening, a fair sized crowd being in attendance. Charles Payne, the noted lecturer, spoke about the Panama Canal. Mr. Payne recently returned from Panama and therefore is well versed in this subject. While at Panama, he also took pictures of the Canal, the vegetation in Panama and the people. All pictures that were shown were very interesting and together with his good explanations, the lecture proved to be one of the best ever given in this village. It is only to be regretted that a larger crowd was not in attendance.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

Let Rotation Include The Meadows

Many farmers practice a good system of rotation except that they dislike to plow up the meadows. Some of the older settled portions of the state say that they sometimes have difficulty in getting a catch of clover and therefore dislike to plow up the hay land. This practice of leaving the meadows simply makes the situation all the worse, for it is a demonstrated fact that the more humus there is in the soil the more certain the catch of clover. Up in the northern counties, where it is said, they stack all the hay out doors there is room for and put the rest in the barn; there is more excuse for leaving the meadows but even there they should be turned frequently. In addition clover should be sown with all crops and plowed under to aid humus. Then there will be little question about clover catching.

Grain Growing Contest Closed at Fond du Lac

One of the most interesting grain growing contests carried on in Wisconsin this year is that which closed in Fond du Lac last week. This contest was carried on under the auspices and direction of the Businessmen association of Fond du Lac, which organization last spring raised $1,000 to carry on a year's contest in grain growing. The plan of the competition was worked out by R. A. Moore and his associates in the department of field crops of the College of Agriculture. Throughout the summer the corn growers were supplied with definite instructions and later in the season three judges were appointed in each locality to supervise the yield determinations of the contestants. The highest yield reported was 120 bushels per acre.

We Have the Best Markets

Whatever may be said and what ever we may think of the possibilities of improving markets, the fact remains that Wisconsin farmers have the best markets at the present time. All anyone needs to do is to examine the market reports of the country and Canada to verify this statement. Doubtless there is room for improvement, but that improvement will be made more rapidly in an optimistic than pessimistic spirit.

Constipation Poisons You.

If you are constipated, your entire system is poisoned by the waste matter kept in the body—serious results often follow. Use Dr. King's New Life Pills and you will soon get rid of constipation, headaches and other troubles. 25c. at Druggists or by mail. H. E. BUCKLEN & CO., Phila. and St. Louis.

CHRISTMAS DON'TS FOR THE HOME

State Fire Marshal Sends Out Warnings for the Prevention of Xmas Fires

Every year in America many children are burned to death, or seriously injured, through fires arising from Christmas tree candles or the careless handling of matches. Some of the reports of such fire coming to this department are simply heartrending in the pathos of the sad stories they tell.

Here are a few samples, in simple terms of fire chiefs and clerks. "The house was all a-fire (from the over-urned tree) before they noticed it. Did not have time to save two small children." "The mother had gone out to milk the cows, and her little girl, four years old, came down stairs in her nightdress, and finding no one about, climbed up, got some matches, and thought she would try to relight the tree. In some way her nightdress caught fire. She ran up stairs and got into bed set the bedding on fire; then jumped into another bed and set the other bedding on fire. When the mother came in, the clothing was burned off the little girl, and although she ran for water and got the fire out, the child died."

"Mother was in back yard hanging up clothes. Seeing the smoke coming from the room, she ran in to save the small children, who were found on stairway leading to upper floor. All three died from effects of fire." "Playing with matches."

This department therefore feels that it is asking nothing unreasonable when it requests the news paper publishers in the interests of humanity to give publicity to the following "Don'ts" at this season of the year. They may never know the service thus rendered, but in case of an accident similar to any of the above, in their own locality, they will perhaps wonder if it might not have helped, if they had published some such warning.

DO NOT decorate your Christmas tree with paper, cotton, or any other inflammable material. Use metallic tinsel and other non-inflammable decorations only, and set the tree securely, so that the children in reaching for things cannot get it over.

DO NOT use cotton to represent snow. If you must use artificial snow, use asbestos. A fire alarm will not ring if the candles while parent or child are not present. They frequently set fire to their clothing instead. The tree itself will burn when needles have become dry.

DO NOT leave matches within reach of children at holiday time. Candles are meant to be lighted, and if the children can get matches they will experiment with them. They naturally imitate their leaders.

HIRED MAN IS SOUGHT ON THEFT WARRANT

Philip Phonski, Missing Employee, Suspected of Stealing Pocketbook From Anton Koehne of Campbellsport

A warrant for the arrest of Philip Phonski, a former employee, was sworn out by Anton Koehne residing three miles north of Campbellsport last Saturday afternoon. Phonski is charged with stealing Koehne's pocketbook containing $34 and certificate of deposit for $50 on Dec. 11th.

Phonski, who had been working for Koehne for some months, left the farm on Dec. 11th and went to Fond du Lac. He had made no statement that he intended to quit his job, but did not return any more. On Saturday morning following, Koehne missed his pocketbook containing the money and the certificate of deposit. Koehne immediately notified Sheriff Fick at Fond du Lac, but no trace of the missing man could be found. A warrant was issued late Saturday evening and the Polish officers at Milwaukee were notified and a description of the missing man given.

Phonski had been working around Campbellsport for some years and during that time gained a good reputation. The circumstantial evidence against him is plain enough to convict him, for his disappearance was made shortly before the discovery of the theft.

Boy Accidentally Shot

Leo Uelmen of New Prospect was accidentally shot and seriously injured last Sunday morning while hunting with two other companions about 1/4 mile from the Wm. Jandrac farm. Leo together with Aug. Jandrac and Oscar Stern were sitting in the woods awaiting game, when all of a sudden a rabbit made its appearance and the three attempted to shoot it. Uelmen shot the rabbit and ran forward to pick it up, when Oscar Jandrac in trying to drop back the hammer on his gun accidentally slipped his thumb and the hammer struck the gun entered the left leg of Uelmen just below the hip.

Although very much frightened the two companions that were with the unfortunate boy, ran to the letters assistance and carried him to the Jandrac home. Dr. Weld of Campbellsport was immediately summoned and the wound dressed. He was taken to his home on Monday morning and is getting along very nicely at the present writing. We hope for a speedy recovery.

MARRIED TWENTY FIVE YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. William Fick of New Fane Last Saturday Celebrated Their Silver Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. William Fick of New Fane, on last Saturday, celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary at their home, a large number of relatives and friends being in attendance.

The home was very prettily decorated for the occasion with cut flowers and plants. The afternoon and evening was spent in dancing, card playing, and social intercourse. About 100 guests were present at the celebration and with such a large number of merry makers, the occasion must have been a gala one. Mr. and Mrs. Fick were the recipients of many presents, a large number of them being silver.

Mr. and Mrs. Fick were married December 13th, 1888, in the town of Scott by Rev. Otto. They have lived on their present farm in the town of Auburn ever since, their marriage, and during that time have gained a large host of friends, due to their pleasant and willing manners. Three children were born to them but two of them died in infancy. The remaining child is Henry, who is at home with his parents.

The STATESMAN and its many readers extend to Mr. and Mrs. Fick hearty congratulations, and wish that they may live to celebrate their fiftieth or golden wedding anniversary.

Croup and Cough Remedy.

Croup is a terrible disease. It attacks children so suddenly they are very apt to choke unless given the proper remedy at once. There is nothing better in the world than Dr. King's New Discovery. Lewis Chamberlain of Manchester, Ohio, writes about his children: "Sometimes in severe attacks we were afraid they would die, but since we proved with a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery, we have no fear. We rely on it for croup, coughs and colds." See can you. 50c and $1.00. A bottle should be in every home. At all Druggists. BUCKLEN & CO., Phila. St. Louis.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

Dr. W. H. Drissen had a miraculous escape from a horrible and sudden death early Thursday morning. He was returning from a sick call, and was crossing the railroad track at Grand avenue when a northbound passenger train took his automobile on the roadside. Fortunately the machine was struck in such manner that the co-passenger would have self firmly into the sheet metal body of the car and in this manner it was carried along the track, with the doctor still occupying the car for a distance of about 150 feet, before the train could be brought to a standstill. When it stopped the doctor calmly stepped out of the wrecked auto, and carrying his bag went on homeward, leaving the damaged auto standing where it lay. Dr. Drissen says he heard no bell or whistle. He is still dark and the street lights were on. He did not therefore, see the headlight of the engine owing to the bright street lights. The first thing he knew of an impending collision was when the engine was within ten feet. He had thought the track clear, as it was nearly six o'clock and the early northbound passenger would have cleared the station, its time being 5:37. He is being congratulated on all sides upon his narrow escape.—Port Washington Star.

Henry Krenn of Fond du Lac and James Timmons of Oshkosh were sentenced to serve one year at Waupun for obtaining property from a sick call. They defrauded an aged man who can neither read nor write, and who had no knowledge of legal papers. The two men have been in the real estate business for several years at Fond du Lac.

Mrs. Susanna Haupt of Hartford died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Rudolph Herman, last week Tuesday after an illness of about twelve years.

John B. Goeden, watchman at the Enger-Kress pocketbook factory narrowly escaped fatal injury last Wednesday when he was hit on the head by a descending elevator.

The Lomira village basketball team last Friday defeated the strong Allenton team at Lomira by a score of 17 to 15. The Allenton team was last years champions of Washington county.

A petition containing some 30-000 names of Wisconsin citizens asking for the pardon of John Dietz, is on file the executive office.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Weiser died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Herman Lau at Hartford last week Saturday at the age of 82 years.

GOING SOME

A ROMANCE OF STRENUOUS AFFECTION

BY REX BEACH

SUGGESTED BY THE PLAY BY REX BEACH AND PAUL ARMSTRONG

Illustrated by Edgar Bert Smith

SYNOPSIS.

Cowboys of the Flying Heart ranch are heartbroken over the loss of their much-prized photograph by the defeat of their champion in a foot-race with the cook of the Centipede ranch. A house party is on at the Flying Heart. J. Wallingford Speed, cheer leader at Yale, and Oliver Covington, inter-collegiate champion runner, are expected. Helen Blake, Speed's sweetheart, becomes interested in the loss of the photograph. She suggests to Miss Chapin, sister of the owner of the ranch, that she induce Covington, her lover, to win back the photograph. Helen declares that if Covington won't run, Speed will. The cowboys are hilarious over the prospect. Speed and his rival, Larry Glass, trainer at Yale, arrive. Helen Blake asks Speed, who has posed to her as an athlete, to race against the Centipede man. The cowboys join in the appeal to Wally, and fearing that Helen will find him out, he consents. He insists, however, that Covington will arrive in time to take his place. Speed begins training under Glass's direction. The girls fix up training quarters for Speed.

"No, indeed," Jean corrected, "he will merely use this room to train in." "How do you train in a room?" Stover asked her. "Why, you—just train, I suppose." Miss Chapin turned to Glass. "How does a person train in a room?" "Why, he—just trains, that's all. A guy can't train without trains' quarters can he?"

"We thought it would make a nice gymnasium," offered Miss Blake. "Looks like business," Stover's admiration was keen. "I rode over to Gallagher's place last night and laid our bets." "How much have you wagered?" asked Fresno. "More'n we can afford to lose."

"But you aren't going to lose," Miss Blake said, enthusiastically. "I got Gallagher to play some records for me." "Silas on Fifth Avenue?" "Sure! And 'The Holy City,' too! Willie stayed out by the bar-wire fence; he didn't dare to go in. When I come out I found him ready to cry. That desperado has sure got the heart of a woman. I reckon he'd commit murder for that photograph—he's so full of sentiment."

Fresno spoke sympathetically. "It's a fortunate thing for you fellows that Speed came when he did. I'm anxious for him to beat this cook, and I hate to see him so careless with his training." "Careless?" cried Helen. "What's he done?" inquired Stover. "Nothing, so far. That's the trouble. He's sure he can win, but—Fresno shook his head, doubtfully—"there's such a thing as overconfidence. No matter how good a man may be, he should take care of himself."

"What's wrong with his training?" demanded Glass. "I think he ought to have more rest. It's too noisy around the house; he can't get any sleep." "For anybody else," agreed Glass, "meanly, 'there's too much singing.'" "That's funny," said Stover. "Music soothes me, no matter how bad it is. Last night when we come back from the Centipede Mr. Fresno was singing 'Dearie,' but I dozed right off in the middle of it. An' it's the same way with cattle. They like it. It's part of a man's duty when he's night-riding a herd to pizen the atmosphere with melody." "We can't afford to spoil Speed's chances," argued the young man. "There is too much at stake. Am I right, Mr. Glass?" "Now, like most fat men, Lawrence Glass was fond of his rest, and since his arrival at the Flying Heart his sleeping-hours had been shortened considerably, so for once he agreed with the Californian.

"No question about it," said he. "And I'll sleep here with him if you'll put a couple of cots in the place." "But suppose Mr. Speed won't do it?" questioned Miss Blake. "You ask him, and he won't refuse," said Jean. "We don't want to see him defeated," urged Helen's other sister; at which the girl rose, saying doubtfully:

TWO OPINIONS AS TO MERIT

Mr. Blank's Verdict on Dancer Did Not at All Agree With That Expressed by His Wife.

"Of course I'll do my best, if you think it's really important." "Thank you," said Stover gratefully, while Fresno congratulated himself upon an easy victory. The two girls took Speed's trainer with them, and went forth in search of the young man.

"It's up to you fellows to see that he gets to bed early," said Fresno, when he and Stover were alone. "Leave it to us. And as for getting up, we turn out at daylight. I don't reckon he could sleep none after that if he tried." Stover pointed to the striped elastic coils of the exerciser against the wall. "I didn't want to speak about it while they were here," said he, "but one of them young ladies lost her garters."

"That's not a pair of garters, that's a chest-weight." "Just wait for what?" "Oh!" Stover examined the device curiously. "I thought a chest-developer came in a bottle." Fresno explained the operation of the apparatus, at which the cowman remarked, admiringly: "That young feller is all right, ain't he?"

"Think so?" "Sure! Don't you?" Fresno explained his doubts by a crafty lift of his brows and a shrug. "I thought so—at first." Stover wheeled upon him abruptly. "What's wrong?" "Oh, nothing." After a pause the foreman remarked, vaguely: "He's the intercollegiate champion of Yale."

"Oh no, hardly that, or I would have heard of him." "Ain't he no champeen?" "Champeon of the running broad smile and the half-mile talk perhaps." "Ain't he a foot-runner?" "Perhaps. I've never seen him run, but I have my doubts." "Good Lord!" moaned Stover, weakly. "He may be the best sprinter in the country, mind you, but I'll lay a little bet that he can't run a hundred yards without sustenance."

"Without what?" "Sustenance—something to eat to." "Well, we've got plenty for him to eat," said the mystified foreman. "You don't understand. However, time will tell." "But we ain't got no time. We've made this race 'pay or play,' a week from Saturday, and the bets are down. We was afraid the Centipede would waltz when they seen who we had, so we framed it that way. What's to be done?"

Again Fresno displayed an artistic restraint that was admirable. "It's none of my business," said he, with a careless shrug. "I—I guess I'll tell Willie and the boys," vouchsafed Bill apprehensively. "No! no! Don't breathe a word I've said to you. He may be a cracker-jack, and I wouldn't do him an injustice for the world. All the same, I wish he hadn't broken my stop-watch." "If you think he broke it a-pur-pose?" "What do you think?" Stover mopped the sweat from his brow. "Can't we time him with an ordinary watch?"

"Sure. We can take yours. It won't be exact, but—" "I ain't got no watch, I bet mine last night at the Centipede. Willie's got one, though." "Mind you, he may be all right," Fresno repeated, reassuringly; then hearing the object of their discussion approaching with his trainer, the two strolled out through the bunkroom, Stover a prey to a new-born suspicion, Fresno musing to himself that diplomacy was not a lost art. "You're a fine friend, you are!" Speed exploded, when he and Glass were inside the gymnasium. "What made you say 'yes'?" "I had to."

and a mandolin proved to be to a young man's ruin." Glass examined the bow of ribbon upon the lonesome piece of exercising apparatus. "It looks like the trainin'-stable for the Colonial Dames. What a yelp this place would be to Covington or any other athlete."

"It is not an athletic gymnasium." Speed snickered as he lighted a cigarette. "It is a romantic gymnasium. As Socrates once observed—" "Socrates! I'm hep to him," Glass interrupted, quickly. "I trained a Greek professor once and got wised up on all that stuff. Socrates was the—the Hemlock Kid."

"Exactly! As Socrates, the Hemlock Kid, deftly put it 'In hoc signatura vitæ.'" "I don't get you." "That is an ancient Scandinavian, and, translated, means, 'Love cannot thrive without her bow.'" "No answer to that telegram yet, eh?" "Hardly time."

"Better wire Covington again, hadn't you? Mebbe he didn't get it?" "I promised Mrs. Keap that I would, but—" Speed lost himself abruptly in speculation, for he did not know exactly how to manage this unexpected complication. Of one thing only was he certain; it would require some thought. "Say, Wally, suppose Covington don't come?" "Then I shall sprain my ankle," said the other. "Hello! What in the world—"

Still Bill Stover and Willie came into the room carrying an armful of lumber. Behind them followed Carara with a huge wooden tub, and Cloudy rolling a kerosene barrel. "Where do you want it, gents?" inquired the foreman. "Where do we want what?" "The shower-bath." "Shower—I didn't order a shower-bath!"

"No; but we aim to make it as pleasant for you as we can." "If there is anything I abhor, it's a shower-bath!" exclaimed the athlete. "You just got to have one. Ma Fresno said all this gymnasium lacked was a shower-bath, a pair of scales, and a bulletin board. He said you'd sure need a bath after working that chest-developer. We ain't got no scales, nor no board, but we'll toggle up some sort of a bath for you. The blacksmith's makin' a squirtler to go on the bar!" "Very well, put it wherever you wish. I sha'n't use it."

"I wouldn't overlook nothin', if I was you," said Willie, in even milder tones that Stover had used. "You overwhelm me with these little attentions," retorted Mr. Speed. "Where you goin' to run today?" inquired the first speaker. "I don't know. Why?" "We thought you might do a hundred yards agin time." "Nix!" interposed Glass, hurriedly. "I can't let him overdo at the start. Besides, we ain't got no stop-watch." "I got a reglar watch," said Willie, "and I can catch you pretty close. We'd admire to see you travel some, Mr. Speed."

But Glass vowed that he was in charge of his protegee's health, and would not permit it. Once outside, however, he exclaimed: "That's more of Fresno's work, Wally! I tell you, he's right. He'll rib them plates to clock you, and if they do—well, you'd better keep running, that's all." "You can do me a favor," said Speed. "Buy that watch." "There's other watches on the farm." "Buy them all, and bring me the bill."

Before setting out on his daily grind, Speed announced to his trainer that he had decided to take him along for company, and when that corpulent gentleman rebelled on the ground that the day was too sultry, his employer would have none of it, so together they trotted away later in the morning, Speed in his silken suit, Glass running flat-footed and with great effort. But once safely hidden from view, they dropped into a walk, and selecting a favorable resting place, paused. Speed lighted a cigarette. Glass produced a deck of cards from his pocket, and they played seven-up. Having covered five miles in this exhausting fashion, they returned to the ranch in time for luncheon. Both ate heartily, for the exercise had agreed with them.

Stately and Graceful Gown

FROM the salon of a gifted designer in Paris comes this stately and graceful gown. It is worth much study as an exposition of present styles, without any departure from beautiful outlining of the figure and the best management of fashionable fabrics with brocaded surfaces. Any of the dark rich colors of the season—taupe, corbeil, paprika, wood and golden browns, sapphire blue—will seem to hang in soft masses, and the uppermost cut away from the knees downward in a "V" shape. It is draped with three small plaits to give it the fashionable slant, and posed over an under piece that is also caught up a little at the front. This under piece is not closed at the back, and by this arrangement the skirt, which seems to hang in so closely about the ankles, still gives room for easy walking.

There is no attempt at even hanging about the bottom of skirts these days. They are correctly draped when the uneven-hanging caused by drapery is allowed to speak for itself as a part of the play. There is a bodice of brocaded silk under a small coat of cloth like that in the skirt. It has a graceful neck round, with a narrow "V" cut out at the front. A fine net guimpe is worn under it, which is round at the neck. The long sleeves of this bodice are set in at the arm-eye, but do not close fitting in the upper arm. A fine frill of point d'Esprit

PEARLS THE ONE ORNAMENT FOR THE DEBUTANTE

JUST why pearls and girlhood are so associated in our minds is not yet fully explained. But we all recognize that pearls belong to the maid before she may wear other jewels with any degree of fitness. Except for pretty hair ornaments of ribbons and made flowers there is nothing that looks quite as "fit" on the young girl as pearls. The ornament shown here is made of two strands of pearl beads strung on a fine wire. They are strung in links, joined by large baroque pearl beads, placed between the links. The band extends across the top of the head and terminates a little below the top of the ears at each side. It is fastened to place with hair pins. At the left side there are three loops of the pearls strung on wire and two hanging ends and a knot formed of pearl beads strung on heavy thread and set less close together than in the band, so that they fall easily. The coilure is very simple—even for a young girl. As in all the present designs, the ears are covered. The front hair is curled and fluffed about the face. The back hair is braided in loose strands and pinned flat to the head. Dress is appropriate for brown haired or blond girls, but is not so pretty for the girl with very dark hair or for her who has the splendid "Titan" locks. Although very dark hair, and what is called red hair, are so unlike, the same styles of coilure are suited to them both. They must do the hair in soft masses, insist upon its being glossy and refuse to consider fluffiness or anything approaching frizzes. But no matter what the hue of her hair or eyes or skin—the maid may wear pearls. They look well and more than that on youthful heads of any color.

Every Young Man Should Have Box of Tools and Learn to Repair Articles Damaged About House.

I like the handy boy about the house, who knows how to hang a picture, drive a nail, and do the little necessary repairing that any mother wants done. It is easy enough to learn how to use a saw or chisel, and every boy should have a box of tools, so that he can repair articles that may become damaged. The boy who is handy about his mother's house will be of inestimable value to his wife when he shall marry. Boys who do not care to go out at night may learn to make many pretty pieces of furniture, if they will only devote some time to studying how to use tools and paints. With a few lessons, the handy boy may make picture frames, or cabinets, odd coracles, or desks or other articles of usefulness and value. The boy who is handy about the house and a help to his mother is one who learns now to make purchases for the household, who can tell a good piece of meat at the butcher's, or pick out fresh vegetables at the market. Oh, no, do not say that marketing is woman's work. It is quite as much man's work, and besides, none of us can know so much in this world that we can afford to ignore even the details of marketing.—Foster Coates.

PLAY APPARATUS FOR BOYS

Wheeled Platform Propelled by Pushing One Foot—Adjustable Handle Is Used for Support.

After watching small boys coasting about on home-made vehicles propelled by one foot, an Indiana man designed a more elaborate affair on the same principle. A low platform is mounted on four wheels, two axes of the device being connected by a strong steel band, on which the footboard rests. The construction is such that by tilting the footboard to the right or left the wheels will turn in the same direction, but the toy will not upset. The long handle is adjustable to any height and is used more for support than for guidance. To operate the vehicle a boy stands with one foot on the platform and with the other foot pushes it ahead until sufficient momentum is attained to carry it on. He then gets aboard with both feet and guides it by throwing the weight of his body on one side or the other.

BOYS' SECOND-HANDED FUN

Jacob Riss Says Football and Baseball Pauperize Youth, Both Mentally and Physically.

The shortcomings of baseball and football as sports for boys are pointed out by Jacob Riss in an article on "The Boy Scouts" in the Outlook. He says, "Scouting gives every boy a chance to be in the game," and continues: "The trouble with baseball and football is that they do not do that. They are good as far as they go, but they do not do it around. Nine or eleven boys take a hand in them, a hundred or a thousand sit and shout. They have no other part in it. Granted that there are many nines and elevens. Still there are many more whom the game really robs of a boy's most precious quality—initiative; it pauperizes the boys, physically and mentally, by making them take their fun at second hand. But play, said Froebel, is the normal occupation of a child, through which he grows character; and we know Froebel was right. Scouting is all initiative, all individual effort.

"I am not knocking baseball because we didn't know the game when I was a boy in Denmark. I am simply saying what must have been in the minds of many a boys' leader, in and out of school, all these years. The national game can take care of itself. I am glad scouting has come to fill in the chinks, as it were. If some of the fierce competitive spirit is lost that has run riot in the past, the standards are not. Scouting, as I have shown, sets up definite standards to which the boy must come up and which will stand being matched against any boys' game anywhere.

Centipedes and Tarantulas. A centipede has a deadly fear of a tarantula, and one of the most curious habits of the centipede is his manner of going to rest in the desert when he knows his enemy to be in the vicinity. He builds a cactus fence literally about himself. A tarantula hates a cactus as much as he longs after a centipede, and has never been known to crawl over the plant. Secure in this knowledge, the centipede will sleep as long as he wishes while his watchful enemy looks longingly at him over the barrier, powerlessly to go to the attack.

KEEP YOUR EYES OPEN

Little Story of What an Observant Boy Accomplished.

Ingenious Lad Invents Paper Box for His Mother to Take Medicine Without Any Confusion—Idea Soon Became Popular.

A great many boys are always looking forward to the time when they will grow up and be able to do something big, but they overlook the chances they have to do something worth while when they are still boys. Here is a little story of what an observant boy did: It often happens that people have to take two different kinds of medicine alternately, and endless ways have been tried to remember which comes next. Sometimes they take No. 1 at the odd hours and No. 2 at the even hours, and sometimes they put the spoon in the one to take next, or they place one to be taken in the morning in a different glass from the one to be taken at night.

On ingenious boy who saw his mother always forgetting which of the little bottles of pills to take next noticed that there were two of the bottles in pasteboard box, lying side by side. They each had a number on them, but there was no way to be sure which number his mother had taken last. Then he had an idea. He pasted a little slip of paper on the cover of the box and wrote his directions on it. As the little box inside slipped out of the cover it was easy to put the cork of one bottle toward one end and the cork of the other at the other end. After taking a dose from bottle No. 1 she just pushed the cork into the cover first, so that the cork of No. 2 was toward the end with the arrow mark, and she always knew that was the one to take next.

AMUSEMENT IN A MAGIC BOX

Balls and Paper Men Made to Jump About in Fantastic Manner—Static Electricity Is the Secret.

A novelty which affords much amusement is the magic box. It is 4x6x2 inches, made out of wood with a glass cover and lined with foil. The directions for operating the box are as follows: Rub the pane of glass with the little leather cushion and the balls and paper men will begin at once to produce their performance, jumping about in the most fantastic manner. The only thing necessary is to keep the box and leather cushion clean and dry, which is done best by cleaning the pane of glass before using, with a piece of dry cloth, says Popular Electricity. Static electricity is the secret of the odd movements.

Not This Time. Johnny was rather apprehensively waiting his father's return from business. He had a curious little feeling that more would be heard about the broken pane of glass in old Grimes' glass house. "Take off your coat, my son, and come along with me!" said pa after he had rested from dinner. "You're not going to give me a hiding are you, pa?" inquired young hopeful with a nervous gulp. "Didn't I tell you this morning that I would settle with you for your bad behavior when I came home?" queried father. "Yes," said Johnny hopefully, "but I thought you were only joking, like when you told the grocer you would settle with him"—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

In a Predicament. The teacher was reading the history of England to some of the little pupils. When she came to the statement that Henry I. never laughed after the death of his son she noticed one of the little girls had raised her hand and seemed very desirous of attracting her attention. "Well, Amy," said teacher, "what is it?" "Please, ma'am," said little Amy, "what did Henry I. do when he was tickled?"—Harper's Bazar.

Always So. Why is a piece of candy like a race horse? Because the more you lick it the faster it goes.

38 MINERS PERISH

BLACK DAMP HELD RESPONSIBLE FOR DISASTER IN COLO. RADO SHAFT.

ONLY TWO ARE FOUND ALIVE

Dead Badly Mangled, Making Identification Practically Impossible—Rescue Work Starts Promptly, and Bodies Are Recovered.

New Castle, Colo., Dec. 18.—An explosion of black damp in the Vulcan mine of the Rocky Mountain Fuel company, one and one-half miles east of here, entombed L. L. Crawford, mine foreman; J. Walters, fire boss, and 38 miners on Tuesday.

Of the 40 men composing the day shift at work only two, W. J. Finley and John Dawson, escaped.

Thousands of frantic women and children gathered at the mine watching rescuers bring out the bodies of victims. All the 38 victims were at work in the lower level, every nook and cranny of which was penetrated by the single, all-enveloping crash of one explosion. The two survivors worked above the two upper levels in which air passages prevented the collecting of the deadly dust particles.

Father J. P. Carranza of Glenwood Springs parish, formerly a Denver priest, descended into the mine workings while the work of bringing out the bodies was starting and went clear through the level.

J. W. Cummins, district manager of the Rocky Mountain Fuel company, definitely announced a dust explosion as the cause of the disaster after an investigation. He said the force of the blast shook the whole mountain and rocked the buildings on the mine tipple. He said the explosion occurred in room 13 of the lower level and extended all the way to room 37.

The first men into the mine were Superintendent Charles S. Meerdink and Jack Stone, a miner, who volunteered to accompany him. They went all the way through the workings and returned with the message that caused the hopeful throng at the mine mouth to lose all hopes of ever seeing their friends and loved ones alive.

The work of taking out the bodies commenced shortly after the explosion occurred. The men were horribly mangled and identification was difficult, but they were gradually checked off from the time card.

So all pervading was the explosion that it swept the mine free from dust and the rescue work was conducted by men with open lamps in their caps and without the oxygen helmets.

The scene at the mine mouth was more distressing than the customary in such disasters, for the last flicker of hope for life had died away. A majority of the dead men were Americans, nearly all young men from the vicinity of New Castle, sons of prominent ranchmen and business men, who had replaced the Italian miners that went out on strike.

A snowstorm added to the difficulties of the rescuers and the confusion of the scene.

WILSON IS ANGERED

SONG AT ARMY AND NAVY DINNER CAUSES INQUIRY.

Secretaries Daniels and Garrison Told by President to Reprimand Officials in Burlesque.

Washington, Dec. 17.—An investigation was ordered on Monday by President Wilson by the war and navy departments of the satires on the administration's Philippine policy which featured the annual banquet of the Order of Carabao, an organization of army and navy officers who served in the islands.

The secretaries conferred and called for a statement of explanation from Rear Admiral Howard and Quartermaster General Aleshite, the highest ranking officers at the dinner.

Secretary Daniels at the same time suggested to Admiral Howard that he decline the presidency of the order, to which he was elected last Thursday, and informed him that the song "Damn, Damn, Damn the Insurrectos," which was sung at the banquet, would never be sung again under the present administration with officers of the navy present.

The president expressed his indignation to members of his cabinet after he had read published accounts of the banquet. He felt particularly displeased over the travesty on the administration's peace policy and criticisms aimed at Secretary Bryan when three six-foot models of battleships, borne by concealed boys, were carried into the banquet room.

In the muzzle of the guns were stuck nosegays, and the milk-white doves was perched on the fighting top. They were named the "U. S. S. Fellowship," "U. S. S. Friendship" and "U. S. S. Piffle."

Another satire was a moving-picture film of a three-year pursuit of a Filipino colonel, who time and again escaped capture, and hardly had been apprehended when he was made governor of a province.

Secretaries Daniels, Redfield and Postmaster General Burleson and Justice Vandeverter and McKenna of the United States Supreme court were among the guests.

MONA LIZA IS FOUND

SEARCH FOR PAINTING ENDS WITH ARREST IN ITALY.

British Government Once Offered $5,000,000 for Da Vinci's Work—Offer Was Refused.

Florence, Italy, Dec. 15.—"Mona Lisa," Leonardo da Vinci's masterpiece, the mysterious disappearance of which from the Louvre in August, 1911, threw the art world into consternation, was found in Florence on Friday. The man who stole it was arrested. He is an Italian.

The famous "Joconde" was found when the picture was offered by an Italian resident of Paris to an antiquary.

Both the picture and the Italian are now in custody of the police.

"I stole the picture," said the man. "In order to avenge the thefts which Napoleon I committed in Italy."

When the Mona Lisa disappeared from the galleries of the Louvre various stories were told of its going. It is not a large painting. It is painted on wood, much retouched and the paint badly cracked, so that little of Leonardo's original brush work is in view, although everyone could see the mysterious smile.

The "Mona Lisa"—more properly known as "La Joconde"—is one of the world's most famous paintings, and is regarded as priceless.

The value of the work can only be imagined, since all offers to buy it were refused, among them one reported to have been made by the British government of $5,000,000.

Brown and Frank Hayne, of New Orleans, and W. H. Rothschild, of Woodville, Texas. Judge Grubb in fining the defendants said he did so on the same grounds upon which a $4,000 fine had been imposed upon James A. Patton, of Chicago, several months ago.

EVASION ON RISK ACT

COMPLAINTS MADE OF ASSESSMENTS ON WORKERS' PAY.

Industrial Commission Investigating Claim That Some Employers Have Illegal Method of Creating Fund.

Madison.—Complaints that a few employers are assessing the wages of workmen in order to create a fund to pay for insurance under the workmen's compensation act are receiving the attention of the industrial commission. The alleged practice is contrary to law. The commission, in taking up one of the complaints, issued the following statement:

"The compensation act provides that the employer shall pay the compensation as provided in the act and that the employer shall secure insurance covering this liability, or be exempted therefrom by the industrial commission. It is our judgment that the employer cannot shift the liability for compensation onto the employee by deducting any part of their salaries to pay insurance or compensation. We do not think this can be done even by agreement with the men, for it would be a palpable evasion of the spirit of the law to do so. The public policy of law is determined by the legislature, and where the legislature has declared a public policy, a citizen may not set aside that policy, even by contract."

TOBACCO WORKERS STRIKE

Five Hundred Employees of Sorting Plants at Westby Resist Reduction in Wages.

Westby.—Five hundred employees of the tobacco sorting plants in this village went on strike today, resisting an attempt to reduce their pay from 89 to 85 cents per 100 pounds. The plants were obliged to close. There has been no violence and no attempt to resume work. A committee of the tobacco sorters was organized to meet the employers and if possible arrange a compromise.

Tobacco sorters and employers at Sparta and Viroqua, where many more hands are employed than at Westby, have not as yet been drawn into the controversy, but may later if a settlement is not made, as the employers are largely the same at all points.

News Notes of Wisconsin.

Janesville.—Tobacco buyers are refusing to receive all crops of tobacco harvested late, and medium late, which have been taken down and packed by the growers. In a few cases in the northern part of the state such crops have been accepted, but only at decided reductions in the contract price. These two grades of the weed have not been a sufficient time in the shed, and owing to the wet weather, did not dry sufficiently in the stems and stalks to avoid sweating in the bundles.

Green Bay.—Snow and cold weather are being in the woods in northern Wisconsin in order to move an immense quantity of timber to the saw-mills and pulp mills. Up to this time lumbermen have been unable to get any timber out of woods because of the unusual weather conditions. Contractors figure to take out a record-breaking amount provided snow falls and makes work possible. As a result of lack of snow many men are out of employment.

What Are Antitoxins?

An opium fiend may take almost without noticeable effect an amount of the drug sufficient to kill a dozen beginners. Everyone has noticed how the immediate effects of tobacco are overcome by resistance. Disease germs produce poisons, called "toxins." Toxins and not the germs themselves are responsible for disease.

That the poisoning is not fatal, in each case of germ disease is due to the resistance of the individual. Resistance is built up by small doses of these toxins. People resist disease when the defenses are erected more rapidly than invasion takes place. They succumb when the invasion is more rapid than the defense.

Disease germs excite the formation of so-called "anti-toxins." The anti-toxin kills the germs. The process is perfectly definite in the case of some germs. Like electricity, the resistance and strength of antitoxins can be measured, even though the real force has not been seen by the eye.

A great triumph was scored when it was discovered that the process of manufacturing antitoxins could be run through the body of a lower animal, and a serum be secured which cures and prevents invasion much more rapidly and certainly than "home-made" antitoxin of diphtheria has been the most satisfactory one discovered. The process of manufacture is interesting.

Horses are most commonly used. A small dose of the poison of the diphtheria germ is injected into the horse, which may become quite ill. As it recovers from the first effects, larger and larger doses are given. Finally the horse is able to tolerate enormous doses with no ill effects whatever. Its blood is then decidedly antitoxic. From it, the serum containing the antitoxin is extracted.

Treatment of diphtheria by antitoxin has reduced deaths by over one half. It is an almost absolute preventive when injected into persons exposed to the disease.
