OF INTEREST TO FARMERS URGES FARMERS TO RAISE BABY BEEF

"The raising of baby beef can be made a profitable venture in Wisconsin if the proper methods are followed," said John L. Torrey of the College of Agriculture when asked for his views upon the opportunities of beef production in Wisconsin.

On account of its nearness to market, together with its many other advantages, such as its good climate, its abundance of feed and forage and good water, Wisconsin offers excellent opportunities to the baby beef producer. The feeds upon which calves can be raised in Wisconsin, thereby making cattle feeding in the Badger state a decidedly home industry.

When raising baby beef it is extremely necessary, according to Mr. Torrey, to have cattle of good beef type, and the pure bred bull route is the shortest, quickest and best way to get them. Short Horn breed is desirable in Wisconsin for besides having size and good feeding qualities, many of the cows are good milkers and can be disposed of very readily to the farmers who wish to raise them. The Aberdeen Angus and Hereford breeds are also good producers of this class of beef.

The question of feeds is an important matter for Wisconsin beef producers to consider. For in all cases, feeds which produce the most gain for the least money should be used. A silo is practically indispensable to the baby beef raiser. Corn, cotton seed meal, clover or alfalfa hay along with silage will produce cheap gains.

MODERN MACHINERY LIGHTENS FARM WORK

By adding at a comparatively small expense, certain labor saving machinery, the farmer may lighten the load of duties carried by his wife and aid in increasing the servant problem, was the declaration made by Frank White of the agricultural engineering department in an address at one of the sessions of the Farmers' Course at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

It costs, according to Mr. White from $150 to $300 to install a water plant which will supply the laundry, kitchen and bathroom with running water. By spending not over $200 more, all of the buildings may be lighted and electric current may be used for ironing, the running of small machines and the performance of other light work.

The basis of most farm power plants is a gas engine of about 5 horse power. By means of a well placed line shaft and pulleys, water may be pumped, the cream separator is used, and the electric storage batteries charged, all in one operation.

ALFALFA IN WISCONSIN

The reports on alfalfa extension at the recent meeting of the state experimental association were very gratifying to those who are interested in the great value of that crop. In this extension great strides are being made, and nearly all report success where an earnest effort was made.

From the reports it is clear that while care must be taken in getting the plant started, it is an immense success when once established. The proper extension of the plant will be worth millions to the farmer, as the state to pay for choice foodstuffs and what can be done by those who are willing to enter a such trade.

A SUGGESTION ON MARKETING

A suggestion on marketing is afforded by the experience of an upper Wisconsin concern that sells potatoes wrapped in paper and packed in bushel boxes. These potatoes are selected as to size and quality and sold at $2.25. The concern's entire supply has been exhausted and still there are many unfilled orders. The suggestion indicates what a considerable portion of the consumers are willing to pay for choice foodstuffs and what can be done by those who are willing to enter a such trade.

LOCAL HIGHS DEFEATED BY OAKFIELD

Game Played on Local Floor Lost to Oakfield by the Close Score of 16 to 13.

The local high school basketball team again met defeat last Friday evening in a close and exciting game with the Oakfield highs, the final score being 16 to 13.

The Oakfield boys played the better ball and deserved to win, although our boys had hard luck in "shooting" baskets. From the first minute of play, the Oakfield boys got the lead and kept it until the final blow of the whistle, although in the last half, our boys put up a great effort to overcome the small lead. The score at the end of the first half was 8 to 4 in favor of Oakfield.

Our boys seemed to be tired out, several of them having severe colds, which greatly handicapped them. Ball the center for Oakfield, made several good field goals and also guarded his man very well. As a whole the Oakfield boys played a strong game, and our boys a loose game.

A fair-sized number of fans witnessed the game, but were very disappointed that our boys did not win. However, they were enthusiastic all the time and sought victory, but it was of no avail.

The Oakfield boys also had a number of rooters with them and the principal of their school coached them, which no doubt helped them considerably. Following is a summary of the game:

Birds and the Wireless

Since our coast began to be studied with Mareconi stations, says an English newspaper, it has been noticed that the birds do not seem very happy about it. In the neighborhood of a wireless station birds seem to be vaguely disturbed and uneasy, gulls being the chief sufferers.

And when the line of a pigeon rises over or near a wireless station it has been noticed that an unusual number of birds fail to find their way home. The wireless waves in the air seem to interfere with the sense of direction. The cause has not been definitely settled, but there is no doubt that birds and animals are both sensitive to mysterious vibrations of the air than are human beings.

Horses and monkeys in earthquake lands tremble with fear hours before an earthquake arrives.

It has been suggested that animals and birds have a sixth, or "electric" sense, and are in touch with the ether, that mysterious fluid which scientists declare to pervade everything in the universe both on earth and in air. It is by waves in ether that wireless travels.

So when the wireless waves start interfering with the ordinary waves of the ether, such as those along which light travels, the birds lose their little heads and forget their way.

New Church Dedicated

The new Ev. St. Lucas Lutheran church was dedicated last Sunday, February 1st. The services held during the day and evening were very largely attended, it being estimated that about four hundred people attended each service.

A large number of people from neighboring towns were present at the dedication services and ministers of different neighboring towns were also present.

The new church is certainly a beauty and it is considered to be one of the most modern built churches around this vicinity. Rev. E. Greig, the pastor, has been at the head of the church for a long time, and mostly through his efforts, was the new church built.

Tendered a Surprise

A number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Nigh last Monday evening in honor of Mrs. Nigh's birthday anniversary. ## YEGGMEN SENTENCED TO FIVE YEAR TERMS IN FEDERAL PRISON

Additional Fines of $1,000 Also Given Men, Who Attempted to Rob the Local Postoffice Last July

JUDGE GEIGER DENIES PLEA FOR A NEW TRIAL

Their Confinement May Be Cut to Four Years Through Good Behavior. Burns Asks to Remain at Milwaukee

Five years in the Fort Leavenworth penitentiary was the sentence passed on Monday by Federal Judge F. A. Geiger on each of the four yeggmens, William Houlihan, Daniel Murphy, William Burns and James Moore, found guilty by a jury of having attempted to rob the local postoffice on July 8th, 1913.

Judge Geiger denied a motion for a new trial made by Atty. David S. Rose. Attorney Guy D. Goff opposed the motion and asked that sentence be passed on all the men. They were therefore sentenced to five years in the penitentiary and an additional fine of $1,000 each.

The four yeggmens were sentenced on a burglary charge alone. The yeggmens may shorten their terms to about four years by good behavior, as they may earn seven days in each month if they conduct themselves properly.

Failure of the government to collect the $1,000 fines by attachment of any property, means that the yeggmens must serve only thirty days longer.

The four yeggmens will be taken to the federal penitentiary, today, Saturday, by four deputies from the office of United States Marshal Weil.

It was learned that Murphy's sweetheart in Chicago narrowly escaped being brought in the

The prisoners were sentenced singly and each of them asked if he had anything to say. Burns petitioned the court to permit him to stay in the county jail at Milwaukee until the completion of his treatment for tuberculosis from which he is said to have been suffering, but is now practically cured. Judge Geiger said that this petition was to be decided by United States Marshal Weil whether Burns' condition justified his transfer to Leavenworth. It was thought that Houlihan would appeal from the decision of the judge to deny a new trial, but he seemed to take the sentence as well as the others. The men were sent to Leavenworth.

Newspaper Advertising Taught at University

Newspaper advertising is the latest addition to the practical instruction in the course of journalism at the University of Wisconsin. Professor L. S. Butler, who is a member of the educational committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America and the author of a textbook on advertising will have charge of the instruction.

The purpose of the course is not to consider the technique of advertising soliciting, but rather to give the student some idea of the merchandise principles that are the basis of good advertising.

The point of view of the retail advertiser will be maintained throughout so that the future newspaperman, by looking at publicity problems from the standpoint of the advertiser, will be able to make his advertising columns more valuable to buyers of space.

Actual problems of Madison advertisers will be studied and the Daily Cardinal, published by the students of journalism, will be used to provide practical experience to the students in the course. The students will plan campaigns and will write "ads" for the paper.

MYSTERIOUS SUIT CASE FOUND

William Rauch Sr. of Elmora Found Grip While Hunting on Henry Schultz's Farm in the Town of Auburn Last Sunday

While William Rauch Sr., of Elmora was hunting in the marsh on Henry Schultz's farm in the town of Auburn last Sunday, he was surprised to find a brown suitcase about 300 feet from the railroad track, which passes nearby. Mr. Rauch notified Marshal George F. Marshall of this case on Monday and as soon as the marshal arrived the suitcase was examined. Upon investigation, it was found that the clothes contained were frozen together and only the loose articles could be taken. Mr. Rauch then took the contents home and thawed the clothes apart and found the following: One coat, one pair slippers, one corset, eleven handkerchiefs, five nightgowns, three pair stockings, one petticoat, one princess slip, two dresses, one kimono, one corset cover, one white waist, three vests, one pair underclothes, one rosary, one german prayer book (catholic), one pocket watch, one tooth brush, one hair brush, one rubber comb, three hair crimpers, two hair nets, two celluloid hair pins, one box hair pins, one package mourning pins, one package safety pins, one package common pins and one book of one cent stamps.

According to the contents mentioned, they must have belonged to a young girl between the ages of 16 and 21. The coat was bought from O'Brien's clothing store of Fond du Lac and thirteen stamps were left in the stamp book.

The suit case probably laid in the marsh for a few weeks for it was rotted when found and standing upright frozen to the ground. When Mr. Rauch took a hold of the handle it came off, showing that the grip was subject to the weather for some time. The grip and the contents were brought to this village on Wednesday and the District Attorney at Fond du Lac for investigation.

As no clue has been found, it will be very difficult to clear the mystery. Nobody has been heard of that disappeared around here and how the suitcase should come to this marsh is to be found out.

Met a Tragic Death

Henry Woelter, of the town of Ashippun, met with a sudden and tragic death last Friday afternoon in Ashippun as the result of an altercation with Henry Krueger, also a resident of that township. Woelter and Krueger met in Ashippun Friday afternoon in the saloon formerly known as Moldenhauer's place, and were the best of friends, but before parting they became engaged in an argument over a trivial matter and Woelter struck Krueger with one of his hands. Krueger struck back and hit Woelter on the head twice with his fists, which sent him to the ground. At first Woelter appeared stunned and he was carried into the store where he expired ten minutes later.

By the order of the coroner, Dr. Hadley, of Oconomowoc, and Dr. Steusser, of Alderley, performed an autopsy. They declared there was no fracture of the skull and no blood clot near the surface of the brain. An inch under the surface of the brain, however, they found a blood clot the size of a silver dollar, which they believed had caused his death. But the doctors would not state that there was reason to believe that the blows had been the proximate cause of the blood clot, asserting on the contrary that the hemorrhage might as well have been caused by the heat of passion to which the deceased had raised himself when becoming the aggressor in the fight. Accordingly the jury brought in a verdict declaring that Woelter had met his death through an accident.

How to Prevent the Tobacco Spiltworm

Transplant the tobacco crop as early as possible in order to mature it before the appearance of the most destructive generation of the tobacco spiltworm, advises bulletin No. 59 of the Department of Agriculture, in making recommendation for the control of this worm. When the early infection is very severe, prime off and destroy the infected leaves; destroy all tobacco stubble as soon as the plants are harvested to prevent the breeding of a hibernating generation; clean up and destroy all trash in and around fields and tobacco barns; do not follow potatoes by tobacco if the infection of tobacco has been more severe in such cases than where different rotation was followed; grow potatoes as far as possible from tobacco fields.

In Cuba and the United States the spiltworm is known on tobacco as a leaf-miner only. Only the older tobacco leaves are affected unless the infestation is very severe; and in these, the lower leaves, grayish, irregular blotches are produced, which later turn brown and become fragile so that the tobacco is unfit for wrappers. At Clarksville, Tennessee, where the infestation is very slight, the larva in most cases are produced, which later migrate and form mines in various parts of the leaf.

DECLINES RUSS POST

ILLINOIS EDITOR REFUSES TO BE AMBASSADOR BECAUSE OF CONTROVERSY.

CRANE MAY BE SELECTED

Letter From the President Pays High Tribute to Peoria Man, Who Feels He Would Be Hampered in Work at St. Petersburg.

Washington, Feb. 4.—Henry M. Pindell of Peoria, who was recently nominated and confirmed as ambassador to Russia, has declined the appointment, according to a letter to the president, made public at the White House on Monday.

In a letter sent to President Wilson Mr. Pindell states that circumstances have arisen which render it impossible for him to undertake the mission. He asserts he had been put in a false light by certain "gross misrepresentations in the public press."

In a reply to the resignation, the president expressed his unqualified confidence in Mr. Pindell's ability, character and entire suitability for the Russian post. Mr. Pindell's letter follows:

"Dear Mr. President: I deeply appreciate the honor you have done me in nominating me ambassador to Russia and the very great compliment paid me by the senate in confining the nomination by unanimous vote. I had hoped and confidently expected when you asked me to accept the post that I could do so at once and take up the work at a very early date.

"I am, therefore, the more embarrassed to find that circumstances have arisen which will render it impossible for me to undertake the mission.

"I have, as you know, been put in a very false light by certain gross misrepresentations in the public press; and while it is true that these have been cleared away and the nomination accepted in its true light after a thorough and dispassionate investigation, I feel that it would be more delicate for me to decline the appointment than to accept it. No controversy of this kind should surround the appointment of an ambassador to a country which cannot be expected to be familiar with the real circumstances as they are known at home.

"There should be nothing personal in this matter, you will accept my assurances of deep gratitude for the honor you have sought to do me and permit me, with genuine regret, but with no hesitation of judgment, to decline the appointment.

"With sentiments of distinguished consideration, believe me to be, Mr. President, your obedient servant.

"HENRY M. PINDELL."

The president's reply follows: "Dear Mr. Pindell: Your letter does great credit to your delicate sense of propriety and serves to increase, if that were possible, my admiration for you and my confidence in your eminent fitness for the mission which you now decline.

"I can but yield to your judgment in the matter; because it is clear to me that, feeling as you do, whether or not you would not be comfortable or happy in the post, I therefore cannot insist. You will allow me, however, I hope, to express my deep regret.

"Cordially and sincerely yours, "WOODROW WILSON."

Soon after Pindell's declination reports became current in official circles that Charles R. Crane of Chicago will shortly be nominated by President Wilson for the Russian post.

ASK U. S. PHONE LINE

P. O. DEPARTMENT SAYS CONTROL IS NECESSARY.

Report Points Out That Government Monopoly Is Only Solution to Benefits People.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Postmaster General Burleson submitted to the senate on Saturday the recommendations of the departmental committee appointed by him to investigate the practicability of government monopoly of telephone and telegraph lines, wireless communication and whatever system of transmitting messages may later be devised by congress.

Under the proposal real estate held by the telephone companies would not be required, but accommodations for switch boards, etc., leased until room could be found for them in post offices.

The report says this policy would reduce the cost of purchase of the phone lines, the capitalization of which, as they now exist, is placed at $300,000,000.

The report declares that "the only way to afford to the people the complete and modern postal facilities that the constitution makes it a duty of the government to provide is by carrying out these suggestions:

1. That congress declare a government monopoly over all telegraph, telephone and radio communication and such other means for the transmission of intelligence as may hereafter develop.

2. That congress acquire by purchase at appraised value the commercial telephone network, except the farmer lines.

3. That congress authorize the postmaster general to issue, in his discretion and under such regulations as he may prescribe, revocable licenses for the operation, by private individuals, associations, companies and corporations of the telegraph service and such parts of the telephone service as may not be acquired by the government.

The cost of acquiring the telegraph facilities is estimated at $225,000,000.

Congressmen Put Aside Party and Defeat Measure Aimed at the Japanese.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Led by the patriotic speeches of Representatives Mann, Sabath and Rainey of Illinois and Shurley of Kentucky, the house on Tuesday overwhelmingly defeated all Asiatic exclusion amendments to the immigration bill. An amendment proposed by Representative Baker of California to exclude all persons living east of a line drawn through the Red sea and the Ural mountains was defeated by a vote of 183 to 6, and was followed immediately by the defeat of the Hayes amendment, excluding all representatives of the brown, black and yellow races by a vote of 294 to 54. The test vote taken was the first direct expression of the house on Asiatic exclusion since the original exclusion acts were passed. That the issue was not decided on its merits was due entirely to the speeches made just before the vote was taken, in which Representative Mann of Chicago, the Republican leader, took the initiative.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 3.—Carrying 39 survivors of the Old Dominion liner Monroe, and the death toll of 41 more, the Merchants & Miners' steamship Nantucket came into port on Friday. The 39 survivors brought a story of suffering and sudden death from the sea.

"Whereas, by a proclamation of the president issued on March 14, 1912, under a joint resolution of congress, approved by the president on the same day, it was declared that there existed in Mexico conditions of domestic violence which were promoted by the use of arms or munitions of war procured from the United States; and

"Whereas, by the joint resolution above mentioned it thereupon became unlawful to export arms or munitions of war to Mexico except under such limitations and exceptions as the president should prescribe:

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, hereby declare and proclaim that, as the conditions have changed, and it is desirable to place the United States with reference to the exportation of arms or munitions of war to Mexico, in the same position as other powers, the said proclamation is hereby revoked.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"WOODROW WILSON.

"W. J. BRYAN, Secretary of State."

President Wilson accompanied the proclamation with the following statements: "The executive order under which the exportation of arms and ammunition into Mexico is forbidden, was a departure from the accepted practice of neutrality—a deliberate departure from those practices under a well considered joint resolution of congress determined upon in circumstances which have now ceased to exist. It was intended to discourage incipient revolts against the regularly constituted authorities of Mexico.

"Since that order was issued the circumstances of the case have undergone a radical change. There is now no constitutional government in Mexico, and the existence of this order hinders and delays the very thing the government of the United States is now insisting upon, namely, that Mexico shall be left free to settle her own affairs and as soon as possible put them upon a constitutional footing by her own force and counsel. The order is therefore rescinded."

Mexico City, Feb. 5.—Many of the Americans resident here, on learning of President Wilson's decision to raise the embargo on the exportation of arms from the United States to Mexico left the capital on Tuesday for the coast on the night train.

HUNGER STRIKE ON AT STEVENS POINT

PRISONERS REFUSE TO WASH DISHES AT SHERIFF'S REQUEST.

BREAD AND WATER SCORNE

Men Confined in Portage County Jail Prefer Starvation to Dish Washing—Heat is Cut Off.

Stevens Point.—Dirty dishes are piling up at the jail and the two prisoners assigned to that job by Sheriff Kubisiak are growing weaker every day.

The men, Edward Riley and John Dwalton, were sent to the county jail from Amherst, where they were convicted of creating a disturbance about two weeks ago. Soon after they were brought here they were put to work on the woodpile and told that the warmth of their meals and of the jail depended upon their efforts in reducing that pile.

Soon one of them contracted rheumatism and could do no work and even though cold meals were sent in and steam turned off at night the other soon displayed signs of a physical breakdown. Taking compassion on the men, Sheriff Kubisiak relieved them of that duty and assigned them to clean the plates, knives, forks, spoons and cups and the cooking utensils.

This they refused to do and when told they would have to live upon bread and water until they washed the dishes, replied that they did not have to live on bread and water and threatened to bring their attorney from Madison.

Since then, three times a day their allowance of bread and a supply of water have been placed at their disposal by the kindly sheriff, but none of it has been touched, the men having declared a hunger strike until given full meals and immunity from labor.

One of them, weaker than the other, called for the sheriff on Tuesday, asked for a meal and promised that he would wash the dishes. He was told when the accumulation of dishes had been washed he could have his meal, and it would be a substantial one, too.

The sheriff withdrew and not having been called, visited the man again only to find that not one of the dishes had been touched. The hunger strike was still on.

SALE OF EGGS IS STOPPED

State Poultry Association is Told That Bad Product Mixed With Good Turns Away Customers.

Madison.—Two-thirds of the bad eggs on the market are started on their downward path before they leave the farm. Many of the others which go wrong do so by being left standing about in grocery stores and butcher shops. One bad egg in a dozen spoils a customer's desire for eggs and reduces sales in market prices from 15 to 20 per cent. With a little care and proper handling on the part of the producer, the great loss could be eliminated and fresh eggs, farm eggs or cold storage eggs would become desirable, wholesome and edible products.

These are the opinions expressed by James G. Halpin, secretary of the Wisconsin Poultry association, before a fanciers and farmers' meeting at the University of Wisconsin.

Three years ago he issued several forged checks and made his escape. He was removed to the hospital where physicians were obliged to amputate three fingers from his right hand. He is expected to recover.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

ACCUSTOM yourself to master and overcome things of difficulty, for if you observe—the left hand for want of practice is insignificant—and not adapted to general business; yet it holds the bridle better than the right—from constant use. —Piny.

SAVORY DISHES

Take three pounds of soup meat and cook for four hours very gently. Remove the scum as it rises. In a sauce pan boil a pint of split peas. To the meat add after two hours cooking, two potatoes, an onion, a carrot and a pepper. Take out the meat and add the peas, put through a sieve. Serve round the meat.

Fish Cassole.—Put sufficient cooked beef through the meat chopper to measure a cupful; add a few chopped olives or a small onion, a cup of bread crumbs and a half a cup of milk. Season well and form in small balls; saute in butter until brown.

Rice Omelet.—This is a most satisfying dish for supper. Beat three eggs well and add a cup of cold cooked rice, two tablespoonfuls of cold water and a few dashes of salt. Place the omelet pan hot, and well buttered, on the stove and lift carefully at the sides to allow the center to run out and cook. When it is creamy spread with currant jelly and fold. Serve at once.

Cocoonat Souffle.—To two cupfuls of shredded cocoonat add six tablespoonfuls of flour, one pint of milk, four eggs and a half cup of sugar, a teaspoon of baking powder and half a teaspoon of lemon extract. Beat the eggs until light, add the sugar, then the flour sifted with the baking powder, then the lemon, milk, and a cupful of the cocoonat. Mix carefully and turn into a buttered baking dish. As soon as it begins to set sprinkle over the top the other cup of cocoonat mixed with two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Serve from the dish in which it is baked.

Soft Johnny Cake.—Take a half a cup of Indian meal, two teaspoonfuls of sugar, a teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of butter and a pint of sweet milk. Put milk in a dish to heat, add the meal and stir until cooked and thick. Do not allow it to become lumpy. Take from the fire, add sugar, salt and butter and one well beaten egg. Turn into greased pan and bake for 15 to 20 minutes.

Grandmother's Ginger Cookies.—Take a cupful each of brown sugar, molasses, shortening, a teaspoonful of soda, a tablespoonful of ginger, a tablespoonful of cinnamon, a teaspoon of baking powder and flour to fill.

No woman need envy the spirit her wisdom, if she has learned the uses of silence and never asks a favor of a hungry man. —Myrtle Reed.

THE WEEK NIGHT SUPPER

For children and aged persons who retire early, the heavy meal at noon is much better, and a light, easily digested meal at night, which will not interfere with a good night's rest.

There are still unwise people who think the more they eat the more strength they will have, forgetting that we are only able to take up the necessary amount of nourishment, and the rest is wasted, as it clogs the system and uses up the machinery.

Eggs which are soft cooked in any desired form or combination make an easily digested dish. Omelets are the favorite method of serving eggs. One who is able to turn out a good omelet is no mean artist.

Rice custard, cup custards and any baked variety of custard, if baked carefully, are both wholesome and easily digested dishes for both children and the aged.

Boston brown bread and butter, with a glass of milk or cocoa, is a good meal.

Buttermilk and ginger bread, with a bit of butter and cocoa, another combination which is sufficiently nourishing.

Neither coffee nor tea are beverages that are harmless, and should never be given to children. When they tire of milk, a cup of chocolate or cocoa or of cocoa nuts may be served occasionally without injury to the digestion.

For those who are able to digest a simple potato salad, here is one worth remembering: Put into a dish a tablespoonful of vinegar and four tablespoonfuls of olive oil, a half teaspoonful of salt and a quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper, and stir well until smooth and nicely mixed. Chop four boiled potatoes while hot, and turn into the dressing, and stir until it is thoroughly coated. Serve at once, if it is needed, add a little more vinegar and sprinkle with the chopped parsley.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

BORN FEBRUARY 12, 1809. DIED APRIL 15, 1865.

LINCOLN'S LIFE AN INSPIRATION

Why He Will for All Time Be Numbered With the Greatest of the Earth.

HERE are characters so great that their memorials are tributes to those who read them. It is so with Abraham Lincoln. To preserve a fame that is undying, the appropriation by congress of $2,000,000 was not needed. As proof of a nation's grateful appreciation it was wise and generous.

We hear much these days of philosophy, most of it not understandable. There are societies that study profoundly and profess to comprehend. These circles are small and the results that they gain are uncertain.

But the philosophy of a life like Lincoln's takes hold upon millions; it abides in the hearts and minds of men; it influences nations; it inspires whole races. In comparison with it what other is worth while?

Born in wretched poverty, an ill-favored child upon whom and whose parents our learned professors would have frowned, and always poor, he had been numbered with the greatest of the earth.

Never in his lifetime regarded as an orator, he is enrolled among the most gifted speakers of all ages.

Never educated, never widely read, never a traveler, he is conceded to have been one of the wisest of men. Never a trained soldier, he commanded in war greater armies than any monarch or general.

Never having had more than local celebrity as a lawyer, he had conceptions of justice that were unknown to distinguished jurists of his time. Never assuming to be a statesman or an economist, and never until his call to the presidency a successful manager of any enterprise, he became a ruler who will be celebrated forever for wisdom, sagacity and firmness.

Never the author of a verse, he has given us poetry in prose that is imperishable.

The humblest, the least assertive of men, it fell to him in an hour of crushing responsibility as commander-in-chief, by the sovereign stroke of a pen, to put human slavery in the way of extinction.

There is no obscurity in the philosophy of such a life. It touches every human being, high or low, rich or poor, wise or simple, strong or weak. It is the flesh and blood life, the life of struggle, sorrow and achievement. Its lessons are for all.

What have Science, Reason and recondite Theory to offer in place of such a life? Nothing but words, most of them meaningless.

EVER READY TO DO KINDLY ACT

Concert Singer Tells How Abraham Lincoln Helped to Move Her Piano.

WHEN court was in session in Decatur, Ill., Judge Davis presided. Court week was always looked for with great interest by the people of the county seat. It was customary for the entire bar of the district to follow the court from county to county; but although most of the lawyers traveled to only three or four counties, Judge Davis, Mr. Lincoln, and Leonard Sweet went the whole circuit, Davis because he had to, Lincoln because he loved it, and Sweet because he loved their company.

It was in court week that my piano arrived in Decatur. The wagon backed up to the steps of the Mason house, where I was staying, but the question how to unload it puzzled the landlord. Just then the court adjourned and a crowd appeared. The men gathered curiously around the wagon that blocked the entrance.

"There is a piano in that box that this woman here wants one to help unload," explained the landlord. "Who will lend a hand?"

A tall gentleman stepped forward, and throwing off a gray Scotch shawl, said, "Come on, Sweet, you are the next biggest man."

That was my first meeting with Abraham Lincoln.

Mr. Lincoln went into the basement where the landlord had a carpenter shop, and returned with two heavy timbers across his shoulders. With them he made a slide between the wagon and the front doorsteps. He got the piano unloaded, with the assistance of Mr. Linder and Mr. Sweet, and the jokes of the crowd.

Before they had screwed the legs into place, dinner was announced, and the men hurried to the back porch, where there were two tin wash ba-sons, a long roller towel and a coarse comb for the guests.

After dinner Mr. Lincoln superintended the setting up of the piano, and even saw to it that it stood square in the center of the wall space. He received my thanks with a polite bow, and asked, "Do you intend to follow court and give concerts?" The immense relief expressed on his countenance when I assured him that he would not be called upon to move the piano again was very amusing.

"Then may we have one tune before we go?" he asked, and I played "Rosin the Dow," with variations.

"Some one shouted: 'Come on, boys, the judge will be waiting!' After I had assured them that, if they desired it, I would give my first and only concert on this circuit" when they returned to the hotel in the evening, the crowd dispersed.

That night I played and sang numerous songs, all of which met with applause. As a finale I sang "He Doth All Things Well," after which Mr. Lincoln, in a very grave manner, thanked me for the evening's entertainment, and said: "Don't let us spoil that song by any other music to-night." Many times afterward I sang that song for Mr. Lincoln; he was always fond of it.—Mrs. J. M. John's "Personal Recollections."

Soldiers Encouraged Lincoln. During the darkest period of the war, when President Lincoln made a visit to the army, he was very discouraged and downcast, and General Sickles determined to cheer him up by giving him a hearty welcome. The general tells the story himself in his own inimitable way, and he even has the grace to blush after the recital. He began operations by ordering his men to decorate their camps and form arches with the surrounding trees, making the company streets vistas of long-leaved pines. As the boys began cheering, throwing up their hats and in every way displaying cheerful and loyal devotion, coming up to him on horseback and grasping his hand.

The tribute affected Lincoln greatly, and the tears were streaming down his cheeks as he reached the general's headquarters. The great and enthusiastic demonstration of loyalty and affection by the men who were facing the bullets and taking their lives in their hands touched him deeply.—National Magazine.

URGES EFFICIENCY IN DAIRY BUSINESS

PROF. G. C. HUMPHREY TELLS SHORT COURSE STUDENTS TO SYSTEMATIZE FEEDING.

GIVES OUTLINE OF RATIONS

Says Careful Management Would Mean $50,000,000 Increase in Income of State—Great Deal of Effort Wasted Now.

Madison.—That systematic and efficient management of the dairy business of Wisconsin would add at least $50,000,000 to the income of the state was the statement of Prof. G. C. Humphrey, who addressed a session of the short course in dairying being conducted by the University of Wisconsin.

According to Prof. Humphrey, farmers throughout the state are operating at a loss of about 60 per cent in the dairy business. He pointed out that few farmers succeed in finding rations cheap and good enough to enable them to make a profit on a cow throughout the year. A good ration for a butter fat producing cow was given as follows: Corn silage, clover hay, corn meal, wheat bran, ground oats and oil meal.

Continued ignorance of the producing properties of each cow is causing many Wisconsin farmers to buck an impossible proposition and is responsible for a great deal of wasted effort and poor returns, according to Prof. Humphrey.

1914 FAIR ASSURED

SEPT. 14 TO 18 ARE DATES FIXED BY BOARD.

Milwaukee Gets Plum—Board Will Borrow $10,000 on Personal Notes—Special Meeting Scheduled.

Madison.—Wisconsin will have a state fair this year and it will be held on the fair grounds in Milwaukee, Sept. 14 to 18. The state board of agriculture at its annual meeting voted to borrow $10,000 on the personal note of its members and to accept the $15,000 guarantee offered by the Citizens' Business League and the Hotel Men's association of Milwaukee and use the money in paying the obligations of the board until funds are available from state appropriations and receipts of the next fair. The board will hold a special meeting in Milwaukee on Feb. 29 to sign the note and negotiate the loan from one of the banks there. It is proposed to make the note payable on or before a year from its date.

The board selected the dates Sept. 14 to 18, inclusive, for the next fair after hearing a delegation of representatives of the northern part of the state, who urged that the fair be held late in September. This delegation consisted of W. B. Webb of Superior, J. C. Lewis of Antigo, J. H. Schmidt of Wausau, and M. J. Bell of Frontiers. The dates assigned to Wisconsin fair by the Western Association of Fair and Exposition at a meeting held in Chicago several months ago were from Aug. 28 to Sept. 5, inclusive. These proposed dates were strongly opposed, particularly by citizens of the northern part of the state, who said they were too early to enable them to make horticultural and agricultural exhibits because their products would not mature in time. The board held several hearings on the matter and finally decided to reject the early dates assigned Wisconsin at Chicago and select Sept. 14 to 18, inclusive.

The fair last year was held on Sept. 8 to 12, which was in the second week of September. The dates for this year will bring the fair in the third week.

COMMISSION RULE ACCEPTED

Change Made in Form of Government by Big Majority—Sentiment Has Changed Since 1913.

Antigo.—The campaign for commission form of government won here, 493 to 192. The proposed change was defeated a year ago by about 150 votes. The vote today is attributed to sympathy in behalf of Patrick Byrns, a laborer, who is said to have rendered a bill of $15 to the present council for cleaning the city park. The council refused payment, declaring the bill was not presented. Byrns sued the city and the officials secured a change of venue, making it impossible for Byrns, who is unable to leave his work here, to fight the case. Success of water plant operation in other cities under commission rule also contributed toward the success of the plan here, the city having recently acquired the plant from W. G. Maxey.

He leaves a widow. The funeral will be held under the auspices of the Grand Army.

DELLS DAM TRIAL SUIT IS STARTED

CITY OF EAU CLAIRE AND POWER COMPANY NAMED IN LITIGATION.

HAS HUNG FIRE FOR 8 YEARS

Eau Claire Took Possession Under 99 Year Lease by Improvement Co.—Government to Hear Petition.

Eau Claire.—The famous Dells dam suit goes to trial here in circuit court before Judge Reed in Wausau. The case has been hanging fire since 1906. The city of Eau Claire precipitated the litigation by taking possession of the dam then held under a ninety-nine year lease by the Eau Claire Dells Improvement company and the Dells Paper and Pulp company.

The seizure was made on the grounds that the companies had forfeited their rights by violation of their contract. The dam was built by the city in 1877 and leased to the improvement company.

The city expended $90,000 in building the dam and under the terms of its lease from the city the improvement company secured all rights and privileges except the power to operate the city water works and 650 horse power under another lease.

FAVORS HOUSEWIVES UNION

Madison Home Economics Teacher Urges Women to Band Together For Wholesale Purchases.

Madison.—In an address before a session of the women's course in home economics, conducted by the University of Wisconsin, Miss Abbie Marlatt of the home economics department of the university made a strong plea for unionism among housewives in America. The purpose of the union advocated by Miss Marlatt is not only to protect women from unscrupulous dealers, but also to educate them to a full and just knowledge of the conditions they must meet in their homes in regard to labor, food and textile problems. Speaking of labor problems Miss Marlatt stated that the standard of wages for labor should be efficiency. Increased efficiency should mean increased wages. She dwelt upon the maxim that no woman should order a household in such a way as to enslave any human being. Miss Marlatt pointed out the fact that the demand for servants by far exceeds the supply, and offered two possible solutions of the problem. One was for the housewife to do her own work, and the other was to engage professional help by the hour.

FARMER MAKES $250 AN ACRE

George Baxter of Vesper Makes Big Profit on Pickles—Expects Increase This Year.

Vesper.—That pickles are by no means an unprofitable crop for the Wisconsin farmer, providing a good market is near at hand throughout the ripening season, George Baxter of Vesper can furnish interesting testimony. He owns a quarter section of cut over pine land near Vesper which he bought, stumps included, nine years ago. From less than a half acre of the quarter, seventy-three square rods, in 1913, he sold 195 bushels of pickles weighing 9,787 pounds. He received in return, as the records at the pickle station show, $126.57, a rate of better than $250 an acre. It was Mr. Baxter's first experience with pickles and in telling of his big yield he says if he had known at the beginning of the season what he learned by the close of it the yield could easily have been made $150 or even $200 for the half acre.

HIS FIRST VALENTINE

NOT OBSERVED AS IN THE OLD DAYS

St. Valentine Is Now Neglected, Compared to What Was Done Some Two Centuries Ago.

HE sending by mail of embossed tokens of love or friendship is about all there is left of the ancient customs of St. Valentine's day. The windows and play counters of our book stores and bazars are filled at this season of the year with examples of art and near-art to an extent that should please every sort of taste in regard to valentines. There is a day or two of fun and merry chatter when the tokens are received, or of even more boisterous mirth if the valentines are "comic"; here and there a valentine party is given by the young people, then the celebrating ceases and is forgotten.

Not so a couple of centuries ago. Then the festivities were much more in the character of observance and ceremonies. The origin of St. Valentine's day is credited to different incidents. One writer of ancient social customs says that it originated with Mme. Royale, daughter of Henry IV. of France. The lady, having built a splendid palace near Turin, desired to name it for some good saint, and finally chose St. Valentine. Thus the edifice was called "The Valentine," and at the initial entertainment given in the great drawing rooms, Mme. Royale conceived the idea of causing her guests to pair off by means of a lottery.

Ladies Drew From Lot.

The names of the men were written on slips of paper and folded. The ladies then drew from the list, and whoever each one drew was to be her "valentine" for the space of one year. At the various balls which this gay, spirited young princess gave during the season it was understood that each lady should receive a bouquet from her chosen lover, and that at every tournament the trappings of a knight's horse should be furnished by his allotted lady, with this proviso—that the lady eventually receive whatever prize he might win. Mme. Royale, however, would not herself enter into this lottery, but reserved the privilege of choosing her "valentine" independent of the lot.

Doubtless it is true that this lady did originate this custom at her palace in Turin, but it is also quite as true that this was not the real origin of St. Valentine's day, for it is alluded to by English poets before her time. Lydgate, a monk, who died in the year 1440, and who has been described as "the poet of his monastery," wrote a poem in praise of Queen Catherine, consort of Henry V. of England, in which he mentioned the observance of St. Valentine's day and the custom of "drawing lots."

Indeed, this custom seems to have been a very ancient one, and continued to comparatively modern times. An equal number of young men and women would meet together on the eve of St. Valentine's day and hold a lottery, in which the names of both men and women were drawn; thus each maid and bachelor would have two "valentines" who were required to make mutual gifts. This, of course, occasioned any amount of mirth and some funny situations.

Other Superstitions

One superstition which need good till quite recent times was that the first young man or young woman one chanced to meet on the morning of Valentine's day would be one's valentine. Other superstitions included mystic rites, particularly in Scotland, which enabled maidens to learn who would be their future husbands. About the middle of the eighteenth century one young woman—according to the historian of social customs of that time—wrote as follows:

"Last Friday was Valentine's day, and I'll tell you what I did the night before. I got five bay leaves, plinned four of them to the four corners of my pillow, and the fifth to the middle, for if I dreamt of my sweetheart, Betty said we would be married before the year was out. But to make more sure, I boiled an egg hard, took out the yolk and filled the egg up with salt, and when I went to bed I ate it, shell and all, without speaking or drinking after it, and this was also to have effect with the bay leaves. We also wrote our love names upon bits of paper and rolled them up in clay and put them into water, and the first that rose was to be our valentine. Would you think it? Mr. Blossom was my man, and I lay abed and shut my eyes all the morning till he came to our house, for I would not have seen another man before him for all the world."

This quaint letter shows how the idea of the powers of St. Valentine were appreciated by the maidens of that time. It was customary in the olden times for maidens to hang their shoes outside the window on the eve of St. Valentine's day in order that their love affairs should prosper, although the explanation of this belief is not given. Children also went about chanting songs about Valentine and collecting coins as their valentines.

The valentine gifts of those days were sometimes very costly, including jewels, rings, brooches, silken sashes, or belts with begemmed buckles, silk gloves with rich embroidery, and other expensive presents which a man might make to his "valentine."

St. Valentine's day was alluded to by Shakespeare and Chaucer, and one of the earliest known writers of valentines was Charles, duke of Orleans. Drayton, a poet of Shakespeare's time, also wrote charming verses along this theme.

What connection the martyred Bishop Valentine has to do with these customs, whose ruler seems to be Cupid, would puzzle the saint himself. The death of the good bishop, which occurred in the third century, was a most cruel one. He was first beaten with clubs and then beheaded. Thus it seems paradoxical that the commemoration of him should be observed in the gayest of fashions, and always in conjunction with the pranks of the little god of love.

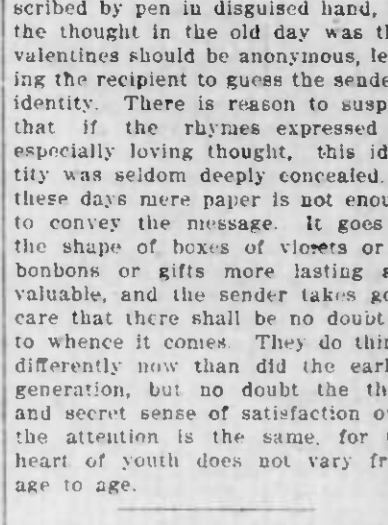

Many learned historians have given considerable time and investigation to the origin of the romantic observance of St. Valentine's day, but the secret is still a secret—the real mystery is still unsolved.

HEART OF YOUTH THE SAME

Joy at Receiving Valentines Today Probably as Great as Ever in the Past.

Elderly folk are wont to smile indulgently when St. Valentine's day is mentioned, and to say, with possibly a reminiscence sigh, that it is now observed only by children who hardly know its significance or understand when they send gay missives back and forth that they are celebrating the patron saint of sweethearts. Perhaps these elders forget that some of these they call "children" are not younger than they were when in years gone by they thrilled and smiled over the mysterious letters with their tender messages—the lace paper pages with embossed wreaths of rosebuds and gilt leaves exclaiming sentimental rhymes; rhymes sometimes printed, sometimes inscribed by pen in disguised hand, for the thought in the old day was that valentines should be anonymous, leaving the recipient to guess the sender's identity. There is reason to suspect that if the rhymes expressed an especially loving thought, this identity was seldom deeply concealed. In these days mere paper is not enough to convey the message. It goes in the shape of boxes of victors or of bonbons or gifts more lasting and valuable and the sender takes good care that there shall be no doubt as to whence it comes. They do things differently now than did the earlier generation, but no doubt the thrill and secret sense of satisfaction over the attention is the same, for the heart of youth does not vary from age to age.

TWO VALENTINES

I sent my love a valentine. And with it sent a kiss. It bore the message, "Be thou mine." And looked about like this:

My love sent me a valentine. But oh, the saucy missal! Instead of saying, "I am thine," It looked about like this:

GOING SOME A ROMANCE OF STRENUOUS AFFECTION BY REX BEACH

Illustrated By Edgar Bert Smith SYNOPSIS. Cowboys of the Flying Hears ranch are heartbroken over the loss of their much-prized photograph by the defeat of their champion in a foot-race with the cook of the Centipede ranch.

CHAPTER XII.—Continued. Along the road toward the ranch buildings plodded two dusty pedestrians, one a blond youth bundled thickly in sweaters, the other a fat man who rolled heavily, and paused now and then to mop his purple face.

"The volley was fired at sunrise. Just at the break of day." "Did you get that?" one of the two exclaimed hoarsely. "They're practicing a death-march, and it's ours."

"And as the echoes lingered. His shout had passed away." "That's you, Wally!" wheezed the trainer. "Into the arms of his Maker. There to learn his fate!"

"Here, what are you singing about?" angrily protested Speed, as he rounded into view. "Oh, it's Mr. Speed!" "Good-morning!" chorused Helen and the chaperon.

"Welcome to our city!" Fresno greeted. "Glass trotted to the steps. 'Them boys,' he puffed, 'is bad for a man when he's trainin'; they get him all worked up.'"

"We had no idea you would be back so soon," apologized Helen. "So!" Speed measured the distance to a wicker chair, gave it up, and sank beside his trainer. "We left yesterday! We've run miles and miles and miles!"

"You can't be in very good shape," volunteered the singer. "Oh, is that so?" Glass retorted. "I say he's great. He got my goat—and I'm some runner!"

"And I'd be obliged to you if you'd cut out those deeply appealing songs," Speed growled at his rival. "It was Helen who hastened to smooth things. 'It's all my fault. I asked Mr. Fresno to sing something new.'"

"Hah! That was written by William Cronwell." "No more of them battle-hymns," Glass ordered. "They don't do Mr. Speed no good."

"All I want is a drink," panted that youthful athlete, and Helen came quickly, saying that she would bring ice-water. "But the trainer barked sharply. 'Sit! I've sold you that twenty times, Wally. It'll put hob-nails in your liver.' He rose with difficulty, swaying upon his feet and where he had sat was a large, irregular shaped, sweat-dampened area. 'Come on! Don't get chilled.'"

"I'd give twenty dollars for a good chill!" exclaimed the overheated college man longingly. "I would like to see you a moment, Mr. Speed," Roberta rose from the hammock. "Oh, and I've forgotten my—" Helen checked her words with a startled glance toward the kitchen. "It will be burned to a crisp." She hastened down the porch, and Fresno followed, while Speed looked after them.

LIKE THE OLD TIME SAILORS Captains of French Fishing Vessels Still Navigate the Atlantic Ocean Without Chronometers. The French sea captains who bring their vessels across the Atlantic every spring to fish on the Newfoundland banks navigate almost exactly as they did in the days of Columbus. Of the 250 French sailing vessels on the banks last year 240 were fitted out in Normandy and Brittany. Their cap-

It seemed that a battle must be in progress behind the screen, for mingled with the gasping screams of the athlete and the hoarse commands of the trainer, came sounds of physical contact. The barrel rocked upon its scaffold, the curtains swayed and flapped violently.

"Stand still!" "It's—it's as ice-cold as ice!" "Sit—You're overstrained, that's all!" "On—aw—Oooh—h— I'm dying!" "It'll do you good."

"He's certainly trainin' him some," said Stover. "Larry, I've got a cramp!" "It did harden him," acknowledged Willie. "What's wrong with you, anyhow?" demanded Glass.

"It's not me, it's the w-w-water!" Evidently Speed made a frantic lunge here and escaped, for the flow of water ceased. "It froze 4-d-during the night. Oh! I'm cold!" "Cold, ah? Get onto that rubbing board; I'll warm you."

An instant later the crowd heard the sounds of a violent slapping mingled with groans. "Go easy, I say! I'll be black and blue all—look out!—not so much in one spot! Ow!" "Turn over!"

"He's spankin' him," said Stover admiringly. "How ever did you manage it?" "Never mind the details. It took some ingenuity." Mrs. Keap wrung her hands. "I was so terribly frightened! You see, Jack will be back to-morrow, and I—was afraid!"

There was a call from Glass from the training-quarters. "How can I ever do enough for you? You have averted a tragedy!" "Don't let Helen know, that's all. If she thought I'd been the head yeller—I won't breathe a word, and I hope you win the race for her sake."

Mrs. Keap pressed the hand of her deliverer, who trudged his lonely way toward the gymnasium, where Glass was saying: "The volley was fired at sunrise. That means Saturday, Be." "Larry, you're the best crape-banger of your weight in the world."

Larry bent a look of open disgust upon his employer. "And you're a good runner, you are," said he. "Why, I beat you this morning." The younger man glanced up hopefully. "Couldn't you beat this cook?" "You're the only man in this world I can outrun."

"Stand Still or I'll Wallop You!" "Stand, a min, a min, a min—good-bye!" through the blankets, halted at sight of the onlookers. "How is he?" demanded Stover. "He—he's trained to the minute. I'm doin' my share, gent."

"Sounds 'dat way," acknowledged Stover's companion. "Say, does it look like we'd win?" "Well, he just breezed a mile with his mouth open." "A mile?" Fresno queried. "A mile?" Fresno queried.

"Yes, a regular mile—seven thousand five hundred and thirty feet." "Is 'forty' good?" queried Willie. "Good? Why, Salva-tor never worked no faster. He is now—look for yourselves." Speed appeared, partly clad, and glowing with a rich salmon pink.

"Good morning," said Fresno politely. "I came in to see how you liked the cold water." "So that was one of your California jokes, eh? Well, I'll—" Speed moved ominously in the direction of the tenor, but Willie checked him. "We put the ice in that bar! Mr. Speed."

Willie and Stover nodded. "Then let me tell you I expect to have pneumonia from that bath. The young man coughed hollowly. 'That's the way I caught it once before, and it wouldn't surprise me a bit if I'd be too sick to run by Saturday.' "Oh, no; you don't get pneumonia but once."

"And, besides," Fresno added, "it wouldn't have time to show up by Saturday." "Get that ice-chest out of my room, that's all; it makes the air damp." "No indeed!" said Still Bill. "We're goin' to see that you use it regular." Then of Glass he inquired: "What do you do to him next?" (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Blessing of Contentment. Charles Teller, the inventor of cold storage, was banqueting in Paris at the age of eighty-five years. "Teller," said a New York correspondent, "has now been granted a pension, but up to now he was poor almost to the starvation point. He could not even afford cold storage food."

Flounced Dresses Are Coming

If you wish to busy yourself preparing for the coming spring and summer, you can be assured of the success of certain new styles in advance. It is wise to be ready for the season which lures us out of doors and to make the most of it.

Here is the sweetest of summer gowns, made of silk muslin and lace with a fichu and a belt of satin ribbon. Similar gowns are on display made of a variety of materials. There are embroidered cotton crepes, first of all. Nets, with flounces edged with lace, embroidered crepe de chine and voiles. But always lace and more lace.

Point d'esprit net is found very useful and fine-flowered voiles, lawns and batiste. Among the handsomest of gowns are those of white net showing flouncings of the net edged with narrow black chantilly lace. Others of sheer cotton crepe with fold of black maline laid under the edge of flouncings.

Much hand embroidery appears on the gowns of crepe, voile, etc. But it is of a kind that does not try the eyes. Long sprays of flowers of moderate size—like the carnation, for example—are done with heavy floss in long bold stitches. The effect is beautiful. The gowns are in white or pale colors. White is the loveliest, and the light colored underflop with a lace-trimmed petticoat of net worn under these gowns is beautiful.

It would be hard to find a simpler or prettier model than that shown in the picture, for a flounced gown. The design, too, is appropriate to older women, as well as to the youthful wearer. In fact, the difference in flounced gowns for young or older wearers is discernible in finishing touches, rather than in design. The foundation skirts are plain and straight. The flounces are adjusted in differing poses. Sometimes, as in the gown pictured, they sag toward the back, but in a good number this is reversed and they rise toward the back.

The waist line is about the normal in most of them. White waists are draped, these are set in sleeves as well as drop shoulder and kimono effects. Ribbons are conspicuous, and the "rango" shades, warm naturalistic yellows are especially likely. Almost anyone who makes any pretensions to sewing, or has any faith in her own ability, can put together a flounced dress. The trick seems to be in adjusting the flounces at the right slope, with even fullness, and in not getting them too full.

The three flounced skirts, having the flounce shaped, is displayed for heavier fabrics, and is wonderfully attractive. There is a world of light, airy fabrics, fascinating in design, and a world of filmy laces, moderate in price, so that the flounced gown has a pleasant future before it. Limp fabrics are chosen that fall to the figure, so that flounces do not mean bulkiness. That is taboed, and is likely to remain so.

LACE AND RIBBONS MARK THE STYLES IN UNDER-MUSLINS UNDER-MUSLINS in common with other articles for women's wear, have been growing more lacy, more bedecked with pretty finishing touches, more diaphanous, with every season, until now, it seems, the limit has been reached. Night dresses are made with yokes of fine net, having lace inserted, or superposed. Or they are made with lace and fine embroidery or all lace yokes. Pretty washable ribbons are always a necessary part of their construction. Altogether the great stores have all been much influenced by this liking for airy fabrics and the craze for laces. Petticoats have wide flounces of net or lace, or the very sheerest of embroideries. Sometimes a lace flounce has another of net under it. Corset covers are of net, chiffon and lace. Small chiffon roses and abundance of ribbon trim them. Occasionally one sees an entire petticoat of net, but more often the flounce only is of this pretty fabric.

As in outer garments, under-muslins are cut with easy lines, to hang gracefully, not to "fit" the figure. Whatever one may think of the diaphanous materials, it must be conceded that the present styles are exceptionally graceful. Thin muslins, uinsoons, and cambrics make up the body of the garments. Much beading is used to carry the ribbons which make gay the

HAD NO RIGHT TO BE OUT

Little Jasper Indignant Because His Product Seemingly Had Obscured His Ours. Little Jasper Seater learned from the minister's sermon one Sunday that man was made of clay, so after returning from church he resolved to make him a man after his own fashion. The work proceeded in the clay bank back of the garden until his mother called Jasper to luncheon. He had completed all of the man save one leg.

That afternoon Jasper and his mother, while walking along the street, met a man with one leg, walking with crutches. Jasper accosted him and grabbed his coat. "See here!" he said. "I thought I told you to stay there in the yard till I put that other leg on you."—Judge.

ECZEMA ON ENTIRE SCALP

R. F. D. No. 2, Sunfield, Mich.—I was troubled with eczema. It began with a sore on the top of the scalp, broke out as a pimple and grew larger until it was a large red spot with a crust or scab over it. This became larger finally covering the entire scalp and spread to different parts of the body, the limbs and back and in the ears. These sores grew larger gradually until some were as large as a quarter of a dollar. They would itch and if scratched they would bleed and smart at night when it was being removed causing them to itch and smart so I could not sleep. A watery fluid would run from them. My scalp became covered with a scale and when the hair was raised up it would raise this scale; the hair was coming out terribly.

A Doctor's First Question Is

"How are Your Bowels?" A Simple Remedy that Guarantees Good Bowel Action.

Trace the origin of the commoner ills of life and almost invariably you will find that constipation was the cause. It is not to be expected that a mass of fermented food can remain in the system beyond its time without vitiating the blood and affecting the nerves and muscles. It congests the entire body.

The results are colds, fevers, piles, headaches, and nervousness, with its accompanying indigestion and sleeplessness. There is only one thing to do, and that is to remove the trouble; and when nature seems unable to do it, outside aid is necessary. You will find the best of all outside aids a remedy that many thousands are now using for this very purpose, called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Many hundreds of letters are received by Dr. Caldwell telling of the good results obtained, and among the enthusiastic letters is one from Lieut. G. W. Vaughan, of 623 W. North St., Decatur, Ill. He is 72 and has had a bad liver and stomach since he came out of the army. He says he tried about everything, but never succeeded in getting permanent relief until he took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. He is never without a bottle in the house, and he is never without good health.

It has untold advantages over pills, salts and the various coarse cathartics and purgatives, for while these do but temporary good, Syrup Pepsin cures permanently. The effect of its action is to train the stomach and bowel muscles to do their work naturally again, and in a short time all forms of medicine can be dispensed with. It can be bought without inconvenience at any nearby drug store for fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter size being regularly bought by those who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

LIEUT. G. W. VAUGHAN

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 203 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

NOTES From MEADOWBROOK FARM

A satisfied pig grunts.

Watch your horse's breathing. Overfeeding the hens is harmful. Litter should cover the hen house feeding floor. Satisfied profitable pigs will grunt, but they do not squeal. Mill feed can in most cases be purchased and fed to brood sows at a profit. A horse will require more feed when allowed to run out, than if kept in the barn. Study your hogs. Hog growing, like any branch of live stock, cannot be learned in a day. There is never a time in the year when the fruit grower has no use for his pruning knife. The demand for the bacon hog is growing. The large Yorkshire is the favorite bacon breed. Shelter all the stock. The increased manure and thrift of stock pay big dividends for the trouble. If the screenings are fed the manure should be thoroughly composted, otherwise weeds will continue to grow. Brush out the heels of the horse at night. If dirt is allowed to cake, scratches and grease-heal may result. Don't begrudge the grain the poultry eats. They are returning a higher price for it than any stock on the farm. Farming is becoming a more systematized business. This is one thing that has removed the drudgery from the work. A mule never seems to be really frightened at anything. When he runs away he does it through pure love of mischief. Lounging along in the harness is bad for any horse, young or old. It is a sure sign of a slouchy driver. Either drive or let it alone. Keep the pigs busy from start to finish, i. e., making hogs of themselves. Afford comfort, plenty of feed and drink, and give it regularly. The ideal peach tree is one which has a spread of branches almost double its height and well feathered with fruiting branches almost to the ground. There is less talk in our time about the general-purpose cow and more about the utility cow. The latter sort can be depended upon to pay the rent when all else fails. Contrary to the general belief, it does not hurt a horse to give him water in moderate quantities, even when he is very hot, providing the water is not very cold. The brood sow is a pig factory, not herself a pork barrel filler. She is, or should be, a creator of strong, hearty pigs. Feed her then so she can fulfill her real mission. There is just as much danger in over feeding farm stock as there is in under feeding. You have to watch the animals in order to know when you have the right kind of a ration. Remember that the horse is the most nervous of all animals, and that little things annoy and irritate him. Remember that he will be contented or miserable accordingly as you treat him. Good housing is one of the essentials for egg production, and consequently should be given proper consideration. A hen that is comfortable and happy is more apt to be profitable than one that is uncomfortable. A recommended treatment for warts on a cow's teats: Put some water in a bottle and add as much alum as the water will dissolve. After each milking touch the warts with this mixture and they will soon disappear. Ice water to drink when the mercury is on a still hunt for the bottom of the thermometer brings the shivers to the cow, and that means that her owner will shiver when he looks into his pocketbook for the profit from her milking. The poor cow would complain against the short course if she had the opportunity to speak herself. She is the one that must fear lest her good fortune be destroyed when the boys return with a little better knowledge of dairy farming. The really profitable business of turkey raising must be carried on the farm. These birds yield good returns upon the money necessary for equipping a plant, but at the same time they do not generally fit in well with limited range, for they do not flourish in confinement. The cheapest water-tight covering for henhouses is tar paper, which is satisfactory for a season or two, but it pays to use the prepared roofing to cover poultry houses with, because it will last for years and is warmer.

Ventilate the stable. Clean up the farmstead. Pear blight is infectious. A horse is a very nervous animal. Sheep need salt in winter as well as in summer. Keep the harness soft where it touches the horses. If a horse bolts its food, have his teeth examined by a veterinarian. Never strike a horse on the head. Kindness will do more than brutality. Don't keep the breeding sows or the growing pigs on a plank floor all winter. Tramp the snow well about apple and plum trees to prevent injury by mice. Cut alfalfa or clover hay are good green feeds for hens at this time of the year. A mosquito netting will keep flies off the separator after it is washed—and before. Barn room is too expensive to stable cows that lay off work every time the wind changes. Strive to keep the sows in good flesh, but do not overload them with an excess of fat. The patient mule is not much for speed, but he keeps going and usually arrives on time. Religious instruction must be judiciously administered if it is to be effective with children. Otherwise—well, this is the story told by a good adult friend of the small Chicago maiden who suffered in its behalf. The little girl had accompanied a small comrade to Sunday school, this being her first experience of the kind. She went off blithely, but returned home crying. Maternal questions elicited the sad fact that Millie, her recent hostess, had slapped her. "Why did you do that?" Millie was asked in sternest indignation. "After some hesitation Millie divulged the bitter truth. "Well, the lesson today was about God," she said, "and as we came home I asked Jessie if she loved God, and—au—au—" "Well, well, out with it!" cried Jessie's mother. "What did Jessie say?" "What could she have said to cause you to treat her so unkindly?" "Well—I asked her did she love God, and she said— " "What did she say?" repeated Jessie's mother. "She said, 'No, I don't even like Him!'—so I thought she needed punishing, and I slapped her face!" Saving the Furniture. "I don't know what we're going to do," said the mother, "since you have given Willie that knife with a saw and a gimlet and a file and a lot of other things attached to it." "Well," answered the father, thoughtfully, "maybe we'd better shut up the house for a couple of months and move into a furnished apartment." Not Leap Year, Either. Ethel—This craze for gold seems to me very foolish. Now, a very little would make me happy. Jack—How much? Ethel—Just enough to reach around my finger.—San Francisco Chronicle. Sacrificed. Ethel—So Kate is finally married. How did she come to take the plunge? Marie—She didn't. She was shoved off by three younger sisters. Everything. "How's everything in your house?" asked Smith. "Oh," replied Brown, "she's all right." The under dog gets a lot of sympathy, but what he wants is help. If a man admires a woman she should at least admire his good taste. ANOTHER COFFEE WRECK What's the Use When There's an Easy Way Out? Along with the coffee habit has grown the prevalent "American Disease"—nervous prostration. The following letter shows the way out of the trouble: "Five years ago I was a great coffee drinker and from its use I became so nervous I could scarcely sleep at all nights. My condition grew worse and worse until finally the physician I consulted declared my troubles were due to coffee. "But being so wedded to the beverage I did not see how I could do without it, especially at breakfast, as that meal seemed incomplete without coffee. "On a visit, my friends deprived me of coffee to prove that it was harmful. At the end of about eight days I was less nervous, but the craving for coffee was intense, so I went back to the old habit as soon as I got home and the old sleepless nights came near making a wreck of me. "I heard of Postum and decided to try it. I did not like it at first, because, as I afterwards discovered, it was not made properly. I found, however, that when made after directions on the package, it was delicious. "It had a soothing effect on my nerves, and none of the bad effects that coffee had, so I bade farewell to coffee and have used only Postum since. The most wonderful account of the benefit to be derived from Postum could not exceed my own experience. "Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for a copy of 'The Road to Wellfare.' "Postum now comes in two forms: Regular Postum—must be well boiled. Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. Grocers sell both kinds. "There's a Reason" for Postum.

WOULD ALMOST FAINT Cured After Doctors Failed

Mrs. Henry Zumbach, Hutchinson, Minn., says: "Last winter a terrible, sharp pain caught me in my back and from that time on I had a constant backache. If I used a broom, it just seemed as if my back was breaking. I was in misery day and night and at times I got so dizzy I thought I was going to faint. At night I had to put a pillow under my head and I could not get that pillow to give me any relief that this gave me. I got so weak I couldn't do anything. The doctor said I had a floating kidney and two specialists in Minneapolis said the same. The physicians' medicine didn't help me a bit and reading about Doan's Kidney Pills, I had someone get me a box. As soon as I began using them, I got better and by the time I had finished the third box, I didn't have a bit of pain. I can now do any kind of work without suffering and all the symptoms of kidney complaint have left me. Doan's Kidney Pills have certainly spared me a great deal of misery and suffering. I am only too glad to recommend them to other kidney sufferers."

RUSH TO SECURE THE CROSS

Christmas Ceremonies That Mark the Celebration in Russia and the Balkan States.

The Russian Christmas falls on January 7. On that day St. Petersburg celebrates the birth of Christ by blessing the River Neva. A procession of priests, followed by a huge crowd, march to the river, the ice is broken, and a cross dipped in the water. In spite of the intense cold, often many degrees below zero, piously-inclined persons rush into the river to bathe themselves in the sanctified water.

A similar Christmas ceremony is enacted in those Roumanian towns which lie on the Danube, but in this case the people are dressed to represent various biblical characters, such as Herod, Pontius Pilate, etc., and the cross is not merely dipped, but flung into the water. Then follows a terrific rush to secure the blessed emblem—a rush so fearful that often lives are lost, for it is firmly believed that its possession will bring the owner good fortune not only for the year, but for the rest of his life.

A young man timidly approached the father of the girl of his choice and asked for her hand in marriage.

"I am not at all certain," said the father, "that my daughter loves you sufficiently to warrant me in entrusting her to your keeping."

"Well," replied the young man, respectfully, "perhaps you haven't had the same advantage for observing things that I have."—Harper's Monthly.

The sick Seaman Evans ruled the destiny of the Scott Antarctic expedition. The weakest link in the chain gives the value to the chain. Civilization follows the path of least resistance. The strong or black sheep of the family centers the attention of the group on him, impairs its economic efficiency; in effect dominates the household. The enduring character of a society is determined not by its cultured group, but by its "submerged tenth"—or five-tenths.

"Do you believe in the wisdom of the plain people?" the candidate was asked. "Certainly," he replied, "but being conscious of the fact that the plain people sometimes err in their judgment, I'm trying to give them the benefit of my experience in political matters, so they won't make the mistake of electing some unfit person to office instead of me."

"Well, and isn't that plain enough?" "Hardly, sir. I don't think, sir, that you know Mr. Mahlstick. I don't know whether to see his paints and brushes or only a corkscREW."—Stray Stories.

I feel very grateful that I found Dodds Kidney Pills and you may publish this letter if you wish. I am serving my third term as Probate Judge of Gray Co.

As He Understood It. A maiden lady, Miss Cocker by name, and her niece, who bears the same cognomen, went one evening to a reception at the house of a friend. "What name, please?" inquired the footman. "Miss Cocker," answered the elder lady. "Miss Cocker, too," joined the niece, hurriedly. Uncovering Buried City. Under the direction of the Italian minister of public instruction, the ancient city of Veii, near Rome, and the most famous of all buried cities, is to be excavated on a large scale. On various previous occasions the site has been tapped, the working being very limited, but sufficient to arouse curiosity concerning the mysteries of the Etruscans. Veii has been in the minds of people who have known about it for many generations, although doubt as to its existence has been expressed by various authors, but Dionysius, in speaking of the third war of Romulus against it, says that it was the most powerful of the twelve cities of the Etruscan league.

Preacher's Mixup. The following is said to have been a preacher's peroration: "We pursue the shadow; the bubble bursts; it leaves the ashes in our hands. A London preacher a short time ago invited 'young men and women of all ages' to attend his meeting, which reminds one of the memorable exordium of the nervous curate: "Young ladies, or perhaps I should say young women, for I wish to embrace you all." Nervousness is, indeed, accountable for some curious mistakes and laughable incidents. The preacher must have been nervous who gave out this text: "Heaviness may endure for joy, but night cometh in the morning."

What Worried the Boy. Douglas Mallach, author and woodsman, tells this story of his little son Donald. The two were watching a moving picture melodrama and the hero had suffered severely in an explosion. One of the workmen dropped his shovel and lent a hand to carry the injured man to a place of safety. Donald appeared much troubled. His father asked the reason. "Oh, papa, they went away and forgot all about the shovel!"

Undesirable. "Are they desirable tenants?" "Dear me, no. They're nice people, but they've got four children."—Detroit Free Press.

Chinese Language Leads. It was recently stated by Professor Kirchoff that Chinese is the most popular language in the world. It is spoken by four hundred million persons. Hindoostani is spoken by upward of one hundred million; Russian by more than seventy million; German by fifty-eight million; Spanish by forty-five million; and French by only forty million.

Reference Room for Women. The Chicago public library has a study for women, which is intended for the accommodation of woman patrons of the library engaged in research, seeking assistance in the preparation of special subjects, and it is especially intended for the use of women voters. A special reference room for women has been opened in the main library. There are 250 volumes on political subjects.

Human Skin as a Polisher. I had always supposed that the chamois possessed the skin best adapted for polishing purposes, but recently in a leading jeweler's shop I learned otherwise. Nothing, it seems, can impart such a luster to plate as the human skin, and all the best articles are polished, quite literally, by hand-rubbed gently by the lower arch of the hand at the base of the thumb. "We keep a girl to do nothing else," said my informant, and I reflected that I had discovered a new industry and a new definition of "palm oil."—London Chronicle.

Hint for the Newly-Weds. How many mothers instruct their daughters that they must try to love their husband's relatives just as well as they love their own? Very few—and many will assert that no such instruction should be given; but some of us think that it ought. It is a safe thing to do—for the chances are 10,000 to one that no girl could ever go so far as that, try as faithfully as she might. But she can surely learn to love her husband's family, and she will add immensely to his comfort by so doing. Their "ways" are doubtless very different from hers. Sometimes they receive her with coldness and suspicion; but by practice and kindness and loving attentions she can usually win them. It is her mother's part to teach her this patience and kindness before she is married. The art of being a good daughter-in-law is a noble one, and like all other arts it can, to a considerable extent, be taught.—Leslie's Weekly.

What Doctor Can Beat This? In less than three months a physician of Portland, Me., has treated professionally five patients representing five successive generations of the same family, beginning with a centenarian and following in the direct line of descent down to her great-grandson. He first attended the old lady, who was ninety-nine years old, for senile gangrene resulting in her death. During her illness he was called on to prescribe for her daughter, aged seventy-five. Next this daughter's son, a florist, aged fifty, fell ill and required attention. Following him, a son, a clerk of twenty-seven, found himself in need of medical aid. And lastly to the clerk's wife was born a male child, whom the doctor was called upon to assist into the world, as he had been summoned to ease the great-grandmother's exit from it barely three months before.

Why Cats on Vessels. People often wonder why seafaring men are so fond of taking cats with them on a voyage. This is explained by two circumstances. Marine insurance does not cover damage done to cargo by the depredations of rats; but if the owner of the damaged goods can prove that ship was sent to sea unfurnished with a cat, he can recover damages from the shipmaster. Again, a ship found at sea with no living creature on board is considered a derelict, and is forfeited to the admiralty, the finders, or the king. It has often happened that, after a ship has been abandoned, some domestic animal—a dog, or bird, or, most frequently, a cat—has saved the vessel from being considered as a derelict.

Our Latin American Trade. Exports from the United States to Latin-American countries have increased from $108,000,000 in 1900 to $321,000,000 in 1913, a gain of 197 per cent. Imports from them increased 171 per cent. In the same period. Exports to other parts of the world increased 67 per cent. The department of commerce in a statement says: "The most rapid gains in the exports during this period occurred in the trade with Argentina and Brazil. The value of merchandise exported to Argentina in 1900 was $11,500,000, and in 1913 over $52,750,000; to Brazil, in 1900, $1,500,000, and in 1913, $42,556,000. Cuba showed a marked gain."

Silenced. A New York politician, stump speaking in a neighboring city, was several times interrupted by a man who kept shouting, "Liar! Liar!" Finally the politician said: "If the gentleman at the back of the hall who is so anxious that the audience should know his name will write it on a slip of paper and hand it to the chairman instead of bawling it at the top of his voice he will save himself a lot of trouble." But the interrupter kept his peace and his identity.
