OF INTEREST TO FARMERS OUTLINES A WAY TO CONTROL DANDELIONS

People whose lawns are spotted with bright yellow dandelions, beautiful but annoying, might well take other methods than their control than the mere use of a lawn mower or the digging up of their roots. The plant is perennial and perpetuates itself by means of a long, narrow tap root, and hence ordinary methods do but little good.

Iron sulphate spray will do the trick, especially where the plants are thickly spread. The solution recommended by A. L. Stone state seed inspector, College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin, consists of dissolving two pounds of iron sulphate in one gallon of water. The drug comes in granular form and dissolves easily. One gallon will be sufficient to cover 800 square feet of a lawn. A sprinkling can will do to apply the solution to small lawns, but on affected areas of any size a hand pump fitted with a fine spray nozzle is best. The finer the spray the better in this case, and the more completely the plants are soaked the surer will be the result.

"Spray after the dew is off in the forenoon when fair weather is promised for the next 48 hours," advises Mr. Stone. This will give the poison time to get in its work. Never apply the solution on freshly mowed lawns. Do not sprinkle nor mow the lawn for three days after sprinkling. It may be necessary to use the iron sulphate treatment three or more times during the season if the dandelions are thick and have been allowed to go to seed. A tablespoonful of the compound placed on the crown of scattering plants will complete the work of destruction.

NEGLECT CAUSE OF BALKY GAS ENGINES

While many a farmer who owns a gas engine knows that it not only enables him to enjoy the modern conveniences of an electrically lighted home and an adequate and convenient water supply, and aid him in solving the hired help problem, he also appreciates that it can be the most obstinate piece of machinery on the farm if it is not given the proper attention.

The Agricultural Engineering Department of the University of Wisconsin offers the following suggestions upon gasoline troubles:

"Popping" in the carburetor may be due to too weak mixture or to a sticking inlet valve.

Explosions in the muffler are always due to "misses." This may be caused by the governor not operating, by the vibrator sticking, by loose connections in any part of the wiring system, by dirt or water in the gasoline, by a sticking valve, by water in the oil, or by dirt on the timer.

Pounding is caused by pre-ignition, a loose cylinder, bearing or fly-wheel.

Black smoke at the exhaust shows that the mixture is too rich while a blue smoke indicates an excess of lubricating oil.

Carburetor troubles may be caused by a water-logged float, a sticking float valve, an improperly operating air valve, ice in the mixture passage, or an air lock which prevents the fuel from floating into the carburetor after it has been emptied.

LAND PLASTER NOT CAUSE OF SOIL ACID

The fear that the application of land plaster makes soils acid, is unfounded. At least it is doubtful if the small amount generally applied as an agricultural fertilizer has any serious and immediate influence upon the acidity of the soil.

This is the belief of E. R. Hart of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin, who from time to time has carried on numerous experiments to determine the influence of applying land plaster, rock phosphate and other fertilizers to fields upon which various crop rotations were followed.

The theory that land plaster applied to soil would make it acid, is based on the assumption that the plants remove from the soil more calcium than sulphur, thereby leaving behind a greater proportion of the acid part of the land plaster. On the contrary, it has been shown that the common cereals, wheat, oats, corn, barley and such other plants as the turnip, rutabaga, cabbage and onion, make positively greater demands for sulphur than for calcium and applications of land plaster for such crops will tend to make the soils alkaline rather than acid. Such plants as the meadow grasses, clover, alfalfa, sugar beets and tobacco use more calcium than sulphur and in their case the application of land plaster would have a tendency toward developing acid soil. Potatoes use about equal amounts of calcium and sulphur and land plaster could not possibly influence soil reaction in this case.

AUTOS IN WISCONSIN

Over forty millions dollars are invested in automobiles alone in the state of Wisconsin, and there is approximately one motor vehicle for every twelve families, according to figures filed in the secretary of state's office. The number of automobiles that have been licensed since January 1 is 39,800, and the number of motor-cycles 3,983. Estimating the average value of each car at $1,200, one can see that $47,000,000 is not high for the total number of automobiles in the state when it is considered that the number of licenses will probably reach 40,000 before January 1, 1915.

AUTOS COLLIDE ON HIGHWAY

Schleisingerville Doctor Has Narrow Escape From Serious Injury

In attempting to pass each other on a narrow highway near St. Lawrence one night last week, two automobiles collided with the result that one of the machines was overturned and badly damaged. Dr. Ankenbrandt, of Schleisingerville, was returning from a professional call and on a narrow stretch of road met a car driven by Charles Storck. In passing, the fenders of the two machines became caught and the doctor's car thrown into the ditch. Luckily in falling Dr. Ankenbrandt managed to get clear from the auto so that he escaped injury, save a few slight bruises. Both machines were traveling along at a slow rate of speed, and it is due to this fact that neither was badly damaged, while that of Mr. Storck was only slightly scratched.—Hartford Times.

He says she's all right, and improves with age. Call again Pat, our latch string is always out to your kind.

—The Honorable County Board came up from West Bend last Wednesday on the 3:36 train and after visiting some of the lead-ers were given a hearty reception. The pictures taken with them at the Eagle hotel and left on the 5:45 train feeling thoroughly convinced that "the world do move" and that Kewaskum has a gait swift enough for any village on the globe.

—Barney Demarest and John Kaas returned from their northern hunting trip in Wood and Marathon counties, last Tuesday, and report having secured three deer and two bucks, one of which weighed 350 and the other 240 pounds. They brought a portion of the horns and hides of three of the largest ever seen. They report that there are lots of deer where they were, but that it is hard to get at them owing to weeds that grow high through fire-swept sections. During their two weeks absence, they camped with loggers and otherwise enjoyed life in the woods.

Shortly after 3 o'clock last Monday afternoon, while school was in session, lightning entered the steeple of the school house at New Fane doing only slight damage.

The crash was very loud and created a small panic amongst the children as they realized the building was struck. One of the children who was sitting near an open window as soon as the crash came jumped through this opening. No one, however, was injured. The school is in charge of Miss Lillian Krahn, as teacher.

The building is insured in the Kewaskum Mutual Fire Insurance Company. N. J. Mertes and John Brunner were at New Fane on Tuesday and made a very satisfactory adjustment.

BARTON HAS A BIG FIRE FOUND FOR THE PLAINTIFF

Roller Mills of W. F. Gadow Partly Destroyed by Fierce Blaze

Shortly before two o'clock last Sunday morning, an alarm of fire was sounded in our neighboring village of Barton, and upon investigation it was found that the Barton Roller Mill was on fire. The Barton fire ladders promptly responded, but on account of not being able to start their engine the flames gained on them quite rapidly. They then sent to West Bend for aid and that city promptly responded with an engine and hook and ladder truck. The fire had started in the rear lower part of the mill, eating its way up through the second and third stories. Luckily the Barton engine in the nick of time, was made to do its duty, and the streams of both engines were playing on the flames. It was a desperate fight, for a mill fire is a vicious fire. About an hour after the discovery the flames burst out of the roof, and now the blaze could be seen at a distance of miles. But the firemen kept on fighting the fierce element with truly heroic exertions, and about four o'clock the fire was under control.

The combined efforts of both fire departments prevented the impending total loss of the mill. Most of the machinery stayed in its place, but some fell through the holes burst in the floors. The worst ravage was done in the northwestern part of the building, especially in the upper stories. The roof is half burned and charred, the windows are black holes with smoke stained arches, and the inside is burned and charred and wet. A large quantity of flour about four carloads ready for shipment, was spoiled by water and smoke. The roller mills, owned by W. F. Gadow, constitute the chief industry of Barton. Mr. Gadow made extensive improvements on the plant since he bought it a number of years ago, and he did a very good business.

The loss on the building provided the walls have not suffered from the fire, and on the machinery, is between $12,000 and $14,000, on the grain and flour about $4,000. The insurance amounts to $16,000. As soon as the loss is adjusted the mill will be rebuilt. It will be enlarged and another story added to the present three stories.

JURY DECIDES ON RIGHTS TO $750 IN CIRCUIT COURT AT FOND DU LAC

A jury which has been sitting in the case of Emelie Enderle vs. Leo Glander et al, brought in a verdict late on Wednesday evening finding in favor of the plaintiff.

The jury held that $750 left the defendants by Anna Enderle was intended to pay off a judgement given the plaintiff.

An action in which Emelie Enderle was seeking to recover a loan of $750 alleged to be due her from Leo Glander and Albert Glander.

The plaintiff alleged that Leo and Albert Glander refused to pay over to her $750 which had been given them by Anna Enderle for the plaintiff's use. The defendants through their attorneys, Duffy, McCroly & Duffy, claimed that they knew nothing about the loan of $750 but that this amount was given them as part payment on their farm in the town of Auburn, which Leo Glander claims to have sold the plaintiff. The plaintiff was represented by Sawyer & Sawyer of Hartford. The decision in this case is extremely important, according to the attorneys, because of a second suit which will be heard by the court in which the children of Anna Glander are suing for the possession of the farm in Auburn.

HE COMES UP SMILING

By Charles Sherman
Illustrated by Ray Walters

SYNOPSIS.

The Watermelon and James, two tramps, bantering each other regarding their personal appearance, decide to clean up, acquire new clothes and let their companions, Mike, be the judge as to which is the better looking. Watermelon goes to a barber shop, wins the contents of the cash register from the barber by a clever trick and gets a shave. He discovers a young man bathing in a lake and steals his clothes. While sitting in an automobile he discovered standing empty by the roadside, George Crossman and his daughter, Henrietta, drive up in a car. Assuming that his car is disabled, the general offers assistance. Watermelon hands him a card bearing the name William Hargrave Batchelor. The general recognizes the name as that of a young man who broke the cotton corner in Wall street a few days before. He invites him to dine with them. Watermelon is introduced to Bartlett, a big Wall street operator, and his daughter, Billy, with whom he proceeds to fall in love. Bartlett, who has been stung by Batchelor's operations, plans to keep the supposed broker with him for a week while he works a coup in the market. He wires instructions to his broker. While chatting with Billy, the telegraph boy tells Bartlett that the Watermelon and the general in a week's auto trip. Watermelon slips away and tells his hobo companions of his adventure.

"Yes, there was quite a bit. He's fresh at the game and carries a roll to show off with," returned the Watermelon, pulling a roll of bills from his pocket. Mike edged a bit nearer. "See here, I want you fellows to do something for me."

"For you," said Mike, "I would give me immortal soul."

"I want something more than that, Mike," said the Watermelon.

"Me plug of baccy?" asked Mike with feeling.

The Watermelon shook his head as he slowly pulled a greenback from the bunch he held. "I want you to go to that lake, get my clothes out of the log and give 'em to the poor devil."

"Don't be a fool," advised James. "He's all right. Nothing will happen to him."

"I know, but I keep thinking of him. He can afford to lose what he is going to lose, but all the same, he's cold and tired."

"Aw, don't go and do that," pleaded Mike. "He'll have you arrested—"

"I ain't going to be around here; besides, no one would think of looking for me with the swell bunch I'm going with."

"Maybe not," admitted James gravely, "but there's always the danger that some cop will have brains. And he's bound to get away tonight, all right, and have the bulls on you the minute he does. You had better take all the time you can to get away and don't try to shorten it none."

The Watermelon slowly unbound another bill and nodded. "I know, but I'm sorry for him. A few hours won't make much difference. He hasn't the slightest idea who swiped his clothes. He'll think some tramp did and that the feller is getting out of the country by croissants and as fast as he can. Don't you see? No one will look for me with the general and Bartlett. I'm going to have a week of fun—"

"Maybe," said James gloomily.

"Bad for the heart," said Mike.

"We ain't ladies," added James with delicacy. "You might come out from them bushes."

"Some—some one stole my—my—my clothes," stammered the young man, stepping carefully forth. "Been here—here since this—this morning."

He looked sharply at the shabby pair before him, with quick distrust in his bloodshot eyes and added coldly: "Some—some tramp."

"Did you see him?" asked James.

"No—no—no. But who else could have stolen them?"

"I," said Mike, drawing himself up to his five feet five and throwing back his pudgy shoulders, "I am a tramp. I trust, sir, you meant no insult to me profession."

The stranger waved the question aside. "Get me some clothes and I'll give you some money."

"What money?" asked James.

"I'll send you some. I am rich. My car is in the road. Maybe you saw it. I was coming through the woods to the hotel to get a tow up, for I was out of gasoline, when I saw the lake. It was early and I thought I would take a swim. Maybe you saw my car by the side of the road?"

"I didn't see no car," said Mike.

"Did you come by the road?"

"Yes, a narrow wood road."

"Yes, yes, that's where I left it. The damned thief has probably gone off with my car, too."

"Then he couldn't be a tramp," said

James judiciously. "Tramps don't know nothing about motor-cars."

"I saw a big red car," said Mike, "down the road a bit, over the other side of the village, going south. But maybe your car wasn't red."

"Yes, yes, it was," cried the stranger. "What was the make? Could you tell?"

"A Thomas car—"

"Ah, my car. Get me something to put on and I'll make it worth your while. I'm William Hargrave Batchelor. Maybe you have read about me in yesterday's papers?"

And the poor, shivering, naked wretch drew himself up proudly and smiled with much complacency.

"I," said Mike, tapping himself on his breast, "am George V., of England."

"No, no," protested the stranger. "I'm not fooling. Get me some clothes and come with me to the nearest telegraph office and I'll show you."

"How much," asked Mike, "will you give me?"

"Us," corrected James.

"How much do you want?"

"How much will you give?"

"Ten dollars."

"For a suit of clothes?" Mike's fat red face depicted his horror.

"Apiece," cried the stranger.

"Apiece," asked James.

"Apiece," declared the unhappy youth.

"Apiece, James," said Mike, turning inquiringly to his companion.

"Make it thirty," said James, "and we may be able to help you."

"All right, thirty apiece. Get me the clothes."

"You might write us each a check," suggested James, and drew forth the pen and check-book.

"For innocence," groaned Mike.

"Command me to me loving comrade, James."

The stranger's eyes glittered as he recognized his book and pen. He glanced from one ragged specimen before him to the other, from James' crafty face to Mike's soft visage, but he said nothing, merely took the pen and book.

"Your names?" he asked, opening the book and resting it against a tree for support.

"Better put 't' to bearer," said James.

"Simplicity is always the best."

The stranger wrote the checks, signed them and turned to the two watching him. "Bring me the suit," he said quietly, "and these are yours."

Mike shuffled off into the trees and James and the stranger waited in silence for his return. He came back presently and threw the suit at the stranger's feet.

"You'll notice," said he, "that this nobby spring suit in our latest style is cheap at the price. Fancy a thing like that for only sixty dollars?"

"I see," said the stranger.

"Payable in advance," said James.

The stranger handed them each a check and thoughtfully drew on the shabby clothes of the Watermelon. It had not been long since he had worn rags of a necessity, and he hitched them up with the skill bred of familiarity. He thrust the pen and book into a pocket he had first made sure was holeless. Then he turned to the two and his eyes gleamed.

"How much for the car?" he asked.

Mike raised his hands to heaven.

"The car?" James, does he think we stole his car?"

"A stock broker," said James, "would suspect his own mother."

"If you want your car," said Mike, "go to the hotel."

"Bah," I was wearing yesterday? He quick and tell me your price."

"I have no price," said Mike proudly, not sure where the car was.

They started through the woods to the village, the stranger leading and Mike and James following. At the edge of the village, they paused instinctively and without a word.

"Tell me where the car is and who your accomplice is," said the stranger in the short sharp tones of one born to command, "and you two can go free. If you don't tell, I'll do my best to have you arrested and sent up for grand larceny. Understand?"

"Oh, yes," said Mike, "I understand. When I was young I learned English, foolishly, as I haven't used it since."

"We don't know where your damn car is," declared James. "And we didn't steal your blooming outfit. What do you take us for, anyway?"

"Very well, then," snapped the stranger. "I see that you won't tell. Remember, I gave you your chance."

He turned and hurried down the village street. The two watched him as he stopped a pedestrian and apparently asked to be directed to the justice of the peace, then they slipped away in the woods and quietly, simultaneously, turned north, falling into a gentle slope that took them far with the minimum of effort.

"I hope the kid ain't pinched," said James, after a while.

Mike sighed and shook his head.

"Grand larceny," he murmured. "That's gratitude for you."

CHAPTER IX.

On the Road.

The general never went anywhere without a well-stocked library, guide-books, instruction books, maps. All fields almost every Saturday, and every day in the school vacations except Sundays, though solemnly warned that I must play at home in the garden and back yard, lest I should learn to think bad thoughts and say bad words. All in vain. In spite of the sure sure punishments that followed like shadows, the natural inherited wildness in our blood ran true on its glorious course as invincible and unstoppable as the stars.

Teaspoon for Travelers.

Convenient for the feminine traveler who uses only a special brand of tea is a spoon with a cover that is perforated similarly to a tea ball. This spoon works on the principle of a pair of scissors, being governed by a spring near the root of the handle, which sends the base of the contrivance in one direction and the lid in the other. By soaking this spoon—of solid or plated silver—in a cupful of hot water which railway porters are always able to provide, the traveler who is a bit "fussy" about the quality of the cheering beverage may have it precisely to her liking.

On the Way to a Wedding He Met a Deer, and Stopped to Kill the Animal.

The Rev. H. H. Thomas, pastor of the Baptist church at Greenwood and Womley, started to Greenwood to officiate at a wedding, and says the Arkansas Gazette, after a six mile drive from Mount Ida he saw a large deer chased by a pack of hounds.

The preacher forgot about the wedding and followed the deer. He approached the large buck, which came to him, and they "locked horns." The deer lost his footing, and so did the minister, and they went tumbling down the hillside together.

"I came up on top," said the preacher, "and in some way I got my knife open and cut the deer's throat, and while holding to the deer, shaggy horns the deer gave a big leap with me and jumped into the water, carrying me with him. There he died in a few minutes and I pulled him out, got a wagon and hauled the deer into Mount Ida."

Playing it Safe.

An overweight business man booted headfirst into a luncheon room the other day and pounded on the counter.

"Ham-neg sandwich, quick!" he ordered.

There was a wait of five minutes and the man at the counter laid a roast beef sandwich in front of him.

"I didn't order this!" yelled the customer. "Bring me a ham-neg sandwich!"

Another wait, and the counter man presented the exasperated customer with a cup of cocoa.

The overweight business man pulled his derby down over his ears and headed for the door.

"Where are you going?" demanded the counter man.

"To a restaurant where the cook doesn't gamble with the food!" snapped the overweight citizen, as he disappeared.

How the Redbird Became the Daughter of the Sun

By JOHN M. OSKISON

Color This Picture to Suit Yourself.

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Long time ago, in the days when the clouds hung over the sky from the time the people got up until they went to bed, and the rain came pattering down on the roofs hour after hour, the old man would gather the little boys who wanted to go out in the wet woods to play, and tell them that they must wait until the sun had stopped crying over the death of her daughter.

And while the little boys listened, the old man would tell them about how the wise medicine men got word from the Yunwi Tsunedi (the little people of the woods) to send the rattlesnake to kill the sun. In those days the sun shone so hot every day that many people were made sick by the heat.

The old man would tell about how the rattlesnake went up to the house of the daughter of the sun, in the middle of the sky, and made a mistake. It was the daughter of the sun he killed instead of the sun herself!

"So," the old man would say, "the sun began to weep as soon as she found out that her daughter had been killed, staying up in her daughter's house so long that the people grew cold and afraid because it was dark all the time."

"Then came the chief of the Little People and told the wise medicine men that they would have to send messengers to Tsunginal (the Ghost Country) in Ushunhiyi (the Darkening Land in the West) to bring back the daughter of the sun."

"So the wise medicine men chose seven hunters to go to the Ghost Country, and they set out carrying a box to bring the daughter of the sun back in. When they got to that country, they found all the ghosts at a big dance, just as the chief of the Yunwi Tsunedi said they would."

"And just as they had been told to do, they stood close by the circle of dancers, and whenever the daughter of the sun came round in the dance, each one of the seven messengers struck her with a stick which they carried. And when the seventh man had struck her, he stepped out of the circle of dancers and fell down as if dead."

"Then the seven messengers took her up, as they had been told to do, and put her in the box they had brought. And they started eastward toward the country from which they had come."

"In a little while, the daughter of the sun came back to life and begged the man to let her out of the box. But they remembered what the chief of the Little People had told the wise medicine men, and they would not let her out."

"After they had gone a long way, the girl in the box said that she was hungry and begged the seven men to let her out to eat; but they refused and went on."

"When they were near home, the daughter of the sun begged the man who carried her to lift the lid of the box just a little, for she said she was smothering. And so pitifully did she beg that the men decided that it would do no harm to lift the lid just a crack."

"And just as they raised up the lid of the box a tiny bit to let in some air to the daughter of the sun, something flew swiftly past them into the bushes and they heard a redbird cry, 'Kwih! Kwih!' from the limb of a tall tree. Then they shut down the lid of the box and went on to where the wise medicine men were waiting for them."

"When the seven messengers got to the council house and opened the box they found that it was empty. It was the daughter of the sun who had flown out of the box when they lifted the lid—she had taken the shape of the redbird; and so we know today that the redbird is the daughter of the sun."

And when the boys would ask what made the sun stop crying for her daughter, the old man would only say: "Oh, that is another story. If it is raining tomorrow I will tell it to you."

Origin of the Word Velocipede.

Frank H. Vizetelly tells "The Story of the Wheel" in the April St. Nicholas. After describing the introduction of the celerifere and the dandy-horse, Mr. Vizetelly says:

"By this time the principle of balancing the wheel was understood, and the task of developing the crude vehicle of M. de Sivrac was begun. It was not long, however, before this machine was replaced by another, or was, perhaps, only renamed. During the French revolution a new form was introduced under the name of velocifere; and its riders became known as velocipedes. In the year 1808 one of these vehicles, shown at the Luxembourg gardens in Paris, was much used. Eight years later another wheel of similar form came into France, and gained popular favor at the Gardens of the Tivoli; this was the Draisine, named from its inventor."

Going to School.

Before the Boer war took place there were no country schools in the Transvaal or the Orange Free State, and very few in the towns. Now they have been established everywhere, but the trouble is to get scholars. The Boer father holds that if his boy can ride a horse and shoot a rifle he has all the education he needs, and many of them have been sent to jail for encouraging their sons to keep away from schoolhouses. A Boer mother holds that when her daughter can make bread she is as good as any young lady in the world.

A Musical Thief.

At Birmingham, England, where tens of thousands of jewshaps are made every year, a boy has been arrested for stealing 2,000 in one haul. As he could play on only one at a time, it puzzles the police to know why he should take so many at once. Perhaps he wanted some to lay away for his old age, or maybe he was going to invent a way to work them with his toes.

Not Room Enough Left.

It was a wet day, and the car was already full, when a stout market woman got in. A grammar-school boy rose and offered his seat, as grammar-school boys always do. "Nay," said the market woman, "th'd better sit thee down again. Ah, canna see of thee that's gotten oop fra'!"—Manchester Guardian.

After service one of the men present was heard to remark: "I suppose it will be all right to pay for your 'fowl' supper with 'tainted' money?"

"Why, certainly," was the reply. "The guest of honor is to be 'withy lucra,' so you see we're not a bit particular."

CAUSE AND EFFECT

Indigestion and the attendant discomforts of mind and body are certain to follow continued use of improper food.

Those who are still young and robust are likely to overlook the fact that, as dropping water will wear a stone away at last, so will the use of heavy, greasy, rich food, finally cause loss of appetite and indigestion.

Fortunately many are thoughtful enough to study themselves and note the principle of cause and effect in their daily food. A N. Y. young woman writes her experience thus:

"Some time ago I had a lot of trouble from indigestion, caused by too rich food. I got so I was unable to digest scarcely anything, and medicines seemed useless.

EARLY HEARD CALL OF WILD

John Muir, Great Naturalist, Showed His Bent in the Earliest Years of His Long Life.

When I was a boy in Scotland I was fond of everything that was wild, and all my life I've been growing fonder and fonder of wild places and wild creatures, wrote John Muir in the Atlantic. Fortunately around my native town of Dunbar, by the stormy North sea, there was no lack of wild life, and my life will take you a trip of a walk to find the place. I put the clothes in an empty log near a pile of rocks at the foot of three tall pines standing together about ten yards from the lake. You can't help but find it. Give him the clothes and this check-book and fountain pen. I can't use them and you two won't get gay with them. Cause Mike's a coward, and James has too much sense."

"You're a damn fool," said James shortly.

"He's all right," argued Mike, meaning the man in the forest shades. "What can hurt him?"

"I know, but he's mighty uncomfortable. Can't sit down, maybe, and there may be flies and mosquitoes—"

"That's all right," returned the Watermelon. "Here's a ten-spot for each of you, and mind you do what I say."

"For you," said Mike, "I'd give me heart's blood."

"Where do we find this poud?" asked James.

"Come with me and I'll take you to the road that leads by it. You give me time to get to the hotel, though, before you give him his clothes."

"Trust me," said Mike, lovingly concealing the greenback in the dark dirty recesses of his rags.

They parted in the road where the Watermelon had come upon the big red touring car. Mike and James watched him until he disappeared over the top of the hill, then climbed the wall and made their way through the woods to the little mountain lake.

"We won't get the clothes," said James, "until we have had a talk with the guy and tried to get him into a reasonable frame of mind. It's just likely that he may be somewhat put out."

There was no one in sight as they made their way cautiously to the edge of the lake. The trees grew nearly down to the narrow, pebbly beach and were reflected in the quiet depths of the water. The little brook, tumbling over its miniature waterfall, with a ripple and splash was the only sound that broke the all-pervading silence. Nothing stirred in the underbrush, neither man nor beast, and James and Mike were about to slip away as quietly as they came when a stick snapped behind them sharply and Mike wheeled.

A man was peering at them eagerly over the tops of a few bushes. His face was white and his teeth chattering. His arms, dimly discerned through the branches, were wrapped around his shivering form with fervor and he was standing gingerly on first one foot and then the other.

"Hello," said Mike facetiously. "Going in?" and he nodded casually backward to the lake.

"Been in," chattered the miserable wretch, trying to control his teeth so that he could say more.

"Oughtn't to stay in too long," advised James solicitously. "Your lips look blue."

"We ain't ladies," added James with delicacy. "You might come out from them bushes."

"Some—some one stole my—my—my clothes," stammered the young man, stepping carefully forth. "Been here—here since this—this morning."

He looked sharply at the shabby pair before him, with quick distrust in his bloodshot eyes and added coldly: "Some—some tramp."

"Did you see him?" asked James.

"No—no—no. But who else could have stolen them?"

"I," said Mike, drawing himself up to his five feet five and throwing back his pudgy shoulders, "I am a tramp.

NOTES from MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Don't neglect the hens.

Chickens relish green feed.

Never hurry a team when heavily loaded.

Be most careful to give water often to the work teams.

It is the height of cruelty to work a horse with a sore breast.

Give the little pigs extra feed by themselves as soon as possible.

Know the soil and the crops to fit the soil. Low yields soon bring ruin.

Meal should be mixed dry and crumbly, since it causes illness when fed wet.

Silage, like other succulent feeds, has a beneficial effect upon the digestive organs.

Watch the sows and feed them so they will be able to produce all the milk possible.

Silage is the cheapest and best form in which a succulent feed can be provided for winter use.

Farm ponds should not be built in the winter or spring. They should be made in the summer or fall.

Poor policy to feed chicks after they are big enough for market. Every day counts a bit off your profits.

Prepare to market this season's output from the dairy in a more attractive manner than ever before.

To a very considerable extent success or failure with swine growing centers in the first six weeks of the pig's life.

Fowls need grain food, vegetable food, meat food and grit, and the daily ration should comprise some of each.

When taking chicks from nest or incubator do not put them on ground that has been ranged by other chicks that season.

The hen that lays soft-shelled eggs is not to blame. She needs more shell-making material, that is all, and you must supply it.

Tobacco stems spread on the lawn and flower garden is an insect destroyer and it proves an excellent mulch when worked into the soil.

Sheep manure is one of the best farm manures. It contains a large percentage of nitrogen and a portion of phosphoric acid and potash.

Because hogs are thin and have large frames it does not always follow that they will feed well. Their previous treatment is an important factor.

Do not try to dry the calf by rubbing it with hay or straw. Allow the cow to dry it with her rough, warm tongue. She likes to do it, and it is nature's way.

Never feed more than hogs will eat up freely. Many farmers do not practise this, but keep a quantity of uneaten food lying about the lot at all times.

The maintenance of fertility on sandy soils requires a supply of the mineral elements, phosphorus and potassium and of organic matter, including nitrogen.

Keep a good, deep, dry bed under the horse while he is in the stable, day or night, on Sundays especially. The more he lies down the longer his legs and feet will last.

The efforts to maintain worthless dogs and thoroughbred sheep in the same township invariably end in the elimination of the sheep, and then nobody wants the dogs.

If a cow is not paying a profit, why keep it? You wouldn't work for nothing for any one else, so why work for a worthless cow? Test the cows and find which are the star boarders.

Modern farming, like modern manufacturing, is on a highly competitive basis. We must keep up with the times to make a profit, and the man who makes the greatest profit is the man ahead of the times.

It reduces the labor greatly and improves the results if each setting hen has a nest and little runway to herself, where she can get off and exercise and eat and drink whenever she feels like it and go back on the nest of her own accord, without interference from other hens.

Grain is a very important crop to sustain and fatten animals. Corn is the staple in the humid belt, kafir, milo and feterita in the arid and semi-arid belt. Plant liberal acreage in grain.

The manure spreader is almost indispensable on the farm. By taking manure from the barn as fast as it accumulates and spreading on the land at once, nearly all of the fertility is saved, and by the use of the spreader will go farther and prevent waste.

Truck crops, such as potatoes, beans, etc., use large amounts of potassium, and where they are grown on land not having a good supply of organic matter or where manure from nearby towns is not available, the use of potash fertilizers is important.

Whitewash the stables.

Try some pie melons for the stock.

The Tanworth is a leading bacon breed.

Corn silage is a more efficient feed than corn fodder.

No horse will bring his full value in a sale if he is in poor condition.

Keep the hogs in good condition—a stitch in time often saves nine.

It is seldom that both horses in a pair require just the same amount of feed.

Crowded houses are sure to become damp, and hens will not lay when crowded.

Remove the harrow teeth and have them sharpened before the time comes for their use.

Mulch cucumbers with any kind of old hay or straw. They stand dry weather better.

If there is a runt pig, give it extra feed and care. If it does not respond, kill and bury it.

Watering the cows once a day with a hurried sip won't do. They need all they can get.

Increase the grain ration of the ewe gradually as the lamb becomes able to take more milk.

If you can't set your hens on the ground, put a square of sod in the nest and moisten it occasionally.

It is said that a good remedy for chickens that eat eggs is to feed them wheat bran soaked in vinegar.

As soon as possible teach the lamb to eat extra grain in a side pen to push his growth to the limit.

It is not generally known how much fertilizer a crop of apples, pears, or grapes will remove from the soil.

You cannot expect a cow to give large quantities of milk unless she has plenty of feed and quantities of water.

To keep potatoes from running out by continued planting of small ones, plant a patch for seed outside of the main crop.

When the succulent silage runs out, something must be provided to take its place, or there will be a falling off in production.

The heifer that is about to calve for the first time needs special care and attention if she is to develop into the best sort of a cow.

Never breed to an unsound horse. Enough colts meet with accidents and mishaps that blemish them without breeding unsoundness.

There are too few good colts raised on the farms. This should not be. Don't leave this important industry to the horse breeders alone.

When confined in stables which at best is an unnatural condition for colts they should not be compelled to stand upon a hard floor of any kind.

Fowls should be as humanely treated as possible and should never be unnecessarily frightened. Contentment materially aids egg production.

Raise watermelons and muskmelons in the sweet potato patch, and the neighbor's boys will not molest them because they will not look there.

Before you rid the dairy herd of the "robber cow" make sure that she is having a fair show by being supplied with the proper rations, care and shelter.

The hen that is off the roost first in the morning and the rooster that crows often and loudly are of the kind that should be used for breeding stock.

Better marketing means more profit for those who produce, cheaper profits for those who must buy and more money in the country for all lines of legitimate business.

If the old hen does the incubating on your farm, don't be in a hurry to oust her off the nest when the eggs are hatching. Give her a chance to finish up her job in good shape.

While coarse manure hauled out and spread in the spring may not greatly benefit the crop of that year it is better hauled out at any time than left to leach and burn in the barnyard.

High tempered, sensitive horses are more easily spoiled by too much talking than slow and quiet horses, but the too frequent use of the tongue is to be omitted when handling either kind.

Don't forget that the setting hen must be kept free from lice by frequently filling her plumage full of lice-killing powder or she will not set well and, therefore, will not produce a good hatch.

Fertility may be restored to worn-out land by saving all animal manures and putting them onto the land; by making use of all crop residues, that is, putting back into the soil everything not used for food; by turning under green manuring and catch crops.

The dairy cow has been specially bred for centuries for milk production. As a consequence of her high state of perfection as a milk-producing animal she is predisposed to numerous diseases, the chief one being mastitis, or inflammation of the udder.

Truck crops, such as potatoes, beans, etc., use large amounts of potassium, and where they are grown on land not having a good supply of organic matter or where manure from nearby towns is not available, the use of potash fertilizers is important.

Graduate's Gown of Embroidered Voile

WHEREWITHAL she shall be clothed, is the question uppermost in the mind of the mother of the sweet girl graduate, and occupying much of the girl's attention, too. She must have a gown, girlish in design, fine as to workmanship, and elaborate enough to do honor to the occasion.

Here is a French conception for a young girl from the establishment of Raulin. It is a masterpiece, but simple enough to be easily followed by the copyist. And the copyist will do well to be as faithful to the original as possible.

The underskirt is of white voile, showing a few scattered sprays of fine embroidery. Instead of a hem at the bottom there is a wide band of the bottom ornamented with close-set sprays of embroidery. It is set on at the bottom of the skirt with an insertion of very narrow fine val lace and is split at the front. This narrow insertion extends all around the border of embroidery and serves to join it to the lace edging, which finishes the gown at the bottom.

In choosing laces for gowns of this character, those that will stand tubing and look well afterward are the only ones to be considered.

The embroidery for this gown in the body and border are machine made, but very fine.

There is an overdrapery of scant fullness bordered with a band of embroidery narrower than that in the skirt. It is set on with the same narrow insertion sewed in in long, shallow scallops.

The overdress is edged with a flounce made of point d'esprit net trimmed with insertion and an edging of fine val.

The bodice is of the point d'esprit, draped with voile and trimmed with an embroidered border like that at the bottom of the skirt. This extends from the shoulders down each side of the bodice at the front. The sleeves are finished with a ruffle like that which borders the overdress.

The girle is made of a wide bias strip of blue satin finished with a narrow ruffle under which it fastens with tiny hooks and eyes.

Bewitching, Inexpensive Morning Garb

THE morning glories will have to be glorious indeed if they charm our eyes more than the maids who make such morning apparel for themselves as is pictured here.

This morning cap and negligee from Raulin of Paris is beautiful enough to inspire every one with a desire to own one like it.

For the jacket there is a foundation ecru of net, or maybe voile with short, loose sleeves. The sleeves are finished with rows of val lace, the lower row bordered with a narrow silk-finish braid of a fancy design.

The seams of the jacket are set together with a narrow insertion of lace.

Two long scarves of figured net edged with fllet lace are pulled in at the shoulder seams under loops of ribbon. They are tucked to the jacket.

Personality and Clothes. If dress is to express a personality, as it should, surely it is against all that is best in one to spread out one's feelings for any stranger to criticize! Women who dress to attract notice in the street are like women who talk loudly in tearooms and themselves. Women who wear high-heeled buckled shoes on a country walk are like women who try to be brilliant at breakfast, and women who bare their necks and shoulders, ankles and calves, with no discrimination and at all hours of the day and evening, make one think of a famous epigram which says: "Women nowadays seem to furnish their rooms with orchids, foreigners and French novels."

Tulle Frill Is Smart. The plaited tulle frill is smart for evening wear and often serves as a hat, for it is impossible to detect at a distance the absence of a crown. This frill encircles the head, being higher at the back or side.

A Boon to the Farm Housewife

The kitchen loses its terrors with the NEW PERFECTION Wick Blue Flame cook stove. Does exactly the work of the coal range without the terrible exhausting heat and the dirt and trouble. Burns clean, convenient, economical oil; almost saves its cost during the season.

Makes the heavy summer cooking easy, the kitchen pleasant. None of the dangers of gas—no smoke, no odor. Note, in the picture, the cabinet top, the fine, big oven, the shelves and the towel racks. Roasts, bakes, toasts and broils to "perfection."

NEW PERFECTIONS come in 2, 3, and 4 burner sizes, which your dealer can show you. Ask him to explain the special burner construction, how the broiler broils on both sides at once, and about the patented fuel reservoir, refilled without turning off your fire.

Be sure and see the latest model with the new PIERMOS oven, an invention that gives you orange and fireless cooking combined. Don't forget that fuel saving soon makes up the price of the stove. That a cool kitchen makes cooking easy, especially when striking a match gives you your fire.

NEW WAY OF LOOKING AT IT Possibly Many of Us May Find Food for Reflection in Remark Made by Reverend Gentleman.

Perry S. Eustis, railroad passenger traffic manager, was complaining at the Traffic Club dinner in Kansas City a few nights ago about the way the government pays the railroads for hauling the mails.

"I was a sweet, curly-haired child," he said. "I guess I had a sweet voice, too, for I sang in the choir of the Chestnut Hill Episcopal church in Philadelphia. The rector, the Rev. J. Andrews Harris, always took the choir boys for a walk each Saturday, a privilege we greatly esteemed. On this particular Saturday my nose was out of joint because some one had been chosen to sing a solo the next day, and I was voicing my indignation.

"As I understand it, your position is that you didn't get what you deserved," said the rector.

"Exactly," I replied.

"Then pray God you don't the rest of your life," answered the Rev. Mr. Harris.—"Kansas City Star.

ERUPTION ON CHILD'S BODY R. F. D. No. 2, Jackson, Mo.—"Our daughter who is ten months old was suffering from an eruption all over the body. In the beginning they were small red spots and afterwards turned to bloody sores. We tried all sorts of ointments but they did not procure any relief for our child. She cried almost day and night and we scarcely could touch her, because she was covered with sores from head to foot.

"We had heard about the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and made a trial with them, and after using the remedies, that is to say, the Soap and the Ointment, only a few days passed and our child could sleep well and after one week she was totally well."

Solomon Not in It. Two old vagrants were discussing how wise the large-rimmed tortoise-shell mandarin spectacles made Magistrate Freschi look.

"It makes him look as wise as Solomon," said one.

"Solomon ain't in it," replied the other, "in them big cheaters the Judge looks as wise as a tree full of owis."

MEXICAN MENACE

Vera Cruz, now prominent in the news dispatches, has been a historical hot bed of yellow fever. In 1599 Spanish colonists attempted to settle there. Six hundred promptly died of the fever. At the end of fifteen months but sixty survived. Tampico is also a nursery for the plague.

From last available reports of the United States Public Health Service there were from February first to the twenty-fourth twenty-two cases and sixteen deaths in Tampico, and there was an epidemic at Vera Cruz. Two yellow fever experts have been ordered to Vera Cruz to act with officers of the army and navy.

Undoubtedly, one of the results of the American occupancy of Mexico will be the widening of territory which is free from the smouldering menace of yellow fever. Yellow fever was wiped out of Cuba and the southern part of the United States as a result of the Spanish American war. The disease had been constantly present in Cuba for two hundred years when we took charge. Every foreign visitor knew that he would contract it. One in four was certain to die of it. By fighting mosquitoes and screening against them yellow fever was eliminated.

Colonel Gorgas, the sanitarian of the Canal zone (who deserves as much credit as anyone for the successful construction of the Panama canal) says that "the next generation will look upon yellow fever parasites as we do on three-toed horses as animals that existed in the past without any possibility of reappearing on the earth at any future time."

Wiping yellow fever out of the United States and Cuba was a simple but gigantic task. It required overcoming amongst other factors a prejudice against window screens which prevailed throughout the south. More than that, the greatest difficulty was encountered in overcoming the indifference of the public. People of the south had so long been dying of yellow fever that it had become a habit. Our habits are difficult to uproot. In many instances inhabitants had to be forced, at the point of a bayonet, to submit to having their lives saved.

In our northern territory flies represent a disease source comparable to a great extent with the mosquitoes in the warm zone. We of the north of tuberculosis, scarlet fever, typhoid, whooping cough, measles, etc. Any one or all of these could be eradicated were appropriate measures enforced with equal vigor and efficiency.

Perhaps our territory will need to be "invaded."

PREVENT BABY COLIC WITH WOOL STOCKINGS
"Yes," said Miss Anabel Tuener, instructor in home economics of the University of Wisconsin Extension division, "there is a very close connection between colic and cold feet where babies are concerned."

Proper covering of the feet is a very simple remedy, she continued, and one every mother should be glad to try. Long woolen stockings and booties for the little one mean greater comfort for both baby and mother.

The tufted coat and cap are a good idea too. A cheese cloth or china silk tufted coat makes an inexpensive, warm and easily laundered wrap. Sheet wadding or cotton batting is used as an interlining and is tied like a comfortable holds it in place. A cap may be made similarly, a quilted lining being used for warmth and a washable bonnet over it.

Miss Turner talked on children's clothes at several community institutes last spring, using a baby size doll in demonstration. She is now preparing a correspondence course on this subject, dealing with planning, buying, designing and laundering little clothes.

—Last Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. August Kunrow celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary in the presence of a number of invited guests. The occasion was held in the spacious hall in the North Side Park. Dining and a general good time were indulged in to a late hour, when choice refreshments were served. On departing for home the guests joined in declaring the evening delightfully spent.

SECRETARY OF STATE DEMANDS THAT DICTATOR FREE SILLIMAN.

PEACE ENVOYS REJECT AID

U. S. Admiral Offers Dictator's Commissioners Courtesy, but They Want No Help—Sail for Niagara Falls.

Mexico City, May 13.—Acting Foreign Secretary Esteve Ruiz announced Monday that at the request of the Brazilian minister the Mexican government has agreed to release United States Consul Silliman at Saltillo, to have him brought to this capital and to place him at the disposal of the Brazilian legation, which must promise that he shall leave Mexico.

Washington, May 13.—A demand for the immediate release of John R. Silliman, United States vice-consul imprisoned by Mexican federalists at Saltillo, was made Monday by Secretary Bryan on the three South American envoys engaged in mediation efforts between this country and President Huerta. Several hours later, while there appeared to be a critical situation as a result of the reported seizure of Lobos island by the American navy, there came an explanation of this incident from Admiral Mayo.

The first official news of the landing of American sailors on Lobos island reached the navy department. Rear Admiral Mayo cabled that the Mexican keepers deserted the great lighthouse on the island and the destroyer tender Dixie was "maintaining it for the benefit of navigation."

"Lobos island has not been occupied," said Admiral Mayo's report. "The Dixie and some destroyers are anchored there, and other vessels have coaled there from a collier. The keepers of Lobos island light deserted it, and the Dixie is now maintaining it for the benefit of navigation."

Prior to the receipt of Admiral Mayo's report Secretary Bryan called at the Argentine legation and passed two hours in conference with the mediators, discussing the continued detention of Consul Silliman, the reported seizure of Lobos island by American torpedo boats and the care of the five South Americans under arrest at Vera Cruz for firing upon United States sailors and marines.

Mr. Bryan insisted that the release of Silliman must be brought about at once.

While the delegates appointed by General Huerta were preparing to leave Vera Cruz on the way to the mediation conference at Niagara Falls, Canada, the United States government officially announced its representatives in the coming negotiations. Justice J. R. Lamar of the United States Supreme court, and Frederick W. Lehmann, former solicitor general, were chosen by President Wilson as the American representatives.

Little further is expected in the preliminary peace negotiations until all meet in Canada.

Washington, May 13.—Further advice of an alarming character predicting anarchy and looting in Mexico City has been received by diplomats here from the representatives of their governments in the Mexican capital. These advisers were laid before Secretary Bryan.

According to the information at hand there are 8,000 federal troops nominally at the disposal of Huerta for the protection of his capital.

They are reported to be no longer loyal to their chief. According to the cable dispatches, they are on the eve of a revolt and will refuse to obey the orders of the dictator the moment Zapata or Villa makes an assault upon the city.

They are not expected to make any defense, but to loot and riot before the men outside arrive and get a chance to do the same thing.

The foreign legation and all foreigners in the city will be in grave danger should this anarchical condition be precipitated.

Vera Cruz, May 13.—Walter C. Whiffen, correspondent of the Associated Press, who was arrested by Mexican authorities on his arrival in Mexico City Thursday and released Saturday, returned to Vera Cruz.

A. J. Sutton, Washington newspaper photographer, who was arrested and released at the same time, was taken off the train at Cordoba on his way from the capital to this city.

On Board the United States Cruiser California, Off Mazatlan, by Wireless to San Diego, Cal., May 13.—Demoralized and fleeing before every rebel advance, many of the federalists in Mazatlan were cut off from escape and either surrendered or were killed. A few escaped on board the federal transport Korrigan, which was shelled by the rebels. With shrieking burst over it, the Korrigan ran for the outer harbor. The assaulting forces the federal gunboat Morales, which was abandoned in the harbor, and set fire to the vessel. The smoke belching from the hull was rent by an explosion when the powder in the magazines was reached by the flames. Spectators on shore saw the gunboat lurch, then rise part way out of the water and sink.

Vera Cruz, May 13.—From Mexico City come late reports that large numbers of men and boys are drilling in the streets. A few nights ago a mob gathered before the Brazilian legation and demanded that Luis d'Antin, an attaché of the American embassy, who had taken refuge there, be delivered over. Threats were made to kill him.

The Brazilian minister notified the state department that he would surrender d'Antin only in case he was overpowered by the mob.

The antipathy to the attaché was due to the fact that he is the only American official left in the capital, and because of his activity in relieving the distress of American noncombatants.

So far as known no measures have been taken to fortify the capital. At Guadalupe, a strategic point on the Mexican railway entering the city, there are no signs of fortifications. The federalists, however, are taking steps to provision Puebla, about midway between Vera Cruz and the capital on the Inter-oceanic railway.

General Navarrete is said to be holding outposts east of Puebla watching the American lines. It is reported that many cattle have been gathered at Puebla and much grain and supplies of various sorts are stored there.

A rumor has been current in the capital that if Villa drives the federalists out Huerta plans to make a stand at Puebla, which has military advantages for defense.

An American named Doster, formerly a correspondent for a New York paper, but recently employed in a bank at the capital, is missing and is supposed to have been imprisoned by the federalists. He resumed newspaper work when the other correspondents at Mexico City went to Vera Cruz.

The number of American women left in the capital is variously estimated up to three hundred. They are waiting for what they characterize as "the last indefinite warning." They appear to believe that the capture of the capital by the rebels would mean nothing worse than fighting within the city. They believe, also, they would be safe.

Nutter, correspondent of the Boston Herald, who went with a photographer to Saltillo recently on General Huerta's invitation, reached Vera Cruz during the day. Both men had a terrible experience at San Pedro and elsewhere after the rout of the federalists at Torreon. They were repeatedly thrown into jail, lost all their possessions and were subjected to many indignities before they reached Mexico City on the way to Vera Cruz.

Vera Cruz, May 13.—The rebels have taken Tampico, according to a report received here, and the foreigners who had remained at Tampico are seeking refuge on the ships in the harbor as fast as they can be taken off.

As soon as the report was received here the British warship Essex, flagship of Vice-Admiral Craddock, began preparations to hurry to Tampico. The falling of Tampico into the hands of the rebels followed furious fighting, it was said, in which the federal losses were extremely heavy. It was said that the oil tanks near the city were burning and that Tampico itself was on fire.

LABOR MEN VICTORS

U. S. COURT SETS ASIDE SENTENCES AGAINST GOMPERZ, MITCHELL AND MORRISON.

DECISION ENDS NOTED CASE

Justice Holmes Upholds Contention of the Defense—Statute of Limitations Intervenes and Heads of Unions Escape Jail.

Washington, May 13.—Contempt sentences imposed by the District supreme court upon Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison, labor leaders, were set aside Monday by the U. S. Supreme court for the second time, as barred by the statute of limitations. Justice Holmes said that contempts were not to be treated as conspiracies.

Gompers had been sentenced to 30 days in jail and Mitchell and Morrison had been fined $500 each.

The decision of the high court means that the last chapter has been written in the famous labor case and that Gompers and his colleagues will never suffer any criminal punishment for their alleged disaffiliation of the injunction issued by Judge Wright of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, aimed at the publication in the American Federationist of the so-called "unfair list."

Justice Holmes read the opinion of the court. He emphasized that the proceedings in the district court against the labor leaders were "a punishment solely for past acts, not for prevention of acts in the future."

The decision turned on the plea of the statute of limitations, which had been urged by the labor leaders as a bar to their prosecution by the committee of prosecutors appointed by Judge Wright. They claimed that they could not be prosecuted for acts committed three years prior to the time when they were last prosecuted in the District courts.

Justice Holmes was inclined to take a broad view of the statute of limitations and declared that it did not make any difference whether the case against the labor leaders was a regular indictment or some other proceeding, the statute of limitations applied just the same.

The action of the high court, according to officials of the department of justice, means that nothing more will be done in the case. It will be allowed to go by default.

HONOR AMERICAN DEAD

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR SAILORS AND MARINES HELD.

Bodies Brought by Montana Are Drawn on Caissons Through New York to Brooklyn.

New York, May 11.—President Wilson, congress and the nation paid tribute today to the memories of the seventeen brave American sailors and marines who lost their lives in the fighting that attended the taking of Vera Cruz and whose bodies were brought back home on the armored cruiser for burial.

The Montana arrived in New York harbor yesterday afternoon, having been met Saturday off the Virginia capes by Secretary Daniels and a party of navy department officials aboard the presidential yacht Mayflower. President Wilson came up from Washington last night, and the congressional delegation arrived early this morning.

When the Montana anchored off the Battery yesterday the bodies of the dead bluejackets and marines were landed at once and placed on caissons which were parked on the south side of the plaza in the Battery and guarded by a detachment from the cruiser.

At 9 o'clock this morning the order was given for the funeral cortege to move. It was a solemn and imposing procession, with detachments from the battleships Wyoming and Texas, the New York naval militia, the Spanish war veterans and numerous civilian bodies in line. A halt was made in City Hall plaza in Manhattan, where school children chanted a hymn in honor of the dead.

The funeral services were held at the Brooklyn navy yard. President Wilson was the only speaker, and his address was an eloquent and touching tribute to the bravery and patriotism of the dead, and a consoling of their bereaved relatives.

REBELS GAIN IN TAMPICO BATTLE

PRESS CLOSER TO CITY HELD BY FEDERALISTS DURING ARTILLERY DUEL.

PLAN OUSTING OF HUERTA

Establishment of Protectorate Suggested by Mediators as Solution of Mexican Crisis—Huerta Gains Diplomatic Point.

Tampico, May 12.—After a four-day artillery duel which has been almost uninterrupted the constitutionalists under Gen. Pablo Gonzalez have pressed closer on Tampico than they have been before.

Reinforcements came to both sides after the rebel check on Friday, but the attacking force seemed to have the advantage in the matter of big guns. Since Monday morning their cannon have been sounding clearer to the warships in the outer harbor and their shells are bursting almost regularly in the outskirts of the city itself.

Only meager reports come out to the ships and these only from federal sources but they tell that the rebel guns have made a breach in the federal fortifications six miles outside the city limits, running south from the Panuco river.

Plan Huerta's Elimination. Washington, D. C., May 12.—Elimination of Gen. Huerta and the establishment of a provisional government in Mexico in which both the Huerta and the constitutionalist factions would be represented, is contemplated in a plan which the three South American mediators now are working out to be proposed for the solution of the entire Mexican problem.

It was learned that the proposal might provide for the setting up of a temporary government by a commission composed of a few persons, two of them to be named by Huerta, two by the constitutionalists and the fifth by the mediators.

A dispatch from El Paso says that the plan for the pacification of Mexico, and which would eliminate Huerta will not be acceptable to the constitutionalist officers here, according to constitutionalist officers here.

Huerta Gains Point. After a long cabinet discussion of the incident it was concluded that the taking of Lobos island by the scout cruiser Dixie was "technically an error." Later in the day Secretary Bryan took this matter up with the mediators, and it was understood agreed to an admission to Huerta that the taking of the island was due to a misunderstanding.

In order to save the administration's face, however, Huerta will be asked to make the concession that the Lobos light be kept burning. He is expected to agree to this, as there has been pressure from the foreign powers concerning this light as well as all the lights extinguished by Huerta's orders.

The Silliman Case. Another matter of moment discussed by the cabinet Tuesday was the case of John R. Silliman, vice-consul at Saltillo. Secretary Bryan said that he did not know yet why Silliman was incarcerated. Reports from several Mexican sources reached the state department indicating that Silliman is alive and the Brazilian minister cabled that Huerta promised to secure his immediate release.

A cable from Mexican Minister Ruiz to the A. B. C. mediators on Tuesday brought word that Vice Consul Silliman, who has been under arrest at Saltillo, will be sent to Mexico City and turned over to the Brazilian minister there, who is looking after the interests of the United States.

Lamar Is Named. Justice Lamar of the United States supreme court and Frederick W. Lehmann, former solicitor general, were chosen by President Wilson as the American representatives at the peace meeting. From Huerta are hastening forward Auguste Rodriguez, Emilio Rabasa and Luis Elguero. Ambassador Da Gama of Brazil, Minister Naion of Argentina and Minister Suarez of Chile, the mediators, Monday night expressed satisfaction in the selection of the advisers for both governments and little further is expected in the preliminary peace negotiations until both have met in Canada.

Huerta's Peace Envoys Sail. Vera Cruz, May 12.—The steamer Kronprinzessin Cecilie sailed from here late on Monday with Huerta's peace commissioners aboard. The steamer also carried 6,000 rifles and much ammunition for Huerta which it was not permitted to land.

Prefers Jail to Peace Bond. Belmont.—Rather than furnish a bond of $50, A. Jobe, retired candy dealer, went to jail for six months. He was accused of beating his wife and the court gave him the alternative of going to jail or furnishing a peace bond.

Improvements to Be Costly. Menomonee.—It is estimated that contemplated improvements and a new building for the municipal lighting and power plant will cost the city about $60,000.

Masonic Temple Is Dedicated. Black River Falls.—Four hundred Masons from La Crosse, Sheboygan, Hudson, Eau Claire, Racine and other cities attended the dedication services at the new Masonic temple in this city.

Ski Slide Blown Down. Stoughton.—The steel ski slide, built three years ago and said to be the highest in America, was blown down in the recent heavy storm and lies a mass of wreckage.

State Notes in Brief

Janesville.—When the women of the Janesville Civic league inaugurated a fly swatting campaign and offered a bounty of 10 cents for 100 dead flies they had no intention of making the contest national wide. Nevertheless the members of the committee in charge of the campaign sent 60 cents to Wayne Rogers of Star, Miss., 9 years old, who read of the Janesville fight on the pests in a Mississippi newspaper and at once started work. He sent the carcasses to the chairman of the campaign committee enclosed in an envelope, which contained a short note written in a childish scrawl.

Portage.—Phillip Yaeckel, widely known in Wisconsin as a moon doctor, is dead at his home in Tomah after an extended illness. Yaeckel traveled throughout the state administering treatments by laying the palm of his hand on the afflicted. He had a large following and was usually awaited by large crowds. Mr. Yaeckel was 55 years old.

La Crosse.—C. F. Robare fainted at his home here and a bottle of carbolic acid broke in the fall. His mother, thinking it a suicide attempt, called a doctor. The doctor forced a quart of alcohol into Robare. Robare may die.

Washington.—The following Wisconsin pensions are granted: Ellen M. Cowles, Tomah; Jamie Cowell, Berlin; Mary Wyman, Eau Claire, $12 each, and Thomas Gano, Ashland, $13.50.

Janesville.—Lillian Cook attempted suicide when refused permission to remain in the city over night. She waded out into the Rock river and was rescued by two men.

Madison.—Archery, basketball, scoutcraft, campfire work and first aid to the injured will be some of the courses offered to the teachers attending the University of Wisconsin summer school this year.

Sheboygan.—The family of George Arena was almost suffocated by smoke from an incubator and brooder in the basement. Several small children were so nearly suffocated they had to be carried from the house.

Madison.—From finances at the University of Wisconsin are to be made the subject of further investigation by the student court. According to the original report submitted by the prom chairman, the 1914 event was run at a loss of $312.

New Richmond.—The gross receipts of the New Richmond postoffice during the last year total $10,378.10, a net gain of 11 per cent over the preceding year. This makes New Richmond eligible to free delivery.

Washington, D. C.—Margaret Lawrence of Madison has been appointed librarian in the interior department. John Buser of Plattesville has been appointed instrument man in connection with the interstate commerce commission.

Waukesha.—Carl Meyer died from injuries received when he was pulled into the machinery at Donahue quarries.

Madison.—A six weeks course for apprentice drug clerks who wish for promotion will be offered by the university summer school.

Racine.—The council will demand that all hawkers, patent medicine barkers and other street corner salesmen pay a license of $50 a day.

Superior.—Superior and Duluth probably will endeavor to jointly secure the 1915 encampment of the Grand Army as the result of a movement started by Palmer post, Superior. If successful, the proposal contemplates dividing the meeting between the two cities.

Madison.—The standard of public dances at the university has risen in the last year according to Prof. F. W. Roe, chairman of the students' interest committee. Prof. Roe thinks supervision can be taken care of better by public opinion than by faculty regulation.

Madison.—Willard M. Sprielder, Wauwatosa, senior, has been chosen general chairman of the university spring carnival to be held Friday and Saturday, May 22 and 23. Funds are now being raised.

Madison.—A nation wide campaign to control hog cholera is to be made if plans are carried out which were suggested at a recent meeting of the federal and state officials who have the work in charge.

Washington, D. C.—Civil service examinations are to be held June 17 for postmasters at Amherst, Boaz, Glenhaven and London.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

The mind may feed on fancy, but the matter of fact stomach imperiously demands something more substantial.

SOME WAYS WITH MEATS.

A tasty way of cooking a rabbit is the following: Joint and wash a rabbit, drain it, slice up two Spanish onions; take a saucapan, lay in a thick layer of onions, then a layer of rabbit, a sifting of flour, pepper and salt, another layer of onions, and proceed until all the rabbit is used, finishing with the onions. Place the saucapan over a moderate fire and when heated draw to one side and let simmer very gently for two hours or more. As in this cooking there is no water added, it is necessary that it be slowly and carefully cooked to keep from scorching. Serve with mashed potatoes. The rabbit may be put into a casserole and covered, then baked in the oven.

Chicken Terrapin.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add one of flour, and when well cooked a half cupful of cream and a teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of pepper and mace. When boiling stir into this a cupful or more of chicken, with two hard-cooked whites of eggs chopped, and the yolks put through a ricer, add two tablespoonfuls of orange juice and serve at once.

Shepherd's Pie.—Cut enough butter into inch-pieces to make a cupful. Cut from three to four medium sized potatoes in dice and put them in a baking dish; add half a cupful of stock or water and a tablespoonful of butter cut in bits. Season with salt, pepper, and a bit of mint, and cover with potato-crust.

Mutton Hash.—Take a pound of cooked mutton, cut in small pieces and add to the following sauce: Cook together one onion and two tablespoonfuls of butter, then add one tablespoonful of flour, various seasonings, like mushroom catsup, marjoram, parsley and salt; add the meat, and when hot serve on toast.

A well-cooked and well-served dinner implies on the part of the entertainer a sense of the respect he owes to his guests, whose comfort and happiness he controls while they are under his roof.—Didsbury.

SUMMER COMPANY DISHES.

Curry of Lobster in Rice Cups.—If lobster is not obtainable there are any number of meats which will serve nearly as well. Lamb is especially good for this dish. Mould cooked rice in cups, then when cold remove the centers and brush with butter, brown in the oven or fry in deep fat. Fill with the following: Cook an onion in butter, add a quarter of a cupful of flour, one tablespoonful of curry powder, a pint of coconut milk, pepper, salt, and lemon juice to season. Strain this sauce over a pint or less of lobster cut in pieces. Serve in the rice cups garnished with lobster coral or small pieces of the pretty clams.

Rhubarb Jelly and Banana Cream.—Bake a pound of rhubarb cut in pieces with a cupful of sugar and half a cupful of water, add a tablespoonful of softened gelatine. To a cupful of sifted banana pulp add the juice of half a lemon, half a cupful of orange juice, half a cupful of sugar and a tablespoonful and a half of gelatine. When beginning to set fold in a cupful of whipped cream. Put into the mold in layers and serve with whipped cream for a garnish.

Pineapple Cream in Pineapple Shell.—Boil together three cupfuls of water, two of sugar and a pint of shredded pineapple for 15 minutes. Add a tablespoonful of gelatin softened in water, strain through cheesecloth and when cold add the juice of two lemons. Freeze to a mush. Add one cupful of cream, beaten solid. Fill the chilled shell of a pineapple, set the mold in ice and salt for an hour or more and serve on a colly-covered plate.

Asparagus Patties.—Make a sauce of three tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour, half a cupful each of chicken broth, cream and the water in which asparagus is cooked. Add the beaten yolks of two eggs, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, salt, pepper, and a bunch of cooked asparagus cut in pieces. Serve in patty shells or in thimble cases.

LIFE DIARY OF MRS. WEAVER

Her Experience Was a Very Sad One.

NEVER AGAIN FOR MARTHA.

She Brings Shame and Ridicule Upon Herself—Husband a Willing Accomplice—They Both Were Taught a Lesson That Will Last Them Their Entire Lifetime.

[Copyrighted, 1914, by Thomas J. Sullivan.] Do not judge from mere appearances, for the light laughter that bubbles on the lip often mantles over the depth of sadness, and the serious look may be the sober veil that covers a divine peace and joy. The bosom may ache beneath diamond brooches, and many a blithe heart dances under coarse wool.

Assuming the above to be true, we will proceed to tear a page from the life diary of Mrs. Weaver and present it to our readers.

That New Suit.
"What am I going to do about that new suit I must have?" said Martha Weaver to her husband as he came in from work one evening.

"Why is there any question about that? Go to Hopkins & Co. and get what you need. If you need a suit get it," answered her husband.

"I have looked there," replied Martha, "but they haven't anything that I want. I just need a simple suit, but I want good material, and it must be neatly and well made, one that I could use for almost any occasion. I would prefer a ready made suit, but those that Hopkins & Co. have appear to be made of poor, flimsy material, and they are decked out with such cheap, flashy, dowdy trimming that I just cannot bear to wear them," replied Martha.

The False Step.
"Well, what do you want to do—run into the city and get you a suit?" asked John.

"No. That does not suit me either, for when I have to pay my fare, my hotel bill and other incidental expenses it makes the cost too high and also takes more time than I can spare for the purchase of one suit," said Martha.

"Could you not order one? Didn't I see some mail order catalogues around here awhile ago?" asked the interested husband.

"Yes; I could do that, but I am almost afraid to risk it. Still, their styles appear to be good, and the prices quoted seem reasonable. I have been thinking about doing that. I will look them up again and see what I can do," answered Martha.

Martha's Heart Sank.
Martha had little difficulty in "looking up" the catalogue, as the house seemed full of them, and after critically examining the suit pictures a simple blue took her fancy. The description corresponded with her idea of what she wanted; the trimming looked neat and of good quality. The price was satisfactory, so after debating for some little time she decided to send for it. A draft was forwarded, and the long vigil pending the arrival of the suit was as depressing upon John as upon Martha.

At last it came—express bill and all—and eagerly the box was opened and the suit laid on the bed for inspection. It did not quite measure up to the proportions of the picture in the catalogue. The color was not good. There was too much coat and not enough skirt, and, besides, the skirt was not draped as the advertisement said. It just hung, and hung uneven at that.

The work was not neat; the trimming was of cheap, showy quality, scant and inferior. Martha's heart sank to zero. She knew she would be ashamed to wear that suit at home, much less among her well dressed friends. What was she to do? She needed a suit badly, but she realized that to attempt an exchange would result as disastrously as in the first place, and she could ill afford another new one.

Defects More Pronounced.
The longer Martha had the suit the more numerous and pronounced became its defects, until at last her pride rebelled, and she refused longer to wear the miserable parody. She said she would much prefer to wear a "good" old suit than a "poor" new one. For with the poor new one she was conscious and ashamed when she felt any one looking at her or her suit.

Mr. and Mrs. Weaver held a consultation after which Mrs. Weaver declared that never again in her life would she buy anything from a picture or from a catalogue house.

"Amen," said John. "We have had our lesson. Had you bought that garment from any of our local merchants and it proved unsatisfactory he would have insisted on your exchanging it or refunding to you your money."

In a Receptive Mood.
"So you actually went to church last Sunday?"

"I really did."

"Excuse me if I seem skeptical. What was the text?"

"Aha, I have you there! The text was 'He giveth his beloved sleep.'"

"Good work. And who were there?"

"All the beloved. It seemed to me."

Builders of Wisconsin Farms

Because he has followed in the path of the dairy cow,—success and prosperity is the lot of the Wisconsin farmer. Because the dairy herd is the central feature upon Wisconsin farms,—the state is today the Greatest Dairy State in the Union, and one of the richest agriculturally.

The Dairy Cow Wins a Great Victory in Wisconsin

The dairy cow has won a great victory in Wisconsin. Back in the 70's there were many sections in the state where the farms were so "run down" and unproductive that they were actually abandoned. The once virgin soils no longer yielded abundant crops; their strength and fertility exhausted by continuous years of wheat raising. Farming was all but ruined. It was under these conditions that the dairy cow was introduced into Wisconsin agriculture and from that day on she has steadily restored the lost fertility to the "worn out" soils, regained the agricultural prestige of the state, and enriched her owners.

Every progressive farmer is a subscriber to farm papers. Every progressive farmer in Wisconsin should be a subscriber to a dairy farm paper,—and that paper should be—

Hoard's Dairyman

Intimately familiar with local conditions, it meets the same problems every Wisconsin farmer meets, and assists him in solving them.
