OF INTEREST TO FARMERS COST OF CLEARING LAND

Stumps in Logged-Off Lands in The Lake States Expensive to Get Rid Of

Within the next twenty-five years it is estimated that most of the remaining merchantable timber in Minnesota, Michigan, and Wisconsin will be logged off. This means that in many counties there will be a change from lumbering to farming and that the problem of clearing economically the logged-off land will assume even greater importance. At the present time there are nearly twelve million acres of such land in Michigan, approximately as much in Minnesota, and something less than eleven million in Wisconsin. The cost of clearing these millions of acres is not only utterly useless now, but on account of the danger of fire an actual menace.

Hitherto the development of these lands for agricultural purposes has been seriously retarded by the high cost of clearing. A recent investigation conducted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the results of which have been published in Bulletin 910, "Cost and Methods of Clearing Land in the Lake States," reveals the fact that this cost runs from $20 to $40 an acre. Little logged-off land desirable for farming purposes can be had for less than $15 or $25 an acre, and the total cost of clearing land varies, therefore, from $35 to $115. The average, the investigators found, was $65 an acre. This, when the expense of other necessary improvements is taken into consideration, is more than equally good farm land in other sections can be bought for. In view of these facts the proper disposition of other logged-off areas becomes an important problem.

In the first place, as a protection to the settler, the investigators recommend that in every tract sold by land companies, there should be at least ten acres cleared and ready for the plough. This will enable the farmer to raise hay and other crops while putting the logged-off land into condition for the most economical removal of the stumps, for clearing can be done much more cheaply in pasture for several years.

Second growth, the investigators assert, must be regarded as a source of expense rather than income. In a few places it may be possible to do so, but in general it does not pay to haul the wood more than four or five miles and in practice it is usually the fact that the second growth has no value except as firewood for the settler's personal use.

The brush should be cut close to the ground when in full leaf, heaped into compact piles, and burned as soon after logging as possible. On account of the danger of the fire spreading, however, the local or State fire warden should be consulted before the actual burning is attempted.

After the brush and second growth have been removed, it is considered best to put the land into pasture for several years. On hardwood land, green stumps are much more difficult to remove than those which have been allowed to rot for six or seven years, and pine stumps are gradually worked out of the ground by the settling of the land and the heaving action of the frost. The practice of harrowing and sowing the land, either immediately after burning or in the spring, is therefore very general. Sprout growth, the great drawback to this system, must, however, be kept down rigorously and this requires a hard working battery here are now found useful in this respect.

When the time comes to turn the pasture into crop-bearing land the farmer has the choice of four methods (1) explosives, (2) explosives used in connection with stump-pullers, (3) stump-pullers alone, and (4) power machines. His choice will depend on the nature of soil and stumps but it will not often be possible for him to ignore the use of explosives. On heavier soils they are particularly efficient. They do their work thoroughly and quickly, but they do not require a large force of men and the expenditure involved can be spread over as long a time as suits the farmer's convenience. The expense can also be materially lessened by co-operative purchases of wholesale lots. Moreover dynamite containing only 29 or 30 per cent nitroglycerine is often fully as effective as the more expensive kinds with higher percentages of nitroglycerine, frequently considered necessary.

On lighter soils and with well decayed stumps, pulling machines are sometimes substituted satisfactorily for explosives. The tripod type, which lifts the stump vertically is more powerful but also more troublesome than the capstan which pulls from the side. The capstan can pull an here or more of stumps without being reset, but at the same time it may be successfully resisted by a stump that would not offer the least trouble to a tripod, which however, must be reset for every stump it pulls. On large tracts of land a power machine with an efficient crew may do the best work of all, but such an outfit can only be employed economically on large operations.

Naturally the cost of this work varies greatly. The Department investigators found indeed that it could be as low as $5 and as high

BURKE WOULD CHANGE LAWS

Congressman Says Present Cheese Statute is Unjust. Shrinkage is Big Factor

Representative Michael E. Burke is making an effort to secure the repeal of a recent amendment to the pure food laws compelling manufacturers to stamp the net weight on each package.

On March 3, 1913, congress adopted this amendment, which becomes effective on Nov. 1, 1914, and provides that any cheese manufacturer failing to stamp the net weight on each package of cheese shall be liable to arrest and punishment.

The cheesemakers contend that it is an absolute impossibility for them to determine the weight with any degree of accuracy, of a package of cheese, because cheese is subject to shrinkage under certain conditions of weather.

When this fact was first called to the attention of congress, certain representatives suggested that an amendment to the amendment be substituted providing for a wide variation in weight.

This suggestion failed to meet with approval, the cheesemakers still claiming that no variation of weight could be safely and justly applied.

Representative Burke introduced in the house, a second amendment, calling for the repeal of the original amendment, and providing for the exemption of all packages of cheese weighing under seven pounds.

"The weight of cheese in packages weighing less than seven pounds," Representative Burke told the house members, "cannot be safely prescribed. In all fairness and justice to the cheesemakers, this section of the pure food law should be repealed."

He went on to explain it is not possible for the manufacturer to determine just how much a small cheese will shrink under certain conditions. It depends upon the kind of cheese, he said, the amount of water used in its manufacture, and the different degrees of climate under which it is kept.

HAPPENINGS OF 19 YEARS AGO

December 14, 1895

Henry Weddig and Hubert Keller butchered four hogs for John Eichstaedt last Tuesday, two of which dressed 500 pounds each.

Leap year, next, and we hope that some of our young ladies will not be so backward about embracing the opportunities thereof as some of our young men have been during the year now about to close.

Eugene Saeman had the tips of the first and second fingers of his right hand cut off while feeding a planer in the better tub factory of Frank Smith, last Saturday. He will be unable to use the injured hand again this year, judging from his present condition.

Our veterinary surgeon has been very much in demand lately. Last Saturday night he had just retired when he was called to F. Backhaus; where he found such a severe case of flatulent cholera as to necessitate the use of surgical instruments; and at last accounts, the horse was reported as being as well as ever. Dr. Brandt spares no pains in his work, which accounts for the increasing demand for his services.

MEETS WITH RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

While returning home from this village last Saturday evening, when he had been met by his cousin, who came on the 8:25 train, Charley Koepke had a very exciting experience with a team of colts which he was driving. An automobile in trying to pass Mr. Koepke tried to turn over the rig, throwing the occupants out. Mr. Koepke was picked up and taken home, where it was at first thought that he was seriously injured. At the appearance of a physician it was found that he was only bruised and jarred up considerably. His companion in the rig was only slightly bruised. At the present time the young man is getting along nicely after his exciting experience.

LOCAL MERCHANT A BENEFACTOR

A Good Citizen and a Friend In Need.

HONEST MEN GIVEN CREDIT.

He Would Rather Be Right Than President—The Local Retail Merchant is Without Question the Community's Most Prominent Factor. Aids Farmer by Buying From Him.

[Copyrighted, 1914, by Thomas J. Sullivan.] I would rather be right than president is the principle followed by many retail merchants.

There is no right without a parallel duty, no liberty without the supremacy of the law, no high destiny without earnest perseverance, no greatness without self denial.

As a dispenser of important services in any town none compares with the retail merchant.

Perhaps the first benefit of importance which he extends his customers. His books show that where misfortune, sickness or loss of occupation overtakes his customers he is frequently obliged to carry them for many months.

Honest Men Get Credit.

The man who has not established a reputation for unreliability or dishonesty is reasonably sure of securing credit for the asking. And the extension of credit is equivalent to making loans without interest. And who would ask or expect any such favor of any one but a merchant or a very close and dear friend?

The local town to be a desirable place to live in must have police and fire protection, it must have bridges, improved streets, water, sewers and good schools. To secure these necessary improvements and to maintain them taxes must be levied. The local merchant pays a large share of the taxes.

Among other things, the local merchant is continually forced to contribute to all manner of charitable enterprises, both public and private. He is the local benefactor, inasmuch as he is the employer of labor. Numerous young men and women find employment in his store, and as the result of his investment and efforts many dollars find their way to the pocket of the doctor, the dentist, the editor, the druggist and the banker, all of which contributes to the social and financial prosperity of the community.

Faith in the Community.

He aids the farmer by buying from him his products to the extent of his needs, thus increasing the profits of the farmer.

He has shown his faith in the community by investing his capital there, consequently his interest center there; upon him, in a measure, depends the social, religious, educational and commercial existence of the town, and he is ever willing to do his part.

All this being true, why is he not entitled to the same amount of consideration as that exacted by the farmer, the wage earner and the other factors of the community that are always crying for "fair treatment" and "the right to live"?

Destroying Local Markets.

All he asks is that which is rightfully his—the opportunity to display his goods and compare prices with those shown in the misrepresented "picture albums" of the catalogue houses before you send your money away from home to buy something of the same quality which he can sell just as cheaply as does the big city merchant prince.

Take away from the community one of the most important elements of prosperity, the medium of exchange, and the effect is inevitable—a weakening of the organism. And that is precisely what the great mail order retail houses are doing. They are bleeding the local communities. They are destroying local markets, weakening local credits, reducing the volume of deposits in small local banks, starving out local business men who are consumers of farm products as well as dealers, driving to the large cities thousands of consumers who can no longer find employment in small towns, and the men who are aiding them in their work of destruction will soon pay the penalty in the shrinkage of the value of their property, as well as in the loss of their markets.

A Gigantic Monopoly.

That the managers of these gigantic enterprises, understand what they are doing is amply demonstrated by a remark recently made by one of their number in Chicago. He said, "Give us a few more years and we will make every city outside of Chicago a town, every town a village, every village a hamlet, and every hamlet we will wipe off the face of the earth."

What will the customers of the mail order houses do then, poor things? They will have given aid and comfort to the enemy that has destroyed their prosperity. They will have assisted in building up a gigantic monopoly. Seduced by pretty picture books, they will have in their innocence starved out their own best customers. Deserted villages will then mark the places where prosperous communities formerly thrived, and the population of the country will be divided between the farms and the large cities. The prospect is not a pleasant one to contemplate.

Builders of Wisconsin Farms

Because he has followed in the path of the dairy cow,— success and prosperity is the lot of the Wisconsin farmer. Because the dairy herd is the central feature upon Wisconsin farms,—the state is today the Greatest Dairy State in the Union, and one of the richest agriculturally.

The Dairy Cow Wins a Great Victory in Wisconsin

The dairy cow has won a great victory in Wisconsin. Back in the 70's there were many sections in the state where the farms were so "run down" and unproductive that they were actually abandoned. The once virgin soils no longer yielded abundant crops; their strength and fertility exhausted by continuous years of wheat raising. Farming was all but ruined. It was under these conditions that the dairy cow was introduced into Wisconsin agriculture and from that day on she has steadily restored the lost fertility to the "worn out" soils, regained the agricultural prestige of the state, and enriched her owners.

Every progressive farmer is a subscriber to farm papers. Every progressive farmer in Wisconsin should be a subscriber to a dairy farm paper,— and that paper should be—

Hoard's Dairyman

Right here in your own state, almost at your door, is published the leading dairy journal of the world,—the undisputed authority of the dairy industry. Hoard's Dairyman is a wise counselor and a safe guide for the man keeping cows. It is a handbook of timely and helpful suggestions and advice. Intimately familiar with local conditions, it meets the same problems every Wisconsin farmer meets, and assists him in solving them.

HOARD'S DAIRYMAN is the only agricultural paper in Wisconsin owning a farm that is kept constantly under the direct management of its editors.

Make 1914 Your Best Year

For the coming year Hoard's Dairyman will contain many features of special interest and value to Wisconsin farmers. It will help you to make this year your best year. Personal experiences of some of Wisconsin's most successful dairymen will be published. A series of articles on dairy farm management will be contributed by the eminent authority, Prof. D. H. Otis, and the reports and discussions upon the

in which nearly 300 of Wisconsin's best managed dairy farms are entered, will form topics of absorbing interest. Soil fertility, rotation of crops, feeding and breeding problems, the raising of alfalfa, sanitation, farm buildings, dairy breeds, and scores of other vital subjects are discussed every week in Hoard's Dairyman with a fullness and directness that meets the needs of the beginner as well as the experienced dairyman.

SPECIAL SUBSCRIPTION OFFER We are pleased to announce that by special arrangement with the publishers, we are enabled to offer a year's subscription to Hoard's Dairyman in combination with this publication at a most attractive subscription price. We offer—

Hoard's Dairyman and the Kewaskum Statesman
