NUMBER 42.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

SIX WAYS TO IMPROVE SANDY SOILS OF STATE

Six or more ways of improving the four or five million acres of sandy soils in this state are told in a bulletin just issued by the agricultural experiment station of the university.

It is given the results of a series of important experiments which have been carried on by the state soils laboratory to determine what are the best methods of handling these soils.

It was found that sandy land oftentimes may be improved by adding vegetable matter done by plowing under crops of clover, soy beans or some other legume; by frequent applications of stable manure or fertilizer; by planting jackpines or other trees along the roadsides and fences and otherwise protecting the fields against winds; by carefully fitting and cultivating the soil; by growing such legumes as clover, soy beans, serradella vetch or alfalfa, and by the proper rotation of crops.

As sandy soils are very open in structure and low in water-holding capacity they are very favorable to crops that can benefit from such conditions. Of the grains rye and oats do best. The former being seeded in the fall, gets and early start in the spring and matures before the extreme drought of the summer. The latter has a very large root system and can take better advantage of the fertility and moisture in a given soil volume than can most grains.

Beans and buckwheat are profitable crops for sandy soils. Beans is a legume and consequently instead of drawing its supply of nitrogen from the soil already deficient in that element, takes most of it from the air. Buckwheat does require a very fertile soil because a good share of the materials that go into its seed, the marketable product, are obtained from the air.

WEANING YOUNG PIGS

Unless both sow and litter are carefully tended at weaning time, the pigs will become weak, puny, and unthrifty, causing prospective pork profits to dwindle rapidly.

Pigs should be in a healthy condition and eating well before weaning, according to J. G. Fuller of the College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin. Before weaning they can be fed to best advantage in a creche or small pen, separate from the sows. The pen should be shaped, troughs should be used, and good results may be expected with the following ration:

Finely ground oats, 30 pounds; wheat middlings, 30 pounds; corn meal, 30 pounds; oil meal, 8 to 10 pounds; salt one pound, supplemented with warm milk. It is customary to feed small quantities of this ration to pigs from the time they are four weeks old until after weaning. The grain and the skim milk may be fed separately before weaning but afterwards the two can be combined.

The litter can be entirely separated from the sow and put upon a growing ration when eight weeks old. The foregoing ration for pigs is designed for use during this period and should not be changed in composition.

SPRAYING SAVES CROP FOR CURRANT GROWERS

Have you noticed any little green worms marked with black spots, eating the leaves of your currant bushes?

If you haven't you probably will sometime during the next few weeks, because these "currant worms" are the troublesome pests which year after year, strip the foliage from many currant bushes and leave even the most faithful and painstaking gardeners without a crop.

This pest, however, is an easy one to kill off if treated in time, according to J. G. Moore of the College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin. Just as soon as the worms make their appearance, or you notice holes eaten out of the leaves, spray the bushes with arsenate of lead, or Paris Green solution to which a little lime has been added.

This Paris Green solution is made by adding one ounce of pure Paris Green to ten gallons of water and stirring thoroughly. This mixture will not injure either the fruit or the foliage if two or three ten gallons of the liquid.

MRS. THOMAS CURRAN DIES AT ASHFORD

Death Comes After Long Siege of Heart Disease. Funeral Held Monday Morning

Mrs. Katherine Curran, wife of Thomas Curran, died at 8:15 Saturday at her home in the town of Ashford, after suffering from heart trouble for the past few years.

She was born in the town of Auburn in 1856. Besides her husband she leaves two sons, Frank at home; two daughters, Esther and Isabel, at home; one brother, Thomas McCullough, of Campbellsport; and four sisters, Mrs. Patrick Flynn and the Misses Mary, Isabel and Ella McCullough, all of Campbellsport.

The funeral was held at 10 o'clock Monday morning from St. Mary's church, Campbellsport, Rev. B. J. officiating. Burial was made in Union cemetery.

UNITED IN MATRIMONY

Last Saturday afternoon, June 20 at 3 o'clock occurred the marriage of Miss Olga Ramthun, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ramthun, of the town of Kewaskum and Mr. Louis Wilke of the town of Scott. The ceremony was performed at the St. Lucas church in this village with Rev. F. Greve officiating.

The bridesmaids were the Misses Klumb and Schwenke of Milwaukee, while the Messrs. Claus and Glass acted as groomsmen. The little Misses Alvina Ramthun and Anita Feltenz were the flower girls. The bride was very beautifully gowned in a white messaline silk dress trimmed with shadow lace, and carried pink and white carnations.

After the ceremony at the church the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where a reception was held to a number of invited guests.

The young couple will be at home to their many friends on the farm of the groom in the town of Scott. We extend our heartiest congratulations to the happy couple.

The Milwaukee Journal Adds Four-Page Comic Section

The Milwaukee Journal announces the additions of a four-page colored comic supplement to their regular Sunday paper.

The comic supplement contains a full page of Buster Brown, Mary Jane and Buster's dog Tige, a full page of Dolly Dimples, a page of Pa and his titled Son-in-law, and also a page of Hilda, the one and only hired girl who never held a job.

No other comic supplement excels in quality of humor or color effects. Besides the comic, there are many other pages of interesting news and feature matter that appeal to all.

The price of a yearly subscription including this big feature, is now but $3.00.

Why should anyone pay five dollars for a daily and Sunday paper when the Journal will supply them for just about half the price.

The old rate of $2.50 per year for the daily and Sunday without the comic is still in force.

RURAL CARRIERS PICNIC ON SUNDAY

The Rural Letter Carrier's Association will hold their second annual picnic at the Park Hotel at Big Cedar Lake, tomorrow, Sunday. At eleven o'clock a business meeting will be held. At 1 o'clock dinner will be served at the Park Hotel, to which all rural letter carriers and postmasters, assistant postmasters and post office clerks have been invited. The picnic this year promises to be a very social affair and from reports that Secretary John H. Martin has received a large crowd will be in attendance.

RINGLING DAY ALMOST HERE

Big Circus Bound This Way On Five Great Trains Loaded With Wonders

Children are now on their best behavior in anticipation of a real holiday treat on July 7th, when Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Shows will exhibit in Pond du Lac. It is expected that Kewaskum will send more than its usual number of "sawdust fans" to welcome this popular circus.

Ringling Brothers promise many novelties and innovations and a "bigger and better everything" is the slogan. Preceding the regular circus performance the new spectacle of "Shommon and the Queen of Sheba" will be enacted on the largest stage in the world. This mammoth 1,250 character pageant cost $1,000,000 and the costumes, scenery and stage properties are said to be a revelation in gorgeousness. Among the 355 scenic acts are scores of equestrians including the Lloyd, famous English riders; the Borstein, rolling globe artists; the Balkanis, whirlwind riders from the Balkan mountains; the five highest perch acts ever presented; boxing and wrestling kangaroos; five herds of trick elephants, 50 clowns, 20 families of acrobats and a magnificent horse show and speed tournament. The menagerie is larger and more complete than ever and comprises many animals never before exhibited in America. A free street parade will be given on the morning of show day.

Dividend 13 Percent Paid

Your chances of living to a ripe old age are better now than they were, even a few short years ago. According to the United States Census Bureau report, there was a decrease in 1913 of one of eight deaths as compared with 1901.

These are not freak years. The decline has been consistent throughout the period. To indicate what this saving in life means to the country, 134,623 more people would have died in 1913 had the average rate of the period from 1901 to 1905 prevailed.

This is an interesting and important trial balance. It shows that a tremendous dividend is being paid on the life saving business. Certainly the investment of a little more in the "business of living" has paid.

During this period there has been an encouraging decrease in the number of the commercial medical societies. Standards of training and practice have been tremendously elevated.

The public owes much to the medical profession for its conscientious and successful efforts to reform itself and elevate standards. This is particularly true because of the fact that these efforts have been stubbornly resisted by the non-medical public. The changes were made in the face of charges of "jealousy," "the creation of a medical trust," etc., and against the opposition of pretenders.

The number of, and interest in, health associations has increased. The anti-tuberculosis, child welfare, visiting nurse, playground and other similar organizations have done much. The public has supported them generously, and received results out of all proportion to the cost.

Medical inspection of school children, larger appropriations to health departments, better regulation of milk food and drug supplies, have had their share. Dispensaries, public hospitals and sanatoria for contagious diseases, have justly earned the respect and public officials who provided them.

Above all, and a part of all, has been the increase in intelligence and the decrease in superstition concerning disease, cause and nature of disease. From the scientific investigators to the agencies which are popularizing the expert knowledge, the public is receiving incalculable benefits.

What has been accomplished is only a promise of what will be accomplished. The dividends that have been earned are but a guarantee of the larger dividends to come. The promoters of public health enterprises have justified their claims and your confidence. You can afford to invest in health, to invest in health to the fullest extent of your means. For, living is a business—the most important business that life offers.

YEARS AGO RECALLED

June 20, 1896

—Mrs. D. Casey, who had only been ill since last Tuesday, died yesterday afternoon.

—Mat Remmel received his feed bill in his handkerchief and failed to pay it last Monday and will soon be ready for grinding with it.

—Wm. Hausmann returned home last Thursday from the Franklin Mission college and was accompanied by a school mate, John Jensen, who will take in the Kewaskum Fourth of July celebration.

—While at Kohlsivill last Monday, Albert Ogenorth's father gave him $10 to take home and he lost it between here and the above named place, as he wrapped it in his handkerchief and failed to find it upon arriving home.

—Prof. J. O'Neil was tendered a farewell party last Tuesday evening at his departure for Mt. Sterling, Crawford county, last Wednesday forenoon. Among those present were: Miss Mary Wiele of West Bend; Dr. and Mrs. Elmergreen, Misses Annie and Maggie Marschall, D. C. Mayer, and Dr. R. H. English. The professor has been at the head of our school for the past three years and is a well known and respected citizen; so it was but natural that some of our leading citizens should tender him a formal farewell, while many others bid him adieu at the depot. May his admirable traits never grow less in our earnest wish.

HUMANE MEETING

The Washington Co., Humane Society will hold its annual meeting, Sunday June 28, at 2 p. m., in Schauer's hall at Hartford, Wis. Everyone who is interested in the humane cause, and everybody should be interested in this important work, is cordially invited to attend this mass meeting. Our organization was organized on January 9, 1914, with the following officers: E. C. Schauer, Hartford, President; C. P. Leins, West Bend, Vice-president; Rev. E. A. Kuhn, Hartford, Secretary & Treasurer; Dr. Wehle, West Bend, and Dr. H. H. Hart, Hartford, Agents; Dr. A. M. Benson, Hartford, Attorney; G. A. Kuechenmeister, West Bend, Directors.

We are so far a small society but we will have in the near future a large membership all over the county. Kindly advise men and women should get together and work hand in hand for the betterment of our community.

The object of the society is the prevention of abuse or neglect of children or cruelty to animals and for the enforcement of the law relating to said subject. Furthermore to see that neglected and dependent children and the other persons are cared for. To seek out and punish all persons who have proved the ables of crime, the dwellings of infamy, to rescue children from corrupt atmosphere and place them in good homes under good influence and generally to provide effective means for the prevention of all forms of cruelty to persons and animals.

Such work should interest every high type of man and woman. And if you come to the meeting you will hear more. Well known men will make short addresses relating to this work. Following is the program:

DEATH OF MRS. CHARLES MORGENROTH

On Wednesday, June 24th, occurred the death of Mrs. Charles Morgenroth, of this village, after a ten days illness with brights disease. Mrs. Morgenroth was born in Nassau, Germany, on November 12, 1843. She was therefore 71 years of age. In the year 1849, she immigrated to America, settling in the town of Farmington, where she lived up to about a year ago, when she came to Kewaskum, with her husband. She was united in marriage to Charles Morgenroth on May 1863. Of this union nine children were born six of whom survive, namely: Mrs. L. W. Juergens, Eureka, Wis.; Dr. E. L. Morgenroth, Kewaskum; Dr. H. W. Morgenroth, Oshkosh; Mrs. Aug. Schupp, Kewaskum; Mrs. Henry Kliesig, Milwaukee; Dr. E. A. Morgenroth, Berlin. Besides these children, she leaves a grief-stricken husband to mourn her demise. The funeral was held today, Saturday, June 27, at 11 a. m. from the Boltonville church. Rev. Kuehne of Silver Creek officiating. Interment was made in the Boltonville cemetery. This paper together with its many readers desires to express its heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family in this their hour of deep affliction.

AGED AND RESPECTED RESIDENT CALLED AWAY

Peter Fellenz Died at the St. Agnes Hospital at Fond du Lac Where He Had Been Receiving Treatment

With this issue of the Statesman it becomes our painful duty to chronicle the passing of another of our respected citizens, namely, Peter Fellenz. Mr. Fellenz had been at the St. Agnes hospital at Fond du Lac for the past seven weeks, taking treatment, and the end came at the latter place on Saturday, June 20, 1914. The remains were brought to this village on Sunday afternoon and placed in his home.

Deceased was born in Bengel Trier, Germany, on March 25, 1847; thereby having reached the age of 72 years in 1917. He immigrated to this country in 1877, settling in the town of Kewaskum, after which he moved to this village in 1878. He had been living at his present home since May 1, 1888.

On July 7, 1888, he was united in marriage to Miss Anna Katherine Steffan, who preceded him in death twenty-three years ago, on March 8, 1891. Eleven children were born of this union of whom eight survive, namely: Barbara Mrs. Jos. Schaefer of Wabeno, Ida at home; Mathilda of Milwaukee; Frank of Texas; Anna Sr. M. Sophonia of St. Agnes convent, Fond du Lac; Christina at home; Henry of Milwaukee; Philip of Indianapolis, Ind.

Mr. Fellenz was employed for thirty-two years by the H. J. Lay Lumber company and owing to his faithfulness and strict adherence to business, the present high standard of that company was reached. He also had held the office of assessor of the town of Kewaskum for four years. He was always a kind and loving husband and father and a faithful worker in the Catholic church, of which he had been a lifelong member.

The funeral was held from the home to the Holy Trinity church on Tuesday, June 23rd, at 10 o'clock. Rev. Ph. Vogt officiating. Interment was made in Holy Trinity cemetery.

The bereaved members of the family and relatives have our heartfelt sympathy for their irreparable loss.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to thank all those who so kindly assisted us during the illness and burial of our beloved father, Peter Fellenz, and to all those who showed their respect for the departed one by attending the funeral. We also desire to thank the H. J. Lay Lumber Co. for its beautiful floral tribute.

SEVERE WIND AND HAIL STORM EXPERIENCED

Last Tuesday Night a Severe Wind and Hail Storm Struck This Village and Vicinity

During last Tuesday night a terrible wind and hail storm struck this village and vicinity, doing a lot of damage to garden truck and tearing huge trees up by the roots. We hear that the silo on the Rosenheimer-Day farm, formerly the Scheid farm, was blown down and also a barn on the Adolph Baekhaus farm. John Muehleis a rural mail carrier on route 4 was delayed three quarters of an hour on account of having to wait the removal of a large tree which had been uprooted and blown across the road near the Bath farm. The storm seemed to have been general throughout this section of the country and thousands of dollars worth of damage has been reported from different sections.

MARRIED AT CAMPBELLSPORT

Miss Katie Hilbert, who resides two miles north of Campbellsport, and Samuel Andrew Wagner of Anawa were married at 9 o'clock last Wednesday morning at St. Matthew's church, Campbellsport, Rev. B. J. officiating the ceremony. They were attended by Miss Irene Wagner, Miss Marie Kahne, John Hilbert and Walter Hilbert. The bride wore a gown of white silk chiffon and Brussels net trimmed with oriental lace. Her veil was caught with rosebuds and she carried a prayer book. Miss Wagner's gown was of white tulle cloth, trimmed with shadow lace, and she carried pink carnations. Miss Kahne wore tan brocade crepe.

After the ceremony a company of some fifty relatives and friends were entertained at the home of the bride's parents at a breakfast and reception. Those who assisted in serving were the Misses Irene Mullen, Theresa Schomer and Bernice Johnson. The tables were decorated with carnations, smilax and ferns, while white and white crepe paper decorated the house.

The groom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wagner, is a well known farmer and after a four weeks trip to Anawa and points in northern Wisconsin he and his bride will make their home on his farm near Anawa and will be at home to their friends after Aug. 1. His bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hilbert-Fond du Lac Commonweath.

FORMER KEWASKUM LADY MARRIED

George Kissinger and Miss Clara Basil, both of West Bend, were married in Holy Angel's church Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, the ceremony being performed by Rev. P. J. Stupfel. The bride was attended by Miss Christina Schoenharr of North Dakota and Miss Margaret Kissinger of Polk, while the groom's attendants were Ed. Kissinger and John Basil of the Ed. Kissinger and John Basil of the New London and Wabeno. Upon their return they will make their home for a time with the bride's parents and later will begin house keeping. Mr. Kissinger was for the past five years employed as a carpenter by contractor Baer. He is an industrious young man has only the best of habits and will surely prove a good husband. His bride came to this city several years ago, but during her brief residence here won many friends, all of whom hold her in the highest of esteem. We extend to this worthy young couple our hearty congratulations and best wishes for future happiness—West Bend Pilot.

BOLTONVILLE

Miss Edith Smith is visiting relatives at Milwaukee.

Mr. and Mrs. Wierman and family Sunday at Adell.

Mrs. A. R. Woog of Batavia called on the Frohmann family Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stautz of West Bend spent Saturday and Sunday in our village.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Frohmann and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Wippler made an auto trip to Sheboygan Friday.

Due to the rainy weather the base ball game on the home grounds with Kewaskum was called off.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

J. J. Hahn, the agent for the beet sugar factory at Menomonee Falls, had a very narrow escape last Thursday from a serious accident. He was walking along the highway from Rockfield, Wis. to Schlesinger, when an auto party stopped and offered him a ride. As he was getting into the car another auto came up and in passing knocked Mr. Hahn down and ran over him. The machine did not stop. The first auto took Mr. Hahn to Schlesinger, where it was found he was badly bruised but not seriously injured. An attempt is being made to find the owner of the auto that ran him down.—Hartford Press.

CEEDAR LAWN

Joe Kahne of Osceola was here on business last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Gudex returned from Loyal last Thursday.

HE COMES UP SMILING

SYNOPSIS.

The Watermelon and James, two tramps, bantering each other regarding their personal appearance, decide to clean up and acquire new clothes and let their companion, Mike, be the judge as to who is the better looking. Watermelon goes to a barber shop, wins the contents of the cash register from the barber by a clever trick and gets a shave. He discovers a young man bathing in a lake and steals his clothes. While sitting in an automobile he discovered a crossman and his daughter, Henrietta, drive up in a car. Assuming that the car is disabled, the general offers assistance. Watermelon hands him a card bearing the name of William H. Bartlett. The general recognizes the name as that of a young man who broke the cotton corner in Wall street a few days before. He invites him to dine with them. Watermelon is introduced to Bartlett, who is the operator of the general's business. Bartlett, who proceeds to fall in love with the general's daughter, Henrietta, plans to keep the supposed broker with him for a week while he works in the market. He gives instructions to his brother, while chatting with Billy, the telegraph boy, to give a message to Watermelon. Watermelon decides to join Bartlett and the general in a week's auto trip. Watermelon slips away and tells his hobo companions of his adventure and asks them to give him the tramp clothes. The party starts out with Bartlett's and Crossman's cars. Late at night a house is broken into and the party becomes lost. The party is arrested and held before a country justice for speeding. Watermelon realizes the vast gap between himself and Billy, and becomes despondent.

CHAPTER XVI.

A Thief in the Night.

Billy laughed a low, throaty gurgle, and laid her hand an instant on his sleeve. "Don't you see, she believed in God and she believed in you. You didn't go back on her. Would God?" The Watermelon had no answer. He was busy with a scene of the long ago. He and the youngest Miss Martin had been engaged in a set-to which hardly savored of brotherly love, and parental authority had separated them and passed judgment. "Sister should not have struck you," the mother said as she stood him grimly in the corner. "But, Jeroboam, you should not have deceived sister. If you men would only keep faith with your women, this world would be too good to leave, even for Heaven," she had added with her usual tired sigh. "How had he kept faith with Billy?" The question started him in the face and he felt like the child again, standing in the corner, unable to answer. For the sake of an amusing week of her society, he had practically betrayed her father, had branded himself a thief by keeping the clothes, the watch, the money, which he had taken wrongly, for a few hours' fun, but which he had intended to return. In the love he felt for the girl, his long-stuffed conscience slowly stirred again.

Billy was talking, crooning her comfort with the maternity latent in all women for the men they love. "Don't you see, Jerry, there is a God? Think of you did for your mother, think of how proud she was of you when you did so well. By sheer grit you have made yourself what you are. You are tired and blue tonight, poor old boy." The Watermelon was not listening. He took a roll of bills from his pocket and counted them. Billy watched him in perplexity. Was he worrying over money, she wondered. One hundred and seventy-four dollars left. He had not had an opportunity to spend more of that roll of bills which he had betrayed a woman and lowered his manhood to steal. He crushed the bills back into his pocket and rose. "We had better go back," said he shortly. "It's late." They found Henrietta and Bartlett on the front porch, talking in low voices, oblivious to all else. The general had long since sought the doubtful comfort of the country bed for city boarders. Billy held out her hand to the Watermelon, a little ceremony, she had heretofore neglected, wishing in her tender little heart that she understood his strange mood better and could comfort him. "Good night," said she gently. "Good night," said the Watermelon. Henrietta rose. "I didn't know it was so late. Wait, Billy, I am coming with you. Good night, all." Bartlett followed the girls, but at the door he stopped and glanced back at the Watermelon standing on the grass by the steps. "Better come to bed," said he.

HIS APOLOGY DOUBLE EDGED

California Statesman. Compelled to Withdraw Words, Contrived to Leave Sting Behind Retraction.

During the session of the California state legislature in the winter of 1893 a bill was introduced in the house repealing so much of an existing law as prohibited a negro from testifying in either civil or criminal cases pending against a white person. Hon. J. W. Owen of Santa Clara county was advocating the bill, and during the course of his remarks he said: "Mr. Speaker, in the county which I have the honor to represent there resides a negro barber, who, in point of natural ability or acquired culture, is the peer of more than half the members of this house." Instantly a dozen of the so-called "chivalry" were on their feet, demanding that the insulting and unparliamentary language be taken down and the orator be punished for its use. The speaker so ordered; and in the midst of the confusion which ensued a motion to adjourn prevailed. The following day the sub-

The Watermelon nodded abstractedly and Bartlett went in, leaving him out there alone. Without thinking of Billy other than as a pretty girl with whom to flirt, moved by the mischief of the moment, he had placed her father financially at the mercy of his enemy. And now to right the wrong to Billy, the only thing he could do would be to tell them who he was, a tramp, masquerading with decent people in his stolen finery. Petty thieving, the sharp tricks of the road, had passed quickly from his conscience, but this was different. A woman had been thrown into the bargain, the woman he loved, and Henrietta and the general trusted him. Bartlett deserved all he got, and Bartlett he dismissed with the comforting conviction that he was doing him a good turn. But Billy, Henrietta and the general! A very smile twisted the Watermelon's mouth as he thought of the horror on the general's face when he learned that he had spent the week in the company of a nameless hobo. For a while he contemplated hurrying away the watch along with the rest of the "hardware" and stealing away in the dark, hitting the trail again and catching up with Mike and James on their annual pilgrimage north. He drew the bills from his pocket and thought of all Bartlett would lose if he crept away without explaining, and Bartlett was Billy's father.

He heard a step on the porch and turned to see Billy hesitating in the doorway. "Jerry," she whispered softly and glanced behind her as though fearful of seeing her father or Henrietta peering at her over the banisters. He went toward her, the bills still in his hand. "Billy," said he, "thrusting the money into his pocket, 'what are you doing at this time of night?' And he looked down at her tenderly in the dark where the hall lamp could not reveal his face.

Billy hesitated. She had seen the bills again and knew that he was worried. To worry over money matters was an unknown experience to Billy. She felt a delicacy in mentioning her errand. "I—I came to see if the moon had set," she faltered. "It's set," said the Watermelon. "Well," said Billy, "then I will go back." "Good night," said the Watermelon. "Good night," said Billy, and lingered. Then she laid her hand on his arm and spoke in a rush. "Oh, Jerry, please don't worry. If you want any money, father has heaps. You can have all you want."

The Watermelon drew a bit nearer. "Billy, Billy," said he softly. "I think it must be terrible to worry about money," Billy hurried on. "It's no worth it." "I'm not worrying about money, kid," said the Watermelon with a laugh. "I have a bunch. What made you think I was?" "Twice tonight you've counted your money." "Eau's bowl of pottage," sneered the Watermelon, turning unconsciously to the old familiarity with the Bible. "Say, Billy, if he found he didn't like his pottage, could he give it back and get his birthright again?" Billy blushed. She was not sure who Eau was. In a dim way she remembered the name and vaguely associated it with the Bible. "Couldn't he have gotten something else?" she asked judiciously. "No," said the Watermelon. "He had nothing more to sell." "What did he sell?" "His birthright—for a mess of pottage." "Why'd he do that?" "He was stony broke, he wanted something to eat, see, and he sold his all for a mess of pottage. Now, if he found he didn't like his pottage, could he have given it back and gotten his birthright again?" "Yes, indeed," chirped Billy. "I don't see why not. But why didn't he get something better than a mess of pottage?" "Don't ask me, kid. But, I guess you're right. No one can keep your birthright unless you're willing they should."

"I usually know more about the Bible," stammered Billy, fearful of the impression her ignorance must have made. "I know about Moses and Ruth." The Watermelon nodded. "You see, I was called up under the head of unfinished business and Mr. Owen made the following characteristic apology: 'Mr. Speaker, yesterday, in the heat of debate, I used words which the opponents of the measure under consideration claim to have been unparliamentary and an insult to the intelligence of the members of this house. It was not my purpose to offend any one, and I hereby withdraw the objectionable words used, and most humbly apologize to any and all of my colleague who feel aggrieved by their utterance; but as to the fact I stated, God Almighty alone is responsible for it.'"

UNEARH WAR CACHE BULLETS.

Plumbers at Winchester, Va., excavating near an ally in the rear of a Main street establishment unearthed 5,000 bullets, buried in a heap several feet below the surface, presumably by Union soldiers when Stonewall Jackson was forcing a retreat during the Civil war. The bullets are of the small minnie ball mold, used in old Springfield rifles, and the cache weighs over 200 pounds.

WILL FIND MONEY A BURDEN

Vincent Astor's Immense Fortune Likely to Bring Out the Best Qualities in Him.

The papers say that Vincent Astor on his birthday came into about seventy millions. A snowball is a good thing if you want one, but an avalanche is inconvenient. It sweeps one off his feet and is liable to leave him out of sight or with his feet sticking out of a hard snow bank. A dollar is a good thing, but an avalanche of dollars is something to get from under. The important thing to a young man is the development of his manhood. An avalanche of dollars is not good for that. It is likely to crush him out of shape. A mature and seasoned man like Mr. Carnegie or Mr. Rockefeller may make a fair bluff of surmounting such a catastrophe, but it's hard on a young fellow. It starts him with a great debt to society, dischargeable only by a man of first rate talents and training, and hardly by him. We see remarkable efforts made by very remarkable men to discharge the obligations that naturally come with inflated fortunes, and while they don't wholly fall their success is not impressive. These vast fortunes are symptoms of social disease; not very alarming, we hope, but apt to be bad for the individual patient on whom the dropsy fastens.—Harper's Weekly.

First Pincers. The lobster's claw is said to be the original gas-fitter's pincers. There are many other pincer-carrying animals, especially the scorpions, and among these we can find nearly as great a variety as in the hardware shop. Shears and scissors are very similar in operation to the pincers, and we find a number of creatures carrying such tools. The earwig, for instance, carry a pair of forceps as skillfully constructed as any a centipede uses. The power of the big pincers of a crab or lobster's claw is well known, and some of the modern instruments used for gas-fitting are based on principles of construction somewhat similar.—From George Ethelbert Walsh's "The First Invention," St. Nicholas.

Home Rule. This talk about married men being bossed is all bosh. A married man can make his wife do anything she wants to do.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

They, Too, Were Empty. They found the girls in the dining room, unaware of what had befallen them. They had slept late and the clock on the mantel registered half past nine as the three men filed into the room. The general was calm, pompous, austere, but Henrietta had not lived with him for five and thirty years without having acquired the ability to read his every mood. "Father," she asked, "what's the matter? Have your sins found you out?" The general waited for the slatternly maid-servant to give them their breakfast and leave the room before he spoke. "We have been robbed," he said.

calmly, casually, as one would expect from the weather. Henrietta and Billy stared. "It's the stable-boy," said the general. "I noticed him carefully last night. He would not look any one in the face." "He goes home every night," objected Henrietta. "Mrs. Parker told me so." "That's no reason he couldn't come back," said the general. "It was clever in him to take our check-books," said Bartlett. "He will forge our names," declared the general. "I made a check out to pay for the board here, signed it, too, I remember, and then I found some cash and thought I would use that and went to bed and forgot to destroy the check. I know it was the stable-boy, for my room has a balcony in front, over the porch, and last night it was so warm I left the door open." "Maybe it was," agreed Henrietta. "I hate to suspect him, though."

CHAPTER XVII.

Alphonse Rides Away.

"The stable-boy would have access to the back of the house, too," said the general, who felt that if he had not become a general and had escaped being a master mechanic, he would have been a famous detective. "Yes," agreed the Watermelon. "But I don't think it is the boy. I was out until after eleven, and just before I came in I saw him drive up with the girl. They had been out to some dance and he left her ad drove on." The girl appeared in the doorway wiping a plate, slipshod and awkward. Henrietta blushed, the general was painfully confused and the other three turned their attention hastily to their food. "Want anything?" asked the girl. "No, thank you," replied Henrietta gently, feeling that in judging the stable-boy she had somehow injured the girl. The girl lingered a moment, glanced significantly at the clock, and went out. "Who could it be?" asked Billy, pleasantly excited. "Why, this is terrible," said Henrietta. "If the boy didn't do it, there is no one else who could have, but the family." "It looks that way," admitted the Watermelon. "What shall we do?" gasped Billy. "What shall we pay them with?" The slatternly girl again appeared in the doorway, much to the general's nervousness. "Want anything?" she asked, and glanced again at the clock. "No," said Henrietta. "No, thank you." "I will speak to Parker," declared the general as the girl left. "I wish you didn't have to," sighed Henrietta. "It's horrid to lose your money, but it must be so much worse to need money so that you would steal it." "But that's the test of honesty," declared the general. "To need money and not steal."

Easiest Way to Make Fancy Waist

If there is one article of clothing upon which the manufacturers may depend for a long, long profit, more than upon any other, it is the fancy waist made of lace, chiffon, net, silk, embroidery or any other of the pretty things which are so alluring and so fragile. The materials required are not in themselves very expensive, but the finished product, as in the case of millinery, is so much a matter of translating fabrics into little poems of apparel that it is the idea and its working out that commands the price. And the price is usually something to cause a gasp like that following a plunge into cold water. The unfeeling owner of an exclusive Fifth avenue shop mentions anywhere from $15 to $30 in the most casual and off-hand way, when one begins inquiring as to the value of three yards of chiffon and a few bits of other materials sewed together. The easiest way to make these fancy waists is first to buy a dressmaker's form or dummy upon which to drape the material. Get one with the correct neck and waist measure, and as like yourself in shape as possible. Simple waists of plain net or of lace are to be had in the department stores at a very reasonable price, that is in the neighborhood of two or three dollars. Or a foundation waist may be made a very little cheaper at home. But those to be had in the shops are cut on good and up-to-date lines. These waists make the best of foundations on which to drape the chiffon or net or lace or other fabrics which enter into the composition of fancy waists. Chiffon veils, in pretty colors and with hem-stitched edges, are easily used to make drapery for these waists. Plain chiffons, embroidered voiles, and nets, answer the same purpose. In the waist pictured here voile is draped over a foundation waist of lace with five effect. In attempting a fancy waist, it is much the easiest way to select a waist, or the picture of one, and follow out its details.

Popular Hats for Vacation Trips

This is a hat with considerable durability to recommend it, as well as good looks. Flowers, so much in evidence on the dressier hats of the season, are not used on outing or traveling hats. But fruits, less fragile, are a part of the play with cherries as the star. Fringed ribbons, that is, ribbons raveled out into fringed ends, or spaces, are pleasing on hats that depend on ribbon alone for decoration. But there are not many of these. Too many good ornaments made ready to use, too many good substantial fancy feathers, save the time of trimmers. The trimming of hats of this kind is distinctly within the scope of the home milliner. A shape originally belonging and simply trimmed is sure to turn out satisfactory. Among one's belongings good millinery materials, left over from other reasons, if of the right character, save money and answer the purpose for traveling hats. JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

No Slit Skirts Worn.

"I have not seen a single woman, well groomed or otherwise, in the streets of Paris wearing a slit skirt," writes a fashion correspondent. "While speaking of skirts, I may tell you that the new ones, for all occasions, are worn a little longer and not loosely gathered around the waist, or made with a full, plait at both front and back. By the way, the waist is not placed quite as high as last season. The tailor-made jackets are small and cut away in front, and most of them have the long, oval tail-piece back. Evening dresses aim distinctly at the grande and the Dresden china and Dolly Varden types do not find expression in the mandates of la mode."

Metal Ribbons.

Lightweight metal ribbons, in elaborate designs, are among the newest things offered for trimming dresses. These may be used in combination with metal laces, or for vestings or girdles on evening dresses.

White Marks. White marks can be removed from the top of a table and it can be made to look like new in the following manner. Slightly dampen a piece of wadding with methylated spirit, over which place a piece of white linen rag; screw round at back so as to form a portion to hold with, then apply with a circular motion where the marks are, rubbing gently, always in the same direction, until the marks disappear. Then rub well with a dry clean cloth, after which polish with a good furniture cream. On no account must the spirit be put directly on the linen, but on the wadding, which cover with the linen before using.

Well-Cooked Prunes.

To preserve their rich, fruity flavor, do not boil prunes. Soak them overnight in cold water to cover them, then take them out and boil for fifteen minutes, adding sugar. Put in the prunes and let them merely simmer for half an hour. Some cooks simply pour boiling hot water over them and let them stand on the back of the stove a few hours. A new flavor can be given by adding a few slices of lemon. Another method is to cook them with a bag of spices.

New Walnut Recipe.

If you are fond of walnuts try roasting them for a change and you will not care to use them raw again. Shell the walnuts, put them in a pan with about one teaspoonful of butter to a cup or more of the nuts. Sprinkle with salt and place in a moderate oven, stirring occasionally to prevent burning. Do not allow them to become brown, as this spoils the flavor.

Green Pea Soup.

Put one can of peas, one small onion sliced and one can of water together. Cook 20 minutes then add one can of milk, for both the milk and water must be measured in the can the peas were in. When hot, thicken with one tablespoonful of butter and two of flour rubbed together, and season to taste. Boil ten minutes, strain and serve.

Whole Wheat Nut Bread.

One egg, one-half cupful sugar, one-half teaspoonful salt, one and one-half cupfuls sweet milk, one cupful chopped walnut meats, two cupfuls whole wheat flour, one and one-half cupfuls baking powder. Mix and allow to rise for 20 minutes, then bake in moderate oven.

Stocking Hint.

To do away with darning, rub the heels of new stockings with paraffin. Put the stocking over the darning egg and warm the paraffin enough to make it soft in the hand, then rub well. You will find that this protects the heel against the rubbing, and that it will not wear out.

To Serve With Spring Lamb.

By scalding the mint before adding sugar, salt, vinegar and juice from half a lemon—a finer flavor will be produced. It can also be bottled and will keep for some time—adding preparing it each time when desired.

BETTER FLAVORINGS THAN CAN BE PURCHASED.

Rose Leaves Cooked With Sugar Until It Jellies is One of the Best—Ginger Extract Little Trouble to Prepare—Vanilla.

When roses are in bloom those who have gardens can make a delicious jelly from the petals for flavoring cakes, puddings or sauce.

The rose leaves must be laid on trays to dry, otherwise they will mold before a sufficient quantity are ready. Put the petals into a preserving kettle with just enough water to cover and cook until they are every one tender. Then measure and cook with sugar, pint for pint, until it changes to a thick jelly. A teaspoonful is enough to flavor any dish.

Rose Flavoring.—Fill a bottle with rose leaves crowding in as many as possible. Pour in pure grain alcohol, so the petals are covered, and cork tightly. Set away in a cool place for several weeks. Then strain and the flavoring is ready for use.

Ginger Extract.—Ginger root is cheap now, and if the extract is made at home one can at least feel it is pure. It is no trouble, because you just cover two ounces of ginger root, bruised well, with half a pint of pure grain alcohol.

Vanilla Essence.—Cut three vanilla pods into shreds and put into a bottle, covering with half a pint of good brandy. Cork tightly. Shake occasionally during the two months the bottle should stand.

Strawberry Extract.—This is a most delicious extract. Fill a glass fruit jar (quart) with large ripe berries and cover with good brandy. In a couple of weeks strain through cheese cloth and pour into small bottles. Cork them tightly and store in a cool, dry place.

Lemon Flavorings.—When only the juice of a lemon is needed, first scrub it and wipe it dry. Then grate off the yellow rind carefully so none of the white goes in, because this gives a bitter taste. Put the grated rind into a small bottle, pressing it down well. Cover with pure grain alcohol. Set away for three weeks, then strain, and the extract is ready for use.

Raspberry Vinegar.—A teaspoonful of raspberry vinegar added to a glass of water makes a most refreshing drink. When raspberries are at their best put two quarts into a jar or crock (must be earthenware) and cover with one quart of good cider vinegar. Cover closely and leave for two days. At the end of that time wash the berries and strain off the liquid. Pour this over another quart of fresh berries and set aside for two days. Then strain and put the liquid into the preserving kettle, allowing one pound of sugar to each pint of juice. Cook gently for ten minutes. Skim, strain and bottle.

Shades of Mendelssohn In the Liverpool (England) diocese a few weeks ago a very popular wedding took place, the contracting parties being a young clergyman and the daughter of a widely known vicar.

As the happy pair left the church to the familiar strains of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," the following remark was pathetically uttered by one working woman to another: "Just think of Miss — having ragtime played at her wedding."

MRS. WINN'S ADVICE TO WOMEN

Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and be Restored to Health.

Kansas City, Mo.—"The doctors told me I would never be a mother. Every month the pains were so bad that I could not bear my weight on one foot.

I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and had not finished the first bottle when I felt greatly relieved and it took me sound and well, and I now have two fine baby girls. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly for what it has done for me.

1913 RECORD Magnificent Crops in all Western Canada

All parts of the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, have produced wonderful yields of Wheat, Oats, Barley and Flax. Wheat graded from Contract to No. 1 Hard, weighed heavy and yielded from 20 to 45 bushels per acre; 22 bushels was about the total average. Mixed Farming is an industry as grain raising, the excellent grasses full of nutrition, are the only food required either for beef or dairy purposes. In 1912, and again in 1913, at Chicago, Manitoba carried off the Championship for best steer. Good schools, markets convenient, climate excellent. For the homesteader, the man who wishes to farm extensively, or the investor, Canada offers the biggest opportunity of any place on the continent.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many of the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium, are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

BUSINESS AND THE TARIFF

Secretary McAdoo Tells a Little Story to Illustrate What He Thinks Effect Will Be.

Since both the tariff and the currency bills come within the scope of the treasury department, it is natural that newspaper men should go there to query the chiefs with questions about their probable effect on business. "Boys," said Secretary McAdoo recently, "there's nothing to it. The country has been subjected to revisions before, and always has survived them successfully. Generally speaking, the attitude of business is of receptive indifference toward the changes that have been made, because business men have made up their minds not to let such things interfere with their business. It is just like Freddy. Do you know about him?" "One day Freddy's mother said: 'Freddy, if you are not a good boy to-night you'll go to bed without your dinner.' 'Ma,' shouted businesslike Freddy, 'what we goin' to have for dinner?'" —The Sunday Magazine.

Valuable Land in Egypt.

The presence in this country of Sir William Willcocks, of Assouan dam fame, and now engaged on the flood control of the Tigris-Euphrates river, is an event of more than ordinary significance, because of its bearing upon the question of the control of flood water, says the Wall Street Journal. The Nile valley irrigation works, according to Sir William, has enabled 11,000,000 people to live on 6,000,000 acres. Land, he says, in the vicinity of the Assouan dam is worth from $750 to $1,000 an acre, and they raise five hundredweight of cotton on it, which is worth $100. His view of its worth is of much value because of his experience in Asia and Africa. No foreigner has more studiously read the reports of our river and harbor engineers. His main suggestions are that the levees be made wider and that better channels be provided to mitigate the strain when waters at their maximum might be cut off as a means of safety.

Mistaken in the Portrait.

Menzel, the German artist, was a regular patron of a certain Berlin wine shop. One day a man and wife came in and sat down at his table; and presently Menzel noticed that the woman was making fun of him. "Calmly he drew out his sketching book, gazed at the woman while, as if to study her face for a portrait, and then commenced to draw. Her husband immediately took notice: 'I forbid you to draw a picture of my wife. Stop it!' he exclaimed, angrily. Menzel made a few finishing touches and then passing the sketching book over to the man, he inquired, with a laugh, 'Is that your wife?' He had drawn a goose." —Youth's Companion.

Modern Feminism.

Two girls were sipping coffee and smoking cigarettes through long tubes of gold and amber. The first girl said pensively, swaying her pretty foot in and out of her slashed skirt: "Do you believe, dear, that we should work for our husbands?" "You bet I do!" the second girl answered. "You just bet I do!" "I mean after we're married," said the first girl. "Oh," said the other, "after we're married, certainly not!"

ERUPTION DISFIGURED FACE

Lock Box 35, Maurice, Ia.—"In the spring of 1911 our little daughter, age five years, had a breaking out on her lip and part of her cheek that we took for ringworm. It resembled a large ringworm, only it differed in that it was covered with watery blisters that itched and burned terribly, made worse by her scratching it. Then the blisters would break through and let out a watery substance. She would cry and fretful while she had it and had very little rest at night. When the eruption was at its worst the teacher of the school sent her home and would not allow her to attend until the disfigurement of her face was gone. "I wrote and received a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, which we used according to directions, and they gave instant relief, so we bought some more. It really got her better. We kept on using Cuticura Soap and Ointment in and three or four months the child was entirely cured." (Signed) Mr. Henry Prins, Oct. 22, 1912. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 22-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

NOTES from MEADOWBROOK FARM

Study each cow's tastes. There is profit in broom corn. For moles in the garden use traps. As a soil builder clover has very few equals. Shelters should be supplied in every pig pasture. A few staples prevents many a breachy heifer.

In warm or hot weather provide shade for the chicks. We must either put our idle land to work, sell it or lose it. No place is too small to afford some garden or plant growth.

The safety of a horse depends largely upon his early education. Putting colts in damp, dark stables is likely to produce rheumatism. Plenty of salt is vitally essential to the thriftiness of young stock.

Get the chicks out on the fresh ground and fresh air as soon as possible. Mix all the cream to be churned in one vat or can at least eighteen hours before churning.

Small white onion sets are the best. If they cannot be obtained, yellow sets should be used. A stunted calf will never make as valuable a cow as its inheritance would certainly warrant.

The grass and the cattle are too much better if the owner is not in both of a hurry to use the pasture. The up-to-date farm equipment includes machinery for the housewife as well as for the men outside.

Corn is naturally a hungry thing. If you want it to grow feed it liberally with fertilizer, water and sunshine. Horses are often whipped for things purely imaginary in the mind of the driver, and it is too cruel for words.

Wash the butter once with pure water at the churning temperature, agitating three or four times, and drain. Cream that contains from 30 to 40 per cent butter fat churns better than that having only half so high a fat content.

The temperature of churning should be such as to make the butter come in from 35 to 40 minutes, usually 55 to 60 degrees F. Eggs should not so readily as milk, but readily enough that one can not afford to store onions beside a basket of eggs.

Always offer the horses water before going to bed at night. Never leave the horse thirsty all night after he has eaten his hay. Keep the harrow coming along soon after plowing. This is the beginning of that good surface cultivation that we hear so much about.

Be gentle and quiet in handling the sow and she will never cause any trouble, unless she is a particularly vicious or ill-mannered female. Crows will catch young chickens and carry them off and if they get started they sometimes steal dozens of chickens, unless stopped with a gun.

Hogs roaming at large always supply themselves with pure food and water, and do not suffer from disease as do those which are confined and heavily fed. Probably in no country are commercial fertilizers used to a greater extent than in Germany, and there the yields of crops are upon the average about twice the average yield in the United States.

When the beginner once realizes that the more care used in the selection of the feeds that start the young chickens on their way to maturity there will be less loss, and a better growth. It pays to obtain a good chick grit. Potato peelings, cabbage roots, celery tops and such things are relished by hens and keep the flock healthy. In summer the hens pick up quantities of insects and worms and this form of food must be supplied in winter by scraps of meat or cut bone.

It's pretty safe to follow the old he's method of feeding chicks. She feeds them often and in small bits. She feeds them on the move. She gives them animal food in the form of worms and bugs, and doesn't mix any wet mash.

Spray the chicken coops and fixtures in the poultry house with a good whitewash twice each year, adding two pounds of salt and one-fourth gallon of crude carbolic acid to every 50 gallons of the spraying mixture.

Overcrowding the chicks is one cause of late maturity and undersized specimens of the breed. Too many chickens are placed under the small hovers as a rule, and even after they are old enough to be without heat are then subjected to crowded conditions in the poultry quarters. The growing chicks need plenty of room and fresh air.

Plant the home grounds so as to hide all ugly things in the landscape at the same time being careful not to hide anything that is beautiful.

Why not mix the crops?

Rapo is excellent for hogs. A chilled chick is a dead chick. Movable hog houses are convenient. Feed sour milk to the chicks from the start.

As soon as the chicks crowd they are too cold. The soil must be fed, these days, as well as its owner. All old wood should be removed from the rose bushes.

Leave the chicks in the incubator until 36 to 48 hours old. Slage is the best roughage for fattening any class of cattle.

The chicks should have grain in the litter, so they will exercise. Driving on one rein is usually caused by a sharp tooth or teeth.

Culling the flocks and separating the weak and sick chicks is important. The fence line makes a harbor for weeds, insects and other crop pests.

The practise of feeding hogs on forage crops alone is not economical. Much farm machinery wears out more through exposure than through use.

Use the coarse fodders, straws and the stalk fields for wintering the breeding herd. When bugs are plenty and hens have free range the beef scrap may be discontinued.

Try topworking a few apple or plum trees. The work is interesting, but not hard. For drainage, many acres of now idle land could be brought into profitable cultivation.

Don't yank the lines and swear at the team. Find the cause of the trouble and remove it. Quarantine all hogs you buy for at least three weeks after they are brought on the farm.

Keep a mixture of wood shavings, charcoal, salt, lime, sulphur and coppers before the hogs all the time. The often repeated reminder to give the young pigs whole oats on a raised platform should not be scorned.

Stop churning when the granules are about the size of peas, varying to wheat, and draw off the buttermilk. When the soil is loose to a sufficient depth, corn roots penetrate in abundance to a depth of three or four feet.

No mistake will be made in choosing the Senator Furlap strawberry to grow fruit either for home use or market. Farm manure is a perishable product which must be handled with intelligence to obtain its maximum value.

Where manure is coarse and carelessly spread part of the ground is fertilized and part of it is left without any. Never keep a sow no matter how good or well-bred she may be if she will not produce more than five strong pigs at a litter.

Harden the chicks while still in the incubator by opening the incubator door for about one-half inch after they are well dried. Clover pasture, hay or fertilizer, crimson clover offers itself to farmers at a time when the ordinary summer-grown crops are not available.

When the spreader is used, less manure will be needed to cover one acre and the value and effectiveness of the manure will be increased. There has too long been an unreasonable prejudice against mules, and yet they may be made one of the most valuable economic features of the farm.

Try putting a pinch of coppers in the poultry watering trough once or twice a month. Better still, scrub out the trough and spray thoroughly with a copper solution. Compactness being essential to promote capillary attraction, it is advisable to plow deep as early as possible after the crop is gathered, thereby giving the land time to settle before spring seeding.

Many a flock has been run down by forcing methods from childhood to maturity and late hatching year after year. Hatch the future breeders early and do not force them at the expense of vigor. Grow size by selection and breeding.

Chickens will eat everything imaginable, no difference how filthy. Feed your poultry well. Give them good healthy grain and food and you will find them disdaining filthy, strange food. They only eat it when turned out to find what they can or starve.

Overcrowding the chicks is one cause of late maturity and undersized specimens of the breed. Too many chickens are placed under the small hovers as a rule, and even after they are old enough to be without heat are then subjected to crowded conditions in the poultry quarters. The growing chicks need plenty of room and fresh air.

MONARCH'S ACT SURPRISES

Did Lady Thought It Undignified That British Monarch Should Blow His Own Nose.

When King George of Great Britain came to the throne there were wild rumors that he took so little interest in horse-racing that the turf would suffer. This year, however, his majesty has attended a number of the big race meetings.

One recalls the story told of an earlier royal visit to Doncaster. An old Yorkshire woman had gone on the course for the sole purpose of seeing royalty, and she called out excitedly: "Which is the king? Which is the king?"

"There he is," said some one near. "That's him with the bandkerchief in his hand." "Ah!" gasped the old lady, a touch of reverent awe in her tone.

Just then his majesty, who had a cold in the head, performed a commonplace little operation. "Goodness me!" the old lady exclaimed against. "He—he blows his own nose!"

Married Men Outlive Bachelors. The latest statistics issued by the city of Berlin show, among other things, that married men there live considerably longer on the average than bachelors. The percentage of deaths among wives, on the other hand, is greater than among spinsters, owing principally to mortality attending childbirth. —New York Times.

Paradoxical Labor. "Where's the poet of the family?" "Upstairs in his den, busy on an idyl theme." The people who sow the seeds of discord generally reap the apple of discord.

Main Thing. Madge—Charlie whistled that new tune last night. Do you remember how it goes? Marjorie—No; but I can dance it.—Judge. A wll work and no play makes Jack a dull shoemaker.

THOUGHT HER A FOREIGNER

Mrs. Petrowsky Was Unused to Words Employed by Volunteer Social Worker.

The trained social worker was "breaking in" a volunteer, and so she escorted her on her first round of visits.

"Ask questions about their husbands and children," she prompted, outside of Mrs. Petrowsky's door. "They can understand those, and they like to answer, and we get the information we need at the same time."

"So, as soon as the preliminaries were over, the volunteer turned to the lady of the house with her best society smile.

"Has your husband regular employment at present, Mrs. Petrowsky?" she inquired.

"Mrs. Petrowsky looked blank. The volunteer raised her voice, and spoke more slowly: "Has your husband—regular employment—at present?" she reiterated.

"Hub?" asked Mrs. Petrowsky, stupidly. "Has—your—husband—still more the volunteer for the third time, began more loudly.

The social worker interrupted with a friendly smile. "The lady wants to know," she explained, quietly, "has your old man got a steady job?" Mrs. Petrowsky beamed with delight. "Oh, ya! Oh, ya!" she assented, with many nods of relief. "Steady job by railroad, ya. What land she come off, her?" —Youth's Companion.

Sawing the Woods. It was only a few weeks that Mrs. Cutler, a kind-faced old lady, accepted invitations to dine out. Upon repeated invitations of her friends, the Joslins, however, she consented to attend a little informal dinner they were giving, accompanied by her daughter.

Unfortunately, Mrs. Cutler was quite deaf and consequently could not enter into the general conversation. She was engaged in cutting a piece of steak when her daughter turned to her and said: "Mother, dear, why are you so quiet?"

"I'm all right," responded mother, with a sunny smile, "while you talk Mabel, I say nothing but saw wood."

Amends. "Would you believe it now, Miss Sparks?" said the genial stout young man as he mopped his brow. "I weigh all of two hundred and fifty pounds."

Miss S. (sighing)—I suspected as much just now when we were dancing and you stepped on my foot. G. S. Y. M.—Oh, I'm sorry. Please forgive me. The very first thing in the morning I'll go on a diet.

The Boston Small Boy. "Roll, haven't I told you time and again not to associate with those bad little Juddins boys?" "You certainly have, mister." "Then why do you persist in doing it?"

"I don't know, mother, unless it's because I'm naturally gregarious."

Apple wood is the favorite material for ordinary saw handles, and some goes into so-called briar pipes.

Recompense. The Nomad chieftain gloomily contemplated the dreary Syrian landscape.

The wedding guests were long departed. He had but a few moments to remove her teeth and put them in a cup of water to soak.

"Dismiss from thy heart, good my lord," the damsel murmured, "thy vain regrets."

"Upon the word the pious Moslem extended his clasped hands toward the heavens. "Allah be praised!" he cried. "If I mistake not, her old man must ere this have discovered that the horse I gave him in exchange for his daughter is quiet."

Tears of joy welled unbidden from his eyes as he gave thanks.

No More. Mrs. Nelson O'Shaughnessy's daring presence at the wedding of Huerta's son is only another proof of a brave woman's pluck.

Mrs. O'Shaughnessy at the Colony club in New York, derided one day the idea that woman was weak, or cowardly, or that she need ever play a limited part in the world's affairs.

"Well, said a lady of the old school, "I know one thing woman can't do. She can't reform a man after marriage."

"No?" Mrs. O'Shaughnessy said. "No? And yet I know many a married man who in his bachelor days smoked 25-cent cigars."

Post Toasties

For That Bedtime Snack

The kiddies need something that is dainty and appetizing, don't they? And you want to be sure that they have a food that is easily digested—one that will not disturb their sleep.

Post Toasties are surprisingly good at any time.

They are made of the hearts of the finest Indian corn, perfectly cooked, delicately sweetened and salted, rolled into thin, ribboned flakes and toasted to a crisp, golden brown.

They have that indescribable flavour—sweet and delicious, that so delights the taste.

Just pour from the package and add cream and sugar, or sprinkle over fresh berries or fruit.

Easy to serve and mighty good.

SPEER EXONERATED

EVIDENCE INSUFFICIENT TO IMPEACH JURIST, IS REPORT OF HOUSE JUDICIARY BODY.

OFFICIAL ACTS CRITICIZED

Federal Judge Emory Speer of the Southern District of Georgia Received Clean Bill From Investigating Committee.

Washington, June 25.—Declaring the evidence insufficient to impeach, but severely criticizing the jurist on a number of official acts, the special committee of the house judiciary named to investigate charges against Judge Emory Speer of the Southern district of Georgia, made its report on Tuesday.

The majority report is signed by Representatives Webb of North Carolina and Fitz Henry of Illinois, Democrats. Representative Volstead of Minnesota, Republican, filed an individual report exonerating the Georgia judge and objecting to many of the criticisms made by Webb and Fitz Henry.

"The subcommittee regrets its inability to recommend either a complete acquittal of Judge Speer of all culpability so far as these charges are concerned, on the one hand, or an impeachment on the other," says the majority report. "We are persuaded that the competent legal evidence at hand is not sufficient to procure a conviction at the hands of the senate. But the subcommittee does feel that the record presents a series of legal oppressions and shows an abuse of judicial discretion which, though falling short of impeachable offenses, demand condemnation and criticism."

"If Judge Speer's judicial acts in the future are marked by the rigorous and inflexible harshness shown by this record, these charges hang as a portentous cloud over his court, impairing his usefulness, impeding the administration of justice and endangering the integrity of American institutions."

Notwithstanding disapproval of many of Judge Speer's acts, the majority of the subcommittee recommends "that no further proceedings be had with reference to H. Resolution No. 234."

The report was made to the full judiciary committee and its adoption by the committee and the house will end the impeachment case.

The report also says that the following charges have not been sustained to the extent that they should be made articles of impeachment:

That he has abused his official power by using court officials as private servants.

That he was guilty of oppressive and corrupt conduct in allowing the dissipation of the assets of bankrupt estates. The committee says, however, that the dissipation of estates in certain cases has been "deplorable."

That he unlawfully seized and sold property.

NICARAGUAN TREATY URGED

Minister Chamorro Says Proposed $3,000,000 Payment to His Country Will Be Agreeable.

Washington, June 25.—Declaring the Nicaraguan government and the people of Nicaragua are in favor of the proposed treaty between the United States and their republic, Senator Don Emiliano Chamorro, minister from Nicaragua, appeared before the senate foreign relations committee on Tuesday and urged immediate approval of the treaty. The minister stated that the proposed $3,000,000 payment to Nicaragua would be entirely agreeable. The extension of the Platt amendment, giving the United States a virtual protectorate over Nicaragua, also is popular in that republic, Senator Chamorro declared.

STEAMSHIPS IN COLLISION

Liner Koening Luise and German Steamer Cobra Clash Together—Passenger Boat Cripped.

Hamburg, June 25.—The North German-Lloyd liner Koening Luise and the German steamer Cobra were in collision on Tuesday. The Koening Luise had her bow smashed and began shipping water so rapidly that her passengers were taken off and landed. The prow of the liner caught the Cobra amidships and she was badly damaged both above and below the water line. The Koening Luise hails from Bremen. The liner's tonnage is 6,790. According to the 1914 issue of the American Bureau of Shipping's record, the Koening Luise is commanded by O. Volger.

NINE DIE IN AIR CRASH

BIPLANE STRIKES DIRIGIBLE AND BOTH ARE DESTROYED.

All on Board Are Lost—Members of Military Corps Crushed to Death.

Vienna, June 23.—The splintered fragments of an aeroplane, the charred remains of a big dirigible balloon and nine terribly burned and mutilated bodies are the mute records of one of the most tragic—certainly the most sensational—disasters which have occurred since man learned to fly.

The dirigible military balloon Koerting left Fischamend, a market town 11 miles from Vienna, at eight o'clock in the morning. It was manned by Capt. Johann Hauwirth, in command; Lieut. Ernst Hofstetter, Lieutenant Bruer, Lieutenant Haidinger, Corporal Haidma, Corporal Weber and Engineer Kammerer.

At the elapse of half an hour a military aeroplane of the biplane type, with Lieutenant Platz and Lieutenant Hoosta aboard, started in pursuit. The news had gone abroad that something in the nature of a sham aerial fight would take place, and at Koenigsberg, the scene of the engagement, a big crowd had gathered.

Quickly the smaller but much speedier craft overtook the big dirigible, and then the spectators watched a thrilling sight. Like a wasp bent on attacking some clumsy enemy, the aeroplane circled several times around the balloon, now darting close to it, and then away, always apparently steering off just in time to avoid an actual collision. Meanwhile, the balloon continued to rise until it was about three hundred feet from the ground.

The aeroplane, a still greater height, maneuvered until it appeared to be nearly over the dirigible. Then it began its descent.

BANK HEADS ARE INDICTED

Grand Jury Holds Many for Failure at Tonica, Ill.—Returns 121 Indictments.

Ottawa, Ill., June 24.—The grand jury which has been making special investigation for a week into the failure of the Tonica Exchange bank last November presented its report to Judge Eldredge on Monday. A total of 121 indictments were returned against four against Hartenbower and G. D. Hiltabrand, cashier; B. F. Hiltabrand, assistant cashier; W. J. Ebner, assistant cashier and bookkeeper. Eighty-four against Hartenbower and G. B. Hiltabrand each for receiving deposits while the bank was insolvent; 15 against B. F. Hiltabrand and W. J. Ebner each for same offense; two against Hartenbower and G. D. Hiltabrand each for operating confidence games; three against Hartenbower, G. D. Hiltabrand and B. F. Hiltabrand each for embezzlement; one against Hartenbower and G. D. Hiltabrand each for embezzlement.

The defendants were released on bonds.

Suffragette Sent to Prison.

Glasgow, June 24.—A suffragette known to the police as "Miss Gordon," but who is believed to be a member of a prominent family, masking under an alias, was found guilty of incendiarism and sentenced to 12 months' penal servitude.

RAILROADS BEAT U. S.

SUPREME COURT DECIDES THEY MAY RETAIN TITLE TO CALIFORNIA OIL LANDS.

FIERCE BATTLE IS ENDED

Highest Tribunal Decides Petroleum Is Mineral, But Knocks Out Clause in Grant—Properties Are Valued at More Than $700,000,000.

SUPREME COURT RULINGS.

OIL LANDS—Ruled for railroads and against government in contest over western tracts valued at $700,000,000.

TOBACCO POOL—Declared unconstitutional Kentucky statute legalizing farmers' combine.

CHURCH VOWS—Declared vows of poverty in Roman Catholic orders not against public policy.

PIPE LINES—Act placing all interstate oil pipe lines under interstate commerce commission regulation held constitutional but not applicable to Uncle Sam Oil company.

FREIGHT RATES—Spokane and other intermountain cities won fight against 16 railroads for reduced freight rates.

HARVESTER COMPANY—Right of state of Kentucky to prosecute the International Harvester company is upheld, although the company has no office in that state.

CUBAN SUGAR—Effort of Louisiana to prevent continued imports of Cuban sugar at 20 per cent under the regular duty, by enjoining the secretary of the treasury, is refused.

Washington, June 23.—Transcontinental railroads won their fight for title to about $700,000,000 worth of oil lands when the supreme court held void the clause in the patents making the land revert to the government if used to contain minerals. Justice Vandevanter announced the decision.

The court held that the patents were irregular, but that they could not be attacked collaterally—by other claimants—but could be set aside only by a direct attack by the government.

Justice Vandevanter, for the court, incidentally dismissed the claim that the government's title in which it could attack the patents had expired in 1906 or 1901.

The government contended that when it gave the lands to the railroad it did not grant minerals not then known to exist. Each patent issued contained an exception and reservation reading:

"Excluding and excepting all mineral lands should any such be found in the tracts aforesaid."

Spokane and other intermountain cities won their long fight against 16 railroads for reduced freight rates by the supreme court's decision on the celebrated "intermountain rate" or "long-and-short-haul" case. The court approved the radical rate reduction on west-bound freight to western inland cities ordered by the interstate commerce commission.

STORM PERILS MANY

YACHTS RETURNING TO CHICAGO FROM MICHIGAN LOST.

Terrific Gale Sweeps Lake and It Is Feared Some of the Boats Have Been Swamped.

Chicago, June 23.—Hundreds of lives were imperiled and many thrilling rescues effected on Sunday in one of the worst storms which has swept over the lake this season. The storm broke so suddenly and with such fierceness that the many lake craft cruising—some of them many miles out—were caught and tossed like tissue boats by the gale and great waves.

Twelve boats of the fleet which was returning from the Michigan City yacht races, held Saturday, were reported missing.

The fleet, consisting of about thirty boats, was caught in the squall about six miles off the Jackson park harbor. Every effort was made to protect the weaker craft, but darkness fell over the waters and many boats were lost to view.

Six of the missing boats belonged to the Jackson Park yacht club; two were owned by members of the Chicago Yacht club and the others belonged to the Columbia and Lincoln Park Yacht clubs.

High-powered motor boats and members of life-saving crews all along the lake shore swept the waters with searchlights in an effort to find the missing yachts.

Ten men were rescued from a float one mile out from the foot of Indiana street by Captain Carland and his life-saving crew, after the men had been washed away from their moorings and were rapidly being driven out into the lake.

FEDERALS TO MEET REBELS

United States Seeks to Get Two Factories Together to Confer Informally.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 24.—The United States government has invited representatives of General Carranza and General Huerta to meet at an informal conference here with the hope of bringing about the pacification of Mexico. The Huerta delegates informed the American delegates through the mediators that they were willing to deal with the constitutionalists in this way. Informal parleys between the representatives of the factions, outside of the formal mediation proceedings, but with the counsel and advice of the American delegates, is the object of the new plan. This move was adopted as a last resort, every effort to get the constitutionalists to agree to an armistice as desired by the mediators having failed.

Plant Tobacco Near Racine. Racine.—A thousand tobacco plants have been planted near this city, and a like number will be planted near Frankville to find out if the crop is a paying one here.

State May Lower Dam. Madison.—To State Forester Griffiths the attorney general gives an opinion that the state may by injunction compel the owner to lower a dam that is causing back water to cover the property of the state.

WISCONSIN G. O. P. CHOOSES TICKET

CONSERVATIVE FACTION OF REPUBLICANS PICKS E. L. PHILLIP FOR GOVERNOR.

BANCROFT SENATE CHOICE

Candidates Must Petition For a Place on Primary Ballot—Platform Urges Retrenchment in State Expenses.

Madison.—The conservative faction of the republican party in convention here nominated Levi H. Bancroft of Richmond Center for the United States senate, and named a full state ticket as follows:

For Governor—E. L. Phillip of Milwaukee.

For Lieutenant Governor—William M. Bray of Oshkosh.

For Secretary of State—Nels Holman of Deerfield.

For State Treasurer—Marshall Cousins of Eau Claire.

For Attorney General—O. L. Kreuzer of Wausau.

Must Petition for Candidates. Political conventions in Wisconsin not being legal, it will be necessary for those named at today's gathering to obtain the necessary number of signatures to petitions in order to insure their names being placed upon the primary ballot.

James G. Monahan of Darlington, temporary chairman, in his speech denounced the state administration, charging extravagance. He said the state expenses had increased from $4,000,000 annually to $18,000,000 in the last fourteen years. He urged the abolition of many commissions.

Striking Planks in Platform. A platform adopted by the convention contained many striking planks, including the following:

A plank declaring for the re-establishment of the party convention for which delegates are elected by the Australian ballot system.

Favoring the control of railway capitalization by the United States.

Demanding sweeping reductions in unnecessary state expenditures to the end that taxes will be lower.

Declaring against the principle of the commission form of government as inaugurated in Wisconsin by the present and past administrations.

Demanding a full, fair and complete investigation of the University of Wisconsin, and an additional demand that the teaching of socialism be discontinued in that institution.

Want Educational Board. Favoring the placing of all educational institutions of the state under one board so that their support shall be equitably distributed and to correct mistakes in their management.

Denouncing the present extravagant system of road building by the state as extravagant and unproductive of good results.

Demanding that the state scheme of reforestation by the state be discontinued, and that this work be done by the nation.

Demanding amendments of laws governing water powers so as to make development possible.

Denouncing the proposed amendment to the state constitution which provide for the initiative, referendum and recall.

FILE $200,000 TRUST DEED

La Crosse Power Company Prepares for Floating of Bonds for Property Improvement.

La Crosse.—A $200,000 trust deed, covering the properties of the Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power company, whose incorporation was announced a few days ago, has been filed here. The deed was executed in preparation for the floating of bonds from time to time as needed for the improvement of the Kelsey-Brewer properties in Wisconsin.

The deed involved is the largest ever recorded here. The property affected is mentioned in the deed as follows: All the La Crosse properties of the La Crosse Gas and Electric company, the Dells power station and substations in and about the city of Eau Claire. The Cedar Falls Hydro-Electric plant and dam; The Menomonie and Wilson Creek plant and dam; The Rush river plant and the City Railway and Interurban system between Chippewa Falls and Eau Claire.

State Notes in Brief

Madison.—In the case of a man shot by the sheriff while resisting arrest, the supreme court held: "The general rule is that shooting at a person in an endeavor to arrest or to take a person who has escaped from arrest for a misdemeanor, is excessive force, constituting assault." The case, that of Adolph Goscinski against Gustav Carlson, undersheriff of Douglas county, is sent back for retrial because the damages awarded, $70, are held inadequate.

Waukesha.—At a meeting of the grocers and butchers it was decided to give the co-operative delivery system a trial and twelve firms have already become a part of the scheme. The new system will be inaugurated June 23, and if at the end of sixty days it has produced favorable results, it will become a permanent system.

School Hill.—Joseph Blust, 24 years old, of this village, was instantly killed when he was caught in a belt in the local saw mill and whirled about the shaft. Blust was working on the first floor when the belt slipped from the shaft in the basement. He attempted to slide down the belt through the hole in the floor. When about half way down the belt suddenly slipped back on the pulley and Blust was thrown about the shaft and every bone in his body crushed.

Barron.—About fifty Democrats met here and nominated the following county ticket: Assemblyman, J. M. Moe; treasurer, Frank McKensie; clerk, C. R. Lawton; clerk of court, Whitaker of Chetek; register of deeds, Frank Samson; sheriff, George Stahl. This is the first full county ticket the Democrats have put up in this county for years.

Neenah.—The police and health committees of the city council will inspect the premises where applications for licenses to operate saloons have been filed to see if the regulations of the ordinance recently enacted prohibiting the placing of screens or other obstructions at the windows are complied with. Twenty-two saloon applications have been presented, against twenty-nine last year.

La Crosse.—Speeding on water as well as on land must be stopped in La Crosse. Police officials are attending to the land side of speeding while the La Crosse Motorboat club has begun a campaign against speeding excursion boats and packets coming into the local harbor.

Superior.—The body of Miss Mary Nolan, drowned while canoeing at Billings park, was recovered with the aid of dynamite used on the bay in the vicinity of the spot at which she was believed to have sunk. The young woman's mother, Mrs. Margaret Nolan, a widow, ill at the time of the drowning, it is now said as a result of the shock, is now in a critical condition and cannot recover.

Milwaukee.—Washington dispatches state that pensions of $12 each were today granted to Amalie H. Koehn, North Milwaukee, and John McDonald, Eau Claire.

Washington.—H. E. Loehrs, Hill-top, Wis., has been appointed a physician at Moqui Indian agency, Arizona.

Madison.—F. Turbush of Milwaukee, admitted casting an illegal ballot at the wet and dry election here, and was fined $50 and costs.

Racine.—An unidentified man was killed by a passenger train on the North-Western road at Berryville.

Madison.—Helen Grace Andrews, '99, Portage, was elected vice-president of the Alumal association and Lochner, '09, of Chicago, was elected recording secretary.

Madison.—The Wisconsin Library school will begin a summer session Aug. 3.

Blue River.—Al and Ed Anderson killed six rattlesnakes while building a bridge near here.

Madison.—Castilian society of the university celebrated its fiftieth anniversary with a dinner. Margaret Godfrey was toastmistress.

Sheboygan.—William Leibl has purchased the Republican house from the heirs of George Leibl.

Madison.—The state suffrage school, directed by Mrs. Alice B. Curtis of Waukesha, has been opened.

CHARACTER SHOWN BY ONE'S HOME

House Bound, in a Measure, to Take on the Individuality of Its Owner.

PEOPLE HAVE VARYING IDEAS

Independence in Construction Gives Charm to American Towns When Not Overdone—Model Shown Here Would Make an Ideal Abode.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD. Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper.

There are a great many different kinds of roofs covering a great many styles of houses, any one of which may look well if it is rightly proportioned, well made and in keeping with the house it is intended to cover.

One lasting charm of the resident sections of American cities and towns is the individual independence in house construction.

Just as interesting and agreeable as the different characters and the varying personal appearances of the owners when you learn to know them. They have built their houses after ideas of their own and the houses have grown like themselves in many respects, crotchety, possibly, in some directions, but upon the whole pleasing and entertaining.

First Floor Plan.

worth the name unless it represents the individuality of the owner by giving expression to some of his peculiarities. A dozen men could never be found who would agree on any such uniformity in house construction.

A dozen men will look over a book of house plans and select a dozen different arrangements of rooms, and after picking out their favorites half of those men will suggest little changes to fit their individual tastes; then when their wives are finally consulted further modifications are made.

way leading up from this large room also is an arrangement peculiar to this style of house. Another good feature of this main room is the large comfortable-looking fireplace at one end where it will look its best from the window seat in the other end of the room.

The modern large living room idea has been growing in the minds of the American people for several years. We have learned that it is not necessary to have large bedrooms or large hallways that are not used except at intervals, but we have found that a large, airy living room is used continually from early morning until late at night.

Second Floor Plan.

traction, a fashion so sensible that it is likely to continue for many years. Cement plaster on metal lath makes a good outside finish for this house, and in connection with the cement plaster a good deal of cement may be used about the porch, in fact, the whole lower part of the porch may be built of cement, including the floor and steps, or a framework may be built up and covered with metal lath and cement plaster the same as the sides of the house.

Literature—and Corsets. In Nashville, the other day, before the Southern Baptist convention, over which he presided, Dr. Lansing Barrows, a noted Georgia clergyman, "spoke his mind" as follows: "Having a delicious interest in reading, we are easy prey to the designing. Thus are all the hateful dogmas of religion, social, and political heresy propagated. Socialism, as represented by one of its leaders, puts nine-tenths of its income into literature, choosing the Sabbath day for its distribution into the homes of the people.

Darwin Still "in the Ring." Sir Ray Lankester in a recent review of the "Letters and Recollections of Alexander Agassiz" remarks incidentally that the views advocated by Darwin and Dana regarding the formation of coral reefs were not of general validity. Apropos of this E. B. Poulton of Oxford calls attention to the test-boring of a coral reef made at Funafuti. It is the only important trial ever made of the Darwin theory of atolls, and certainly tends to support the latter so far as the Pacific area is concerned.

Why Elderly Doctor Was Wroth. See the two doctors! Why is the old doctor charging the young doctor with unethical conduct and embezzlement, denouncing him for a brainless booby and a thirty-third degree idiot, and otherwise linguistically lambasting him? Why, the old doctor went on a vacation and left his practice in the charge of the young doctor, and when the former returned the latter proudly boasted that he had cured every one of his patients who were afflicted with chronic ailments. Was that not enough to drive an elderly and experienced Esculapian into a frothing frenzy?—Kansas City Star.

Hard to Satisfy Him. Lew Fields doesn't admit that the story centers about him, but he tells it. A young New York boy had determined to sail for a stage career. He went to his father and told him of his intentions. "What," said the father angrily, "you intend to go on the stage and disgrace my name?" "Oh, no father," replied the son, "I intend to change my name at once." "Change it, will you," was the answer, "and if you make a success what credit will I get?"

DEFENDER OF SAN LUIS POTOSI

Gen. Miguel Barrios, commander-in-chief of the federal forces at San Luis Potosi, who has been blocking, at least temporarily, the progress of the rebels to Mexico City.

STORY OF SIR THOMAS LIPTON'S 16 YEAR STRUGGLE FOR AMERICA'S CUP

Irish Sportsman Has Spent Several Million Dollars and a Stupendous Amount of Keen Thinking in His Endeavor to Gain Title to This Much Coveted Yachting Trophy So Carefully Guarded by United States Yachtsmen.

New York.—Down in the vault of a famous jewelry house on Fifth avenue, New York city, there is a dingy, battered piece of silver, neither a modicum of beauty nor a valuable antique, a thing likely to tempt at first to the steam yacht Erin, taking 14 days 20 hours for the trip. In the first race, sailed in October, the Shamrock was beaten by ten minutes eight seconds, in the second race she did not finish; in the third she was defeated by 6 minutes 34 seconds.

Sir Thomas' appetite for that battered silver cup was only whetted the more. He sent his second challenge in October of the next year, 1900. This time the American committee consisted of Commodore Lewis Cass Ledyard, Vice-Commodore August Belmont, Rear Commodore C. L. E. Robinson, Secretary J. V. S. Oddie, S. Nicholson Kane, C. O. K. Iselin and E. M. Brown. Messrs. Robinson, Oddie, Kane and Brown are now dead.

The Herreshoffs again got the job of building the defender. They constructed the sloop Constitution, the money being supplied by August Belmont, James Stillman, Oliver H. Payne, F. G. Bourne and Henry Walters. Capt. Urras Rhodes sailed her.

Poor Thomas V. Lawson of Boston built the Independence and wanted a chance to pit her against the Constitution and Columbia in the official trials, but the lordly New York Yacht club decided he was barred because not one of their members.

The Constitution was the victim of an accident like that which had happened to the Columbia off Point Judith the year before. She lost her mast at Newport and was badly damaged. The challenge was brought over by a committee consisting of Vice-Commodore R. G. Sherman Crawford of the challenging club, H. M. McGil-downey and Hugh C. Kelly, accompanied by the new yacht's designer, William Fife, Jr., and Charles Russell.

Immediately all was bustle in New York Yacht club circles. It is understood J. Pierpont Morgan, the elder, furnished the money to build the defending yacht, the Columbia. The cup committee consisted of Mr. Morgan, Edwin D. Morgan, E. M. Brown, Herman B. Duryea, whose horse won the English Derby a few days ago, and Henry F. Lippitt. The keel of the Columbia was laid at the Herreshoff's place at Bristol, R. I., in the early winter of 1898 and she was launched June 10, 1899.

WOMAN BECOMES AIR PILOT Mrs. Mary Buller of London Will Enter Derby Aeroplane Race in English Metropolis. London, England.—Mrs. Mary Buller, who has taken up flying as a profession, is planning to drop in literally on her friends for afternoon teas from the flying room where she is stationed as a racing pilot. Mrs. Buller has returned from France, where she took a long course she was fixed up and towed across the Atlantic, making the trip in 16 days. The challenger was beaten by the Columbia three successive times by 1 minute 20 seconds, 3 minutes 35 seconds and 41 seconds, respectively.

But the next year back was Sir Thomas with a new challenge. He had Watson and Fife jointly design the Shamrock III, which was launched at Dumbarton, Scotland, March 17, 1903, and christened by the same Lady Shaftesbury, who broke the bottle over this year's craft. Captains Wringe and Bevis sailed her. The Reliance and the Shamrock III made nine starts in 1903, but only completed three races, all of which were won by the American yacht, the first by 7 minutes 3 seconds and the second by 1 minute and 18 seconds. Shamrock missed the finish line in the fog in the third race and her time was not taken.

Sir Thomas sent over a new challenge in 1907, but nothing came of it save futile jockeying. The Americans would not compete against Sir Thomas' 68-foot rating sloop. The New York Yacht club declared that "the America's cup, held by this club as trustee, under the deed of gift, is a trophy which stands pre-eminently for speed and for the utmost skill in designing, construction, managing and handling the competing vessels and should, therefore, be sailed for by the fastest and most powerful vessels that can be produced."

Still Sir Thomas did not give up. He sent over more offers and after much parleying a race was finally agreed upon for this year. Should Sir Thomas come a cropper with his freak boat this autumn, there is no reason for thinking he will not be right back again, say in 1916 or 1917. He believes in sticking and he does want that cup.

The cup is now more than sixty years old. It cost less than $500 when new and would not be worth one-third of that today. The trophy was offered by the Royal Yacht squadron for a race between boats of all nations. The America won it on August 22, 1851, in a race around the Isle of Wight, off the south coast of England.

It came into the possession of the New York Yacht club in 1857 when it was presented to the club by George L. Schuyler, the then sole surviving owner of the cup.

CAUGHT TURTLE WITH TOE

New Bait Was Successful, But Boy Got a Shock He Will Not Soon Forget.

Centreville, Ala.—A lot of boys in Blount county recently went fishing on a creek, and after baiting their hooks went off to play. They returned shortly and found that one of the poles was gone from its place and was on the opposite side of the creek. One of the boys stripped off, waded over, caught the pole and pulled, but nothing would come, and, thinking that the line was around a log, made the line taut and placed it between his toes and followed it to the obstruction.

On reaching the bottom something grabbed his big toe and his companions had to come to his assistance. They pulled the boy out and with him came a 35-pound turtle swinging on to the boy's toe. A doctor was summoned and dressed the wound.

HUNTER CLAWED BY EAGLE

Bird Was Huge One and Boldly Attacked Man Who Finally Killed It.

Edmonton, Alberta.—Tom E. Mason, a fur trapper, has come to Edmonton for medical treatment, following a fierce fight with a golden eagle, which clawed and pecked at his face, neck and left shoulder and arm. He killed the bird, which had a spread of wings of eight feet two inches from tip to tip. "I was attracted to a trap," Mason said, "by a strange noise, and as I got closer I saw a huge golden eagle held by one foot. "My first thought was to release the bird, not thinking that it would venture an attack; but that is where I was fooled. I was quickly made aware of the fact when I was sprawled upon my back with the eagle and trap on top of me."

New Indian Animal Stories Why the Deer's Teeth are Blunt By JOHN M. OSKISON

Color the Animal to Suit Yourself

Long time ago the deer had no horns. He was a great runner, and so was the rabbit. All the animals wanted to know which could run faster, and they arranged a race. But the rabbit was caught trying to cheat, and so the beautiful horns which they had made as a prize for the winner were given to the honest deer.

The rabbit said to himself, "I must get even with the deer for taking the horns," and so he fixed up a plan. First the rabbit stretched a big grapevine—as thick as your arm—across a trail and gnawed it with his sharp teeth until it was almost cut in two. Then he went back on the trail a little distance and made a running jump at the vine. He did this again and again, and finally the deer came along and asked him why he was doing it.

"Can't you see?" said the rabbit. "I am so strong, and my teeth are so sharp, that I can bite through that grapevine at one jump." "Well, I'd like to see you do it," said the deer, who didn't believe what the rabbit had told him. "Watch, then!" said the rabbit, and made a great jump and bit the grapevine through just where he had gnawed it before.

"If you can do that I can, too," said the deer. So the rabbit stroched another grapevine as big as the first across the path, but this time he did not gnaw it at all. Then the deer went back on the path, made a long run and a jump, as he had seen the rabbit do, but when he struck the grapevine it only threw him backward on his head. He tried it again and again, but could not bite through.

"Let me see your teeth," said the rabbit at last. So the deer opened his mouth and showed the rabbit his teeth, but not very sharp.

"No wonder you can't do the trick!" said the rabbit. "Your teeth are too blunt to bite through anything. Let me sharpen them for you and make them like mine. Mine cut through things just like a knife!"

The deer thought that was the right thing, and so the rabbit got a rough piece of stone and began to file away at the deer's teeth. He filed them until they were down to the gums.

"That hurts!" said the deer, but the rabbit told him it always hurt a little just as the teeth were beginning to get real sharp. So, the deer kept still. "Now try it again," said the rabbit at last. And the deer made a run and jump at the grapevine, but this time he found that he could not bite into it at all.

"Now," said the rabbit, "you've paid for your horns!" and he ran away through the bushes.

Ever since then the deer's teeth have been so short and blunt that he cannot chew anything but grass and leaves.

MAKING A COASTING WAGON

Boys Can Usually Find Sufficient Material Lying Around to Build Dandy Little Coaster.

The diagram given herewith shows a coasting wagon or automobile. After securing four wheels, get a board 18 inches wide and six feet long. The front wheels should be attached to the steering gear, which is made by running a small piece of pipe through a larger piece, with the steering handle attached, as shown in diagram. Chains or ropes are attached to the crosspiece of the lower part of the steering gear, and to each side of the axle of the front wheels. Boys can usually find the wheels, pipe, and other material lying around the house and barn to make one of these.

Some Rowing Hints.

Here are a few hints which you should remember when you go rowing. Do not, when learning to row, always watch your oars; you will never learn to scull or row if you do. Take great care when getting in or out of a boat not to upset it. Don't change seats in midstream, but always wait until you are close to the bank.

If you hire a boat, make sure that everything is in good condition. You should not go rowing without knowing the "rule of the water."

A row-boat going against stream or tide keeps to the shore or either bank, and keeps inside all boats meeting it. A row-boat going with stream or tide keeps in the middle, and outside all boats meeting it.

Clever Minister.

"Edith," said a caller to the minister's little daughter, in a spirit of fun, "does your father ever preach the same sermon twice?" "Yes, I guess so," answered Edith. "But he talks loud and soft in different places the second time, so it doesn't sound the same at all to an outsider."

What Lincoln Missed.

Do you ever stop to consider that Abraham Lincoln never rode in an automobile or a trolley car, never turned a switch for electric light, never saw a movie or heard a phonograph, never saw a football game or an airship? Yet he only died 48 years ago!

SOME POINTS ABOUT DIVING

Few Boys Who Swim Know How to Travel Under Water Properly—Practice Makes Perfect.

Almost every small boy who has ever been in swimming knows how to dive after a fashion, but few of them can dive properly or in such a way as to run no danger of being hurt while enjoying the sport. If you know how to do it you can dive about as well in two feet of water as in twenty and with equal safety. In various parts of the country there are now professional divers who are nightly making crowds of spectators hold their breath with apprehension while the diver drops from a height of 60 feet or more into a small tank of shallow water.

When you dive draw the head down slightly toward the chest and stretch the arms forward on a level with the breast, not raising them above the head. Bend the knees a trifle and make an oblique plunge, taking care not to keep the body too stiff. Don't push too hard with the feet or you will come down on your back or side. After entering the water instantly throw the head back and turn your face toward the surface. This will make your body assume a crescent shape, bending upward, and you will slip to the surface like a greased pig. If you have made a deep dive, a stroke or two downward—down the road hands will make you rise. When jumping from a height of 10 feet or more, keep perfectly firm. A fright and an odd sensation will be kept give one a desire to head down. Doing this will be sure to result in disaster. Don't try to make a dive unless you have had plenty of practice in diving.

A Case of Necessity.

It was Sunday, and two men were industriously digging in a garden, when a man who was passing stopped to give them a lecture. "You know that it is a sin to dig on Sunday unless it is a case of necessity," said the good man. "Necessity?" timidly replied one of the diggers. "Then why don't you stop it?" "Cause this is a case of necessity," replied the little philosopher. "A feller can't fish without bait."—Argonaut.

Good Reason.

"Now, boys," said the Sunday school superintendent, addressing the juvenile class, "who can tell me which one of the ten commandments Adam broke when he ate of the apple?" "He didn't break any of them," replied a bright little fellow. "Why didn't he?" asked the superintendent. "Because," answered the youthful student, "there wasn't any then."

DEAD TOWNS AND HIGH TAXES

Home Disloyalty is the Cause of Decay.

WHAT GREAT NAPOLEON SAID

Should Tax Vices Instead of Property. In a Rich, Prosperous Community Taxes Are No Burden—in a Community Where the Local Town is Dead Taxes Are High.

(Copyrighted, 1914, by Thomas J. Sullivan.)
Taxing is an easy business. Any new official can contrive new impositions, any bungler can add to the old, but it is altogether wise to have no other bounds to your impositions than the patience of those who are to bear them?

What a benefit the city, the village and hamlet if it would but tax vices instead of property! Bonaparte said he found vices very profitable. He got $5,000,000 annually from the lovers of brandy, and he wanted to know what virtue would pay him that much.

Taxes Increasing Each Year.
Taxes are the sinews of the state, and they are indeed heavy, but if those laid by the government were the only ones we had to pay we might more easily discharge them, but we have others, and much more grievous to some of us.

We are taxed twice as much by our ignorance, three times as much by our disloyalty and four times as much by our folly, and from these taxes the commissioners cannot ease or deliver us by allowing an abatement.

The state, county and town levy and exact a certain tax from every piece of property located within their boundaries, the amount depending upon the official requirements. In a rich, prosperous community, where marketing and manufacturing lend their stimulating influences, taxes are low. A community where the local town is dead taxes necessarily are high.

The explanation is easy. The town which is prosperous has successful stocks of goods; it has manufacturing plants and industrial enterprises of great worth; it has newspapers, banking houses and hotels, and, above all, it is a marketing center. The large amount and the high value placed upon this property materially increase the tax demands made upon the farmer in that vicinity.

Streets Paved With Jimson Weeds.
Then take the other town, the dead town. What are the cause and effect? The cause is lack of patronage, lack of industrial pride, disloyalty and ignorance of one's own condition and best interests. The effect? The town has become a "jay" town. In the streets have grown jimson weeds, the stores are vacant, and an air of poverty and dilapidation prevails.

In this latter town and the surrounding community taxes are high, property values have decreased, and altogether it is an undesirable place to live in, and the disposition of such property is an impossible feat.

As we stand and survey the ruins of a once prosperous and promising city we turn to the once successful retail merchant, now standing in the door of his empty store, and ask for the answer.

Briefly he makes reply: "The retail catalogue houses. Our residents in this community became hypnotized by their pictures and prices and misrepresentations, and this is the result."

On the Altar of Greed.
They sacrifice their own interests and their own town on the altar of greed and misunderstanding.

The farmer should easily comprehend that when a stock of goods in a store is depleted or more in it cannot be taxed for more than its value, and if cause the merchant for lack of patronage is forced to retire altogether from business then there remains nothing to be taxed but the building. And what can it be taxed at provided a tenant who is willing to take a chance with his money cannot be found? Eventually the farmer will have to pay the taxes. This merchant formerly paid, and if the farmer continues throwing his patronage to outside concerns he will continue to reduce local values and increase his taxes.

Reflect Too Little.
Some farmers read too much and reflect too little—depend too much upon others, too little upon themselves. They make of their heads cold storage warehouses for other people's ideas instead of standing up in their own independent, godlike individuality. Reading and rereading of mail order catalogues leave a man in about the same condition as Mark Twain's toad with its stomach full of shot.

What do the mail order houses do for the farmer? Do they relieve him of any of his tax burdens? No; they just relieve him of his money. It is a case of representation without taxation, and we fear in time this manner and method of doing business will cause a revolution among the producers and consumers which will eclipse the American Revolution.

We would suggest to the mail order catalogue houses that they shear, not skin, their sheep.

Cures Stubborn, Itchy Skin Troubles
"I could scratch myself to pieces is often heard from sufferers of Eczema, Tetter, Itch and similar Skin Eruptions. Don't Scratch—Stop the Itching at once with Dr. Hobson's Eczema Ointment. Its first application starts healing; the Red, Rough, Scaly, Itching Skin is soothed by the Healing and Cooling Medicines. Mrs. C. A. Einfeldt, Rock Island, Ill., after using Dr. Hobson's Eczema Ointment, writes: "This is the first time in ninety years I have been free from the dreadful ailment." Guaranteed. 50c at your Drug-gist.

Builders of Wisconsin Farms

Because he has followed in the path of the dairy cow,— success and prosperity is the lot of the Wisconsin farmer. Because the dairy herd is the central feature upon Wisconsin farms,—the state is today the Greatest Dairy State in the Union, and one of the richest agriculturally.

The Dairy Cow Wins a Great Victory in Wisconsin

The dairy cow has won a great victory in Wisconsin. Back in the 70's there were many sections in the state where the farms were so "run down" and unproductive that they were actually abandoned. The once virgin soils no longer yielded abundant crops; their strength and fertility exhausted by continuous years of wheat raising. Farming was all but ruined. "It was under these conditions that the dairy cow was introduced into Wisconsin agriculture and from that day on she has steadily restored the lost fertility to the "worn out" soils, regained the agricultural prestige of the state, and enriched her owners.

Every progressive farmer is a subscriber to farm papers. Every progressive farmer in Wisconsin should be a subscriber to a dairy farm paper,— and that paper should be—

Hoard's Dairyman

Right here in your own state, almost at your door, is published the leading dairy journal of the world,—the undisputed authority of the dairy industry. Hoard's Dairyman is a wise counsellor and a safe guide for the man keeping cows. It is a handbook of timely and helpful suggestions and advice. Intimately familiar with local conditions, it meets the same problems every Wisconsin farmer meets, and assists him in solving them.

HOARD'S DAIRYMAN is the only agricultural paper in Wisconsin owning a farm that is kept constantly under the direct management of its editors.

Make 1914 Your Best Year

For the coming year Hoard's Dairyman will contain many features of special interest and value to Wisconsin farmers. It will help you to make this year your best year. Personal experiences of some of Wisconsin's most successful dairymen will be published. A series of articles on dairy farm management will be contributed by the eminent authority, Prof. D. H. Otis, and the reports and discussions upon the

Big Farm Management Contest

In which nearly 300 of Wisconsin's best managed dairy farms are entered, will form topics of absorbing interest. Soil fertility, rotation of crops, feeding and breeding problems, the raising of calves, sanitation, farm buildings, dairy breeds, and scores of other vital subjects are discussed every week in Hoard's Dairyman with a fullness and directness that meets the needs of the beginner as well as the experienced dairymen.

SPECIAL SUBSCRIPTION OFFER We are pleased to announce that by special arrangement with the publishers, we are enabled to offer a year's subscription to Hoard's Dairyman in combination with this publication at a most attractive subscription price. We offer—

ATTENTION FARMERS

Farmers will save themselves much work, time and money if they buy prepared soapstone from the Appleton Soap Factory instead of bothering with lye made from ashes, when working up their waste kitchen fats into soap. Throw your ashes upon the fields and you will gain ten times the cost of my Soapstone. It is excellent for the following purposes to make hard and soft soap, to dehorn cattle, to clean sewers, sinks, milk cans and machinery. To remove paints and varnish, to clean boilers, to dress wounds, on hoofs of cattle and sheep, to drive away mice and rats. Full direction with every can.
