NUMBER 32

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

Government Offers Additional Public Land

The United States Reclamation Service announces the opening and availability of the latter part of April of a large number of desirable homesteads in the well known Shoshone irrigation project near Yellowstone National Park, Wyoming. This opening will mark the fifth unit to be offered to the public in this district and will afford an excellent opportunity for the serious homemaker to secure a desirable 40 or 60 acre tract under the homestead law in a district of proven agricultural worth.

According to an announcement issued by Albert V. Leonard, Settlement Agent of the U. S. Reclamation Service in the Federal Bldg., the Government during the past six months has been swamped with appeals for suitable agricultural homesteads and the opening of the Shoshone lands will in a measure appease the demand for irrigable tracts in this section.

"There is no question but that the recent peculiar business and economic conditions have been largely responsible for the increasing demand for and widespread interest in the 'back to the land movement', states Mr. Leonard. The Government is desirous of encouraging this laudable movement in every proper way and seeks to make readily available information concerning the opportunities which exist for the homemaker. It is his desire that the Shoshone opening will attract an industrious class of people who will maintain the high standard progressive farming which is rapidly transforming the Shoshone project into an agricultural community of accomplished farmers.

An excellent climate, fertile soil, ample water supply, and a splendid settlement with schools, churches, and other community interests, this project should appeal strongly to prospective settlers and I shall be very glad to supply such people with all necessary data."

Farming

Farming is a most desirable employment. No business offers so much independence. The farmer is his own master. The thoughtful farmer plans his own work and informs himself about the most scientific methods. Farming is work that requires and cultivates intelligence. It is my desire that a youth unfitted for anything is thought good enough for a farm. A farmer's work is in the sunshine, the pure air, and invigorating winds. He is not cooped up among brick walls with only narrow apertures from which he may get glimpses of the sky. The farmer of today can have all the conveniences enjoyed by the dweller in the city and some luxuries unattainable by the city man. In farming there is a wide scope for ambition. There is opportunity for a man with bare hands and empty pockets to become a laborer and attain a competence and position in which he may take a just pride. Intelligent labor is needed as in any other business. Wide miles of land in our country still to allure the seeker for a home. Get back to the soil and gain in strength of body and character. When your school days are past, think of what the farm offers. No business offers more to the man who has no special employment than agriculture. To get in touch with the old earth and know the value of the soil beneath your feet is to gain self respect and feel nearer to God.—Milwaukee Journal.

Another Market Fact

Agriculture publications are commenting on the fact that foot-stuff for cattle have been going up in price, but live stock prices and pork have been going down. The reason of this condition furnishes further proof that now is the time to get some good clover and alfalfa land. With feedstuffs higher in price why do live stock prices have a distinct tendency downward? When the reason is determined the forecast is seen of certain scarcity of cattle hereafter and record breaking high prices. Feedstuffs cost so much in these days of great foreign demand for all kinds of grain that it does not pay the stockmen who have to buy grain to fatten their cattle for market to continue in the business. Many are closing out, selling not only the usual number of cattle, but also their breeders. This has two certain effects—one is that too many fine ones are on the market now, and the other is that the selling of breeders for slaughter makes scarcity in the future beyond the possibility of reasonable doubt. The small farmer who raises all the feed he needs for his cattle is certain to have rich returns in the future. The large ranches have been subsidizing for years past, and present conditions are wiping out the remainder. The farmers will be the beneficiaries. It is wise to make a note of this fact.

MANY DEATHS THE PAST WEEK

A Large Number From The Surrounding Communities Pass To Their Final Resting Place

Mrs. Valentine Fischer of Schlesingerville, died last Saturday afternoon, April 10, 1915, at 4:15 o'clock at the home of her son Joseph, in North Milwaukee, with whom she had been visiting. She was taken ill three weeks ago, with a complication of diseases, and was unable to leave her bed thereafter. Deceased whose maiden name was Barbara Fischer, was born in Bavaria on February 5th, 1856, and therefore was fifty-nine years, one month and twenty-nine days old. She just left her parents when a child and in 1873 she came to this country, with the family of B. Schaefer, and after residing in Milwaukee for a few months, came to Schlesingerville and resided there ever since. She was married to Valentine Fischer on April 7th, 1875, who survives her with eight children. Four children preceded her in death.

The death of Mrs. Fischer was learned with much sorrow by her many friends in Schlesingerville and vicinity, for she was a woman of kindly impulses and was much beloved by everyone. She was a devoted wife and mother and her death is a severe blow to the family. They have the deep sympathy of everyone in their sad affliction.

The funeral was held Wednesday forenoon from her late home in Schlesingerville to St. Peter's Catholic church. Rev. Brueck officiating. A large number of sorrowing friends attended the funeral.—Hartford Times.

Mrs. Wm. Geidel received the news of the death of her mother, which occurred at Cecil, Wis., on Wednesday, April 14th. She was born in Pomaria, Germany in the year 1825 on September 29th, and was married on November 11th, 1850, to Carl Heller, who survives her. They came to America in 1856 residing in the town of Auburn until the year 1894, when they moved with their son Fred to Cecil, Wis., where she spent the remainder of her life, attaining the age of 89 years, 7 months and 15 days. She died Friday at 10 o'clock, Saturday at the Lutheran church near Cecil.

Farwell dear mother, sweet thy weary with years and worn with pain, Farwell till in some happy place We shall behold thy face again. 'Tis ours to miss thee all our years And tender memories of thee keep. Thine in the Lord to rest for so He giveth His beloved sleep. Weep not that her toils are over, Weep not that her race is run, God grant we may rest as calmly when our work like hers is done. Till then we yield with gladness to our mothers to Him to keep, And rejoice in the sweet assurance He giveth His loved one sleep. She was a true Christian mother, Teaching her children to love, And obey the Lord their Maker, And also providing for their earthly welfare, And for the Spiritual life in the Hereafter.

Big Fire at Hustiford

The entire buildings and contents of the Hustiford Electric Light Power and Mfg. company were destroyed by fire Wednesday afternoon. The property destroyed consisted of the large grist and flouring mills, crate and box factory, and electric light and power plant, aggregating a total loss of about $15,000, which is covered by $5,000 insurance. In speaking of the fire the Hustiford News says:

"How the fire originated is unknown. The fire bell announced the outbreak of the big conflagration at one o'clock, to which our fire department promptly responded. By that time the blaze had advanced considerably and although the firemen did their level best with the fire apparatus, it was beyond control and they could only prevent the flames from communicating to neighboring buildings. How the fire could start in the middle of the cellar where mud and water stood is a question that remains to be solved. The box factory and mill were not running Wednesday, the electric plant being only in operation. The heavy loss is a terrible blow to the firm. Mass meetings will be held for the purpose of encouraging the proprietors to rebuild and see what can be done in replacing the destruction. We are informed by the proprietors that temporary arrangements for constructing an electric light plant will probably be made at once."—Hartford Times.

Arbor Day

Governor Philipp has issued a proclamation naming May 7th as Arbor and Bird Day. The Arbor and Bird Day Manuals are now being sent to the schools of the state. It has been customary for a number of years past to designate the first Friday in May as Arbor and Bird Day. There will be no Arbor Day publication next year, since the legislature of 1913 provided that it was thereafter to be issued only every other year.

HERMAN STERN COMMITS SUICIDE

Young Farmer of The Town of Wayne Hangs Himself, Despondency and Worry Over Financial Affairs The Cause

Herman Stern, aged 30 years, a young farmer of the town of Wayne, residing on the Mrs. Eva Janssen farm, situated about 3 miles southwest of this village, committed suicide early Tuesday morning by hanging himself in the hay barn. It is believed despondency is the cause for the act, worrying over financial affairs.

According to a story related to a reporter of the Statesman by his wife, Mr. Stern arose as usual about 5 a. m. and in company with his step-son, William, went to the barn to do the milking and other chores. After finishing milking Mr. Stern sent the boy to the house telling him to get breakfast ready as his mother was not feeling very well and that he would come to the house as soon as he finished the other chores.

After having breakfast ready, Willie was sent to the barn to call his father, Wm. was horrified to find him hanging to a beam in the barn. The boy ran to the house and told the news to his mother, who went to the barn, but arrived to late, life already being extinct, the neck being broke. It is supposed Mr. Stern committed the tragedy by jumping from the beam with the loop of the rope around his neck, the force of the jump breaking the neck, causing instant death. Fred Baumgartner, a neighbor was notified, who telephoned to Coroner William Kippman at Wayne, and Doctor Hausmann of this village. Upon arrival of the coroner and doctor an inquest was held. Coroner Kippman empaneled a jury composed of John Galek Jr., Henry Giese, Henry Kedingler, Louis Melius, Fred and William Baumgartner. The jury brought in a verdict of "Suicide by hanging himself in the barn."

His wife who is prostrated by the tragedy cannot account for the act outside of financial affairs which Mr. Stern worried about. She states that during the late few weeks he was acting queer and brooding these affairs. Mr. Stern was born in Fond du Lac county near Fond du Lac on July 1st, 1885. He was married to Katie Kartz at West Bend on March 16, 1908. Their union was blessed with three children, namely: Herman, 6 years; Ella, 4 and Paul 2. He also leaves his wife, one step-son, William, age 13 years; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Stern of New Prospect; Walter Endlich's hall, Relatives Leonard, Otto and Mrs. H. Wernschoke and daughter Adelaide, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Justman of Juneau, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sell, G. Pamperin, Mrs. F. Sell and Wm. Sell of Mayville.

Kohn, Clara, Mrs. Guy Stokes, Alvina, Mrs. F. Keney of Milwaukee and Rosalia and Martin at home. She is also survived by her husband, two brothers and four sisters and four grand children. AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

Henry Smith the veteran Milwaukee alderman and one of the pioneer millwrights of the northwest, figured in a lawsuit at Barton growing out of the sale of a mill which he erected there fifty-one years ago. William F. Gadow purchased the property of John Hunholz of Milwaukee, for $15,000, receiving a warranty deed. It developed that an ice right existed against the property, requiring the maintenance of a stated level of water at ice cutting time, which greatly impaired the value of the property, particularly in grist season in winter. A suit for breach of covenant resulted in judgment of $1500 for plaintiff and this has been affirmed by the supreme court. Ald. Smith was an important witness at the trial. Port Washington Pilot.

John Hacker, of Milwaukee, has leased the Mich. Hacker summer resort at the big Cedar Lake, and will take possession of it on May 1. Mr. Hacker is a brother of the late Michael Hacker. He has for many years been in the employ of the Miller Brewing company of Milwaukee, a carpenter. He is an active and progressive young man, well suited for the management of the popular Cedar Lake resort. We wish him success.—West Bend Pilot.

Walter Mans, of this city, who is the owner of a very valuable flock of Rhode Island Reds, consisting of seventeen hens and one cockerel, has been keeping tab on the laying abilities of his hens and reports figures which he has good reasons to believe will be hard to duplicate. For the month of March, up to and including Tuesday, the 30th, his flock produced a total of 328 eggs. An average of eleven eggs a day from seventeen hens is surely profitable gathering. Can you beat it?—Juneau Independent.

SYNOPSIS

Warrington, an American adventurer, and his servant, with a caged parrot, the bird known as the irrawaddy as Parrot & Co., are bound for Rangoon. Elsa, a beautiful American girl, is a tourist, and she asks the parrot to introduce her. He tells her that Warrington has been syndicate and sold his oil claims for $200,000. Warrington puts Rajah, the parrot, through his tricks for Elsa and they pass two golden days together on the river. In Rangoon, Warrington interferes in a row over cards caused by an enemy, Newell Craig. Elsa is annoyed by Craig and stabs him with a dagger. Warrington discovers Elsa on the Singapore steamer. He avoids her. Craig is aboard and is warned by Warrington who ceases to avoid Elsa. Craig stirs up a scandal. Elsa tells Warrington of the happenings and he hints at Craig on a murder hunt. He finds him stretched out drunk on deck and turns the hose on him. At Penang Malacca, who drove Warrington from his plantation when he learned his story, returns aboard. Warrington tells Elsa that Malacca and Craig both will tell their story names that did not belong to Malacca were not to speak to him again. Malacca tells Warrington, who keeps his temper. At Singapore Elsa calls on her father's old friend the American consul general. Malacca calls and relates the steamer gossip about Elsa. Warrington also calls and sends Elsa to the Andes Construction company, offering to restore the stolen money if they will lift the ban.

"And a man may break any one of these laws. I consider it horribly unfair."

"So it is. But if you wish to live in peace, you must submit."

"Peace at that price I have no wish for. This man Malloy lives within the pale of law; the other man is outside of it. Yet, of the two, which would you be quickest to trust?"

The consul general laughed. "Now you are appealing not to my knowledge of the world but to my instinct."

"Thanks."

"Is there any reason why you should defend Mr. Warrington, as he calls himself?"

The consul general's wife desperately tried to catch her husband's eye. But either he did not see the glance or he purposely ignored it.

"In defending Mr. Warrington I am defending myself. My dear friend, Elsa went on, letting warmth come into her voice once more, "my sympathy went out to that man. He looked so lonely. Did you notice his eyes? Can a man look at you the way he does and be bad?"

"I have seen Malloy dozens of times. I know him to be a scoundrel of sorts; but I doubt if bald sunlight could make him blink. Liars have first to overcome the flickering and wavering of the eyes."

"He said almost the same thing. Would he say that if he were a liar?"

"I haven't accused him of being that. Indeed, he struck me as a truthful young man. By the way, what is the name of the firm your father founded?"

"The Andes Construction company. Do you think we could find him something to do there?" eagerly. "He builds bridges."

"I shouldn't advise that. But we have some astray. You ought not to see him again."

"It is a hateful world," Elsa appealed to the wife.

"It is, Elsa, dear. But James is right."

"You'll get your balance," said the guardian, "when you reach home. When's the wedding?"

"I'm not sure that I'm going to be married," Elsa twirled the sunshade.

"You'll get your balance," said the guardian, "when you reach home. When's the wedding?"

"I'm not sure that I'm going to be married," Elsa twirled the sunshade.

"You'll get your balance," said the guardian, "when you reach home. When's the wedding?"

"I'm not sure that I'm going to be married," Elsa twirled the sunshade.

realize that I have made a fool of myself."

Interest began to fill Elsa's eyes.

"It has been said," he went on, keeping the key, "that I am a man of courage, but I find that I need a good deal of that just now. I have been rude to you, and without warrant, and I offer you my humble apologies." He fumbled with his cravat as if it had suddenly tightened. "Will you accept?"

"Instantly," Elsa understood the quality of courage that had stirred the colonel. But ruthlessly: "I should, however, like your point of view in regard to what you consider my conduct."

"Is it necessary?"

"I believe it would be better for my understanding if you made a full confession." She did not mean to be relentless, but her curiosity was too strong not to press her advantage.

"Well, then, over here as elsewhere in the world there are standards by which we judge persons who come under our notice."

"Agreed. Individuality is not generally understandable."

"By the mediocre, you might have added. That's the difficulty with individuality; it refuses to be harnessed by mediocrity and mediocrity holds the whip-lash, always. I represent the mediocre."

"Oh, never!" said Elsa animatedly. "Mediocrity is always without courage."

"You are wrong. It has the courage of its convictions."

"Rather is it not stubbornness, willful refusal to recognize things as they are?"

He countered the question with another. "Supposing we were all individuals, in the sense you mean? Supposing each of us did exactly as he pleased? Can you honestly imagine a more confusing place than this world would be? The Manchurian jury is a wild little beast, an individual if ever there was one; but man tames him and puts to use his energies. And so it is with human individuality. We of the mediocre tame and harness and make it useful to the general welfare of humanity. And when we encounter the untamable, in order to safeguard ourselves, we must turn it back into the wilderness, an outlaw. Indeed, I might call individuality an element, like fire and water and air."

"But you conquer fire and water and air?" Elsa demanded, believing she had him pocketed.

"Mediocrity, through the individuality of this or that being. Humanity in the bulk is mediocre. And odd as it seems, individuality (which is another word for genius) believes it leads mediocrity. But it cannot be made to understand that mediocrity ordains the leadership."

"Then you contend that in the hands of the stupid lies the balance of power?"

"Let us not say stupid, rather the unimaginable, the practical and the pleading. The stubbornest person in the world is one with an idea."

"Do you honestly insist that you are mediocre?"

"No," thoughtfully. "I am one of those stubborn men with ideas. I merely insist that I prefer to accept the tenets of mediocrity for my own peace and the peace of others."

Elsa forgot those about her, forgot her intended humiliation of the man at her side. He denied that he was an individual, but he was one, as interesting one as she had met in a very long time. She, too, had made a blunder. Quick to form opinions, swift to judge, she stooled gently with the common lot, who permit impressions instead of evidence to sway them. Here was a man.

"We have gone far afield," she said, a tacit admission that she could not refute his dissertations. This knowledge, however, was not irksome.

"Rather have we not come to the bars? Shall we let them down? In the civil and military life on this side of the world there are many situations which we perform most tolerate. But these, mind you, are settled conditions. It is upon new ones which arise that we pass judgment. I knew nothing about you, nothing whatever. So I judged you according to the rules."

Elsa leaned upon her elbows, and she smiled a little as she noted that the purple had gone from his nose and that it had resumed its accustomed ruddiness.

"I go on. A woman who travels alone, who does not present letters of introduction, who—"

"Who attends strictly to her own affairs. Go on."

Imperturbably he continued: "Who seeks the acquaintance of men who do not belong, as you Americans say."

"Not men; one man," she corrected.

"A trifling difference. Well, it arouses a disagreeable word, suspicion. For look, there have been examples. It isn't as if you were an isolated case. There have been examples and these we apply to such a case as come under our notice."

"And it doesn't matter that you may be totally wrong?"

His prompt answer astonished her.

"No, it does not matter in the least. Simmered down, it may be explained in a word, appearances. And I must say, to the normal mind . . ."

"The mediocre mind."

"To the normal and mediocre mind, appearances were against you. Observe, please, that I did not know I was wrong, that you were a remarkable young woman. My deductions were made from what I saw as an outsider. On the irrawaddy you made the acquaintance of a man who came out here a fugitive from justice. After you made his acquaintance, you sought none other, in fact, repelled any advances. This alone decided me."

"Then you were decided?" To say that this blunt exposition was not bitter to her taste, that it did not act like acid upon her pride, would not be true. She was hurt, but she did not let the hurt befog her sense of justice. From his point of view the colonel was in no fault. "Let me tell you how very wrong you were indeed."

"Doubtless," he hastily interposed, "you enveloped the man in a cloud of romance."

"On the contrary, I spoke to him and sought his companionship because he was nothing more nor less than a ghost."

"Ah! Is it possible that you knew him in former times?"

"No. But he was so like the man at home; so identical in features and build to the man I expected to go home to marry. . . ."

"My dear young lady, you are right. Mediocrity is without imagination, stupid, and makes the world a dull place indeed. What woman in your place would have acted otherwise? Instead of one apology I offer a thousand."

"I accept each and all of them. More, I believe that you and I could get on easily. I can very well imagine the soldier you used to be. I am going to ask you what you know about Mr. Warrington."

"This, that he is not a fit companion for a young woman like yourself; that a detaching rumor follows hard upon his heels wherever he goes, I learned something about him in Rangoon. He is known to the riff-raff as Parrot & Co., and I don't know what else. All of us on shipboard learned his previous history. And not from respectable quarters, either."

"If I had been elderly and without physical attractions?" Elsa inquired sarcastically.

"We are dealing with human nature, mediocrity, and not with speculation. It is in the very nature of things to distrust that which we do not understand. You say, old and without physical attractions. Beauty is of all things most drawing. We crowd about it, we crown it, we flatter it. The old and unattractive we pass by. If I had not seen you here tonight, heard you talk, saw in a kind of rebellious enchantment over your knowledge of the world and your distinguished acquaintance, I should have gone to my grave believing that my suspicions were correct. I dare say that I shall make the same mistake again."

"Did you learn among other things what Mr. Warrington had done?"

"Yes. A sordid affair. Ordinary peculations that were wasted over gaming tables."

Warrington had told her the truth. At least, the story told by others coincided with his own. But what was it that kept doubt in her mind? Why should she not be ready to believe what others believed, what the man himself had confessed? What was it to her that he looked like Arthur, that he was guilty or innocent?

"And his name?" She wondered if the colonel knew that also.

"Warrington, as I assumed. His real name is Paul Ellison."

"Paul Ellison," she repeated it slowly. Her voice did not seem her own. The table, the lights, the faces, all receded and became a blur.

CAULIFLOWER USED IN DUEL

But One Fighter Comes Back With His Trusty Old Six-Shooter—Result, Hospital and Jail.

Ulysses Jackson Underhill is a colored cook, living in bachelor quarters at 1278 Turk street. Michael Scott, also a colored man, also a cook, lives at 16 Bourbon place. Underhill and Scott are bosom friends. So it was nothing unusual that the former should invite the latter to supper in his rooms.

Scott was to cook the meal. Underhill was to get the provisions. Underhill went out, leaving his friend presumably peeling potatoes. Returning, he found Scott lounging in an armchair polishing a gun.

"Why do you don't peel dem potatoes, fella?" asked Underhill.

"Busy, man; I've just been busy wif this hyar little plaything."

Underhill was wroth. He slammed two heads of cauliflower at his guest's head, following them with a juicy steak. Scott rose, unwrapped the steak from around his ear, and shot Underhill in the left thigh.

"Are you going to get a doctor?" Underhill was asked at Central Emergency hospital.

"Oh, Misto Scott will tend to dat part."

But "Misto" Scott is in jail, charged with assault with a deadly weapon.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Couldn't Fool the Dog.

A citizen of Bangor, Me., has a skye terrier dog which has been taught to take a paper bag in his mouth and go to a restaurant after his dinner. He goes to the door of the establishment and scratches the outside till he is admitted. Then he trots down stairs and deposits his paper bag on the floor and waits patiently until some meat is placed in it, and returns to his owner.

The other day the restaurant people placed some raw potato cuttings in the bag instead of meat and twisted it up as usual. The terrier did not discover the trick until he had reached the outside door of the restaurant, when he suddenly dropped the bag on the floor, pawed it open and found out that he had been fooled. He could not be induced to touch it until some meat had been placed in the bag in plain sight, when he took up his dinner and trotted off with it.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

The apples and nuts we may treasure. And grain fields that ripen to gold. But springtime is teeming with hope and our dreaming.

Is freighted with pleasures untold. The snow is a mantle of crystal. Where diamonds in icicles shine. And memory treasures the long winter pleasures.

But spring is the season divine.

SOME COMMON DISHES.

For a homely pudding which is well liked try:

Brown Betty.—Slice six large apples after peeling and coring, one heaping cupful of bread crumbs, one-half cupful of chopped suet, one tablespoonful of butter, three tablespoonfuls of brown sugar, salt to taste and one-half teaspoonful of grated nutmeg. Chop the suet, sprinkle the sugar and crumbs in layers with the chopped apple, add the butter to a few of the crumbs to finish the top and bake with the addition of a little fruit juice or water. Serve hot with hard sauce.

Irish Stew.—Take a pound of the neck of mutton, a pint of potatoes, cut in small pieces, four onions, a bunch of parsley, pepper and salt, one tablespoonful of flour. Put the butter into a saucepan with the mutton, cut in small pieces. Add the onions, cut in quarters, with the herbs and parsley. Cover with water. Lay the potatoes over the meat, sprinkle with salt and pepper and boil. Then add flour and let simmer for two hours. Serve on a hot platter with the vegetables around the meat. Remove the herbs before serving.

Potato Croquettes.—Take a quart of mashed potato, two eggs, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, salt, pepper and red pepper to taste. Mash the potatoes by putting them through a ricer, melt the butter and add with the seasonings, then the well-beaten eggs. Mix and divide into ten or more pieces. Form into croquettes; brush with egg yolk, toss in crumbs and fry in smoking hot fat.

Ladies' Cabbage.—Chop a small head of cabbage quite fine. Throw into boiling salted water and cook in an open kettle half an hour. Drain and add two tablespoonfuls of butter mixed with one of flour, add a cupful of rich milk, salt and paprika and simmer ten minutes.

Alas! how easily things go wrong! A sigh too deep or a kiss too long. And then comes a mist and a weeping rain. And life is never the same again. —George Madsen.

SOUR CREAM DISHES.

Among the women in the dairy districts the question is asked every day: "How can we use the small amounts of left-over sour cream that are always accumulating from the cream cans?" Here is the answer:

Salad dressings of various kinds are improved by the addition of cream. It may be whipped and added to a boiled dressing and make it a most rich and tasty dressing. Simply adding sour cream with sugar and salt to sliced cucumbers or cabbage, with a dash of salt and pepper, you have a most appetizing salad ready to eat.

Sour cream used as a white sauce in place of milk to serve with fish is another dish not half appreciated or known.

Sour-Cream Biscuit.—There is no more enjoyable hot biscuit than the one enriched by sour cream. To each cupful of sour cream add a half teaspoonful of soda, using two or three tablespoonfuls of shortening, according to the richness of the cream.

Drop Cookies.—Take a half cupful of butter, soften it, add to one cupful of sugar, beat well, add a beaten egg, two cupfuls of flour, a fourth of a teaspoonful of soda and three and a half teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a half cupful of sour cream, mix well, and drop by spoonfuls on a buttered sheet. Sprinkle with granulated sugar and bake in a moderate oven.

Gingerbread.—Beat a quarter of a cupful of sugar, add a cupful of molasses, two well-beaten eggs, one cupful of sour cream and three cupfuls of flour. A teaspoonful of soda and a tablespoonful of ginger. Beat well and bake in a large dripping pan.

Sour cream griddle cakes, gems and spice cake, sour cream, one cupful, with the same of sugar and nutmeats cooked together until thick makes the most delicious cake filling one can imagine.

Nellie Maxwell.

The "Restful Lunch."

A custom observed by many employes is that of serving the seamstress in the middle of the afternoon with tea or coffee and crackers or sandwiches or, in the summer, with a cold drink. This attention as well as the "restful lunch" is sure to be appreciated. In bad weather or even on pleasant days if the family carriage or the motor is at the door or is not being used, it is easy to have the coachman or chauffeur take the tired seamstress to the nearest subway or elevated station or home as the case may be.

Dutiful Fiancee.

Young lady, fiancee of enthusiastic golfer, would like to meet an instructor in the sport; must have correct swing, and a handicap. In reply, state extent of handicap; and terms per day, to Box U, 292 the Times.—London Times.

The Reason.

"How is it that some animals know when electrical disturbances in the air are coming?"

"I don't know, unless it is because their noses are storm sentries."

Dictating Afloat.

When the military aeroplane is scouting, it usually carries two men. One is the pilot, who runs and steers the craft; the other is the observer, who marks the placings of the hostile troops, the position of their guns, the movement of trains, and the like. The observer also makes many sketches of the ground over which he is flying—writing that often interferes with his work notes and memoranda. In certain conditions of flight, too, it is often hard for him to use a pencil and paper. To obviate that difficulty, the military aeroplane, says the Scientific American, now frequently carries a phonograph, with a speaking tube running to the mouth of the observer, so that by talking into the machine at any time during the flight, he can record his observations, and still have his hands free for his field glass or his sketching pencil.

Does Egg Dance at Seventy-Eight.

Albert Pankopf, seventy-eight years old, bent and white-haired, danced blindfolded among 18 eggs, laid in two rooms at intervals of a foot, for several minutes without breaking a shell. For more than fifty years Professor Pankopf has been performing this feat, but at the annual Schluacht-fest, but at the annual Schluacht-fest of the Saxonia and General German Benevolent association he danced as never before. The years dropped from him as he danced. When the music stopped the old man fell into the arms of a spectator. "Weak heart," he gasped. He soon recovered himself and bowed in response to the cheers.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Canadian Wheat to Feed the World

The war's fearful devastation of European crops has caused an unusual demand for grain from the American Continent. The people of the world must be fed and there is an unusual demand for Canadian wheat. Canada's invitation to every industrious farmer is therefore especially attractive. She wants farmers to make money and happy, prosperous homes for themselves while helping her to raise immense wheat crops.

You can get a Homestead of 160 acres FREE and other lands can be bought at remarkably low prices. Think of the money you can make with wheat at its present high prices, where for some time it is liable to continue. During many years Canadian wheat fields have averaged 20 bushels to the acre—many yields as high as 45 bushels to the acre. Wonderful crops also of Oats, Barley and Flax.

Mixed farming is fully as profitable an industry as grain raising. The excellent grasses, full of nutrition, are the only food required either for beef or dairy purposes. Good schools, markets convenient, climate excellent.

Military service is not compulsory in Canada, but there is an extra demand for farm labor to replace the many young men who have volunteered for the war. The Government this year is urging farmers to put extra acreage into grain.

again. "Oh, bother with it all! Dinner at eight, in the big dining room."

"Yes. But the introductions will be made on the cafe veranda. These people out here have gone mad over cocktails. And look your best, Elsa. I want them to see a real American girl tonight. I'll have some roses sent up to you."

Elsa had not the heart to tell him that all interest in his dinner had suddenly gone from her mind; that even the confusion of the colonel no longer appealed to her bitter malice. She knew that she was going to be bored and miserable.

When she was gone, the consul general's wife said: "Poor girl!"

Her husband looked across the room interestedly. "Why do you say that?"

"I am a woman."

"That phrase is the City of Refuge. All women fly to it when confronted by something they do not understand."

EARLY LIFE IN WISCONSIN. Life Before the Ice Age. The ice age of Pleistocene period as it is named, is full of interest and is perhaps better known to the layman than any of the other great divisions in the earth's history. So long is the knowledge of the things that men estimated to the sands but every school boy has some mental picture of the great sheets of ice and the changes they wrought. It is not so long ago that the slowly moving ice has very gradually left a beautiful polished surface marked by long scratches and grooves. Yonder are irregular hills made of heaps of rock and soil scooped up by the ice. Over there is a beautiful lake formed by the stopping of an old river channel with deep deposits of sand and gravel. Such evidence is everywhere at hand, but less well known is the story of the life of those times; a story that to many is the most interesting of all.

For many years the land in the north had been slowly rising till at an early time in the ice age there was a complete land connection between North America and Asia by way of Alaska. A great host of quadrupeds that had been living in Europe and Asia were quick to take advantage of this new route and sailed forth to our continent where food was plentiful.

It was then that Wisconsin first became the "Badger State" for Mr. Badger and his wife were among the early arrivals. But the Badgers were among the more inconspicuous travelers as far as size was concerned; there were heavier than were much larger than those of today. Indeed, they rivaled in size the largest of the wolves. At this time too, came a great troupe of the deer family, caribou, the moose and others. If to this collection one adds to his picture, the caribou, the bison, the great sabretoothed cats and many other strange creatures that were already living further south on the continent he has a wonderful semblance of animals indeed!

THE TRAIN ROBBER TRIES TO HOLD UP THE GOOD JUDGE

COME BACK HERE ALL I WANT IS SOME OF THAT REAL TOBACCO CHEW. I'M ALL OUT OF IT MYSELF THAT'S ALL I'M RUNNING FOR.

HITTING the high places of public favor—the way news of "Right-Cut," the Real Tobacco Chew, is getting around from friend to friend.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—cut fine, short shred—seasoned and sweetened just enough, cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

TRAGIC SCENE IN THE CARPATHIANS

Here is a tragic and remarkable picture of the horror and death of the battlefield as seen by women. The dead and wounded are lying where they have been felled by the Russian bullets in the Carpathians. Austrian Red Cross nurses are seen active at their work of mercy and relief.

GREEK SOLDIERS ON A ROUTE MARCH

This photograph, taken by a member of Sir Thomas Lipton's party, shows a body of Greek soldiers on a route march passing through the town of Piraeus.

MAJ. GEN. SIR J. S. COWANS

One of the biggest jobs of the British army is that of the quartermaster general, whose duty it is to see that every soldier in service is provided with all necessities of war, from a shoestring to big trench shelters. Sir J. S. Cowans, who fills this highly important position, is the third military member of the army council and has been working ceaselessly to supply the provisions, clothing, shelter, and, in fact, everything used by the three to four million soldiers in the field.

Amber.

Amber beads, amber combs, even amber pins, says Dame Fashion. We admire it, but who knows where it is found or what it is? Do you, sir, when the amber mouthpieces of your favorite pipe is stuck between your lips and you gaze contentedly into the fire? Do you, madam, with your amber beads on your white throat? Pine, and fir trees, centuries ago, poured out their sticky juices and as the gum oozed out, it flowed down to the tree roots where it lay deposited undisturbed for centuries.

From Coal to Oil.

Reassured as to the supply, the United States navy will use oil as fuel in all its new fighting ships. The public lands of California alone are said to contain enough oil to supply all that the navy is likely to need for a century to come, and there are great quantities of oil in other parts of the country. A ship can take oil aboard more rapidly than it can take on coal, and as the work requires no physical labor, it does not interrupt the routine of the ship. The merits of oil as fuel are many. It makes no clinders, and although its smoke is heavy, that can be controlled. It saves space by requiring smaller boilers and fire-rooms, and it saves men by requiring fewer in the engine room. According to the Engineering Record, the use of oil as fuel in the battleships Nevada and California so reduced the boiler weights that heavier armor could be put on them. The shortened boilers can, moreover, be grouped under one smokestack, so as appreciably to clear the upper decks, and to permit the guns in the turrets to turn in more extensive areas. We shall soon see many interesting changes in marine propulsion, all owing largely to fuel oil, the internal combustion engine for heavy service, and electric motive power. The last is now used aboard the collier Jupiter, and has been authorized for the new battleship California—Youth's Companion.

TRENCH MAKERS PAUSE FOR LUNCHEON

DAD DY DAIRY

EXCELLENT RATION FOR COW

If Farmers Would Depend More on Silage and Less on Pasture Herds Could Be Doubled.

A good ration for cows giving milk is silage twice a day, corn fodder once a day and all the bean forage they will clean up, with about one pound grain or concentrate to every three pounds milk the cow gives. If the beans were pulled before becoming too ripe and secured without much rain falling on them, the forage makes good feed. Roots are valuable to increase the flow of milk.

If we would depend more on silage and less on pasture, our dairy herds might easily be doubled and the farm enriched accordingly. Many farmers have been slow to awaken to the fact that dairying brings excellent returns. Many unprofitable crops are still raised where the land might better be growing feed for live stock.

Permanent pasture is a waste unless the land cannot be plowed. Every acre should be made to raise feed for stock to the limit of its capacity, and this should be fed right on the farm, returning the fertility to the soil.

PAIL OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

Where Clean Milk Is Produced Small-Top Receptacle Is Necessary to Exclude Bacteria.

The United States department of agriculture has this to say about milking:

"In modern dairies where clean milk is produced the small-top milk pail is a necessity, as such a pail presents only a small opening into which dust and dirt may fall from the air or from the cow's body. It has been found by experience that the use of the small-top pail greatly reduces the number of bacteria in milk from average dairies. Many types of milk pails are for sale, but any tinner can convert an ordinary pail into a small-top pail by the addition of a hood, as shown herewith.

Milkers should be allowed to milk only with dry hands. The practice of wetting the hands with milk is a filthy habit and is liable to cause the cow's teats to chap in the winter time. Milking should be done quickly and thoroughly, with no violent jerking of the teats. After each cow is milked the pail of milk should be removed immediately to the milk house.

The milker should remember always that he is handling a human food which is very easily contaminated. Soap, clean water and towels must be readily accessible. The hands should be washed after milking each cow.

COTTONSEED MEAL FOR COWS

No Harmful Effects If Fed in Moderate Amounts Along With Variety of Other Feeds.

(By E. G. WOODWARD, Nebraska Experiment Station.)

A Nebraska subscriber writes: "Is the feeding of cottonseed meal harmful to dairy cows if fed right along?"

If cottonseed meal is fed in moderate amounts along with a variety of other feeds, there are no harmful effects.

Ordinarily a cow should not be fed more than two pounds daily of cottonseed meal. As a usual thing it will not take this amount to properly balance a ration made up of common dairy feeds.

At present prices cottonseed meal is a very cheap source of protein and should undoubtedly be used much more extensively by Nebraska dairymen than it now is.

MUD HOLES IN COW PASTURE

Clean Shore Is Blessing to Fly-Pestered Animals—Many Annoyances Are Avoided.

A cow pasture mud hole is a veritable nuisance. To get away from the flies the cows will wade in the mud until their legs and even their udders become completely plastered. Then added to the annoyance of stamping and kicking at flies at milking time we have the added annoyance of being obliged to milk cows with chapped teats.

A clean lake shore or river or brook in the pasture is a blessing indeed to the fly-pestered cows, but the mud hole should either be drained or fenced out of the pasture. Foul in the feet with cattle, and greasy heel with horses, is the result of tramping back and forth from mud holes to dusty grounds.

Sell the Boarders.

The greatest loss in the herd usually comes from the number of boarders it contains. Your wits should discover these boarders; fatten them and sell. There will be more profit at once.

Watch the Market.

Prepare to sell milk, cream or butter as your inclinations and market seem to require. There is money in either when managed as they should be. Act towards this as to any other good business.

Regulating the Watch.

If one has an opportunity to compare his watch daily at a certain time with some source of standard time, as with the time as sent by telegraph or by wireless signals, or by regular comparison with some accurate clock, as one daily passes a jeweler's store, for instance, it would be well to establish the habit of winding the watch at that time, as it is better to have such daily comparisons at the time the watch is wound, and more regular winding will usually ensue.

As it was I had hardly strength at times to be on my feet and what I did do was by a great effort. I could not sleep at night and of course felt very bad in the morning, and had a steady headache.

"After taking the second bottle I noticed that the headache was no so bad, I rested better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued its use until it made a new woman of me, and now I can hardly realize that I am able to do so much as I do. Whenever I know any woman in need of a good medicine I highly praise Lydia E. ASSEMBLY PASSES ANTI-TIPPING BILL

MEASURE MAKES IT A MISDEMEANOR TO SOLICIT OR GIVE GRATUITY

EMPLOYER IS ALSO LIABLE

Act, if Signed by Gov. Philipp, Will Become a Law on Sept. 1, 1915—Create Printing Editor.

Madison, April 14, 1915.

Assemblymen signaled their return from a ten days' vacation by passing the Bosshard anti-tipping bill.

The bill as amended and passed reads as follows: The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. There is added to the statutes a new section to read: "Section 45751—1. Every employe of any hotel, restaurant, barber shop or public place and every employe of any person, firm or of any public service corporation engaged in the transportation of passengers or the furnishing of food, lodging and other accommodations to the public in this state who shall receive or solicit any gratuity or tip from any guest or patron, and any owner of such hotel, restaurant, barber shop, or public place, who shall knowingly permit any employe or servant to solicit or receive any such gratuity or tip, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Every person who shall give or offer any gratuity or tip to any person or employe prohibited from receiving or soliciting the same by the provisions of this section, shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor.

May Jail Violators. "2. Every hotel, restaurant, barber shop, firm and public service corporation engaged in the transportation of passengers or in furnishing food or lodging or other accommodations to the public, shall keep a copy of this law posted in a conspicuous place in such hotel, restaurant and barber shop and in the dining and sleeping cars of any firm or public service corporation mentioned in this section. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than $5, nor more than $25, or by imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed thirty days."

Section 2.—This act shall take effect on Sept. 1, 1915.

Bill Creates Printing Editor.

The legislative investigation committee introducing a new bill creating a new printing board and providing that the board shall consist of the governor, state superintendent of public property and an editor of public printing to be appointed by the governor. Under the present law the secretary of state, state treasurer and attorney general. Under the new bill the editor of public printing is to receive $2,500 a year. The new board is authorized to appoint such assistants as it may need and to fix their salaries. The bill reduces the number of copies of reports issued by the various state departments, commissions, boards and bureaus and will, it is believed by the investigation committee, save the state $100,000 a year.

The assembly also passed the Reinhardt bill, providing hotel rates must be posted in each room and can not be changed except on ten days' notice; also the Bosshard bill providing for display of flags on school buildings and Senator Martin's bill relating to survival of actions.

It was reported that the opponents of the anti-tipping bill, which now goes to Gov. Philipp for approval, were planning to urge him to veto it. Proprietors and employes of many of the leading hotels, restaurants and other public places are opposed to the bill. The measure will probably reach the governor late this week, and he will have six days in which to consider it.

Many Bills For Hearing. The two houses have scheduled 220 bills for hearings this week. Of these the larger part are with the assembly committees. The most important bills which will come up are:

Would Aid Dependent Children. The state board of control has submitted a report to the legislature recommending that the law creating state aid to mothers with dependent children remain on the statute books. The report says there are 1,668 dependent children in 335 destitute homes in the state.

The report recommends that the statute be amended that state aid may only be given to those children under 14 years of age whose period of dependence on the community is likely to continue longer than one year. It is also recommended that the law provide only for children living with their own mothers who are widows, or wives whose husbands are incapacitated for gainful work. The mother must have lived in the state two years.

The board recommends that the amount be increased from $12 to $15 per month for the first child and $10 per month for each additional child and the maximum amount be $40 per month.

It is estimated $39,071.48 per year will be required during the next biennial period to reimburse counties for one-third of their expenditures for state aid to dependent children.

Asks Old Law Amendment. A bar which has existed in the fundamental law of Wisconsin since its organization as a state, forbidding sheriffs to succeed themselves in office is to be removed in the Waldron resolution, which was advanced to the assembly, is carried to final consummation. The resolution proposes an amendment to the constitution to remove the barrier which has existed for more than sixty-five years.

Woman's Suffrage Vote Close. The assembly committee on state affairs decided to recommend that the Budlong and Kubasta amendments to the Bradley woman's suffrage bill be rejected and then split by a vote of five to five on the question of recommending the bill for passage. The bill provides for submitting the question of woman's suffrage to a vote of the electorate at the general election in the fall of 1916. The Budlong amendment provided that if the bill became a law, married women should lose their right of dower and the Kubasta amendment provided that the bill be submitted to the voters at the spring election in 1915.

LAW ON CORRUPT PRACTICES VALID

STATE SUPREME COURT PASSES ON CONSTITUTIONALITY OF ELECTION STATUTE.

ENTITLED TO JURY TRIAL

Section Giving Judge Sole Right to Determine Guilt or Innocence Declared Unconstitutional—Reaffirms Lower Court

Madison.—In the case of the state of Wisconsin on relation of J. J. Schumacher, appellant, against District Attorney C. A. Markham of Dodge county, respondent, the Wisconsin Supreme court held that the section of the corrupt practices law providing that the court, without a jury, shall determine all issues of fact in alleged violations of this law, is unconstitutional, and that the remainder of the law is constitutional.

Markham, while a candidate for the nomination and election of district attorney of Dodge county, was charged with having bought liquor, meals and cigars for voters to induce them to vote for him, and that he failed to report such expenditures to the county clerk. It was also charged other persons illegally spent large sums of money in support of Markham's campaign with his knowledge and consent, and that no statement of such expenditure was filed with the county clerk. The circuit court held the law unconstitutional because it provided the accused should be tried by the court without a jury.

Kenosha.—George Koskac, defendant in the famous Kenosha dynamite case, was released after being locked up for eighteen months. Judge Belden admitted Koskac to bail and fixed the amount of bail at $1,000. Bail was furnished within fifteen minutes and Koskac was brought into court and released. It is thought that he will never appear as a defendant in this court again.

No notice had been given of Koskac's release and the first that his wife and children knew of it was when he walked into the home just as they were sitting down to dinner. Koskac served seven months in jail before he was sentenced to prison, and he was in prison nearly a year before the Supreme court directed that he be brought back to Kenosha for a new trial.

Rewards are offered for evidence of violation of these laws, and assurance is given that any commissioner who is derelict in regard to their enforcement will be impeached. This, it is pointed out, eliminates any necessity for "constant recall movements."

AUTO VALUE $70,000,000

Applications for Licenses May Reach Total of 70,000 Before Next Fall, is Estimate.

Madison.—Wisconsin people will have the immense sum of $70,000,000 invested in automobiles long before the end of the present year. Alex. J. Cobban, who has charge of the issuing of auto licenses and registration of the same, said that before the year was over 70,000 licenses would be issued. It is a low estimate of $1,000 for each car. This would make the investment in this sort of vehicle amount to the vast sum named.

Mr. Cobban said the total number of licenses issued since Jan. 1, from the department of secretary of state, was 43,808. The total number issued in 1914 was 53,100. With but three months of the year gone the number of auto licenses is within 10,000 of what was issued in the entire year just passed.

To be sure, the bulk of the licenses are issued at the beginning of the year, but even with the statistics show that an increase of over 90 per cent can be expected for the remaining months of the year.

This led Mr. Cobban to predict that the 70,000 mark would be easily reached before the frosts come next fall. This estimate he based on the manner in which applications were being received, in spite of war and business depression.

Advertisement for The reasons for Certain-teed Roofing. Text: "Every buyer needs the proper assurance, when he pays for the best quality, that a second or third quality will not be delivered. The market is flooded with too many brands. Some manufacturers with poor facilities too often meet competition by cutting quality. Some wholesalers buy any old quality, put their labels on it, and say it is the best. Our Certain-teed label is backed by the written guarantee of the world's largest manufacturer of asphalt roofings. It gives each buyer the assurance wanted, and our unequal facilities for manufacturing enable us to sell it at a very reasonable price."

Large advertisement for Certain-teed Roofing. Text: "The reasons for Certain-teed Roofing. Every buyer needs the proper assurance, when he pays for the best quality, that a second or third quality will not be delivered. The market is flooded with too many brands. Some manufacturers with poor facilities too often meet competition by cutting quality. Some wholesalers buy any old quality, put their labels on it, and say it is the best. Our Certain-teed label is backed by the written guarantee of the world's largest manufacturer of asphalt roofings. It gives each buyer the assurance wanted, and our unequal facilities for manufacturing enable us to sell it at a very reasonable price. These are the reasons for Certain-teed Roofing. We invite every one interested to come to our mills and see how we make the goods. We know that our Certain-teed Roofing is the best quality that we can make. It is made with that one purpose in view. We also make cheap grade, poor quality roofings to meet the demand for very temporary roofs, but the Certain-teed label goes only on our best quality, longest life product. It is the grade which carries our Company name and endorsement and guarantee—1 ply 5 years, 2-ply 10 years, 3-ply 15 years. If you want the right quality and want to be sure you are getting what you pay for, insist on the Certain-teed label. The price is reasonable. No one can tell the quality of a piece of roofing by looking at it. The man is not living who can take three kinds of roofing of different quality and tell with any degree of accuracy the length of time each one will last on the roof. He cannot tell their relative values by looking at them. Why take the chance of guessing when you can get the safest guarantee on the best quality goods at a reasonable price. If for any reason you do not care for the highest quality—if you want a temporary roof, we also make goods sold at the lowest price on the market, because we have unequal facilities and are making approximately a third of the entire asphalt roofing and building papers of the whole world's supply. Our facilities enable us to beat all competition on price goods as well as on Certain-teed quality. The difference between the total cost of the goods, the freight, the laying, etc., between quality goods and price goods is insignificant. It is much better policy to cut on the guessing and let the manufacturer of real responsibility insure you on all the vital points. He knows what he puts into the goods and what they are worth, and then insist upon getting everything as represented. General Roofing Mfg. Co.
