OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

Getting Good Roads

At the rate of progress Wisconsin is making we will soon occupy an enviable position in this regard. It is true that the good roads we have obtained in the last two years have been in short and widely separated stretches, but they have usually been the bad spots, and we know that often a small mileage on the bad spots make much road generally good. We are now in position to cover greater mileage, for the reason that after the bad spots are covered the work is not so expensive. Good roads are expensive at best when we look only at the outlay, but they are cheap when we consider the benefits coming from them.

If we had a road on each section line costing $4,000 per mile it would mean $1,200 per section or $1.50 per acre. Such roads would make Wisconsin farms worth at least $5 more per acre. From an investment standpoint such roads would be fully warranted, but of course such expense is not needed and no one at this time would advocate them. In the main good dirt and gravel roads will do handsomely except in rare instances.

Looking again at such roads as would cost $4,000 per mile, the interest on the investment at five per cent would be $60 per year per 100 acre farm. Assuming the maintenance to be anything within reason—and it would be less than on our present poor roads—and the total cost would be less than the unnecessary wear and tear on teams and equipment incident to poor roads. Looking at the matter from either standpoint the question arises, How can we afford longer to have good roads? And we cannot have good roads until we are willing to pay for them.

Clover With Grain Crops

The good farmers of the state will be awake to the matter of seeding clover with their grain crops again this year. They will get more than enough pasturage out of it to pay for the seed and the residue that will be plowed under will wonderfully benefit the land. The best farmers of the state—those that get the big yields of pedigreed grains and sell them for fancy prices—are awake to the necessity of keeping their fields in proper shape in this way. It should not otherwise follow the plan:

Band Convention at Theresa

Sunday, June 20th, is the date selected by the Theresa Brass Band, for the celebrating of the 27th annual tournament of the "North Western Band Association" to be held in Theresa, Wis. The citizens of Theresa have joined hands with the band members in making the necessary arrangements for the celebration. No pains will be spared to make this convention one of the biggest and best ever held in the history of the association.

The large and beautiful park for which Theresa has been famous for many years, will be enlarged to accommodate all who attend. Ample room has been provided for automobiles and rigs. Walter Husting, Peter A. Wagner and Fred Krahn have been selected as the executive committee. Posters announcing the program and other details will be distributed later.

Chairman of Committee

Seed Mailed by Uncle Sam
Hundreds of thousands of packages of seed provided and distributed at Uncle Sam's expense are being poured into the mails during these spring days from Washington. Each senator and representative is shipping 28,000 packages of the seed, mostly vegetable, to constituents in his state. Each package contains five distinct varieties, making a total close to 75,000,000 packages of free seeds furnished by Congress to the agricultural constituencies annually.—R. P. D. News.

Change in Train Service

Schmidt also wishes to announce that the dispatch of mail on this train will be affected. All mail to be dispatched on this train commencing May 2nd must be deposited in post office by 5:30 p. m. Govern yourself accordingly.

SWAT THE FLY THE LATEST SLOGAN

Women's Club of The Village to Conduct a Fly Swatting Campaign From May 1st to May 15

At a meeting of the Womens Club held last Saturday it was decided to make Kewaskum a Flyless Village by conducting two weeks fly swatting campaign. From May 1st to May 15th, the Womens Club will pay ten cents for every one hundred flies delivered at the Public Library on Tuesday and Saturday afternoons and evenings. Now is the time to begin to build up lines of defense and prepare to fight the fly. Flies are the most dangerous insects known to mankind. They carry about germs of tuberculosis, diphtheria, scarlet fever and many other diseases. Catch the flies as fast as they appear. Screen your doors and windows, keep garbage cans covered and clean every day. Let all participate in this campaign and help the betterment of our village and feel the benefits derived from it later.

Clean Up Precautions

Citizens should get an early start this year in making up precautions to use proper care in cleaning rubbish when doing their spring clean-up work. Each spring many fires result from the fact that rubbish piles are burned either too near to buildings, are left in charge incompetent persons, are started on windy days, or, left alone, are thought to be dead, when in fact they are just slumbering.

Make this year a clean year in every way. Prevent the possibility of a fire by entering earnestly into the work of fire prevention. Lead the children the danger of handling matches. Keep gasoline or kerosene out of the house. Place one or more fire extinguishers about the house and barn and show those whom you find to be careless the danger interest them in a clean, wasteless, business community. Do the job it will be more effective in the prevention of fires than all the laws that can be enacted by any legislature or ordinance to that end. A tidy housekeeper is the worst enemy of fire waste. This is conceded by insurance companies and we appeal to you to be of this class and help the Fire Marshal Department in its work for fire prevention, which is for you and your neighbors benefit. Will you?

The campaign of education and publicity which is being carried on by the State Fire Marshal Department is intended to teach the property owners to remedy faulty construction and the occupants to eliminate hazardous conditions. It is also intended to instill into the minds of the people, the insurance companies and especially the fundamental fact that the insurance companies do not pay the fire losses. The payment is made by those of us who buy fire insurance through agents of the insurance companies. Along this line of fire prevention bulletins have been distributed with the purpose of calling attention to the careless acts that cause so many fires—the sins of omission and commission. Their purpose is not only to reach the parents but their children and to encourage more carefulness in the homes.

Fire prevention is a live subject. It is practical enough to interest the most practical, and it admits of enough scientific study to delight the most earnest student. Its economic side has to do directly with the conservation and preservation of our natural resources. It furnishes a wide field for research. It deals with common everyday matters and should interest those in all walks of life. The people must listen and understand before they will act in matters of fire prevention. The study of the subject in the schools should be encouraged and ought to be the means of accomplishing definite results in a very few years.

And when it is considered, that hundreds of human lives are destroyed every year in this state as a natural result of the fire waste and property loss, it is difficult to see how the importance of the fire prevention cause can be over emphasized or exaggerated.

Clem P. Host, State Fire Marshal.

April An Unusual Month

Mid-summer temperatures were in vogue in this vicinity the past few weeks. Just now the people are remarking what an unusual April this has been. Ordinarily April is a month of thunder showers, but this year they have been absent.

It is predicted that this is to be a dry season. According to the wise ones indications last winter would be that the summer would be hot and dry. Up to the present time it appears that the wise ones of last winter have studied the season thoroughly.

Peace Day, May 18

For a number of years past, May 18, the anniversary of the meeting of the first Hague Conference, has been observed as Peace Day. The day this year has special significance owing to the unfortunate interruption in the progress of world peace. Schools should give a part of the day to exercises carefully prepared, which shall have for their purpose the development of sentiment in favor of world peace and increasing intelligence with respect thereto. Considerable material suitable for use in connection with Peace Day is included in the Wisconsin Memorial Day Annual of this and preceding years. Use should be made of some of this material in all schools. By addressing a letter to the American School Peace League, 405 Marlborough St., Boston, Mass., additional material may be secured, and it is especially desirable that the larger schools should make use of some of the material provided by that organization.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

This is one of the novel institutions of this town. Unlike ordinary hotels or other business houses, the proprietor, Mr. Heck Casen's, advertises, but it even a sign over the door. His trade is confined to the traveling public and so magnanimous is this genial proprietor that he neither requires payment in advance of his guests, nor does he take charge of their baggage, in fact the motto of this establishment is "Patrons Without Baggage Need Not Pay in Advance." So eccentric is he that he will not keep the weary traveler longer than one night, and rarely, if ever, serves dinner—only supper, night's lodging and breakfast. Every morning immediately after breakfast, he sends his guests on their way rejoicing and directs them to the next town. In spite of his eccentricity, he is extremely popular with the traveling public and his hotel is rarely without patrons and quite often is crowded to full capacity.—Menomonee Falls News.

Fox Lake has been handing out its share of fish stories during the winter months, 20 pound pickered being the most common. This week comes forth with a thirty-five pound bull head. But here is another one, which while it sounds pretty fishy is the absolute truth. They were pretty busy at the Fox Lake mills Saturday when for some unaccountable reason the water wheels stopped. Investigation showed that dog fish had been going through the turbine so fast that they clogged it, and it was necessary to cut them out with knives before they could get the wheels started again.—Fox Lake Representative.

C. H. Zilisch, who has a flock of thirteen Plymouth Rock hens and keeps a record of their laying capacity, thinks he has a record that shades those previously published in the Independent.

For the month of March Mr. Zilisch's hens produced 24 dozen and 10 eggs, or a total of 295. This is an average of more than 9 1/2 eggs a day from 13 hens, or a fraction over 22 eggs from each hen for the thirty-one days, a record which he thinks will stand undefeated. Anybody else?—Juneau Independent.

The Ruedebusch family at Mayville has received word from the commander of the German ship the "Crown Prince Wilhelm" now at Newport that their relative, Heintz Ruedebusch has received the decorations of the Iron Cross and has been appointed to the rank of first captain out of a competition of five officers.—Hartford Press.

Mr. Rubin has caused a discovery statute examination of Mrs. Deitz to be ordered, at which he desires to have produced the receipt given to the woman. This he says, will explain everything.

GOVERNOR VETOES ANTI-TIPPING BILL

BOSSHARD MEASURE PROHIBITING GRATUITIES DENIED EXECUTIVE SIGNATURE.

IS FIRST THIS SESSION

In Message to Legislature Philipp Says It Would Interfere With Personal Liberty—Conference Is Requested.

Madison, April 28, 1915.

Gov. Philipp vetoed the Boshard anti-tipping bill. The veto message was on motion of Senator C. E. Everett of Racine made a special order of business in the senate.

The governor said he vetoed the bill because it deprived the public of an opportunity to receive and pay for service promotive of its comfort and convenience, imposed a radical restraint on the freedom of action of the citizens in respect to matters in themselves innocent and sometimes praiseworthy, did not tend to prevent discrimination in service in places of public patronage, would prevent the giving of an extra penny to a newsboy or a material expression of gratitude to a nurse in a hospital, would probably be impracticable of enforcement, and if it became a law, unconstitutional.

This is Gov. Philipp's first veto of the session.

Conference Is Requested.

The senate decided to ask the assembly for a conference on the Everett hunting license bill. The two houses have been unable to agree on the provision authorizing the granting of hunting licenses to foreigners who have declared their intention of becoming citizens, but who have not taken out their second papers. The motion for a conference was made by Senator Everett.

Senator E. F. Ackley of Chippewa Falls introduced a substitute amendment for a bill appropriating $30,000 annually as an emergency fund for the prevention and extinguishing of fires in the state forest reserve. It provides that the appropriation shall be as much as may be necessary and requires that no money shall be used for the purpose except on approval of the governor. The bill and substitute were referred to the committee on finance.

The bill continuing state aid for the reimbursement of livestock owners who lose animals by tuberculosis, was recalled from the governor for recall.

Stemper Bill Before Senate.

Legislative interest again centers in the Stemper bill to legalize Milwaukee saloons put out of business because of the ambiguous wording of the Baker law. The bill will again be taken up in senate hearings.

Friends of the measure feel confident they will be successful in the senate as they were in the house. Early in the debate on the Stemper bill in the assembly the impression prevailed that it was another attempt to tamper with the liquor laws of the state to the advantage of the saloon interests. In the hearings, however, the situation existing in Milwaukee was clearly presented, and there was a sudden change in favor of the bill.

It is apparent that in the senate the fight will not be on factional lines. It is believed the vote will show a very interesting alignment in which conservatives and progressives will be seen on both sides of the issue.

The Stemper bill comes to the senate with an excellent chance of being concurred in. There is opposition to it, but friends say they will muster the seventeen votes necessary for concurrence. A full vote will be recorded in the senate on the Stemper bill. If all senators are not present or have failed to pair, there will be a call of the house.

Take Steps to Cut Expenses.

The first step in carrying out the administration plans for the consolidation of departments in the interest of efficiency and economy was taken by the legislature when the assembly, after a debate, sent to the governor the Johnson bill placing the fire marshal's department under the insurance commissioner. An attempt was made to indefinitely postpone the bill, but this was refused, 53 to 3. The three members voting for postponement were Assemblymen Donnelly, Feldhausen and Schroeder.

The assembly saved the Budlong bill to compel railroads to charge the same fare to competitive points, even though the distance be greater on one road than on another. The bill was advanced to engrossment.

Cigarette Bill Passes.

The Dobbie cigarette bill was passed by the assembly. It provides for licensing cigarette dealers in cities, villages and towns. Sales of cigarettes to minors is strictly prohibited. The first violation will subject the dealer to a fine, the second will result in his losing his license. Minors caught with cigarettes or "makings" will have to tell from whom they procured them.

The state affairs committee has decided to recommend for passage a bill prohibiting intoxicated persons from driving automobiles and providing that persons violating the law, shall be liable to imprisonment in the county jail from five days to three months.

Kill Vice Commission Bills. The senate, after a long debate, killed six more of the legislative vice commission bills and after amending a seventh one, ordered it engrossed and read a third time. The bills killed required rooming houses accommodating five or more persons to be licensed, and inn keepers to keep registers of all lodgers and not to maintain private dining rooms. The other bills killed provided for the punishment of assault and immoral conduct.

Senator Burke said the senate was endeavoring to put a scarlet letter on hotel or rooming house business and place them under suspicion. He said that the senate would, if it passed the bill, make itself the laughing stock of the state.

Weissleder Bill Advanced. The senate ordered engrossed the Weissleder bill providing that all persons in the election booths at the hour prescribed for closing the polls shall be allowed to vote; the Richards bill, giving each voter at least one minute in which to cast his vote; the Jennings bill, providing that the personal campaign committee of a nominee for public office, who declines or fails for any other reason to run for the office, shall fill the vacancy; the Jennings bill, permitting election boards to have registry lists of voters printed and requiring school boards to grant the use of school buildings for election booth purposes; the Jennings bill, providing for election districts containing 500 electors in the city of Milwaukee.

The senate committee on corporations introduced a new bill authorizing the state railroad commission to order union passenger stations in a city where two or more railroads have adjacent rights of way, the station to cost at least 25 per cent of the gross passenger and freight earnings in such city during the year preceding the issuance of such order.

Servant Bill Killed. The Minkley bill, which would have permitted the industrial commission to invade private homes to see whether domestics were properly cared for, was killed by the assembly, 42 to 38. The bill which provides for a change of official state paper was sent to a third reading by the assembly after nonconcurrence had been refused by a vote of 33 to 46. Assemblyman Nye offered an amendment striking out the words Evening Wisconsin and substituting the Milwaukee Journal. This amendment was rejected by a vote of 54 to 24.

The assembly indefinitely postponed three joint resolutions amending the constitution. One by Mr. Zinn would have provided for the recall of judicial officers; one by Mr. Nye relating to farm credits, and one by Mr. Minkley which would have amended the constitution so that in cases of impeachment only a majority would be needed instead of two-thirds as now.

EDWARD C. WALL IS CALLED BY DEATH

FORMER LEADER OF DEMOCRATIC PARTY IN THE STATE AND NATION.

SOUGHT PRESIDENCY IN 1904

Was Solidly Supported by Wisconsin Delegation at St. Louis Convention—Member of State and National Committees.

Milwaukee.—Edward C. Wall, who has been a prominent figure in the political and business life of Milwaukee and Wisconsin for half a century, died at his home here, aged 71 years, following a protracted illness.

His death marks the passage of one of the best known Democrats in the history of the state, prominent not only in state, but in national affairs. He was active in the Wisconsin campaign during the first election of Grover Cleveland as president in 1884. In 1892, when Grover Cleveland was elected the second time, Mr. Wall as chairman of the Wisconsin committee, as a member of the national committee and of the committee of three to manage the western campaign, did much for the success of the national Democratic party.

In 1878 he was elected to the assembly and succeeded himself for the following term. In 1885 he was appointed United States internal revenue collector for the Milwaukee district, holding the position until 1889. He was first elected to the Democratic state central committee in 1878 and served on that body until 1885. In 1890 upon the resignation of Ellis P. Usher as chairman, Mr. Wall was elected to succeed him and served as chairman until 1896. He was elected national Democratic committeeman in 1892, remaining on the body until 1900. He was a member of the national campaign committee in 1892, and in 1896 as one of a committee of nine made arrangements for the Democratic national convention that first nominated William Jennings Bryan.

Democratic politics in Wisconsin was long centered around the activities of Mr. Wall and culminated in 1904, when the Wisconsin delegation solidly supported him for the Democratic nomination for president at the St. Louis national convention. It was during his incumbency as state chairman that the Democrats elected George W. Peck governor of Wisconsin in 1892.

Many Things Are Mysteries. Just what electricity is no one knows, but the fact is not astonishing. No person knows what anything is. What is carbon? What is iron? What is oxygen? What is phosphorus? No one knows what any of these substances is, yet, of course, there are theories which explain in part. In the same way there is an electrical theory which is only of comparative recent origin.

This theory states that everywhere throughout the universe, filling all spaces and all substances, there is an all-pervading material known as ether. It is this ether which transmits the light waves from the sun through the enormous distance between that heavenly body and our own atmosphere, which only extends a short distance above the earth. It is the ether which transmits heat from the incandescent filament within the vacuum bulb of an electric lamp to the glass itself and to the surrounding air. So electricity may be merely part of this ether in motion.—"Practical Talks on Farm Engineering."

JOKE ON WOUNDED SOLDIER

Red Cross Nurse Relates a Humorous Incident of British Hospital Life.

The best excerpt, from a humorous point of view, was written by "Jock" Chalmers, a pipier in the Gordon Highlanders, who began his career in the Chitral campaign in India in 1895 and has been in everything since, including the Matabele, Egyptian and Sudanese campaigns and in the Boer war.

At the hospital at Paignton, Devonshire, the pipier wore eight medals across his chest, in addition to the distinguished service medal, and the sight of them appeared to have a peculiar fascination for a young Scottish soldier who walked about the ward with his arm in a sling. He would stand for an hour at a time and gaze open-mouthed at "Jock's" brave array of medals without uttering a word.

This got a little monotonous for the pipier, and on the second day he said to the young soldier: "What are you looking at so hard? Do you take me for a fool?" "I dinna ken; I'm only here two days," was the reply.

REPORT EPIDEMICS CURBED

State Board of Health Issues a Bulletin on Contagious Diseases in Wisconsin.

Madison.—State Health Officer C. A. Harper states the report of contagious diseases in Wisconsin for January, February and March, 1915, shows that during that time there were 604 cases of diphtheria, 121 cases of typhoid fever, 241 cases of whooping cough, 827 cases of small pox, 851 cases of scarlet fever, 668 cases of measles, 455 cases of tuberculosis, twenty-seven cases of meningitis and four cases of infantile paralysis. Two of the cases of infantile paralysis were in Chippewa county and two in Kenosha county. Dr. Harper said:

The large number of cases of diphtheria and scarlet fever reported was due largely to the seasonal variation of these diseases and not to any unusual epidemic in any section of the state. With the services of five full time deputy state health officers all of whom are experienced physicians, it is coming to be more and more impossible for epidemics of any dangerous, communicable disease to gain a foothold in this state."

Great Fight Against Chinch Bugs. To fence against chinch bugs, 1,500 miles of barriers were laid down to protect cornfields last year. This cost $40,000, including labor. The average yield of the protected field was 25 bushels to the acre, and it is estimated that the barriers added to the yield of corn the value of $71,719. This sort of work has to be done by co-operation.—Farm and Fireside.

Learning to Talk Real English. Mack Cretcher, formerly a Kansas newspaper man, who is now in the employ of the insular service in the Philippines, tells this story to show that the natives are gradually adopting American ways: While making a trip out in one of the provinces recently he met a small Filipino boy of whom he inquired: "Young man, do you speak English?" The youth stiffened up promptly and replied: "Yes, I speak a small. I talk a few. What a hell you want?"—Kansas City Star.

Red Cross Nurse Relates a Humorous Incident of British Hospital Life.

Miss Henrietta Kocchlin, one of the American Red Cross nurses, who returned on the Cunarder Orinda on Friday, has a unique souvenir of the six months she spent at the hospitals in England, in the shape of a book filled with jottings written for her by the wounded soldiers.

The best excerpt, from a humorous point of view, was written by "Jock" Chalmers, a pipier in the Gordon Highlanders, who began his career in the Chitral campaign in India in 1895 and has been in everything since, including the Matabele, Egyptian and Sudanese campaigns and in the Boer war.

RICH PASTURE LAND FOR THE LIVE STOCK

Stocker Feeders in Pasture.

(By J. T. GRAINGER.)

When spring is thoroughly in, the country will be full of rich grass, and nearly all the stock of the farm will be doing well on it. Its effect is somewhat relaxing for a time, but such relaxation must not be classified with that which in delicate animals is caused by indigestion. For instance, a calf is badly weaned, ill nurtured in its infancy, during which period the constitution is made or marred. Then as a yearling or two-year-old, the steer has become so debilitated that he cannot digest the ordinary food, and the evacuations are too liquid for robustness, and habitual purging is the unhappy portion of such an unprofitable animal, which remains unthrifty for life.

The healthy yearling or two-year-old bullock may, just when the grass is young and flushy, be purged as much, but he will rapidly gain flesh, and as the grass becomes older and harder, the purging will gradually disappear. On such pastures where the grass is exceptionally rich, no one who thoroughly knows his business will put any stock except superior full-grown bullocks, because the grass is rich enough to fatten them, making them a third, at the least, more valuable; and then he has the use of the grass, when the bullocks are grown, for other stock.

Of course there are few farmers who have pasture that will fatten bullocks without artificial assistance, and those who have such a luxury should not debilitate it by mowing, but rather build it up by the best of farmyard manures. I cannot say I am an advocate of using light artificial manures for pastures, but grass can be indirectly fed by carting green food to the stock and unseeded cake and other purchased foods.

The land from which any of these green crops are taken must be com-

KIND OF DAIRYING MAN WILL ATTEMPT

Much Depends Upon Location of Farmer's Land—Much Advantage in Freight Rates.

(By WILLIAM A. FREEHOFF.) The kind of dairying a man will attempt depends largely upon the location of his land. If the farm is within a mile or two of some large city, worth several hundred dollars per acre, the most profitable type will be the retail milk farm.

This milk, or sweet cream, even, must be of a high class and must sell for a correspondingly high price in order to be profitable. The farmer simply cannot afford to make butter or cheese on such expensive land and make it pay dividends.

In summer, during the ice cream season, there is a heavy demand on some days, and a lighter call on others. There is no uniform price. The dairyman will have to make quite elaborate arrangements with retailers in order to sell all of his products to advantage.

There is another disadvantage, however—that is, the matter of freight or express rates. Then there are those men beyond the easy reach of some city markets. About the best thing they can do is to haul their milk or cream to a cheese factory or creamery, as the case may be.

They may even arrange to have a man call for the cream at stated intervals. This method of dairying has the advantage that the skim milk or whey remains on the farm, and thus less fertility is carried off.

But often there are very isolated farms, those which are too far from the city to cater to the retail trade and too far from any city to ship sweet cream.

These men may well sell to a centralized plant. This factory, which can get rid of buttermilk, is one of the best of its kind in the country.

Outworn are best got rid of by using a small amount around each part or broadcasting over the garden, the following: Bran, 15 pounds; sassafras, one-half pound; salt, one-fourth pound; strup, one quart, and a little warm water to make a crumbly mash.

Fair Feed for Cows. Potatoes are only a fair feed for dairy cows. Twenty pounds may be fed daily to an animal.

Mr. Woolridge was the next to register, and this is what he wrote: "Sam Woolridge and Valise, Versailles."

What is it all when all is told,
This ceaseless toiling for fame or gold,
The fleeting joy or bitter tears?
We are only here for a few short years,
Nothing our own but the silent past,
Loving or hating nothing can last
Each pathway leads to the silent fold,
Oh! What is it all when all is told?
What is it all? A grassy mound,
Where day or night there is never a sound,
Save the soft low mourn of the passing breeze,
As it lovingly rustles the silent trees,
Or a thoughtful friend with whispered prayer
May sometimes break the stillness here,
When hurry away from the gloom and cold,
Oh! What is it all when all is told?
What is it all? Just passing through
A cross for me, and a cross for you,
Our's seem heavy while others are light,
But God in the end maketh all things right,
He tempers the wind with such loving care,
Knows the burden that each can bear,
Then changes life's grey into heavenly gold,
Ah! That is all when all is told.

LEARN HEALTH WORK BY PRACTICAL PRACTICE

Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association Offers Cash Scholarships to Apprentices

One thousand dollars, made up of pennies accumulated during the last Red Cross Christmas Seal Campaign will be used in encouraging the development of trained workers for service in the public health cause. The Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association, at its last Executive meeting, voted to continue the Apprentice School started in a small way as an experiment last summer, and to offer two $500 scholarships to the students doing the best work and wishing to continue the training during the year.
The Apprentice School which is designed to train men and women for the newer professions in welfare service through observation, criticism, discussion and personal practice in organized social work, is open to all young men and women interested in this line of endeavor. There are no tuition fees and no entrance requirements beyond the desire for training, the educational qualifications necessary as a basis for that training, and above all, initiative and the "pioneer spirit". There is no arbitrary period of training and no set course of study, the object being to make the work as purely individual as possible so that the needs and abilities of each student will be met.
The work of the apprentices is directed personally by Dr. Hoy E. Dearholt, Chief of the Health Instruction Bureau of the Extension Division of the University of Wisconsin, and Executive Secretary of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association. The school was established to meet the growing need for trained workers of the Anti-Tuberculosis Association and of other social agencies interested in the health movement in Milwaukee and throughout the country, and to give students the opportunity to learn the work by doing it.
The school is designed to assist both those who are unhappily employed to get into a new line of service and to direct young people who have not yet selected their profession to a field of opportunity which is just beginning to be developed. Its work is varied. It provides a training center for visiting nurse work, it offers research opportunities on sociological and economic problems, which are allied with those of public health, it equips social workers for the promotion, organization, financing and administration of public welfare projects and enterprises, and it trains students to put academic knowledge into actual use and operation. The school's great aim is to be an instrument in decreasing the death rate, in extending health, and in increasing the economic wealth of Wisconsin.
The Apprentice School will open its second summer session in June.

TO REMAIN NEUTRAL

ITALY EXPECTS TO GAIN GREAT VICTORY BY KEEPING OUT OF THE CONFLICT.

STATEMENT BY HIGH OFFICIAL

Important Code Dispatches Sent to Berlin and Vienna by Teuton Ambassador After Conference at the Italian Foreign Office.

By BRITTON ALLAIRE. International News Service Correspondent. Rome, April 28.—Italy will not participate in the war. By remaining neutral she will win a greater victory than would be possible were she to enter either one of the hostile camps.

This statement was made to the International News Service staff correspondent by an official of the Italian government. For obvious reasons, he requested that his name should not be used.

A kaleidoscopic change in the situation has developed during the last 24 hours. No stronger evidence of this fact than the foregoing statement. It came from an official who is in close touch with Italian and foreign diplomats.

Important code dispatches were sent to Berlin and Vienna by the German and Austrian ambassadors. These are believed to have an important bearing upon Italy's foreign relations, as their transmission followed a conference between Foreign Minister Sonnino and Prince von Buelow, the German ambassador. This meeting took place at the foreign office, and at its conclusion Prince von Buelow hurried to the Austrian embassy where Baron von Macchio, the Austrian envoy, was awaiting him.

The official who stated that Italy would not enter the war said that a full statement of the international situation as it involved Italy would be made by Signor Sonnino to parliament when it convened on May 12.

This statement is expected to prove most satisfactory to Italy, he added. "In view of what is now known it is almost impossible to conceive of parliament taking any stand in opposition to that which will be recommended by the government."

SWEEP ALLIES BACK

GERMANS CAPTURE THOUSANDS OF PRISONERS IN FLANDERS.

Also Take Thirty Cannon, Including Four Heavy British Guns, in Big Battle Near Ypres.

Berlin (via London), April 26.—An official report on the progress of hostilities was given out in Berlin on Friday. It said:

"In the western area of the fighting we advanced from our front at Steenstraete, each of Langemarck, against the positions of the enemy north and northwest of Ypres. With a rush our troops moved forward along a line extending as far as the hills south of Pihen and east of Douon.

"At the same time they forced their way, after a stubborn fight, across the Yser canal at Steenstraete and Het Sas, here they established themselves on the western bank of the canal. At least 1,600 French and British soldiers were taken prisoners and 30 cannon, including four heavy British guns, fell into our hands.

"Between the Meuse and the Moselle the active fighting again became more lively. The artillery battles were especially fierce at Cambresis, St. Mihiel and Apremont, as well as at a point northeast of Flirey. Infantry attacks on the part of the enemy followed only in the wooded country between Ailly and Apremont. The French penetrated this region into certain sections of our foremost trenches, but they were partly driven out again. The fighting at close quarters continues.

"The village of Embremont west of Arcoeur, which had been taken by us and which was set on fire by the French with their shells, has been evacuated by our outposts. The hills north and south of Embremont were retained."

KAISER'S THIRD DRIVE TOWARDS CALAIS CHECKED BY ANGLO-FRENCH FORCES.

LIZERNE LOST BY TEUTONS

French Recapture Town—Summit of Hartmannsweller Kopf Also Recaptured—Berlin Admits Loss But New Lines Being Maintained.

London, April 29.—The Kaiser's third drive for Calais has been stopped—and stopped short. German attacks on Ypres have been repulsed and the allies have taken the offensive. French troops have retaken Het Sas on the Ypres canal, the British war office announced. The English are progressing in an offensive movement near St. Julien, three miles northeast of Ypres. The Belgian legation announces the recapture of Lizerne, another town on the canal.

The summit of Hartmannsweller Kopf, which had been taken by the Germans Monday morning, was retaken by the French in the evening. Re-enforcements rushed to the allies have permitted them to regain considerable of the ground lost in the first furious attacks of the German army. Berlin, April 29 (by wireless).—Lizerne, head of the German wedge on the west bank of the Ypres canal and half a mile from the canal, has been evacuated by the German troops. This is admitted in a report from the general staff.

The new German lines about Ypres are being held firmly, the report adds, the attacks of the British troops upon the positions captured there having completely broken down. In these attacks the British forces suffered heavy losses.

French attacks at Hartmannsweller Kopf, in the Argonne, at Cambresis and near Ailly failed, the general staff asserts, while the German troops gained further success on the Meuse heights and in Priestwald (LePretre forest).

Sullivan, Ind., April 29.—Edward J. King, cashier of the State bank of Dugger, a mining town ten miles from here, is missing and is alleged to have taken $15,000 of the bank's money with him. The officers of the bank have posted a reward of $500 for the arrest of King. King is about forty years old and married, but without children. King was in Dugger last Saturday, and was attending to business as usual. In the afternoon he drove an auto about town in so reckless a manner that he struck another car and demolished it. Late Saturday night he was seen to ride out of the town in a large red touring car. The car was found Sunday in a Terre Haute garage with the fenders battered and the sides plastered with mud. King reached Terre Haute, it is said, about three o'clock Sunday morning, and has not been seen since.

Terre Haute, Ind., April 27.—Donn M. Roberts, mayor of Terre Haute, was removed from office by impeachment of the city council, the vote being 7 to 3. The trial, which lasted nearly two days, came to an end shortly after two o'clock Saturday, all of the members of the council voting.

One ballot found Roberts guilty of the thirteen charges, including one that he was convicted in the federal court of election conspiracy, for which he is now in the Leavenworth prison, and the other was on impeachment. The motion for impeachment was made by Ohm and seconded by Moninger. The motion to find Roberts guilty was made and seconded by the same men and the vote was the same on both.

James Gossom, acting mayor, addressed the council and promised his best service will be in office. "I have nothing whatever to say," declared Donn M. Roberts, at the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., when informed of the action of Terre Haute city council in impeaching him as mayor.

Governor Ralston, in appointing R. Voorhees Newton judge of the city court of Terre Haute to succeed Judge Thomas Smith, now serving time in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., issued a statement at Indianapolis in which he expressed confidence that "former conditions, so much to be regretted, will never again be permitted in that city." The governor congratulates the citizens of Terre Haute "upon their determination to see that their municipal affairs in the future are properly administered."

The governor said that it is a mistake for anyone to conclude that "none but bad men aspire to public office in Terre Haute."

Vom Schauplatz des europäischen Völker-Krieges

Der Schwerpunkt des Krieges liegt noch wie vor in den Karpaten, und wird voraussichtlich dort bleiben, bis die eine oder andere Seite entscheidend geschlagen. Wenn gibt bereitwillig zu, daß die Russen an gewissen Stellen der langen Front Fortschritte gemacht haben, fikt aber hinzu, daß diese durch österreichische Erfolge zum mindesten aufgehoben seien. Nach einem bei der österreichisch-ungarischen Vorherrschaft in Washington eingelaufenen Bericht aus Wien wird die ohne Pause auf beiden Seiten des Dufka-Kampfes geföhrt. Die Russen warten immer wieder der neue Lieferungen ins Feuer, und der Kampf soll fürdauern gegeben sein. Aber die Opfer der Russen waren wiederum vergebens, alle ihre Angriffe brachen unter dem Feuer der deutsch-österreichisch-ungarischen Truppen zusammen. Ungefährliche Abteilungen deutscher Truppen in den Karpaten angekommen sind, unterliegt keinem Zweifel. Ihre Anwesenheit wurde bereits mehrfach in Wiener und Petrograder Berichten erwähnt.

Woher nimmt Rußland „neue Kräfte“?

Sowohl bei Praszyn als auch in den Karpaten haben sich, wie der Korrespondenz „Der und Politik“ militärischer Seite geschrieben wird, nach deutschem Generalstabbericht neue russische Kräfte gezeigt. Bei Praszyn waren es drei Armeekorps, die überausend vorrückten, und in den Karpaten sind auch zwei neue Armeekorps erschienen. Es fragt sich nun, woher Rußland diese neuen Kräfte genommen hat, da es ja schon so viel Mannschaften an Gefangenen, Toten und Vermundeten verloren hat, daß die Armeen anderer Länder bei ähnlichen Verlusten vollkommen aufgegeben gewesen wären. Nun hat Rußland aus allen allerlei Völkern zum Kriegsdienste herangezogen, die früher nicht Soldaten waren. Es ist moralisch und kulturell eine so minderwertige Volksmasse, daß sie noch weit hinter den russischen Bauern zurücksteht. Allen Anzeichen nach zeigen sich die neuen Kräfte aus diesen — übrigens nicht zahlreichen — Völkern zusammen, die voraussichtlich nicht durch Truppen rekrutiert wurden, die aus Barchina geschickt wurden. Um den Flügelangriff auf beiden Seiten durchzuführen zu können, hat Rußland alles zusammengezogen, was es überhaupt noch an Mannschaften besitzt, die als noch aßen vorübergehend — darauf ist der Hauptzweck zu legen — immerhin eine kleine Wendung herbeiführen können.

Darin liegt aber zugleich die völlige Sicherheit der endgültigen Niederlage des russischen Heeres. Rußland hat jetzt die meisten Verluste, wie andere Länder nur im ganzen als Meer beigen. Das heißt, daß das russische Heer trotz seiner, allein durch diese Verluste bewiesenen ungeheuren Heberzahl nicht wiederhelfen konnte, als es noch die Kerntruppen befeh. Wenn nun auch noch jetzt bei den großen russischen Menschenmassen eine Armee vorhanden ist, so kann diese, bei weitem noch minderwertiger und zahlenmäßig beträchtlich geschwächte Armee natürlich niemals darauf hoffen, einen endgültigen Erfolg zu erzielen. Dit schon haben die Russen, wie bei Praszyn, eben durch ihre großen Verluste, die aber bald durch die überlegene Feldherrenkunft Sindenburgs, der seine Kriegsmethoden auf diesen neuen russischen Verlusten, umgruppierete, zu schweren Niederlagen wurden. Entschieden sind diese Massen nie gewesen, denn das deutsche Heer rückt unaufhaltsam gegen die russischen Armeen vor und steht heute ganz in Preußen. Deutschland legt den Verlusten die überlegenen Maßnahmen gegenüber, und Sindenburg hat bewiesen, daß er an genauen Einfalllen zur Zermalmung des Russenheeres unerlässlich ist. Die neuen Kräfte Rußlands sind Verlegenheitsmaßnahmen in des Wortes ursprünglicher Bedeutung. Haben doch Gefangen nur 10 Tage ausgebildet worden sind, und daß ihre Schießübungen in — 6 Schüssen bestanden haben.

Man kann daraus entnehmen, welchen Wert diese neuen Kräfte haben. Es handelt sich auch hier nicht für die darum, wirklich kriegstüchtige Soldaten aufzujuchen, sondern die Welt festsitz mit den bereits schrecklich gemordeten russischen Rekrutenmassen zu verblühen. Auch diesen neuen Kräfte gegenüber wird die überlegene Kunst der deutschen Führung, wie in allen anderen früheren Fällen, den Sieg davontragen, denn die russischen Waffen sind jetzt noch weniger gefährlich als sie bei Ausbruch des Krieges waren. Es handelt sich eben bei den völkischen Aufträgen neuer Kräfte nur darum, einige Tage Zeit zu gewinnen, um die russische Heberzahl durch entsprechende deutsche Gegenmaßnahmen zu erlösen.

He eyed indecisively the stairs and then glanced toward the brilliant night outside. It would not be possible to sleep in that room again. So he slipped out to the cafe and found a chair and dropped into a comfortable chair. He would hunt them up some time during the day. He would ask Mallow for fifty pounds, and he sincerely hoped that Mallow would refuse him. For he was grimly resolved that Mallow should pay for those half-truths, more damning than bald lies. It was due to Mallow that he was never more to see or speak to Elsa. He emptied the ash from his cutty which he stowed away.

The great heartache and the greater disillusion would not have fallen to his lot had Elsa been frank in Rangoon, had she but told him that she was to sail on the same steamer. He would have put over his sailing. He would have gone his way, still believing himself to be a Harvard, a Galahad or any other of those simple dreamers who put honor and chivalry above and before all other things.

Elsa! He covered his face with his hands and remained in that position for a long while, so long indeed that the coolies, whose business it was to scrub the things every morning at four, went about their work quietly for fear of disturbing him.

Elsa had retired almost immediately after dinner. She endeavored to finish some initial work on old embroideries, but the needles insisted upon pausing and losing stitch at every stitch. She went to bed and strove to sleep, but that sweet healer came not to her wooing. Nothing she did could overcome the realization of the shock she had received. It had left her dull and bewildered.

The name echoed and re-echoed through her mind: Paul Ellison. It should have been an illumination; instead, she had been thrust into utter darkness. Neither Arthur nor his mother had ever spoken of a brother, and she had known them for nearly two years. Two men, who might be two brothers, with the same name; it was amazing. What could it mean? The beautiful white-haired mother, the handsome charming son, who idolized each other; and this adventurer, this outcast, this patient, brave and kindly outcast, with his funn, perrakeet, what was he to them and they to him? It must be, it must be! They were brothers. Nature, full of amazing freaks as she was, had not perpetrated this one without calling upon a single strain of blood.

She lay back among her pillows, her eyes leveled at the few stars beyond her door, opened to admit any cooling breeze. Her head ached. It was like the computations of astronomers; to a certain extent the human mind could grasp the distances but could not comprehend them. It was more than chance, chance alone had not brought him to the evening ledge. There was a strain of fatalism in Elsa. She was positive that all these things had been written long before and that she was to be used as the key.

Paul Ellison. She drew from the past those salient recollections of Arthur and his mother. First, the day the two had called regarding the purchase of a house that her father had just put on the market—a rambling old colonial affair, her own mother's birthplace, sixteen; she had not quite been that, just free from her school days in Italy. With the grand air of youth she had betrayed the fact almost instantly, while waiting for her father to come into the living room.

"Italy!" said Arthur's mother, whom Elsa mentally adopted at once. The stranger spoke a single phrase, which Elsa answered in excellent if formal Italian. This led from one question to another. Mrs. Ellison turned out to be a schoolmate of her mother's, and she, Elsa, had inherited their very room. What more was needed?

The Ellisons bought the house and lived quietly within it. Society, and there was a good deal of it in that small Kentuckian city, society waited for them to approach and apply for admittance, but waited in vain. Mrs. Ellison never went anywhere. Her son Arthur was a student and preferred his books. So eventually society introduced itself. Persons who ignored it must be interesting. When it became known that Mrs. Ellison had been the schoolmate of the beautiful and aristocratic wife of General Chetwood, where the local banker quietly spread the information that the Ellisons were comfortably supplied with stocks and bonds of a high order, society concluded that it could do very well without past history. That could come later.

With her father dead, Elsa became as much at home in the Ellison house as in her own. But never, never anywhere in the house, was there indication of the existence of a brother, so like Arthur that under normal conditions it would have been difficult to tell them apart. Even when she was to go up to the garret with Mrs. Ellison, to add her in rummaging some old trunk, there came to light none of those trifling knickknacks which any mother would have secretly clung to, no matter to what depth her flesh and blood had fallen. Never had she seen among the usual amateur photographs one presenting two boys. Once she had come across a photograph of a smooth-faced youth who was in the act of squinting along the top of an engineer's tripod. Arthur had laughingly taken it away from her, saying that it represented him when he had had ambitions to build bridges.

To build bridges. The phrase awoke something in Elsa's mind. Bridges. She set up in bed, mentally keen for the first time since dinner. "I have built bridges in my time over which young man's face: calm, unmoved, expressing negligent interest in what would be the most vital thing in his existence, next to life. A fine specimen of a man, incredibly wholesome despite his ten years' knocking about in this ungodly part of the world. It was a pity. They had evidently refused to compromise.

"Bad news?" Warrington stood up with sudden and surprising animation in his face. "Read it," he said.

"If Ellison will make restitution in person, yes. ANDES."

The consul general jumped to his feet and held out his hand. "I am glad, very glad. Everything will turn out all right now. If you wish, I'll tell Miss Chetwood the news."

"I was going to ask you to do that," responded Warrington. The mention of Elsa took the brightness out of his face. "Tell her that Parrot & Co. will always remember her kindness, and ask her to forgive a lonely chap for having caused her any embarrassment through her goodness to him. I have decided not to see Miss Chetwood again."

"You are a strong man, Mr. Warrington."

"Warrington? My name is Ellison. Paul Warrington Ellison. After all, I'm so used to Warrington, that I may as well let well enough alone. There is one more favor; do not tell Miss Chetwood that my name is Ellison."

"I should use my own name, if I were you. Why, man, you can return to the States as if you had departed yesterday. The world forgets quickly. People will be asking each other what it was that you did. Then I shall bid Miss Chetwood good-by for you."

"Yes. I am going to jog it home. I want to travel first class, here, there, wherever fancy takes me. It's so long since I've known absolute ease and comfort. I wish to have time to readjust myself to the old ways. I was once a luxury-loving chap. I sail at dawn for Saigon. I may knock around in Siam for a few weeks. After that, I don't know where I'll go. Of course I shall keep the Andes advised of my whereabouts, from time to time."

"Another man would be in a hurry." It was on the tip of his tongue to tell Warrington what he knew of the Andes Construction company, but something held back the words, a fear that Warrington might change his mind about seeing Elsa. "Well, wherever you go and whatever you do, good luck go with you."

"There are good men in this world, sir, and I shall always remember you as one of them."

"By the way, that man Mallow; have you met him yet?"

The quizzical expression in his eyes made Warrington laugh. "No."

"I was in hopes . . . The consul general paused, but Warrington ignored the invitation to make known his intentions.

He shunted further inquiry by saying: "A letter of credit of mine was stolen last night. I had a tussle in the room, and was rather getting the best of it. The thug slipped suddenly away. Probably hid the letter in his loin cloth."

"That's unfortunate."

"I have sent out a general stop-order. No one will be able to draw against it. The sum will create suspicion anywhere."

"Have you any idea who was back of the thief? Is there any way I can be of service to you?"

"I really suspect Mallow and a gambler named Craig, but no court would hold them upon the evidence I have. It's my belief that it's a practical joke which measures up to the man who perpetrated it. He must certainly realize that a letter so large will be eagerly watched for."

"I shall gladly take charge of the matter here for you. I suppose that you will eventually meet Mallow?"

"Eventually suggests a long time," grimly.

"Ah . . . Is there . . . Do you think there will be any need of a watch holder?"

"I honestly believe you would like to see me have it out with him!"

"I honestly would. But unfortunately the dignity of my office forbids. He has gone up and down the settlements, bragging and domineering and fighting. I have been given to understand that he has never met his match."

"It's a long line that has no turning. After all," Warrington added, letting go his reserve, "you're the only friend I have. Why shouldn't I tell you that immediately I am going out in search of him, and that when I find him I am going to give him the worst wallop he ever heard tell of."

"I ought not to want to see you at it, but, hang it, I do!"

"Human nature. It's a pleasurable sensation to back up right by night. Four years ago I vowed that some day I'd meet him on equal terms. I may not see you again. If the letter of credit turns up, you know what to do with it. I'm keen to get started. Good-by, and thank you."

A handclasp, and he was gone.

"I wish" thought the consul general, "I could have told him about the way the scoundrel spoke of Elsa."

And Warrington, as he sought the cafe veranda, wished he could have told the basic truth of his fighting mood; the look Mallow had given Elsa that day in Penang. Diligently he began the search. Mallow and Craig were still in their rooms, doubtless sleeping off the debauch of the preceding night. He saw that he must wait. Luncheon he had in town.

At four o'clock his inquiries led him into the billiard annex. His throat tightened a little as he discovered the two men engaged in a game of American billiards. He approached the table quietly. Their interest in the game was deep, possibly due to the water laid upon the result; so they did not observe him. He let Mallow finish his run. Liquor had no effect upon the man's nerves, evidently, for his eyes and stroke were excellent. A miscue brought an oath from his lips, and he banged his cue upon the floor. "Rotten luck," said Warrington sympathetically, with the devil's banter in his voice.

Mallow spun around, stared for a moment, then grinned evilly. "Here's our crow at last, Craig."

"Speaking of birds of ill-repute, the crow passes his admiration to the kite and the vulture," Warrington spoke coolly.

The Cleopatra Headband

One of the fads of the hour, which is particularly strong with debutantes and other youthful devotees of fashion, is the Cleopatra headband. This is a very simple hair ornament to be called after the wonderful queen whose name is associated in our minds with all things splendid and imperial. It is made of sparkling rhinestones and binds the brow after the manner of Egyptian and other headresses. And it is entirely successful.

Two patterns of this new hair ornament are shown in the picture. They are among the prettiest of many designs, all made in about the same way. There is some variation in the size of the rhinestones; the smaller ones, used in the more elaborate figures usually, represent more work in making the band, and are therefore more expensive. All the bands of brilliants are mounted on narrow velvet ribbon and fasten with a snap fastener or hook and thread eye, at the back.

The Cleopatra band looks well with nearly all the new coiffures, which is one good reason for its popularity. It is shown here worn with the "Hobby" coiffure. This particular style seems to have impressed itself on women more forcibly and more favorably than any other recently launched. Some persons have gone so far as to have their hair bobbed at each side, in order to adopt the new style, but hairdressers manage to achieve the right effect without resorting to so extreme a measure. If the hair is not too long it can be rolled and turned under at the sides. It is coiled at the back, rather flat to the head.

Do not imagine that the Cleopatra band is confined to the use of youthful maids. It looks unusually well with those styles of hairdressing in which the middle part in the hair is used, and lends its brilliance to many a stately coiffure that matrons affect.

Scarfs Match Hangings. The scarfs for the furniture of your room may be made to match the hangings by cutting out single motifs of cretonne and applying them to the scarf ends. Place them on the material in an attractive way and baste. They can either be sewed with an over-and-over stitch around the edge or buttonhole in place. If, however, you wish a quicker method, machine stitch close to the edge around the entire motif.

Distinctive Style in Utility Coat

For the woman of average means, a separate coat, to be worn with frocks of varied character, is a necessity of the wardrobe. Such a coat needs to be carefully selected, since it is to do duty as a street coat, for traveling, for driving in the auto, and for such occasions as may demand an sport coat. But great numbers of separate coats were designed this spring that are suitable for all-round service, and have such style to recommend them as well.

Among them, coats of covert cloth in tau and kindred shades and those in black and white checks seem really to fit in everywhere. They are full of style and snap; just the sort of garment that "the American woman needs and delights in."

A fine example of the general utility coat is pictured here. It is a black-and-white check, with collar and cuffs in leather color. These accessories are often shown in emerald green and in black with white pipings, so that there is a choice in color. The coat, as pictured, is worn over a frock of black tulle. A combination of black and white appears in the lagoon sailor hat and is repeated in the low walking shoes.

No one needs to be assured of the smart appearance of such a toilette for the promenade.

But an equally pleasing picture presents itself if one imagines the coat worn for traveling. The hat might be a Panama or small outing shape, the shoes have tops of tan-colored cloth, and the dress be a plain suspender model worn with pongee shirt waist. The coat would fit in and complete a perfect outfit for the journey.

These coats are all cut on flaring lines, but they vary somewhat in length. Pockets and buttons are featured in their finishing. There is a great variety of styles in collars, and in the covert models buttons, collars and cuffs are usually all of the cloth.

In selecting a coat for general wear it is necessary to make sure that the material has been shrunk or is water-proofed.

Whether the blouse is of silk, tulle or crepe, the collars are shaped like the collar on a man's outing shirt and are held together in front with a bow, linked buttons or a long bar pin.

He—"What made you seem so upset the day we became engaged? You knew I was going to propose, didn't you?" She—"Oh, yes. But I had no idea I was going to accept you." Boston Transcript

CHAPTER XVII.

The Battle.

Next morning, when it became known among the bankers and foreign agencies that a letter of credit for ten thousand pounds had been lost or stolen, there was more than a ripple of excitement. They searched records, but no less as heavy as this came to light. Even the managing director of the Bank of Burma came in for his share of annoyance. He was obliged to send out a dozen cables of notification of the loss, all of which had to be paid out of accrued dividends. Thus Warrington had blocked up the avenues. The marvelous rapidity with which such affairs may be spread broadcast these days is the first wonder in a new epoch of wonders. From Frankfurt to Auckland, from St. John's to Los Angeles, wherever a newspaper was published, the news flew. Within twenty-four hours it would be difficult to draw against that letter as it would be to transmute base metals into gold.

At half past ten Warrington, apparently none the worse for a sleepless night, entered the private office of the consul general, who, gravely and with studied politeness, handed to him an unopened cablegram.

"I rather preferred to let you open it, Mr. Warrington," he said.

Warrington noted the lack of cordiality, but with passive regret. The consul general recovered his pen, and pretended to become absorbed in the fitter of papers on his desk. But in truth he could see nothing save the

IT'S a double-riveted cinch to get tobacco satisfaction from the Real Tobacco Chew. All the good of the rich tobacco—and a small chew satisfies.

Next to getting it themselves the thing men like best is to tell a friend about the Real Tobacco Chew.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!! W-D CUT IS LONG SHRED, RIGHT CUT IS SHORT SHRED.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is the Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

—and then, when you go to see that other car, and the salesman strolls up with a smile:

—ask him if that car of his has a FULL-floating Rear Axle—a Rear Axle that carries the weight of the car on the axle housing and NOT on the shaft—a Rear Axle that has TWO Timken Bearings in EACH of the hubs and in the differential. That's the kind of axle you get on this Studebaker FOUR. It's the highest development that the Rear Axle has reached. And it compares with the old-style semi-floating and three-quarter floating axles as its beautifully light and strong housing of stamped steel compares with the malleable cast housing other cars use. So don't let the salesman say "We have a floating type of axle!"—ASK him if it's a real FULL-floating axle like the Studebaker. Make him take out the shaft and show you.

—ask him if that car of his uses battery ignition. And if he says "Magneto"—ask him WHY. Most of the high-grade cars, you know, have discarded magnetos, because a magneto current weakens when your motor slows up—and it doesn't give as hot a spark at low speeds as at high speeds. But a Studebaker Battery ignition is reliable at any speed. It insures steady firing—no skipping or missing, Trouble-proof, too. So don't let the salesman dodge on the ignition—ask him WHY. A magneto on an electrically equipped car is as useless as the fifth wheel on a wagon.

—ask him if that car of his drives thro' the springs—or whether it has radius rods and a torque arm. Costs a whole lot less, to be sure, to design a car that drives thro' the springs—but it makes the car HARD riding. But TWO radius rods and torque arm such as Studebaker uses keeps the driving mechanism in line, and it keeps the springs free for the one thing they are intended for—taking up the jolts and jars from the roads. That's one of the reasons this Studebaker FOUR is one of the straightest driving, EASIEST-riding cars you ever sat in. Look for radius rods on other cars.

—ask him if that car of his has Brakes that guarantee a SURE stop when you have to stop. You have to stop QUICK sometimes, you know—and hills are steep. And undersized brakes aren't any guarantee of safety at such times. Studebaker uses OVER-size brakes—larger than most cars weighing half a ton more are using. Your car ought to have brakes just as safe. So ask that salesman to show you as much brakes as the Studebaker has. Go over every little detail of those other cars. And ASK the salesman frankly. Get FACTS.

Then see this Studebaker FOUR—and ask US just as frankly

We are more than willing to have your choice of a car rest on the facts you get. For nearly 150,000 men have done just that thing and they now own Studebakers! And the chances are that when YOU get the chance and see what a handsome car this FOUR is and have opportunity to ride in and drive it yourself, you'll decide that it's needless to pay more than $985—and decidedly unwise to pay less.

HEALTH

OVERWHELMED

Our laws and public sentiment permit piling a poor chap who is dead-sick of living and isn't successful in his attempts to quit by the assistance of poison or personal violence against himself. We don't mind if the prison sentence makes him even more miserable than he was before.

A police officer is justified in compelling a person, at the point of a pistol if necessary, to desist in efforts at self destruction. While I've never heard of an officer's actually killing a man for this resisting the law, I do recall an instance in which a Milwaukee police officer, by threats of shooting, stopped an intended suicide by drowning.

These regulations against suicide are not based, it would seem, upon any fear of firearms on the part of the general public, for we permit their unregulated sale. Again, we are not afraid of poison, for we permit the sale of most undesirable suicide poisons without more than a bluff at statutory and administrative prohibition.

Apparently, the sentiment against suicide is based upon one of the most lovable traits of human nature, an individual who desires to commit suicide is generally looked upon as a self confessed failure, as one unable to take care even of himself. However far short as a people, we may fall in appreciating and truly evaluating other's violences of self confessed failure and want, we can't mistake the genuineness of the misery which compels a bona fide attempt upon one's own life.

According to the United States figures, the number of suicides remains fairly constant, although "hard times" can easily be identified by an increased number. There are, in normal years, nearly four times as many suicides among men as among women.

Without studying minutely or even in detail the causes of suicide, the reason in each case is, of course, the arrival at the conclusion that life is a failure. For men, judging by the age classification, from 45 to 55 years is the period when hope of success and position is most likely to snuff out. They may have failed repeatedly before this in their business, in control of drinking or of drug habit, without completely losing the hope of "coming back."

For women, failure is much more tragic as is generally recognized. For them, a single, well advertised blunder in their most important business and interest in life makes future success almost impossible. It does not come as a surprise, then, to find that the greatest number of suicides among women occur between the ages of 20 and 25.

A large percentage of suicides could be prevented by making it more difficult for momentarily irresponsible and depressed individuals to obtain the means. Better health conditions will help a great deal. A large percentage however, will be prevented only by vast gains in education, morals and general welfare.

Are Your Teeth in Good Shape?

Crooked, twisted, knarled and formed teeth are a source of danger to the child, family and state as well. Buck Teeth Ben soon gets too sensitive to be in touch with his playmates, and he stays in the back ground—getting further and further away from his fellows.

The child is in danger of being a recluse, a backward. Dentists are to be found all over the land. Call on them.

In every state, in almost every county you will find people, so uncultured calling the attention of mother to the necessities of dental cleanliness. Clean the teeth. You will find that a clean tooth never decays—you will find dark spots on the teeth under which lurk small germs that eat holes in the teeth. Get a little orris root and a good brush and rub your teeth. Get a brush for the boy and one for the girl. When you find the teeth and gums sore, bleed, the teeth falling into holes, the gums separate from the teeth, black spots on the teeth inside and outside of jaw, there is bacteria on the teeth; a little fluid organ will destroy the germs. If the teeth are in the last stages of decay, see a dentist.

Don't wait until you have lost your best teeth to look after your mouth. Watch the boy's and girl's mouth. Disease often comes from decayed teeth.

Margaret Hudson, President of Crooked Teeth Society.

EARLY LIFE IN WISCONSIN

How Lake Sediments Formed Rocks

Formerly geologists pictured the Wisconsin of those far-off ages as forming an island substantially the shape of the area of hard rocks of the northern highland. Now, however, we are inclined to believe from the discovery of remnants of sedimentary rocks far from their main body, that at times the entire state must have been submerged. That our state was ever submerged to depths of over a few hundred feet is very doubtful. Furthermore, it is probable from the result of recent studies, that the occupation by the sea was by no means continuous but that for long periods the water withdrew leaving a nearly flat plain of mud or sand, to be again inundated by a very slight change of level. The occurrence of sandstones is regarded as indicating the nearly presence of land from whose wear the sand was derived and then distributed about by the waves. Shales or hardened muds, indicate quieter or deeper waters or perhaps the existence of large mud carrying rivers on the adjacent lands. Limestone beds indicate that at the time of their deposition the waters were free of other sediment so that the only deposit was that of shells of animals and the remains of plants which took with dissolved lime out of the sea water. To understand the reason for such clearness of water as to result in a pure lime deposit, it is necessary to suppose that the lands were then either far off or too low to supply debris to the sea.

Such then is in brief the history of Wisconsin while covered by the waters of the now extinct inland sea of the Mississippi valley. A shallow sea it must have been, quite like Hudson Bay of today, its borders shifting greatly with very slight changes of the level of the land, and at times entirely drying up. It has been gone a long time indeed, so long that we hardly dare to measure it in years. In this time the state has risen to its present position, and the streams carved out the present surfaces of the land, and even entirely stripped off the sedimentary rocks from the higher part of the state.

It enriches the blood, strengthens the nerves, cleanses the stomach, regulates the bowels, helps the appetite, livens you up. You work better—feel better—look better. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, a real Spring tonic. 35c—Edw. C. Miller.
