STOLEN HORSE AND BUGGY RECOVERED

Horse and Buggy Belonging to Chas. Muckerheide, Which Was Stolen Last Week, Recovered Saturday

HAD ALREADY BEEN SOLD BY THIEF

Young Man by the Name of Livingston Confesses to the Theft. Is at Present Serving a Sentence at Milwaukee on Disorderly Charge

Marshal Geo. F. Brand of this village last Saturday received a telephone communication from the chief of police of Milwaukee which led to the recovery of the stolen horse and buggy belonging to Chas. Muckerheide of the town. The outfit was found to be in a saloon keeper's possession at Menomonee Falls.

According to the story of Chas. Muckerheide, the owner, the outfit was sold by the horse thief to a Menomonee Falls party last Wednesday morning about 8 o'clock, following the night of the robbery for the sum of $60. The reason for this low price was because the man gave a hard luck story and that he needed the money.

After the thief secured his money for the outfit he went to Milwaukee where he became disorderly, and was arrested for same by the police of that city. Upon being searched it was found that he still was in a possession of a sum of money. After being questioned as to how he came in possession of so much money, he confessed that he stole a horse at Kewaskum, and sold it again to a party at Menomonee Falls. He gave his name as Livingston.

The latter was sentenced to the House of Correction at Milwaukee for thirty days upon a charge of disorderly conduct. Upon the confession made by the prisoner, the chief of police at once telephoned to Marshal Brandt. Soon after, the Marshal in company with Chas. Muckerheide, the owner, Walter Muckerheide and Jos. Eberle left for Menomonee Falls to reclaim the horse and buggy.

Chas. Muckerheide was at West Bend on Tuesday to have a warrant issued against the thief, which will be served upon completion of his present prison sentence. He will then be brought to West Bend for trial.

William Ketter of Osceola Suffers Complications After Fall From Scaffold. Dislocated Knee

William Ketter, a farmer residing five miles from Campbellsport, fell from a scaffold a week ago Friday dislocating his left leg at the knee. Complications developed and Sunday afternoon it became necessary to amputate his leg near the thigh in order to prevent his death from blood poisoning.

Mr. Ketter has been making some repairs to his barn and while on the scaffold about twenty feet from the ground, he fell and struck on his left leg, snapping the bone at the knee. The fracture was so serious that it was practically impossible to set the break. Blood poisoning set in and after a consultation of physicians it was decided to amputate the limb to prevent the spread of infection.

Mr. Ketter is now resting comfortably and every hope is held out for his recovery.—Fond du Lac Reporter.

Deep Seated Patriotism

The alleged militarism of Germany is a deep seated patriotism, which every German child is happy to have instilled into itself in every well regulated German school and home, and that militarism the German does not forsake till he dies the shroud.

The Rev. Mr. Mohme touched on the culture of the various nations of Europe, and, coming to Russia, said: "Russian culture will pass over, as Russia is to culture what the pugilistic fist to the eye."

Touching on the Lusitania, the Rev. Mr. Mohme said that the blame for the catastrophe must be England's in that she had permitted passengers of a neutral country to embark on a munition laden vessel, which she knew to be a fair prize of war.

Scores England's Act

The speaker likened the act of England to that of Russian in "driving women and children before their army to protect the soldiers." He asserted there were enough bullets and shells aboard the Lusitania to kill 150,000 if 3 per cent reached their marks.

Expressions of Thanks

I, the undersigned, desire to thank the Milwaukee Police Force, who under the excellent supervision of Chief Janssen and Captain Sullivan, together with the valuable assistance of Geo. F. Brandt Chief of the Kewaskum Police force, for the capable manner in which they conducted the investigation which led to the capture of the party who stole my horse and rig on the night of June 8. The return of which I am very gratified for.

DECLARES GERMANY IS UNIT IN WAR

In Days Like These, Says the Rev. F. Mohme, Culture and Might Must Stand Together

UPHOLDS THE FATHERLAND

Big Gathering Hears Address at Annual Goethe-Schiller Monument Celebration at Milwaukee

The following speech taken from the Sunday edition of the Milwaukee Sentinel, was delivered by Rev. Mohme of this village. The Reverend gentleman has gained an enviable reputation as a public speaker and his services are always in great demand at public gatherings.

Before an audience of more than 1,000, the Rev. F. Mohme, Kewaskum, upheld the causes of Germany, in an address at the annual celebration before the Goethe-Schiller monument in Washington park under the auspices of the German-American alliance.

"The ballads and verses of Schiller and the dramas of Goethe stand for German spirit and culture, and might stand to gether like body and soul," said the Rev. Mr. Mohme.

"In the days when Germany was regarded only as a land of poets England was her friend, but now that she has reached the position of a world power and a strong rival, England's friendship has turned to envy and a desire to crush her adversary."

Germany Unit in War.

"So Germany must lay aside the pursuits of culture for a time and bend all her energies toward securing a victory in this war which has been forced upon her, after which the light of German culture will blaze out anew. Germany is a unit in this war. At the words of the kaiser, 'I no longer know any parties. I know only Germans,' all factions, all classes, united to become one iron wall."

We can understand the fact that France entered this war to gain revenge, that England entered because she was envious of Germany and that Russia desired more seacoast, but we can not understand the fact that these nations have brought the Japanese, savages and semi-savages to aid them.

Germany it has been charged, is a land of autocracy and militarism. This reminds us of the remark of the peasants who was told that it had been predicted that Germany would become a democracy after the war. He said, well, then we will choose William president."

First Yellowstone Trail Car Passes Through Here

After making phenomenal speed over wretched roads Tuesday afternoon, the first Yellowstone trail car reached Milwaukee in 2 hours and 54 minutes. In half a minute after the Chicago auto arrived the Milwaukee car, a Stage-mann, special, with A. Stegemann at the wheel, was dashing along the second relay on the long race against time to Seattle, Wash.

The Stegemann car was expected to reach Oshkosh, its terminus at a little after 6 o'clock. There a car was waiting to take up the message as far as Stevens Point, where a change was again made. At Chippewa Falls a driver left for Minneapolis, and early Wednesday morning the last Wisconsin car reached the Flour city.

From the time the first car making on the trail it was anticipated that records would be broken in spite of bad weather conditions. The Chicago car left that city at 12 noon. Its speedometer showed a distance of ninety-three miles, made in fraction under 3 hours, although the roads were so bad that detours off the trail had to be made. All along the Wisconsin end of the trail the drivers were ready early Tuesday afternoon, and with the high powered cars at their disposal expected to clip several hours from the estimated running time of 100 hours between Chicago and Seattle.

Trip Schedule, 100 Hours.

It is 2,400 miles from Chicago to Seattle. The schedule calls for the trip to be made in 100 hours. Driving day and night it calls for an average speed of twenty-four miles an hour. If the schedule is kept the message will arrive in Seattle Friday afternoon about 4 o'clock.

The Yellowstone trail has been blazed all through Wisconsin the mark is a yellow circle and a black arrow. It is believed this trail will divert a large percentage of the autoists who go to the Pacific coast this summer over the northern route. The road goes through the northern part of the country where it is cool traveling in summer. It passes through Yellowstone park.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Vom Schauplatz des europäischen Völker-Krieges

Der soeben aus Deutschland zurückgekehrte Vize-Konsul John G. Lamont aus Hamburg, hat sich sehr zuversichtlich über die Lage Deutschlands ausgesprochen.

Die Leute, welche immer noch vorgeben, daran zu glauben, Deutschland könne durch Ausbungen zum Nachgeben gebracht werden, sollten endlich diese Idee fahren lassen und denjenigen Glauben schenken, die sich durch eigenen Augenzeugen vom Gegenteil überzeugen haben.

Deutschland und Oesterreich-Ungarn haben bisher auf zwei Fronten von zusammen über 1600 Meilen Länge gekämpft, und zwar mit so günstigen Resultat gekämpft, daß auf deutschem Boden Feinde sich nur als Gefangene befinden, während man in Ostgalizien, wie ich höre, energisch dabei ist, die Russen zum Lande hinaus zu jagen.

Deutschland und Oesterreich-Ungarn haben bisher auf zwei Fronten von zusammen über 1600 Meilen Länge gekämpft, und zwar mit so günstigen Resultat gekämpft, daß auf deutschem Boden Feinde sich nur als Gefangene befinden, während man in Ostgalizien, wie ich höre, energisch dabei ist, die Russen zum Lande hinaus zu jagen.

zahlte hohe Subsidien für den Dampfer und führte ihn als Hilfskreuzer in der englischen Flottenliste. Gemäß Information, die der deutschen Regierung zugegangen ist, hatte die „Lusitania“ Geschosse an Bord, die unter Deck verborgen waren.

Die Note bedient sich sehr scharfer Worte, wo die deutsche Regierung auf die Praktiken zu sprechen kommt, die England anwendet, um Munitionstransporte durch amerikanische Bürger zu behindern.

Ein anderer höchst interessanter Teil der Note ist der Passus, in dem die deutsche Regierung die amerikanische Regierung an Deutschlands Vorfälle erinnert, den Unterseeboottkrieg einzuführen, falls England von Amerika kommende Nahrungsmittel nach Deutschland durchlässe.

Schwimmende Kaffkammer.

New York. Ein weiteres, mit Munition und anderem Kriegsmaterial für die Feinde Deutschlands bis zur Kapazität beladenes Schiff ist nach England in See gegangen. Die „Atlantic“ der White Star Linie, die nach Liverpool abfährt, hatte unter anderem mehr als 180 Kriegsaufzüge, Zapfen-Instrumente und bedeutende Mengen Munition an Bord, und auf dem Vorderdeck waren eine Anzahl tieferer Kisten aufgestellt, die das Ansehen von kleinen Häusern hatten.

Das Schiff hatte 34 Passagiere erster, 112 zweiter und 150 dritter Klasse an Bord, unter denen sich drei Amerikaner befanden.

Amerikanische Fleisch-Sendungen vor's Freigebericht.

London. Das Verhältnis zwischen der britischen Regierung und den Vertretern der neutralen Verfrachter, deren Skagos durch die „Ordnung in Council“ in Mitleidenschaft gezogen sind, hat sich in den letzten Tagen bedeutend gebessert.

Es heißt, die britische Regierung sei jetzt bereit, die Unterjochung der demilitarisierten Ladungen so rasch als möglich durchzuführen, und daß auch die Bestimmungen der „Ordnung in Council“ liberaler als bisher ausgelegt werden.

Die britische Regierung erklärt, von dem Verderben von Fleischladungen auf Vicherschiffen oder in Lagerhäusern keine Kenntnis zu haben.

15 Tonnen Dynamit explodiert.

Seattle, Wash. Fünfzehn Tonnen Dynamit auf einem Flachboot in einem hiesigen Hafen explodierten, und Fenster im Gesamtwert von $40,000 gingen in Seattle in Trümmer.

Die Explosion wurde in einem Umkreis von 35 Meilen von Seattle gefühlt. Everett und Tacoma glaubten, daß ein Erdbeben stattgefunden habe.

Das Dynamit war aus San Francisco hierher gebracht worden und wartete die Ankunft eines Dampfers ab, der es nach Russland nehmen sollte.

Kanonen für England.

Dem britischen Kriegsminister erhielt die Bethlehem Steel Co. neulich den Auftrag zur Lieferung von 8,000 Kanonen. Die Bestellung war von einem Schatz für den Betrag von $16,150,000 begleitet als Vergütung für bereits gelieferte Geschosse u. als Anzahlung für die befallenen 8,000 neuen Geschosse.

Deutschlands Antwort auf Wilson's „Lusitania“-Note.

Die wichtigsten Punkte der amerikanischen Note, die Forderung, daß Deutschland für den Verlust amerikanischer Menschenleben Abhilfe tue u. den Unterseeboottkrieg einstelle, werden in der Note auch nicht mit einem Worte berührt, da Deutschland sich auf den Standpunkt stellt, daß die „Lusitania“ kein Passagierschiff war, sondern ein Hilfskreuzer.

LAST REFUGEES LEAVING YPRES

LIFE IN OCEAN'S DEPTHS

Marvelous Creatures That Exist While Under the Sea—Nature's Provision for Them.

There are more than 50,000,000 square miles covered by a depth of three miles of sea, but even at this great depth—where the pressure of the water above would instantly crush a man's body to pulp—there is a great world of life.

tures of the deep are blind. They are, however, able to see by means of the lights which they carry themselves.

The "lamps" are little organs dotted over the body and with the light from them, which is made in much the same marvelous way as the glow worm's, they can use their bulging eyes to see what is going on about them.

But even with the ready-made lighting apparatus and telescope eyes it is a difficult business finding a dinner, so the fish have jaws with an enormous

ADMIRAL WINTERHALTER

Rear Admiral Winterhalter is the new commander of the Asiatic fleet of the American navy and has gone to China to succeed Admiral Cowles.

Flies Dislike Color of Blue. A French scientist is authority for the statement that flies have a distinct objection to the color of blue.

This was first discovered by a farmer who keeps a large number of cows in several sheds. One of these sheds happened to be painted blue on the inside and in this one the cows were little troubled by flies.

When they have made such a capture they retire for something like a year's meditation to digest the meal, two or three of which are sufficient to last an average lifetime.

Since Eve's Time. A woman can say "dear" to another woman and make it sound like "I'm a liar."

The DAIRY

BULL MAKES DANGEROUS PET

Should Never Be Trusted So Far as to Get Advantage of Attendant—Exercise Is Essential.

The practice of permitting a bull to run with the dairy cows cannot possibly be commended, especially in this true during the breeding season; and with the dairyman who is milking a large number of cows and has a constant demand for milk, this means practically the entire time.

Bull Pen and Yard.

forming material such as alfalfa, oats and wheat bran, will be more vigorous and give better service than a bull permitted to run with the cows. It is very essential that the bull should have plenty of exercise, which he cannot get if confined to a stall.

When kept in this way the bull is also more easily managed. A dairy bull makes a dangerous pet, and should never be so far trusted as to be in a position where he can get the advantage of his attendant.

The bull should always be handled kindly and firmly, and should understand that his attendant is his master. It is always advisable to train the bull calf to lead, and a ring should be placed in his nose at an early date.

TEST OUT PROFITABLE COWS

Important That Farmer Should Know Quantity and Quality He is Receiving From Animals.

(By W. A. MCKERROW, Minnesota Experiment Station.)

Feed is going to be higher than usual this season unless all signs fail. It is, therefore, doubly important that the farmer keeping dairy cows should be sure that his cows are giving him more than value received for what they eat.

This is only one of the reasons why farmers should test their cows for quantity and quality of product. Other reasons for cow-testing are:

It enables the farmer to eliminate cows that do not pay for their board. It saves many a good cow from the shambles. It is an encourager of good feeding and good care.

It gives the farmer an opportunity to build up a good producing herd. It increases one's interest in dairying as a business rather than as a means of labor merely.

In short, it is plain common sense.

BEWARE OF THE QUIET BULL

Easy to Spoil Disposition of Animal by Allowing Children to Tease Him—Make Him Obey.

Never permit the bull to have his own way about anything where you may differ with him, and insist upon prompt obedience. It is very easy to spoil the disposition of a bull by permitting children, old as well as young, to play with him or tease him.

It is the quiet bull that has never horned anything that usually does the damage, suddenly developing a vicious spirit and attacking his unsuspecting attendants.

Dehorn Now.

If you have any dehorning to do remember to do it as early as possible, while the days are cool and the flies scarce. Prevention is the most humane and effective method, which can be accomplished by the use of caustic potash on the horns of calves not more than a month old.

Breed Heifers Second Time. Successful dairymen have found it inadvisable to breed heifers too soon the second time. Twenty months' time, at least, should intervene between a heifer's first calf and her second.

Keep Stables Clean.

See that your stables are cleaned and manure put on the farm.

Let Cows Do the Work. Don't support your cows; let your cows support you.

HOW WOMEN AVOID OPERATIONS

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio—"My left side pained me so for several years that I expected to have to undergo an operation, but the first bottle I took of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of the pains in my side and I continued its use until I became regular and free from pains. I had asked several doctors if there was anything I could take to help me and they said there was nothing that they knew of. I am thankful for such a good medicine and will always give it the highest praise."

—Mrs. C. H. GRIFFITH, 1568 Constant St., Cleveland, Ohio.

Hanover, Pa.—"I suffered from female trouble and the pains were so bad at times that I could not sit down. The doctor advised a severe operation but my husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I experienced great relief in a short time. Now I feel like a new person and can do a hard day's work and not mind it. What joy and happiness it is to be well once more. I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Compound."

The funeral took place Friday morning, June 18 at 9:30 from the house to the Reformed church at Elmore, Rev. Wm. Zenk of Campbellsport conducting the services on account of the absence of the local pastor. The remains were taken to Milwaukee where they were laid to rest in the Union cemetery. To the bereaved relatives we extend our heartfelt sympathy. May time heal the wounds now inflicted.

In Memorium.
Dearest mother thou has left us And one less we deeply feel, But tis God that has bereaved us He can all our sorrows heal Yet again we hope to meet thee When the day of life is fled, When in heaven with joy to greet Thee.

Hands Up!

Ever hear that sort of a command? We hope not, but if you ever should hear it and were carrying around a pocket full of money we'll bet that you would feel rather shaky when your hands go into the air. But, if you had adopted the modern plan, had your money in a good safe bank like ours, a holdup would not worry you so much. The robber might "lift" your check book but it wouldn't do him any good, and we would give you another one. Moral, keep your money in the bank.

BOMBS KILL ELEVEN

KARLSRUHE, GERMANY, IS BOMBARDED BY ALLIED AEROPLANES.

ONE AIRCRAFT IS DESTROYED

Berlin Says Enemy Machine Was Brought Down by Teuton Flyers and Occupants Killed—French Defeated Again—Russians Are in Retreat.

Berlin, June 17.—Main headquarters gave out the following report on Tuesday:

The open town of Karlsruhe, which is far from the theater of operations and not in any way fortified, was attacked with bombs dropped by enemy airmen. Eleven civilians were killed and six injured. One of the aircraft was brought down by our military airmen and the occupants killed. Another of the enemy aircraft was obliged to land near Schirmeck.

In the western theater a further defeat was suffered by the French. In spite of the heavy losses they sustained on June 15, the continued attempt to break through our line between Lieven and Arras. The attack broke down everywhere, with extremely heavy losses.

Northwest of the Moulins Sous Tournent we have not yet succeeded in regaining the portions of trenches lost by us on the 6th.

In the Champagne, north of Pertuis and Lesmesnil, the fighting continues, but the enemy has been unable to gain any advantage.

Our troops have advanced on the front from Loperon to Kalarwa, capturing the Russian advanced trenches.

On the Orkycz we stormed and took the village of Gadmorsozec, to the southeast of Chorzelo, as well as Czerwonogera and the bridges at that position. Attacks by the enemy against the point where we broke through north of Bollnow have failed.

In the southeastern theater the enemy, who was defeated on June 13 and 14 by the army of General von Mackensen, has been unable to gain a footing in the positions prepared by him.

To the northeast of Javorow the enemy has been driven. The enemy to the south of the Przemysl-Lemberg railway has been forced to retreat.

The troops of General von der Marwitz took Moselska and the right wing army under General Linsingen stormed the heights east of Zokol. Our cavalry has reached the district south of Mariampole.

TERRIFIC TORNADO SWEEPS FERRYVILLE, WIS.

Other Towns Hit by Violent Winds—Property Damage Heavy—Acres of Crops Ruined.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 15.—Eighteen persons are known to be dead, and reports of sixty injured filtered in here over partially restored means of communication, as the result of the violent tornado storm which swept Wisconsin Saturday night from the Mississippi river to Lake Michigan.

The storm struck most violently in the neighborhood of Ferryville, Wis., where seven persons were killed and eighteen injured, some of whom may die. At Lansing, Ia., just across the Mississippi from Ferryville, five were killed and thirteen injured.

Two persons were killed at Racine, Wis., and three at Reedsburg. Of the eight others injured at Reedsburg, two were reported to be dying today. One person was killed and three hurt at Baraboo, Wis. Other cities where the storm caused the injury of residents were Oakkosh, Madison, Tunnel City, Sparta and Eau Claire.

DISCUSS NOTE WITH KAISER

United States Envoy to See Emperor Before Reply Is Made.

Washington, June 17.—One of the most important of the developments of the day which officials believe was promoted from Washington, is that Ambassador Gerard is to have a talk with Kaiser Wilhelm himself before Germany sends her reply to the American note. Officials do not deny that such a meeting is to take place, and they all realize its overshadowing importance.

In connection with this proposed meeting comes the statement from Berlin that Germany was at first led to believe that the United States would not undertake to mediate between Germany and England on the subjects of the submarine attacks on neutral vessels and England's refusal to let foodstuffs go into Germany.

OFFER AMENDMENT TO STEPPER BILL

PROVIDING THERE SHALL BE NO NET INCREASE IN NUMBER OF LICENSES.

PASSAGE NOW PREDICTED

Friends of Poole Tuberculin Test Resolution Fight Hard for a Reconsideration—Would Hasten Adjournment.

Madison, June 16, 1915.

Friends of the Poole tuberculin test bill and supporters of the Stepper saloon license bill are trying to secure acceptance of amendments which would permit reconsideration of the Poole bill and sending to third reading of the Stepper bill with a faint hope in the background that there may be a chance to have the rules suspended and the bills concurred in.

The amendment prepared for the Stepper bill, and which it is hoped will secure its passage, is to the effect that when one of those Milwaukee saloon keepers now out of business is granted a license that some other license must be retired. It is said in support of this plan that there will be many licenses that will not be renewed on July 1 and these will take care of those of the saloon keepers now out who may wish to secure licenses.

It is claimed enough senators have agreed to the amendment to make certain its passing the senate, and that if this is done it will get through the assembly.

Compromise is Suggested. Assemblyman Poole and those back of his bill tried to come to an agreement with opponents of the bill. The following amendment has been proposed as a compromise:

"Any city, village or town may require that all milk products brought into or sold within its borders shall be either pasteurized or drawn from cows which, within — years, next preceding, shall have been tested for tuberculosis; provided, however, that all further regulations as to the testing of cows for tuberculosis and the sale of milk or cream from cows suspected of being tubercular, shall be reserved to the state, but the health officer or the health commissioner of any city or village shall, when he suspects that any cow or cows whose milk is being sold in such city or village, is tubercular, report the same to the state live stock sanitary board, who shall cause said cows or cows to be treated for tuberculosis."

WILSON TO DEMAND RIGHT TO TRADE WITH GERMANY.

Seeks Freedom of Cargoes—Holds Noncontraband Goods Are Not Subject to Seizure.

Washington, June 14.—The new American note to Great Britain on the rights of neutral commerce will make the same demand of that government that the United States has already made to Germany—namely, that she shall adhere to the recognized principles of international law in her treatment of American citizens and their property.

The state department is now engaged in preparing data for the use of the president and Secretary of State Lansing in the construction of the note to Great Britain. The note will soon be ready for dispatch to London.

While reiterating its earlier statement that this government might be ready to admit that the old form of "closed" blockade is no longer practicable, the note will maintain, on two points, that Great Britain's present method of blockade is illegal. These points will be:

That Great Britain can find no warrant in international law for extending her blockade to the ports of neutral countries adjoining the enemy territory.

That her blockade does not operate against traffic between Scandinavian and Danish ports and Germany, is, therefore, in violation of international law, which holds that a blockade must apply to all countries alike.

The note will then indicate the practices of Great Britain with regard to American commerce, which it regards as direct violation of international law.

This government will state its understanding of the law to be that non-contraband, even if bound for an enemy port, is not subject to interference unless a legal blockade is maintained; that contraband, if destined for the territory of the enemy, is subject to seizure, and that contraband of relative contraband is subject to seizure if intended to be used by the enemy government, but is not subject to interference beyond examination. Great Britain's claim that she is prepared to pay for these cargoes at the price in which the contracts were made will be answered by the statement that she has no legal right to compel American owners of goods to sell to her.

WOULD HASTEN ADJOURNMENT.

If the senate adopts a joint resolution introduced by Assemblyman Offstie there will be no more bills introduced this session except appropriation bills.

The bill providing for the wiping out of aldermen at large in Milwaukee, which was in the assembly, was indefinitely postponed by that house.

The Grell bill, which repeals the appropriation for the liberal arts building and workshops at the university and permits the construction of the medical and physics building was engrossed by the assembly and then rules suspended and sent to the senate. This bill abolishes the appropriation of $200,000.

The Frederick fee splitting bill by physicians was engrossed and then rules suspended and passed by the assembly.

The senate ordered engrossed the Albers bill reducing the annual taxes of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company of Milwaukee about $90,000 a year. The bill provides that the company shall pay a tax of 3 per cent on its gross income except from rents and real estate and premiums on annuity policies. Under the present law, the company pays 3 per cent on its income from all sources.

BIG STRIKE IS OVER

CHICAGO STREET RAILWAYS RESUME OPERATION OF CARS AFTER TWO DAYS' TIE-UP.

MAYOR THOMPSON REFEREE

Final Step in the Settlement Comes When the City's Executive Is Selected as Arbitrator After an All-Night Session.

Chicago, June 16.—Chicago's great street railway strike is over. The men are winners. The final step in the settlement of the differences between the railways and employees came when Mayor Thompson was selected as referee, and the motormen and conductors of both the surface and elevated lines ordered back to work, pending the decision of the referee.

The board of arbitration, as finally agreed on, will consist of three men, one to act as representative of motormen for each side and the referee to be the third or deciding member.

The strike came to an end at once without referring the question to the body of strikers.

At 4 a. m. the mayor's conference over the traction strike settlement had agreed upon arbitration on condition that the conferees can settle upon a referee or third man for the arbitration board.

All other points of difference had been settled after eight hours of continuous session at which were present Mayor Thompson, the five members of the aldermanic committee and representatives of the street car companies and the strikers.

The companies proposed for the arbitrator Jacob M. Dickinson, former secretary of war, or William J. Calhoun, former minister to China.

The unions proposed for arbitrator the name of Attorney Samuel Alschuler or Owen P. Thompson of Jacksonville, who is a member of the state board of public utilities.

In all twenty-five names had been submitted including Judge Landis and Judge Carpenter of the federal court and Judge Fitch of the appellate court, all of which had been rejected.

The following men were locked up in Mayor Thompson's office and were kept there until the agreement looking to peace was reached:

Aldermen—Henry D. Captain, James H. Lawley, Dr. Willis O. Nance, John A. Richard, W. J. Healy.

Union Officials—W. D. Mahon, Edward McMorro, William Quinlan, John J. Bruce, William Taber, William S. McClenathan, Maurice Lynch, L. D. Bland.

Traction Officials—Henry A. Blair, Leonard A. Busby, Britton I. Budd.

The entire body of conferees, including the mayor, the aldermanic committee and representatives of the car companies and of the strikers, were locked in the mayor's office all night.

The sudden ending of the strike averted possible serious consequences on the Oak Park branch of the elevated lines. The Oak Park company is in the hands of receivers, who are responsible to the federal court. An order signed by Federal Judge Kohlsaat the receivers were instructed to begin the operation of the line at once. Any attempt at interference with this line would have brought the persons guilty of any offence into a clash with the federal government.

England Turns Over First Installment for Seized Cargoes—$12,000,000 to Come.

New York, June 16.—Bankers and marine insurance interests here were gratified by news from London that the British government had paid an installment of more than $300,000 on a cargo of American cotton seized on the way to Sweden.

In March and April Great Britain detained 26 ships carrying 200,000 bales of cotton, valued at $12,000,000. Drafts drawn against these shipments were discounted by bankers and trust companies in New York.

SYNOPSIS.

The yacht Lola narrowly escapes wreck in Leithorn harbor. Gordon Gregg, looting the British consul, is called upon by Herby, the Lola's owner, and dines aboard with him and his friend, Hilton Chater. Aboard the yacht he accidentally sees a room full of arms and ammunition and a torn photograph of a young girl. That night the consul is robbed and the Lola puts suddenly to sea. The police find that Herby is a fraud and the Lola's name a false one. Gregg visits Capt. Jack Durnford of the marines aboard his vessel, and is surprised to learn that Durnford knows the Lola. It concerns a woman in London whom Gregg is trooping nearly to his death by a former friend, Olan, who repeats in time to save him, but not to give a reason for his treachery. Visiting in Dumfries Gregg meets Muriel Leithcourt, who is strangely affected at the mention of the Lola. Herby appears. Muriel introduces Herby as Martin Woodroffe, her father's friend.

"Of course. They've been engaged nearly a year, but he's been abroad until quite lately. He is rather close about his own affairs, and never talks about his travels and adventures, although one day Mr. Leithcourt declared that his hairbreadth escapes would make a most exciting book if ever written."

"Leithcourt and he are evidently most intimate friends."

"Oh, quite inseparable!" she laughed. "And the other man who is always with them is that short, stout, red-faced old fellow standing over there with the lady in pale blue, Sir Ughtred Gardner. Mr. Woodroffe has nicknamed him 'Sir Putrid.' And we both laughed. 'Of course, don't say I said so,' she whispered. 'They don't call him that to his face, but it's so easy to make a mistake in his name when he's not within hearing. We women don't care for him, so the nickname just fits.'"

And she gossiped on, telling me much that I should know regarding the new tenant of Rannoch and his friends, and more especially of that man who had first introduced himself to me in the consulate at Leghorn.

Half an hour later my uncle's carriage was announced, and I left with the distinct impression that there was some deep mystery surrounding the Leithcourts. Whatever the reason, I had become filled with grave apprehensions. The mystery grew deeper day by day, and was inexplicable.

During the week that followed I sought to learn all I could regarding the new people at the castle.

"They are taken up everywhere," declared my aunt when I questioned her. "Of course, we knew very little of them, except that they had a shop up near Fort William two years ago, and that they have a town house in Green street. They are evidently rather smart folks. Don't you think so?"

"Judging from their house party, yes," I responded. "They are about as gay a crowd as one could find north of Carlisle just at present."

"Exactly. There are some well-known people among them, too," said my aunt. "I've asked them over to-morrow afternoon, and they've accepted."

"Excellent!" I exclaimed, for I wanted an opportunity for another chat with the dark-eyed girl who was engaged to the man whose alias was Herby. I particularly desired to ascertain the reason for her fear when I had mentioned the Lola, and whether she possessed any knowledge of Hilton Chater.

The opportunity came to me in due course, for next afternoon the Rannoch party drove over in two large brakes, and with other people from the neighborhood and a band from Dumfries, my aunt's grounds presented a gay and animated scene.

As I expected, Woodroffe did not accompany the party. Mrs. Leithcourt, a slightly fussy little woman, apologized for his absence, explaining that he had been recalled to London suddenly a few days before, but was returning to Rannoch again at the end of the week.

"We couldn't afford to lose him," she declared to my aunt. "He is so awfully humorous—his drill sayings and antics keep us in a perfect roar each night at dinner. He's such a perfect mimic."

I turned away and strolled with Muriel, pleading an excuse to show her my uncle's beautiful grounds, not a whit less picturesque than those of the castle, and perhaps rather better kept.

"I only heard yesterday of your engagement, Miss Leithcourt," I remarked presently when we were alone.

"Allow me to offer my best congratulations. When you introduced me to Mr. Woodroffe the other day I had no idea that he was to be your husband."

She glanced at me quickly, and I saw in her dark eyes a look of suspicion. Then she flushed slightly, and laughing uneasily said, in a blank, hard voice:

"It's very good of you, Mr. Gregg, to wish me all sorts of such pleasant things."

"And when is the happy event to take place?"

"The date is not exactly fixed—early next year, I believe," and I thought she sighed.

"And you will probably spend a good deal of time yachting?" I suggested, my eyes fixed upon her in order to watch the result of my pointed remark. But she controlled herself perfectly.

"Mr. Woodroffe has gone up to town, your mother says."

"Yes. He received a wire, and had to leave immediately. It was an awful bore, for we had arranged to go for a picnic to Dundernann abbey yesterday."

"But he'll be back here again, won't he?"

"I really don't know. It seems quite uncertain. I had a letter this morning which said he might have to go over to Hamburg on business, instead of coming up to us again."

There was disappointment in her voice, and yet at the same time I could not fail to recognize how the man to whom she was engaged had fled from Scotland because of my presence.

As we passed along those gravelled walks it somehow became vividly impressed upon me that her marriage was being forced upon her by her parents. Her manner was that of one who was concealing some strange and terrible secret which she feared might be revealed. There was a distant look of unutterable terror in those dark eyes as though she existed in some constant and ever-present dread. Or course she told me nothing of her own feelings or affections, yet I recognized in both her words and her bearing a curious apathy—a want of the real enthusiasm of affection. Woodroffe, much her senior, was her father's friend, and it therefore seemed to me more than likely that Leithcourt was pressing a matrimonial alliance upon his daughter for some ulterior motive. She was perplexed; she longed to confide and seek advice of someone, yet by reason of some hidden and untoward circumstance her lips were sealed.

I tried to question her further regarding Woodroffe, of what profession he followed and of his past, but she evidently suspected me, for I had unfortunately mentioned the Lola.

Martin Woodroffe did not rejoin the house party at Rannoch. Although I remained the guest of my uncle much longer than I intended, indeed right through the shooting season, in order to watch the Leithcourts, yet as far as we could judge they were extremely well-bred people and very hospitable. We exchanged a good many visits and

HAD CONFIDENCE IN PEOPLE

California Newsboy Lost Nothing by Trusting to the Honesty of His Customers.

Most people are honest; so, at least, reasons a newsboy in a California town, and he has clear justification for his confidence. The reporter of the following incident was in a downtown drug store when a stranger came in with a copy of a newspaper, and asked change for a dime. He said that he wanted to pay for his newspaper. Someone remarked that for his part he let the newsboys find their own change.

"This newsboy cannot do it," said the man with the newspaper. "Come out here and look at him." Two or three bystanders stepped to the door, expecting to see a crippled boy with a pile of newspapers to sell. Instead, they saw a tin can with a hole in the top large enough to admit a nickel; a pile of newspapers lying upon the walk, and a card fastened to the can, reading:

"Come to Sunday school for one hour. If you want a paper, take one, and put your nickel in the can."

The can and pile of newspapers stood unprotected on the walk for more than an hour, while the little owner was at Sunday school. Men who passed by and were attracted by the rather odd little news stand would stop, read the sign, pick up a paper and put a nickel—and sometimes a dime—into the little tin can. When the boy returned from Sunday school he found all his newspapers gone, and more nickels in the tin than there were papers when he left.

dinners, and while my uncle several times invited Leithcourt and his friends to his shoot with al fresco luncheon, which the ladies joined, the tenant of Rannoch always invited us back in return.

Thus I gained many opportunities of talking with Muriel, and of watching her closely. I had the reputation of being a confirmed bachelor, and on account of that it seemed that she was in no way averse to my companionship. She could handle a rook rife as well as any woman, and was really a very fair shot. We often found ourselves alone tramping across the wide open moorland, or along those delightful glens of the Nithsdale, glorious in the autumn tints of their luxurious foliage.

Her father, on the other hand, seemed to view me with considerable suspicion, and I could easily discern that I was only asked to Rannoch because it was impossible to invite my uncle without including myself.

His pronounced antipathy towards me caused me to watch him surreptitiously, and more closely than perhaps I should otherwise have done. He was a man of gloomy mood, and often he would leave his guests and take walks alone, musing and brooding. On several occasions I followed him in secret, and found to my surprise that although he made long detours in various directions, yet he always arrived at the same spot at the same hour—five o'clock.

The place where he halted was on the edge of a dark wood on the brow of a hill about three miles from Rannoch. Leithcourt never went there, but always so timed his walks that he arrived just at five, and remained there smoking cigarettes until half-past, as though awaiting the arrival of some person he expected.

In my youth I had sat many a quiet hour there in the darkening gloom and knew the wood well, and was able to watch the tenant of Rannoch from points where he least suspected the presence of another. Once, when I was alone with Muriel, I mentioned her father's capacity for walking alone, whereupon she said:

"Oh, yes, he was always fond of walking. He used to take me with him when we first came here, but he always went so far that I refused to go any more."

She never once mentioned Woodroffe. I allowed her plenty of opportunity for doing so, chaffing her about her forthcoming marriage in order that she might again refer to him. But never did his name pass her lips. I understood that he had gone abroad—that was all.

Often when alone I reflected upon my curious adventure on that night when I met Olan, and of my narrow escape from the hands of my unknown enemies. I wondered if that ingenious and dastardly attempt upon my life had really any connection with that strange incident at Leghorn. As day succeeded day, my mind became filled by increasing suspicion. Mystery surrounded me on every hand. Indeed, by one curious fact alone it was increased a hundredfold.

Late one afternoon, when I had been out shooting all day with the Rannoch party, I drove back to the castle in the Perth cart with three other men, and found the ladies assembled in the great hall with tea ready. A westerly gale was blowing in the huge old grate, for in October it is chilly and damp in Scotland and a fire is pleasant at evening.

Muriel was seated upon the high padded fender—like those one has at clubs—which always formed a cozy spot for the ladies, especially after dinner. When I entered, she rose quickly and handed me my cup, exclaiming as she looked at me:

"Oh, Mr. Gregg! What a state you are in!"

"Yes, I was after snipe, and slipped into a bog," I laughed. "But it was early this morning, and the mud has dried."

"Come with me, and I'll get you a brush," she urged. And I followed her through the long corridors and upstairs to a small sitting-room which was her own little sanctuary, where she worked and read—a cozy little place with two queer old windows in the colossal wall, and a floor of polished oak, and dark black beams above. As my eyes wandered around the room they suddenly fell upon an object which caused me to start with profound wonder—a cabinet photograph in a frame of crimson leather.

The picture was that of a young girl—a duplicate of the portrait I had found torn across and flung aside on board the Lola!

The merry eyes laughed out at me as I stood staring at it in sheer bewilderment.

"What a pretty girl!" I exclaimed quickly, concealing my surprise. "Who is she?"

"My companion was silent a moment, her dark eyes meeting mine with a strange look of inquiry."

"Yes," she laughed, "everyone admires her. She was a schoolfellow of mine—Elma Heath."

"Heath!" I echoed. "Where was she at school with you?"

"At Chichester."

"Long ago?"
"A little over two years ago."
"She's very beautiful!" I declared, taking up the photograph and discovering that it bore the name of the same well-known photographer in New Bond street as that I had found on the carpet of the Lola in the Mediterranean.

"Yes. She's really prettier than her photograph. It hardly does her justice."
"And where is she now?"

"Why are you so very inquisitive, Mr. Gregg?" laughed the handsome girl. "Have you actually fallen in love with her from her picture?"

"I'm hardly given to that kind of thing, Miss Leithcourt," I answered with mock severity. "I don't think even with most enemy could call me a flirt, could she?"

"No. I will give you your due," she declared. "You never do flirt. That is why I like you."

"Thanks for your candor, Miss Leithcourt," I said.

"Only," she added, "you seem smitten with Elma's charms."

"I think she's extremely pretty," I remarked, with the photograph still in my hand. "Do you ever see her now?"

"Never," she replied. "Since the day I left school we have never met. She was several years younger than myself, and I heard that a week after I left Chichester her people came and took her away. Where she is now I have no idea. Her people lived somewhere in Durham. Her father was a doctor."

"Then you have heard absolutely nothing as to her present position or whereabouts—whether she is married, for instance?"

"Ah!" she cried mischievously. "You betray yourself by your own words."

I Listened, Trying to Distinguish the Words Uttered.

You have fallen in love with her, I really believe, Mr. Gregg. If she knew, she'd be most gratified—or at least, she ought to be."

At which I smiled, preferring that she should adopt that theory in preference to any other.

She spoke frankly, as a pure honest girl would speak. She was not jealous, but she nevertheless resented—as women do resent such things—that I should fall in love with a friend's photograph.

There was a mystery surrounding that torn picture; of that I was absolutely certain. The remembrance of that memorable evening when I had dined on board the Lola arose vividly before me. Why had the girl's portrait been so ruthlessly destroyed? Hour by hour the mystery surrounding the Leithcourts became more inscrutable, more intensely absorbing. I had searched a copy of the London directory at the Station hotel at Carlisle, and found that no house in Green street was registered as occupied by the tenant of Rannoch; and, further, when I came to examine the list of guests at the castle, I found that they were really persons unknown in society. Leithcourt seemed to possess a long pocket and smelt upon those parasites, officers of doubtful commission and younger sprigs of the pseudo-aristocracy who surrounded him, while his wife, keen-eyed and of superb bearing, was punctilious concerning all points of etiquette, and at the same time indefatigable that her mixed set of guests should enjoy a really good time.

Next day I shot with the Carmichael of Crossburn, and about four o'clock, after a good day, took leave of the party in the Black Glen, and started off alone to walk home a distance of about six miles. It was already growing dusk, and would be quite dark, I knew, before I reached my uncle's house. My most direct way was to follow the river for about two miles and then strike straight across the large dense woods, and afterwards

No "Fixed Star."

The phrase "fixed star" is a misnomer. There is no such thing. All the millions of stars one sees in the vault of the sky, and millions, vastly more millions, revealed by telescope and photography, with undoubted uncountable other millions of millions, billions of billions, in the universes of the infinite beyond, have their movements, whether in groups or merely by single stars each, with its retinue of sun and its few known planets.

FRANCIS JOSEPH VERY SPRY

Aged Emperor of Austria Equal to the Situation, Extreme Though It Must Be Admitted.

Francis Molnar, war correspondent in the Carpathians of Az Est, gives an interview with an officer of high rank, who had had an audience of Emperor Francis Joseph a few days previously in Vienna. The officer said: "I spent half an hour in the working room of his majesty, and found him to be much more lively and agile than at any time during the last years when I saw him. During the audience the emperor walked up and down the room. He was always noted for his excellent memory, but what I saw in regard to this now was really marvelous. His majesty knows the name of the commander of every regiment, and even now is well informed as to changes taking place in commanders of brigades and regiments."

"He is informed every day as to the work being done by all the war material factories. On the table in his over a wide moor full of treacherous bogs and pitfalls for the unwary.

My gun over my shoulder, I had walked on for about three-quarters of an hour, and had nearly traversed the wood, at that hour so dark that I had considerable difficulty in finding my way, when—of a sudden—I fancied I distinguished voices.

I halted. Yes. Men were talking in low tones of confidence, and in that calm stillness of evening they appeared nearer to me than they actually were.

I listened, trying to distinguish the words uttered, but could make out nothing. They were moving slowly together, in close vicinity to myself, for their feet stirred the dry leaves, and I could hear the boughs cracking as they forced their way through them.

Of a sudden, while standing there not daring to breathe lest I should betray my presence, a strange sound fell upon my eager ears.

Next moment I realized that I was at that place where Leithcourt so persistently kept his disappointed trust, having approached it from within the wood.

The sound alarmed me, and yet it was neither an explosion of fire arms nor a startling cry for help.

One word reached me in the darkness—one single word of bitter and withering reproach.

Headless of the risk I ran and the peril to which I exposed myself, I dashed forward with a resolve to penetrate the mystery, until I came to the gap in the rough stone wall where Leithcourt's habit was to halt each day at sundown.

There, in the falling darkness, the sight that met my eyes at the spot held me rigid, appalled, stupefied.

In that instant I realized the truth—a truth that was surely the strangest ever revealed to any man.

CHAPTER V.

Contains Certain Confidences.

As I dashed forward to the gap in the boundary wall of the wood, I nearly stumbled over a form lying across the narrow path.

So dark was it beneath the trees that at first I could not plainly make out what it was until I bent and my hands touched the garments of a woman. Her hat had fallen off, for I felt it beneath my feet, while the cloak was a thick woolen one.

Was she dead, I wondered? That cry—that single word of reproach—sounded in my ears, and it seemed plain that she had been struck down ruthlessly after an exchange of angry words.

I felt in my pocket for my vest, but unfortunately my box was empty. Yet just as that moment my strained ears caught a sound—the sound of someone moving stealthily among the fallen leaves. Seizing my gun, I demanded who was there.

There was, however, no response. The instant I spoke the movement ceased.

It seemed evident that a tragedy had occurred, and that the victim at my feet was a woman. But who?

Of a sudden, while I stood hesitating, blaming myself for being without matches, I heard the movement repeat. Someone was quickly receding—escaping from the spot. I sprang through the gap, straining my eyes into the gloom, and as I did so could just distinguish a dark figure receding quickly beneath the wall of the wood.

In an instant I dashed after it. Down the steep hill to the Scarwater I followed the fugitive, crossing the old footbridge near Penpont, and then up a wild winding glen towards the Cairnmore of Deugh. For a couple of miles or more I was close behind, until, at a turn in the dark wooded glen where it branched in two directions, I lost all trace of the person who fled from me. Whoever it was they had very cleverly gone into hiding in the undergrowth of one or other of the two glens—which, I could not decide.

I stood out of breath, the perspiration pouring from me, undecided how to act.

Was it Leithcourt himself whom I had surprised?

That idea somehow became impressed upon me, and I suddenly resolved to go boldly across to Rannoch and ascertain for myself. Therefore, with the excuse that I was belated on my walk home, I turned back down the glen, and half an hour afterward entered the great well-lighted hall of the castle where the guests, ready dressed, were assembling prior to dinner.

I was welcomed warmly, and just then Leithcourt himself joined his guests, ready dressed in his dinner jacket, having just descended from his room.

"Hullo, Gregg!" he exclaimed heartily, holding out his hand. "Had a long day of it, evidently. Good sport with Carmichael—eh?"

"Very fair," I said. "I remained longer with him than I ought to have done, and have not belated on my way home, so looked in for a refresher."

"Quite right," he laughed merrily. "You're always welcome, you know. I'd have been annoyed if I knew you had passed without coming in."

Midsummer Coat of Heavy Cotton Cloth

The weavers of cotton cloths have become expert in making fabrics much like the heavier weaves of wool in appearance, as well as some novelties that appear only in cotton. These heavy weaves, including cotton corduroy and corded materials, are also shown in basket weaves. They are all used for the popular sport skirts and summer coats that are featured so strongly for street and outing wear.

All of a sudden cretonnes have sprung into use in the making of apparel. Gayly flowered and quaintly figured cretonnes are used to make bright morning dresses and are called "garden" dresses. Floppy-brimmed hats or beach bonnets (which are sunbonnets parading under a new name) are worn with them and made of the same cretonne.

One of the best models for a coat of cotton corduroy, corded cloth, or fancy weaves in cotton, is shown in the picture given here. Like a few of the heavy linen weaves, it is unmanageable. For decoration it depends upon machine stitching and buttons made by covering button molds with the fabric. It is cut along the same lines as popular sport coats of wool, with high convertible collar, big pocket, and wide belt across the back. Among other new wraps of cotton for midsummer smocks made in white or blue or brown are commanding much attention. They are straight-banking garments with the fullness taken up by old-fashioned "smocking" at the neck and at the ends of the sleeves. Cretonnes in small figures are used for the collar and cuffs and are chosen in strong color contrasts. The white smocks are prettiest, but those in light brown are equally smart. They are the something new in outer garments that women are all ready to welcome.

Poke Bonnets.

Adorable poke bonnets in the same pretty coloring show to advantage atop blonde curls, for, unlike our American kiddies, the bobbed hair effect is not being worn on the other side of the water. The little girls all have their hair long and flowing over their shoulders, and of course it curls whether naturelle or a la kide or poker. The British boy, no matter how tiny, spurns the bobbed effect also, and rears a close-cropped little bullet head proudly to the infantile fashionable world.

Ostrich Boa In Enthusiastic Revival

The ostrich boa has met with an unanticipated but enthusiastic revival of popularity, and seems destined to outdistance other kinds of fluffy and airy neckwear. The unusually cool weather of spring has made some sort of protection almost a necessity, and there is no denying the becomingness of soft feathers about the throat.

White fox, red fox and light gray or tan fur neckpieces one sees with the most summery of white turbans and flower-trimmed hats. This vogue is probably a reflection from the western coast, for visitors to the Panama exposition have found the weather cool and everyone indulging in the San Francisco privilege of wearing furs with summer gowns.

The feather boa of today is short as to length, long as to fiber, and liked best in white, natural color or two-toned combinations. Occasionally a boa more than long enough to lie loosely about the throat is seen, but not often. They all fasten with bows of soft messaline ribbon, apparently, or the exception is so rare as to prove the rule.

Very smart sets consisting of boa and ostrich-trimmed hats are shown, and there are great numbers of cockades, fans, and other fanciful ornaments made of ostrich to be used on midsummer hats.

Three New Bathing Caps.

The Tipperary bathing cap is a high model, finished at the top with a long rubber tassel, which hangs straight down the front of the cap. The cap is boned in the front to keep it high and straight, and acts as a support to the tassel.

The lockey-shaped bathing cap is made in a combination of blue and green, also red and black. The only trimming on this cap is the regular button on top.

The Castle cap for beach wear is made in bright green satin, lined with rubber, effectively trimmed with small roses fashioned from green and black satin.

Pearl ornaments may be elegantly polished by first rubbing the olive oil to remove the dirty appearance, then applying any red nail polish. This latter gives a burnished appearance, and with a little soft rubbing the pearl takes on a brilliant glow.

THE GOOD JUDGE HEARS OF CONVERTS

SAY JUDGE, A BUNCH OF CONVERTS ARE HITTING THE TRAIL FOR THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW. THAT SHOWS MEN ARE NOT SATISFIED WITH THE OLD KIND. YES SIR, RAILROAD MEN, PINERS, RANCHERS--IN FACT NEARLY EVERYBODY IS LOOKING FOR THE LITTLE CHEW THAT SATISFIES.

MEN line up for the Real Tobacco Chew because it's what they've been wanting right along whether they knew it or not.

And the ones who saw it first like to get together and watch the movement grow. That's why so much is heard about it.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco--seasoned and sweetened just enough--cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is the Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste.

Report of Commissioner of Insurance Herman L. Ekern

Madison, Wis., June 9--Kewaskum had a fire loss of $1,965.73 during 1914.

The report of the Commissioner of Insurance Herman L. Ekern giving these figures also show that these companies collected $4,732.28 in premiums from the policy-holders of this city. This means $259.99 paid in premiums for each $100 returned for losses. During 1911 to 1914 inclusive, the total premiums paid in this city amounted to $17,090.86 and the total returned for losses was $77,327.65, which makes a premium payment of $22.10 for each $100 returned for losses.

Fire Chief John F. Schaefer's records show no fire losses for 1914. Commenting on these figures showing losses and premiums, Commissioner Ekern said: "The insurance companies figures are the amounts which they have paid out for losses. There will be a difference between their figures and the fire department records in that losses often exceed the amount of insurance. On the other hand, the insurance companies pay many small losses for which the fire department is not called out. Differences also arise from the fact that the fire departments records are made up from the losses as they occur, while the insurance company records are made up at the time losses are paid, which often would cause the losses incurred in one year to be recorded as paid the succeeding year. Cases have also been found where the insurance companies have included losses outside the city. This is an injustice to the city in the excess losses, so shown, and the figures are now being investigated to correct any errors.

The 315 cities and villages in Wisconsin having fire departments had a population in 1910 of 1,199,518. During 1914 these cities and villages paid $6,701,065 in premiums and received in return $3,152,854 for losses. The people of this state paid $212,540 for each $100 returned for losses. From 1911 to 1914, inclusive, the premiums paid were $29,949,657 and the losses paid were $11,161,270, making the premium payments $269,400 returned for losses. The city and village per capita loss in 1914 was $2.63, and for the four years $2.33.

The great mass of insurance in cities and villages is written by the insurance companies. Probably less than 1 per cent is written by mutuals, Lloyd's and interinsurers. The business of the stock companies is therefore of particular interest. The figures show that even with a general excessive fire loss during 1914, the loss rate in Wisconsin is much less than that throughout the United States, and a comparison of premium payments to losses in Wisconsin and throughout the United States shows that the people of Wisconsin are still being compelled to pay more than their share of the fire insurance premiums.

Fire losses will fluctuate. A city having a good record may have an excessive loss for one or more years, but given a large territory or reasonable period of time, the losses will average. During the year 1905-1914 the people of Wisconsin have paid the stock fire insurance corporations over $70,000,000 in premiums and received for losses less than $31,000,000, and Wisconsin policy-holders have paid in premiums for each $100 of losses, against $173 paid on the average throughout the United States.

The people of Wisconsin are being overcharged. This is wrong Wisconsin leads in fire prevention work, for which the fire departments are entitled to the principal credit. This work can not fail to greatly reduce losses. That it has done so is shown by comparisons with other states. The fire departments are entitled to generous recognition and support by the people for their work.

Already nearly 400 of the larger stores and factories in this state are protected by automatic sprinklers. Their practical immunity from fire fully justifies reductions in insurance premiums to 1-3 or even 1-10 of the old rates, such as to pay the equipment cost within three to eight years. But the great mass of the people are not doing their share. They are more and more giving attention to greater care and better housekeeping. We have the best state building code in the United States. More is spent here for better buildings and for improvements on old property. All these reduce losses and the people are justly entitled to reductions in insurance premiums, and without doubt the legislature will provide the regulations which give the people of Wisconsin the benefit of the fire prevention work they are doing.

During 1914 the 1339 stock fire insurance companies doing business in Wisconsin had a loss rate of 57.5 per cent against a loss rate of 50.5 per cent in Wisconsin. Policy holders throughout the United States thus paid $174.10 in premiums for each $100 paid back for losses. This is pointedly illustrated by the experience of the Wisconsin stock companies which collected through out the United States $178.00 in premiums while in Wisconsin they collected $335.00 for each $100 returned for losses.

The farmers town mutual company record is all the time getting better. Nor is it an accident. During the ten years from 1905 to 1914 the town mutuals collected only $121.50 for each $100 paid for losses against $299.50 collected in Wisconsin by the stock companies.

During the last four years these farmers town companies collected in premiums from their policy holders only $118.90 on the average for each $100 paid back for losses against the average of $322.50 collected from Wisconsin policy-holders by stock companies.

During 1914 the farmers' town companies collected in Wisconsin premiums of $1,033,619 and paid losses $901,263 making $152,356 in premiums by the farmers for each $100 paid back for losses, as against the $187.70 paid by Wisconsin policy holders to stock companies.

"HITCH TO THE HOUSE OF HILLS"

JUNE 21ST SUMMER BEGINS

The long hot months are all ahead of us. Summer is the time of the year for the great big outdoor sports. Scientific Baby-Culture

The National Children's Bureau has issued a book of eighty-seven pages, entitled "Infants Care," which I wish could be placed in the home of every young mother and expectant young mother in the state of Wisconsin. If the practical information the book contains were understood, and the directions were followed by Wisconsin mothers, hundreds of babies doomed to die under present conditions would be saved. The government went to the expense of preparing, printing and distributing this book for the sake of saving babies. And babies are dying right along on account of the need of such information on the part of mothers. Obviously, information like this cannot be delivered by shotgun methods. The government cannot send out one hundred of these bulletins indiscriminately, in order to reach one mother here and there, who will absorb the benefit.

Appreciating the difficulty of effective and economical distribution, and at the same time knowing the desire of mothers for the information, the university Extension Health Instruction Bureau has made arrangements with the federal bureau to secure a limited number of copies for Wisconsin mothers and others who desire to know more about modern baby-culture, as understood by specialists in this subject. The regular cost of the book is fifteen cents. Were it issued by a commercial publisher it would sell for several times that amount. Our altitudes, so long as it lasts, will be distributed at no cost whatever to the recipient beyond sending a postcard to this office.

To indicate how practical and valuable this book is, I shall list briefly some of the topics discussed: nursery, clothes with patterns and illustrations, airing, care of babies, baths, toys, what and how to feed, and how to prepare artificial food, habits, training and discipline, common disorders and contagious diseases, cooking recipes for older children etc.

In addition to individual mothers and fathers who have the responsibility and natural desire to bring up their own children to the best of their ability, this book will appeal to nurses, physicians, club women, librarians, and others who are concerned with the frightful annual "slaughter of the innocents."

If you wish to receive a free copy of this book, address a post card to the university Extension Health Instruction Bureau, 471 Van Buren St., Milwaukee, and we will do the rest.

Frank Beggan Attacked

While at work on his uncle's farm near Parnell, Wednesday-afternoon Frank Beggan was called into the road-way, where he was attacked by two men, and pounded in such a manner that he is confined to his home.

Mr. Beggan's head was pounded with a rock and is reported to be a mass of bruises. The men are said to be Henry Denner of Pundee and a companion whose name is not known, but who has worked in this vicinity for a number of weeks.

Warrants were sworn to by James McGarvey, the young man's uncle and it is probable that arrests will soon follow.

No reason is known for the attack by Mr. Beggan or his friends. Mr. Beggan is well known here having attended high school for two years.
