The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh of the Bladder. Catarrh of the Bladder is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

HAS CUT COST OF TORPEDOES

Germany is Now Turning Out Formidable Weapons at a Comparatively Small Cost.

The fact that it takes from ten months to a year to construct a torpedo may account for the sparing use of them by some of the belligerent nations. Germany's reckless expenditure of this highly expensive and tremendously destructive instrument of destruction has amazed the world, but it has just come to light that the Kaiser is not wasting $15,000,000 torpedoes of 10,000-yard range on little 900-ton coasting steamers and trawlers. The Germans, as soon as they embarked on their famous submarine blockade, began turning out torpedoes in five months' time. These, instead of carrying 250 to 300 pounds of gun-cotton, carry a charge of 100 pounds or less. They have a range of only 1,000 to 1,500 yards, so that much of the intricate steering and propelling mechanism is omitted. These new

EARNING HIS TIP.

"Now, guard," said Mr. Pilkington to the English railway official, "remember if I have this carriage all for myself for the entire journey, you will receive a whole half crown from me." "Very good, sir," said the guard, and he locked the door and went to his brake to think how he could invest that half crown when he got it. All went well till they got to a station about the middle of the journey, and then an irascible gentleman pulled at the door of Pilkington's carriage. "Guard, guard!" he called, "open this door! I know your tricks. I've got the right to travel in this carriage, and I mean to do it!"

The guard hurried up; but, wonder of wonders, he whispered a few words to the irascible gentleman, after which that gentleman went quietly away to seek room elsewhere. "How did you manage it?" Pilkington asked the guard at the end of the journey, as he pressed the promised half crown into his hand. "How did you manage to get that bad-tempered old chap to go away so quietly?" "Oh, that was easy," replied the guard. "I only just told him you were a bit wrong in the 'ead."

ASKED AND ANSWERED.

"Do you believe in marrying for love?" asked the sentimental girl whose face was her principal misfortune. "Not necessarily," replied the gray-haired parson. "As a rule I usually marry for money."

CITIZEN'S DUTY.

Kant's categorical imperative may be expanded into these homely terms of duty: No one may do that which, if done by all, would destroy society. In other words, the individual must see that when the gaining of his own poor little happiness involves an injury to a great human ideal it is better to cut the happiness off and cast it from him than to do his part to bring the body politic to hell fire.

OLD POLISH CAPITAL

CORRESPONDENT WRITES OF THE CHARMS OF CRACOW.

City Has Many Beauties, and Its Citizens Are Refined and Gentle—Scenes in the Market Held in the Great Square.

Is it not true that cities, like houses, reflect the characters of their inhabitants? Somebody said that Berlin has the air of a rich, well-fed woman who is dressed by the most expensive modistes and has everything that money can buy but never the unpurchasable quality of charm. Now, Cracow is her opposite; she is like a lady of ancient but unhappy race conscious but uncomplaining of her great sorrows, she is fascinating, distinguished, simple. Cracow, small as it is, is the heart of Poland, and in Poland's days of freedom, long ago, was its capital.

The object of this little article is not to relate the tragic history of Poland, but just to give a brief sketch of the simple life in beautiful Cracow, before the war began.

In the middle of the town is the great square where stands the splendid church of Our Lady. There is a covered market, where the stalls are mostly kept by Jews, but in the open are the peasants from the country with their milk and cheese, vegetables and poultry. The peasant women wear gay-colored clothes and carry huge burdens on their backs—a dozen milk cans, a bundle of brushwood, a bushel of bread baked in great loaves nearly two yards long. In their high clumsy boots they tramp sturdily along, quite able and willing to do a man's work in the world as well as to bear a woman's burden.

A lady who visited Cracow shortly before the outbreak of the war was greatly impressed by the burdens borne by people of a little higher rank than the peasant. These burdens were mostly geese—white, long-necked, squawking geese. Every other man, woman and child seemed to be carrying a goose. Sometimes they were carried under the arm of the purchaser. Often under each arm, sometimes in a carpet bag with long neck protruding and the bright eyes eagerly searching the passers-by as though enjoying the novel ride. Sometimes a basket contained as many as three geese and sometimes they were slung unceremoniously over the shoulder of the owner, their legs tied together and their necks craned up to prevent a rush of blood to the head. Now then a stout lady would pass with a goose in the ample bosom of her dress or coat, only the head of the fowl showing under her chin. The geese were generally treated with consideration and respect, children stopping to caress their snaky necks. It was hard to believe that these pets were destined for the pot on the morrow.

To be sure there were other things for sale besides geese: rolls of golden butter and loaves of cheese folded together in a way that you never see outside Poland. In another part of the great square is the vegetable market, with its green and purple cabbages, cauliflowers and Brussels sprouts; saffron, onions, and dried mushrooms on long strings worn like a necklace over the necks of the vendors.

But on goose market day in Cracow the center of the stage belongs to the goose. A few abashed hens were offered for sale as a lonesome turkey, but they seemed to feel they had no right there, and were ready to hide their heads.

In the center of the square sat the public weigher with his scales. If an old lady felt that she had been given short weight for half a pound of butter she brought it to him to weigh, and he even took a hand in the disputes about the size and quality of the geese.

The people that you see in the streets of Cracow are beautiful to look upon. They do not look rich, but they know how to wear worn clothes with a kind of natural elegance. Then their faces are expressive, clean cut and fine; they know how to walk and how to stand, they are not rude, but gentle. What is to be the destiny of these clever, refined, unfortunate Poles we do not yet know.—Exchange.

CENTER OF POPULATION.

For more than a century a careful calculation has been made every ten years to fix the exact center of population. When the census was taken in 1790 the center of population was found to be near Annapolis, Md., well east of Chesapeake bay. A decade later the center had moved to a point just above the city of Washington. Throughout the history of the country the population center has moved steadily westward at the rate of about 100 miles every ten years. The center of population of our 100,000,000 lies in Illinois near its western boundary. In another decade it will probably cross the Mississippi river.—Christian Herald.

WHERE MACKEREL ARE CHEAP.

"Mackerel, is." Such is a line on the club menus, and the supply one gets for the sum stated is one mackerel, without bread or butter, sauce, or vegetables. To a Scot this seems an extraordinarily high price to pay for a single mackerel, seeing that in the North they are considered expensive just now at 1½d each, while tons are daily returned to the sea as not worth while taking to any market. Loch Fyne at present is packed with mackerel and free from the vaunted fresh herring, and the mackerel are regarded only as a nuisance by the fisherman. The other night I saw hundredweight after hundredweight cast into the sea by men without

HARDSHIP IN SOUTH AFRICA

Soldier Fighting Under Botha Tells of What Force Was Called Upon to Endure.

An incident illustrating the great feats of endurance performed by the men who composed General Botha's force in German Southwest Africa is described in a letter from a Lieutenant who was with one of the columns. They made forced rides, he says, through barren sandy country for three nights and days with very little sleep, and continues: "The fatigue became awful. I began to get light-headed. The sky seemed to become a straight wall in front of us, and the effect of the moonlight through the dust made me imagine I saw great palaces and churches, with the stars as little windows. "Then I would pull myself together and look at the men riding in front, and they would turn into funny old giants dancing in the moonlight."
