

TWO KILLED IN RACE

ELEVEN AUTOS IN SMASHUP DURING THIRD ANNUAL DERBY AT KALAMAZOO, MICH.

EIGHT ARE SERIOUSLY HURT

Overturning of Machine Driven by Jack Peacock Is the Cause—Track Officials Unable to Prevent Accident—Mechanician Decapitated.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 29.—Marion Arnold of Chicago and Jack Peacock of Brooklyn were killed and eight other drivers and mechanicians were injured when eleven racing cars piled into a heap at the quarter-mile track here on the gateway of the third annual derby in this city.

Those dead or injured are: Marion Arnold, Chicago, mechanician for Andy Burt in Stutz car; decapitated.

Jack Peacock, driver of Sunbeam "12," skull, hips, thigh fractured; died immediately after reaching hospital.

F. E. Marquette, Kalamazoo, Peacock's mechanician; head badly crushed, left leg broken below knee in three places; dying.

Al W. Downs, Kalamazoo, driver of Buick; head cut, unconscious.

Andy Burt, Chicago, driver of Stutz, badly bruised.

Otto Henning, Chicago, driver of Ogren, injured by blow above groin.

Jimmie Alexander, Sioux City, Ia., mechanician for Billy Chandler, cut and bruised.

Thomas Bell, Coldwater, Mich., driver of Chalmers, back hurt.

Guy Bailey, Coldwater, Mich., mechanician for Ball, face cut and back hurt.

Roy Newton, Kalamazoo, mechanician for Downs, cut about head and face.

The overturning of the Sunbeam "12," driven by Peacock, as it rounded the first turn of the second mile, caused the accident. Peacock's car struck the fence, swerving lengthwise across the track and tipped over on its side.

Track officials made a desperate effort to flag the 13 cars that were thundering up from behind, but without success.

Burt's Stutz was the first to strike the wrecked Sunbeam "12." Then nine other cars piled one after another in the smoking death heap.

Track officials from the track and the judges' stand started for the pile and at the same time the crowds made a rush from the grand stand.

When the first reached the scene Arnold's headless body was found beneath the battered Stutz.

DECLARES WAR ON GERMANY

Break Between Rome and Berlin Follows King's Move Against Bulgarians in Balkans.

Rome, Aug. 29.—Baron Sonnino, minister of foreign affairs, announced that Italy considered herself in a state of war with Germany.

The official announcement of Italy's declaration of war on Germany, as given out here on Sunday, follows:

"The Italian government declares in the name of the king that Italy considers herself to be in a state of war with Germany as from August 28, and begs the Swiss government to convey this information to the Imperial German government."

Berlin, via Sayville, Aug. 29.—An official announcement issued here on Sunday says: "The Italian government has declared, through the Swiss government, that from August 28 Italy considers herself at war with Germany." The declaration has been acknowledged formally by Germany.

London, Aug. 29.—Declaration of war by Italy on Germany has been expected for several days, owing to the fact that the Italian troops now are fighting against Germans in Greece.

The declaration became inevitable when Italy recently sent troops to Saloniki to co-operate in the campaign of the entente allies on the Macedonian front, as Germany is directing the opposing forces and has troops on this battle line.

BULGARS SEIZE GREEK PORT

Occupy All but One Fort at Kavala—Violent Fighting Continues on Macedonian Front.

ROUMANIA IN WAR

KNIG FERDINAND'S ARMY OPENS HOSTILITIES SOON AFTER DECLARATION TO AUSTRIA.

GREECE WILL ACT SOON

Washington Hears Declarations of War by Italy and Roumania Are to Be Followed by That of Athens—Germany Declares War on Ferdinand.

London, Aug. 30.—Within a few hours after declaring war on Austria-Hungary, Roumania hurled an army across the border of Hungary for an invasion of Transylvania. Adding one more to the numerous battle fronts of war-ravaged Europe, the Roumanian troops attacked the Austrians in the passes of the Transylvanian Alps south of Hermannstadt and Kronstadt, with those two populous Hungarian cities for their objectives.

Roumania's declaration of war was followed within a few hours by a retaliatory declaration on the part of Germany. The German war office gave out the following official statement:

"Roumania after having disgracefully broken treaties she concluded with Austria-Hungary and Germany, declared war Sunday on our ally, the German minister to Roumania received instructions to demand his passports and declare to the Roumanian government that Germany considers herself also at war with Roumania."

The addition of an eleventh nation to the powers lined up against the central empires gives the allies an army of nearly a million more men.

Following so closely upon Italy's declaration of war upon Germany, Roumania's plunge has thrown Europe into a turmoil, and the news from Bucharest is the principal topic of discussion in London. That the action of Italy and Roumania was co-ordinated is unquestioned, and the hand of Premier Briand of France is seen as the one which led to the joint decision.

Roumania's declaration of war was followed by the breaking off of diplomatic relations by all the Teutonic allies. The envoys at Bucharest of Turkey, Germany and Bulgaria left with the Austrian minister. At the same time the Roumanian minister to Austria left Vienna, after having presented a note to Baron Durian, Austrian minister of foreign affairs, stating that a state of war existed between Roumania and Austria dating from 9 p. m. Sunday night.

The Roumanian government issued a note setting forth the reasons why war was declared. The causes are enumerated as follows:

1. The Roumanian population is exposed to the risks of war and invasion by the Austro-Hungarians.

2. Intervention by Roumania will shorten the war.

3. Roumania decided to cast her lot with the allies because they alone can guarantee her national unity.

General Averescu former minister of war, it is said, will have chief command of the Roumanian army.

The opening of hostilities by Roumania is described in the following official statement received from Vienna:

"Front of Archduke Karl—in the southeastern and eastern frontier passes of Hungary, soldiers of our new enemy, Roumania, fired the first shots last night on our frontier posts in a treacherous surprise attack.

"At Rottenturn Pass and in the passes southwest and south of Brassao (Kronstadt), advanced guards entered the combat on both sides early this morning, and the first Roumanian prisoners were taken."

(Rottenturn Pass and the passes south of Kronstadt are in the Transylvanian Alps, on the northern border of Roumania.)

Berlin also issued an official statement which reads as follows:

"The frontier of Siebenburgen (the German name for Transylvania), Roumanian prisoners have been taken."

Berlin, Aug. 30.—The Roumanian minister to Germany has been handed his passports following Germany's declaration of war on his country.

The Wolff agency announces that the German federal council was convened immediately after the decision became known. Germany's declaration of war followed.

Washington, Aug. 30.—It was reported in diplomatic quarters that Greece will soon enter the war on the side of the allies.

The declaration by Italy of war on Germany simultaneously with the entrance of Roumania into the war are believed to be part of a prearranged plan that will culminate with similar action by Greece.

The Italian embassy formally notified Secretary Lansing of the Italian declaration of war against Germany.

ROBBERS FLEE WITH $4,000.

Philadelphia, Aug. 30.—Physicians attending former Governor Pennypacker at the latter's home in Schwenksville consider it very doubtful whether he will live. He is suffering from traumatic poisoning.

Two or three raiders came in over the eastern counties and dropped over 30 bombs without causing any casualties or damage. Another raider attempted to approach a seaport town, being heavily fired on by antiaircraft guns, was driven off to the eastward after dropping 19 bombs in the sea without reaching their objective.

Another raider succeeded in reaching the outskirts of London, where explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped and casualties occurred among the civilian population as follows:

Killed, three men, three women, and two children; injured seriously, three men and four women; injured slightly, four men, seven women and three children.

The Merrill fire department was unable to check the blaze. The fire spread from one frame building to another until every structure on the ten acres of ground space occupied by the tannery was burned to the foundation. Three nearby residences were also destroyed. Conservative estimates place the loss at a half million dollars. It is believed that the plant was fully protected by insurance.

Will Show Fertilizer Machinery.

Madison—An additional feature at the Wisconsin tractor demonstration to be given here under auspices of the State College of Agriculture will be the showing of various forms of farm machinery for distributing fertilizer. Wheat will be sown, applications of fertilizer made at varying rates per acre on the University farm, and records kept on the yields next year, in order to determine the percentage of increased yields with the various applications.

Quite a number of wood ducks and a few snipe have been seen by hunters recently and the game warden has been around within the last few days investigating several reported violations of the game law.

Community Life Built on Farm Prosperity
What every banker and merchant would find it profitable, directly or indirectly, to spend time as well as money to develop the business of farming in his territory is the conclusion of H. M. Ottrell who is familiar with the agricultural development which has been made along one of the leading railroad lines of the middle west and south.
Here are the reasons which he gives for forming this opinion:
1. When farming is prosperous all other lines of business prosper.
2. When farming is unprofitable all business is cramped.
3. By increasing the profits of farming bank deposits and loans increase.
4. By increasing the profits of farming, the sales and profits of every other line of business are increased.
5. There is not a single county in the United States where farmers could not better their profits by better farming and better business and marketing methods which can be obtained only by the cooperation of all business interests and especially the bankers.
6. The greatest efficiency in farming is found where business men cooperate actively with the farmers.
7. Livestock and all its by-products assure a cash market right at hand which in many instances is more profitable than the open market.
8. Co-operation is the keynote of modern farming. It is the goal to be in action.
More and more the bankers and business men of Wisconsin are following these policies generally.

MAKING the FARM PAY

By PROF. P. G. HOLDEN, Former Dean of the Iowa Agricultural College.

Flock of Purebred Youngsters.

POULTRY AND EGG CROP

Almost every farmer keeps some poultry. The trouble is he doesn't make the poultry keep him. Too many of them are roosters. A lot more are old hens that lay but a few eggs and then want to set. Whenever the price of eggs gets high, the old hens go on a strike. They lay in the henhouse when they please, but too much of the time prefer to lay their eggs out in the fence corners. That means they are not gathered until they are stale—and in consequence a low price for the eggs.

The average farmer considers poultry raising a "side issue," a job for women and children—a sort of necessary nuisance in order to provide fresh eggs and a toothsome roast or fry. But after all, this "side issue" branch of the farming business, poultry, nets an annual return in the United States of over $400,000,000 or enough money to build two Panama canals every year. The Panama canal has been written into the pages of history as one of the greatest achievements of modern times. In its construction our greatest minds in the science of engineering, art and medicine were employed. Yet the farm hen with little or no care closes her yearly account with a balance of more than half a billion dollars. Only a very small portion of this vast sum of money is earned by the well-cared-for commercial hen. Ninety per cent of it goes to the credit of the much neglected flocks ranging at liberty on the farms of the country.

Hen Not Appreciated. None of us half appreciate the money-earning possibilities of the hen. For example, the cotton growing states during a recent slump in the cotton market due to the European war, joined other cotton producing states in an appeal to congress for federal aid to tide them over the financial difficulty. The appeal was for $150,000,000 to be distributed in the South through the medium of the federal reserve banks. If these one-crop states had reckoned with the farm hen they would have saved themselves the humiliation of asking Uncle Sam for help.

of the year the chickens live on grass, clover, surplus garden stuff, gleanings from the grain fields, litter about the barn and feed lots, and more important than all else, they consume weed seeds, insect enemies to crops and other pests.

Record of Eighteen Ohio Farm Flocks. Two years ago the Ohio experiment station made a study of the profits in farm poultry. Records of 18 typical farm flocks were carefully kept.

These flocks ranged in number from 36 to 370, some were purebreds; others were mongrels. They were kept, fed and tended just as the farmer had been caring for them before the experiment station asked him to keep a record.

Here are the results of the investigation. For the sake of comparison, we have figured the profit from each flock on the basis of 100 hens in a flock.

The best five flocks yielded respectively $247, $154, $153, $107 and $104 per hundred hens, while the poorest five flocks yielded $67, $66, $63, $62 and $15 respectively. In no case was there a loss. The average profit per hundred hens of the 18 flocks was $57.

Poultry Profits. One hundred hens are worth a hundred dollars—just about the price of a good dairy cow. Records of the cow-testing association in Iowa show that the average dairy cow makes a profit of $33. Which would you rather do—milk two or three cows or take care of a hundred hens?

Most of us fail to realize that poultry is profitable—the wife pays the grocery bills and every now and then gets a new piece of furniture or a new dress with the "chicken money." But probably not one farmer in a thousand could tell just how much his chickens are paying.

You probably have about a hundred hens—that's the average size of the farm flocks in the United States. How much profit are they producing? Are they above the average or below? Are you getting $247 or $15?

Produce Eggs When Price is High. Sixty per cent of the eggs are produced in March, April and May. Then the number drops gradually until only one per cent is produced in November. Production remains low during Janu-

60 Eggs
What the average farm hen produces

We will take Arkansas to illustrate the point.

The average county in Arkansas contains about 3,000 farms. If on each farm there had been 100 hens, each laying through the year eight dozen eggs, only about a quarter of an egg a day, and the eggs had sold for 20 cents a dozen, the income per farm would have amounted to $100. At this rate the 3,000 farms in each county would have produced $480,000. Based on these figures, the state of Arkansas with her 74 counties, would have produced nearly a $5,000,000-dollar egg crop. This sum is far in excess of the money Arkansas would have received as her share of the federal loan and more than half of the value of the annual cotton crop.

This $5,000,000 distributed among the banks of Arkansas would have relieved one of the most critical periods in the economic history of the state. The earning power of the hen exceeds that of all other farm animals—the dairy cow not excepted.

Profit in Poultry. Let us not overlook this opportunity. Any farmer can have poultry. He can make more clear profit out of poultry than the commercial poultryman can make.

First, the care of poultry fits well into the other farm work; the investment is small; feed is cheap; the chickens convert the waste products of the farm into profits. During the greater part ary and February and increases to 12 per cent in March. The price goes down whenever the production goes up. Why not produce eggs in the winter? Get the advantage not only of increased production, but of high price.

What she should produce

In January eggs sell on an average for about 30 cents per dozen. The price decreases until in April eggs are bringing only 15 cents. A large number of eggs are put in cold storage at this time and this keeps the price fairly high considering the great amount of eggs produced. The price drops to 17 cents during the summer months because there is such a large number of poor eggs on the market. In September ber the price begins to rise and increases gradually but rapidly until it reaches 29 cents in December.

WHY NOT PRODUCE EGGS WHEN PRICE IS HIGH

Why not take better care of your hens and have them working for you during the winter instead of keeping them at a loss during this period?

You can produce winter eggs. Put your hens in a warm, comfortable, well-ventilated house, give them nitrogenous food and furnish water, grit and oyster shell.

Of course, it will be some trouble to increase your egg production. Don't expect results if you go at things spasmodically, doing one or two things and letting the rest go.

Fowls need animal protein food. Bugs and worms furnish this in the summer; buttermilk and beef scrap make good substitutes in the winter.

This chart gives the results of an Ontario experiment. Twenty-five hens receiving buttermilk in their ration made $11 profit in eight months; a similar flock fed beef scrap made $10 profit, while a flock receiving no meat or milk was kept at a loss of $3.

A similar experiment in Indiana shows that hens fed skim milk or beef scrap made a profit of $1 per hen annually, while those receiving neither beef scrap or milk were kept at a loss of four cents per hen.

If you feed beef scrap, get good quality, testing 60 or 65 per cent protein. Be careful not to feed too much.

Few people understand that eggs are almost as perishable as meat or milk. They belong to the same class of food, but just because they are enclosed in a hard shell, people think they will stand almost any kind of treatment.

Government experts estimate a loss of $45,000,000 every year from bad eggs. This loss can be prevented by better handling and marketing.

Loss From Shrinkage. Five per cent of the eggs in the United States are lost through shrinkage. The shell of an egg is porous. It is made this way so the developing chick can get air during the incubation period.

Seventy-four per cent of an egg is water. Whenever an egg is in a temperature above freezing, this water is evaporating through the shell. The higher the temperature and the more circulation of air there is the faster the evaporation takes place. Eggs grow stale in warm poultry houses, in hot kitchens, on the farm or in the cupboards of the consumer. Egg dealers count that three stale eggs are equal to a rotten egg and pay accordingly.

Gather your eggs daily and keep them in a cool place. Market them as often as possible—at least once a week—better twice a week.

$15,000,000 Annual Loss. Fertile eggs cause a great loss—a loss estimated by the government experts at $15,000,000 a year.

Two years ago the United States government experts conducted an experiment in Kansas to compare the loss from fertile and infertile eggs.

How Experiment Was Conducted. Ten thousand eggs, collected from different farms, were used in the experiment. Half were fertile and half were infertile, and every egg was absolutely fresh when it entered the experiment.

These eggs were kept on the farm under ordinary farm conditions. Some were stored in parlors, some in kitchens, some in cellars and some in pantries. Some were put in nests, some under laying hens and some under sitting hens. The same number of fertile and infertile eggs were always put under exactly the same conditions. In a week the eggs were collected and sold to the local grocery store where they were candled. They were then shipped to St. Louis, where they were again candled.

Results of Experiment. While on the farm 29 per cent of the fertile eggs were spoiled for food, as compared with only 16 per cent of the infertile ones. On the way to market 14 per cent of the fertile ones were spoiled as compared with 9 per cent of the infertile. This makes a total of 43 per cent of the fertile eggs unfit for food as compared with only 25 per cent of the infertile ones—a difference of 19 per cent. Notice that the greatest loss in both fertile and infertile eggs is on the farm.

Fresh air is as good for hens as it is for people. If you have an open front or a partly open front poultry house you need not worry about the ventilation.

Fresh air does not hurt hens, but drafts are injurious. The north, east and west sides of the coop should be tight to prevent drafts.

Get the habit of cleanliness and you need not fear lice and poultry diseases.

Sports Clothes, Which Have Achieved Such a Wonderful Popularity, Bound to Become a Permanent Institution—Have Given Impetus to the Separate Skirt Idea—Pretty Party Dress, in Batiste or Organdie, for the Little Miss.

LATE MODEL IN SEPARATE SKIRTS.

When sports clothes made their appearance up-to-date women came and saw and were conquered by them. They are not classed among the fads of a season now but acknowledged as a new departure that promises to become a permanent institution. They have added a lot of color and vivacity to the apparel of women, and have influenced styles in other lines. Already specialists in designing them have demonstrated that their character and style lie in lines and in materials as much as in color.

A separate skirt in a handsome plaid, shown in the picture, is not classed among sports skirts, although it might be. But it reflects the style of the sports skirt. It is made ankle length with bias edges of the goods joined in a seam down the back and the front. Pings and parallel rows of most workmanlike machine stitching places it in the class that is distinguished by fine tailoring—and there is nothing better.

The saddle-bag pockets, introduced early in the season, proved an inspiration for several pocket effects which removal of her coat discloses her finery in these thin materials, sometimes hand embroidered, more often machine embroidered, and often finished off, in either case, with fancy needlework stitches. In the summertime her frilled bonnet is much like her dress, and in winter time it is apt to match her coat. The little frock pictured above is of machine-embroidered batiste in a fine quality. Among the embroidered flouncings there are many patterns that seem made especially for children's dresses. The flower designs are dainty and the work fine. Such a pattern is needed for the little dress shown here. Frills are set in the short sleeves and they are made of the same flouncing as that used in the skirt. The skirt is set to a short baby waist, and what little needlework there is, is done by hand.

The finest of organdie edgings and flouncings are used for making those dressy bonnets, with double frills about the face, that have a permanent place in style for little children. The bonnet shown has a puffed crown and is trimmed with a soft are reappearing in the new fall models. In the skirt shown, a shaped band about the hips serves a double purpose, as it decorates and also provides a place for two pockets.

Skirts of this kind are worn with plain waists of crepe de chine or of cotton materials. The combination of plaid skirt and plain colored coat, to match the dominant color of the skirt, is among the best of the new showings for fall. The well-tailored separate skirt is a joy to its possessor and gives months of good service. For the coldest weather long heavy coats will replace the coats to match, which are designed for immediate wear.

rossette of pink ribbon at the left side. Short box and black strapped pincers complete the visiting toilet of the little miss, in which she looks much like an animated doll. There is nothing unusual or different about this pretty outfit. Every little girl may have one like it. Every merchant carries the materials needed for making it and all hearts warm to the daintily clad little ones in their frills and ribbons.

MAKING RAPID STRIDES

Canada Improving in Every Way—Agriculturally, Commercially and Financially.

The reports coming to hand every day from all branches of industry in Canada speak highly of the constructive ability of that country.

Recently the managing directors of the Canadian Credit Men's Association gave out the statement that business in Western Canada was good. In every branch it is better than in 1913, and everyone will remember that in that year business was excellent. He says:

"The beauty of it is the way in which payments are coming in. Merchants all over the West are taking their cash discounts. Such a transformation I never saw.

"From the records in the office I knew it was getting better. We clear here every retail merchant in the country every three months, and we are before in the closest touch and have intimate knowledge of the way trade is going and how payments are being made. Conditions at the present moment are better than I had dreamed it was possible that they should be.

"The statements which we are receiving with reference to the standing of country merchants indicates that there will be very few failures this fall. It is quite remarkable. Men who have been behind for years and in the hole are actually paying spot cash for everything, and taking their cash discounts. Banks and loan companies this fall will have more money than they know what to do with.

"This is about the condition of trade, and I am glad to say there is no exaggeration in what I have said. The business of the prairie provinces is in splendid condition."

Crop reports are also good. From all parts comes the word that the crop conditions were never better, and the situation at the time of writing is that there will be fully as great a yield as in 1915, when the average of wheat over the entire country was upwards of 30 bushels per acre. The harvest therefore will be a heavy one—and, following the magnificent harvest of last year, the farmers of Western Canada will all be in splendid shape. Old indebtedness, much of which followed them from their old homes, are being wiped out, improvements are now being planned, and additional acres added to their present holdings.

During the past year there was a large increase in the land sales both by the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern land companies, as well as by private individuals. A great many of the purchases were made by farmers who thus secured adjoining quarters or halves, the best evidence probably that could be had of the value of Western Canada land when those who know the country best are adding to their holdings. A number of outsiders have also been purchasers, but very little land has changed hands for speculative purposes.

An evidence of the prosperity of the country is found in the fact that such a large number of farmers are purchasing automobiles.

Alleged hard times in Manitoba have not dampened the ardor of motorists or prospective ones. The automobile license department reported a few days since that there are 1,000 more private owners of cars in the province this year than last. The number of licenses issued this year was 10,400, as against 8,800 last year. At an average cost of $1,000 each the newly purchased cars represent a total outlay of $10,400,000, while the total number of cars in the province are worth approximately $10,000,000. The new cars are of modern types.

Many people, for some unexplained reason, have feared and continue to fear that this country will experience a period of industrial and business dullness after the war. There seems to be no justification for such a speculation.

On the contrary, there are sound reasons for belief in the prediction of Mr. Kingman Nott Robins, vice president of the Farm Mortgage Bankers' Association of America, who, in the Monetary Times, declares that Canada will experience her greatest proportionate development in production immediately after the conclusion of the war. The country will certainly have exceptionally favorable commercial conditions to take advantage of.

There will be the great need of Europe in the work of reconstruction, and along with this, the natural tendency of the allies to trade among themselves, and perhaps special trading privileges. Mr. Robins points out that the greatest development in the United States followed the costly and destructive civil war.

Mr. Robins, in an address before the Bondmen's Club of Chicago, expressed the opinion of a far-thinking mind and the review of an experience of the last of his numerous trips through the Canadian West. When he said he regarded the spirit of the Canadian people, as he found it, the most admirable and encouraging feature of the entire situation. They are facing the sacrifices of war courageously and with calm confidence as to the result, and in similar spirit they face the economic future, confident, but expecting to solve their problems only by dint of hard and intelligent effort.

An important part of Mr. Robins' address, which invites earnest attention, is that in which he refers to the land situation, and when his remarks are quoted they carry with them the impression gained by one who has given the question the careful thought of a man experienced in economic questions, and specially those relating to soil and its production. He is quoted as saying:

"Agricultural Canada was never so prosperous, and immigration of agricultural population both during and after the war seems a logical expectation, finding support in an increasing immigration at present from the United States, in spite of numerous canards spread broadcast throughout the United States to discourage immigration to Canada. The lands of Western Canada, however, as long as they are as at present the most advantageous for the settler of any on the continent, must continue to attract, despite misrepresentation, and on the increase of its agricultural and other primarily productive population depends the economic future of Canada. All other problems are secondary to this, and the large interests of Canada, recognizing this fact, are preparing to secure and hold this population both during and after the war. They are content to let city development and other secondary phases and superstructures follow in natural course. This recognition of the true basis of economic development is an encouraging augury for the future."

"The war has brought the United States and Canada nearer together economically than ever before. The total investment of United States capital in Canada doubtless exceeds $1,000,000,000, of which $300,000,000 has been invested since the war began. Except for Great Britain, Canada is the United States' best customer. Our exports to all of South America in the last three years were less than a third of our exports to Canada in the same period, although Canada has been rigidly reducing her imports since the war began. Even France, a good customer of the United States, bought $70,000,000 less than Canada during 1913, 1914, 1915. And yet Canada's purchasing power is in the first stages of development only. It has been estimated that the United States can support a population of 600,000,000. Using the same basis of calculation in reference to natural resources, Canada can support a population of 400,000,000.

"Canada is potentially the most populous, and, in primary production, at least, the richest unit of the British empire, and it behooves us in the United States to know our Canada."

The social conditions throughout Western Canada are everything that could be desired. Schools have been established in all districts where there may be ten or twelve children of school age, and these are largely maintained by liberal government grants. A fund for this purpose is raised from the revenue derived from the sale of school land, one-eighth of all lands being set aside as school lands. All the higher branches of education are cared for, there being high schools at all important centers, and colleges and universities in the principal cities.

The different religious denominations prevail, each having its separate church, and religious services are held in every hamlet and village, and in far-off settlements the pastor finds an attentive congregation. The rural telephone is one of the great modern conveniences that brings the farm home nearer to the market.

It is not saying too much to state that in matters of social importance, in the most remote settlements they carry with them the same influence as is to be found in the most prosperous farming districts of any of the states of the Union.—Advertisement.

"I just couldn't make it all out, but it ended like ante-up-jackpot stake."

A LITTLE MORE QUALITY ALWAYS PAYS

A friend of mine bought a lawn mower. I forget what he paid, but it was the cheapest he could find.

He cut his lawn twice, then took the lawn mower to the repair shop.

Every time he finished mowing the grass the cheap machine had to go back to the repair shop to be sharpened or tuned.

"That's the most expensive lawn mower I ever owned," he told me one day.

He had learned the lesson I've been trying to teach people about motor cars. And that lesson is--the cheapest car is often the most expensive. It pays enormously to pay a little more.

By paying $1090 for a Chalmers, for example, you get a five-year car. A car that will do everything you expect of it for at least five years.

And at the end of that time it will be in fair condition.

The motor--it's the famous 3400 r.p.m. It will never worry you. Never cause you to lose your temper.

For it has been tested in the hands of 30,000 owners and found 99.21 percent perfect.

Caution: Don't take the cheap-lawn-mower attitude in buying motor cars.
