Last Sunday evening at 8:30 o'clock Wm. Shimmers returned from a trip through the country and left his car standing in front of his home. Fifteen minutes later when he looked for it, he found that somebody had stolen it. He notified the police and the sheriff the latter notifying the Milwaukee authorities of the theft. At one o'clock in the same night notice came from Milwaukee that the car was found on 28th and Vliet Sts. Dr. D. S. Lynch and Fred Settee were also looking for the car but a wrecked Ford auto beyond the Barton Hill, and it proved to be a car stolen from a Kewaskum party. This auto was turned over to the authorities.—West Bend News.

COUNTY FAIR BEST IN HISTORY

Large Crowds Attend Each Day Weather Was Ideal. Attractions Good. Kewaskum Well Represented

The Washington County Fair this week was the best and biggest ever held in the history of the association. The weather man certainly had his sympathy with the officers and saw to it that that elegant weather was at hand. As advertised the attractions and exhibits were by far the best and largest ever on the grounds. The horse races both days were very exciting. In one of the races eleven participated. The track record was broken on Tuesday afternoon.

Burt Williams, Democratic candidate for governor, at the coming election gave a short address to a crowded grandstand shortly after 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Congressman M. E. Burke of Beaver Dam was also one of the visitors. Various county candidates were present to shake hands and meet the voters of the county. The officers are to be complimented upon the effort made to bring the Washington county fair up to a high standard. With the attractions and exhibits it will now rank with even the largest fairs in the state, not barring the State Fair.

"WE ARE LOST"

"We are lost," declares a Wall Street worker for Hughes, in the columns of the Wall Street Journal, "if Republicans assume that Maine is a good barometer State and do not work 'night and day' for Hughes." The "WE" used in this case refers to Hughes, Wall Street interests, and the Republican machine; and for once Wall Street prescription hits the truth.

MERCHANTS AND MFG'RS HERE

Spent Two Hours Visiting Local Business Men Wednesday Band Renders Musical Program

About one hundred members of the Merchants and Manufacturers association of the Milwaukee area accompanied by their brass band of twenty-one pieces spent two hours here last Wednesday while enroute to the Washington county fair at West Bend. The trip was made via a special over the Northwestern. They arrived here at 12 o'clock and departed at 2 o'clock. While here the members paid a visit to the different customers and enjoyed themselves otherwise. That the visitors were a jolly bunch could be seen from the way they enjoyed themselves. The music rendered by the band was certainly a treat for the citizens, and was well received by the listeners.

Library Notes

"The Right of the Strongest"—F. N. Greene. The scene of the story is a small Alabama Valley, to which Mary Elizabeth Dale comes to teach the district school. Here, she meets John Marshall, a pro-tem, bent on getting the president in the valley, damming it and making it a reservoir to serve water power for industries in the valley below. Although Mary Elizabeth loves John Marshall, she feels called upon to take a stand against him, and to act as champion for her people, who have but squatters right to the land which their ancestors wrested from the Indians. There is reality and certainty about the whole story which places it high above many recent novels.

"The Song of the Lark"—Willa S. Cather. The story of a great American singer, her childhood in the Colorado desert, her early struggles in Chicago, her romantic adventures among the ruins of the Cliff Dwellers in Arizona, her splendid triumphs on the operatic stage, the story of aspirations and conflict of the nation, and the courage of young ambition and of the influence of our men upon the singer's career.

State Issues

"Possibly Mr. Hughes' realization of his future as a pure critic led him to dilate on such state issues as the tariff, civil service, national budget, etc. But a few-words in advocacy of that Republican panacea, a high tariff, excited his anger. He is a man of pure civil service, and devotion to national economy are not sufficient to arouse more than a pale acquiescence in the breasts of participants.—Chicago Tribune, (Republican)

"WE ARE LOST"

"We are lost," declares a Wall Street worker for Hughes, in the columns of the Wall Street Journal, "if Republicans assume that Maine is a good barometer State and do not work 'night and day' for Hughes." The "WE" used in this case refers to Hughes, Wall Street interests, and the Republican machine; and for once Wall Street prescription hits the truth.

REPUBLICAN SUPPORTS WILSON

Gen. Winkler, Prominent German of Milwaukee, Gives Reasons Why He Is Supporting Wilson

In a remarkable letter sent to the Democratic State Central Committee on Tuesday, Gen. P. C. Winkler commended the attitude of Woodrow Wilson in dealing with the European and Mexican situation and declared that the president has brought unquestioned devotion, very great ability and steady firmness of judgement to the discharge of his duties, coupled with moderation becoming to his great office. Gen. Winkler declared that the manner in which President Wilson has acted through the last four strenuous years has moved him to stand aloof from party and to pledge his support for the re-election of Wilson.

The letter was an acknowledgment of the action of the Democratic platform convention at Woodstock, where a resolution was introduced by Assemblyman John S. Donnelly in honor of Gen. Winkler who though born in Germany and a long life Republican has announced himself for Woodrow Wilson in a telegram to the president in which the general lauded him for his Americanism.

Dear Sir: I beg to acknowledge your favor of the 20th inst. transmitting copy of a resolution personal to myself adopted by the Democratic Platform Convention at Madison. Words kindly spoken are always gratifying, and I return to the members of the Convention through you, my sincere thanks for the flattering commendation. I do not, however, quite see how I deserve it. I make claim to no exceptional position. I have simply done what seems to me my duty. Like other men, I take my positions according to my convictions.

The last three years have been a strenuous period in the President of the United States. The responsibilities thrown upon him, the difficulties and perplexing questions which have beset him have exceeded those of any other man living on this continent. He was President of the United States. Every step he took, every move he made had to be viewed from the standpoint of that high office. The rules of International Law and the laws of his country were his inevitable guide. The maintenance of the rights and peace of his country and the protection of its citizens were his necessary aims. To the discharge of these duties, President Wilson brought unquestioned devotion, very great ability and steady firmness of judgement coupled with the moderation becoming to his great office. And with success. While the most arduous of wars involves all Europe, the United States and all their inhabitants are in the full enjoyment of peace. Hindside to be sure, but it is a deeply persuaded that no man in the Presidential chair could, with safety to our country, have pursued a different course from that of President Wilson, or conducted it with fewer errors. His course, founded on the acknowledged principles of International Law, has been just and impartial to the warring nations. I know that this last proposition has been severely arraigned and not infrequently denounced with unbecoming violence.

I make no challenge of the sincerity of his critics, but one cannot resist the conviction that the judgment is warped by highly excited sympathies. It is true that the sympathies are natural but it is also true that in untrustworthy judgments I too have racial predilections and the experiences of a lifetime have taught me the severe discipline required, especially on political questions, to both cases the cause where unalloyed reason is called for.

We are still in the throes of the European conflict and also in struggle for a modum vivendi with Mexico. In both cases the cause of America is in the hands of the President. While he is in undoubted good faith bending all his energies to maintain our rights, our interests and our honor, should we not stand by him and sustain his hands? by contemptuous sneers at his incompetence and inefficiency are we not like the bird that beats its own nest? By throwing him out of office and putting an untried man in his place to take up his work anew do we enhance the strength and prestige of our country? Do we not proclaim to those with whom we have controversies that we are an unstable people likely to undo tomorrow what we have laboriously accomplished today? ARE WE A NATION.

These in brief are the leading considerations which have moved me to stand aloof from party and pledge my support for re-election to Woodrow Wilson.

Your truly,
(Signed) P. C. Winkler.

ENROLLMENT GAINS OVER LAST YEAR

Registrations at State University Expected to Total More Than 5,000.

OFFICIALS VISIT BRANCHES

President Van Hise and Board of Regents, in Tour of State, Inspect Work of the Extension Department.

Madison.—An increase of about 3 per cent in the enrollment of the university this fall is shown in the latest figures from the office of the registrar.

The statistics on the registration of the various colleges and departments and the proportion of nonresident students are not yet completed.

Business Manager H. J. Torkelson is making an investigation of this matter. The fact that nonresident tuition was increased to $24 a year at the start of the present session leaves much doubt as to whether or not the present out-of-state registration will equal that of last year.

President Van Hise and the board of regents have been making a tour of the state inspecting the various branches of the extension department of the university.

Extend Vocational Training.

At the recent meeting of the state board of industrial education held in the capitol, the state movement for industrial education was given an impetus beyond anything which has been developed thus far throughout the country.

It is not generally understood that the work of the Wisconsin schools, which are established for the unlimited educational opportunity of all persons who are not able to take advantage of the already established public schools is away beyond that of any other state in the country.

During the past year there were over 36,000 people in the state who were able to take advantage of this specialized form of educational opportunity which provides for unlimited training.

The total resources reported on September 12 are $282,708,428.54 as against $247,692,888.13 a year ago and $276,993,713.03 on June 30 last.

The big item of increase is in loans and discounts which since June 30 have grown from $188,899,828.06 to $191,195,091.03, an increase of $4,295,264.97.

Holdings of banks, stocks and securities are $600,000 more than two months ago, while the item of notes and currency on hand shows an increase of $225,653.

Deposits since June 30 show increases as follows:

Individual deposits, $1,462,583.43 Demand certificates, 1,087,693.78 Time certificates, 3,750,110.40 Savings deposits, 1,619,738.21 Total of four items, $7,340,127.80

There is a decrease of $157,544.52 in the item of unpaid dividends, showing that stockholders have "cashied in" to a considerable extent.

The number of banks reporting is 728 as against 720 on June 30.

Voting Machines Banned.

That voting machines cannot be used in the November election unless such machines accommodate the presidential, referendum and state ballot, is the opinion of Attorney General Owen given to Louis J. Fellenz, district attorney of Fond du Lac county.

Mr. Fellenz, in his inquiry, asked for an opinion on the legality of the proposition of voting the presidential and referendum ballots by a paper ballot and the state ballot on a voting machine in precincts where the voting machines are used.

"It would be entirely practicable to conduct the election in the manner you suggest," says the attorney general, "but a reading of the election statutes creates the impression that no such plan of procedure was in the legislative mind. While the question is not free from doubt, I have concluded that it should be answered in the negative; that it is not permitted, in case the voting machine will not accommodate the presidential ballot, the official ballot, and the referendum ballot, to vote the official ballot on the machine and the other ballots in the usual way."

Farmer Shoots Worker.

Hartford.—Joe Baker, a Milwaukee Hungarian, working on the farm of Louis Frey, was shot through the jaw and seriously wounded, but will live, following an operation on Frey's farm. State Senator Edward T. Fairchild has been appointed judge of the Milwaukee circuit court, branch No. 6, by Gov. E. L. Philipp.

He has resigned as senator from the Fifth Milwaukee district. Under the law, the governor will call a special election to fill that vacancy at the polls on November 7 and there will be a primary election for the nomination 15 days prior to that date.

Mr. Fairchild will serve until next spring, when he will have to seek election to fill out the unexpired term. Judge Eschweiler's term was shortened from six years to five by the last legislature, this action being taken at the request of the judge, who otherwise would have had to seek re-election at a municipal election, when the multiplicity of candidates for various offices makes it more probable that the candidates for judicial offices will be neglected.

John C. Kleist, Socialist, who has been a candidate for circuit judge many times, claims that he is entitled to succeed Judge Eschweiler. He contends that the law shortening the term is illegal, and at an election since the measure was passed his friends wrote in his name as a candidate for the office.

For the shorter period the net increase of resources is $6,612,715.51, while for the year the increase is $35,915,540.41.

The big item of increase is in loans and discounts which since June 30 have grown from $188,899,828.06 to $191,195,091.03, an increase of $4,295,264.97.

Vom Schauplatz des europäischen Völkerkrieges

Die Verurteilung Hindenburg's.

„Der Vlog“, eine bekannte amerikanische Wochenzeitung, welche von neutralem Geiste getragen ist, urteilt in einem Artikel „The Call for Hindenburg“ über die Kriegslage, wie folgt: Hindenburg habe immer die Ansicht vertreten, daß weitere Offensivzüge in Frankreich und Belgien als folge, die sich absolut notwendig erweisen, Deutschland nicht populärer machen würden. Daß dagegen ein überwältigender Angriff gegen Rußland und eine Defensiv-Kampagne gegen Frankreich und England die Ansichten der neutralen Welt über den Krieg geändert haben würde. Hindenburg halte das für gute Strategie. In soweit als es in seiner Macht lag, habe er das Seinige getan. Er habe die flavischen Horden wie eine Viehherde zu ihren eigenen Lagern zurückgetrieben. Hindenburg würde seine Verbun Kampagne geführt haben.

Dieser letztere Satz mag wohl keine Verrechtigung sein, aber auch die vorhergehende Behauptung, daß er doch noch zu bezweifeln. Ein absolut passives Verhalten an der Westfront entspricht jedenfalls nicht denjenigen, die hier die richtige Ansicht vertritt, daß der rücksichtsloseste und kürzeste Krieg der barmherzigste ist. Der Hauptgegner Deutschlands, das veridie Alibion, würde er darum wohl nicht so ganz ungeschoren lassen können, wenn er andererseits seine eigene Auffassung wahr machen wollte. Die von „Der Vlog“ ausgesprochene Ansicht möchte wir darum dahin erläutern, daß Hindenburg das Hin- und Her von der Ost- nach der Westfront und umgekehrt, bedauert. Es scheint uns, daß er die einmal im großen Maßstabe begonnene und mit gutem Erfolg ausgeführte Kampagne gegen die Russen zuerst zu einem entscheidenden Abschluß geführt haben möchte, bevor sich Deutschlands Stoßkraft in lokalen Vorstößen an der Westfront gerippt.

Allgemein war man ja überlastet, als im vorigen Jahre die allseitig übernehmende Vohalar der Zentralmächte im Dien zu täglich zum Halten kam, ohne ja einen entscheidenden Schlag gegen Rußland geführt zu haben. Man dachte die Aufgabe mit dem Eintreten ungenügender Witterung zu erklären. Nach obiger Angabe zu urteilen, wäre dagegen eine gewisse Unbefähigkeit der obersten Heeresleitung verantwortlich zu machen, welche das Hauptgewicht auf den westlichen Kriegsschauplatz verlagte, ohne ohne auf den östlichen zu einem notwendigen Abschluß gekommen zu sein. Interessant ist ferner die Behauptung, daß Hindenburg die Verbun Kampagne nicht unternommen haben würde. All dem müssen wir entgegenhalten, daß auch ein Hindenburg nicht unfehlbar ist, indem wir an seinen Anspruch erinnern, monach die Russen sich in Jahren nicht von den erhaltenen Schlägen erholen könnten, während sie doch schon im nächsten Jahre mit überraschender Macht und innerer für die Zentralmächte fühlbaren Erfolgen herangeführt sind.

Am Schluß seines Artikels gibt „Der Vlog“ eine auch von anderer Seite schon aufgestellte Beurteilung der Kriegssituation am Balkan und an der russischen Front. Das Blatt schreibt: „Hindenburg und sein hilfreicher Freund Madenien, sind durch ihre imlande ihre Theorie in die Praxis umzusetzen. Es sind zumeist Tafforen vor der Welt verborgen, als daß wir mit absoluter Sicherheit angeben könnten, welches die nächste Ziel ist. Doch bereits jetzt ist ersichtlich, daß die russischen und rumänischen Armeen haben ungehindert vorrücken lassen, um dann ihre wunderliche Vbalanz zu benutzen, um die Tausende von Russen abzuscheiden durch Ueberführung der Grenze zwischen der Donau und dem Schwarzen Meer. So wäre es ihnen mit Hilfe der bulgarischen und türkischen Truppen möglich, den Gegner, bildlich gesprochen, in die See zu treiben. Nach all dem Ereignissen ist es unmöglich, daß der neue General, flabz. Obef eine abwartende Haltung einnehmen wird. Rumänien's Oer und ein eingeschüchtertes Griechenland mögen für einige Zeit die Balance in der Schwere halten. Aber wir sehen keinen Grund zu einer Gefahr für Deutschland und seine Verbündeten, wenn sie der flavierigen Lage noch für einige Monate standhalten vermögen.“

Albion will den Welthandel beherrschen.

Washington. Die internationale Situation erscheint ziemlich kompliziert. Während die englische Behinderung des amerikanischen Handels stetig zunimmt, wird das Verhalten nach Vergeltungs-Maßnahmen der amerikanischen Regierung immer lauter. Aber dies verlaute aus deutschen Quellen, daß dortige Industrielle — wahrheitlich auf Anordnung ihrer Regierung die Annahme von Waren, welche auf amerikanische Bestellung erzeugt wurden, fontastisch verlangen. Agenten amerikanischer Firmen in Deutschland, deren Verbindlichkeiten sich in die Millionen belaufen, haben an den Vorharter Gerard um Unterstützung appelliert. Letzterer hat die Aufgabe dem Staatsdepartement gefahelt.

Das Staats-Departement hat endgültig beschlossen, seine der firtzliche vom Kongreß ermächtigtten Vergeltungsmaßnahmen in Anwendung zu bringen, bis nicht alle diplomatischen Mittel erschöpft sind.

Washington. D. C. Eine Eintheilung fremder Nationen in ökonomische Sektionen, welche durch Zollmauern getrennt und als alternative des britischen Reiches, freundschaftliche Neutrale, unfreundschaftsneutrale und feindliche Länder klassifiziert werden sollen, wird von der Londoner Handelskammer in einem Programm für britische Dominiierung des Welthandels nach dem Kriege empfohlen. In einem Spezial-Bericht wird über dies die Kündigung aller Neutraleigütungs-Verträge, einschließlich jener mit den Ver. Staaten, bejürwortet.

Der Freihandel, Englands bisherige historische Politik, wurde gemäß diesem Plane der Handelskammer aufgegeben und eine Reihe fünfziger Jahre unter Erwürdigung der Nationen eingeführt werden. Alle Teile des britischen Reiches und seine Affilierten werden nur die niedrigsten Zölle zahlen; freundschaftliche Neutrale, welche England Neutraleigütungen gemauern, würden das Doppelte zahlen; alle andern Neutrale, die andern Wärdigen Vorzug geben, müssen noch höhere Zölle zahlen; den feindlichen Ländern schließlich werden Maximalzölle auferlegt.

Dieser Uebergang vom Freihandel zum Schutzzoll dürfte der Regierung jährlich $75,000,000 Einkünfte einbringen.

Andere Vorschläge betreffen noch Reorganisation des Konzular- Dienstes, Bildung eines Handels-Ministeriums, Gründung einer Zentral-Kredit Bank, ferner Bestimmungen, welche das Wohnen und Handelstreiben von Untertanen feindlicher Länder in England weitlich einschränken.

Plant Blockade gegen England.

London. In einer Depesche an Berlin an die Daily News sagt Rutledge Rutherford:

„Deutschland hat beschlossen, über England eine Blockade zu verhängen, die mit dem 1. Januar in Kraft treten soll. In diesem Zweck wird eine nachhaltige Flotte von Tauchbooten fertiggestellt, und Pläne werden ausgearbeitet, um die Blockade zu einer wirksamen zu gestalten. Die Besetzung der Tauchboote wird bis zu einem gewissen Grade durch hochentwickelte Zepeline erleichtert werden. Diese sowie die Tauchboote werden mit besonders empfindlichen drahtlosen Apparaten ausgerüstet werden. Ein hoher Beamter der Marineverwaltung erklärte in dieser Beziehung:

„Gegen Ende des Jahres und vielleicht noch etwas früher wird Deutschland 300 besonders wirksame Tauchboote in fampfmächtiger Verfertigung haben, und keinen Schiff, das Munition oder Lebensmittel trägt, wird gefahelt werden. England zu erreichen. Unsere Blockade wird eine wirksame und keine gezeigwirdige sein, wie sie England über Deutschland zu verhängen vermag.“

„Man wird sich hier über die Wiederbelebung des Tauchbootkrieges nicht die geringsten Gewissensbisse machen, weil England durch die Aufhebung der Londoner Erklärung Deutschland von dem den Ver. Staaten gegebenen Versprechen unbunden hat.“

Ein guter Anfang.

Als einen Akt der Wiedervergeltung gegen die englischen Bedrückungen des amerikanischen Handels haben in Rochester, im Staate New York, Firmen deutschen Ursprungs an alle Deutschen der Stadt die Auforderung erlassen, ihre mit englischen Gesellschaften abgeschlossenen Versicherungen auf amerikanische Gesellschaften zu übertragen. Eine Erklärung der San Franciscoer Handelskammer verfolgt den gleichen Zweck und hat schon gute Früchte getragen. An der ganzen Pazifikküste haben die englischen Versicherungskgesellschaften einen starken Rückgang zuzeichnen.

AFTER SIX YEARS OF SUFFERING

Woman Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Columbus, Ohio. "I had almost given up. I had been sick for six years with female troubles and nervousness. I had a pain in my right side and could not eat anything without hurting my stomach. I could not drink cold water at all nor eat any kind of raw fruit, nor fresh meat nor chicken. From 173 pounds I went to 118 and would get so weak at times that I fell over. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and ten days later I could eat and it did not hurt my stomach. I have taken the medicine ever since and I feel like a new woman. I now weigh 127 pounds so you can see what it has done for me already. My husband says he knows your medicine has saved my life."

Mrs. J. S. BARLOW, 1624 South 4th St., Columbus, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound contains just the virtues of roots and herbs needed to restore health and strength to the weakened organs of the body. That is why Mrs. Barlow, a chronic invalid, recovered so completely. It pays for women suffering from any female ailments to insist upon having Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

MIXING MINORS AND MINERS

Sign Misunderstood by Alkali Ike and Deadwood Dick on Visit to City After Long Absence.

Alkali Ike and Deadwood Dick drifted into a western city the other day with full wallets and a mighty thirst. They had been enforced retoolers for many months of course they made a beeline for a saloon. The sign over the door read "No Minors Allowed."

"No minors allowed, eh?" said Alkali. "Well, we'll see about that!" "You bet!" said Deadwood. So they riddled the sign with bullets, swept through the splintered door, yanked the terrorized barkeep from his hiding place, ordered drinks for the huddled and amazed crowd—and were arrested in the midst of a jollification that was really jolly from their side only.

"Gentlemen," said the judge, after explanations, "I order each of you to go at once and buy a pocket dictionary, that you may find out there are minors and miners. Don't mix them up again. The case is dismissed."

Chile has heavily increased tariff duties.

Thousands Tell It

Why daily along with backache and kidney or bladder troubles? Thousands tell you how to find relief. Here's a case to guide you. And it's only one of thousands. Forty thousand American people are publicly praising Doan's Kidney Pills. Surely it is worth the while of any one who has a bad back, who feels tired, nervous and run-down, who endures distressing urinary disorders, to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial.

A Wisconsin Case

Mrs. E. T. Cantley says: "I was in bad shape with kidney complaint and the doctor said I had hemorrhages of the kidneys and couldn't live long. His medicine failed to help me and finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They brought me a great benefit and I am now in much better health."

In Woman's Realm

One of the most interesting gowns among those displayed at the season's initial style show tempered the airy frivolity of net skirts with a rich overgarment of embroidery. This overgarment was a bodice and panel combined, and was sleeveless. The colorings were in the blues, greens, bronze and black of the peacock feather, which inspired the designer in a courageous effort to imitate the gorgeous achievement of nature. The effect was splendid, and a big peacock feather.

er fan finished off the toilette. Comparison was therefore easy and the embroidery did not suffer.

Judging from this frock, skirts remain as full as they have been, but are not artificially distended. They are a little lengthened, and this feature of the new modes may be emphasized as the season advances. The bodice is in reality an extended giraffe, and the fate of the evening bodice appears still to hang in the balance. A few daring models are displayed in which there is next to nothing at the back of the waist.

In the beautiful frock pictured the details of the toilette include a little silk variety bag. These small, brilliant necessities of life seem to be with us always in one form or another, and they are attached to fans, umbrellas and parasol handles, walking sticks, etc. They are small, elaborate affairs, made of ribbon or silk in the richest weaves, and ornamented with tinsel laces, beads, embroidery, and needlework, with metallic threads. Even garters are required to support small cases made of ribbon to match them.

Those who are in touch with present styles need not be told that there is an immense variety in the designs in which practical coats are made. Certain style features are present in all of them. But to suit individual taste there is a wide choice in materials and in colors and especially in the construction of the garment.

RETURNS FROM STEERS

Results Secured From Various Breeds and Types.

Light-Fed Lots Make Considerably Higher Gain and Greater Returns—Grain Profitably Replaced by Molasses.

At the Canada experiment farms, according to a report received recently by the department of agriculture, steers of various breeds and types were fed from 80 to 100 days, it being found that steers fed quickly gave a good margin of profit, that the dairy type of feeder may be profitably finished in from three to five months, according to age, and that many steers slaughtered in November and December would pay profitable returns if fed a few months longer.

In steer-feeding experiments to determine the effect of heavy and light feeding it was found that the daily rate of gain was considerably higher and the greater profit was realized from the light-fed lots. Grain was profitably replaced by molasses when used in only a limited amount. Molasses appeared to have a more beneficial effect when fed to good stocker than to good butcher cattle getting the same amount of grain. Molasses showed a profit over a full-grain ration.

Eight steers fed 140 days and given freedom in box stalls made a gain of $56.17 as compared with $32.23 from eight steers fed. In a comparison of corn silage and dry corn for fodder as roughage for fattening steers fed five months, the former made an average daily gain per steer of 1.56 pounds, the latter of 1.5 pounds. Four lots of steers fed 140 days, lot 1 receiving oat straw, mixed hay, oats and barley, fed outside; lot 2 the same as lot 1, but fed inside; lot 3 the same as lot 1 with the addition of silage, and lot 4 fed mixed hay, silage, roots and grain (bran, peas, oats and barley), fed inside, made average daily gains per head of 1.95, 1.93, 2.47 and 2.82 pounds, respectively.

FUNCTION OF CORN SUCKERS

Seem to Perform Useful Office in Absorbing Nutritive Elements for Benefit of Ear.

Many farmers are possessed with the idea that the suckers or earless stalks which grow from an ear-bearing stalk of corn are a hindrance to the best growth of the latter, and valuable hours are sometimes spent in removing them. But, according to Wallace's Farmer, actual experiments during two successive years on Nebraska farms demonstrated that corn with the suckers left undisturbed outyielded that from which the suckers had been removed. Their leaves, like the others, would seem to perform a useful office in absorbing nutritive elements from the atmosphere for the benefit of the ear on the main stalk.

SHEEP ARE MUCH NEGLECTED

Flock Would Be Source of Profit on Many Farms Where They Have Not Been Encouraged.

Sheep would be a source of profit on many farms where they have not been given attention. They are close-grazing animals and as such will thrive on short grass and rough land where other animals would find it difficult to live. Why not get a few sheep and give them a chance on your farm?

KEEP FARM FACTORIES BUSY

Hogs Will Turn Weeds Into Pork—Cows Make Cream Out of Grass—Hens Utilize Waste.

Keep all the factories you can afford running day and night. Hogs will turn weeds and waste grain into pork; cows will transform grass and other roughness into cream, and poultry will manufacture eggs out of much that would otherwise go to waste.

"THE FARMER'S INCOME"

A little pamphlet has recently been issued by the government, entitled, "The Farmer's Income." In this bulletin it is shown that the average farmer has an annual income of $600. The street railway man has an income of $674. The ordinary factory worker has an income of $490. It is also stated in the $600 income from each farm only $200 of it is in cash. The $400 is represented in milk, cream, vegetables, etc., obtained from the farm. There is an opportunity for the farmers to have a much larger income than $200 cash.

HANDLE SWEET CORN FODDER

Care Must Be Exercised That Roughage Does Not Heat and Sour—Of High Feeding Value.

Farmers who raise sugar corn either for the market or for canning factories will do well to take special care of their fodder. It makes a remarkably good roughage feed for winter and is more easily kept free from rot and mold than other fodder. Stock will clean up this ration, butts and all. The sugar which it contains makes it both heating and fattening. Then, too, when the crop is harvested for factory use there is left on the stalks a large number of immature ears which as a rule ripen, thus adding to the feeding value of the fodder. Mature sweet corn is not much, if any, inferior to field corn for feeding.

Sweet corn fodder is not so rank and heavy as that of Indian corn and therefore not quite so much difficulty is experienced in keeping it in good condition. Still, it must be handled carefully to give the best results. Like other fodder it will heat and sour when stored tightly under cover but it lends itself advantageously to being put up in the round stack similar to the method pursued in preserving fodder in the South. In such cases it is stacked about a center pole. Special care is taken to make the center of the stack solid and compact. If it settles it will, of course, more easily take water. Recapping the top of the stack a few weeks after it is built will help to overcome this. If care is used in building the round stack it will turn out fodder in winter which will be clean and sweet and of high feeding value. The round stack for this crop is likely to do better than the rectangular rack, as it will wear up better under the elements.

PHYSIC FOR ALFALFA BLOAT

Successful Stockman Has Used Sal Hepatica for Several Years With Much Satisfaction.

Why not try a physic for cattle which bloat on alfalfa? A successful stockman has tried sal hepatica satisfactorily for several years. A dose of two tablespoonfuls is given in a pint of warm water as soon as the bloat is discovered, and it gives relief in a few minutes. This looks like an honest effort to mitigate the great evil of bloat and is well worth a trial, for all dairymen have lost valuable cattle from this complaint, which may have its origin in dyspepsia or indigestion; but all require at least temporary relief to first save the cow and then cure her.

ill, in Popular Mechanics Magazine. FOREST DESTROYED BY FIRE

Pride of Late King George of Greece Reduced to Ashes—Played Large Part in History.

The wonderful forest of Tatoi, the pride of the late King George of Greece, was destroyed when fire reduced to ashes the summer residence of his son, King Constantine. The tens of thousands of dollars spent in cultivating a flourishing pine wood, as an example of what might be done with forestry in barren Attica, have been burned up as completely as if the banknotes themselves had been thrown in the fire.

Tatoi played a large part in the history of Greece. Here the Spartans established themselves in 413 B. C. to cut off the supply of grain and food-stuffs bound into Athens from Euboea, with the purpose of starving out the Athenian population. And in 404 B. C., when Lysander blockaded Athens and the Piræus by sea, the Spartans descended from the vicinity of Tatoi, attacked and forced the capitulation of Athens, ending the Peloponnesian war. The burnt forest, laboriously planted and protected, was considered to be a memorial to the past greatness of Greece.

A GRATEFUL ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

FORWARD MARCH!

This Command for Advancement is the Slogan of Burke's Campaign

Journal Independent, Sept. 22, 1916

The nomination on the Republican ticket of a confirmed reactionary for member of Congress from this district revives the old issue that the people were entitled to believe had been settled several years ago, but which issue must now be met again with the same determination as when it appeared before. It will be remembered that the congressional campaign of 1910 was fought out squarely over the well defined issue of progress against reaction with the result that Congressman M. E. Burke, the exponent of progressive policies, was elected by a very decisive majority. It was such an emphatic endorsement of progress in matters of government that it seemed sufficient to preclude another Tory or reactionary from presuming to appear as a candidate in this progressive district and by his candidacy necessarily raise the issue as the vital one of the campaign.

But watchfulness and perseverance on the part of the people are the price of progress in public affairs and it requires persistent effort to keep on moving forward. Indifference and a failure to consider the consequences of an election more than any other cause, have been the means through which the government has fallen under the control of those who pervert to their own purposes. For we always have with us men who in politics look continually backward and who fail to recognize that the problems of government change with progress of general affairs and must be solved in the light of attending circumstances and not by reference to the changed conditions of the past. They are the Tories or reactionaries who oppose every forward movement and who would lead the country back into the sloughs of class legislation from which the progressives of all parties have been earnestly endeavoring to deliver the people. The special interests—those who profit at the expense of the people by that class legislation to which the reactionaries would have us return—never sleep. They are extremely active and always alert. And unless the voters exercise care and judgment in the matter of selecting their representative in Congress they may take themselves the instrumentalities through which those who seek special favors obtain them from the government.

The situation in this congressional district in the present campaign calls upon the people to choose between a progressive Democrat and a reactionary Republican. In the primary election there were two candidates for the Republican nomination, one of them a recognized and consistent progressive and the other a pronounced reactionary. The reactionary won out and his name will appear on the official ballot as the nominee of his party. By his determined opposition to progressive policies and his affirmation with an active support of the stalwart faction of the Republican party he has placed himself in that class whose ideas on public questions have enabled the special interests to enjoy government favors.

Hon. M. E. Burke, the present congressman and the Democratic nominee, was the exponent of progressive principles when first elected, and his course in Congress fully justifies the confidence that was then placed in him. He is a man of splendid ability and a public servant who is always guided by conscientious purposes. He is a forward looking statesman with the courage of his convictions, an able leader of a public man who has acquired a very prominent position among the leaders in Congress. Because of his ability and character, his experience and the position he has reached, the district can find no better man for its representative than Congressman Burke.

The issue in this campaign, like that in 1910, is progress against reaction. Stated somewhat differently it is this, Shall Congressman Burke, a forward looking statesman who is splendidly equipped for service to his constituents, be superseded by a reactionary who has had no legislative experience.

The exigencies of the situation leave room for only one answer and that is THE ENDORSEMENT OF CONGRESSMAN BURKE BY AN OVERWHELMING MAJORITY.

HEALTH BULLETIN, No. 163.

Mothers Being Killed?

This bureau is being called upon in an editorial appearing in the current issue of the Wisconsin Medical Journal to make a campaign against the "ingrates" who are among the mothers of Wisconsin from blood poisoning accompanying child birth. This call is a significant one, coming as it does from a periodical owned by the organized medical profession, because it does not lay the responsibility entirely on others but frankly states that physicians are to blame in many instances.

This self criticism is true to the best traditions of the medical profession. The principles of that profession have always denigrated its practitioners that they place the interests of their patients above their own. In this they are comparable to sailors who are obligated by their own unwritten law never to leave the ship in time of danger, until every passenger's safety has been looked to first.

But as there have been sailors who have thought of "personal first" so are there some practitioners of medicine whose first thoughts are of personal ease and easy money. The medical journal holds no brief for such. On the contrary it considers the welfare of the individual, the patient and the non-medical public, in the mass, to be above personal and class interests.

According to official figures, 106 mothers died in Wisconsin last year of blood poisoning as an incident of childbirth. This isn't the whole truth because not all of such deaths are recorded truthfully as to cause.

Practically all of those deaths were preventable and yet they were not prevented. Why? Because in too many instances some one was careless or ignorant—or both careless and ignorant. A large proportion of Wisconsin mothers do not have an intelligent physician or midwife in attendance. Altogether too many are dependent upon such service as neighbors, husbands and even children may render.

It would seem as if every expectant mother were entitled to the following minimum of care and yet I am assured by physicians that not a very large proportion receive even this title.

1st. Examinations and reasonable assistance in safeguarding her own and her expected infant's life and health.

2nd. Skillful, clean and prompt attendance during her confinement either at home or in an accessible hospital.

3rd. Necessary after care to insure her restoration to a reasonable degree of health; and intelligent attention to the proper care and feeding of the new-born infant.

How Catarrh is Contracted

Mothers are sometimes so thoughtless as to neglect the colds which their children contract. The inflammation of the mucous membrane, at first acute, becomes chronic and the child has chronic catarrh, a disease that is seldom cured and that many prove a life's burden. Many persons who have this loathsome disease will remember having had frequent colds at the time it was contracted. A little forethought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy judiciously used, and all this trouble might have been avoided. For sale by Edw. C. Miller.

26,735 GERMANS TAKEN BY ALLIES

Sir. Gen. Haig Reports on Great Somme Battle.

TEUTONS AT FOURTH LINE

Commander Asserts British Engaged 38 Divisions and Forced 29 of Them to Withdraw—Berlin Says Attacks Were Repulsed.

London, Oct. 5.—Between July 1, the opening of the Somme battle, and the end of September, the British forces on that front took 26,735 prisoners. They engaged in that period 38 German divisions and forced 29 of them to withdraw from the battle exhausted or shattered. These results were announced in a summary of the Somme operations by Sir Douglas Haig, given out by the Official Press bureau.

Germans at Fourth Line.
The Germans have been thrown back on their fourth-line defenses. The British commander points out that the actual results of the battle must not be measured by the number of prisoners and positions taken, but by the effect upon the strength of the Teutons in numbers, material and in morale. He emphasizes the heavy German losses in vain counter-attacks. The text of Sir Douglas's statement follows:

"At the end of September the situation, summarized, was as follows:

"Since the opening of the battle on July 1, we have taken 26,735 prisoners and have engaged 38 German divisions, of which 29 have been withdrawn in an exhausted or broken state. "We hold a half-month of upland southward of the Ancre and occupy every height of importance and so have the direct observation of the ground east and northeast.

"The enemy has fallen back upon his fourth line behind the low ridge just west of the Bapaume-le Transloy road. "The importance of the three months' offensive is not to be judged by the distance we advanced or by the number of enemy trench lines taken, but must be looked for in the effect upon the enemy's strength in numbers, material and morale.

Enemy Reserves Exhausted.
"The enemy used up his reserves in repeated costly and unsuccessful counter-attacks without causing our allies or ourselves to relax our steady and methodical pressure.

"In this action troops from every part of the British empire and the British Islands were engaged. All behaved with the discipline and resolution of veterans. "Our aircraft have shown in the highest degree the spirit of offensive. They have patrolled regularly far behind the lines and have fought many battles in the air with hostile machines, and many with enemy machines on the ground.

"For every enemy machine which succeeds in crossing our front, it is safe to say that 200 British machines cross the enemy's front. "A captured German corps reported described our aeroplanes as surprisingly bold and their work has been conspicuous for skill and judgment as for its daring."

French Are Repulsed.
Berlin, Oct. 5.—The German war office reported the repulse of French attacks on the Teuton positions on the Sailly-Rancourt road and in the St. Pierre St. Vaast wood. One French officer and 128 men were captured, it was announced. British attacks between Thiepval and the Mouquet farm were "easily repulsed," the statement said.

Allies Win on Somme.

London, Oct. 5.—Both the British and the French advanced in a resumption of the offensive in the Somme. The war office announced that the town of Eaucourt l'Abbaye, three miles from Bapaume, for possession of which heavy fighting has been in progress for several days, is now entirely in the hands of the British. The British lines were pushed forward into the village several days ago, but the Germans clung tenaciously to several houses. These were cleared of the enemy in a night's fighting.

French Seize a Trench.
North of the Somme the French completed the conquest of a German trench between Morval and St. Pierre Vaast wood, taking 200 prisoners. South of the river, there was a violent bombardment in the region of Heliopolis-Santerre, but no important infantry fighting.

Naval Seaplanes at Zebrugge Pursue an Enemy Air Squadron and Destroy One.

Berlin, Oct. 5.—The admiralty made the following announcement: "On the afternoon of October 1 naval seaplanes of the aerodrome at Zebrugge (Belgium) pursued an enemy air squadron. In the course of the fight which developed, an enemy aeroplane was shot down. Our machines returned safely."

BANDITS PERIL CITY

VILLISTAS ARE REPORTED ADVANCING AGAINST TORREON.

Carranza Is Not Contemplating Sending an Ultimatum to United States, Say Officials.

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 5.—Dispatches from Chihuahua City stated that the capture of Torreon by Villistas is imminent. Three troop trains, carrying 1,500 Carranzista soldiers, left Chihuahua City shortly before noon to intercept Villa in his threatened attack on the city proper. The garrison at Torreon is said to be wholly inadequate.

Villistas have been exceedingly active about Torreon for the last few days, holding up trains and sniping extensively.

It is believed here that Villa has changed his plans, abandoning hope of taking Chihuahua, and instead will center his efforts on Torreon, which is an important supply base.

Mexico City, Oct. 5.—General Carranza is not contemplating sending an ultimatum to the United States demanding the immediate withdrawal of General Pershing's forces from Mexican soil. This denial was made by high officials in answer to rumors appearing in the press of the United States recently.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Officials high in both the state and war departments predicted that the efforts of the American and Mexican commissioners to find a way out of the difficulties between the United States and Mexico are doomed to failure.

The American commissioners, in separate sessions, have considered about everything touching upon relations between the United States and Mexico. Carranza's commissioners, however, remain adamant, and in their strict adherence to their chief's mandate refuse to discuss anything except the withdrawal of American troops from Mexico.

The visit of Ambassador Designate Arredondo to Mexico City has brought no change in the mind of the first chief. And past experience has taught officials here that Carranza often increases his demands upon the United States, although not yet on record as having conceded anything to American opinion.

WILSON GREETED BY CROWDS

President in Brief Visit to Chicago While on Way to Omaha.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—President Wilson was in Chicago for an hour and a half last night en route to Omaha, where he makes an address. His time while in the city was occupied with conferences with western managers of the Democratic campaign.

The trip to Chicago was made on a special train. On the trip westward the president's private car was attached to a regular train. His car was switched from the Pennsylvania railroad to the Northwestern.

Vice President Thomas R. Marshall also was in Chicago during the day. The vice president and his wife were en route from Peoria—where he spoke Tuesday evening—to Wisconsin, where he will continue his campaigning. President Wilson was greeted by cheering crowds as his special passed through Ohio and Indiana during the day. The president was firm in refusing to make any political speeches, but consented to appear on the rear platform at stations where crowds were assembled. He kept up a running fire of comment with the crowds and shook hands with as many as possible.

Major Warner suffered a breakdown a few days after the G. A. R. encampment closed in Kansas City. He took an active part in the encampment and overworked himself. He was seventy years old.

Several times blood was transfused from his son, John B. Warner, clerk of the United States district court here, in an effort to save his life, but he grew weaker each day. His son, a daughter, Mrs. Cora Wilbur of Washington, D. C., and a widow, Mrs. Sophia Warner, were at the deathbed.

BIG FIRE AT OMAHA

MORRIS & CO. SUFFER $1,000,000 LOSS WHEN PLANT IS DESTROYED.

50,000 PEOPLE SEE BLAZE

One Hundred and Fifty Workers Escape From Building—Blaze Largest in History of the Stock Yards—Heavy Loss at Cleveland Yards.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 4.—Fire caused more than $1,000,000 damage on Monday to the pork house of Morris & Co. South side, and for a time threatened to destroy the entire plant. Every available piece of fire apparatus in the city was playing on the blaze at one time.

Fully 50,000 Omaha people watched the blaze. The plant was located between the O street and Q street viaducts, in the very bottom of a street. The viaducts to the north and south and the hills behind the plant formed a natural amphitheater for the throngs of spectators. The fire was the largest in the history of the South Omaha stock yards.

Superintendent Spangler stated that there was more than $1,000,000 worth of pork products in the building where the fire started. It is a total loss.

The flames spread rapidly upward and downward through the building. One hundred and fifty men working overtime in the fresh pork department on the seventh floor made a hurried exit. No one else but watchmen and fire guards were in the plant where the blaze broke out.

Morris plant extends north and south. The pork house was at the extreme south. The beef house to the north, the office building, north of the beef house, and the machine shops across the trucks were all in danger.

A long string of freight cars was shoved up to a number of refrigerator cars which were standing near the loading dock. A daring switchman coupled them up and the loaded cars were saved.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 4.—The Union Stock yards here were partly destroyed by fire on Monday.

It is believed the fire was started by incendiaries, who fired several bales of straw near the loading chutes in the hog pens. More than 1,400 hogs in cars nearby were hauled away safely, but several carloads of cattle were turned loose from the pens and ran wild about the stock yards.

ROUMANIANS IN BULGARIA

Ferdinand's Army in Dobruja Crosses Danube in Vicinity of Rusechuk—Battle On in Transylvania.

London, Oct. 4.—The Roumanian army in the Dobruja has forced a crossing of the Danube south of Bucharest, invading Bulgaria for the first time, according to an admission made on Monday by the German War office.

The Bulgarian fortress of Rusechuk, the strongest Bulgarian position on the Danube, lies directly south of Bucharest and the Roumanian crossing was made near this point.

In Transylvania the army group of General von Falkenhayn, former German chief of staff, is at grips with the main army group of the Roumanians. The Roumanians have been compelled to yield some ground, but dispatches indicate that, with the arrival of reinforcements, the Roumanians are offering battle to the Germanic allies on a strategic field that was chosen for the action.

The Berlin official report admits that the Roumanian forces won ground on both sides of Kokek.

RUSS RENEW LEMBERG DRIVE

4,000 Teutons Captured, Says Official Report Issued at Petrograd—Attacked From Two Sides.

London, Oct. 3.—The two-pronged advance of the Russians on Lemberg is again gathering full headway, and the Austro-German armies of Prince Leopold of Bavaria and Archduke Karl have been pushed back. Both northeast and southeast of the Gallician capital the Russians have registered advances, capturing, according to the official report issued on Sunday at Petrograd, more than 4,000 prisoners. Russian gains are admitted by Berlin.

The two main actions are being waged in the region of the Brody-Kranse railway, about 30 miles northeast of Lemberg, and in the Berezany sector of the Zlota Lipa river, 50 miles southeast of the city.

In the former district the Russians have pressed forward against heavy resistance, taking about 2,000 prisoners. A Teuton position on the right bank of the Zlota Lipa was carried on the southeastern sector of the advance.

Von Hindenburg Is Sixty-Nine.

Berlin (via London), Oct. 4.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg celebrated his sixty-ninth birthday on Monday on the eastern front. The Berlin newspapers all published articles extolling him as the greatest German of the age.

Russia's Population Is 162,132,600.

Petrograd, Oct. 4.—According to the statistics for the year 1915, which now are available, the population of Russia increased more than 53,000,000, or 42 per cent, since 1897. The total population is set down as 162,132,600.

TEUTONS WIN FIGHT SEEKS ONLY TRUCE?

VAST AMOUNT WAR MATERIAL TAKEN AT HERMANNSTADT.

Berlin Announces Capture of 3,000 Men—Victory Brings Joy to Berlin.

Berlin, Oct. 3.—The victory of General von Falkenhayn over the Roumanians around Hermannstadt, in Transylvania, grows with every new dispatch from the front.

The Roumanian first army has been shattered and the second army rushed to its assistance, has been badly battered, being now solely on the defensive.

The victory has caused the greatest excitement and jubilation seen here in months.

Following is the Berlin official account of operations in the Transylvanian theater:

"On the eastern front Roumanian attacks in the Maros valley were repulsed. In the Georgeny valley and farther south our vanguards partly evaded the enemy's thrust.

"The booty taken by the German troops in the fighting south of Heindorf has been increased by eight cannon. Northwest of Fogaras, the enemy has ceased to attack.

"As a result of the battle of Hermannstadt more than 3,000 prisoners and 13 guns were brought in. One hangar, two aeroplanes, ten locomotives, 200 railroad cars laden with munitions, more than 200 loaded baggage wagons, 70 transport wagons and one hospital train also have been taken. Further material is being brought in gradually from the woods. The Rothenturm pass is filled with vehicles blown to pieces by our fire.

"South of the pass strong Roumanian attacks directed against the heights west of Cuiet were repulsed. In the Hatzeger mountains the foe made a fruitless attack west of Stroll Strizgy valley."

CLEAR U. S. AIR SERVICE

Army Board Finds "Energy and Foresight" Instead of Inefficiency—Aero Club Is Scolded.

Washington, Oct. 5.—The special war department board which investigated military aeronautics reported on Tuesday that its inquiry not only failed entirely to substantiate allegations of inefficiency on the part of army officers but clearly established that development of this branch of the service "is being conducted with energy and foresight."

A war department statement on the report replied to criticisms against the service, which "took the form of inspired editorials appearing in the metropolitan press and in statements signed by Henry Woodhouse and Alan R. Hawley, both of the Aero Club of America," and declared that "as far as this branch is concerned, the nation can view the future with confidence and serenity."

BULGARS IN RETREAT

SEVERAL POSITIONS ABANDONED IN THE STARKOV, GROS AND BROD RIVER REGIONS.

MACKENSEN GIVES UP FORTS

Rome Dispatch Says German Field Marshal Has Ordered the Evacuation of Turtukai and Silistria—Teutons Take 3,000 Roumanians.

Paris, Oct. 5.—The Bulgarians have abandoned several positions in the Starkov, Gros and Brod river regions. The entente allies occupied Sovich, Petrak, Verbeul and Jenko, northeast of Florina.

In spite of the severe reverse experienced by the troops of King Ferdinand in the Hermannstadt (Transylvania) battle of September 26-29, the Roumanians continue to hammer their foes with terrific blows.

Berlin admits that the Teutonic forces to the north of Fogaras (Transylvania) have been compelled to fall back, thereby confirming a Vienna statement of the retirement of central powers' columns.

Some reports that as a result of the Roumanian invasion of Bulgaria, Field Marshal von Mackensen, commanding the German-Bulgar-Turkish army, including Dobruja, has ordered the evacuation of the fortresses of Turtukai and Silistria on the Danube.

Roumanian troops having accomplished the passage of the Danube (near Rahova, 18 miles north of Rusechuk, the Bulgarian river stronghold, Sofia reports), threatened the entire army of von Mackensen.

Bucharest in its report of the Dobruja battle, which has been raging many days, said that the Russo-Roumanian forces had attacked along the whole von Mackensen front, repulsing assaults of the enemy's center and right.

The Roumanians, in addition to forcing a Teutonic retreat in the Fogaras region, are attempting to regain the Rothenturm pass. Berlin admits this.

BROOKLYN WINS THE FLAG

First Pennant Won by Team Since 1900—Robins Will Clash With Boston Red Sox.

Brooklyn, Oct. 5.—There is joy in Brooklyn for the Robins have captured the National league pennant, the first one since 1900, when Ned Hanlon was manager of the team. Brook lyn clinched the flag on Tuesday by defeating the Giants, 9 to 6, and will clash with the Red Sox Saturday for the championship of the world. The stretch drive which for months has been a neck-to-neck race, terminated when Boston twice defeated Philadelphia.

The struggle now will be for second honors between Philadelphia and Boston. These teams now have two games to play, and should Boston win both the Stallings outfit would finish second, half a game ahead of Moran's tribe.

One street car landed upside down and was splintered to bits. The other car remained rightside up, but was wrecked by the heavy girders and beams of the bridge falling on it.

The accident was caused by two street cars colliding on the bridge and running to one edge of the span.

Tabloid Aeroplanes.
The British reason, quite logically, that the smaller the aeroplane and the faster it can fly the less danger of its being hit by shots fired from earth. So the British airman favors an unusually small machine, which they call the "tabloid." A very light frame is fitted with an 8-horse power motor, which will drive the frail machine through the air at the rate of 100 miles an hour. The engine is covered with armor. The aviator seeking to drop a bomb on the enemy approaches his target at a height of 5,000 feet. When straight above it he turns the nose of his machine straight down and drops at terrific speed. When within 500 feet of the target he drops his bombs as quickly as possible and then shoots skyward at a tremendous pace.—American Boy.

The DESTROYING ANGEL

By Louis Joseph Vance

HOW THE STORY GOES

Hugh Whitaker is told, after a diagnosis by eminent surgeons, that he cannot live longer than six months. His sweetheart jilts him. The double blow stuns him. Peter Stark, his friend, proposes a South sea voyage on Stark's yacht. Whitaker consents, but runs away to a country hotel with the intention of committing suicide. He surprises Mary Ladislus, daughter of a rich and hard New Yorker, in the act of drinking poison and stops her. She has been deserted by the man with whom she had planned a clandestine marriage. Whitaker marries the girl to save her good name, gives her money and immediately puts her on a train for home. He turns—and walks into Peter Stark's arms. "No more foolishness," says Stark. "You've got to go sailing with me." The sick man shrugged wearily: "All right," he replies. "Have your own way." What happens next is told in this installment. You'll find it mighty interesting.

Beyond drawing heavily on his bank and sending Drummond a brief note, Whitaker failed to renew communication with his home. He sank into a state of semi-apathetic content. The Adventure was five months out of port before he began to be conscious that he was truly accursed. There came a gradual thickening of the shadows that threatened to eclipse his existence. And then, one day as they dined with the lonely traveler at an isolated station in the D'Entrecasteaux Islands, he fell from his chair as if poleaxed. He regained consciousness only to sliver with the chill of the wind that's fanned by the wings of death. It was impossible to move him. The agonies of the damned were his when, with exquisite gentleness, they lifted him to a bed.

Stark sat in the Adventure before sundown of the same day, purposing to fetch a surgeon from Port Moresby. Whitaker said a last farewell to his friend, knowing in his soul that they would never meet again. Then he composed himself to die quietly. But the following morning brought a hapchance trading schooner to the island, and with it, in the estate of supercargo, a capricious Scotch gentleman who had been a famous specialist of London before drink laid him by the heels. He performed a heroic operation upon Whitaker within an hour, announced by nightfall that the patient would recover, and the next day sailed with his ship to end his days in some abandoned Australian boozing-ken—as Whitaker learned in Sydney several months later.

In the same place, and at the same time, he received his first authentic news of the fate of the Adventure. The yacht had struck on an uncharted reef, in heavy weather, and had foundered almost immediately. Of her entire company, a solitary sailor managed to cling to a life-raft until picked up, a week after the wreck, by a tramp steamship, on whose decks he gaped out his news and his life in the same breaths.

Whitaker hunted up an account of the disaster in the files of a local newspaper. He read that the owner, Peter Stark, Esq., and his guest, H. M. Whitaker, Esq., both of New York, had gone down with the vessel. There was also a cable dispatch from New York detailing Peter Stark's social and financial prominence—evidence that the news had been cabled home. To all who knew him Whitaker was as dead as Peter Stark.

"There is a world outside the one you know To which for curiousness 'Eli can't compare; It is the place where wilful missings go, As we can testify, for we are there."

Kipling's lines buzzed through his head more than once in the course of the next few years; for he was "there." They were years of such vagabondage as only the South Seas countenance; neither unhappy nor very strenuous, nor yet scarred by the tooth of poverty. Whitaker had between four and five thousand dollars in traveller's checks which he converted into cash while in Sydney. Memory of the wreck of the Adventure was already fading from the Australian mind; no one dreamed of challenging the signature of a man seven months dead. And as certainly and as quietly as the memory, Whitaker faded away; Hugh Morten took his place, and Sydney knew him no more, nor did any other parts wherein he had answered to his rightful name.

The money stayed by him handsomely. Thanks to a strong constitution in a tough body (now that his malignant demon was exorcised) he found it easy to pick up a living by one means or another. Indeed, he played many parts in as many fields before joining hands with a young Englishman, he had grown to like and entering upon what seemed a forlorn bid for fortune. Thereafter he prospered amazingly.

When at length he did make up his mind to go home, he went in Melbourne with Lynch, his partner. Whitaker passed old friends in the street. They were George Presbury and his wife—Anne Forsythe that was—self-evident tourists, looking the town over between steamers. Presbury, with no thought in his bumptious head of meeting Hugh Whitaker before the day of judgment, looked at and through him without a hint of recognition; but his wife was another person altogether. Whitaker could not be blind to the surprise and perplexity that shone in her eyes, even though he pretended to be blind to her uncertain nod; long after his back alone was visible to her he could feel her inquiring stare boring into it.

The incident made him think; and he remembered that he was now a man of independent fortune and of idle hands as well. After prolonged consideration he suddenly decided, told Lynch to look out for his interests and expect him back when he should see him, and booked for London by a Royal Mail boat—all in half a day. From London Mr. Hugh Morten crossed immediately to New York on the Olympic, landing in the mouth of April—nearly six years to a day from the time he had left his native land.

He put up at the Ritz-Carlton, precisely as one foreigner might be expected to do, and remained Hugh Morten while he prowled around the city and found himself. Now and again in the course of his wanderings he encountered well-remembered faces, but always without eliciting the slightest gleam of recognition; circumstances that only went to prove how thoroughly dead and buried he was in the estimation of his day and generation.

Nothing, indeed, seemed as he remembered it. But his ultimate utter awakening to the truth that his home had outgrown him fell upon the fourth afternoon following his return, when a total but most affable gentleman presented himself to Whitaker's consideration with a bogus name and a genuine offer to purchase him a drink, and promptly attempted to enmesh him in a confidence game that had degenerated into a vaudeville joke in the days when both of them had worn knickerbockers. Whitaker privately admitted that he was outclassed, that it was time for him to seek the protection of his friends.

He began with Drummond. The latter, of course, had moved his offices. Whitaker found him independently established in an imposing suite in the

"Whitaker!" He gasped. "My God!"

Woolworth Building—found him an ashen-faced man of thirty-five, who clutched the side of his roll-top desk as if to save himself from falling.

"Whitaker!" he gasped. "My God!" "Flattered," said Whitaker, "I'm sure."

He derived considerable mischievous amusement from Drummond's patent stupefaction. It was all so right and proper—as it should have been. He considered his a highly satisfactory resurrection. Seldom does a scene pass off as one plans it; but Drummond played up his part in a most public-spirited fashion—gratifying, to say the least.

It took him some minutes to recover, Whitaker standing by and beaming. He remarked changes, changes as striking as the improvement in Drummond's fortunes. Physically his ex-partner had gone off a bit; the sedentary life led by the average successful man of business in New York had marked his person unmistakably. Only his face seemed as it had always been—sharply handsome and strong. Whitaker remembered that he had always somewhat meanly envied Drummond his good looks; he himself had been fashioned after the new order of architecture—with a steel frame.

He discovered that they were both talking at once—furiously—and, not without surprise, that he had a great deal more enlightenment to impart to Drummond than he had foreseen.

"You've got an economical streak in you when it comes to correspondence," Drummond commented, offering Whitaker a sheet of paper he had just taken from a tin document-box. That's Exhibit A."

Whitaker read aloud: Dear D.: I'm not feeling well, so off for a vacation. Burke has just been in and paid $1,500 in settlement of our claim. I'm enclosing herewith my check for your share. Yours, H. M. W.

"Far be it from me to cast up," said Drummond; "but I'd like to know why the deuce you couldn't let a fellow know how ill you were."

"That's so. And you never heard—" "Merely a rumor run round. More than that nothing—until we heard that the Adventure had been lost, half a year later."

"I'm sorry," said Whitaker contritely. "It was thoughtless . . ."

"But that isn't all," Drummond objected, flourishing another paper. "See here—Exhibit B—came in a day or so later."

"Yes," Whitaker recognized the document. "I remember insisting on writing to you before we turned in that night."

He ran through the following communication: Dear Drummond: I married here, tonight, Mary Ladislus. Please look out for her while I'm away. Make her an allowance out of my money—five hundred a month ought to be enough. I shall die intestate, and she'll get everything then, of course. She has your address and will communicate with you as soon as she gets settled down in town. Faithfully, Hugh Morten Whitaker.

"If it hadn't been so much in character," commented Drummond, "I'd've thought the thing a forgery—or a poor joke. Knowing you as well as I did, however . . . I just sat back to wait for word from Mrs. Whitaker."

"And you never heard, except that once?" said Whitaker thoughtfully. "Here's the sole and only evidence I ever got to prove that you had told the truth."

Drummond handed Whitaker a single, folded sheet of note-paper stamped with the name of the Waldorf-Astoria.

Dear Sir: I inclose herewith a bank-note for $50, which you will be kind enough to credit to the estate of your late partner and my late husband, Mr. Hugh Morten Whitaker. Very truly yours, Mary Ladislus Whitaker.

"Dated, you see, the day after the report of your death was published here."

"But why?" demanded Whitaker, dumfounded. "Why?"

"Mrs. Whitaker may have desired to marry again immediately. If I'm any judge of human nature, she argued that repayment of the loan wiped out every obligation. Feminine logic, perhaps, but—"

Whitaker nodded in somber abstraction. "You may not," continued Drummond with light malice, "have been so generous, so considerate and chivalric, after all."

"Oh, cut that!" growled Whitaker, unhappily, "I never meant to come back."

"Then why did you?" "Oh . . . I don't know. Chiefly because I caught Anne Presbury's sharp eyes on me in Melbourne—as I said a while ago. At the worst—if what you suggest has really happened—it's an open-and-shut case; no one's going to blame the woman; and it ought to be easy enough to secure a separation or divorce."

"You'd consent to that?" inquired Drummond intently. "It's the only decent thing I can do."

Drummond laughed quietly. "If that's how you feel," he said, "I can only give you one piece of professional advice."

"What's that?" "Find your wife."

After a moment of puzzled thought, Whitaker admitted ruefully: "You're right. There's the rub."

"I'm afraid you won't find it an easy job. I did my best without uncovering a trace of her."

"Did you try old Thurlow?" "Her father died within eight weeks from the time you ran away. He left everything to charity, by the way. Unforgiving blighter."

"Well, there's her sister, Mrs. Pettit." "Address," observed Drummond, dryly: "the American Embassy, Berlin. . . . Pettit's got some sort of a minor diplomatic berth over there."

"O the devil! . . . But, anyway, I can write."

He moved to a window and stared rudely at the Post Office Building for a time. "I'm going to find her just the same—if she still lives," he announced, turning back.

And when Whitaker does find her, what do you suppose happens?—considering that she may have remarried.

HUGHES DODGES ISSUE ON EIGHT HOUR LAW

Attacks Wilson's Plan but Won't Tell Public What He Would Have Done.

ONLY WAY TO AVERT STRIKE

Republican Nominee Is Asked to Declare If He Would Have Vetted the Bill With Certain Assurance of Industrial Disaster.

So busy has been Charles E. Hughes criticizing the deeds of the Wilson Administration that he has had little time, or has purposely evaded, telling the public what he would have done had he been President under similar circumstances.

Lately Mr. Hughes has turned his attacks upon President Wilson's successful settlement of the crisis in the railroad world by causing to be passed by Congress the Adamson eight-hour bill. Mr. Hughes has characterized this action as a "surrender to force"; he is "opposed to being dictated to by any power on earth before the facts are known"; and he would not act until he had had a "fair investigation and candid treatment."

Taking issue with the Republican candidate's attitude the New York Times, in an editorial, asks: "WHAT WOULD MR. HUGHES HAVE DONE?"

"Well, what way would Mr. Hughes have taken?" continues the Times. "What would he have done? Here was Mr. Wilson's position: The brotherhood refused arbitration, the railroad presidents would not accept the settlement Mr. Wilson proposed, granting the eight-hour standard day with provision for an impartial inquiry into its working. There was no law on the statute books to enforce arbitration."

"The President, knew, with certainty and beyond question, that he could not get such a law from the Congress now in session. The sure and inevitable alternative to his acceptance of the eight-hour standard day measure was a strike, the suspension of railway service, freight and passenger, all over the country, beginning on the morning of Sept. 4th. WOULD HUGHES HAVE DONE IT?"

"Mr. Hughes would not surrender to anybody in the country. Then he would have surrendered the country to the disturbance, immeasurable loss, and peril of a strike. Would he, in fact, have done that? Had he been President, confronted by that situation, would Mr. Hughes have brought on a strike by refusing to sign the bill granting a wage increase? There was the strike in plain sight, a few hours away, sure to come. Would Mr. Hughes have vetoed the bill? On the contrary, would he not have done just what Mr. Wilson did, sign it?"

"The Republican candidate stands for two things: First, for the principle of fair, impartial, thorough, candid, arbitration; and second, for legislation on facts according to the necessities of the case. Mr. Wilson stands for those two things and, much more, has pledged himself to use all his influence to secure them."

"What more could Mr. Hughes do? Would it be too much to ask the Republican candidate to put a little common fairness into his speeches? Is he afraid to tell his audiences what the President actually did urge upon Congress?"

"As a true champion of arbitration, President Wilson recommended that arbitration judgments be made records of a court of law, in order that their interpretation and enforcement may not be with the parties to the dispute, but with an impartial and authoritative tribunal." It was his purpose in this recommendation to provide against future emergencies, to prevent the recurrence of such dangers as then confronted him and the country.

ADVICE TO RAILROADS. "The people of the United States are not going to be put off with the misinformation as to what the President did to avert a strike and to prevent the threat of future strikes. We have reason to believe that the full revelation of what he did, what he tried to do, and what he nearly succeeded in doing in the White House conferences would put such a face upon the matter that Republican efforts to make an issue of it would fall entirely flat.

"But the people do know, for it was before them in the President's address to Congress, that he proposed, not a single emergency act, but a broad program of legislation to meet a public need and permanently remove a public danger. It was a program which we are convinced the railroads would be very wise to accept in its entirety."

"Certainly it seems to us that they are ill advised to pray for the election of Mr. Hughes, who, if we take him at his word, would have brought on the strike, with all its irreparable injuries to the country's business and peril for the country's peace."

"WATCHFUL WAITING" HAS SAVED A NATION'S LIFE

Mexican Envoy's Tribute to President Wilson's Policy.

Convincing testimony to the wisdom and justice of President Wilson's Mexican policy is brought from Mexico its by Luis Cabrera, one of Mexico's commissioners at the Joint Mexican-American Conference now in session at New London, Conn.

"I do not care to discuss political or international questions of any kind," said Senor Cabrera in a recent interview, "but I will say that in official circles of Mexico President Wilson is looked upon as one of the greatest men the United States ever has had as a leader. He is calm and considerate, and his much abused 'watchful waiting' policy has probably saved the life of my nation and prevented your country from entering into a needless struggle."

DEMOCRATIC PROMISES TO FARMERS FULFILLED

Benefits Under Wilson Set Forth in Official Pamphlet.

The Democratic platform of 1912 made this promise to the farmers of America:

"Of equal importance with the question of currency reform is the question of rural credits or agricultural finance. Therefore we recommend that an investigation of agricultural credit societies in foreign countries be made, so that it may be ascertained whether a system of rural credits may be devised suitable to conditions in the United States; and we also favor legislation permitting national banks to loan a reasonable proportion of their funds on real estate security."

"We recognize the value of vocational education, and urge Federal appropriations for such training and extension teaching in agriculture in co-operation with the several states."

"These pledges, with many other services to the farmer, have been completely fulfilled in the legislation of the present Administration. The record of Democratic Performance is offered in comparison with the Republican record of broken promises to the farmer, in an attractive pamphlet issued by the Democratic National Committee. Copies have been furnished to every Democratic State Committee for free distribution."

QUALITY

That is the Real Secret of the 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers Popularity

Whenever you see the Chalmers trade mark you always see the phrase "Quality First." Whenever you think Chalmers you think "Quality." And if you have been reading my ads or have been in my salesroom, you are impressed with the fact that the 3400 r. p. m. is a Chalmers car of unusual quality. I've often said that it is, in my opinion, the greatest car the Chalmers Company has built. And I have an excellent reason for saying this. It is a step ahead of any preceding Chalmers because it performs a shade better. The Quality in the new Chalmers is the kind of quality that tells on the road and tells wonderfully. Now it is just this exceptional quality, just this shade of improvement that has brought Chalmers sales and production ahead in leaps these 12 months past. I don't think the men in charge of affairs at the Chalmers factory realized what they had in the 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers. At any rate they underestimated the demand. They built more than they had ever produced in any previous season, 'tis true, but still not enough. The first making order was snapped up quickly. Then came a second lot. These went just as fast. Now the factory is building the third lot and I understand that Chalmers has no intention of stopping even there. Quality it was that caused this unprecedented demand. Chalmers certainly have the right idea in building cars. "Quality First."
