AT THE MOVIES SUNDAY NIGHT

A Big Seven Reel Triangle Program. Norma Talmadge, Seena Olson and Tully Marshall Appear

The story of the play, Martha's Vindication, to be shown at the Movies Sunday evening, October 22nd, is as follows:
In Martha's Vindication, Martha sacrifices her good name for her sister, and finally wins it back. Martha (Norma Talmadge) helps her sister, Dorotha (Seena Olson), to clear her name. Martha is later accused of being the mother of the child, Dorotha refuses to clear her name. Deacon Hunt (Tully Marshall) has married Dorotha. Martha implores to come to the church in the attack upon Martha. One night the council meets in the church and the royal Martha is unable to disprove the charge of being the mother of an illegitimate child. Schowen, (Tully Marshall), a shell game artist, who has joined the church for purpose of blackmail, appears in the role of accuser against Martha. Dorotha is sent for her baby, which she wishes to see before sending it away for safety. The auto which she takes to see the child is wrecked near the church. Dorotha implores to take the injured child and Martha is cleared of suspicion. The story ends happily with the forgiveness of Dorotha, and the marriage of Martha and sweetheart, John, (Edwin Harley) follows.

Educated Farmer Makes More Money

One-third of the farmers of Chicago county and New York state would be better off financially if they would place what money they have at 5 per cent and hire out as far laborers, according to the statements made to the members of the Wicks' investigating committee at the opening hearing held at Itasca, N. Y., recently. Another third of the farmers are just about breaking even, while the remaining third are making money these days. The meeting was held for the purpose of laying the base for constructive legislation later on which is expected to remedy matters both from the farmers' standpoint as well as that of the consumer. The German language at the disposal of the committee revealed that education plays a large part in the ultimate success of the farmer. The man who attended high school making twice as much from his farm as the man who did not, while the college man makes three times as much. Tabulations of data show that on 3,419 farms in thirteen counties in this state the farmer earned an average of $37 a year in addition to 5 per cent invested and the use of a house and such products as the farm furnished the home. One out of every 23 farmers in this state is making $3,000 a year or more.—B. D. White.

A PRETTY OCTOBER WEDDING

Miss Susan Laubach of New Fane Becomes the Bride of Martin Inkman. To Reside in Milwaukee

Last Monday morning at 9 o'clock at the St. Michaels church, St. Michaels, a very pretty wedding took place when Miss Agatha Laubach became the bride of Martin Inkman of Milwaukee. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Father of Allenton, a cousin of the bride. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Susan Laubach, as maid of honor, and by the Misses Kathryn Laubach and Martha Inkman as bridesmaids. The groom was attended by his brother, Harry Inkman, the Misses Constance Dworshek and Alice Brenner were flower girls. After the wedding ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where the wedding was celebrated with only close relatives in attendance. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Laubach of the town of Auburn. She is very well known in this locality. She is of a very charming disposition and will be a very faithful and loving companion. The groom hails from Milwaukee although not personally acquainted with him, he nevertheless is a very bright and industrious young man. The young couple left the same day for a short wedding trip, after which they will go housekeeping at Milwaukee. We extend hearty congratulations and best wishes.

High School Notes

The box social at the Opera House was both a social and financial success. Miss Liebig—Is this right class? I wish waste dress for ranner Hilda.—No it ought to be this way. Those Seniors have already ordered their class rings and will undoubtedly possess the class emblem within a few weeks. Vice president Hulda Oundt is this week assisting our President Leo Marx as the latter is unable to use his right hand. Lorinda Schaefer and Belinda Belger were persuaded to move into another seat on Friday, as their former seat could not stand the weight of tenants, therefore causing a breakdown. The Girls' Basket ball team will journey to Plymouth on Friday, Oct. 27, and play the High School team of that city. A large number of the students intend to accompany them. The Girls' Club on Thursday night initiated the Junior girls as members. The meeting was held in the school house, and the Juniors surely enjoyed eating wafers and skimming the cream. The Seniors held a meeting on Tuesday and decided to give the Juniors a Halloween party. Great preparations are being made by the members of the Senior class to entertain the Juniors in a most enjoyable manner.

Vote for Burke

Hon. M. E. Burke, the present congressman and the Democratic nominee, was the exponent of Progressive principles when first elected and his course in Congress fully justified the confidence that was then placed in him. He is a man of splendid ability and a public servant who is always guided by conscientious purposes. He is a forward looking Statesman with the courage of his convictions and by force of those qualities that make a leader of a public man he has acquired a very prominent position among the leaders in Congress. Because of his ability and character, his experience and the position he has reached, the district can find no better man for its representative than Congressman Burke. Vote for him on election day.—Lorinda Review.

BANK DOORS TO RE-OPEN

Most of the Shares in Campbell's Bank Institution Have Been Cleared Up. Will Elect New Directors

Out of five hundred shares in the First State Bank of Campbellport, which was closed several weeks ago, but a few have been cleared by payment of assessments levied against the stockholders. Yesterday Friday, the unredeemed shares were sold at public auction in the village of Campbellport. After all shares were redeemed a meeting was held by the stockholders for the purpose of increasing the membership of the board of directors from five to seven and to suggest the names of stockholders desirable to fill the vacancies in the board. It is expected that the bank will re-open to handle all transactions in banking business at once.

Receives 2093 Sheep

The Hartford Canning company received 2093 young lambs last Friday afternoon, the shipment coming from White Springs, Montana. The sheep were immediately unloaded and driven to Arthur Speth's farm, one mile north of the city, where they will be fattened on pea silage and placed on the market during the winter months. The sheep provide a good way of disposing of the peavines that accumulate during the summer's pack and their disposal this way proves very profitable, as fattened sheep always command a good price when placed on the market. They make a very pretty sight when they were driven out to the farm as they were herded so close that they looked like an immense white cloud going down the road.—Hartford Times.

Library Notes

When Helen H. Jackson wrote, "Ramona" she tried to portray to Congress and to the people of the United States the exact conditions that existed in California—the abuse and unjust treatment of the Indians by the white people. This wonderful story has been reproduced in the moving picture and is as instructive, historically as "The Birth of a Nation." Other stories of great interest are Elizabeth and her German Garden, The Adventures of Elizabeth in Rügen and Booth Tarkington's story "Penrod."

SELLING SHARES TO FARMERS

Representatives of the I. C. U. Sell Shares to Farmers for Packing and Storage Plant

Representatives of the Industrial Co-operative Union, which will be located at Milwaukee, have been interviewing the farmers in this vicinity the past week and were successful in interesting a large number, and selling shares to them. The object of the I. C. U. is to bring the producer and the consumer closer to each other. The Industrial Co-operative Union is being organized under the cooperative laws of Wisconsin, the capital stock being fixed at $500,000, divided into ten thousand shares, having a par value of $50 each. No one person can own or control more than twenty shares, and every one has only one vote at the meetings of the company regardless of the number of shares owned. The present directors and officers are temporary and will hold office only until the bulk of the shares are subscribed, then every member will receive a ten day notice of the meeting at which time the stockholders will elect permanent directors from among the share holders representing all the different localities having share holders. Permanent officers will also be elected at that time. The shares are issued as paid for and are fully paid and non-assessable.

The opportunities to be derived by the share holders will be that every one will be a part of the company, on the basis of the highest market price, and at the end of each year all profits will be paid to the members in proportion to the amount of products supplied after first paying not to exceed 8 per cent interest on the shares. Several of the most representative farmers of this locality are supporting this movement, which will eventually result in making both the farmer and the local market more prosperous. It is also the intention of the Union to have a station in the village to take care of both the buying and selling end. A meeting of the local society was held at Edw. Guth's place last Saturday evening, and the movement received a very favorable endorsement.

WATCHMAN SHOOTS

Fires on Prowler at Kessel Kar Factory in Hartford

Those who prowled around the factory buildings of the Kessel Kar factory in Hartford, Conn., had an opportunity to steal parts, should heed the warning given in an occurrence of last Monday night. At a late hour the night watchman discovered two men creeping around the east end of the buildings, evidently for no good purpose, and called to them to clear out, whereupon one of the men turned and fired at him. The watchman took out his revolver and returned the fire, and was rewarded by seeing one of the men clutch his arm and cry out "He got me in the arm." Both the men then disappeared into the night. Inquiry of the different doctors offices in this city has failed to reveal any one who was injured in the arm, and inquiry is being made at neighboring villages.—Hartford Press.

INDEPENDENT SWING TO WILSON INCREASES

As the campaign progresses, the Independent drift to President Wilson gains momentum and volume throughout the country.

The week's reports to the Woodrow Wilson Independent League being won that fifty-six new branches of the League have been established in Southern California, that the organization has been extended to every large community of North Dakota; that the President's success in averting war and in passing the Child Labor Law has won the women's vote in Colorado; that in the state of Washington ninety per cent of the Progressive and Independent voters have declared for Wilson; that in the great states of New York and Illinois the swing of the independent vote to Wilson approaches a stampede. Conservative estimates in southern California are that 85 per cent of the independent and Progressive vote of that state will be for the President, which will mean his carrying the electoral vote of California by the largest majority ever given any candidate. Lester Jacobs, who organized the northern California branch of the Independent League, is now in New York and states that it is only a question of how large a majority the President will obtain in California.

The Farmers for Wilson

From North Dakota, Melvin D. Hildreth, General Secretary of the Wilson League in that state reports: I have just returned from a two day tour across the northern part of the state. We had a special train and at every town there was an organized club to assist in the work of the distribution of literature. I never before have seen such enthusiasm. Wherever an indoor meeting was held it was necessary to turn hundreds of people away. And the outdoor meetings were attended by enormous crowds. I am firmly convinced that the farmers of the state are for Wilson.

GREEKS IN U. S. TO BE CALLED HOME

Provisional Government Wants Them for War Service.

FRENCH TROOPS GUARD KING

Allies Ready for Drastic Action Near Palace in Athens—Royalists Ask Sympathy and Protection of America.

London, Oct. 19.—The Greek provisional government has opened negotiations with the United States, says a dispatch from Athens to the Exchange Telegraph company, to secure freedom of action in recruiting Greeks in America.

Upon being officially recognized, the provisional government will send representatives to the United States and to Egypt and Cyprus to conduct recruiting campaigns.

Won't Attack Allies.

"The British minister to Greece had a long interview with King Constantine, says a Reuter dispatch from Athens, "and it is understood his majesty insisted on the groundlessness of the suspicion that Greece contemplated an attack on the forces of General Sarrail. As proof of his good faith the king is said to have declared his readiness to withdraw the Greek forces from Larissa."

Quetes Henry Clay.

Athens, Oct. 19, via London.—After the demonstration here against the entente allies, during which a procession of several thousand persons marched to the American legation and protested against the landing of French marines, a delegation of six persons called at the American legation and presented resolutions asking the sympathy and protection of the United States against the encroachments of the entente powers. The spokesman, M. Kiklis, said in English in presenting the resolutions:

"Henry Clay's speech in regard to Greece's struggle for liberty, as well as one by Daniel Webster, said the struggle would be made meaningless if the liberties of Greece had been subsequently lost."

Will Forward Petition.

The American minister, Garrett Droppers, promised to forward the petition to Washington. Following is the resolution:

"In the name of the people spontaneously assembled before the legation yesterday evening, to come to you as a representative of the great, free, liberal American people, to register with you and through you to the people you so worthily represent the protest of the Greek people:

"The Greek citizen has decided to remain neutral because he does not think it to his interest to participate in the European war, and on this account he has become the victim of coercion by the rival groups engaged in the struggle. During the year past the rival groups gradually abolished all the functions of the Greek state, and now one of the groups even occupies our capital.

"We are aware the American people always have fought for liberty against slavery, and therefore appeal to their powerful influence to avert the subjugation of those who desire only to remain free.

"Owing to our exceptional position with respect to the powers in the conflict, such influence can be exercised efficaciously only by America. We trust that the noble American people will lend a sympathetic ear to our appeal and call for three cheers for the American people. Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah!"

Reports of U. S. Fleet.

Mr. Droppers expressed the opinion that the demonstration and appeal to America were due to the reports of the coming of an American fleet.

On the initiative of the central powers Washington has been asked to permit the American legation here to take charge of Austrian, Bulgarian and Turkish interests in case of a declaration of war by Greece or other complications. Permission has been given as regards Austria.

Three hundred French marines were transferred from the municipal theater to the Zappion Exposition building, within 400 yards of the king's palace.

They marched through the streets with bayonets fixed and trumpets blowing, accompanied by moving picture apparatus and an automobile with Franco-British secret police.

NOTORIOUS SWINDLER FOUND

Henri Rochette, Sentenced in $20,000,000 Bucket-Shop Game, Is Captured.

Paris, Oct. 19.—The disappearance of the notorious Henri Rochette, who was sentenced to three years' imprisonment in 1912, in connection with $20,000,000 bucket-shop swindles, has been cleared up by his arrest at Granville. Under the name of Georges Blomaine, Rochette enlisted in Paris as a motorcyclist in the first month of the war, and was stationed at Amiens.

Has Warship of Great Speed.

Rome, Oct. 19.—Italy now possesses a type of warship whose speed is three times as great as that of the greatest trans-Atlantic liner, according to the Giornale d'Italia.

GERMANS LOSE TOWN

FRENCH CAPTURE VILLAGE OF SAILLY-SALLISEL.

Berlin Admits Enemy Penetrated Position—Many Air Battles on Western Front.

Paris, Oct. 19.—The official statement issued here is as follows: "North of the Somme we completed the conquest of Sailly-Sallisel and are driving the enemy northwest and northeast of the village.

"South of the Somme the German first line was stormed on the front between Maisonette and Baches. In these two sections we took 250 prisoners, of whom five were officers. We also took several machine guns.

"On the rest of the front there was the usual artillery activity.

"Despite foggy weather our aviators were active. On the day of the 17th three enemy aeroplanes were brought down on the Somme front. One fell at Haize Court Le Haut, the second east of Bouchavesnes, and the third, attacked by Lieutenant Haurteaux, was destroyed between Rocquigny and Transloy, bringing up to nine the number of aeroplanes brought down by this pilot.

"One of our aviators attacked three Fokkers between Roye and Lassigny. He brought down one of his adversaries and put the other two to flight."

Berlin, Oct. 19 (wireless via Sayville).—The official report issued at grand headquarters says:

"Western theater—Army group of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria: The artillery combat attained considerable strength, especially north of the Somme on large sectors. The British attacked between Le Sars and Guedecourt and the French from Les Bouefs to Rancourt in the evening. Our annihilating fire directed against the crowded enemy trenches broke up the attack which was ready to begin.

"Near Guedecourt there was hand-to-hand fighting. Our positions were completely maintained. The French, rallying forth from the district of Morval and Rancourt, were repulsed after hard fighting. The enemy penetrated Sailly. The fighting is still going on.

"Enemy advances in the neighborhood of their main objectives near Thiepval, Courcellette and Bouchavesnes failed utterly.

WILSON'S HAND IS INJURED

Skin Is Torn From President's Fingers by the Violent Handshaking While on Way to Chicago.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Here at the capital of New York a great crowd packed the railway station platform and struggled for a chance to shake hands with President Wilson, en route to Chicago, where he will make three speeches today. The president thanked them for their enthusiasm and waved his hand again and again as the crowd cheered.

"There is too much noise for me to be heard," Mr. Wilson said. "I am a poor hand at commending myself. You know the record of the administration, and I am perfectly content to leave my case in the hands of the jury."

As the train drew out of the station the president's right hand was bleeding, the skin having been worn from his fingers by the vigor of the handshaking.

Mr. Wilson quickly wrapped his handkerchief about the injured hand and continued to shake hands until the train was in motion again. Later Dr. Gary T. Grayson dressed the wound and announced that it would be unsafe for the president to shake hands any more during the remainder of the trip.

RIOTING AT ATHENS

GREEK ROYALISTS ASSAULT FRENCH SAILORS AND ADMIRAL WHO SEIZED FLEET.

AID ASKED OF U. S. MINISTER

Demonstrators Appeal to the American Legation for Protection From Invaders—Drastic Note Handed King by Entente.

London, Oct. 19.—A Reuter's dispatch from Athens says:

"The situation appears to be dangerous. There have been royalist demonstrations in the streets. Vice Admiral du Fournet, commander of the entente allied fleet in the Mediterranean, was hissed and a detachment of French sailors was driven back by a hostile crowd.

"A procession of some 4,000 malcontents, headed by the Greek and American flags, stopped outside the American legation, protested against the landing of foreign marines and demanded the protection of the American minister, who was absent.

"The demonstrators then paraded the streets, singing the Greek national anthem."

Vice Admiral du Fournet has handed the Greek government a new note of an extremely grave character, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company from Athens. Following the presentation of the note King Constantine, it is added, came to the capital in haste from the royal residence at Tatoi.

Rioting in the streets of Athens followed the presentation of the latest entente demands upon Greece.

The railway stations of Athens and Piræus, the city hall at the capital and the Castalia barracks have been occupied by 1,000 French and Italian sailors, while 150 bluejackets with two machine guns have been stationed in the municipal theater, according to a Reuter dispatch from Athens.

An urgent cabinet council has been summoned.

It is officially explained, adds the dispatch, that the detachments landed will assist the police in stopping demonstrations which threaten trouble.

It was the words of the king himself, addressed to the sailors discharged from the Greek warships Kilkis, Lemnos and Averoff, which have been seized by the allies, which so inflamed the Athens populace as to lead to an attack on the French marines.

The king pictured Greece prostrate under the heel of stronger powers.

"This day your lips are moistened with a bitter poison," he told his sailors. "Your souls, looking for a united, victorious Greece, see her bleeding from fresh wounds."

"My government was compelled to give you orders to quit your ships," he cried, "and, faithful to your vow of loyalty to your king, you obeyed."

Greece is believed to be on the brink of revolution.

The entente allies have taken over the Greek battleship Kilkis (formerly the U. S. battleship Idaho), the Lemnos (formerly the Mississippi) and the Averoff, says Reuter's Athens correspondent.

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise." # The DESTROYING ANGEL

By Louis Joseph Vance

Can you imagine yourself dead for five years? Suppose at the end of that time you turned up suddenly among old friends in New York city, asked for an accounting of your estate and announced your intention of finding the girl you had married under pressure before you disappeared—much to their shocked surprise! That's the position in which we find Hugh Whitaker in this installment. How his plans ruin the important plans of others about him, how he creates a furore at a big theatrical performance and how he finds his wife, is told with dramatic effect.

Whitaker laughed quietly and turned the conversation, accepting the manager's pseudo-confidences at their face value—that is, as pure bluff, quite consistent with the managerial pose.

They rose presently and made their way out into the crowded, blatant night of Broadway.

"We'll walk, if you don't mind," Max suggested. "It isn't far, and I'd like to get a line on the house as it goes in." He sighed affectedly. "Heaven knows when I'll see another swell audience mobbing one of my attractions!"

They pushed forward slowly through the eddying tides, elbowed by a matchless motley of humanity, dazzled by its thousand tongues, dazzled to blindness by walls of living light. Whitaker experienced a sensation of participating in a royal progress; Max was pining for a man of mark; he left a wake of rippling interest. At every third step somebody hailed him, as a rule by his first name; generally he responded by a curt nod and a tightening of his teeth upon his cigar.

They turned east through Forty-sixth street, shouldered by a dense rabble whose faces, all turned in one direction, shone livid with the glare of a gigantic electric sign, midway down the block:

THEATER MAX SARA LAW'S FAREWELL.

It was nearly half-past eight; the house had been open since seven; and still a queue ran from the gallery doors to Broadway. The lobby itself was crowded to suffocation with an accidental durbur of barbaric magnificence, the city's supreme manifestation of its religion, the ultimate rite in the worship of the pomps of the flesh.

"Look at that," Max grumbled through his cigar. "Ain't it a shame?"

"What?" Whitaker had to lift his voice to make it carry above the buzzing of the throng.

"The money I'm losing," returned the manager, vividly disgusted. "I could've filled the Metropolitan opera house three times over!"

He swung on his heel and began to push his way out of the lobby. "Come along—no way trying to get in this way."

Whitaker followed, to be led down a blind alley, between the theater and the adjoining hotel. An illuminated sign advertised the stage door, through which, via a brief hallway, they entered the postscenium and—Max dragging him by the arm—passed through a small door into the gangway behind the boxes.

"Curtain's just up," Max told him; "Sara doesn't come on till near the middle of the act. Make yourself comfortable; I'll be back before long."

He drew aside a curtain and ushered his guest into the right-hand stage-box, then vanished. The few empty stalls were rapidly filling up. There was a fluent movement through the aisles. A subdued hum and rustle rose from that portion of the audience which was already seated. The business going on upon the stage was receiving little attention—from Whitaker as little as from anyone. The opening scene in the development of the drama interested the gathering little or not at all; it was hanging in suspense upon the unfolding of some extraordinary development, something unprecedented and extraneous, foreign to the play.

Max slipped quietly into the box and handed his guest a program. "Better get over here," he suggested in a hoarse whisper, indicating a chair near the rail. "You may never have another chance to see the greatest living actress. Wonderful house," he whispered, sitting down behind Whitaker. "Drummond hasn't shown up yet, though."

"That so?" Whitaker returned over his shoulder.

"Yes; it's funny; never knew him to be so late. He always has the aisle seat, fourth row, center. But he'll be along presently."

He glanced idly at his program, indifferently absorbing the information that "Jules Max has the honor to present Miss Sara Law in her first and greatest success entitled 'Jann Thursday—a play in three acts—'"

The audience stirred expectantly; a movement ran through it like the movement of waters, murmurous, upon a shore. Whitaker's gaze was drawn to the stage as if by an imperceptible force. Max shifted on the chair behind him and said something indistinguishable, in an unnatural tone.

A woman had come upon the stage, suddenly and tempestuously, banging a door behind her. The audience got the barest glimpse of her profile as, pausing momentarily, she eyed the other actors. Then, without speaking, she turned and walked up-stage, her back to the footlights.

Applause broke out like a thunder-clap, pealing heavily through the big auditorium, but the actress showed no consciousness of it. She was standing before a cheap mirror, removing her hat, arranging her hair with the typical, unconscious gestures of a weary shopgirl; she was acting—living the scene, with no time to waste in pandering to her popularity by bows and set smiles; she remained before the glass, prolonging the business, until the applause subsided.

Whitaker received an impression as of a tremendous force at work across the footlights. The woman diffused an affect as of a terrible and boundless energy under positive control. She was not merely an actress, not even merely a great actress; she was the very soul of the drama of today.

Beyond this he knew in his heart that she was his wife. Sara Law was the woman he had married in that sleepy Connecticut town, six years before that night. He had not yet seen her face clearly, but he knew. To find himself mistaken would have shaken the foundations of his understanding.

Under cover of the applause, he turned to Max.

"Who is that? What is her name?"

"The divine Sara," Max answered, his eyes shining.

"I mean, what is her name off the stage, in private life?"

"The same," Max nodded with conviction; "Sara Law's the only name she's ever worn in my acquaintance with her."

At that moment, the applause having subsided to such an extent that it was possible for her to make herself heard, the actress swung round from the mirror and addressed one of the other players. Her voice was clear, strong and vibrant, yet sweet; but Whitaker paid no heed to the lines she spoke. He was staring, fascinated, at her face.

Sight of it set the seal of certainty upon conviction: She was one with Mary Ladislus. He had forgotten her so completely in the lapse of years as to have been unable to recall her features and coloring, yet he had needed only to see to recognize her beyond any possibility of doubt. Those big, intensely burning eyes, that drawn and pallid face, the quick, nervous movements of her thin white hands, the slenderness of her tall, awkward, immature figure—in every line and contour, in every gesture and inflection, she reproduced the Mary Ladislus whom he had married.

He Knew in His Heart That She Was His Wife.

And yet . . . Max was whispering over his shoulder: "Wonderful make-up—what?"

"Make-up!" Whitaker retorted. "She's not made up—she's herself to the last detail."

Amusement glimmered in the manager's round little eyes: "You don't know her. Wait till you get a pipe at her off the stage." Then he checked the reply that was slipping on Whitaker's lips, with a warning lift of his hand and brows: "Sh! Catch this, now. She's a wonder in this scene."

The superb actress behind the counterfeiter of the hunted and hungry shopgirl was holding spellbound with her inevitable witchery the most sophisticated audience in the world; like water in a windstorm it swayed to the modulations of her marvelous voice as it ran through a passage-at-arms with the turgid, suddenly ceasing to speak, she turned down to a chair near the footlights, followed by a torrent of shrill vituperation under the lash of which she quivered like a whipped thoroughbred.

Abruptly, pausing with her hands on the back of the chair, there came a change. The actress had glanced across the footlights; Whitaker could not but follow the direction of her gaze; but the eyes of both focussed for a brief instant on the empty aisle-seat in the fourth row. A shade of additional pallor showed on the woman's face. She looked quickly, questioningly, toward the box of her manager.

Seated as he was so near the stage, Whitaker's face stood out in rugged relief, illumined by the glow reflected from the footlights. It was inevitable that she should see him. Her eyes fastened, dilating, upon his. The scene faltered perceptibly. She stood transfixed. . . .

In the hush Max cried impatiently: "What the devil!" The words broke the spell of amazement upon the actress. In a twinkling the pitiful counterfeiter of the shopgirl was rent and torn away; it hung only in shreds and tatters upon an individuality wholly strange to Whitaker; a larger, stronger woman seemed to have started out of the mask.

She turned, calling imperatively into the wings: "Ring down!"

With a rush the curtain descended as pandemonium broke out on both sides of it.

CHAPTER VI.

The Late Extra.

Impulsively Whitaker got up to follow Max, then hesitated and sank back in doubt, his head awhirl. He was for the time being shocked out of all capacity for clear reasoning or right thinking. Uppermost in his consciousness he had a half-formed notion that it wouldn't help matters if he were to force himself in upon the crisis behind the scenes.

Beyond all question his wife had recognized in him the man whom she had been given every reason to believe dead; a discovery so unerving as to render her temporarily unable to continue.

This, then, explained Drummond's reluctance to have him bidden to the supper party; whatever ultimate course of action he planned to pursue, Drummond had been unwilling, perhaps pardonably so, to have his romance overthrown and altogether shattered in a single day. He had lied, lied desperately, doubtless meaning to encompass a marriage before Whitaker could find his wife, and so furnish him with every reason that could influence an honorable man to disappear a second time.

On the other hand, Max to a certainty was ignorant of the relationship between his star and his old time friend, just as he must have been ignorant of her identity with the one time Mary Ladislus. For that matter, Whitaker had to admit that, damning as was the evidence to controvert the theory, Drummond might be just as much in the dark as Max was. It was only fair to suspend judgment. In the meantime . . .

The audience was getting beyond control. In the gallery the gods were beginning to testify to their normal intolerance with shrill whistles, cat-calls, sporadic bursts of hand-clapping and a steady, sinister rumble of stamping feet. In the orchestra and dress circle people were moving about restlessly and talking at the top of their voices in order to make themselves heard above the growing din.

Abruptly Max himself appeared at one side of the proscenium arch. It was plain to those nearest the stage that he was seriously disturbed. There was a noticeable hesitancy in his manner, a pathetic frenzy in his habitually mild and lustrous eyes. Advancing halfway to the middle of the apron, he paused, begging attention with a pudgy hand. It was a full minute before the gallery would let him be heard.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he announced plaintively, "I much regret to inform you that Miss Law has suffered a severe nervous shock"—his gaze wandered in perplexed inquiry toward the right-hand stagebox, then was hastily averted—"and will not be able to continue."

Wave upon wave of sound swept through the auditorium to break, roaring, against the obdurate curtain. Max with difficulty contrived to make himself disconnectedly audible.

"Ladies and . . ." he shouted, sweat bending his perturbed forehead . . . "Regret . . . impossible to continue . . . money . . . box office . . ."

An angry howl drowned him out. He retreated at accelerated discretion.

Whitaker, slipping through the stage door behind the boxes, ran into the stage manager standing beside the first entrance, heatedly explaining to anyone who would listen the utter utility of offering box-office prices in return for seat checks which in the majority of instances had cost their holders top-notch speculator prices.

"They'll wreck the theater," he shouted excitedly, mopping his brow with his coat sleeve, "what'll I do she wana pull a raw one like this for?"

Whitaker caught his arm in a grasp compelling attention.

Well, what's your guess? Will Whitaker's wife receive him with gratitude and open arms—because he saved her honor long ago—or will she look him over calmly and chase him off the place?

GOVERNOR SEEKS TROOPS' RELEASE

Appeals to Secretary of War in Behalf of Men in the Badger Brigade.

FEARS EFFECT OF CLIMATE

Executive Thinks Soldiers May Suffer If They Are Sent Home From South in the Midst of Cold Weather.

Madison.—Gov. E. L. Philipp in a letter forwarded to the secretary of war asks for the immediate release of the entire Wisconsin National Guard from service on the border, unless the present need of the United States is urgent and immediate.

In asking that the troops be sent home at once, Governor Philipp points out that if their release is deferred until winter the health of many may be endangered and that others who find themselves out of work will have a difficult task to find employment.

"If released and demobilized, the entire Wisconsin brigade can at need and on call of the president of the United States be again assembled and concentrated in the Texas camps where it is now quartered, within six days after the receipt of the call," the missive reads.

These Wisconsin men in arms are primarily citizens quite all dependent for livelihood upon civil employment. The avocations of many are such as render exposure to out of door weather absolutely necessary.

These representations are not made to secure the present release of Wisconsin troops in federal service if the need of the United States is so urgent as to demand their continuous service.

The governor also wrote that competent judges consider the Badger soldiers fairly fit for service anywhere and expressed the fear that the winter season in Texas would limit the scope and possibility of further training except under conditions of excessive and unnecessary exposure.

Soldiers Given Vote.

Two bills, one permitting Badger troops stationed near the border to vote if they are there on November 7, and the other enabling students, travelers and workmen away from home to vote by mail became laws after they were passed by the legislature at its special session and were signed by Governor Philipp.

The legislature was in session only a day and a half and adjourned after attending to the business for which it was called by the governor.

The bills both emanated from the governor's office and had his support. The measure permitting soldiers on the border to vote was introduced by Assemblyman E. A. Everett, Eagle River. The other bill enabling students, traveling men, mechanics and all other voters away from home on election day to vote by mail in their home precincts was presented by Assemblyman Carl Hansen, Manitowoc, and fathered by him.

The Everett bill passed the house unanimously and the Hansen bill was opposed by only three members, Edwards, Johnson and McGowan, final vote being 73 to 3.

The Hansen bill extends the time for printing ballots and filing nomination papers and gives other aids to county clerks and election officials. It permits anyone not registered and outside of his precinct on election day to file an affidavit, declaring his right to vote, with his election officials. The affidavit must be signed by two freeholders of his precinct. Then he is registered and a ballot sent to him, which he votes and returns on election day and it is to be presented to the proper election officials by one of the two freeholders.

The Everett bill applies only to members of the National Guard in the field. Under it the secretary of state is to send messengers with ballots to the demand mines of South Africa. Peterson one night robbed Eckhardt of his diamonds and disappeared. Eckhardt came to America and took up the life of a tramp. One night in a camp near Jefferson another tramp drifted into the glow of the camp fire. It was Peterson. During the night Eckhardt shot him, for revenge. Another tramp, intending to rob the body of Peterson, went back and found him alive. He killed Peterson with a hatchet. Eckhardt was caught and sentenced.

the voters, are to be destroyed before the ballots are counted. The returns are to be certified by counties to the county clerks and then added to the total vote in the counties by the respective county boards of canvassers. The bill bears a clause providing that illegal voters are to be returned to the state and punished.

Early Badger History Shown.

An historical relief map of Wisconsin showing all places of historical importance has recently been prepared by the State Historical society and is now on exhibition at the State Historical museum. This is the first attempt to make an historical map of the state.

Marked on the map are the Indian villages, fur trading posts, discoverers and travelers, missions, forts, industrial beginnings, capitals, mining settlements, county seats, and other cities with the dates of their settlement. The railroads prior to 1860, the military road from Fort Howard to Fort Winnebago, and the old trail from Chicago to Green Bay are shown. The boundaries of the territory of all the Indian tribes with the dates of the cession of that territory to the state are also given.

The data for the map was compiled by W. O. Hotchkiss and E. T. Thwaites of the Wisconsin state geological survey. The map is about four feet square.

Students Cost $135 Each.

Wisconsin gave $1,169,471.53 to her state university for the instruction of 5,131 regular students and 2,784 summer-session students, and for research work at Madison last year, according to a summary of the business manager's report read to the board of regents by President C. R. Van Hise.

The figures were presented in answer to the statement that the state spends $3,000,000 a year, or about $500 per student. Although it is difficult to separate research and instruction costs, it is evident that the cost to the state per student did not exceed $135, he said.

The misconception is due, he pointed out, to the change to the budget system adopted by the 1911 legislature, whereby many funds, derived from other sources than the state treasury, are paid into the treasury by the university and reappropriated. Such "reverting accounts" include athletic expenditures, various extension expenses, dormitories and other costs.

Long-Term Prisoner Freed.

Edward Eckhardt, for 38 years a convict in the state penitentiary at Waupun, has been pardoned by Governor Philipp. Eckhardt has been on parole for the past year or two, and the action of the governor gives him his full freedom.

Eckhardt was sentenced to life imprisonment for killing his partner, Charles Peterson, in a hobo camp near Jefferson Junction. The story of this crime dates back to the diamond mines of South Africa. Peterson one night robbed Eckhardt of his diamonds and disappeared. Eckhardt came to America and took up the life of a tramp. One night in a camp near Jefferson another tramp drifted into the glow of the camp fire. It was Peterson. During the night Eckhardt shot him, for revenge. Another tramp, intending to rob the body of Peterson, went back and found him alive. He killed Peterson with a hatchet. Eckhardt was caught and sentenced.

Bat Slips; Fractures Jaw. Marinette.—While playing indoor baseball Ben H. LeRoy was seriously injured when a bat slipped from the hands of a teammate and struck LeRoy on the side of the face, fracturing his upper jaw.

Falls in Boiling Water. Stevens Point.—Five-year-old See Reinhart, son of Ray Reinhart, was terribly scalded when he fell backwards into a tub of boiling water his mother had set on the floor for scrubbing.

Bon Schaulplatz des europäischen Völkerkrieges

Von beruhter Seite vom ersten Beantworte des deutschen Reiches, ist vor wenigen Tagen die militärische Lage Europas in kurzen Worten aus einandergelegt worden. Der deutsche Reichsfanzler hat nunmehr bekannt gegeben, dass Deutschland sich im Westen auf die Verteidigung beschränken, dafür aber auf dem östlichen Kriegsschauplatz offen tätig sein werde. Dies wurde zwar nicht wörtlich erklärt, doch lassen seine Worte keine andere Deutung zu und so wurden sie auch, wie die Berliner „Germania" jagt, vom deutschen Volke aufgefasst. In Paris oder London hätte man bei dieser Gelegenheit das Mundwerk sehr voll genommen und eine große Offensive angekündigt, und man kann die deutschen Presskommentare würdigen, die erklären, dass sie in der Kanzlerrede gerne die Fanfaren nach Paris, und Londoner Hüter vermieden. Das deutsche Volk bedarf ihrer nicht. Das deutsche Volk bringt seinen Führern ein durch die Vergangenheit gerechtfertigtes Vertrauen entgegen, das weder durch kleine Rückschläge noch durch die Lügen der Entente - Presse in seinen Grundfesten erschüttert werden kann. Das hat die Entente - Offensive der Alliierten mehr als alles andere bewiesen. Die Kommentare der deutschen Presse und die Versicherungen kompetenter Persönlichkeiten atmen dasselbe Vertrauen und dieselbe Zuversicht wie zu Anfang des Krieges.

Eine kurze Uebersicht über die aktuelle militärische Lage kann diese Vertrauen nur noch weiter befestigen, denn Deutschlands Sache steht gut schon deshalb, weil durch den Zusammenbruch der russischen Massenoffensive und die Verhinderung eines russisch - rumänischen Durchbruchs die Initiative in deutschen Händen geblieben ist.

Auf die Bedeutung der Kämpfe bei Hermannstadt ist in den Berichten schon wiederholt hingewiesen worden. Die Tatsache, daß General von Falkenhayn, der bisherige Chef des deutschen Generalstabes, einer der hervorragendsten Führer auf deutscher Seite, mit dieser Aufgabe betraut wurde, spricht für die Wichtigkeit des Unternehmens. Man hätte dem früheren Generalstabchef wohl kaum diesen Posten übertragen, wenn seine ganze Aufmerksamkeit nur darin bestanden hätte, Hermannstadt zu verteidigen, und es ist viel plausibler anzunehmen, daß General von Falkenhayn den Befehl hat, einen Durchbruch nach Sibirien zu versuchen und weithin von Vorkreit mit der Aufrichtung der rumänischen Front zu beginnen.

Bemerkenswert ist das gänzliche Verlegen der rumänischen - russischen Offensive im Gebiete von Dornabatra, dem gegebenen Angriffspunkte gegen Serbien. Ungeachtet, weil von Dornabatra aus die großen Eisenbahnen über Klausenburg nach dem Süden Sibiens bis zum letzten ins untere Donau führen, wenn nur die Berge nicht wären. Sie und die Truppen der deutschen Verbündeten haben ein Vorbringen der Feinde dort trotz der größten Anstrengungen unmöglich gemacht und werden dies auch in der Zukunft tun, denn trotz des neuen Bundesgenossen ist die russische Stoßkraft bedenklich erlahmt, die Ereignisse der letzten Wochen haben dies mit überzeugender Deutlichkeit bewiesen. Wie der Reichsfanzler selbst sagte, sind schwere Kämpfe im Osten zu erwarten. Es liegt auf der Hand, daß Russland sich nicht von der gewöhnlichen Kommanden deutschen Offensiven im Osten überrollen lassen will. Für diesen Zweck werden die Kräfte gespart.

Die Bulgaren haben ihre Stellung auf der ganzen Front, namentlich aber auf dem westlichen Flügel, stetig verbessert und dies trotz wiederholter Angriffe der verbündeten Serben, Russen und Franzosen. Die Höhen von Kaimakalan, die Konstantin und den ganzen südlichen Teil des früheren Serbien gegen Sibirien schützen soll, bleiben fest in bulgarischen Händen. Die Meldungen über ferbische Soldaten, die auf dem heimathlichen Boden kämpften, gehören ins Reich der Fabel. Man hat auch seit Tagen nichts mehr davon gehört, und ihnen ist es vielleicht ergangen wie den braven Donaukafas, die drei Tagemärche weit in Ungarn eingebunden waren. Sie sind auch auf Nimmerwiedersehen verschunden, weil sie eben nicht existiert haben.

Dieselben überdimensionalen Zusammenstellungen, die in diesem Falle durch die Tatsachen als solche gekennzeichnet werden, kommen auch vom westlichen Kriegsschauplatz zu uns. Alles geht auf das Eindringen des Alliierten, und man darf sicher gehen, daß Pierpont Morgan's Reife nach London, um dort eine neue $250,000,000 - Anleihe anzuknüpfen, mit den hysterischen Bemühungen der Entente - Presse und ihrer jämmerlichen Ableger in unermesslicher Zahl, sehr viel zu tun hat.

Die Gesamtverluste der Briten während drei Monate der Sommerkampagne betragen, wie nach den antiken Berichten auszugehen ist, mehr als 300,000 Mann, im Monat September mehr als 8000 Mann pro Tag. Die Errungenschaften der gesamten Offensive stellen sich in ihrem bisher weitesten Umfang in der Befestigung von Cambes und einer geringfügigen Verlängerung der Angriffsfront nördlich bei Trepval und am Südende bei Bernandobillers dar. An einzelnen Stellen des Kampfgebietes wegen die Kämpfe zurückgefallen, wie Cambes gefallen ist, aber nur nach einer nochmaligen und für die Alliierten vielleicht katastrophalen Schwächung ihrer Kräfte.

Was den deutschen Krieg, d. h. die Möglichkeit die deutsche Front trotz einiger Teilerlöse zu halten, vor allen Dingen ermöglicht, ist das durch die deutsche Verteidigung bedingte langsame Vordringen der Alliierten, das ein Ausbauen weiterer fest besetzter Stellungen hinter einer verlorenen Stellung gestattet. Immer wieder werden die Alliierten neue „erite und zweite Linien" der Deutschen zu nehmen haben, bis ihre im Untabde geschwächten Kräfte verfallen. Dieser Zeitpunkt wird und muß kommen, er ist eine absolute Notwendigkeit, bedingt durch die fürchterlichen Opfer, mit denen die Alliierten ihre Vorteile zu bezahlen haben.

Das Fazit der besprochenen Tatsachen, aus denen das Unmögliche des Durchbruchs durch die deutsche Front hervorgeht, ist vor allen Dingen das, daß das Vertrauen derer, die auf Deutschlands vollständigen Sieg bauen, auf unumstößlichen Tatsachen aufgebaut ist, die durch nichts aus der Welt geschafft werden können.

Handelvertrag mit der Schweiz.

London. In dem Handelsabkommen zwischen Deutschland und der Schweiz wird, wie dem Neutlichen Bureau auf Grund einer Berliner Depesche von Antwerpen bekannt gegeben worden, bestimmt, daß die eigenen Erzeugnisse der beiden Länder, sowie die Waren, die in jedem der beiden Länder angefertigt werden, ausgetauscht werden können, soweit sie nicht für den heimischen Verbrauch benötigt werden.

Deutschland soll sich zur moralischen Vierung von 253,000 Tonnen Kohlen, sowie auch von bedeutenden Mengen von Stahl und Eisen verpflichtet haben, deren die Schweiz für ihren eigenen Gebrauch bedarf. Beide Teile einigen sich darauf, daß die Frage der Ausfuhr - Erlaubnisse so schnell als möglich zur Entscheidung kommen soll.

Mit Bezug auf deutsche in der Schweiz angehaltene Waren, für die zur Zeit keine Ausfuhrerlaubnis gemeldet werden kann, hat die Schweiz sich verpflichtet, diese Waren anzuhalten und sie nach Beendigung des Krieges Deutschland zurückzugeben. Geheime im Ausfuhr von Kriegsmaterial, das in der Schweiz aus Rohmaterial gefertigt worden, welches aus Deutschland stammt, werden behufs Genehmigung einem schweizerischen Sonderausschuß unterbreitet werden.

Dieses Abkommen erklärt, wie es in der Depesche heißt, im April 1917.

NO U. S. EDICT ON U-BOAT IS PLANNED

Won't Make Declaration of Policy to Britain.

RAID OF U-53 HELD LEGAL

Washington Government Satisfied That There Has Been No Violation of Neutrality by the American Destroyers.

Washington, Oct. 19.—There have been no indications in official circles here that the United States would make any declaration of policy regarding the U-53's visit to the western Atlantic, as intimated in the British house of lords, unless evidence of a violation of international law developed. The raid off Nantucket is viewed as an isolated case, in no way reopening the general submarine issue, and it is understood all the information gathered thus far indicates that the submarine's activities were held within legal bounds.

No Formal Comment.

Officials consistently have declined to make any formal comment on the U-53's exploits while the inquiry is in progress, but surprise was apparent at the suggestion that the submarine may have secured information illegally through newspapers taken aboard at Newport. That point apparently has not been considered here as entering prominently into the case.

It was suggested that a wide difference might be found in the entrance of a belligerent into a neutral port for supplies, which is recognized as legal, and an attempt such as that made by the British cruiser Suffolk to secure supplies from neutral sources while on the high sea.

In this connection it was recalled that freedom of the harbor was granted the French cruiser Amiral Aube when she put into Pensacola last August, and that no diplomatic issue was made over the incident, although the French captain took aboard what he described as an important packet of papers from the French consul.

It has been indicated clearly that the government was satisfied there was no violation of neutrality or international law by the rescue flotilla of American destroyers.

Awaits U. S. Decision.

London, Oct. 19.—The British government will not make any official representation to the United States concerning the German submarine U-53 pending an announcement of its attitude by the American government. Viscount Grey, secretary of state for foreign affairs, declared in the house of lords.

The question concerning the German submarine raid in American waters was raised by Baron Charles Beresford, former commander of the British home fleet; Earl Grey, former governor general of Canada, and others. Baron Beresford asked whether British cruisers were removed from American waters, owing to American objections, and if so, what steps the government proposed for the protection of British vessels. He criticized the submarine reply as at least curt and said the American ideas of neutrality were curious.

Earl Grey wanted an assurance that the report was untrue that American commanders of destroyers had acceded to the requests of the German commander to clear out of the way and give him room to blow up ships.

Lord Beresford expressed the hope that the situation would not be allowed to remain as it was, as it would lead to irritation.

WM. THAW REPORTED KILLED

Yale Member of American Ambulance Sends Word of Death of Millionaire Flyer in Action.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 19.—William Thaw, the American aviator, who is a member of the French flying corps, was killed in action, according to news received at Yale in a letter from S. S. Walker, Yale 1917, to Lytleton H. P. Gould, Yale, 1918. Walker is a member of the American Ambulance corps in France. The part of the letter referring to Thaw is quoted as follows:

"Two of the American aviators have got the wooden cross in the last week. We have just heard that Bill Thaw, Yale, ex-'15, was killed a few days ago. It didn't come out in the papers."

The letter bore the date of September 29.

Thaw was one of 30 American aviators who have distinguished themselves in the French squadron. He is the son of Mrs. Benjamin Thaw of Pittsburgh and a cousin of Harry K. Thaw.

Boston, Oct. 19.—The United States circuit court of appeals ruled that members of the militia were still in service for federal military purpose, notwithstanding their failure to take the oath under the national defense act of last June. This decision reverses a recent order of the federal district court. The case was considered a test.

MOVIE "SUPERS" IN PROTEST

Claim Salaries Do Not Fit Increased Duties and Responsibilities of the Work.

The "supers" of the moving pictures to the number of ten thousand have appealed to the American Federation of Labor to help them. The days when in the "legitimate" they could get several dollars a night for looking the part have given place to long hours of exposure to bumps and thumps and thrilling mauling and falling, for a wage scale seriously reduced, they maintain, by the exorbitant commissions demanded by the agents.

The public is no longer satisfied to let a dummy fall from a cliff or jump from a motor car to a train, or stab a man-eating shark, or purloin the cubs of a she-bear in her den. It expects the "super" himself to be an "Injarrubber" (juggler) lithe and resilient, whether he is dropped from a house roof or smothered under a haywain. He must be a glutton for punishment, and unite to the indurated symmetry of a marble faun the lungs of a Ted Merdith and the muscles of a Howard Berry.

Yet for all this he is to have the pay of a stevedore or a station porter. He thinks he deserves the wages of a Mexican bullfighter, at least. He suffers from competition. He is a "super-numerary." He gets the wages paid in callings that put little or no premium on mentality. Bruises, sprains and gashes, in a world dripping with gore, have a lessened market value since they have become part of the accepted order. The trivial wounds of civilians are little noted for the real and widespread suffering among the soldiers. The "super" would win at once as a warrior the sympathy that is denied his cinematographic trials and sufferings.

Swat the Chigger.

Touch each chigger bite with a brush that has been dipped in iodine or apply strong solutions of ammonia or common baking soda after itching has begun. The better plan, of course, is to prevent the chigger from getting a foothold at all. This may be done in a number of ways. A bath in hot water with strong soap is very good if taken immediately after passing through the shrubbery and weeds from which the chiggers are picked up, but the best real preventive is flowers of sulphur rubbed all over the body, particularly from the knees down. The sulphur may be made to stick better if mixed with a little cold cream and rubbed on.—L. Haseman.

The Old, Old Story.

Worries Bring Aches

"Life today brings many worries and worrying brings on kidney troubles, so the doctors say. Kidney weakness reveals itself in backache, pains when stooping or lifting, dizzy headaches and urinary disorders. Be cheerful. Stop worrying. And, to strengthen weak kidneys, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the kidney remedy that is used and recommended the world over."

A Michigan Case

Mrs. H. P. Minnick, 107 Beals Ave., Detroit, Mich., says: "I often got so dizzy something to keep from falling. The action of my kidneys was too frequent and I was troubled awfully by pains in my back. On a friend's advice, I used Doan's Kidney Pills and was soon helped. I continued their use and was soon restored to good health again."

Worked to Live

For the want of a balance or adjustment between working ability lessened by disease and necessity to earn money many a consumptive is now in his grave who should be filling a useful place in the work of the world. Consumption of itself is not a very deadly disease. Its course is long drawn out and the great difficulty in its cure rests in making arrangements which will permit a patient to thoroughly treat himself long enough to become really well and strong.

At Meirdale Sanatorium for Tuberculosis (Milwaukee) a superintendent of recreation and employment gives all of her time to studying individual patients' interests and abilities. Much hitherto unsuspected and unused talent has been discovered with the result that many useful and beautiful articles are being made by patients. The superintendent herself is thoroughly trained in arts and crafts work and is able to lead, instruct, and develop the ability of her pupils.

While there is little or no danger of the spread of the disease through articles handled and made by patients trained to avoid spreading of disease, the precaution is taken to make such articles on absolutely impossible. For the most part, work is confined to articles which permit of disinfection.

Great benefit in the condition of some of the patients put upon graded work has been observed. One patient who had been steadily declining was nevertheless permitted to do a little work because he pleaded so hard for the opportunity. Under careful observation his condition was found to be no worse for an hour's work each day. Gradually his work periods were lengthened to the amazement of doctors, nurses and fellow patients his physical condition began to improve rapidly. Supportive treatment of this patient improved until it was possible to discharge him as an arrested case. Today he is regularly employed as timekeeper for a crew of outdoor laborers. This is another part of the system. Employment of patients after leaving the sanatorium is not left entirely to accident or necessity. Efforts are made to bring the discharged patient and a suitable job together.

Good results are dependent upon intelligent and painstaking observation of patients after leaving the sanatorium. Thus employed, these measures constitute steps in the care. Patients treated in this manner will present fewer relapses for they will be conditioned to take up their required employment normally after leaving the sanatorium, and without undue and fatal strain.

Are Selling to Minors

A meeting was held yesterday afternoon at Dr. Benson's office for the purpose of discussing ways of stopping the sale of cigarettes to minors. It is said that the cigarette habit is becoming quite prevalent among the young boys of this city and a step should be taken to put a stop to the sale as the state law prohibits them being sold to minors.—Hartford Press.

Cost of Paper Leads to Search for Wood

Owing to the growing scarcity in Wisconsin of wood suitable for making paper pulp, the Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, has just completed a study of methods of barking, chipping, screening and baling of chips. Tests show that certain western woods are admirably adapted for pulp manufacture and negotiations are now under way between paper companies in Wisconsin and western railroads with a view to securing freight rates on trainloads of chips from Wisconsin. Some of these western woods can be cut into chips, it is estimated, which when dried and baled can be delivered to the mills in Wisconsin at a very small advance over the cost of chips from local timber. Since there is a market for more than 300,000 cords of wood annually in Wisconsin an attempt to utilize western species appears worthy of consideration to hold the supply of wood for American paper mills on American soil.

High Prices Affects Two Mayville Papers

Owing to the high price of newsprint and several other items entering into the production of a newspaper, the Dodge County Pioneer and the Dodge County Pioneer both semi-weekly German newspapers published at Mayville, have decided to discontinue publishing twice a week, and will only issue every Friday. The Pioneer discontinued the twice-a-week edition beginning with October 1st, and The Banner will follow suit on November 1st. The price of the paper will remain the same, namely $1 per year. The Mayville publishers are only doing what hundreds of other newspaper men are now compelled to do in order to exist. If some relief does not come to the help of the publishers before long thousands of papers will be forced to the wall. The Mayville German papers are well edited and newsy sheets, and should not feel any serious consequences as a result of their publishing only once a week.
