The camp as a whole extends a cordial invitation to the general public to attend the dance. Ample room will be arranged for ward robe.

MAN STABBED IN LUNG

Twelve Tramps Held as Suspects Victim Near Death

Patrick Hogan, a vagrant, may die as the result of being stabbed in a quarrel which took place at 1 o'clock Sunday evening in the North Fond du Lac jail. Twelve tramps confined in the same quarters are being held at the county jail in an effort to seek out Hogan's assailant.

Hogan was stabbed over the heart, the knife grazing the organ and lodging in the left lung. Hogan is now at the hospital, and physicians say he may not recover. The man did not receive medical attention until a half an hour after the wound was inflicted for the reason that the authorities were not attracted to the scene immediately after the fight. Marshal Weller searched for the weapon but was unable to find it.—Fond du Lac Commonwealth.

Foamy Soldiers for Wilson

Co. E, soldiers of Fond du Lac voted for President Wilson. This fact is revealed by the totals of the state canvassing board on soldier voting at the border, which gives Wilson 39 votes, Hughes 35, the same guardians then gave Gov. Philipp 90 votes and Burt Williams, the democratic candidate 47 ballots.

According to returns from these soldiers that were given the privilege of voting, it appears that majority favored Wilson.

HENRY OPGENORTH FOUND GUILTY

Last Week Friday Defendant Was Found Guilty by Justice Olwin and Fined $10 and Costs. Case Appealed

Justice W. S. Olwin last week Friday found Henry Opgenorth guilty of operating an automobile with an artificial license plate and fined him $10 and cost. The case was appealed to the circuit court.

Mr. Opgenorth was represented by Attorney W. H. Bennett of Milwaukee. The case attracted considerable attention and took several hours before all evidence was taken from both sides.

When the case was called Attorney Bennett moved that the case be dismissed in as much as Mr. Opgenorth committed no offense. This motion was overruled by the Judge. The attorney then demanded that the District Attorney be called in the case, but this the Judge also overruled. Late in the afternoon the District Attorney did, however, arrive and reviewed the case and at once moved that the case be dismissed and the defendant discharged, but this the Judge overruled and concluded the case by fining the defendant. Attorney for the defendant at once moved to have the case appealed to the circuit court.

Gum, candy and peanuts have lost their popularity amongst the Seniors as they were forbidden to feast on them.

Two of our most prominent Senior girls moved their household goods to a conspicuous seat in the assembly cause, too many unnecessary callers. Result, better behavior and less company.

The prices of all supplies are going up so steadily, we find it necessary to make this an urgent request. LECTURE COURSE BRUSH, THE GREAT

Second Number of the Lecture Course Next Monday Night November 20th. He is One of the Best

Brush, the great Magician, illusionist, and entertainer, will beat the Opera House, next Monday evening, November 20th, the second number of the lecture course. This is, however, not a lecture, but it is an entertainment. Brush is brilliant, graceful, dexterous, daring. His illusions, sleight-of-hand work, wit, humor, manipulation, magic work is great.

The apparatus used by Brush cost many thousands of dollars and is declared to be the most perfect in the country, according to the Bulletin, Freeport, Ill.

Brush talks while he performs and performs while he talks. He works fast and does at least one third more tricks in the same length of time than other magicians. The entertainment he gives is full of spice and variety. The tricks are not drawn out but are done with brevity and a vim that keeps the audience on the rump. His voice at once clear and heard and understood. He is not only a man of mystery but he can converse you with laughter. His wit is clean, catchy and irresistible. Brush always does his best to demonstrate strongly what can be accomplished by fraud. His entertainments affords one hundred laughs in as many minutes.

When you see Brush you forget your troubles, so be sure to be at the Opera House Monday evening, November 20th.

Tickets for the balance of the course, three in number, including Brush are now being sold for five cents. Tickets may be had from any member of the Woman's club or at P. J. Haug's jewelry store.

CITY TEAM VICTORS

Plymouth City Lads Overwhelmingly Defeated in Opening Game of Basketball

The local city team last Thursday evening opened their basketball season in the local Opera House and they were the strong city team of Plymouth. The opening game was greeted with a victory for the local boys, as they defeated their opponents by the overwhelming score of 33 to 17.

That the boys put up a very good game can be seen by the instant broke their fun.

A large crowd witnessed the game, but as not so large as should have been. Kewaskum has a very strong line-up and deserves the support of the entire community. Without patronage Kewaskum cannot have a strong team.

In the lineup for Kewaskum last Thursday evening was practically the same as last year, namely: "Shorty" Romaine at Center, "Spunky" Miller and Maurice Rosenheimer and Carl Schickel. Each player showed old time form, assisting their teammates throughout the entire game.

Communicated

Since the last week's issue of the Statesman carried an item in its news columns, in effect that I had been arrested a second time in the village of Kewaskum, I deem it my duty to place before your readers the facts in the case.

Those who heard the District Attorney at the trial of said case explain the law regarding license plates, must be fully convinced that, with what I was charged in each case, is no offense and that I have in no sense violated any law. On the first charge, I was, as previously reported in the Statesman, fined five dollars and cost. I have since, however, through my attorney, served a written notice upon the Justice who imposed the fine, demanding the return to me of said fine and cost on the ground that they were illegally imposed and paid under duress.

The trial under the second arrest, has, it is thought, no parallel in the court records of Washington county, inasmuch as the district, or prosecuting attorney pleaded for me, the defendant, without avail, stating in unmistakable language, that I had violated no law of this state and that no offense had been committed by me. He even had a motion spread upon the docket, asking for my discharge, on the ground, that no offense had been committed. Nevertheless I was fined ten dollars and cost. I did, of course, not pay the fine, but immediately appealed the case to a higher court.

The case was disposed of in the Circuit Court of Washington county on Wednesday last. The Judge after reviewing part of the evidence transmitted from the lower court, ordered the case dismissed, the bondmen released and defendant discharged on the ground that the complaint charges no offense.

The gentle reader will readily understand that the arrests and court trials caused me considerable expense, loss of time and injured feeling. Imagine my indignation when I was taken from my home at night, and brought to the guard of a constable under a ridiculous charge. I therefore feel that it is my duty toward my family and myself that I bring those responsible for all this trouble to justice. The marshal, who made the complaint and the first arrest, the constable who served the illegal warrant for arrest, and the justice who imposed the illegal fines, will hear from me later through my attorneys.

Henry Opgenorth.

COW TESTING ASSOCIATION

All Farming Communities Should Have One

Cow testing association should command the interest of every dairyman for the help to make more money for the man who milks.

Progress and then success spring from dissatisfaction with present conditions. The 53 active cow testing associations in Wisconsin are made up of dissatisfied men.

A year ago a certain Waupaca county dairyman was dissatisfied with his monthly check of $35. He was making eleven cows and getting the Waupaca and Butter Nut Ridge associations. By weeding out the robber cows and replacing them with good producers and by giving the herd better feed, he increased his monthly check from ten cows to $110 a month. He has one cow less to milk and a cream check three times as large. Very many members of Wisconsin cow testing associations can tell somewhat similar experiences.

A cow testing association is simply a group of 25 or 30 dairy men who jointly hire a man to weigh and test the milk of each cow in their herds, to keep their production and feed records and to do whatever else he can to promote their interests. The movement is neither old nor new, yet it is old enough to have proved its worth in making dairymen more interesting and profitable, but so new that your community is not getting the benefit of one.

During the past fifteen years the price of feed has increased on an average of 30 per cent. Labor and land values have also risen, making it necessary to lower the cost of production in order to make a profit in the business. The low producing or "robber" cow is undoubtedly the greatest factor in increasing the cost of production. To detect these "robber" cows is the first duty of the cow testing association.

"The poor ye have with yeal" is true of cows as it is of people, unless we detect and dispose of them. If we do not dispose of these poor cows, we become poor like they, and the more we have the poorer we get. The Stanley association sold 101 poor cows or one fourth of the cows in the association before the year closed. Welcome association sold 28 unprofitable cows the first year and 92 the second year. The Antigo association sold 54 "robber" cows before the end of the year. The Sheboygan association, in one of the best dairy sections of the state, found 89 of the 480 cows to be unprofitable and sold them during the year.

Last year records of 19,000 cows were kept and about 4,000 more test were sold as unprofitable. The time is past in Wisconsin when a man claims that he can tell, by looking at or even by milking, how much milk or fat a cow will give in a year. The Babcock test, the milk scale, and the yearly record are the only reliable judges of cow ability to convert feed into fat, and the cow testing association seems the best way to use these means for it insures the work being done accurately, promptly, impartially and economically.

While the cow testing association is locating the unprofitable cow, it is also locating the profitable cow—the cow that will return $1.50 to $3 worth of dairy products for every $1 worth of feed. To know what each cow produces during the month and the cost of the production stimulates interest in the cows as individuals and causes the whole family, and the hire man, too, to take new interest in the dairy business.

An Old Man's Stomache

As you grow older and less active, less and less food is required to meet the demands of our bodies. If too much is habitually taken, the stomach will rebel. When a man reaches the advanced age of 85 or 90, you will find that he is a light eater. Be as careful as you will, however, you will occasionally eat more than you should and will feel the need of Chamberlain's Tablets to correct the disorder. These tablets do not contain pepsin, but strength on the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. They also cause a gentle movement of the bowels.—Edw. C. Miller.

Vom Schauplatz des europäischen Völkerrkrieges

Die Offensive der Alliierten an der Westfront wie im Osten ist am Ertrinken. Die Stämme, die jetzt noch an der Somme hantieren, haben mit der ursprünglichen Idee der sogenannten großen Offensive nichts mehr zu tun, schreibt das Deutsche Journal. Es sind lokale Vorstöße an einzelnen Punkten, die meistens völlig erfolglos bleiben und keinen Niederlage gleichsam, und weil weder die Alliierten in Paris noch in London noch ihren hochtrabenden Berichteratern ein solches Eingeländnis zu machen wagen.

Der Krieg an der Westfront wird in den nächsten Wochen wieder in das alte Stadium der Stagnation treten und verunsichert während des Winters darin verbleiben. Die Deutschen werden an dieser Front faun in der nächsten Zeit zu einem entscheidenden Schlage ausheilen, da eine Defensive hier völlig genügt, bis auf dem südlichen Schauplatze die Entscheidung gefallen ist. Und hier dürfen wichtige Ereignisse während des Winters unerwartet eintreffen werden. Der allergrößte Teil der deutschen Kräfte ist in den letzten Wochen nach Osten dirigiert worden. Die Artillerie wird enorm verstärke, wie die bereits gemeldete Einstellung von 20,000 weiteren Arbeiter in die Strrupp - Werksstätten erkennen lässt, und es wird sich ohne Frage in der nächsten Zeit, da die Alliierten an aktiven Werke durch Eis verdrängt sind, bei den Alliierten derselbe Mitionsmangel einstellen, der im Mai vor einem Jahre die jämliche Aufstellung der russischen Armee zu einer verhältnismäßig leichten Aufgabe machte.

England hat sich eine Aktien-gesellschaft gebildet, die unter anderem ein 240 Jahre altes Kriegsschiff vom Meeresgrunde heben will. Dieser Auszug ist nun auch der Direktor der norwegischen Bergungsgesellschaft gelangt. Er beabsichtigt, das vor der Jollination von Ardenburgh gefundene schwedische Kriegsschiff „Steinboden“ das 1716 in der Schlacht bei Dännefen von Zordensfeld als Beute genommen wurde, zu heben und zu bringen. Vor einigen Jahren lag man bei sehr niedrigen Wasserstände die oberen Teile des Schiffes über dem Wasser, und man konnte feststellen, daß das Holz sehr gut erhalten war.

Engländer Herr findet Spanien durchaus deutschfreundlich.

Lord Northcliffe sagt in einem Aufsatz, den er seinen Lesern aus Spanien schickt, über die unerschütterliche Hebräerung, die er dort gefunden. Für englisches Geld mußte er Agio zahlen. Er sah aus den Zeitungen, daß der Glaube an den Sieg und die Unüberwindlichkeit der Deutschen in Spanien sehr weit verbreitet sei. Als besonders unangenehm empfand er die bewilligte und freundliche Aufnahme der Deutschen in der spanischen Gesellschaft. Ein großer Teil der spanischen Aristokratie, die gesamten kirchlichen und weltliche Kreise der Mittelklassen sind überall Spuren der deutschen Industrie; deutsche Lokomotiven, deutsche Maschinen, deutsche elektrischen Anlagen und chemische Produkte. Die deutsche Propaganda wurde durch die 80,000 Deutschen, die durch den Krieg nach Spanien verschlagen worden sind, wirksam betreiben, vor allem durch einen regelmäßigen Nachrichtenendienst, der durch die drahtlosen Stationen Spaniens und Kuba unterstützt werde. In Hoffen berichtet folgende Aufzählung: Die englischen Offiziere sind tapfer; sie sind ausgezeichnete Kämpfer und gute Sportler, aber als Soldaten sind sie Dilettanten. Die Tomms sind tapfer, aber tollkühn. Die blutigen Niederlagen, die die deutschen Heeresberichte oft erwähnen, behärten die Tatkraft, daß eine Armee nicht in ein paar Jahren gebildet werden könne. Frankreich habe alle Männer von 17. bis zum 48. Jahr ausgehoben. Deutschland müsse daher gewinnen, und wenn es nicht siege, so könne es doch den Krieg nicht verlieren.

Das unbesiegbare Deutschland.

Ueber Deutschlands militärische Stärke schreibt der militärische Mitarbeiter des „Svenska Dagbladet“ in Stockholm: „Man fragt sich fider in diesen Tagen überall: Wie kann es möglich sein, daß Deutschland noch im dritten Kriegsjahr nicht nur genug Truppen hat, um überall des Reiches Grenzen zu verteidigen, sondern auch, um bereit zu sein, wo immer ein neuer Kriegsschauplatz eröffnet wird. In der Tat lieierte Deutschland durch die Siege Kadenens in der Dobrudzha der Welt nochmals im vollsten Sinne des Wortes einen schlagenden Beweis für seine in hohem Grade bewundernswerte militärische Kraftleistung und Organisationsfähigkeit. Die deutschen Soldaten sind noch immer mit Plauschstoffen gefüllt. Es scheint daher praktisch genommen, keine Grenze der Fähigkeit der Deutschen zu geben, neue fertige Armeen in's Feld zu stellen.“

GERMANS DRIVEN BACK MILE

Assaults on Both Banks of the River Ancre Are Successfully Made, Says London War Office—Attacks Broken Up, Berlin Declares.

London, Nov. 15.—British troops in a new offensive north and south of the Ancre river have advanced north of the river to a maximum depth of one mile on a front of five miles, capturing the towns of Beaumont, Hamel and St. Pierre-Division, according to a dispatch by the correspondent of Reuter's Telegraph company at British headquarters. Fighting is still going on between the German and British troops north of the town of Serre, about two miles north of Beaumont. Three thousand five hundred prisoners already have been taken by the British.

The Reuter dispatch says: „We attacked early in the morning. Already the British line on both sides of the Ancre has been advanced for a depth of one mile on a point of five miles, capturing the villages of Beaumont and Hamel, considered by the Germans impregnable, also St. Pierre-Division and valuable trenches north of Serre.“

„All these positions were a part of the heavily fortified original German main line and had been occupied for more than two years.“

„Many prisoners have been taken. Already 3,500 have been collected in the advanced cages. Fighting continues around Serre, the only place not captured in the first assault.“ Berlin, Germany, (by wireless to Sayville, L. I.), Nov. 15.—Attempts of entente troops to advance between the Ancre and the Somme were broken up by German artillery fire, the war office announced on Monday. In upper Alsace the French took the offensive, but their efforts to advance failed completely. In the town of Sully-Salinsel the German forces continue to hold the east edge of the town.

The report says: „The village of Beaucourt-Sur-Ancre is in our hands. The prisoners reported to date number considerably over 5,000 and more are coming in.“

„A local advance was made east of Butte De Warlencourt; practically all our objectives were taken in this area.“

NO BASIS IN FACT

Roosevelt's Idle Talk Concerning Germany and Venezuela.

Ex-President's Claim That His Action Forced the Kaiser's Government to Submit to Arbitration is Laughable.

„When I was president and Germany wanted to assume control of part of Venezuela temporarily I got Dewey and had every ship in the fleet ready south of Porto Rico. And I got the arbitration I asked for because Germany knew I meant what I said. If it had been otherwise we would have had a German stronghold in Venezuela, and most of the present war would have been fought right at our front door.“—Theodore Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt does not explain in detail just how the establishment of a German stronghold in Venezuela would have brought the present war to our front door. The capture of Paris or Petrograd by way of Venezuela would have been a flanking movement of very considerable dimensions. But that is a detail. What it is well to remember concerning Germany and Venezuela is that associated with Venezuela for the payment of her debts were Great Britain and Italy, and that France on her own account had broken relations with the Venezuelan government. We are asked to believe that Great Britain was helping Germany to establish a stronghold in Venezuela, and that only Mr. Roosevelt's drastic action frustrated the nefarious scheme. To compare Venezuela with the European war is to compare a backyard snudge with a continental war.

What Wilson Should Have Done.

At last the final and authoritative judgment has been pronounced upon President Wilson's successful efforts to prevent a railroad strike. Theodore Roosevelt says:

„My action in the anthracite coal strike is the method, in my opinion, by which such situations should be handled.“

What Mr. Roosevelt did in the anthracite coal strike was to do nothing at all until the strike had lasted five months and the public consequently had become intolerable. Then he acted.

By following that policy President Wilson would have allowed the railroads and the brotherhoods to fight it out until January 4, 1917. Then he would have intervened. What would have happened to the country in the meantime heaven only knows, but the president would have had the proud gratification of knowing that he had acted in accordance with "MY action in the anthracite coal strike."

Truth About Underwood Tariff.

One of the most remarkable things about the Underwood tariff is the heavy increase in imports of raw materials under it. This has gone up 150 per cent. Most of this raw material comes in duty free, and it goes to our mills and factories for transformation into the finished product. Here is where the transportation companies get their share of prosperity and where the laboring people get theirs. Protective duties on raw materials have kept them out of this country, lessening the country's prosperity just that much.

With a trade balance in our favor of nearly two billion now and the prospect of its being two and a half billion by the end of the fiscal year, the party of protection has all the logic taken out of its argument in favor of that tariff system.

History-Making Bill.

The revenue bill contains one provision which will make a landmark in American financial legislation—the inheritance tax. This tax, as it stands, is not as heavy as it should be, and its gradations may appear clumsy.

Money Value of Discoveries.
If we count the wealth of North America and South America as it seems today, we find that the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus has been worth to the world $3,000,000,000 from the time he sailed from Palos in August, 1492 down to the present time. Likewise, the man who discovered the way of drawing tungsten wire gave $300,000,000 worth of light yearly.—Popular Science Monthly.

The Prize Ring.

PRESIDENT WILSON ELECTED ON FACE OF THE RETURNS

Republicans Demand a Recount of Votes in Several Close and Pivotal States.

RECORD-BREAKING INTEREST IN THE NEWS

Entire Nation Kept in Suspense While Election Judges of a Few States Counted to the Last Ballot Before Result Was Known—Soldier Vote a Factor.

New York, Nov. 11.—On the face of the returns, unofficial and still incomplete, Woodrow Wilson has been re-elected president of the United States with a majority of at least eleven in the electoral college.

The situation is extraordinary and has resulted in days of nerve-racking strain for the people of the country. If the election officials of a few remote precincts in a few states know how the nation has been waiting breathlessly to hear from them, they must be swelled up enormously with a sense of their importance.

That Mr. Wilson's victory over Mr. Hughes will not be conceded without a recount in the close states, such as California, New Hampshire, New Mexico and North Dakota, was determined at conferences of the Republican leaders here. Chairman Willcox asserted a recount would be demanded wherever the margin of Democratic victory was so small that comparatively few votes would turn the scales.

That the returns are still incomplete is due to the presence on the border of the National Guard of a number of states. The soldiers are permitted to vote by mail, their ballots being forwarded to the auditors of their home counties, and in Minnesota especially the vote of the Guardsmen is likely to cut a figure in determining whether the state goes into the Wilson or the Hughes column.

Minnesota was as bad as California in the matter of shifts, and as its delegation is nearly as large, it, too, was watched with the intensest interest. Through days and nights of counting, the race was a see-saw, with but a thousand or so of votes separating the candidates.

Perhaps the most surprising of all the states was New Hampshire. It alone of all New England failed to give the Republican candidate a substantial plurality, and for days no one knew in which column it would land.

New Mexico, with three electoral votes, attracted national attention by placing itself early in the list of doubtful states, and as it soon appeared that almost every electoral vote would be vital, the returns from down on the border were grabbed hot off the wires.

ful states, and as it soon appeared that almost every electoral vote would be vital, the returns from down on the border were grabbed hot off the wires. After veering back and forth for days, New Mexico was definitely placed in the Wilson column, though there, too, the president's margin was so scant that a basis was afforded for the call for a recount.

On Friday National Chairman Willcox of the Republican party handed out the following statement: "The result still depends upon the vote in a few close states. It must be borne in mind that the returns thus far announced are, in most states, unofficial, and may be changed by the official count required by the laws of those states."

"Where the vote is as close as that reported in several states, it may well be that material changes will result from the official count. "It is a common experience that the result of the official count almost always varies from the returns first announced. "In Illinois men and women seemed about equally divided as to preference. The state went for Hughes by a big plurality. "In Kansas, Colorado, Montana, Washington, Oregon and California, where women also vote, Wilson was successful, but his pluralities were not sufficiently large to indicate that the woman voters supported him as a unit."

Both sides conceded that no matter what action might be taken in regard to a recount there was little likelihood of a contest being carried to the house of representatives as it was after the Hayes-Tilden campaign in 1876. Legislation enacted in 1887, it was said, made the state sovereign in pronouncing judgment in a recount of the presidential vote.

How Congress Stands. Congressional election returns, nearly completed, assure President Wilson in the forthcoming administration a Democratic senate, but with five districts still undecided, the best that Democrats could claim was a plurality of four votes in the house.

Upon the basis of revised returns the Democrats have elected 215 members of the house and the Republicans 211. In addition there have been elected one Independent, one Socialist, one Progressive and one Progressive Protectionist.

Four districts in West Virginia, two of them nominally Democratic, and two Republican, and one district in New Mexico, are still undecided. If those districts do not change, the Democrats will have 217 and the Republicans 214, a plurality of only three.

THE ELECTORAL VOTE

Totals 276 243. Result in Minnesota, with 12 votes, will not be known until soldiers' vote is counted.

As there will be four members of other minority parties, a working majority for the Democrats is improbable unless some of the minority members should choose to cast their lot with the administration forces.

The senate, according to latest figures, will consist of 54 Democrats and 42 Republicans, a majority of 12. The Democratic majority in the present senate is 16.

An unusual feature of the result is the election of the first woman to congress, Miss Jeanette Rankin, Republican, apparently having been elected in Montana.

Six States Go Dry. Prohibitionists are jubilant over the results of the election where prohibition was an issue. From Washington the legislative committee of the Anti-Saloon league issued a statement, saying: "Prohibition has taken another great leap forward. Michigan has voted for state-wide prohibition by 75,000 majority, Nebraska by 35,000, Montana by 20,000 and South Dakota by 25,000. Idaho has adopted a prohibition constitutional amendment by a majority of 3 to 1. Utah has probably elected a legislature pledged to enact state-wide prohibition. Washington, Iowa, Colorado, Arizona and Arkansas have defeated attempts of the liquor people to secure the adoption of proposals which would nullify their prohibitory laws."

Women Vote as One Men. From the general result it is clear that as the men voted in the suffrage states, so did the women. "Thus 24 states out of 48—one-half of the states of the Union—have now declared for state-wide prohibition and over 60 per cent of the population and 85 per cent of the area of the country is now under prohibitory law."

Farm Vote the Factor. There are several great outstanding facts concerning the result of the election, one of which is that labor, in all the big industrial states except Ohio, declined to give its undivided support to President Wilson despite his claim to it on the score of having persuaded congress to pass the Adamson "eight-hour" bill. New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, Indiana, all gave the Republican candidate pluralities, and Ohio's vote in favor of Wilson is not certainly to be attributed to the labor vote.

Another interesting development was the independence of the West, which is asserting that it elected a president without the aid of New York and Pennsylvania and other big western and central states. When it was found, early in the evening of election day, that the empire state had gone for Hughes, the newspapers of the metropolis, even those that had supported Wilson, conceded the victory to the Republicans, without waiting to hear from the middle West. When the returns came in from these regions, it was found that the farmer and stock raiser had decided the election.

Yet another fact that calls for comment is that Governor Johnson of California, running on the Republican and Progressive tickets, has been elected to the United States senate by something like 300,000 plurality, and yet the state went Democratic on the presidential.

PHILIPP CONTROLS THE LEGISLATURE

Will Be Backed by Safe Majority in Both Houses.

SOCIALISTS GAIN MEMBERS

Will Have Nine Men in House and Three in Senate as Result of Increased Vote in Milwaukee County Districts.

Madison.—Socialists increased their representation in the legislature, and will have nine members in the house and three in the senate. The strength of the Socialists was shown principally in Milwaukee county's vote in the election of the district attorney.

The legislature will be strongly Republican. Late returns emphasize the fact that the governor will have a comfortable working majority in the senate. It was in the upper house of the last legislature that some of the administration measures were defeated.

For the first time in many years Wisconsin will send a solid Republican delegation to congress. The G. O. P. gained three places in the delegation, which stood eight Republicans and three Democrats in the last congress. These men were elected on Tuesday in the several congressional districts:

First, H. A. Cooper; Second, E. Voight; Third, John M. Nelson; Fourth, W. J. Cary; Fifth, W. H. Stafford; Sixth, J. H. Davidson; Seventh, J. J. Esch; Eighth, E. L. Browne; Ninth, D. G. Classon; Tenth, J. A. Frear; Eleventh, Irvine L. Lenroot.

The personnel of the new legislature will be as follows:

- Senate: Second District—Timothy Burke, Rep. Fourth District—Herman Schultz, Rep. Fifth District—H. O. Reinhold, Rep. Sixth District—W. C. Zumach, Soc. Eighth District—Frank Ragues, Soc. The DESTROYING ANGEL

By Louis Joseph Vance

HAVE YOU ANY "SAND"?

If you should be mysteriously beaten up when you stepped into your home some night, and the following day should be warned that you would be killed next trip, do you think you'd hurry to hiding—or would you take defense steps and defy the Mystery to do its worst?

Supposed to be dead, Hugh Whitaker turns up in New York after five years and hunts for the girl he married there to protect her good name. During the midst of a brilliant theatrical performance, he and she recognize one another across the footlights. (She is known as Sara Law, a noted actress.) The play stops abruptly. She refuses to see him. Drummond, his former law partner, engaged to marry the supposed widow, is reported a suicide. Whitaker's friend, Martin Ember, former detective, doubts the report and warns Whitaker to beware of violence from a mysterious source. The warning is ignored. Whitaker is murderously assaulted and goes to Ember's country place to recover. Strange things happen there as told in this installment. Queer goes on!

CHAPTER IX.

The Window.

Though they left New York not long after three in the afternoon, twilight was fast ebbing into night when Ember gave the motor its head. Its headlights clove a path through darkness. Like a splendid sword; on either hand woodlands and desolate clearings blurred into dark and rushing walls; only the wonderful wilderness of stars remained imperishable.

Whitaker, braced against the jolting, snatched begrudged mouthfuls of air strong of the sea. He had no very definite idea of their whereabouts, having neglected through sheer indifference to question Ember, but he knew that they were drawing minute by minute closer to the Atlantic.

After some time the car slowed to a palpable pause. Ember jumped out to open a barred gate, then, returning, swung the car into a clear but narrow woodland road. "Mine own domain," he informed Whitaker with a laugh. "Now we're shut of the world entirely."

Whitaker bent forward, inquiring: "Where are we?" "Almost there. Patience." Whitaker reckoned idly that they must have threaded a good two miles of woodland, when at length the car emerged upon a clearing and immediately turned aside to the open doorway of a miniature garage.

The forest hemmed the clearing on three sides; on the fourth lay water. A hundred yards distant the lighted windows of a one-story structure shone pleasantly through a scattering plantation of pine.

Linking arms the better to guide his guest, Ember drew him toward the lights. "Bungalow," he explained, sententious, flourishing his free hand; "herein—retreat."

"Paradise," Whitaker summed up, in the same manner. "No neighbors?" "Oh"—Ember motioned to his left as they faced the water—"there's a married establishment over there somewhere, but we don't bother one another. Fellow by the name of Fiske. I understand the place is shut up—Fiske not coming down this year."

"So much the better. I've been wanting just this all summer, without realizing it."

"Welcome, then, to Half-a-Loaf lodge!"

They entered a long and deep living room with walls of peeled logs and, at one end, a stone fireplace wherein a wood fire blazed heartily. At a comfortable distance from the hearth stood a table bright with linen, silver and crystal—covers for two. The rear wall was broken by three doors, in one of which a rotund Chinaman beamed obligingly. Ember hailed him by the title of Sun Fat, explaining that it wasn't his name, but claiming for it the virtue of exquisite felicity.

"My servant in town, here man-of-all-work; I've had him for years; faithful and indispensable."

Toward the end of an excellent dinner, Whitaker caught himself nodding and blinking with drowsiness. Ember took laughing compassion upon him and led him forthwith to a bedroom furnished with the rigid simplicity of a summer camp. Then he stepped round the clock. The shrill, imperative rattle of a telephone bell roused him. As he dressed he could hear the voice of Ember in the living room talking over the telephone. Presently there came a tap at his door, and his host entered.

"Up, eh?" he said cheerfully. "I was afraid I'd have to wake you." His smile vanished beneath the clouds of an ingratiate frown. "This is the devil of a note; I've got to leave you."

"What's the trouble?"

"That's what I'm called upon to find out. A friend of mine's in a tight place, and I've got to go and help him through. He just called me up—and I can't refuse. D'you mind being left alone for a day or so?"

"Certainly not—only I'm sorry."

"No more than I. But I'll try to get back tomorrow. If I don't, the next day—or as soon as I possibly can. Meanwhile, please consider yourself left master here. Sun Fat will take good care of you. Anything you want, just ask him. Now I've got to get into water-proofs—it's raining like all get-out, but I can't wait for a let-up."

By the time Whitaker was ready for breakfast his host had splashed off to his motor car.

The wind, freshening and driving very respectable if miniature rollers against the beach, came in heavy gusts, alternating with periods of steady, strong blowing. At times the shining lanes of the rain seemed to drive almost horizontally. Whitaker poked his head into the kitchen. In that immaculate place, from which every hint of breakfast had disappeared as if by magic, Sun Fat was religiously cleaning his teeth—for the third time that morning, to Whitaker's certain knowledge.

When he had finished, Whitaker put a question: "Sun Fat, which way does the wind blow, do you know?" Sun Fat flashed him a dazzling smile. "Eastly," he said in a cheerful, chucking voice. "I think very fine three-day blow."

"At least," said Whitaker, "you're a high-spirited prophet of evil. I thank you."

He selected a book from several shelves stocked with a discriminating taste, and settled himself before the fire.

The day wore out before his patience did, and with every indication of fulfilling the prognosis of Sun Fat; by nightfall the wind had developed into an enthusiastic gale, driving before it sheeted rain and great ragged waves of mist.

And the second day was like unto the first. The third day broke full of the spirit of the second; and toward noon the rain ceased. In the evening, weary of the sedulous attentions of a cloud of famished mosquitoes, Whitaker sat in darkness, not tired enough to go to bed, too tired to bestir himself and seek distraction from a tormenting train of thought.

A pool of limpid moonlight lay like milk upon the floor beneath a window and held his dressing gaze while memories marshaled for his delectation a pageant of wasted years, infinitely desolate and dreary in his vision.

How long he sat unstriving, preoccupied with fruitless inquiry, he did not guess. But later he reckoned it could not have been long after ten o'clock when he was disturbed. The sound of a footfall, hushed and stealthy on the veranda, roused him with a start, and almost at the same instant he became aware of a shadow that troubled the pool of moonlight, the forshortened shadow of a man's head and shoulders.

He sat up, tense, rigid with surprise and wonder, and stared at the silhouette body at pause just outside the window. The fellow was stooping to peer in. Drummond hunted him down in this isolate hiding place? On the thought he leaped up, in two strides slammed out through the door.

"I say!" he cried loudly. But he cried, apparently, to empty air. The man was gone—vanished as strangely and as quietly as he had appeared.

Pausing and glancing round the clearing in complete bewilderment, he detected or else fancied a slight movement in the shadows on the edge of the encompassing woodland. Instantly, heedless of the risk he ran if the man were indeed Drummond and if Drummond were indeed guilty of the assault now four nights old, Whitaker broke for the spot. It proved to be the entrance to one of the woodland paths, and naturally—whether or no his imagination were in fault—there was nobody waiting there to be caught.

But if anyone had been there, he had unquestionably fled along the trail, Whitaker in a rage set himself to follow. Before he realized he could have covered half the distance, he emerged abruptly into the clearing of the Fiske place.

Here he pulled up, for the first time alive to the intrinsic idiosyncy of his conduct, and diverted besides by the discovery that his impression of the early evening, that the cottage was tenanted, had been well founded.

The ground floor windows shone with a dim but warm illumination. He could see distinctly part of a living room rather charmingly furnished in a sumptuous way. At its farther end a dark haired woman in a plain black dress with a short apron and lace cap sat reading by lamplight—evidently a maid. Her mistress—judging by appearances—was outside on the lawn below the veranda, strolling to and fro in company with a somewhat short and heavy man who wore an automobile jacket and visored cap. By contrast, her white-clad figure, invested with the illusion of moonlight, seemed unusually tall. Her hair was fair, shining like a headpiece of palest gold as she bent her head, attentive to her companion. And Whitaker thought to discern an unusual quality in her movements, a quality of charm and a graciousness of mien rarely to be noticed even in the most beautiful of the women he had known.

Of a sudden the man paused, produced a watch from beneath his dust-coat, consulted it briefly and shut the case with a snap. He said something in a brusque tone, and was answered by what sounded like a pleasant negative. Promptly, as if annoyed, he turned and strode hastily away, disappearing round the house.

Alone, the woman watched him as long as he was in sight, her head to one side with an effect of critical amusement. Then, with a low laugh, she crossed the veranda and entered the lighted room. At the same time Whitaker, lingering and watching without in the least understanding or even questioning why he was doing this so contrary to his instincts, heard the heavy rumble of a motor car on the far side of the house and saw the machine swing off across the clearing into the woods.

In the living room the woman was saying: "You may go now, Elise. I'll be ready for bed before long."

"Yes, madam." The maid rose and moved briskly out of sight.

Her mistress, casting aside a scarf of embroidered Chinese brocade, stood for a moment in deep thought, her head bowed, the knuckle of a slender forefinger tapping her chin—charmingly posed. Whitaker abruptly understood why it was he loitered, peeping—she was absolutely beautiful, a creature both exquisite and superb, a matchless portrait for the galleries of his memory.

Something—a movement or perhaps a slight sound—had drawn his attention from the woman. He saw the other man standing boldly in full moonlight, all his attention concentrated on the brilliant picture framed by the window. He was unquestionably without knowledge of the nearness of the other—of Whitaker in the shadows. And though his back was to the moon and his face further shadowed by a peaked cap, Whitaker was absolutely sure of the man—he was certainly Drummond.

Without pause for thought, he sprang toward him, in a guttural voice uttering his name—"Drummond!" But the fellow proved too alert and quick for him. Whitaker's hands closed on nothing more substantial than thin air; at the same time he received a blow upon his bruised shoulder smart and forcible enough to stagger him and evoke an involuntary grunt of pain. And before he could regain his balance the fellow was thrashing noisily away through the woodland underbrush.

Forthwith he struck off and blundered senselessly through the forest, misled by its elusive phantasmagoria, until, realizing at length he did but duplicate an earlier folly, he gave up the chase in disgust and slowly made his way back to the bungalow.

What is the connection between Whitaker, Drummond and the mysterious girl? Is more than one person eager to see Whitaker dead?

Too Much Cutlery. "How did you get along at the dinner last night?" asked the woman in the suburbs of her husband who had been celebrating. "Didn't get enough to eat," was the man's reply. "That's strange at a big affair like that."

"Why, dear, do you know when I got through there were two forks and three spoons I never touched!"

Not an Exclusive Privilege. "Don't you sometimes envy the idle rich?" "No," replied Farmer Corntassel. "I know men that haven't a dollar who can be just as idle as anybody."

PEACE PARLEY BELIEVED NEAR

Hungary Chief Predicts Action When New Foe Is Crushed.

ROUMANIA MUST FALL FIRST

Count Albert Apponyi Declares Negotiations Will Begin When Ferdinand's Country Is Crushed—Cites Statesmen's Talk.

Berlin, Nov. 16.—The opening of peace negotiations may perhaps be expected with fair prospects of success in the course of the coming winter, according to Count Albert Apponyi, veteran Hungarian leader and former Hungarian premier, Count Apponyi, who is visiting Germany to deliver two addresses on Hungarian history, expressed his views in an interview in which he discussed the general European situation.

"We cannot expect," he said, "to see peace negotiations opened within the next few weeks, while the Roumanian campaign is still undecided. However, I regard our chances for success there as excellent, and once Roumania is crushed I think both sides will be willing to consider the question of peace. Roumania was the enemy's last card, and is proving a losing one. We are missing a big army against the Roumanians, and I think that the end will come shortly."

Teuton Progress Slow. "Of course our progress on the Transylvanian front is a bit slow, owing to the great difficulties of the country, and particularly to the deficiency in rearward communications. These communications are far poorer than in the West or even in Galicia and Russia. However, the entry of Roumania into the war has in many respects been really advantageous to us."

To illustrate what he regards as the improving chances for peace negotiations, Count Apponyi referred to recent speeches of statesmen in the opposing camps. "Not Lloyd-George, of course," he interjected parenthetically, "but such as Viscount Grey and Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, for example." He suggested a comparison between the utterances of these leaders a year ago and at present. "Then," he said, "their respective standpoints were as far apart as the poles, but now, although there are still wide differences between them, they have most appreciably drawn nearer. The references to crushing Germany have been eliminated from the British pronouncements and the agitation for annexation is dwindling in Germany."

Questions of Annexation. "Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg," he went on, "has pointed out in his latest speech that he has never demanded the annexation of Belgium. Such instances as these show, in my opinion, that there are now no really insuperable obstacles to the opening of a discussion of future peace. Of course, the kingdom of Poland must stand, but I believe Russia can be brought to reconcile herself to this situation."

Count Apponyi was asked if he thought the impulse to start peace discussions could come from within the camp of the warring powers or whether an outside impetus, in the form of a tender of good offices from a neutral personage or power, would be necessary. He replied that he saw no reason why neutral mediation should not be welcomed when the opportune moment to which he had referred should arrive, and added that he knew no reason why President Wilson should not be acceptable as an intermediary.

Washington, Nov. 16.—A long conference between President Wilson and Col. E. M. House, his personal adviser, who quietly arrived at the White House, caused reports in official circles that a move toward European peace was being seriously contemplated by the president. Secretary to the President Tammly declined to comment upon the conference. It was pointed out by persons close to the president, however, that "there has been a lot of peace talk lately."

WARNED AGAINST SUBMARINES

Steamer Howard, Arriving in Providence, Reports Message From British Ship.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 16.—The Merchants and Miners' steamer Howard reported on its arrival here that when off Block Island before daylight it had been warned against German submarines by a British cruiser describing itself as "A. R. M. C." It was at first reported that a submarine had been discovered waiting off the coast of southern New England, but when the Howard docked, an inspection of the wireless message received showed it to be a general warning addressed to all shipping, against German undersea vessels, which it said might be met "anywhere in the Atlantic ocean."

Big Relief Fund.

London, Nov. 16.—The Times announces that its collection on behalf of the Red Cross has passed $25,000,000.

Miss Hobhouse Arrested.

The Hague, Nov. 16.—It was reported from a British source that Miss Emily Hobhouse, well-known English pacifist, has been arrested in England.

BOTH GAIN IN BATTLES

TEUTONS WIN IN ONE PART OF ROUMANIA, FOE IN ANOTHER

Kaiser's Forces Driven Over Transylvanian Frontier—Germans Capture 1,800 Prisoners.

Berlin (by wireless to Sayville, L. I.), Nov. 16.—The invasion of Roumania is being carried on successfully by the Austrians and Germans, the war office announced. Engagements along the road leading into Wallachia terminated successfully for the Teutonic forces, who took more than 1,800 prisoners. The text of the statement is as follows:

"Front of Archduke Charles Francis—On the eastern front of Transylvania there was only minor fighting activity. In forest and mountain engagements along roads leading into Wallachia, which were successful for us, the Roumanians lost 23 officers and 1,800 men in prisoners, together with four cannon and several machine guns.

"Army group of Field Marshal von Mackensen (Dobrudja). The situation is unchanged.

"The fortress of Bucharest was bombarded by airmen."

Withdrawal of Bulgarian troops on the Macedonia front to avoid a flank attack is announced by army headquarters. The statement follows:

"Bulgarian troops, among them the Balkan regiment of his majesty the emperor, withstood, unshaken, violent French attacks on the plain before Monastir. In the Cerna bend the enemy captured some heights. In order to avoid pressure upon the flanks of our position in the valley, our line of defense there was placed further back."

Serious Russian attacks were made on the front southeast of Lemberg along the Narayukva river. The war office announced that all the Russian assaults were repulsed.

Bucharest, Roumania (via London), Nov. 16.—From the border of western Moldavia to the Stank and Oltuz valleys, in Transylvania, the Austro-German forces are being pursued beyond the frontier by the Roumanian troops, according to announcement by the Roumanian war office.

In the Jind valley the Roumanians have been forced back to their second line trenches as the result of continued violent Teuton attacks, the statement adds, and the Roumanians also have been obliged to yield some ground in the Al valley.

Occupation by the Roumanians of the town of Bosisic, in Dobrudja, is also announced by the war office. Hostile airmen, the official statement reports, dropped bombs over the palace in Bucharest. The queen and the princesses, however, were not in the structure, having left after the death of Prince Mircea.

WILSON GAINING IN COUNT

Hughes Loses About 700 Votes in Official Returns From 46 Counties.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 16.—With 46 of the 86 counties in Minnesota having turned in their tabulation sheets to Secretary of State Schmall and with unofficial returns from the remainder, including Hennepin and Ramsey, Mr. Hughes' plurality was down to 385. The total vote was: Wilson, 177,798; Hughes, 178,182.

The sheet from Hennepin county made the big reduction from last night's lead of more than 1,000 credited to the Republican candidate.

Hennepin and Ramsey returns are expected, and Democrats are bashing their hopes on enough gain for the president in those two counties and the other 28 not yet reported possibly to change the result.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 16.—Unofficial figures on the soldiers' vote in Wisconsin indicate that President Wilson has won the soldiers' vote by only one vote.

WHY SIR SAM HUGHES QUIT

Letters Give Inside Story of Canadian Cabinet Split—Appointment Caused Row.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 16.—Letters exchanged between Sir Robert Borden, Canadian premier, and Sir Sam Hughes, whose resignation as minister of militia was requested, were made public here. They showed that the appointment of Sir George Perley as overseas minister of militia led to the differences between the premier and Sir Sam Hughes.

While in England last summer, it was disclosed, Sir Sam appointed a military council to manage Canadian military affairs. Sir Robert Borden, it was said, held that Sir Sam had exceeded his authority. Then it was that Sir George Perley was appointed overseas minister of militia without pay.

Sir Sam urged that Sir Max Aitken be chosen for the position. The premier declined and charged Sir Sam with "disregarding the principles of joint responsible government."

Liner Chicago Arrives.

New York, Nov. 16.—The French liner Chicago, which was compelled to put into Fayal, in the Azores, on account of a fire on board, arrived with 229 passengers.

Thanksgiving Nov. 30.

Washington, Nov. 16.—The White House officially announced for the first time that President Wilson has designated November 30 as Thanksgiving day.

A REMARKABLE STATEMENT

Mrs. Sheldon Spent $1900 for Treatment Without Benefit. Finally Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Englewood, Ill.—"While going through the Change of Life I suffered with headaches, nervousness, flashes of heat, and I suffered so much I did not know what I was doing at times. I spent $1900 on doctors and not one did me any good. One day a lady called at my house and said she had been as sick as I was at one time, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made her well, so I took it and now I am just as well as I ever was. I cannot understand why women don't see how much pain and suffering they would escape by taking your medicine. I cannot praise it enough for it saved my life and kept me from the Insane Hospital."—Mrs. E. SHELDON, 5657 S. Halsted St., Englewood, Ill.

Physicians undoubtedly did their best, battled with this case steadily and could do no more, but often the most scientific treatment is surpassed by the medicinal properties of the good old fashioned roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If any complication exists it pays to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special free advice.

Don't Persecute Your Bowels

Cut out cathartics and purgatives. They are brutal, harsh, unnecessary. Try CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. Purely vegetable. The Difference. Uncle Ezra—So you've just been down to New York, Eben? What's the difference between a big town and a little one? Uncle Eben—Wal, in a big one the crowd follows the fire engine to find out where the fire is, and in a little one the fire engine follows the crowd to find out where it is.

To keep clean and healthy take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They regulate liver, bowels and stomach.—Adv.

Feel Achy All Over?

To ache all over in damp weather, or after taking a cold, isn't natural, and often indicates kidney weakness. Uric acid causes many queer aches, pains and disorders of the organs. Well kidneys keep uric acid down. Tired, dizzy, nervous people would do well to try Doan's Kidney Pills. They stimulate the kidneys to activity and so help clear the blood of irritating poisons.

A Wisconsin Case

Mrs. N. Dahlquist, 205 Fourteenth St., Milwaukee, Wis., says: "One day when I stooped to pick up a pan of water, a sharp pain struck me in the small of my back and nearly took my breath away. For sometime I went around all bent over, and the pain nearly killed me. I had often read about Doan's Kidney Pills and finally tried them. They cured me and I know that they are the only medicine that ever did me any good."

I AM SURE HE WOULD APPRECIATE IT.

YOU'RE not sorry for gophers and monkeys with their faces all swelled out—they are built that way, pockets in their cheeks to hold stuff till it's feeding time. Foreign Issue Cause of Burke's Defeat

Congressman Michael E. Burke of the Second district said Saturday that his defeat in the second district, like that of the other Democratic candidates, was to be explained on the strength of the foreign issue in this district. There was no attack on my record. The fight was against Wilson, and it was accompanied by an attack on all who were supporting him, said Mr. Burke. "The Germania, Herold, the German-American alliance, and the German pastors did it. If the pastors had kept out of it, I think we would have broken about even. Then again, I attribute a large share of the defeat to the popularity of Gov. Philipp. There is no question that he is popular, and a large number of Germans have an idea that he is a German. The German papers spread lies against President Wilson which created a prejudice we found it impossible to overcome. I do not think that the German voters will stay in the Republican party, though no doubt a desperate effort will be made to keep them there. But I take it that in the next two years when the great group of progressive laws we have enacted in full operation the Germans will begin to see that the foreign issues, for which they are contending, are impossible. While we are defeated, we are not discouraged. I have no complaint to make. I would rather see President Wilson re-elected than to receive a certificate of election for myself."

A recent issue of "The Crusader" the monthly magazine of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association, contains much information on the subject of tuberculosis which should be known to every intelligent citizen of the state. A limited supply of copies has been set aside for free distribution, so long as they last. Readers of this column who send their names and addresses to that Association, University Extension Building, Milwaukee.

The frontispiece is a beautiful bit of art depicting a patient in a view of a sleeping porch on which a patient, taking the cure, is illuminated against the glow of the setting sun shining across the Fox River. Several other full page illustrations are included which give in a glance some idea of the splendid beginning that has been made in this state to curb ravages of constipation which is responsible for one in every eleven deaths. These include the State Sanatorium at Wales, the Convalescent Camp at Tomahawk Lake, the nine County Sanatoria and Milwaukee's new "Preventorium," the first institution of this character established in Wisconsin.

A brief article entitled, "Some Things You Should Know If You Have Tuberculosis" sums up very concisely the advice that the most competent medical specialists in tuberculosis give their patients. Inasmuch as there are so many consumptives killed each year by wrong notions and bad advice of relatives and friends, every person who knows a victim of this disease should read and ponder this well.

Ignorance and misinformation kill so many! Knowledge saves lives and should be used more often. One who saves a life at the risk of his own is a hero. And yet the service of saving a life, when done with little personal trouble and at no personal risk, is of just as great value to the individual thus saved, as to his family. The above mentioned "Crusader" is a life saver. Can you use one?
