CELEBRATE WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Ockenfels Married Thirty-five Years Ago on November 17, 1899

Last week Friday, November 17, occurred the thirty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Ockenfels of this village. The occasion was very quietly celebrated in the presence of their children. Those of the children who were present are as follows: Mrs. N. J. Braun and daughter, Rosalie, Mrs. Rose Ockenfels of Jefferson, Wis. Mrs. H. Haase and daughter Evelyn of Rockford, Ill.; Mrs. Earl J. Donahue and daughter Anne Helen of Reedsburg, and Leo Ockenfels of Milwaukee. Mr. and Mrs. Ockenfels were the recipients of a beautiful bouquet of chrysanthemums presented to them by their children. After spending the Sabbath with their parents, the children returned to their various homes on Monday with the hope that they may all be able to return for many more celebrations of this kind. The Statesman also desires to extend congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Ockenfels.

High School Notes

Teacher—What is "Hammelkeule Pupil—Camel Meat. Our dignified seniors are flashing their class rings since Monday. The Freshmen have now commenced reading the story, "Treasure Island".

The Wobelo Camp Fire Group held a special meeting on Tuesday after school.

Teacher—How can you get those answers so quickly?

Pupil—By working the examples. How about the answer book?

The Freshmen have received a warning from Mrs. Liebig in Physiology, that they must recite better hereafter or a special session after four o'clock would follow.

Maylinda Raether and Lorinda Schaefer have resigned as secretary and treasurer of the Wobelo Camp Fire Group, and Belinda Belger and Camilla Driesel have now taken their places.

Our most respective Juniors have been greatly rewarded for their toil selling "Riley" pins. Their reward was a half-life-size statue of James Whitecomb Riley, which will be donated to the public library and a hand painted picture of the "Old Swimming Hole", which they presented to the school.

The following program will be rendered Nov. 25, 1916:

KEWASKUM BOYS AT THE FRONT

Adolph Meinecke and Charley Guth Write Home From the Mexican Border. Both Getting Along Fine

The following letter was received by Jos. Remmel from Adolph Meinecke, who is a member of Co. G, 18th Inf., United States Regulars located at Douglas Arizona: "My trip on the motor trucks was mostly to test the Velie motor trucks. The trip was very pleasant indeed, more than 450 other soldiers enjoyed the trip with me from Camp Harry J. Jones, which is the name of our camp at Douglas, to Roosevelt Dam near Phoenix, Arizona, the distance is 600 miles round trip. The scenery was just beautiful. I was one of the principals in a boxing bout which was staged at the Enlisted Men's Club at Douglas recently, and which was witnessed by 2500 soldiers. It was a very interesting bout. My opponent was Kid Nick Spiser of the same regiment, the 18th, U. S. Inf. Kid Spiser's home is in St. Cloud, Minn. and he weighed one pound more than myself. The bout was booked for ten rounds but it ended in the Dixon in the eighth round, with a knockout, thus putting out my opponent and winning the bout. I like the army life here very well now. I would like to hear from some of my Kewaskum friends as news is always welcome in the life of a soldier. Adolph Meinecke, Co. G, 18th, Inf., Douglas, Arizona

From 'Somewhere on the Border'

The News office is in receipt of a letter from Charley Guth, one of our "heroes" who enlisted for service at the Mexican border, throwing aside his razor and stropping to possibly get a wack at Villa and his bandits, and cover himself with undying glory. Charley seems to be in his best spirits, and behaves as a brave soldier, although some disappointment distinctly rings out of his letter. To let his many friends judge for themselves, we produce the most interesting passages of the letter, which was launched "somewhere on the border" and is dated Nov. 12, 1916: "I am feeling fine and getting fat now. When I came back from that Austin hike I had lost about 15 pounds, but it all came back again. Last week we had an awful rainstorm, and it got cold after that. Our company does not have to drill any more, we are detailed to do guard duty as long as we remain down here, we are on for three hours, and off for six during twenty-four hours. After that we have twenty-four hours all for ourselves, and we may go to any place. I have to do guard duty tonight from twelve to three then I am off again for six hours. It is hard work to get up at that time of the night, but what can we do? It can't be helped in the army. Never again will my hand go up over my head, not knowing what is going on. Yet a man can learn a lot, the only thing. I can see what we are down here for. I think it's all Wilson's doing. Its too bad that Hughes didn't get in. Just the same, our boys show what they are made of.

"Just when we are coming home is hard telling. The last few days they are all saying that we would start for home about Nov. 20, but our officer, Mr. Watson, tells us that we will be down on the border before long. I don't care if we do go down, as I would like to see some real work. I think we could do it, too, I'll have to close as I must get some sleep before twelve o'clock. I have a little dog that sleeps with me every night. I'll bring him along home. Regards to all—West Bend News.

BRUSH THE GREAT WELL RECEIVED

Last Monday evening, Brush The Great, entertained a large crowd of people at the Opera House in the second number of the lecture course which is being given under the auspices of the Kewaskum Woman's Club. This entertainment was very good and the magician performed several very clever feats of magic which kept the audience in doubt throughout the entire program. The Woman's Club are to be complimented on their efforts in bringing entertainments of this kind to our village, and should receive the support and patronage of every citizen. The entertainments of this kind are always clean and educational and are a great benefit to the community in which they are given. Everyone should make it a point to attend the remainder of this series thereby helping the Woman's Club to keep up this class of amusement.

A. J. HANNERS DEAD. WAS ILL FIVE DAYS

Albert J. Hanners, cashier of the Knowles State Bank, died at his home in Knowles, Wis., Sunday morning, Nov. 19, of pneumonia after an illness of five days. The deceased was the only son of the late Dr. Harvey Hanners, and was born in the town of Eden on February 8, 1876. He graduated from the Fond du Lac high school with the class of 1897. After teaching school for a short time, he entered the employ of Nast Brothers Lime and Stone Co., and for fifteen years was superintendent of their plant at Knowles. He resigned this position about a year ago to become cashier of the Knowles State Bank—Fond du Lac Commonwealth.

Has Perfect Record

Leo Salter, South Germantown, claims to have the record of attendance in this state. He has a perfect record for over ten years. He has not missed a day or even been absent from a class, nor has he been tardy. This record is all the more remarkable when one considers that he is a country boy, and had to travel country roads going to and from school. He will finish the Menomonee Falls High school in June, 1917, and expects to have a clear record then in spite of the fact that he lives two and one half miles from school.—Hartford Press.

DEATH OF MRS. HY. WITTENBERG

Passes Away at Her Home in Dundee After a Long Illness. Was Very Well and Favorably Known Here

Mrs. Nettie Wittenberg, wife of Henry Wittenberg, of Dundee, passed away in eternal sleep at her home at Dundee on Tuesday, November 21, 1916, after a protracted illness of five years' duration with cancer. Miss Nettie Schaefer was born in the town of Kewaskum on the 25th day of August 1867, having attained the age of 49 years and 3 months. On the 6th day of January, 1894, she was united in the Holy Bonds of matrimony to Henry Wittenberg. They took up their abode at Milwaukee and for the past six years have made their home at Dundee. Four children were born to this union, namely: Clarence, Henry, Erna and Hilbert, all at home, who together with their grief stricken father, survive. Besides these she leaves one sister, Lizzie, Mrs. Chas. Weddig of the town of Kewaskum, and seven brothers, Chas. John and Chas. Schaefer of the village of Kewaskum, Fred and August Schaefer of the town of Kewaskum, Otto Schaefer of Milwaukee and Jake Schaefer of West Bend. The funeral was held from the Ev. Peace church at Kewaskum on Friday, Nov. 24th, at 1 o'clock p. m. Rev. F. Mohme officiated. Interment was held at the congregation's cemetery. To the husband, children, brothers and sister we extend our heartfelt sympathy. Ihre meinen lieben klaget nicht, beweinet nicht meinen tod, ich bin ja nicht zu frueh gestorben. Bin nur entnommen meiner noth Denn meine schmerzen waren gross. Die truer euch niemals habt gedacht, Und nun steht mein jammer still, Gottlob, es ist vollbracht.

CARD OF THANKS.

We, the undersigned desire to express our sincere thanks to the neighbors, friends and relatives, who so willingly assisted us during the illness, death and burial of our beloved wife and mother, Mrs. Henry Wittenberg. To the pall bearers, and for the many beautiful floral offerings. We especially desire to thank Rev. Mohme for the assistance rendered and to all those who paid their last respect to the deceased by attending the funeral. Henry Wittenberg and Children

To Whomsoever This May Concern

I take this means whereby to inform all those who so liberally supported me in the past, that I have disposed of my newspaper and printing business, better known as the Kewaskum Statesman, to D. J. Harbeck and Arthur Schaefer, both of the village of Kewaskum, who will conduct the business affairs of the establishment in the future. Possession was given the new owners on Monday, November 20th.

Messrs. Harbeck and Schaefer are both well known to the patrons of the Statesman. Mr. Harbeck having occupied the position as foreman for a number of years, while Mr. Schaefer for several years had charge of the typesetting machine. Both of these men are very ambitious and reliable and are worthy of the continued support of all my former patrons.

To the Subscribers, I wish to express my hearty thanks for the interest taken in being members of the Statesman family. This same interest should be manifested in the future.

To the Advertisers and to those who patronized the Statesman office in the capacity of job work, I wish to thank them for their hearty co-operation in assisting in building up the Statesman and making it a success. The new owners well deserve your continued support.

To the Correspondents I wish to express my sincere thanks for the support given in assisting making the Statesman one of the newest weekly newspapers in the state. I also hope that they will report me success.

I further wish to announce that all accounts, both advertising and job work, that remained unpaid up to Monday, November 20th, 1916, are due me, for which settlement will be greatly appreciated in the near future. The subscription list as it is on the records and books will be taken care of by the new owners.

Again thanking the patrons of the Statesman for their support, and wishing my successors prosperity, I am,

Geo. H. Schmidt, Former Editor and Manager

For a Weak Stomach

As a general rule all you need to do is to adopt a diet suited to your age and occupation and to keep your bowels regular. When you feel that you have eaten too much and when constipated, take one of Chamberlain's Tablets.

WILL ERECT COLD STORAGE

Company Buys Lots From John Vetch North of The Electric Light Plant at Campbellsport

Property transfers and other arrangements have been made during the past week, for the erection of a cold storage warehouse at Campbellsport. The J. S. Stevens Company, wholesale dealers of cheese, with storage houses in several cities, have purchased the lots north of the Electric Light Company's plant, from John Vetch, and have made arrangements with the Chicago & Northwestern railroad company, to have a track built from the east side track to the site where the storage building will be erected.

Although no plans have been accepted by the company, the building will be, according to a member of the firm, an up-to-date brick veneer structure, with ample capacity to handle the entire production of the surrounding cheese factories.

Mr. Slyfield, who has charge of the company's business at Campbellsport, is now using the former Flood warehouse for headquarters, but it is expected that the new cold storage building will be ready to occupy before the season's business rush begins next spring.—Campbellsport News.

Klumb-Bunkelman Nuptials

A charming wedding was solemnized at the St. Peter's Lutheran church in the town of Addison, last Saturday afternoon, November 18th, at 2:30 o'clock. The contracting parties were William Bunkelman Jr., a son of W. Bunkelman Sr., of the town of Farmington, and Miss Emma Klumb, of the town of Barton. Rev. Wm. Weber tied the nuptial knot. Miss Emma Bunkelman was maid of honor, and was dressed in white, carrying lavender chrysanthemums. The Misses Ella Bunkelman, Hilda Klumb and Olive Werner were the bridesmaids and were gowned in white, carrying lavender chrysanthemums. The bride was beautifully gowned in white crepe muller trimmed lace over drapes, caught with pearls, and carried a shower bouquet of tea roses and lilies of the valley. The groom was attended by Emil Klumb, as best man, and Edwin Bruessel, Alvin Klumb and Walter Manthaus as groomsmen. Little Evelyn Stege was flower girl and carried a basket of lavender chrysanthemums. Little Viola Klumb was ring bearer, carrying the rings in two white chrysanthemums on a cushion. Miss Celestina Martin of the town of Addison, the wedding march by I. L. Bachman. From church the wedding party repaired to the bride's home, where a reception was held during the afternoon and evening. About eighty guests were present and the time was employed with congratulations, games and singing. Both the young people are popular and very well liked by the large circle of friends. The groom is an industrious and successful farmer of the town of Farmington. After December 1st, the young couple will be at home to their many friends on the farm of Farmington. May the very best of wishes and good luck attend the happy couple through the journey of life.

GREETING!

With this issue of the Kewaskum Statesman, a new management assumes control of this excellent paper, Don J. Harbeck and Arthur W. Schaefer having purchased the entire plant of Geo. H. Schmidt, the former hustling editor and proprietor. The deal was brought about by our wide-awake real estate dealers, Rosenheimer and Day, last week Friday. The new proprietors are widely known throughout this section of this country, having been in connection with the Statesman for a number of years. Mr. Harbeck, the senior partner, was employed by the Statesman for seventeen years in the capacity of foreman; while Mr. Schaefer, the junior partner, has held the position of linotypist for this paper for the past seven years. It will be the intention of the new firm to get out a good, clean, newsy paper at all times. In regard to politics, the paper will be independent, a fair and square deal to all. Mr. Schmidt, the retiring owner, will confine his duties to the office of postmaster. The new firm will continue the name of the Statesman and will be known as the Statesman Publishing Company.

MANY ATTEND LOMIRA WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Meta Schultz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schultz and Otto Behm, of the town of Lomira, was solemnized at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at St. Paul's Lutheran church in that village by the Rev. Henry Wolter.

Miss Clara Behm acted as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Lillian Coulter and Augusta Hoehn. The groom was attended by Walter Bartelt of Austin, Minn., and Edward Bartelt of Ashford. The bride was attired in a gas light green crepe de chene gown. She wore a veil and carried a bouquet of roses. Miss Coulter's gown was of pink silk, and Miss Hoehn was dressed in white. Both carried carnations.

After the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's parents for a company of 300 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Behm will reside on

EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEPH IS DEAD; ILL MANY MONTHS

Aged Ruler of Austria Passes Away in Palace at Vienna.

TOLD OF CRAIOVA'S FALL

New Monarch Kin of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, Who With His Wife Was Slain at Sarajevo in 1914 by Serbian—Double Murder Caused the Present War.

London, Nov. 22.—Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria-Hungary died at nine o'clock last night at Schoenbrunn castle, according to a Reuters dispatch from Vienna by way of Amsterdam.

The first intimation received here that the aged emperor's health was again the subject of solicitation was contained in a dispatch dated November 12, emanating from a Vienna news agency, which reported that the emperor had been suffering for some days from a slight catarrhal affection.

It had been decided early this month to associate the heir to the throne, Archduke Charles Francis, in the government of the country.

Ceremony Set for December 2.

According to the report, the archduke was to assume the position on December 2, on the sixty-eighth anniversary of the emperor's accession to the throne.

So far as is known here Archduke Charles is still at the front in command of the army.

A Geneva dispatch forwarded to Reuters by way of Amsterdam quotes the Katolische Zeitung as saying the sacrament was administered to Emperor Francis Joseph on Saturday.

Cabinet Meeting Held.

Telegraphing from Amsterdam, the Central News correspondent says:

"Vienna reports that, although the death of the emperor had been expected, the news, which was printed in special editions of the newspapers, made a deep impression on the public. A special cabinet meeting was held. The heir to the throne, Archduke Charles Francis, has been for some time in Vienna.

"A meeting of the Hungarian cabinet has been called at Budapest. Premier Tisza will afterward come to Vienna."

White Ghost Over Life.

The white ghost of the House of Hapsburg softened, but never could crush the indomitable spirit of the revered ruler.

The death of Francis Joseph is a climax to the long list of tragedies in the Hapsburg family—a list unparalleled in any other reigning house in Europe. He dies in the midst of the world's greatest war, which he himself largely brought about by his determination to avenge the act of assassination of his heir, Archduke Francis Ferdinand, as the result of an alleged Serbian conspiracy when on a state visit to Bosnia on June 28, 1914.

Francis Joseph was eighty-six years old. He was born August 18, 1830. He ascended the throne of Austria on the abdication of his uncle, Ferdinand I, December 2, 1848, making his active reign extend over a period of almost sixty-eight years, in all but the first twenty of which he was also apostolic king of Hungary.

Longest Modern Reign.

It is doubtful that if in all history there has been an active, authenticated reign that was longer.

The aged monarch, although he had suffered serious inroads upon his health for many years, was strong enough to keep a firm grip on affairs of state almost to the last. There were repeated rumors of a serious illness from a bronchial affection, and frequently rumors of his death, which were proved unfounded when official announcements were made from Vienna.

Dictated Ultimatum.

The ultimatum of July 23, 1914, which Francis Joseph sent to King Peter of Serbia, denouncing the anti-Austrian propaganda in that country and demanding prompt punishment of the assassins of Archduke Ferdinand, was supposedly dictated by Francis Joseph himself, and it was this document that directly precipitated the war now ravaging Europe.

Five days later, after Serbia had complied with the demands with the exception of agreeing to allow Austrian authorities to enter Serbia to stamp out the alleged anti-Austrian conspiracies, Francis Joseph declared war.

An Eventful Reign.

Aside from the great war Francis Joseph's reign was one of the most eventful in history. From his imperial vantage point he saw the French monarchy go down, the second empire rise and crumble, the commune flare briefly and the republic of today rise on its ashes; he saw the black plinths of the Prussian eagle stamped on the flag of the new German empire—later to tower threateningly over Austria itself; he saw the papacy shorn of its territorial demesne, while a bickering family of petty principalities was welded into united Italy; he saw Spain, once the greatest of colonial powers, lose the last of her dependencies in two oceans; he saw Japan opened to western civilization, and later defeat the sprawling colossus of two continents; he saw the most absolute despotisms—Russia, Turkey and Persia—concede representation to the people; he saw at a distance the United States cement its federation with the blood of a great internecine war, and he saw his own brother prove that monarchy could not take new root on American soil.

Personal Sorrows Many.

In his own country he faced internal dissensions and external aggressions from the moment he came to the throne. By the war of 1859 with France and Sardinia he was forced to cede Lombardy to Italy; by force of arms and treaty he lost the duchy of Holstein to Prussia and Venice to Italy; and by the revolt of Kossuth, the Hungarian patriot, he barely escaped having his dual empire cut in two.

But in human interest his personal sorrows overshadowed all. One after another they came upon him. In 1853 the list of tragic incidents began with an attempt upon his own life. In 1867 his brother, Archduke Maximilian, after three years' experiment as emperor of Mexico, was captured by the army of the patriots and condemned to death by a court-martial, whose sentence was executed, notwithstanding intervention in his behalf by the government of the United States, England and Prussia.

Prince's Death Mystery.

There followed the burning to death of a niece in Vienna; a sister met a similar fate in Paris, and a cousin drowned himself in Stubbrenberg lake. Yet these were but minor tragedies in comparison with that which befell the ancient house of the Hapsburgs in 1889, when Rudolf, the imperial prince upon whom the Austrians pinned their hopes, met death in a mystery which to this day is not cleared.

Nephew Flees Country.

Clouded in still deeper mystery, if possible, was the disappearance, that same year, of Francis Joseph's favorite nephew, Archduke Johann Salvator. Heir to the throne at the death of Rudolf, he renounced all his imperial dignities and fled the country as John Orth, captain of a merchant ship, never to be heard of again.

The next of kin, the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, who became heir presumptive, added a further burden to his uncle's heart by moribund marriage to Sophie, the countess of Chotek. It was he and his wife who were assassinated at Sarajevo in June, 1914.

This assassination immediately brought about the sending of demands to Serbia and developed the international difficulties which soon resulted in the war.

But it is doubtful if any or all of these reverses weighed more heavily upon the emperor's heart than the tragedy at Geneva, when the Empress Elizabeth, who had been called the most beautiful woman in Europe, was stabbed to death by a mad Italian anarchist, in 1898. True, she long had been estranged from the emperor, but he had never ceased to respect and adore her. When a courier brought him the news of the crime he exclaimed:

"Alas, nothing can be spared me, nothing."

After each blow he renewed his devotion to the state, his only solace being in harder work.

Gossip dealt plentifully with his private life, filled with romance and misfortune.

Then appeared Katharina Schraatz, formerly of the Imperial theater. By her tact and wit she succeeded in creating for herself a place below but beside the throne never accorded before her time so openly and so permanently to any woman. Speculation as to her relations with the emperor was wide and malicious.

DEUTSCHLAND STARTS ON ITS WAY HOME AGAIN

German Diver Leaves New London in the Afternoon—Delayed by Accident That Cost Five Lives.

New London, Conn., Nov. 22.—The Deutschland has started on its return voyage. The merchant submarine left shortly after two o'clock in the afternoon for Bremen.

By nightfall she was well outside the three-mile limit and speeding on her 4,000-mile trip.

An hour after leaving her pier the submarine passed through the treacherous waters of "The Race," where five days ago she collided with her escorting tug. Every possible precaution was taken to prevent a recurrence of that disaster, which resulted in the loss of five lives.

She was followed out to sea by the T. A. Scott company's tug Alert, press boats and a cutter from the U. S. cruiser Columbia.

Thousands of people lined the banks of the picturesque Thames river to watch and cheer her departure.

No sign of the damage sustained by the Deutschland when she rammed the tug T. A. Scott, Jr., was visible.

In her holds was stored $2,000,000 worth of cargo, consisting of crude rubber, tin, nickel and other ore.

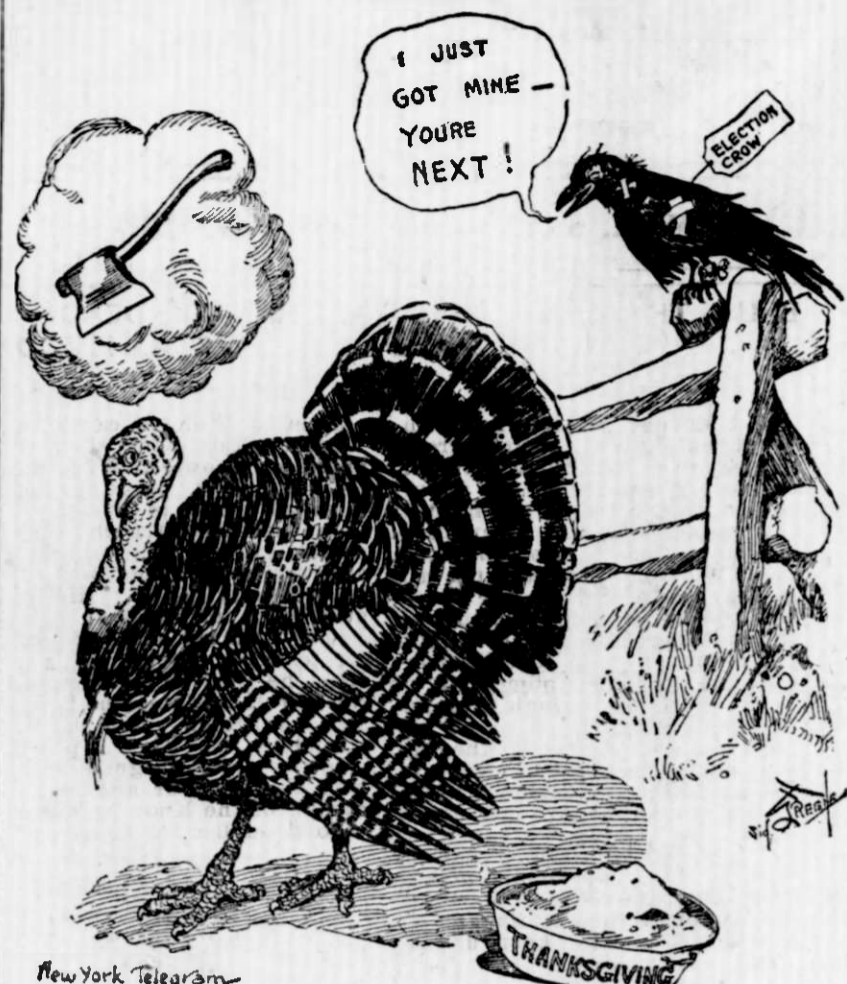

The Deutschland continued down the harbor, gradually pulling away from the conveying tugs and at 3:05 o'clock was seen off Ocean Beach, headed for The Race with the tugs a considerable distance astern.

Up to the time of going through The Race she had not submerged and her officers were still on deck.

Three More Steamers Sunk.

London, Nov. 20.—Lloyds reports the sinking of two British steamships, the Lady Carrington of 3,920 tons and the Vasco, 1,914 tons, and the Portuguese steamer, Sannicola.

DEUTSCHLAND COLLIDES WITH CRAFT ACTING AS CONVOY.

All Members of Crew Perish—German Captain Hirsch Only One on Craft Saved.

New London, Conn., Nov. 20.—Five lives were lost when the German submarine Deutschland, which left port on Friday morning for Bremen rammed and sent to the bottom with its crew of five the tug T. A. Scott, Jr., one of its two conveying tugs. After the accident the Deutschland returned to this port.

The only person on the tug saved was Capt. Fred Hirsch of the German interned liner Neckar. The tug, which belonged to the T. A. Scott Wrecking company, went to the bottom.

The list of dead includes: Capt. John Gurney; William A. Caton, engineer; Edward Stone, fireman; Clarence B. Davison, cook; Eugene Duzart, deckhand.

The Deutschland returned to its dock here at 5:15 a. m.

An eddy caused the accident, according to Capt. Harry Baker of the tug Cassie, the other conveyer of the submarine. The Cassie was traveling about half a mile astern of the Deutschland, while the Scott and the submarine were moving almost abreast. The sea was calm, Captain Baker said, and conditions were normal. The Scott carried the usual lights, but the Deutschland had only its headlight and two side lights. The tide was running almost full and when about seven miles west of Race rock they struck an eddy, which twisted them about and out of control. Then they came together.

WOMAN SETS U. S. AIR RECORD

Ruth Law Flies From Chicago to Hornell, N. Y., in Six Hours—Averaged 113 Miles an Hour.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—In a decrepit Curtiss biplane of a type long considered obsolete, Miss Ruth Law on Sunday captured the long distance sustained airplane flight record of America. In the presence of only a few casual spectators, Miss Law took to the air in Grant park at 7:25 a. m. and landed at Hornell, N. Y., at 1:32 p. m., a distance of approximately 680 miles, which she traversed at an average speed of 113 miles an hour. The total sustained flight time was six hours and seven minutes. The plucky aviatrix was compelled to land to get a new fuel supply. Arising again at 3:24 p. m., she continued on her way until again compelled to descend at Binghamton, N. Y., because of darkness. The total distance for the day was 750 miles.

HUGHES WINS IN MINNESOTA

Has 179,553 to Wilson's 179,157, But Runs Far Behind His Ticket in the State.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 21.—Charles Evans Hughes carried Minnesota by 396. This was based upon official returns from Minnesota complete giving Hughes 179,553, Wilson 179,157. There will be no official recount of the Minnesota figures. Hughes ran just 96,290 behind his ticket in Minnesota, according to these officially canvassed figures.

W. C. T. U. Re-Elects Head.

Indianapolis, Nov. 21.—Miss Anna A. Gordon of Evanston, Ill., was re-elected president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at its annual convention on Tuesday. Other old officers were re-elected.

Horses Burned at Bowie.

Bowie, Md., Nov. 21.—Half a dozen, perhaps more, race horses were lost and two stables destroyed in a fire at the Bowie racetrack. Of the horses killed two were Corsican and Yellowstone, owned by J. C. Waggon.

Amsterdam, Nov. 21.—The intervention of the new nuncio at Brussels on behalf of Pope Benedict has resulted in only four persons out of 18 who had been condemned to death at Hasselt for espionage being executed.

LEWIS JACKSON CRUSHED TO DEATH BY AUTO.

Driver, Spectator, Motion-Picture Operator and Lemonade Vendor Killed at Santa Monica.

Santa Monica, Cal., Nov. 21.—Death was again in the annual grand prix motor classic on Saturday over the Santa Monica course and claimed four lives when a Marmion racer driven by Lewis Jackson of Los Angeles crashed into the crowd that lined the track. Three persons were injured.

Jackson himself was killed instantly. The dead: Harold Edgerton, Los Angeles, spectator. Lewis Jackson, Los Angeles, driver. H. P. Jenkins, motion-picture camera operator. Mrs. Leana Juratec, Venice, lemonade vendor.

Jenkins was filming Jackson's catapult drive when the tragedy occurred. Standing at the side of the track his camera's eye showed the racer speeding down the course at 100 miles an hour.

Jackson was in his thirteenth lap when the accident occurred.

Paris Announces Victory Over German-Bulgar Force—Town Was Evacuated by Teutons.

Paris, Nov. 21.—French troops have captured from the German and Bulgarian forces the chief southern Serbian town of Monastir, according to an official announcement made on Sunday by the French war department.

The text of the statement reads: "November 19—Troops of the army of the east entered Monastir at eight o'clock this morning, the date of the anniversary of the taking of the town by the Serbians in 1912."

Berlin, Nov. 21, by wireless.—Monastir has been abandoned by the German and Bulgarian forces, says the official statement issued on Sunday at the German army headquarters. The Teutons and Bulgars, it is announced, took positions to the north of the southern Serbian town after the forces of the entente allies stormed height No. 1212 to the northeast of Ciegel.

LINER ESCAPES FROM DIVER

French Steamer La Touraine Signaled by German Submarine—Captain Warned by Wireless.

New York, Nov. 22.—The French liner La Touraine narrowly escaped being torpedoed the day she left Bordeaux.

On arrival here on Monday Captain Caussin said he had been out only a few hours in an extremely rough sea when he was signaled for assistance by what he thought was a French steamer about a mile away. She reported broken propeller. The Touraine stopped and a small boat put off to the distressed vessel.

Shortly afterward a wireless was received from the steamer Columbian stating that she was being torpedoed and warning all ships to look out for a steamer with broken propellers. Captain Caussin recalled the boat and fled.

Harvard Hospital Unit Sails. Boston, Nov. 22.—Another addition to the Harvard hospital unit, including six surgeons, one dentist and 20 nurses, sailed from New York on Monday afternoon on the liner Andania for Liverpool.

FIGHT FOR 8-HOUR DAY

RAIL MEN'S CHIEF PREDICTS CHANGE FOR ALL CLASSES OF LABOR.

GOMPERS WOULD DEFEY ROADS

Warns Capital and Says Labor Will "Show Claws"—Stone Sees "Unfinished Business" Unless Law Is Accepted by the Railroads.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 23.—Organized labor threw its millions of workers into the scale against the railroads' millions of dollars here on Tuesday in one of the most tumultuous days in labor's history.

Five hundred delegates to the American Federation of Labor convention yelled their approval when Samuel Gompers declared the railroad employees should strike January 1 if the Adamson law was not put into effect by the railroads.

"Accepting the challenge," as he termed it, the federation pledged the "undivided and unqualified support of every man and woman in the federation, whatever may arise, whatever may betide," to the four great railroad brotherhoods in the approaching crisis.

It also threw its entire force behind the movement for a universal eight-hour day. Mr. Gompers declared that the eight-billion-dollar combination of employers formed in New York to fight labor "should be shown that sometimes the working people had teeth and claws."

"I am about anarchist enough to say that we are going to work for the eight-hour day for all classes. If we can't get it peaceably we will fight for it."

This challenge was thrown out in an address by W. G. Lee, head of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, before the convention. He was urging affiliation of the members of the federation with the railroad brotherhoods in the fight for an eight-hour law. Delegates who crowded the hall cheered Mr. Lee and other speakers enthusiastically.

No definite action was taken toward consolidating the federation and the brotherhoods.

Gompers' declaration of faith was extremely dramatic. Quivering with emotion and shouting at the top of his voice, Gompers declared:

"All I can say in answer to you men of wealth (the railroads) is this: 'Be careful—you are going too far.' Stone declared that "if the Adamson law does not become operative on the first day of January there will be a lot of unfinished business to attend to." He declined to amplify the statement in any way, saying that "it goes as it lays."

The time has come, Stone said, when the railroads are on the defensive instead of labor, and he declared, "we have great faith that the men in the White House will see that we get what was given us voluntarily."

The DESTROYING ANGEL

By Louis Joseph Vance

TO OUR FEMINE READERS

Young ladies, if you were living in a secluded neighborhood and discovered a respectable, nice-looking young man on an adjoining place watching you daily, would you notify the police or would you encourage a bit of flirtation just for curiosity? What one young lady did in such circumstances is told entertainingly in this installment.

You remember, Hugh Whitaker, thinking he was about to die, married an innocent girl to save her honor and departed immediately for the Southern seas. Five years later he returns to New York, healthy and wealthy, and finds the wife, now a famous actress known as Sara Law, engaged to marry Drummond, his old friend and partner. She disappears suddenly. Drummond supposedly commits suicide, as her previous lovers had done. Whitaker is murderously assaulted in the dark and goes to the country home of his friend Martin Ember, near the sea. He discovers a mysterious spy there and thinks it is Drummond.

CHAPTER X

The Spy.

Already the sun was warm, the faint breeze bland. Standing at the window and shading his eyes against the glare, Whitaker surveyed a world new-washed and radiant; the landlocked bay dimpled with vagrant catspaws and smitten with sunlight as with a scintillar of fire; the earth fresh and fragrant, steaming faintly in the ardent glow of the dawn.

In another moment he was at the kitchen door, interrupting Sam Far's first matrimonial attentions to his teeth with a demand for a bathing suit. Three minutes later, from the end of the small dock, he dived neatly, coming to the surface with his flesh tingling with delight of the cool water; then, with the deliberate and powerful movements of an experienced swimmer, struck away from the land. Two hundred yards out he paused, rolled over on his back, and, hands clasped beneath his head, floated serenely, sunlight warming his upturned face, his body rejoicing in the suave, clean, fluid embrace.

Then something disturbed him—a dull fluttering, vibrant upon his submerged eardrums. Extending his arms and moving his hands gently to preserve his poise, he lifted his head from the water. From the landing stage on the Fiske place a motor boat was standing out. The churning of its propeller had aroused him. He could see but a single person for all its crew. Seated astern, dividing her attention between the side steering wheel and the engine, she was altogether ignorant of the onlooker. Only her head and shoulders showed above the coming—her head with its shining crown, her shoulders cloaked with a light wrap gathered at the throat.

Whitaker, admiring, wondered . . . Sweeping in a wide arc as it gathered speed, the boat presently shot out smartly on a straight course for the barrier beach.

Why? What business had she there? And at an hour so early?

No affair of his—Whitaker admitted as much freely. And yet he was beginning his fourth day on the Great West bay without having set foot upon its Great South beach! Itiditions oversight! And one to be remedied without another hour's delay.

Grimacing with amused toleration of his own perverse sophistry, he turned over on his side and struck out in the wake of the motor boat. When at length he waded ashore he found the motor boat moored in shallow water at the end of a long and substantial dock. He patted the flanks of the vessel as he waded on.

"Good little boat!" said he. Walking rapidly, very soon he stood at the head of a rude flight of wooden steps which ran down from the top of a wave-eaten sand bluff, some ten or twelve feet in height, to the broad and gently shelving ocean beach. Midway between the sand bluff and the breaking waters stood the woman Whitaker had followed. (There wasn't any use mincing terms—he had followed her in his confounded, fatuous curiosity!) Her face was to the sea, her hands clasped behind her. Now the wind modeled her cloak sweetly to her body, now whipped its skirts away, disclosing legs straight and slender and graciously modeled. She was dressed, it seemed, for bathing.

Whitaker tura to go, and turning let his gaze sweep up from the beach and along the brow of the bluff. He paused, frowning. Some twenty feet or so distant the legs of a man, trousered and booted, protruded from a hollow between two hummocks of sand. And the toes of the boots were digging into the sand, indicating that the man was lying prone; and that meant (if he were neither dead nor sleeping) that he was watching the woman on the beach.

Indignation, righteous indignation warmed Whitaker's bosom. It was all very well for him to catch sight of the woman through her cottage win-down, by night, and to swim over to the beach in her wake the next morning, but what right had anybody else to constitute himself her shadow? Besides, it was possible that the man was Drummond.

He strode forward and stood over the man, looking down at his back. It was true, as he had assumed—the fellow was watching the woman. And his back was very like Drummond's. A little quiver of excitement mingled with anticipative satisfaction ran through him. Now, at last, the mystery was to be cleared up, his future relations with the pseudo-suicide defined and established.

Deliberately he extended his bare foot and nudged the man's ribs. "Drummond . . ." he said in a clear voice, decided but unaggressive. With an oath and what seemed a single, quick motion, the man jumped to his feet and turned to Whitaker with a startled and inflamed countenance.

"What the devil!" he cried angrily. "Who are you? What do you want? What do you mean by coming round here and calling me Drummond?" He was no more Drummond than he was Whitaker himself.

"For that matter"—something clicked in Whitaker's brain and subconsciously he knew that his temper was about to take the bridge—"what do you mean by spying on that lady yonder?"

It being indisputably none of his concern, the unfairness of the question only lent it offensive force. The man made this painfully clear through the medium of an intolerable epithet and an attempt to land his right fist on Whitaker's face.

The face, however, was elsewhere when the fist reached the point for which it had been aimed; and Whitaker closed in promptly as the fellow's body followed his arm, thrown off balance by the momentum of the unobstructed blow.

What followed had entered into the calculations of neither. Whitaker felt himself suddenly falling through air thick with a blinding, choking cloud of dust and sand. The body of the other was simultaneously wrenched violently from his grasp. Then he brought up against solidity with a bump that seemed to expel every cubic inch of air from his lungs. And he heard himself cry out sharply with the pain of his weak ankle newly twisted. . . .

He sat up, gasping for breath, brushed the sand from his face and eyes, and as soon as his whirling wits settled a little, comprehended what had happened.

Half buried in the debris of a miniature landslide, he sat at the foot of the bluff. Immediately above his head a ragged break showed where the sand, held together solely by beach grass, had given way beneath the weight of the antagonists.

A little distance from him the other man was picking himself up, apparently unhurt but completely surfeited. Without delay, with not even so much as a glance at Whitaker, he staggered off for a few paces, then settled into a heavy, lumbering trot westward along the beach. He did not wish the woman to recognize him; therefore he was putting himself out of her way. For she was approaching.

When Whitaker caught sight of her, she was already close at hand. She had been running. Now as their glances met, hers keenly inquiring of Whitaker's still bewildered eyes, she pulled up abruptly and stood astare. He saw, or fancied, something closely akin to fright and consternation in her look. The flush in her cheeks gave way to a swift pallor. The hands trembled that drew her beach cloak close about her. She seemed to make an ineffectual effort to speak.

On his part, Whitaker tried to get up. A keen twinge in his ankle, however, wrung an involuntary grunt from him, and with a wry grimace he sank back. "Oh!" cried the woman, impulsively, warmed Whitaker's bosom. It was all very well for him to catch sight of the woman through her cottage win-in a tone more of hope than of assurance. He felt tenderly of the injured member. "Only my ankle—twisted it a few days ago, and now again. It'll be all right in a moment or two."

Her gaze traveled from him to the edge of the bluff. "I didn't see—I mean, I heard something, and turned, and saw you trying to sit up and the other man rising."

"Sorry we startled you," Whitaker mumbled, wondering how the deuce he was going to get home. His examination of the ankle hadn't proved greatly encouraging.

"But I—ah—how did it happen?" "A mere misunderstanding," he said lightly. "I mistook the gentleman for someone I knew. He resented it, so we started to scrap like a couple of schoolboys. Then . . . I wish to heaven it had been his leg instead of mine!"

"But still I hardly understand . . ." "Well, you see, I—ah—I'm visiting Ember—the cottage next to yours, I believe. That is, if I'm not mistaken, you have the Fiske place?"

She nodded. "And so, this morning, it struck me as a fine young idea to swim over here and have a look at the beach. And then I found that chap watching you—"

"That startled her. 'How do you mean—watching me?'" "Why—ah—that's what he seemed to be doing."

She shook her head. "You must be mistaken."

"Daresay, I generally am when I jump at conclusions. Anyway, he didn't like it much when I called him out of his name. I gathered, in fact, that he was considerably put out. Silly, wasn't it?"

"Rather!" she agreed gravely. "For a moment or two they eyed one another in silence, Whitaker wondering just how much of a fool she was thinking him and dubiously considering various expedients to ingratiate himself."

"I don't seem to think of anything useful to say," he ventured. "Can you help me out? Unless you'd be interested to know my name's Whitaker—Hugh Whitaker—?"

She acknowledged the information merely by a brief nod. "It seems to me," she said seriously, "that the pressing question is, what are you going to do about that ankle? Shall you be able to walk?"

"Hard to say," he grumbled, a trifle dashed. With infinite pains and the aid of both hands and his sound foot, he lifted himself and contrived to stand erect for an instant, then bore a little weight on the hurt ankle—and blanched, palling visibly beneath his ineradicable tan.

"I don't suppose," he said with effort—"they grow—crutches—on this neck of land?"

And he was about to collapse again upon the sands when, without warning, he found the woman had moved to his side and caught his hand, almost brusquely passing his arm across her shoulders, so that she received no little of his weight.

"Oh, I say—" he protested feebly. "Don't say anything," she replied shortly. "I'm very strong—quite able to help you to the boat. Please don't consider me at all; just see if we can't manage this way."

He endeavored to withdraw his arm, an effort rendered futile by her cool, firm grasp on his fingers. "Please!" she said—not altogether patiently.

He eyed her askance. There was in this incredible situation a certain piquancy, definitely provocative, transcending the "claims his injury made upon his interest. Last night for the first time he had seen this woman, and from a distance had thought her desirable; now, within twelve hours, he found himself with an arm round her neck!

And then suddenly she turned her head and intercepted his whole-hearted stare. For a thought wonder glimmered in the violet eyes; then they flashed disconcertingly; finally they became utterly cold and disdainful.

"Well?" she demanded in a frigid voice. He looked away in complete confusion, and felt his face burning to the temples. "I beg your pardon," he mumbled unhappily.

He essayed to walk. Twenty feet and more of treacherous, dry, yielding sand separated them from the flight of steps that ascended the bluff. It proved no easy journey. The starway accomplished, he limped to a wooden seat and sat down with much grim decision in his manner. But he mustered a smile to meet her look of concern, and shook his head. "Thus far and no farther."

"Oh, but you must not be stubborn!" "I mean to be—horrid stubborn. In fact, I don't mind warning you that there's a famous strain of mule in the Whitaker make-up."

She was, however, not to be diverted; and her fugitive frown bespoke impatience, if he were any judge.

Who do you think this girl is? And what is the purpose of the unrecognized spy? Do you think the girl knows Whitaker? (TO BE CONTINUED.)

BADGER STATE NEWS

MOST IMPORTANT HAPPENINGS OF THE PAST WEEK TOLD IN A FEW LINES.

HUSTING NOMINATES WOLFE

Sends in Name to President Wilson for United States District Attorney to Succeed the Late John A. Aylward.

Milwaukee—William F. Wolfe, unsuccessful candidate for the United States senate on the democratic ticket at the recent election, was nominated by Senator Paul O. Husting to succeed the late John A. Aylward as district attorney for the western district of Wisconsin. Senator Husting transmitted his recommendation to President Wilson from his home at Mayville. Since 1894 Mr. Wolfe has been a lawyer in La Crosse. His original home was on a farm near Appleton, where he was born on Aug. 30, 1868. His father was a prominent pioneer of that section, serving on the county board many years and in the state legislature of 1895. Mr. Wolfe's educational career started at Appleton, where he was graduated from the Ryan High School, and was completed at the University of Wisconsin, where he took both the academic and law courses. He completed the first in little more than three years, but graduated with the class of 1891. He has been a leader in state democratic ranks ever since.

New Year's Eve May Be Dry. Racine—Managers of sample rooms having recently put in force a rule to close their places of business on Sunday evenings at 8 o'clock, members of the Ministerial union of Racine, at a meeting at the Y. M. C. A. started a movement to close the saloons on New Year's eve. It is said the mayor will be asked to act.

Aged Woman Killed by Street Car. Janesville—Mrs. Sophia Bleedorn was killed by a traction company car as she was taking her daily walk. Mrs. Bleedorn walked directly in the path of the car. Her death is the third railway fatality here in two weeks. All of the victims were past 70 years of age and were pioneers of the city.

Large Sum for Roads. Antigo—If the various towns of the county raise a total of $9,000, the county of Langlade will spend an additional $10,000 to be spent on the state highway system in this county during the coming year. Five towns will receive $2,000 if each raises $1,800, according to a resolution passed by the county board.

Breaks Lumber Cut Records. Antigo—The 1916 cut of the Faust Lumber company was the largest in the history of the mill, totaling more than 10,000,000 feet. About 20 per cent of this was hemlock; a small quantity pine; the rest, hardwood. The length of the operations was eleven months. The mill probably will start operations again about Jan. 1.

Would Collect Garbage Free. Racine—E. B. Rees, Denver, Colo., has written City Clerk Ryba offering to collect the garbage of this city without charge. He probably will be invited to appear before the common council and submit details of his plan. He wants an exclusive franchise for ten years.

Wautoma Gets New Theater. Wautoma—The W. J. Durham Lumber company now has in the course of construction an opera house which will have a capacity of more than 400 and which will be as modern as any in this region.

Reduce Power Rates. Elkhorn—The electric power rates have been reduced here by the light and water commission. Under the new rate the current used for power will be charged for on the sliding scale basis.

To Improve Highways. Green Bay—Petitions for building roads during 1917 in towns in Brown county, amounting to $16,950, and for building bridges amounting to $2,754, were accepted by the Brown county board of supervisors.

Farmers Market Many Potatoes. Wautoma—Despite the fact that many potatoes are being held by farmers who expect still higher prices before the winter is over, hundreds of bushels are being marketed at present.

Beans Bring $6.25 a Bushel. Wautoma—Farmers are receiving on the Wautoma markets for potatoes $1.40 a bushel; beans $6.25; rye, $1.50 per bushel, the highest prices ever paid in this locality.

Wounded Hunter Crawls 15 Miles. Ashland—Mistaken for a deer and shot through the leg, Joseph Stauber of Cayuga, Wis., crawled fifteen miles on his hands and knees for medical assistance. Stauber was trailing a deer when he was shot.

Ship Ore Despite Cold Weather. Ashland—Despite the cold weather which has raised havoc with the iron ore in the pockets of the docks at Ashland, the shipments of the ore continue to go steadily forward.

Free Medical Dispensary.

Green Bay—Public Health and Child Welfare—committees of the Green Bay Woman's club have decided to open a free medical dispensary in St. Mary's hospital. They announced physicians have agreed to give service free during two hours every day to persons unable to pay for examination and treatment for physical ailments. Medicine will be given free.

Would Repeal Aid Law.

Jefferson—The county board passed unanimously a request to the legislature for the repeal of the dependent children law, stating that experience has shown that the poor commissioner system is more efficient and economical. The law provides for the bringing of dependent and neglected children before the county judge on petition.

Kenosha Valuation $51,900,000. Kenosha—The assessed valuation of the property of Kenosha county has passed the fifty million mark. For the first time in the history of the county the valuation is placed at $51,900,000. This is an increase of $3,000,000 over the last assessment. Every town in the county has shown an increase, and not one of the towns in the county has a valuation of less than $1,000,000.

Auto Owners Too Eager. Madison—Secretary of State Donald will not accept applications for automobile licenses, series of 1917, until Dec. 15. "Licenses for the current year are being applied for at the rate of about thirty per day," said A. J. Cobban, who is in charge of the license department, "and we accept applications now for the new series it would be difficult to keep the records."

Appropriate Money for Road. Baraboo—Sauk county has appropriated $2,000 and Columbia county a like amount to finish the gap of about six miles of macadam road between the two counties. The work will be commenced next spring, which will complete a fine paved road between Baraboo and Portage, a distance of eighteen miles.

Divides Big Estate. La Crosse—The will of the late B. E. Edwards, pioneer traction magnate, disposes of an estate valued at $350,000, of which $65,000 is bequeathed to the widow, $2,500 to the local Home for Dependent Women and Children, and $30,000 to his grandchildren. The remainder is divided equally among the three daughters.

Seek Fuel Prices Investigation. Ashland—In an effort to obtain relief from the present high prices of coal, the Central Labor council will communicate with the railroad rate commission to cause an investigation, if possible, to determine whether or not the price demanded for coal at Ashland is justifiable.

Suit Follows Collision. Stevens Point—A suit for $3,000 damages has been started by John M. Konzelman, stock buyer of McDill, against Elmer Carley, Amort potato buyer. The plaintiff alleges that his horse and buggy were damaged and he was injured when Carley's automobile struck Konzelman's rig.

Entertain Farmers at Banquet. Fond du Lac—Seven hundred farmers and their wives will be entertained at a banquet at Fond du Lac Wednesday, Dec. 6, the first day of the community institute. The farmers will be guests of the Association of Commerce.

Kenosha Pioneer Dies. Kenosha—Mrs. Veronica Ritter, widow of the late Joseph Ritter and a resident of Kenosha for more than fifty years, died here at the age of 76 years. She had been prominent in religious and charitable work in the city for many years.

Street Railway Head Dies. Manitowoc—James Phair, superintendent of the Manitowoc and Northern Traction company, formerly with the Marinette Traction company, died at his home here at the age of 51 years.

Plan "Pay Up" Week. Green Bay—The Green Bay Merchants' association has set Dec. 4 to 10 as "Pay Up Week," and will make a concerted effort to convert thousands of dollars of accounts into cash.

Grain and Dairy Show Dates. Wausau—The Marathon County Bankers' association has changed the dates of its annual grain and dairy product show from Dec. 7 and 8 to Friday and Saturday, Dec. 15 and 16.

Kills Wolf Near Wautoma. Wautoma—A large timber wolf was killed one and one-half miles from this village by Chester Wilcox. Wolves are rare in this locality.

County Fair to Be Free. Antigo—The Langlade county board has decided to hold a free county fair next year.

Tax Commission Lowers Valuation. Stevens Point—The reassessment of the town of Dewey conducted by the state tax commission has resulted in a lowering of the valuation to $437,559 compared with a total of $491,927 fixed by the local assessor and $657,556 fixed by the incomes assessor.

Shoots Self Rather Than Bathe. Beloit—Because his daughter insisted he take a bath, Jacob Micheler, aged 74, weighing 225 pounds, went to the bathroom and shot himself.

"I DON'T SUFFER ANY MORE"

"Feel Like a New Person," says Mrs. Hamilton.

New Castle, Ind.—"From the time I was eleven years old until I was seventeen I suffered each month so I had to be in bed. I had headache, backache and such pains I would cramp double every month. I did not know what it was to be easy a minute. My health was all run down and no doctors did me any good. A neighbor told my mother about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it, and now I feel like a new person. I don't suffer any more and I am regular every month."—Mrs. HAZEL HAMILTON, 822 South 15th St.

When a remedy has lived for forty years, steadily growing in popularity and influence, and thousands upon thousands of women declare they owe their health to it, is it not reasonable to believe that it is an article of great merit?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"I feel like a new person" is a goal for a cold, headache, backache, or any other ailment, but the very best thing possible for a woman's health is what we sell known through our factories used to us.

Boschee's German Syrup

Has for the last 51 years been steadily used in all parts of the civilized world for the rapid relief of colds, coughs, bronchitis, throat and lung irritation. No other remedy has such a remarkable record of widespread distribution, 25c. and 75c. sizes at druggists everywhere.

Domestic economy is taught in the school of matrimony.

Important to Mothers Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Fletchur. In Use for Over 30 Years. Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Every square mile of sea is estimated to contain about 120,000,000 fish.

Meat Eaters' Backache

Meat lovers are apt to have backaches and rheumatic attacks. Unless you do heavy work and get lots of fresh air, don't eat too much meat. It's rich in nitrogen and helps to form uric acid—a solid poison that irritates the nerves, damages the kidneys and often causes dropsy, gravel and urinary disorders. Doan's Kidney Pills help weak kidneys to throw off uric acid. Thousands recommend them.

A Wisconsin Case

A. M. Van Velzer, Cross St., Clinton, Wis., says: "Heavy lifting and hard work brought on my kidney trouble. I had backache and dull, dragging pains over my hips. After stooping I had to straighten gradually on account of the pain. My kidneys didn't act regularly and my secretions were filled with sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills put a stop to the pains and aches and fixed up my kidneys in good shape. Get Doan's at Any Store, 50c a Box. DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS POSTER-BELMONT CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

These Tremendous Advantages—

More power—35 horsepower motor.
More room—112-inch wheelbase.
Greater comfort—long, 48-inch cantilever rear springs and 4-inch tires.
Greater convenience—electrical control buttons on steering column.
Bigger, safer brakes—service, 13 1/2 x 2 1/4; emergency, 13 x 2 1/4.
Better cooling—you never heard of an Overland motor overheating.

These are tremendous advantages over anything to be had in other cars that sell for anywhere near as low a price. And they make it hard for us to keep up with orders. The factory has never yet caught up with the demand. You ought to own one of these cars—nothing else so big and fine for the money. Come in and order yours now.

On Wednesday, Nov. 22nd., at the Reformed church at Wayne, occurred the marriage of Miss Olivia Kibbel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kibbel, of this place, and Mr. Emil Baekhaus, Rev. J. L. Caslos performing the ceremony. Miss Linda Kibbel, a sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor, and was dressed in white silk poplin and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Miss Malinda Terlinden, a cousin of the groom, was bridesmaid and wore a gown of white silk poplin and carried pink carnations. The bride was tastefully dressed in a creation of white silk crepe de chine and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lillies of the valley. The groom was attended by Edwin Abel and George Kibbel Jr. After the ceremony at the church the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where the occasion was duly celebrated in the presence of nearest relatives. The newly married couple are well known and highly respected by all who have the honor of their acquaintance. It is the wish of all that their married life may be one of joy and prosperity. The young people will be at home on the groom's farm near Wayne after December 15.

—If thirteen were really an unlucky number as the superstition think, our flag should be unlucky, and so should the United States. There are thirteen globes and thirteen stars near the Eagle's head; thirteen stripes in his club; thirteen letters in "E Pluribus Unum." Our independence was declared in '76, which figures added together make thirteen. There are thirteen letters in "Woodrow Wilson" and in "Charles Hughes."

—The new dime which has been issued by the United States mints is a racial departure from the old dimes. The head of Liberty appears on a plain concave surface. "In God We Trust" is inscribed in the lower left hand corner, together with the date and letter "W" which is the initial of the artist who designed the coin. A "Gimman" "Liberty" is inscribed in a semi circle around the head. The reverse side of the coin shows a bundle of staffs, with a battle ax at the top, indicating power, the inscription "One Dime, United States of America," and the motto, "E Pluribus Unum."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. If the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be completely restored, nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Words of Congratulation The following letter of congratulation was received by us this week from Messrs. Huber, Editors of the West Bend News: Nov. 20, 1916. Messrs. Don Harbeck and Arthur Schaefer:—

I wish to congratulate you upon the consumation of the deal whereby you acquired ownership of the Statesman. I really feel happy to know that you two boys have this office. You will also have found it up-hill work to establish a new paper as it would have taken years to build up a circulation, which you now acquired at once.

Here's hoping that our friendly relations will continue in the future and wishing you the very best of success, we remain as ever,

Your Friends, Jos F. and Joe Huber.

GOVERNOR PLANS 90-DAY SESSION

Outlines Program Designed to Shorten Legislative Labors.

WOULD STOP BUILDING WORK

Favors Postponing of Construction Plans Wherever Possible Until Cost of Materials is Lowered.

Madison.—A program designed to produce absolute harmony in appropriations for educational institutions and other state activities and which, he believes, should shorten the coming legislative session to 90 days' duration, has been announced by Gov. E. L. Philipp.

While he declined to go into detail regarding the administration's legislative program, he was positive in his stand for a session which shall not continue more than three months.

Governor Philipp attended a meeting of the central board of education, which will prepare a budget for the University of Wisconsin and the normal schools. The plan, said to have been agreed upon, is to present such a budget as will be acceptable without delay to the next legislature.

The governor intimated that he favors holding back of public building work. It is argued that as a measure of economy the state can afford to wait until there is a decrease in commodities which enter into construction and until labor can be obtained more readily.

Farm Institute Plans Made.

Organized campaigns for better farming, better business, and better living, will be started in Wisconsin next month, when the thirty-first annual state farmers' institute season begins.

One of the most successful series of farmers' meetings in the history of the state is anticipated by the group of farm-conductors and assistants, who are now making the final arrangements for the season's gatherings.

Exact dates have not yet been decided for many of the institutes, but the list of places where these agricultural conferences will be held has been determined. There will be 72 two-day meetings for farmers, 48 two-day sessions for both farmers and their "women-folks," 22 special fruit growers' institutes, 29 study soil institutes, and about a dozen live stock meetings, with demonstrations in connection where feasible.

Nearly all of the counties in the state will be entered at some time during the season by the institute conductors in carrying on their campaign.

Active support in many of the meetings will be given by the Wisconsin Live Stock Breeders' association, the State Horticultural society, and the Agricultural Experiment Association.

The season had been a hard one. Many had died and the prospect of starvation during the cold winter with its ice and snow loomed large. So, when the harvest yielded enough to keep them until another season would produce the necessities of life, they met that last Thursday in November in year 1621, and gave thanks to their God, who had remembered them.

Thankfulness is usually in inverse ratio to the value of the thing for which we give thanks. This is no disparagement of the things we are grateful for; but humanity does not think of thanks until it has felt the terrors of distress.

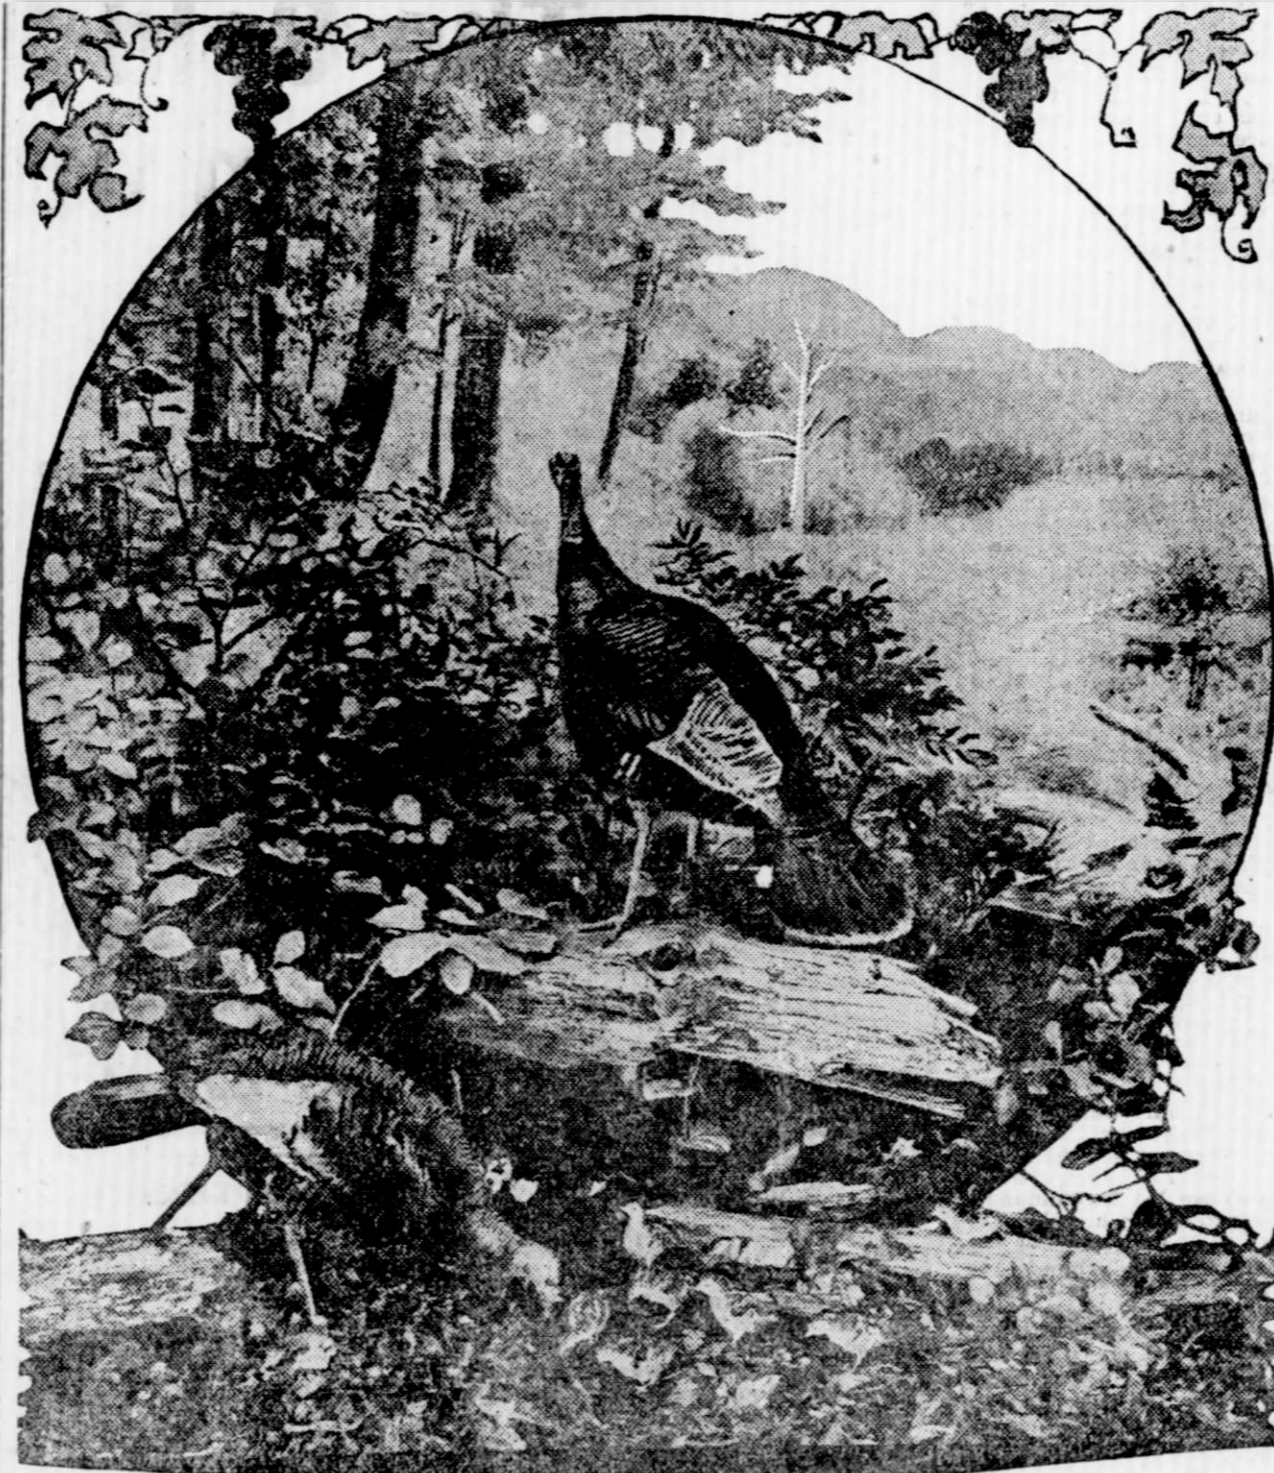

The rich who live in luxury and ease do not think with their hearts. Their thanks are but formal expressions of meaningless words. How can words mean anything when one has not felt the things which make for thankfulness?

But the poverty-stricken who have faced starvation pour out thanks from their humbled hearts for the things that have saved their lives.

Those who live in gorgeous homes with comfortable fireplaces do not think of thanks. But those who live in the little hovel with big cracks in the walls and crevices about the doors and windows and without fuel, give thanks for the comfort of fire.

We do not prize health until we have lost it, and we do not appreciate life until we have faced the danger of having to give it up.

That which we have are likely to accept as a matter of course; but be deprived of it and the sudden realization of its value jars our souls like an earthquake.

WHERE THE WILD TURKEY CALLS—THE REAL THANKSGIVING BIRD

A NEW THANKSGIVING by JAMES W. BECKMAN

THIS is the week of Thanksgiving. Thanksgiving day is an American custom started by the Pilgrims who landed on the new continent and faced hardships which few can realize who are reared in the wealth and luxury of the land today.

The season had been a hard one. Many had died and the prospect of starvation during the cold winter with its ice and snow loomed large. So, when the harvest yielded enough to keep them until another season would produce the necessities of life, they met that last Thursday in November in year 1621, and gave thanks to their God, who had remembered them.

Thankfulness is usually in inverse ratio to the value of the thing for which we give thanks. This is no disparagement of the things we are grateful for; but humanity does not think of thanks until it has felt the terrors of distress.

The rich who live in luxury and ease do not think with their hearts. Their thanks are but formal expressions of meaningless words. How can words mean anything when one has not felt the things which make for thankfulness?

But the poverty-stricken who have faced starvation pour out thanks from their humbled hearts for the things that have saved their lives.

Those who live in gorgeous homes with comfortable fireplaces do not think of thanks. But those who live in the little hovel with big cracks in the walls and crevices about the doors and windows and without fuel, give thanks for the comfort of fire.

We do not prize health until we have lost it, and we do not appreciate life until we have faced the danger of having to give it up.

That which we have are likely to accept as a matter of course; but be deprived of it and the sudden realization of its value jars our souls like an earthquake.

We are thankful in the full sense of the word for things necessary to life and happiness only when we have had to do without them.

We are not thankful for that to which we are accustomed and accept thoughtlessly. But when we are deprived of the necessities of life and faced the hardships, including death that come as a result, we are thankful with all our heart.

America has more to be thankful for yearly than any other nation in the world; but our thanks are tempered by the gravity of the sorrow of our neighbors.

The year has not been one of great happiness, peace and prosperity. It is a year of travail for humanity—the travail of a people being born again. But out of it will come a disciplined and sober people; a people who will know the realities of life better.

We will learn that life is a serious matter, and no silly, sniping affair. The war has brought us again to an understanding of the terrible earnestness of the thing we call life.

The earth is in process, and we still have earthquakes and volcanic eruptions.

Humanity, too, is in process, and strife and sorrow and death will continue to be its lot. We must face life resolutely and meet destiny undismayed.

This year we will not be thankful so much for the blessings we have received, for the things that have been given to us—for being pampered by a prodigal Providence—and being relieved of our burdens, as we will be thankful for the strength to bear them.

In the shrine of our hearts our deepest prayer is not that we shall be relieved of our burdens; but that we shall be given the strength to bear them, for we are great in the degree and the manner in which we face our tasks and perform them. The Great Souls are those that have suffered and endured.

Our Thanksgiving this year will be no perfunctory, infantile prattle because of satiety.

This is a year of reckoning with fate; of being thankful if we, ourselves, have not fallen in the wreckage. We are thankful not for what has happened; but for what has not happened.

Life is not a trivial pastime. It is deadly earnest. It is the course that destiny takes, and let us be thankful, not for less of life, but for more of it, and the courage, the fortitude, the strength, and the persistence to meet its difficulties and continue its course undaunted by disaster and unspooled by success.

We are thankful for Character, not charity, and for iron wills that have not been broken by the inevitable.—From the Sunday Magazine.

Thanksgiving Fable. An aged Turkey, once upon a time had occasion to read the Riot act to a Grandson because the latter was a Glutton.

"It behooves you to Fast for a few weeks," said the Wise Old Bird, "for Thanksgiving draweth apace—that season when long-legged Biped Swoop down upon us without Warning and give it to our Family in the Neck."

"Oh, go to!" exclaimed the Young Glutton. "You think because Old Age has made you Gouty and rendered you Unable to Partake of the Good things of Life that you can Stuff me. 'Tis Dead Next. See?"

"Very well," answered the Grand-sire. "Keep right on getting Obese and you will be Dead Next for Keeps; then You'll see who does the Stuffing." And the late November returns showed that the "Old Turk" knew whereof he Spoke.

Moral—If you would Live Long and Prosper, Don't get Gay.

THANKSGIVING DAY

That we're at peace with all the world Safe in our cities and our homes. That unto this, our favored land, Such gift with all its blessings, comes. That men go not to war and death, That women do not fearful brood By anxious hearts for dear ones gone, We thank Thee, Giver of all good.

That no ambitious strife is ours, That lust of conquest does not thrill, This mighty nation's inmost heart, That we abhor to burn and kill, That weaker nations we protect, Fight but to make their wronging cease, And only comes to make them free, We thank Thee, God of love and peace.

That in the stress around us now, We feel our hearts with pity throbs, And have to heal the wounded man, To lull the child and woman's sob, That we are eager still to share, The goods that heap our stores again, With those who have but us to help, We thank Thee, Father of all men!

Is an Old Institution. Despite popular opinion to the contrary, Thanksgiving day as an institution is not peculiarly American. For history shows that all ancient nations used to celebrate some feast of a thanksgiving nature, while most of the tribes of our American Indians had a big gathering and a harvest feast years before the white man ever set foot on the shores of the new world.

By the Greeks and Romans the festival days in honor of the goddess of agriculture were times of rustic sport, of processions through the fields and the decorating of the home with fruits and flowers. The people of Egypt enjoyed a time of feasting after gathering in their harvests and laid the fruits of the year on the altar of the Goddess Isis.

Feast of the Tabernacles. The feast of the tabernacles in the Old Testament times was also a harvest celebration and took place on the seventh day of the month, which corresponds to our November, sometimes lasting for a whole week. They gathered in the temple in great processions, holding palms, and in the streets were booths decorated with the flowers and fruits of autumn.

Among the Indians of America the custom of having a Thanksgiving feast was practically universal—at least among those who had any amount of planting. As corn was the main article grown, their dances and feasting were generally in honor of the harvesting of that food. The writers of several hundred years ago who first studied the Indian on his native health all speak of the festivals and the elaborate ceremonial with which they were attended. While most of the tribes have vanished as such, there are still some left on government reservations which observe, though possibly in a modified degree, the ancient custom of their race.

The Thankful Spirit. Cultivate the thankful spirit. It will be to thee a perpetual feast. There is, or ought to be, with us no such thing as small mercies; all are great, because the least are undeserved. Indeed, a really thankful heart will extract motive for gratitude from everything.—J. R. Macduff.

Vom Schauplatz des europäischen Völkerrrieges

Eine große Ueberraschung, so weit die militärischen Ereignisse in Betracht kommen, war ohne Zweifel die freiwillige Räumung des Forts von Lang und der Hill von Fort Douaumont bei Verdun. Diese Ereignisse aber haben gänzlich außerhalb des Rahmens der militärischen Entwicklung der augenblicklichen Kriegperiode. Sie haben auf den Lauf des Krieges nicht den geringsten Einfluß, höchstens inwiefern, als eine Schwächung der deutschen Front an der westlichen Seite des Kriegsschauplatzes unbedeutend gleichbedeutend ist mit einer Verjüngung auf der östlichen Front.

Eine solche Kraftverziehung kann, wie der militärische Sachmann der London „Times“ sagte, den Nutzen besonders den Alliierten im allgemeinen nicht angenehm sein, denn es bedeutet eine Stärkung der deutschen Offensivkraft gerade dort, wo Deutschland und seine Verbündeten den Hauptschlag führen wollen.

Der militärische Sachmann der „Times“ geht sogar noch weiter. Er behauptet, die gänzliche Räumung des heute von den Deutschen in Besitz gehaltenen Gebietes würde für Deutschland die beste Taktik sein, da es dann in der Lage sei, Sondereinheiten von frischerrekrutierten Truppen nach dem Osten zu verschieben und dort die Entscheidung zu erzwängen. Dieser Wunsch ist höchstwahrscheinlich der Vater des Gedankens. Denn was konnte den Briten angenehmer sein, als die deutsche Front im Westen geschwächt zu sehen und dann mit einem erfindenen, aber Eindrud machenden Erfolge vor das englische Volk zu treten und womöglich Frieden zu machen. Selbst wenn ein solches Vorgehen deutscherseits gute Taktik wäre, was dabeigeht bleibt jell, gute Taktik würde es nicht sein, weil erstens ein wichtiges Junftungsgegen die Alliierten verloren ginge, und zweitens weil die Räumung des französischen Gebietes im Auslande unbedingt einen höchst Eindrud machen würde.

Vorläufig fehlen alle Anzeichen dafür, daß Deutschland diesen geheimen und sehr verständlichen Wünschen der Briten folgen wird. Im Gegenteil, die Anzeichen mehren sich für eine entschiedene Präferenz der deutschen Front im Westen. Die Tatsache ist, daß die deutsche Front im Sommergebiet in den letzten Wochen trotz der größten Anstrengungen der Alliierten nicht hat erlitten werden konnten. Die Linie Beaumont-de-Saracourcette-Gaucourt Wobeg-Geudcourt ist unangefochten geblieben. Die Deutschen aus Frankreich gegen die Alliierten sind an dieser Linie machtlos gescheitert. Sinter der Linie liegt Comblès, seit dem 1. Juni eines der beiden Ziele der großen Offensive, und südlich von ihr liegt Bernonne, das andere der beiden Ziele.

Keines von beiden hat die vereinigte Macht der Alliierten erreichen können, und ihre Offensive, die die Deutschen aus Frankreich gegen die Alliierten trägt unbedingt den Stempel des aboluten Scheitlerages.

An der russischen Front hat sich wiederum gezeigt, wie schwer Rußland an den Folgen der wahnfinnigen Menschenverachtung in den letzten Monaten leidet. Nicht nur ist Rußland nicht mehr fähig, an irgendeinem Punkte der Front eine ernie Offensive einzuleiten, es ist sogar nicht mehr in der Lage, die unter so juchzenden Opfern genommenen Stellungen zu halten. Etwa um Etid derselben geht verloren, einmal am Stodjod, dann am Najarowka, einmal am Scharo, dann in den Waldparpaten.

Es ist behauptet worden, daß die Italiener ihre jetzige Offensive lediglich als eine Gegenmaßregel gegen eine kommende Offensive der deutschen Verbündeten betrachten. In der Behauptung liegt viel Wahrscheinlichkeit. Nach der Niederwerfung der Annänen, die bis zum Beginn des neuen Jahres durchgeführt sein dürfte, werden riesige Kräfte auf der Seite der deutschen Verbündeten frei werden. Sie dürfte nicht nur gegen die Arme Saraitis, sondern auch gegen die Italiener angewandt werden. Das ist um so wahrheitsähnlicher, als die ganze Kriegführung der deutschen Verbündeten stets auf die Niederwerfung des schwächeren Gegners zuerst auslief und in zweiter Linie erst auf den Hauptschlag gegen die großen Gegner, zu deren Niederwerfung die Kräfte gesammelt werden konnten.

Sollte Italien die nächste Nummer auf dem deutschen Programm sein, so dürfte das Frühjahr wiederum eine Verminderung der deutschen Feinde sehen.

Rumänien kämpft jetzt um seine Existenz. Was schon sein — die Ehre hat es bereits verloren.

Die englischen „Wertpapiere.“ Ein kühnes Wort spricht Morgans Parlat mit der Behauptung aus, daß englische Bonds genau so gut seien, wie amerikanische. Es gehört eine füllvolle Dreistigkeit dazu, angesichts der offensündigen Tatsachen eine solche Ansicht zu wagen. Americas Nationalschuld beläuft sich nicht auf zwei Milliarden, diejenige Englands auf unzählige Milliarden und wird dabei beinahe ständig größer. Es ist jonnentlar, daß England die größten Schwierigkeiten haben wird, die nötigen Summen zur Verzinsung einer solchen Nationalschuld aufzubringen. Der englische Bonds konnt, muß sich darauf beschränken, daß er die schwersten Verluste erleiden wird. Dann ist es auch eine patriotische Pflicht, solche Papiere nicht zu kaufen, angesichts der notorischen Tatsache, daß England das Geld dazu benötigt, eine riesige und überwälrtigende Konkurrenz gegen die Briten zu bestehen. Aber was fragt ein Vor-Brite nach Amerika? England liegt ihm allein am Herzen!

Riesige Ausfuhr für Allierte.

Washington. Der Gesamtexport von Waffen und Munition aus den Ver. Staaten seit Ausbruch des Krieges bis zum 30. September betrug nach den offiziellen Zahlen des Bundes Handels Departments $761,054,094 oder eine Million Dollars an jedem Tag der sechsundzwanzig Monate, die dieser Krieg währt. Hiervon entfallen auf Patronen rund 70 Millionen Dollars, auf Pulver rund 267 1/2 Millionen, auf andere Explosivstoffe rund 379 1/2 Millionen und auf Waffen rund 44 Millionen.

Während des Monats September betrug die Ausfuhr $5,788,653 in Patronen, $34,886,942 in Pulver, $34,615,289 in andern Explosivstoffen und $9,259,253 in Feuerwaffen, zusammen rund 84 1/2 Millionen Dollars in einem einzigen Monat oder $117,500 in jeder Stunde.

Damit ist indes Amerika's Beitrag nicht erschöpft. An leeren Granatenbüchsen konnten wir ihnen für über 15 Millionen Dollars, an Bleibern und andern Explosivstoffen zum Füllen derselben 41 1/3 Millionen, an leeren Patronenbüchsen, Granatenzündern um 26 Millionen, an Federn und Manfcheln für die alliierten Armeen 10 1/2 Millionen, an Automobilen 8 Millionen, an Kapitza und Gasolin für ihren Betrieb rund 53 1/2 Millionen, an Soldatenbüchsen und Stiefeln über 900,000 Paar, an Stacheln nahezu 3 1/2 Millionen Dollars, an Gasolin - Zugmaschinen, wie sie für die berittigten „Tanfs“ der Engländer gebraucht werden, 344, an Motorrädern für den Aufklärungs- und Zweigendienst 1084 Millionen, an Kupfer für die Herstellung von Granaten usw. nahe an 17 Millionen ungeschätzte Millionen in andern Rohmaterialien für den Kriegsbedarf. „Wir“ von Millionen in Rußland, 1000 in für die kampfbereiten Truppen Englands, und seiner Verbündeten, zusammen wähernd des einzigen Monats September Waren im Werte von rund 42 1/2 Millionen Dollars, oder nahezu 600,000 Dollars in jeder Stunde.

Not und Glend in Rußland. London. Die Not an Lebensmitteln in Rußland nimmt mit jedem Tage einen größeren Umfang an,“ meldet der „Times“ Korrespondent in Petrograd.

Die Erörterung der Lage in der Sitzung des Budget Ausschusses der Duma läßt eine Zweifel über den Ernst der Lage übrig. Hervorgehoben wurde die Notwendigkeit von Arbeitsmaßnahmen zum Behen der arbeitenden Massen, falls man Folgen von großem Umfibe verhindern wollte. Innerträglich ist die Lage der ärmeren Klassen, denen es unmöglich ist, die notwendigen Lebensbedürfnisse zu erlangen, wenn sie nicht täglich fundenlang vor den Lebensmittelläden ausstarren.

Der Budget Ausschuss empfahl einstimmig, daß die Kontrolle der Lebensmittellieferung einem einzigen Regierungs-Departement übertragen werden sollte. Auch erklärte, sich der Ansicht für die Festlegung bestimmter Kreise für Getreide, Schmalz, Zerkilwaren, Petroleum, Seife und anderer Artikel. Als weiteres Mittel zur Bänderung der Notlage befuhrwortete der Ausschuss, die Sempten und andere öffentliche Organisationen für den Anlauf und den Transport von Lebensmitteln zur Wiltithe heranzuziehen.

(Diese Lage befürchtet die vor einigen Tagen aus Berlin eingeflossene Meldung, daß es in zahlreichen Städten des russischen Reiches zu Nahrungsmittel und blutigen Ausschreitungen gekommen sei.)

HADN'T BORED GLADSTONE

Statesman, in fact, thoroughly enjoyed himself while "Heavy" recitation was rendered.

Sir Charles Wyndham, the actor, was once asked to exploit a certain reciter and gave an "at home" for the purpose, at which Gladstone was present.

After the recital Sir Charles went to Gladstone and said, "I'm afraid you've had a trying time with all this heat?"

"Not at all," was the reply. "I have had a charming afternoon. I thank you for asking me, and now as I am quite refreshed I can run back to the house."

Sir Charles was elated, for the rather heavy "Elaine" had been a success after all. He rushed to the stage, where he found his guests waiting for him and for tea.

"What have we done to you," they cried, "to give us 'Elaine' on a day like this? Surely there was something lighter to choose."

"Lighter!" echoed Sir Charles. "That's the trouble with you society people—you're all so frivolous. I gave you a classic treat. Why, Gladstone has just told me he had a delightful afternoon."

"Of course he had," was the rejoinder, "for he was asleep all the time."

CRAIJOVA IS TAKEN

KEY TO CAPITAL OF ROUMANIA FALLS INTO THE HANDS OF TEUTONIC FORCES.

CITY BIG RAILWAY CENTER

Loss of the Town is Most Serious Blow Suffered by King Ferdinand Since His Entrance Into War—Bulk of His Army Threatened.

London, Nov. 23.—Craiova, vital nerve of the strategic railway net of western Rumania, fell to the army of General von Falkenhayn at noon Tuesday. Its loss is the most serious blow suffered by King Ferdinand's army since Rumania's intervention on the allies' side.

(Craiova is a city of 45,000, known as the capital of western Wallachia. It has been predicted that with the fall of Craiova the Rumanian army would be placed in a serious position.) At Craiova the Teutons stand 120 miles due west of Bucharest. In control of four of the most important railroads of communication their heading advance toward the heart of the kingdom continues swifter than ever. That advance holds menace of striking the greatest strategic blow of the war. It threatens the bulk of the Rumanian army still battling south of the Transylvanian Alps and particularly the forces around Orsova, near the "iron gate," with being completely cut off from all avenues of escape.

WISHES TRADE SHIPS ARMED

Head of British Line Offers $10,000 to Sink of Submarine—Scarcity of Shipping.

London, Nov. 22.—Robert P. Houston, member of parliament from Liverpool and head of the Houston line of steamers, writes to the Times urging that the British mercantile marine take sea law into its own hands and arm ships against submarines regardless of government restrictions.

Mr. Houston offers the British master of any British merchant ship $2,000 ($30,000) for each German submarine he sinks, up to a total of 50, between now and May 31. Last April Mr. Houston issued a warning to the nation in regard to the scarcity of shipping and urged that neutrals be compelled to use inter-armed German ships.

Twenty Unexploded Shells Discovered on the Steamer Sarnia When It Arrived at Cherbourg.

New York, Nov. 22.—Twenty unexploded bombs were found in the sugar cargo of the American steamship Sarnia, on her arrival at Cherbourg, France, after a voyage starting from New York on September 2 during which the vessel caught fire from a cause unknown, according to Fourth Mate Wybrance of the Sarnia, who arrived here on Monday on the American line steamship New York from Liverpool.

SEVEN-HOUR DAY IN SING SING

Warden Derrick Cuts Down Working Time of Prisoners—To Be From 8 to 3.

Sing Sing, N. Y., Nov. 22.—The working day of the inmates in Sing Sing prison is now officially only seven hours instead of eight, as in years past. It begins at eight o'clock and ends at three. Warden Derrick expressed the belief that as much work would be done as in the longer day, because formerly the prisoners had time off in which to do their washing and to cook extra dishes sent by friends. In granting the shorter day the warden stipulated that no personal chores be done on prison time.

They let you know you've been smoking—and yet they're MILD

In other words, Chesterfield Cigarettes are MILD—and yet they satisfy. This is something totally new to cigarettes. It goes further than pleasing your taste—satisfy does for your smoking what a juicy slice of hot roast beef does for your appetite. Chesterfields satisfy—they let you know you've been smoking.

But they're MILD, too—Chesterfields are!

If you want this new cigarette delight (satisfy, yet mild) you've got to get Chesterfields, because no cigarette maker can copy the Chesterfield blend. This blend is an entirely new combination of tobaccos and the biggest discovery in cigarette blending in 20 years.

Last Sunday, Nov. 19, 1916 at the home of his son Carl, occurred the death of John C. Wolf, Sr., after an illness of two weeks duration. Cause of his death being due to old age. Deceased was born on May 7th, 1829, in Muehlenberg Schwenn, Germany. When a young man he immigrated to this country in 1852, and settled with his parents in Chicago. In the year 1853 he came to his present home, where he resided up to the time of his death. In 1852 he was united in marriage to Miss Louise Pamperin, who preceded him in death in the year 1889. Their union was blessed with four children, all of whom survive, and whose names are as follows: John Wolf, Jr., and Carl Wolf of the town of Wayne; Mary, Mrs. Mike Schubert and Louise, Mrs. Wm. Patow of Scheleiserville. Mr. Wolf was a kind and loving husband and father, and will be greatly missed by all who were fortunate to meet him and make his acquaintance. He was a good christian and at hand to those in need. The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 22, at 1:30 from the residence, with services in the Zion Lutheran church, Rev. Wm. Weber officiating. Interment was made in the congregation's cemetery. To the surviving children and relatives we extend our deep heartfelt sympathy in this their hour of bereavement. May he rest in perfect peace.

Johannes Hefter Wedding
The S. S. Peter and Pauls Catholic church here last Tuesday, Nov. 14th, formed the beautiful setting for the marriage of Mr. John B. Johannes of the town of West Bend to Miss Monica Hefter of here who were united in the Holy Bonds of matrimony. Rev. Joe Galligan being the officiating minister. The bride wore a beautiful gown of white chiffon lace over white satin in charmusee, with trimming of beads and pearls. Her veil was of the helmet style, caught with a Grecian band of Oriental pearls and carried a shower bouquet of opelia roses. Miss Mary Moser, acted as maid of honor. She wore a pink gown of chiffon marabou and carried a bouquet of pink and white chrysanthemums. Miss Margaret Johannes, a sister of the groom acted as bridesmaid, and wore a pink chiffon voile trimmed with Georgette crepe and white marabou, and carried a bouquet of pink and white chrysanthemums. The little Natalia Hefter, sister of the bride was flower girl. She wore a white silk dress trimmed with marine, and carried a basket of chrysanthemums and sweet peas. The bride's little brother, Sylvester, also attended the bride and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The groom was attended by his brother, Joseph Johannes of the town of West Bend and Fridolin Hefter a brother of the bride. The groom and his attendants wore the conventional black broadcloth suits. The groom is an industrious and energetic young man of sterling worth and character and has followed the carpenter trade for the last few years. The young couple will make their future home in Hartford, where the groom has accepted a position in the moulding department of the Kessel Kar factory. He is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Johannes of the town of West Bend. The bride is a very pretty and accomplished young lady with a score of friends here and vicinity, where she has always made her home with her parents, who will miss her when she leaves to make her home in Hartford. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hefter to about two hundred guests. The choir of S. S. Peter and Paul's rendered a number of beautiful songs. After December 15th, Mr. and Mrs. John Johannes will be at home to their many friends on Pleasant Ave. in Hartford. We join with the many friends of the young couple in wishing them a long and happy married life and an abundance of good luck and success.

THE GOOD JUDGE FINDS UNCLE BEN A GOOD LOSER

MANY a man says it's worth losing a five dollar bill to learn about the little chew of W-B CUT. It saves more than that on what he spends for tobacco, but the big point is that he has found what tobacco satisfaction means. W-B CUT is rich tobacco, there's more to it. The shreds and the touch of salt bring out the tobacco satisfaction without so much chewing and spitting.

Katy Did!

By Florence Lillian Henderson

(Copyright, 1916, by W. G. Chapman.)

"Katy did! Katy did! Katy did!" Katy blushed. She hurried her steps, actually embarrassed. What Katy did, she alone and Bruce Danvers knew, yet she fluttered when she recalled it all, and just now because she was passing the very spot where a week previous young Danvers had told her he loved her and asked her to return his kiss—and Katy did.

And now from the trees came the reminding hilarious chorus of the merry insects, as though they had seen it all and were proclaiming it to the world.

"Father says that Bruce is not our kind," soliloquized Katy Branson. "That is true, for his father is president of the road. But Bruce—Mr. Danvers said that even the best father in the world should not stand between him and the girl he loved best. Oh, I hope he meant it—I must believe that, or it would break my heart!"

Then Katy tripped home to her duties. They were humble ones, yet she graced them. Old Mr. Branson and his wife and daughter lived in a rather unusual environment. They had a little home surrounded by a few acres about half way up Clover Cut. The cut was four miles long and until the year previous had been a part of the railroad. Then the company had decided to save a mile of crooked

She set down her baskets and rushed on a fallen tree beside some bushes. Then she peered through the interlacing branches, for the sound of voices attracted her and a startling declaration in the gruff tones of a man thrilled:

"Let's start, then," the accents fell distinctly upon her ear. "The express special reaches the bridge in forty-five minutes. She's carrying a full treasure chest and it's ours if we plant a few ties in time."

Katy sprang to her feet. In a flash she recognized the four men for what they were—train wreckers and looters. She formed a speedy impulse to hasten back to Brocton and give the alarm, but her feeling form was seen.

"Stop her, whoever she is—been spying on us!" roared out a sturdy voice.

The quartette started a slanting run towards the road leading into Brocton. Katy realized that even if not directly headed off, she would soon be overtaken. The cut—the handcar! It was less than two hundred feet away. She left the baskets where they were, abruptly changed her course—and made the dash contemplated.

Zing! The closeness of a speeding bullet made her fair face blanch. Cracketty—jangle! She set the propeller bars in action. She heeded not a second fusillade, nor the menacing threats of her pursuers. The dim dusk overtook her. The men left far behind. How far had her action defeated the plans of the plotters? Katy thought rapidly.

They might send a contingent down the cut after her, while others hastened down the main line to carry out their unbolty work. Was there time to run the handcar the full length of the cut and cover the half-mile stretch to the main line? Katy feared not. Two-thirds of the cut route covered, she jumped to the ground and ran up the sharp incline leading to the higher levels, a mile in width, then the deep gap just beyond the bridge.

Katy knew what she was about, and raced like an expert runner. She arrived breathless and tottering at the edge of the gap. There was a farmhouse five hundred yards distant, but Katy could afford to waste no time. All along the edge of the gap were little cocks of hay, cured and dry as tinder. A country boy stood leaning on his pitchfork, lighting his pipe. Katy ran up to him.

"Quick!" she fairly ordered, "give me a match."

"You—you—you don't smoke?" gasped the astounded bumpkin, but he produced the article asked for.

Katy grasped the fork. She struck the match on its handle, dropped it in a heap of hay, lifted the blazing wisps on the tines of the fork and threw them twenty feet down into the gap.

"More! more! more!" she fairly screamed, as she caught the echo of the whistle of the special, not half a mile distant.

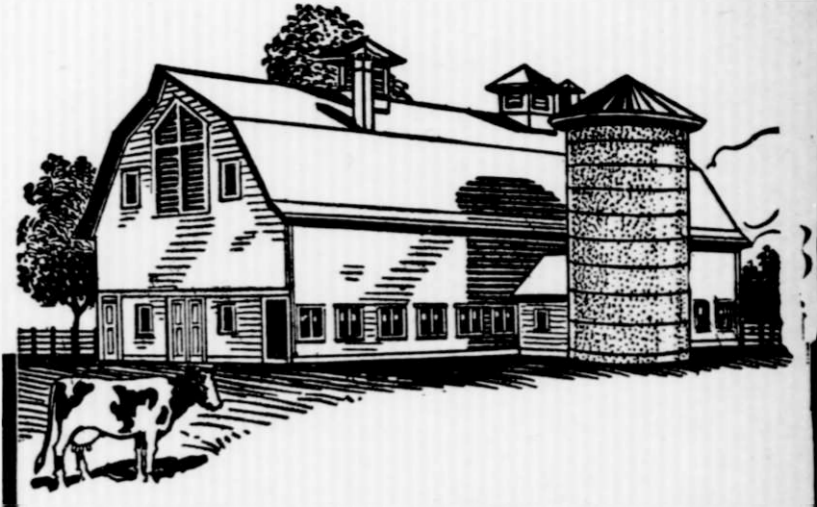

"It's dad's hay—who will pay?" blurted out the lad.

"The railroad company, and richly," panted the undaunted Katy. "Pile it down, keep up the blaze. Ah, we've done it—we've done it!"

Yes, the blaze had halted the train, aye, and saved it, for when the train crew went ahead at Katy's direction, they found a pile of ties on the curve near the bridge that would have sent every coach on the train into the ditch, a wreck.

And as Katy stood, the adored heroine of the occasion, who should come up but Bruce Danvers and his father.

"It's simply irresistible, Bruce," the railroad magnate told his happy son a little later. "The girl has real railroad stuff in her. She saved our lives and she's good as gold. Make her Mrs. Danvers as soon as you like."

The Express Special Reaches the Bridge in Forty-Five Minutes.

windings along the valley and abandoned the cut single track. They tore out the connections at either end and left the worn rails to neglect, weeds and rust.

Mr. Branson had formerly been a section superintendent, but had grown too old to work except around the little home plot. He had put in crops of early vegetables for which there was a good cash demand at Brocton, a mile down the line beyond the north end of the cut. A battered up light handcar had been dumped in the ditch and left there when the old line was abandoned. He had got it righted, and with Katy's help, too. He had patched it up and, lo and behold! a new order of traffic, for Katy learned to man it. Every day she loaded it with the baskets of kitchen produce and ran it the three miles to the end of the rails. There were always half a dozen Brocton boys on hand at the terminus, ready and willing to carry the baskets to the town stores where Katy disposed of their contents.

Then one afternoon her faithful—or faithless—cohorts, as the case might be, disappointed her, enticed away by a ball game. That mile down the hot traveled roadbed of the main line looked an arduous adventure to Katy, for her two baskets were big, well laden and heavy. A well-mannered young fellow sauntering by discerned her plight. He insisted on becoming her knight chivalier. That was the beginning of her acquaintance with Bruce Danvers.

He had been frank and open with her as to his prospects. "They depend upon my father just now," he told Katy, "but I can start out to earn my living independently if he objects to our engagement."

"Do nothing rash, dear," pleaded Katy, almost piteously, though, and she smiled at her fears and looked the valiant whole-souled fellow he was, and she trusted him, and hoped everything would come out just as he predicted.

Then a fateful day came to Katy. She had not seen Bruce Danvers for a week, nor had she received a line from him. That did not worry her, for she never doubted his fidelity. It made her feel surely lonely, however. Everything went as odds that day, it seemed. She had to carry the baskets to Brocton, she was delayed in getting rid of her produce. There was another long wait in settling with a fractious merchant. It was dusk quite as she neared the entrance to the cut.

WHEN MUSIC BEGAN

ORIGINALLY CREATED FROM EX-PRESSIONS OF EMOTIONS.

"Song" Was the Beginning of All Music—Development Carried Forward by Uncultured Peasants—Trained Men Came Later.

"Song" was the beginning of all music. No other form of music—vocal or instrumental—had an independent origin. All, without exception, are offshoots of developments from "song."

Not only, then, was "song" the beginning of all music, but it is the basis upon which all music rests today.

It is the trunk of the tree from which sprang all the multitudinous limbs, branches, stems, leaves, blossoms and fruit that constitute modern music.

The foliage and the flowers and fruitage of this wonderful tree are, naturally, more beautiful and more varied than the primitive trunk.

Furthermore, paradoxical as it may seem, music was not originated by musicians. It is the voicing of a universal instinct for emotional expression, as powerful (though not as formal) in the primitive savage as in the cultured modern.

Music, in its original form of "song," sprang spontaneously from untutored peasant instincts. Later, uncultured peasant folk carried forward the development of what might be called a "natural art."

Trained musicians followed after, as a result, not a cause. They took the elements of music—melody and rhythm—which already existed, and which had even been crudely formulated by their originators, the "common people," and transmitted orally from generation to generation.

These elements the trained musicians formulated more scientifically, wrote down (after having developed a system of notation), and finally perpetuated in print.

At the same time they developed harmony, which was originally discovered by accident rather than by design.

Thus the trained musicians were like the binders in a harvest field who follow the reapers and gather what has been reaped, and bind the scattered wheat into formal sheaves.

Often the binders went far afield and gathered tares and brambles, thinking these must be better than the wheat, because that had been selected by untutored instinct. But always they came back to the wheat field and ultimately made their musical bread and cake with the wheat garnered by the peasants.

The untutored originators of music might justly say:

Self-taught I sing; by heaven, and heaven
The genuine seeds of poetry are sown.

China's Grand Canal.

China is reported to be considering the restoration of the old canal system, of which there were at one time 60,000 miles within the empire. Centuries before the Christian era the great rivers of China were diverted from their natural courses, the waters of one turned into another's bed and the waterways carried along in the direction of the desired traffic.

The ancient Grand canal extends from Hangchow to Tientsin, traversing the provinces of Chekiang, Kiangsu, Shanghai and Chihli, the total length of the canal being about 850 miles, says the Christian Herald. China is in desperate need of transportation, and it has been estimated by engineers that the canal system can be restored at a less cost than that which would be involved in the building of the necessary railways. With the canal again in operation the railway building can go on at greater leisure.

Cattle Stand After Death.

Observing that two heifer and four calves in a pasture near his farm, six miles north of Cheyenne, Wyo., had been standing in the same position all day, Peter Lauritsen investigated and was amazed to discover that the animals were dead.

They had huddled against a barbed wire fence during a thunderstorm, lightning had struck the fence and all had been electrocuted, but had remained standing.

Lauritsen was unable to push them over and in order to get them into position for skinning it was necessary to attach ropes to them and pull them over by horsepower.

Meeklow's Retort.

"Here's an article headed 'One Wife Too Many,'" remarked Mr. Meeklow at the breakfast table.

"Humph! one of those horrid bigamists, I suppose," snorted his very much better half.

"Not necessarily," murmured Mr. Meeklow.

Tactful Discretion.

"But you listen to people who talk gossip."

"Always," replied Miss Cayenne; "so as to know what topics to avoid in my own conversation."

Natural Result.

"I don't like Doctor Hackem. He has such a sharp, cutting way about him."

"He can't help it. He performs about 20 operations a day."

Too Much Class.

"I don't hear of any large catches of porcupine caught."

"The season started too big, whales and sharks from the jump."

You Can't Help Your Baldness.

According to Miss Dorothy Osborn of the Ohio State university, baldness in men is inherited just as much as horns in sheep.

Baldness in women is more frequent than is generally known, she declares, "because women can conceal their baldness much more easily than men." She finds that a woman is bald only when she inherits it from both parents. If one of her parents was bald, however, she may transmit baldness to one-half her sons. If a mother is bald, her sons will be bald, no matter whether the father is or not. Her daughters will not be bald unless the father was bald also.

Be Small.

Patience—Seen any of the bathing suits on the girls this season?

Patience—Yes, I just saw a couple. But I had my opera glasses along, or I guess I'd have missed 'em.

Save Pennies—Waste Dollars

Some users of printing save pennies by getting inferior work and lose dollars through lack of advertising value in the work they get. Printers as a rule charge very reasonable prices, for none of them get rich although nearly all of them work hard.

Moral: Give your printing to a good printer and save money.

Sloan's Liniment for Neuralgia Aches

The dull throb of neuralgia is quickly relieved by Sloan's Liniment, the universal remedy for pain. Easy to apply; it quickly penetrates without rubbing and soothes the sore muscles. Cleaner and more promptly effective than musky plasters or ointment; does not stain the skin or clog the pores. For stiff muscles, chronic rheumatism, gout, lumbago, sprains and strains it gives quick relief. Sloan's Liniment reduces the pain and inflammation in insect bites, bruises, bumps and other minor injuries to children. Get a bottle today at your druggist, 25c.

An Old Man's Stomach

As you grow older and less active, less and less food is required to meet the demands of our bodies. If too much is habitually taken, the stomach will rebel. When a man reaches the advanced age of 85 or 90, you will find that he is a light eater. Be as careful as you will, however, you should occasionally eat more than you should and will feel the need of Chamberlain's Tablets to correct the disorder. These tablets do not contain poison, but strength on the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. They also cause a gentle movement of the bowels.—Edw. C. Miller.

Are you lacking in strength and vigor? Are you weak? Are you sickly, always complaining? You should take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea—Nature's own remedy—cholesterol, purifying, strengthening. 25c.—Edw. C. Miller.
