SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF MRS. J. P. GLYNN

Former Resident of Campbellsport Brought Home for Burial Friday of Last Week

The funeral of Mrs. John P. Glynn, formerly Miss Isabella T. Doyle of Campbellsport, was held from the residence Saturday at 10 a. m. Rev. B. J. J. officiating. The remains were brought to Campbellsport Friday at 3:38 p. m. and taken to the Doyle home to await burial on Saturday morning. Miss Doyle was the youngest daughter of Michael and Winnifred Doyle and was born on a farm one and one-half miles west of New Prospect, Oct. 7, 1833. Her earlier days were spent with her parents. Later she attended the Fond du Lac High School after which she taught in the rural schools of Fond du Lac. Being very ambitious she decided to enter Lakeside Sanitarium at Oshkosh for the purpose of studying to be a trained nurse. She was graduated from the Sanitarium, June 28, 1898. In the same year she went to Waukegan to practice her profession. As a nurse she was very successful. In June of 1914 she was married to John P. Glynn of Massachusetts and they went to Chicago to reside.

Mrs. Glynn leaves besides her husband one son, John Thomas, a bright little fellow of eighteen months to mourn her loss. She also leaves six brothers, James of Florence; Thomas of Fond du Lac; Lawrence and Joseph of Milwaukee; Leo E. of Chicago and Emmet of Campbellsport; sisters Mrs. Anna Follens, Jackson; Mrs. Gertrude Blackmore, Campbellsport; and Mrs. Celia Calvey of Dundee.

On Jan. 16 Mrs. Glynn underwent a mastoid operation in St. Anthony de Padua hospital in Chicago and on that day her mother, Mrs. Winnifred Doyle passed away at her home in Campbellsport. Mrs. Glynn being in a very critical condition was never told of her mother's death. On Jan. 25 she passed peacefully away. On Jan. 26 her remains were brought to the home from which just one week previous the remains of her mother were carried to their final resting place. The six brothers who so recently acted as pallbearers for their mother, carried their youngest sister. Their graves are side by side—Fond du Lac Commonweath.

Former Kewaskum Girl Dies

The portal of eternity opened for Mrs. Anna Boesewetter, the beloved wife of Dr. Edward Boesewetter, on Friday, January 26, 1917. Death which was a great relief to the patient sufferer, came about 5 o'clock in the evening. Her trouble was pulmonary tuberculosis which she contracted about four years ago. She spent about a year at Tucson, Arizona, in quest of her health, but she found no permanent relief.

Deceased was born at Kewaskum on August 21, 1839 and was married to Edward Boesewetter on September 23, 1861. Five children were the issue of their happy union, all of whom together with the husband mourn her untimely death. They are: Rose, Ralph, Pearl, Thekla and Hedy. The latter leaves her father, Val Bingenheimer of Allenton, and two brothers, Mike Bingenheimer of Belvidere, Ill., and Chas. Bingenheimer of Rockford, Ill.

Deceased was one of God's noble women. She had all the fine characteristics of heart and mind that are prized in womanhood. Her life was devoted to her husband and children, to cheer up and counsel and help the former when the flame of courage in the unceasing strife of life was burning low, and to guide and administer to the latter who are preparing to take their place in the world with endless patience and never faltering confidence she faced the odds that entered her earthly existence. Sure of the final victory, the love of her family, the esteem of those who learned to know her will be a monument far more precious and durable than any of stone.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock under the auspices of the Royal Neighbors, who attended in a body to the last respect to a beloved member. Rev. Ruppert of the Reformed congregation performed the last rites. Interment was made in Union cemetery—West Bend News.

Mrs. Boesewetter, formerly Miss Anna Bingenheimer, was well known here, having been born and raised here. Her many friends here extend their heartfelt sympathy.

United in Marriage

A very pretty wedding took place at New Fane last Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock when Miss Mathilda Jandre, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Jandre of New Prospect, became the bride of Reuben Backhaus, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Backhaus of the town of Kewaskum. Rev. Gutekunst performed the ceremony. The bride wore a traveling suit and carried a shower bouquet of cream colored roses, was attended by Miss Mathilda Smith, as maid of honor, who carried white carnations, and Miss Adeline Schmidt as bridesmaid, who carried pink carnations. The groom's attendants were Chas. Jandre, as best man and Louis C. Backhaus as groomsmen. After the ceremony at the church the young couple immediately left on a wedding trip to the north part of the state. On their return they will be at home to their many friends on the groom's farm, two miles south of Campbellsport. The bride is a young lady of charming personality and exceptionally well liked by her large circle of friends. The groom is a graduate of the Kewaskum High School, of the class of 1912, and is an industrious young man of sterling worth and character. We extend our well wishes for a happy and prosperous future for the newly wedded pair. The couple expect to be "at home" on or about March 1st.

Mrs. Pauline Bleck to Receive Back Pension

Congressman Burke has just succeeded in having the claim of Mrs. Pauline Bleck, widow of Carl Bleck of this village, for a widow's pension at $20 per month, to commence from the 8th of last September. When the claim was allowed, Mr. Burke promptly made application to have paid to the wife the amount of pension due her husband at the time of his death, and this was promptly ordered paid to her.

It was then discovered that the soldier had been dropped from the pension roll on May 27, 1912. For some unknown reason, and received no pension since that date. Mr. Burke thereupon had him restored to the roll and also had the increase of $22.50 per month granted him which he was entitled to under the Act of May 11, 1912, and the amount allowed the same to the date of his death, July 30, 1916. The widow will therefore now receive $112.50 pension money which was due the soldier and $30 due her up to the 4th of last January, making a total of $142.50, that will be paid to the widow in the next two weeks, and thereafter her regular pension of $20 per month. This will no doubt be pleasing news to the many friends of Mrs. Bleck.

LOCALS LOSE ANOTHER GAME

Jinx Still Pursues Locals and They Fall Down to Campbellsport By a Score of 33 to 11

In a series of two games scheduled between the Kewaskum City A. team and the Campbellsport M. W. A. team, the local five lost the opening game by a score of 11 to 33 at Campbellsport last week Saturday evening. Lack of team work on the part of the locals made the game a one-sided affair, and an easy victory for the opponents.

Last night, Friday the locals pulled off a return game with the Plymouth squad at that place. Tonight, Saturday, the Kewaskum five will hook up in a battle with the Random Lake five, on the local floor. Do not fail to attend. The City Girls basket ball team, which has recently been organized in this village will journey to West Bend tomorrow, Sunday evening, where they will play their opening game with the strong Girls team of that city. A large number of rooters will no doubt accompany them to help cheer them on to victory.

On last week Friday evening the local high school basket ball team defeated the strong high school team of Brillion on the local floor in a closely contested game by a score of 13 to 15.

Local Bowling Team Victorious

The Kullman bowling team of West Bend came to this village last Sunday evening to compete in a match game with a local five, consisting of Albert Schaefer, Wm. Eberle, Jos. Mayer, Carl Brandstetter and Alex Klug, who sprung quite a surprise on the visitors, defeating them three straight games. The locals made the pins fall in every direction until a total of 2680 points were rolled. Of course we understand that the West Bend team would not have been quite so surprised had they known that the local 268 bowler had been practicing all winter to get himself in trim to compete in a match game with "Ach Louie The Bowler" for the worlds championship. The score is as follows:

C. E. KRAHN WRITES FROM FLORIDA

Has Had a Very Interesting Trip Through The South. Now at Miami, Florida

The following letter was received at this office from Chas. E. Krahn, former editor and owner of the Statesman, who is spending the winter months in the southland. He speaks very highly of his trip and we publish the letter in part as follows:

Miami, Florida, Jan. 27, "I have finally settled down for a few weeks stay here. I have visited Jacksonville, St. Augustine, Palm Beach, Miami and Key West, and also spent a week in Havana, Cuba. I liked Miami best so I expect to stay here about 3 to 4 weeks before going to Tampa and St. Petersburg on the West Coast. Miami is a beautiful city of about 25,000 inhabitants and every hotel and boarding house is filled with tourists. The climate here is just like July and August in Wisconsin. They have had no rain here since last November and it gets very hot during the day. They have had concerts every afternoon and evening in the park at the dock by the Kiltie band and everybody is out in summer attire wearing straw hats and palm beach suits, sitting under the cocoanut palms and fanning themselves. I made a trip down what they call the "Millionaire Row" today, saw Bryans home and the Deering of Chicago estate which they claim will cost $5,000,000, when completed. Its about a mile square enclosed by a high wall, looks much like a world's fair city. They have been working on the grounds for three years, and it will take two years more to finish. They were at work digging a canal from the bay to his house, so his friends can run right up there with their boats. The harbor is just lined with private yachts at present. On Sunday morning they will hold church services in the park. Bryan is going to be there. I enjoyed the trip to Havana very much, very interesting to see how those Cubans live and do things. I would like to write more but its too hot!" Chas. E. Krahn.

Big Fire Near St. Michaels

Sometime during the night of Wednesday, January 31st, fire started in the barn belonging to John Engler, who lives on a farm located about 1 1/2 miles northwest of St. Michaels and four miles east of Kewaskum, on the former Julius Geier farm, and completely destroyed same together with the contents, namely five cows, one calf, two horses, 25 pigs, hay, grain and part of his machinery. At 6 o'clock Thursday morning Mr. Engler went out to the barn to do the chores and upon opening the barn door was greeted with a cloud of smoke, which landed the fire on him at once realizing that the barn was on fire and made his way into the building with the intention of saving the stock, but after looking around he saw that the cows and horses were all smothered to death by the dense smoke.

The cause of the fire is unknown. The total loss to Mr. Engler will reach about $1500, only partly covered by insurance which he carried with the German Mutual of New Fane. This is a very great loss to Mr. Engler as nearly his entire season's work was ruined.

Pawlowska Draws Well

Pawlowska, in "The Dumb Girl of Portici" the motion picture play given at the Opera House last Sunday evening, under the auspices of the Kewaskum Amusement Co. was a great success in every respect. The hall was filled to its capacity, and all were much pleased with the evenings performance. The picture as a whole was an instructive one showing the character and manners and customs of the people of ancient Italy, and the corrupt form of government which resulted in a revolution of its people. A better and more educational photo film the local company could not have chosen and it is hoped by everyone that after the reopening of the moving picture shows on March 4th, that the Kewaskum Amusement Co. will treat its patrons to many more such pictures.

About Constipation.

Certain articles of diet tend to check movements of the bowels. The most common of these are cheese, tea and boiled milk, especially apples and bananas, also graham bread and whole wheat bread promote a movement of the bowels. When the bowels are badly constipated, however, the sure way is to take one or two of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper. A woman worries until she gets wrinkles then she worries because she has them. Every woman should take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. Improve your looks. Bright eyes, clear complexion help a woman wonderfully. Edw. C. Miller.

She paused again, but still he was mute and immobile.

"So now you know me—what I am. No other man has ever known or ever will. But I had to tell you the truth. It seems that the only thing my career had left uncalculated was my fundamental sense of honesty. So I had to come and tell you."

And still he held silence, attentive, but with a set face that betrayed nothing of the tenor of his thoughts.

Almost timidly, with nervously fumbling fingers, she extracted from her pocketbook a small ticket envelope.

"Max was afraid you might upset the performance again, as you did on my last appearance, Hugh," she said; "but I assured him it was just the shock of recognizing you that howled me over. So I've brought you a box for tomorrow night. I want you to use it—you and Mr. Ember."

He broke in with a curt monosyllable: "Why?"

"Why—why because—because I want you—I suppose it's simply my vanity—to see me act. Perhaps you'll feel a little less harshly toward me if you see that I am really a great actress, that I give you up for something bigger than just love—"

"What rot!" he said with an odd, short laugh. "Beside, I harbor no resentment."

She stared, losing a little color, eyes darkening with apprehension.

"I did hope you'd come," she murmured.

"Oh, I'll come," he said with spirit. "Wild horses couldn't keep me away."

"Really, Hugh? And you don't mind? Oh, I'm so glad!"

"I really don't mind," he assured her with a strange smile. "But . . . would you mind excusing me one moment? I've forgotten something very important."

"Why, certainly . . ."

He was already at the telephone in the hallway, just beyond the living-room door. It was impossible to escape overhearing his words. The woman listened perforce with, in the beginning, a little visible wonder, then with astonishment, ultimately with a consternation that shook her with violent tremblings.

"Hello," said Whitaker; "get me Rector two-two-hundred."

"Hello? Rector two-two-hundred? North German Lloyd? . . . This is Mr. H. M. Whitaker. I telephoned you fifteen minutes ago about reservation on the George Washington, sailing Saturday . . . Yes. . . . Yes. . . . Yes, I promised to call for the ticket before noon, but I now find I shan't be able to go. Will you be kind enough to cancel it, if you please. . . . Thank you. . . . Goodbye."

But when he turned back into the living room he found awaiting him a quiet and collected woman.

"Why did you do that?" she asked evenly.

"Because," said Whitaker, "I've had my eyes opened. I've been watching the finest living actress play a carefully rehearsed role, one that she had given long study and all her heart to—but her interpretation didn't ring true. Mary, I admit, at first you got me; I believed you meant what you said. But only my mind believed it; my heart knew better. Just as it has always known better, all through this wretched time of doubt and misery and separation you've subjected us both to. And that was why I couldn't trust myself to answer you; for if I had, I should have laughed for joy. O Mary, Mary!" he cried, his voice softening, "my dear, dear woman, you can't lie to love! You betray yourself in every dear word that would be heartless, in every adorable gesture that would seem final! And love knows better always. . . . Of course I shall be in that box tomorrow night; of course I shall be there to witness your triumph! And after you've won it, dear, I shall carry you off with me . . ."

He opened his arms wide, but with a smothered cry she backed away, placing the table between them.

"No!" she protested; and the words were almost sobs—"No!"

"Yes!" he exclaimed exultantly. "Yes! A thousand times yes! It must be so!"

With a swift movement she seized her muff and scarf from the chair and fled to the door. There, pausing, she turned, her face white and blazing.

"It is not true!" she cried. "You are mistaken. Do you hear me? You are utterly mistaken. I do not love you. You are mad to think it. I have just told you I don't love you. I am afraid of you; I don't stay with you for fear of you. I—I despise you!"

"I don't believe it!" he cried, advancing.

But she was gone. The hall door slammed before he could reach it.

CHAPTER XIX.

One Way Out.

Toward eight in the evening, after a day-long search through all his accustomed haunts, Ember ran Whitaker to earth in the dining room of the Primordial. The young man, alone at table, was in the act of topping off an excellent dinner with a still more excellent cordial and a super-excellent cigar.

He wore rough tweeds, and they were damp and baggy; his boots were muddy; his hair was a trifle disorderly. The ensemble made a figure wildly incongruous to the soberly splendid and stately dining hall of the Primordial club, with its sparse patronage of members in evening dress.

Ember, himself as severely beautiful in black and white as the ceremonious liveliness of today permits a man to be, was wonder-struck at sight of Whitaker in such unconventional guise, at such a time, in such a place. With neither invitation nor salutation, he slipped into a chair on the other side of the table, and stared.

Whitaker smiled benignantly upon him, and called a waiter.

Ember, always abstemious, lifted his hand and smiled a negative smile. Whitaker dismissed the waiter.

"Well . . ." he inquired cheerfully.

"What right have you got to look like that?" Ember demanded.

"The right of every free-born American citizen to make an ass of himself according to the dictates of his conscience. I've been exploring the dark backwards and abyss of the Bronx-foot. Got caught in the rain on the way home. Was late getting back, and dropped in here to celebrate."

"I've been looking for you everywhere, since morning."

"I suspected you would be. That's why I went walking—to be lonesome and thoughtful for once in a way."

"I Am Afraid of You."

Ember stroked his chin with thoughtful fingers.

"You've heard the news, then?"

"In three ways," Whitaker returned, with calm.

"How's that—three ways?"

"Through the newspapers, the billboards, and from the lips of my wife."

Ember opened his eyes wide.

"You've been to see her?"

"She called this morning."

But Ember interrupted, thrusting a ready and generous hand across the table:

"My dear man, I am glad!"

Whitaker took the proffered hand readily and firmly. "Thank you. . . . I was saying; she called this morning to inform me that, though wedded once, we must be strangers now—and evermore!"

"But you—of course—you argued that nonsense out of her head."

"To the contrary—again."

"But—my dear man!—you said you were celebrating; you permitted me to congratulate you just now—"

"The point is," said Whitaker, with a bland and confident grin; "I've succeeded in arguing that nonsense out of my head—not hers—mine."

Ember gave a helpless gesture. "I'm afraid this is one of my stupid nights . . ."

"I mean that, though Mary ran away from me, wouldn't listen to reason, I have, in the course of an afternoon's hard tramping, come to the conclusion that there is nothing under the sun which binds me to sit back and accept whatever treatment she purposes according to me by courtesy of Jules Max."

Whitaker bent forward, his countenance discovering a phase of seriousness hitherto masked by his twisted smile.

"I mean I'm tired of all this poppycock. Unless I'm an infatuated ass, Mary loves me with all her heart. She has made up her mind to renounce me partly because Max has worked upon her feelings by painting some lurid picture of his imminent artistic and financial damnation if she leaves him, partly because she believes, or has been led to believe, in this 'destroying angel' moonshine. Now she's got to listen to reason. So, likewise, Max."

"You're becoming more human word by word," commented Ember with open approval. "Continue; elucidate; I can understand how a fairly resolute lover with the gift of gab can talk a weak-minded, fond female into denying her pet superstition; but how you're going to get around Max passes my comprehension. The man unquestionably has her under contract—"

"But you forgot his god is Mammon," Whitaker put in. "Max will do anything in the world for money. Therein resides the kernel of my plan.

It's simplicity itself; I'm going to buy him."

"Buy Max?"

"Body—artistic soul—and brooches," Whitaker affirmed confidently.

"Impossible!"

"You forget how well fixed I am. What's the use of my owning half the gold in New Guinea if it won't buy me what I already own by every moral and legal right?"

"He won't listen to you; you don't know Max."

"I'm willing to lay you a small bet that there will be no first performance at the Theater Max tomorrow night."

"You'll never persuade him—"

"I'll buy the show outright and my wife's freedom to boot—or else Max will begin to accumulate the local color of a hospital ward."

Ember smiled grimly. "You're beginning to convince even me. When, may I ask, do you propose to pull off this sporting proposition?"

"Do you know where Max can be found tonight?"

"At the theater—"

"Then the matter will be arranged at the theater between this hour and midnight."

"I doubt if you succeed in getting the ear of the great man before midnight; however, I'm not disposed to quibble about a few hours."

"But why shouldn't I?"

"Because Max is going to be the busiest young person in town tonight. And that is why I've been looking for you. . . . Conforming to his custom, he's been giving an advance glimpse of the production to the critics and a few friends in the form of a final grand dress rehearsal tonight. Again, in conformance with his custom, he has honored me with a bid. I've been chasing you all day to bid out if you cared to go—"

"Eight o'clock and a bit after."

Whitaker interrupted briskly, consulting his watch. "Here, boy," he hailed a passage page; "call a taxicab for me." And then, rising alertly: "Come along; I've got to hustle home; and make myself look respectable enough for the occasion; but at that, with luck, I fancy we'll be there before the first curtain."

This mood of faith, of self-reliance and assured optimism held unruined throughout the dash homeward, his hurried change of clothing and the ride to the theater. Nothing that Ember, purposely pessimistic, could say or do availed to diminish the high buoyancy of his humor. He maintained a serene faith in his star, a spirited temper that refused to recognize obstacles in the way of his desire.

In the taxicab, en route to the Theater Max, he contrived even to distill a good omen from the driving autumnal downpour itself.

"On such a day as this," he told his doubting friend, "I won her first; on such a day I shall win her anew, finally and for all time!"

From Broadway to Sixth avenue, Fifty-sixth street was bright with the yellow glare of the huge sign in front of the Theater Max. But this night, unlike that other night when he had approached the stage of his wife's triumphs, there was no crawling rank of cabs, no eager and curious press of people in the street; but few vehicles disputed their way; otherwise the rain and the hurrying, rain-coated wayfarers had the thoroughfare to themselves. . . . And even this he chose to consider a favorable omen; there was not now a public to come between him and his love—only Max and her frightened fancies.

The man at the door recognized Ember with a cheerful nod; Whitaker he did not know.

"Just in time, Mr. Ember; curtain's been up about ten minutes."

CHAPTER XX.

Black Out.

The auditorium was in almost total darkness. A single voice was audible from the stage that confronted it like some tremendous, moonlight canvas in a huge frame of tarnished gold. They stole silently round the orchestra seats to the stage-box—the same box that Whitaker had on the former occasion occupied in company with Max.

They succeeded in taking possession without attracting attention, either from the owners of that scanty scattering of slurred bosoms in the orchestra—the critical fraternity and those intimates bidden by the manager to the first glimpse of his new revelation in stagecraft—or from those occupying the stage.

The latter were but two. Evidently, though the curtain had been up for some minutes, the action of the piece had not yet been permitted to begin to unfold. Whitaker inferred that Max had been dissatisfied with something about the lighting of the scene. The manager was standing in mid-stage, staring up at the borders—a stout and pompous figure, tenacious of every detail of that public self which he had striven so successfully to make unforgettably individual; a figure quaintly incongruous in his impeccable morning coat and striped trousers and fine brimmed silk hat, perched well back on his head, with his malacca stick and lemon-colored gloves and small and excessively glossy patent-leather shoes, posed against the counterfeits of a moonlit formal garden.

Vom Schauplatz des europäischen Völkerrrieges

Ein Gutes hat die aller Vernunft und Menschlichkeit höhnepredende Alliierten-Note doch gehabt. Nämlich das darin enthaltene Eingeständnis, daß die Alliierten einen Eroberungs- und Vernichtungskrieg führen, während die Zentralmächte zur Verteidigung ihrer Existenz gezwungen sind. Deutlich genug ist das in folgenden Bedingungen, welche die Note enthält, ausgedrückt: „Die Befreiung von Italienern, Slaven, Rumänen, schischischen Slaven von fremder Herrschaft; die Befreiung von Völkern, welche der blutigen Tyrannie der Türken unterworfen sind; die Vertreibung des osmanischen Reiches aus Europa, welches sich gegen die Vertreibung der jüdischen Bevölkerung erwehrt hat.“

Mit dieser Erklärung haben die Alliierten, Diplomaten ihrer Seite einen schlichten Dienst ersehen. Wenn auch nicht das ungebildete Volk, so werden doch die Regierungskreise der neutralen Länder daran Anstoß nehmen und die Verbalten danach richten müssen, indem sie den schriftlichen Beweis vor sich haben.

„I doubt if you succeed in getting the ear of the great man before midnight; however, I'm not disposed to quibble about a few hours.“

„But why shouldn't I?“

„Because Max is going to be the busiest young person in town tonight. And that is why I've been looking for you. . . . Die Farmer und die Fleischlieferung

Die Sachverständigen der Abteilung für Schlachtvieh-Industrie im landwirtschaftlichen Departement der Bundesregierung vollendeten dieser Tage ein sehr umfangreiches Studium der Fleischzufuhr. Sie haben sehr interessante Angaben in dieser Beziehung erhoben und zusammengefaßt.

Sie stellten zuerst fest, daß in den verschiedenen Landesteilen sehr verschiedene Methoden in der Zufuhr von Schlachtvieh befolgt werden. Die am meisten befolgte Methode ist der Verkauf des Schlachtviehs nach den großen zentralisierten Schlachthäusern in Chicago, Omaha, Kansas City und einigen anderen weltlichen Städten. In mehreren östlichen Staaten verkauft der Farmer sein Schlachtvieh direkt an die lokalen Metzger, und in gewissen Lokalitäten sogar direkt an die Konsumenten. Der größte Teil der Fleischzufuhr ist jedoch von den großen zentralisierten Schlachthäusern abhängig und diese bestimmen auch die Preise.

In der Viehzucht für die Fleischzufuhr machen sich die genossenschaftlichen Organisationen der Farmer mehr und mehr bemerkbar. In fünfzehn Staaten bestehen jetzt 575 genossenschaftliche Verbände von Viehzüchtern und 430 von diesen Verbänden befragen ihren eigenen Verkauf. In Minnesota bestehen allein 215 dieser Organisationen, durch welche die Farmer weniger Ausgaben, aber erhöhte Einnahmen haben.

Die mit der Untersuchung betrauten Sachverständigen widmeten den Verlusten im Transport des Schlachtviehs besondere Aufmerksamkeit. Auf gewissen Bahnen war der Verlust viel bedeutender, als auf anderen. Der Wert der Ansprüche für im Transport verlorenen Schlachtviehs auf einer Bahnlinie stieg sich auf 19 Prozent der gesamten Frachtkosten dieser Bahn, während der Verlust auf den meisten anderen Bahnen nur ungefähr fünf Prozent betrug. Im Jahre 1913-14 belief sich die Höhe der Ansprüche für Verluste auf 27 Bahnen auf $1,245,477.81. Die durchschnittliche Rate für den Transport von Schlachtvieh in den Jahren 1911 bis 1915 war zehn Cent pro hundert Pfund in den östlichen Staaten, 11.9 in den südlichen und 14.9 in den weltlichen Staaten.

Ein anderes interessantes Ergebnis dieser Untersuchung war die Feststellung des Gewinnes an der Fleischzufuhr durch die interessierten Parteien. Wurde die Zufuhr nach den zentralisierten Schlachthöfen gemacht, so erhielten die Züchter und Farmer zwischen 65 und 85 Prozent des erzielten Preises. Die Marktkosten stellten sich auf zwei Prozent, während die Kleinbändler zwischen 8 und 32 Prozent verdienen sollen. In der lokalen Fleischzufuhr erhält der Farmer von 62 bis 84 Prozent und der Kleinbändler von 15 bis zu 38 Prozent. Im Durchschnitt erlangten die Farmer mehr durch Verkauf an die großen zentralisierten Schlachthäuser als durch direkten Verkauf an die lokalen Metzger.

Deportierte belgische Arbeiter dürfen zurückkehren.

Berlin, über London. Deutschland hat Holland die Wiedereinweisung zugehen lassen, daß es belgischen Arbeitern, die aus dem Antwerpener Gebiet deportiert wurden, freigegeben werden ist, nach ihren Heimen in Belgien zurückzuführen und, falls sie dort keine Arbeit finden sollten, nach Holland zu gehen, oder nach Deutschland zurückzuführen. Dieser Schritt wurde in Verfolg von Hollands Vorstellungen getan, welche letztere auf einer seitens des Militärgouverneurs von Antwerpen im Oktober 1914 an die belgischen Flüchtlinge in Holland gerichteten Einladung basierten.

Der Militärgouverneur versicherte den Flüchtlingen, daß sie im Falle einer Rückkehr nach Belgien zu zwanigwöchiger Arbeit für Deutschland nicht angehalten werden würden. Die deutsche Wiedereinweisung unter Verhältnissen gegeben wurden, die von denjenigen gänzlich verschieden seien, wie in der Erwartung, daß der Krieg nur einige wenige Monate dauern würde. Nichtsdestoweniger habe Deutschland beabsichtigt, sein Wort einzulösen.

Beanspruchten keine Verzögerung.

Nach dem Gothaer Almanach für 1917, welcher letzten erschienen ist, sind bisher 258 Grafen, 567 Freiherren und 1465 Angehörige des Adels und des Brieftabells den Tod für das Vaterland im Weltkrieg gelorben. Und trotzdem will man nicht davon ablassen die Adligen zu schmähren. In Deutschland ist die landläufige Verächtlichkeit, daß die Söhne adeliger Familien in diesem Kriege überall bevorzugt werden, nicht richtig, wie aus der oben angeführten Statistik hervorgeht. Es muß aber jeder Adelige, der körperlich tauglich ist, seinen Militärdienst durchmachen, wie auch der Bauernjunge.

VETOES ALIEN BILL

WILSON CALLS LITERACY TEST RADICAL CHANGE IN POLICY AND UNJUSTIFIED.

PRESIDENT REGRETS ACTION

Second Time Measure Has Been Killed by Wilson Because of the Literacy Test—Sends Message to the House.

Washington, Jan. 31.—President Wilson vetoed the immigration bill passed recently by congress because of its literacy test provision.

It was the second time that President Wilson had vetoed an Immigration bill because of the literacy test, and for the same reasons similar measures were given vetoes by Presidents Taft and Cleveland.

The president's veto message to the house, in which the bill originated, follows:

"I very much regret to return this bill without my signature.

"In most of the provisions of the bill I should be very glad to concur, but I cannot rid myself of the conviction that the literacy test constitutes a radical change in the policy of the nation which is not justified in principle.

"It is not a test of character, of quality or of personal fitness, but would operate in most cases merely as a penalty for lack of opportunity in the country whence the alien seeking admission came. The opportunity to gain an education is in many cases one of the chief opportunities sought by the immigrants in coming to the United States, and our experience in the past has not been that the illiterate immigrant, as such an undesirable immigrant. Tests of quality and of purpose cannot be objected to on principle, but tests of opportunity surely may be.

"Moreover, even if this test might be equitably insisted on, one of the exceptions proposed to its application involves a provision which might lead to very delicate and hazardous diplomatic situations.

"The bill exempts from the operation of the literacy test all aliens who shall prove to the satisfaction of the proper immigration officer or to the secretary of labor that they are seeking admission to the United States to avoid religious persecution in the country of their last permanent residence, whether such persecution be evidenced by overt acts or by laws or governmental regulations that discriminate against the alien or the race to which he belongs because of his religious faith.

"Such a provision, so applied and administered, would oblige the officer concerned in effect to pass judgment upon the laws and practices of a foreign government and declare that they did or did not constitute religious persecution.

"I dare say that these consequences were not in the minds of the proponents of this provision, but the provision separately and in itself renders it unwise for me to give my assent to this legislation in its present form."

RUSSIANS WIN IN ROUMANIA

Czar's Men Take the Offensive Against Austro-German Troops—Gain on Two-Mile Front.

Petrograd, Jan. 30.—Russian forces, after artillery preparation, assumed the offensive against the Austro-German fortified positions on both sides of the Kampulung-Jacobson road, near the northwestern frontier of Moldavia, and after stubborn fighting broke through the Teutonic lines along a front of nearly two miles, says the official statement issued on Sunday by the Russian war department.

Prisoners and loot were taken by the Russians, the extent of which has not yet been ascertained. Southwest of Iuga three successive German attacks were repulsed by the Russians.

ANY CORN LIFTS OUT, DOESN'T HURT A BIT!

No foolishness! Lift your corns and calluses off with fingers—It's like magic!

Sore corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn, can harmlessly be lifted right out with the fingers if you apply upon the corn a few drops of freezone, says a Cincinnati authority.

For little cost one can get a small bottle of freezone at any drug store, which will positively rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain.

This simple drug dries the moment it is applied and does not even irritate the surrounding skin while applying it or afterwards.

This announcement will interest many of our readers. If your druggist hasn't any freezone tell him to surely get a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house.—adv.

Japanese Trade in Manchuria.

Mr. Yoshida, who was selected by the Japanese government to investigate commercial conditions in Manchuria, has made a report giving details of the trade. About one month is required to transport goods from Osaka to Harbin, even by passenger train. The principal Japanese products that are sent from Harbin to European Russia are hosiery, underwear, shoe soles, cotton textiles, medicines, singlass and insulated electric wire. Since the middle of August an import tax has been assessed upon hosiery and underwear by the Russian Manchurian customs. The trade of North Manchuria is on the road to prosperity, on account of the increased population and the development of agriculture. Harbin is regarded as the center of business.

"Anything new in the show?" asked the local manager. "Yes," answered the visiting agent. "The biggest supply of new songs, new faces, new jokes ever shown in captivity. Just to show you the trouble we've taken with that show, we've been collecting all that material for the last ten years."

HAD TO WIRE FOR ADDRESS

Englishman Visiting in Paris Took Roundabout Method of Finding Out Where He Lived.

A young Englishman who had a rather treacherous memory went to spend a holiday in Paris. With a little difficulty he sought out a hotel, and, anxious to make the best of his time, he sallied forth the next morning to have a look at the boulevards. Having spent a few hours there, he would return to his quarters. But to get to the boulevards and then get back to the hotel he soon found were very different things, for, to his great annoyance, he had utterly forgotten the name of the place where he had taken up his abode.

Further, a mere smattering of French was all he knew, and as every one he encountered appeared to have no knowledge of English, the difficulty of explaining himself seemed insurmountable. At last, to his great joy, he stumbled across a fellow-countryman who, after a little conversation, suggested an ingenious escape from his dilemma.

"By the way," said he, "did you send to your people in England any intimation of your safe arrival last evening?"

"Of course, I did," was the ready reply. "I wrote to my folk at once, as I promised my father I should."

"Then don't you think," remarked the quick-witted Englishman, "that it would be a good idea to wire home and ask them, if they have received your letter, to let you know your address in Paris?"

Absurd though it seemed at first, it was the only thing to be done, and, luckily, his letter had been written on hotel paper. He waited patiently in the telegraph office until he received the welcome intelligence which sent him on his way rejoicing.

COULD NOT BE OVERLOOKED

Good Reason Why Autoist's Action Aroused the Indignation of Public-Spirited Sheriff.

Barney Doreboy's giant Crackard bicycle purred joyously as Barney drove it at a 9 1/2-mile clip along the sandy highway toward Flat Rock, Mich.

"I'd like to see the hecker that can stop me today!" chuckled Barney as he fell off in the town.

But at that moment he observed an individual ahead of him in the center of the road, so busy giving a simultaneous imitation of Pavlova and George M. Cohan that he never even heard the onrushing Crackard bicycle.

Just in the nick of time Barney swung aside and crashed through a hog-tight fence into a meadow, and the next minute Sheriff Weegles dashed up and had him by the collar.

"Have a heart, sheriff," protested Barney. "You know dumdamst well you wouldn't even have got my number if I hadn't turned aside to save that poor man's life. A kind deed like that—"

"I don't object to stray chickens being run down, and I don't object to nothin' under a hundred miles an hour," said Sheriff Weegles grimly, "when a guy deliberately busts a town property fence instead of killin' a loafer that's been a burden on the community for eight years, he's a-goin' to get fined good and stiff, he is."—Detroit Free Press.

Writing Up to Rules.

The reporter carried to the city editor's desk the story on which he had toiled two hours. It was an account of the adventures of a cat that, through the mistake of a rural postmaster, had been crated and shipped by parcel post to the city post office.

"It's mighty hard," he confessed to the city editor, "to write up to all the rules I learned at college, particularly that one about avoiding repetition."

The editor glanced through the narrative. The first sentence mentioned the fact that a handsome tortoise-shell cat had been received at the local post office. In the next sentence the reporter had avoided repetition by calling the cat "tubby." Then she became successively a tabby, an animal, a feline and a pet. Then the reporter's overworked vocabulary put forth a final spurt, and the item finished triumphantly:

"When the slats were removed from the top, the contents of the crate were found to be suffering from hunger and nearly dead from thirst."—Youth's Companion.

His Choice.

A school teacher in the Italian quarter of Chicago had been telling her pupils certain of the fables of Aesop, and of these the story of the fox and the grapes seemed especially to appeal to one dusky son of Italy.

By a stroke of luck the teacher was enabled to hear the lad give his version to a lad in another class.

In a delicious dialect the boy recounted the fable pretty much as it is written until he reached the climax which he rendered thus:

"Den de olda fox he say, 'I thinka da grape no good, anahow. I guess I go getta de bunnan'."

One Trial Enough.

In a vaudeville boarding house the breakfast table gossip was buzzing. One druz store blonde was benominating the stern realities of this life.

"What you should have done," said a juggler, "was to marry and become interested in a domestic existence."

"Rats," she replied. "I did get married one Sunday and it spoiled my pleasure for the day."—New York Sun.

Farm to Table Movement

The Postmaster of Milwaukee has inaugurated a movement whereby he wishes to advance "The Farm to Table" idea via parcel post.

It is now compiling a list of farmers, producers and store keepers, who wish to take advantage of this movement, to the citizens of Milwaukee who wish to make their purchase direct in an effort to reduce the prevalent high cost of food products.

The post office department draws attention to the facilities offered by the parcel post for the shipment of farm products from the producer to the consumer. An unlimited opportunity is offered the producer through this method to extend their business by selling products direct to the consumer. They are cautioned, however, that this business cannot be developed and maintained unless they are willing to share liberally with the customer in the saving which is effected by parcel post shipment, remembering that the city customer, in dealing with them by mail foregoes the advantages of credit, personal inspection of goods and immediate delivery, and will not deal by parcel post unless he is assured of better products at less price.

Attention is also called to the usual mode of collection, which is by C. O. D., which includes the amount of the sale, the value of prepaid postage affixed to parcel and the fee for return money order transmitted to sender in settlement.

If any is desired on the Milwaukee "list of Shippers of Country produce by parcel post," please consult Postmaster George H. Schmidt, who will cheerfully furnish a blank to be filled out. He will also gladly instruct all as to the proper requirements of packing and labeling of all farm products for the mails.

Kohler a Modern City

Articles of incorporation were filed last Wednesday afternoon by the new Kohler Improvement Co., Kohler giving as the stockholders Walter J. Kohler, H. V. Kohler and Evangeline Kohler. The company is capitalized at $100,000.

Novel features are incorporated in the articles and when carried out will mean much to the employees and residents of the model village. The object of the new company is to buy and sell real estate, develop lands owned, and to build thereon houses that will sell and rent at a low figure. Factories and stores are also included in the proposed building plan. These houses, factories and stores are to be built with the one idea of harmony in outline and structure, with the one big idea of comfort running throughout.

Probably one of the biggest features of the company is the clause dealing with the organizing and operating of industries, stores, amusement places and nurseries, for the purpose of developing the lands now owned by the company. Along this line the company intends to furnish heat, light and power for the use of the owners and renters. Parks, playgrounds and public recreation parks are to be built and maintained by the company for the social side of the community, and landscape gardening will be promoted to add to the beauty of the amusement places. It is the aim of the company to keep the commercial, residential and industrial sections of the city in restricted areas, and in doing this to accomplish the double purpose of making a pleasing location for all and stabilizing land values. Economics and community development from all angles will be encouraged, looking forward to the idea that the family of moderate means can have the advantages of living not ordinarily available and lastly to as in all ways possible the development of a modern American city.—Sheboygan County Union.

A Hint to the Aged.

If people past sixty years in age could be persuaded to go to bed as soon as they take cold and remain in bed for one or two days they would recover much more quickly, especially if they take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. There would also be less danger of the cold being followed by any of the more serious diseases.

MODERN ARMY RIFLES,

Evolution of the Old Smooth Bore Muzzle Loading Musket.

The gun is the little brother of the cannon. Artillery was made first, but it was easy to see that something a man could carry was needed, and in the fourteenth century the Flemings were the proud possessors of hand cannon, small copies of the bigger weapon fitted to a stock. They were interesting more than effective, however, and did little damage beyond scaring badly every one who faced them for the first time.

Improvements came in the course of time, and the arquebus, also called the caliver and which was modeled somewhat after the crossbow, came on the market. The work the Spanish did with the new weapon was not a joke. And under the Duke of Alva, a little later, they also introduced the musket, an improvement on the arquebus, but still a clumsy affair, fired by a match and so heavy that it could only be aimed from a rest. It had a tremendous bore, however, and could stop a horse at 500 yards, so it soon became the universal military arm.

Early in the eighteenth century the flintlock displaced the matchlock. The Charleville musket, introduced by Lafayette and the first regulation gun in the hands of American soldiers, was of this type.

A Scotch clergyman, Alexander Forsyth, was responsible for the next big advance, the percussion cap, which was invented in 1807. The Prussian needle gun was the first successful military breechloader, although the principle was not new—the Spanish had them aboard the ships of the armada.

Riding also is very old. Gaspard Koller of Vienna and August Kotter of Nuernberg were rivals for the honor of the invention about 1520. As has been pointed out, however, these improvements had to be laid aside until a day of better workmanship.

Most of the fighting up to 1850 was done with smoothbores, even Napoleon discarding the rifle. Breechloaders were used near the close of our own war, and very soon the muzzle loader became a curiosity.

Winchester, an American, invented one of the first successful repeating rifles, and the Turks used them against the Russians in 1877. Then all the great military powers began rearming their troops with small caliber repeaters, using high power smokeless powder. One of the best is our own Springfield rifle.

No one need wonder what the weapon of the near future will be. All war departments of the world are eagerly searching for the perfected automatic rifle, which will be a terrible weapon indeed—a miniature machine gun.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

BILL TO CHANGE DRAINAGE LAWS

3,000,000 Acres of Wet Land Can Be Used.

SIMILAR TO EVERETT BILL

Senator Declares All of Desirable Provisions of Present Act Have Been Retained and Undesirable Features Eliminated.

Madison.—Upwards of 3,000,000 acres of wet land in Wisconsin may be affected by a proposed law providing for a reclassification and codification of drainage laws.

"We still have about 3,000,000 acres of wet land that can be made excellent farm land at comparatively small expense," declared Senator Everett.

Senator Everett points to a number of sections of the state where large crops have been grown on marsh-drained land during the past year.

Senator Fred A. Baxter of Superior believes that the counties, cities, villages and towns of the state are paying an excessive price for cement used in highway construction.

The Baxter bill provides for the creation of a commission known as a state purchasing commission to consist of the state engineer, the superintendent of public property and the state highway engineer.

Insurance Commissioner Cleary is having a bill drafted which will not only give a clearer definition of what a group insurance is, but which will also give the state more control in regulating this kind of insurance.

The purpose is to make a complete and effective campaign of education, gathering and dispersing reliable and accurate information concerning the whole territory, and just so far as possible the discriminations now directed against these states, which comes largely from a misunderstanding.

Insurance Commissioner Cleary is having a bill drafted which will not only give a clearer definition of what a group insurance is, but which will also give the state more control in regulating this kind of insurance.

For Constitutional Convention. Senator George B. Skogmo of River Falls will introduce a resolution for a referendum on a constitutional convention, to be voted on in the election of 1918.

Sooner or later a constitutional convention will be necessary in this state, both to enable the legislature to take up some of the questions that are arising and to clear away from the constitution some of the provisions which are obsolete," said Senator Skogmo.

"The governor himself has advocated one constitutional amendment at this session, and members of the legislature who are affiliated with the governor in political belief have offered several others."

The question to be submitted, according to Senator Skogmo, is: "Shall a constitutional convention be called for the purpose of revising or changing the constitution of the state of Wisconsin?"

Should the referendum carry in the affirmative, the next legislature would make provisions for election of its delegates.

Many Health Bills Planned. Almost a score of public health bills will be offered this year. Many of them have already been presented. The state department of health is making a concerted move Can't Reach Settlement. Neeenah.—Striking shoe works at the plant of the Neeenah Shoe company are still out, and from present indications there is no hope for a settlement.

Tax Collections Slow. Neeenah.—Tax collections to date here total $70,000. A like amount still remains to be collected.

to place public health nursing in Wisconsin on a firmer basis. A bill offered by Assemblyman Young of Watworth county authorizes the employment of public health nurses by any city, village or township.

Assemblyman Whiteside of Portage county has prepared a measure which gives the state power to regulate the travel of persons from a community where an epidemic of communicable disease exists.

That the states of Wisconsin and Minnesota should co-operate in making a survey of their undeveloped resources and legislation along this line will be offered before the legislature at the present session.

It is proposed by Senator Wilkinson that these states appoint a joint committee, each state being equally represented, to make a survey of their undeveloped resources.

"By the states consolidating their interests it would save duplication of effort and bring quicker results than can be obtained in any other way," said Senator Wilkinson.

The purpose is to make a complete and effective campaign of education, gathering and dispersing reliable and accurate information concerning the whole territory, and just so far as possible the discriminations now directed against these states.

Insurance Commissioner Cleary is having a bill drafted which will not only give a clearer definition of what a group insurance is, but which will also give the state more control in regulating this kind of insurance.

MEXICANS IN RIOT

STREET CARS STORMED BY MOB AT JUAREZ AND EIGHT AMERICANS SEIZED.

SITUATION CALLED SERIOUS

Women Join Disturbers When U. S. Officials End All-Night Traffic Over Bridge—Withdrawal of General Pershing Announced.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 30.—Rioters in Juarez stormed four street cars on Sunday and seized eight American street car men. They are being held prisoners by the Mexicans.

The demonstration of the rioters, which was at first derisively good-natured, changed suddenly just after noon, when four shots were fired at the Mexican end of the railroad bridge.

Among the rioters are many Mexican women. These joined in the attack on the street cars and then marched to the international bridge, where they held a demonstration against all Americans.

The women joined the rioters because the United States health officers put an end to all-night traffic between Juarez and El Paso.

Hundreds of excited Mexican men and women now line the banks of the Rio Grande opposite El Paso.

A report was brought to El Paso by Americans returning from Juarez that one Mexican was shot and killed during the shooting there.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Official announcement of the withdrawal of United States troops from Mexican soil was made by the war department.

The war department announced that the northern movement of General Pershing's men began early Sunday morning with the evacuation of Colonia Dublan.

SENATORS HIT INAUGURAL

"Plundering" of Public by Washington Hotels Also is Denounced by Lawmakers.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The senate on Friday voted favorably on the $25,000 appropriation to pay for the inauguration expenses at the capitol, but not until there had been some lively talk about how Washington hotel keepers "rob" visitors and some observations that the inaugural ceremonies have come to resemble a coronation pageant.

When Senator Overman brought the resolution from the appropriations committee, Senator McCumber (Rep.) of North Dakota suggested that it should include provisions to prevent hotel keepers from raising their rates.

"I'm not going to object to this resolution," said Senator Works (Rep.) of California, "but I should like to see one president inaugurated with appropriate ceremonies suitable in a democracy."

BORAH SUBMITS RESOLUTION

Calls on the Senate to Reaffirm Its Faith in the Monroe Doctrine.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Senator Borah of Idaho introduced a resolution on Thursday calling upon the senate "to reaffirm its faith" in the Monroe doctrine and a strict adherence to Washington's warning against entangling foreign alliances.

The Borah resolution will bring the president's international peace league plan, as laid down in his Monday address to the senate, into direct issue and will have the effect of confining peace debates to that particular subject.

The resolution is designed to eliminate haphazard peace discussion and divide senators for or against the extension of the Monroe doctrine to the entire world.

Senator Borah asked that the resolution lie on the table.

WESTERN CANADA LEADS AS WHEAT PRODUCER

342,000,000 Bushels Wheat in 1915; In 1916 Many Farmers Paid for Their Land Out of Their Crop.

That Western Canada is indeed "Mistress of Wheat" to the extent that its 1915 crop exceeded, acre for acre, the production of any country on this continent is a striking fact proved by the following figures:

In 1915 the Dominion of Canada produced 376,000,000 bushels of wheat, which represented an average yield of 29 bushels to the acre.

The three Western Canadian prairie provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta produced between them 342,000,000 bushels out of the total Canadian 376,000,000 bushels.

ALONG RIGHT LINES

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT'S DEVELOPMENT OF INDUSTRY.

Manufacturing Laboratory Established to Experiment in the Production of Potash—Better Plan Than Imposition of Tariff.

The department of agriculture is drawing plans for what might be called a manufacturing laboratory devoted to the development of the potash industry.

It is a typically American method of doing business—except for the foresight of the department of agriculture. That is unusual. A century of pioneering has given us as a nation a distaste for minute, detailed investigation.

United States Gets Islands. Denmark's official action with regard to the Danish West Indies assures American control over the islands.

Economically it is obvious the Danish West Indies are of negligible value. The population, mostly black, decreased from 43,000 in 1835 to 25,000 in 1915.

But from the standpoint of defending the Panama canal and of upholding the Monroe doctrine in the Caribbean region the port of St. Thomas is of first-rate importance.

Laws Have Benefited Farmer. The laws enacted for the benefit of the farmer form a large part of Democratic achievement.

The appropriation of $27,000,000 for the department of agriculture passed at this session of congress, exceeds last year's appropriation by $7,000,000 and the appropriation of 1910 by $14,000,000.

The KITCHEN CABINET

What though the field is lost? All is lost—the unconquerable will and courage never to submit nor yield.

DAINTY DISHES. The Thousand Island dressing has as many ways for preparation as there are islands.

Almond Cheese Salad.—Mash a teacup cream cheese, and add four table-spoonfuls of thick, sweet cream; when well mixed add two table-spoonfuls of chopped almonds, a few grains of salt, and a third of a cupful of whipped cream.

Tamales.—Boil until tender a good fowl; strip the meat from the bones and chop fine. Chop half a pound of raisins and half a cupful of stoned olives with one small red pepper, very fine.

Italian Salad.—Chill celery in cold water with a cut clove of garlic, rub the salad bowl with the cut side of a clove of garlic and combine almost any number of vegetables, adding a sprig of chopped mint.

Simpe Steamed Pudding.—Take a cupful each of grated raw potato, carrots, chopped suet, brown sugar, a pound of raisins, a cupful and a half of flour, a teaspoonful of soda, a table-spoonful of water, a teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of cinnamon, a teaspoonful of nutmeg, and a teaspoonful of allspice.

GOOD PINEAPPLE DISHES. There is no fruit which lends itself so nicely to salad combinations, puddings or creams, as the pineapple.

Pineapple Ice.—Cook together for five minutes 2 1/2 cupfuls of sugar, a quart of water; add the juice of two lemons and the grated fruit of two pineapples.

Pineapple Marmalade.—Pare and grate a sufficient number of ripe pineapples. Weigh the pulp and place it in a granite preserving kettle and let simmer gently for 20 minutes.

Hawaiian Dessert.—Soak a cupful of tapioca in a cupful of cold water overnight. In the morning place in a double boiler with three cupfuls of brown sugar and enough water to cover.

Pineapple Marshmallow.—Mix equal amounts of marshmallows cut in quarters and pineapple cut in cubes; add a little pineapple juice and allow it to stand for a while in a cold place.

SNOWBALL FIGHT. "The Fairies," said Daddy, "were singing this song the other day:

"And how happy and jolly they were. The snow kept falling, falling all the time, and the Fairies sang their little song over and over again.

"But we mustn't just talk about making snowballs," said the Fairy Queen. "We must make some."

"That's so," agreed the Fairies. "We must certainly make some right away."

"Let's have a good old-fashioned fight," said Fairy Ybab. "Splendid!" shouted the Fairy Queen.

"Well, said the Fairies. 'We kept singing and were so happy that we seemed to make them without thinking. Even work is pretty nice when people sing, you know.'

"Oh, you're always happy," said Billie Brownie. "And you're always jolly," said the Fairy.

"Best way to be," said Billie. "Quite right," said the Fairy.

"How are we going to arrange about sides?" asked the Fairy Queen. "Well," said Ybab, "instead of having two Forts as we usually do, let's have four Forts. The Brownies will take one, the Elves one, the Gnomes the third, and we'll take the fourth."

"But how can we fight against three enemies at the same time?" asked Billie Brownie. "First," said Ybab, "the Gnomes will fight against the Elves, and the winner

"A fine new scheme," they all shouted. And the battle commenced.

"Of course the Forts had been made while the Snowballs were being made, for they had to be put somewhere, and there is no place better for Snowballs than a Snow Fort.

"And when they had found they were making so many Snowballs they made two extra Forts to hold them all.

"Well, the Gnomes won the first battle, and the Elves sat down in their broken Fort and panted for breath—for they had been fighting very hard even though they had lost. They were rather glad that they had lost, for they wanted to watch some of the battles.

"The Gnomes next fought the Brownies, and they won again. "Dear me," said the Fairy Queen. "It looks as though the Gnomes would be the Great Winners."

"The Gnomes laughed and said they hoped they would be, for it was some time since they had won a Snowball fight. The Brownies said that they hadn't been able to win for they got out of breath almost before the battle commenced and sometimes they had forgotten and turned somersaults over the side of their Fort—and so had lost many Balls that way.

"The Gnomes did win the whole fight, and for a prize the Fairies gave them some new magic sleds."

Your preparation is a very good one and according to the kind words of praise received from those who have used it stands in better favor with the people than any other medicine on the market.

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhea.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

LEAVE IT TO THE POLICE OFFICERS TO FIND OUT ABOUT QUALITY TOBACCO.

YOU notice a fine regard for appearance among the officers from Roundsmen to Captain—that's one reason they are so keen for W-B CUT Chewing. The pass-word among these gentlemanly fellows is "If you won't take a little chew don't take any." IS CRIME A DISEASE?

One can not meet Thomas Mott Osborne or study the work that he has done in the reform of prison conditions at Sing Sing, without feeling that society is making an awful mess of its efforts to solve the problem of the criminal. Osborne has shown that the convicts he has come to know so well are, in many respects, much the same as the general run of people outside of prisons. Others are more like irresponsible children than the vicious individuals we commonly consider criminals to be.

Some time ago, a lawyer who has had a great deal of experience with criminals, expressed the positive belief that crime is largely an expression of ill health. He said in part, that the ability to resist crime is physical and depends largely on health. With ill health or malnutrition in the young, the first thing to give way is the power of self control. Poverty causes ill health; ill health causes crime, accidental mutilation creates an aptitude for crime; neglected youth and education cause crime.

In 1870, a Scotch prison physician said that it is frequently a difficult problem for the expert in mental diseases to determine where badness ends and madness begins. The inmates of asylums and of prisons are so nearly allied that thin partitions do their walls divide. In one Wisconsin prison it has been found that the inmates are uncommonly subject to degenerative diseases which cause a breaking down of mental and moral strength.

It is a well established fact that criminal classes are especially likely to be drug fiends. Whether drug taking is merely a form of their general lawless tendency or is responsible for breaking down the ability to resist evil tendencies is frequently a debatable question in an individual instance. In either case, however, a health problem is presented, the solution of which is sufficiently important to warrant the employment of the most skillful medical brains. And while it is quite possible that mental disease experts may fall down on the job, also the evidence that crime is a manifestation of disease, rather than a condition which stands alone, is sufficient to command the consideration of thinking people.

A box social was held Friday, Jan. 26, at the Waucoosa school. The No. 1 Oseola, which is taught by Clarence Kuehl. A short program was given including a number of dialogues and two part songs. An interesting feature of the entertainment was a monologue which was delivered by a member of the board, Louis Buehler, consisting of short recitations and humorous songs. After the program Herman F. Bartelt took charge of the proceedings and soon disposed of the 45 boxes brought by the ladies of the vicinity after which Henry F. Kuehl, the treasurer reported a considerable sum, which will be used for school fixtures. An interesting time was had by all present, and it is to be hoped that the next social will be as well attended and enjoyed as the one just given.
