Big Store at Campbellsport Makes Change

A deal was consummated recently whereby Mr. Krans, of Hutchinson, Minnesota, traded a large property at the latter place for Mr. Jos. Straub's share in the Knickel-Straub big general store at Campbellsport. The new firm will assume the title of Knickel-Krans company. Mr. Krans, the new member of the firm, has had extensive experience in the mercantile business and has acted in the capacity of traveling salesman for a number of years. We have no doubt that the people of our neighboring village will be satisfactorily served in a very proficient manner, with two such capable managers as Messrs. Knickel and Krans. We were unable to learn the future plans of Mr. Straub, the retiring partner, but hope that he may remain in the vicinity where he has many friends who are loath to see him depart for new fields of labor. The newly re-organized firm have a large announcement on the last page of this issue which will interest all. Do not fail to read same. We desire to extend our well wishes to the new company and hope they may have abundance of success.

ONE BUCK LAW IS REPEALED

Fish and Game Bill Sent to Engrossment Ready for Final Passage.

DEER SEASON NOV. 21 TO 30

Normal School Appropriation Measure, Carrying $93,000 Emergency Fund, Passed Senate, 29 to 1 — Bill to Tax Coal.

Madison.—The law passed at the session of the legislature in 1915 permitting the shooting of one buck deer which has been the subject of much controversy, was practically repealed, when the assembly sent to engrossment the big fish and game bill of the session after three hours of debate. The amended bill provides that one deer may be shot during the deer season, which shall open November 21, and close November 30. The one buck law provided that only a buck deer could be shot during the open season.

Among the important provisions of the bill are:

Deer season opens November 21, and closes November 30. One-buck law repealed.

Trappers must take out a license based upon the number of traps which they set. The fee is graduated.

Open season all year over the state for croppies and silver bass. Musk rat season closes April 10 in southern Wisconsin and April 20 in northern Wisconsin. Season reopens November 1.

Provides for the use of three poles in catching fish, and removes the penalty for not attending to a pole.

The bill was engrossed.

Bank Resources Increase.

The resources of Wisconsin's state banks have increased $53,510,116.84 in the past year, according to the report of the state banking department just made public. Since March 1 the resources of Wisconsin's state banks have increased $2,336,340.14. Commissioner of Banking A. E. Knott considers this a very favorable showing.

One year ago on May 1 the total resources of Wisconsin's state banks was $271,704,252.84. On May 1 this year the total resources were $325,514,369.38. The largest single increase during the past two months has been $2,089,496.75 in time certificates of deposit. Undivided profits have increased $674,128.04 during the same period. The demand certificates of deposit have increased $69,103.73 during the past two months.

The total amount of postal savings in Wisconsin state banks on May 1 was $228,971.

The bill from the senate judiciary committee introduced would apply the Milwaukee child-labor law to cities of the second and third classes—that is, to cities like Superior, Madison, Janesville, Racine, etc.

Normal School Appropriation.

Carrying a $93,000 emergency fund, the normal school appropriation bill of the finance committee, No. 567-S passed the senate, 29 to 1. The bill carries $844,882 the first year and $845,682 the second year for operation, $90,244 first year and $36,150 second year capital.

After incorporating an amendment increasing the amount to be given to the extension work of the University of Wisconsin, the senate passed the appropriation measure for the university. An increase of $51,000 for university extension work was given at the request of the state council of defense.

The university proper for the next biennium will receive $2,753,176 for the fiscal year 1917-18 and $2,762,645 for the fiscal year 1918-19. This is a slight increase over the actual expenditures for the past biennium.

For the coming biennium the university extension is given $301,610 for the year 1917-18 and $304,110 for the fiscal year 1918-19. This sum includes $25,600 annually asked for extension work by the state council of defense and incorporated in the bill by an amendment by Senator Whitman. Together these two university bills carry $3,054,786 for the fiscal year 1917-18 and $3,066,755 for the fiscal year 1918-19. The state council of defense asked for this additional appropriation to university extension for medical work.

Asks Congress to Act.

Joint resolution No. 66-S, memorializing the congress of the United States to enact a law vesting power in an appointive commission to regulate the control and production, distribution, transportation, and price of foodstuffs, grains, fuel, and other basic commodities has been introduced in the upper house, by Senator Wilcox, who obtained unanimous consent for that purpose.

Money for Stout Institution.

The senate passed the appropriation bill for the Stout institute, and the bill appropriating $14,500 to the Plattville mining school. The bill appropriating $7,500 annually to the state board of agriculture was also passed. The Carl Hansen optometry bill was given a third reading and concurred in. The joint resolutions to allow sheriffs to have terms of longer than two years was indefinitely postponed. The senate concurred in the assembly bill, making changes in the voting by mail law so that a person at home ill can register his ballot.

Second Tuberculosis Hospital.

That a second tuberculosis hospital will probably be established in the northern part of Wisconsin now seems probable since the senate has passed the Baxter bill appropriating $75,000 creating such an institution. The bill now goes to the assembly. The first tuberculosis hospital to be established in Wisconsin is at Wales, but upwards of 300 people are on the waiting list, many of whom live in northern Wisconsin. To alleviate this congested condition, the joint finance committee of the legislature by a unanimous vote recommended for passage the Baxter bill giving the state board of control power to select the site for the location of the institution. While $75,000 will only start the work and erect a few of the necessary buildings, the plans will be so drawn that other additional buildings and extensions may be added from time to time when financial conditions of the state make possible additional appropriations for institutional work. The Baxter bill for the establishment of this hospital has the endorsement of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis society and its representatives have appeared before the committee and interviewed members of the legislature in favor of the passage of the bill. In past sessions appropriations for curbing the spread of tuberculosis have readily been made. The unanimous endorsement of the finance committee indicates that this appropriation will be approved. Aside from the Wales institution, the state has a tuberculosis camp at Tomahawk lake, but applications at this institution are far in excess of present facilities. One of the reasons urged for the establishment of a hospital of this character in northern Wisconsin is that it will give people in that section suffering from tuberculosis easier access to an institution.

The joint finance committee has approved of practically no other building appropriation during the coming biennium. Records recently compiled at Wales institution indicate that over 60 per cent of patients entering are benefited or cured.

That Senator George Staudenmayer intends to press a bill to close all saloons in the state on June 30, 1917, if the Elyne referendum measure is not passed is indicated by his activities and his statement. He says he has conferred with a number of the senators and he finds much support for the bill in the senate as well as in the house. He believes that many of the administration men, who voted against the Elyne referendum bill, will vote for his bill, basing his contention on that paragraph of the governor's message which declares: "It seems to me that if there is a time when we need better regulation it is now, and during the period of the war. I will approve any practical measure that you will adopt now that will curtail the use of alcohol."

Senator Staudenmayer says that by closing all of the saloons of the state, thousands of bushels of barley will be turned into food supplies.

Governor Signs Bill.

Governor Philipp has signed the bill permitting circuit court clerks of the state to appoint as deputies men or women. It has been the practice in many sections of the state to appoint a woman as a deputy clerk of the circuit court. Because of the uncertainty in the statute on this subject, the legislature believed it advisable to pass a law making the authorization certain.

The executive approval has also been given to a bill exempting from execution any automobile used or kept for the purpose of the debtor's trade or business, not exceeding $400 in value. To make it impossible for any life insurance company operating in Wisconsin to be exploited as the Pittsburgh Life and Trust was exploited by a New York speculator recently, Insurance Commissioner M. J. Cleary has prepared a bill for submission to the legislature. The measure requires all stock life insurance companies operating in Wisconsin to file with the insurance department a list of stockholders and a list of all transfers of stock. No transfer can be voted by the new owner until notice of transfer is filed and acknowledged by the department of insurance. No director can be elected to fill a vacancy except by a vote of the stockholders upon 20 days' notice to all the stockholders and 15 days' notice to the insurance department. Insurance Commissioner Cleary believes that this bill will curb the activity of any exploiter who may contemplate operating in Wisconsin.

Abandon Suffrage Fight.

A further fight on the subject of women's suffrage by the legislature has been abandoned. Assemblyman J. C. Hanson, who had a duplicate suffrage bill in the assembly, has recalled the measure. By unanimous consent of the assembly, the bill was returned to the author. The suffrage bill over which the record vote was made was introduced in the upper house by Senator Skogmo. It passed that house by a two to one vote but was defeated in the assembly by four votes when the measure came up for final passage.

Speedy Land Drainage.

Even "dead" furrows and "back" furrows are being enlisted in Wisconsin's greater food production campaign. They are being used as emergency surface runs to aid in hurry-up calls for drainage. The men who are doing the work report many remarkable instances of speedy land drainage accomplished in this way. One hundred and thirty rods of successful surface runs were made in about two hours' time in a recent demonstration near Neillsville by O. R. Zeasman of the college of agriculture. Good results are being reported.

Awaiting the Final Roll Call

Every year that day draws nearer,
Every year the truth seems clearer
That the men who saved the nation from the fatal severing sword,
Soon must pass away forever
From the scene of their endeavor,
Soon must answer to the roll call of the angel of the Lord.

FIRST ENGAGEMENT OF CIVIL WAR WAS ON MAY 24, 1861

WAR THAT FIRED AT LAWRENCE, KAN.?

THE war proper may be said to have opened on the twenty-fourth of May, 1861. The engagement was at Bethel Church, where Gen. B. F. Butler was in command, and in western Virginia, Gen. George B. McClellan began to be a conspicuous figure. In the latter part of May General Morris won an engagement at Philippi, and on the eleventh of July General McClellan gained a victory at Rich mountain. On the tenth of August, General Rosecrans drove out a detachment of the enemy at Carnifax Ferry. On the sixteenth of June, Col. Lewis Wallace made a successful onset at Romney. These, and other minor engagements occurred up to the sixteenth of July, when began the first battle of Bull Run. On that day the Federal army moved forward and an important engagement took place between Centerville and Bull Run. They pressed forward on the twenty-first day of July found the enemy strongly posted between Bull Run and Manassas Junction. General McDowell, successful at first, was driven back by the reinforcements.

Missouri now became a battlefield for the contending armies. Captain Nathaniel Lyon acted promptly at Camp Jackson, near St. Louis, and saved the arms and stores. Later, General Lyon gained a decided advantage at Booneville and on the fifth of July the Federal troops under Col. Franz Sigel were again successful at Carthage. On the tenth of August the hardest battle fought thus far in the West occurred at Wilson's creek, where General Lyon was killed. Gen. John C. Fremont followed the enemy as far as Springfield, Ill., and was there superseded by General Hunter. The enemy led a strong detachment into the state of Kentucky and captured the town of Columbus, where they planted batteries so as to command the Mississippi and the Missouri. In order to dislodge them, Col. Ulysses S. Grant was sent with a brigade of three thousand Illinois troops, by way of Cairo into Missouri, where he made a vigorous and successful attack at Belmont. Thus closed military operations in the West for 1861.

General Scott was unable to bear longer the burden resting upon him and Gen. George B. McClellan was brought from West Virginia to take command of the Army of the Potomac. As an organizer and disciplinarian the young commander had no superior. From the first it was seen by the Federal government that the command of the seacoast was an essential of success and a close blockade was placed upon all Southern ports.

At the beginning of 1862 the Federal forces numbered about 450,000 men. General McClellan, commanding 200,000, and General Bull, who commanded another army at Louisville, Ky., began the first of the colossal military movements.

Remember Source of Blessings. Through all our consideration of great national and international questions this Memorial day, we will remember him who in mercy watches over us as a people, realizing that the blessings that are ours as a nation come from him, and from him alone will come the strength to permit us to play our part among the nations of the earth in behalf of the highest interests of humanity. We are the friend of man in proportion as we are the friend of God.

CANADA'S IMMIGRATION

Increased by About Sixty Per Cent in Past Six Months.

That Canada is at war is now more fully appreciated on this side of the boundary line, now that the United States has stepped alongside its northern neighbor and linked hands in the great struggle for a freer democracy throughout the civilized world. As a result of this a greater interest than ever is seen in the mutual effort to develop both the United States and Canada. Recently, just before the time that the United States declared its intention to enter the contest and contribute of its resources to the defeat of the autocracy, whose design was to permeate the world, Western Canada made an appeal for farm labor to till the fields and prepare the soil for the crops of grain that were necessary to feed the fighting forces and keep up the requirements necessary for the Allies. The responses were so great that before half the time limit expired, over six thousand laborers were secured. This was not sufficient, but once the United States was declared to be in a condition of war, and farm labor required here to meet any exigency as to short rations that might arise, the sister to the north, withdrew from attempts, which might mean a restriction of the farm labor supply in the United States. But even with this it is thought Canada will now be fairly well supplied.

Apart, however, from the farm labor proposition, it is gratifying from both a United States and Canadian point of view that the immigration of farmers to take up homestead lands and to purchase improved and unimproved land in Canada, has shown such a wonderful increase in the past three months. The great struggle for increasing the food supply has a broader and greater significance than ever. The food must come into existence, whether the rich soils of the United States or those of Canada be the factor.

It is altogether probable that the action of the Canadian Government in taking the duty off wheat going into Canada, thus automatically lifting the duty off that coming into the United States, may not be responsible for an increased immigration to Canada. Canada's reputation for growing larger average yields and a better quality of grain, and on lands, many of which are free, as well as those that range from $15 to $35 an acre, is an appeal that is being responded to by farmers who are now renting high-priced lands, is another reason for expecting an increasing number of farmers from the United States.

Mr. W. D. Scott, Superintendent of Immigration at Ottawa, Canada, recently gave out figures concerning immigration from the United States, which shows that the increase in the past three or four months was 60 per cent over the same period last year, and Mr. Scott forecasts that during the calendar year of 1917 there will be over one hundred per cent increase and be much heavier than for many years past. Mr. Scott declares that already this spring more settlers' effects have entered Canada than crossed during the whole of last year, and the movement has just merely started.

The new settlers are coming from numerous states through the ports of Emerson, North Portal and Couets, as well as from Oregon and Washington, through Kingsgate and Vancouver.

There arrived in Saskatchewan during the year ending December 31, 1916, a total of 8,136 persons as compared with 5,812 during the twelve months previous. At the same time nearly twice as many immigrants passed through the immigration department at Edmonton, Alberta, in the last twelve months as for the same period of the year before.

The number of settlers from Eastern Canada migrating to the west also increased. From January 1 to March 31, 1917, the number of cars of stock that passed through the Winnipeg yards was 750, as compared with 361 last year. A fair estimate of the value of each car would be about $2,000, which means that the west has secured additional live stock to the value of $150,000 or more, during the first three months of 1917, not taking into account that brought in by immigrants from the United States.—Advertisement.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE HOME TABLE.

Where there are proper facilities for keeping foods from one day to another, much time and labor may be saved by making a little more than is necessary for which it is intended. Rice may be served in several ways so that a larger quantity may be cooked at one time.

Stuffed Egg Salad.—Cook four eggs until hard and after shelling cut lengthwise into halves; remove the yolks and beat to a paste; add a tablespoonful of chili sauce, two tablespoonfuls of minced chicken and a teaspoonful of melted butter. When blended fill into the egg whites and arrange on a bed of crisp heart leaves of lettuce, pouring over a thick boiled dressing; garnish with capers and slices of pickled beets.

Palatable Steak Ends.—Cup the tough end of a porterhouse steak rather coarsely; cook it in a little butter with a sprinkling of pepper and salt; add two tablespoonfuls of milk, dredge with browned flour, toss it in a fourth of a cupful of cream and serve with baked potatoes.

Peanut Butter.—Shell and blow off the brown skins from the nuts; rubbing them between two coarse towels will help the process. Dump them with salt and grind at once; pack into glass jars or tumbblers, cover and keep in a cool place. Four tablespoonfuls of butter is added to each pound of nuts by some, who consider it an improvement.

Rice Spoon Bread.—Take a cupful of corn, two tablespoonfuls of butter, a cupful of boiled rice and two-thirds of a cupful of boiled water, a cupful of milk, two beaten eggs, one and a fourth teaspoonfuls of salt, and a teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat well and bake in hot custard cups well greased.

Hermits.—Soak a cupful of seedless raisins overnight, then drain. Beat half a cupful of butter to a cream and add gradually one cupful of brown sugar, one teaspoonful of milk, one tablespoonful of molasses, two eggs beaten light, the raisins and two cupfuls of flour, a teaspoonful of cinnamon, half a teaspoonful of mace, two and a half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, all well sifted. Drop from a spoon and bake in a moderate oven. More flour should be added if the cakes spread in baking.

The man who drops into a ruck And makes a sorry mess of life, If he's unmarried blames his luck, And if he's married blames his wife.

SUGGESTIONS FOR HOUSEWIFE.

Every spot of ground available should be put into things for the table this year, as we are constantly told to conserve every resource in these times of stress and high prices. The weekly news letter published by the United States department of agriculture has an article by D. F. Houston, the secretary of agriculture, in which he says: "Both for economic and patriotic reasons the American farmer should strive this year for the highest standard of efficiency in the production and conservation of food. But production accomplished by wasteful methods does not make for efficiency, and careful thought therefore should be given to the steps that need to be taken.

Every vegetable not used for the table should be canned for winter use, so that nothing be wasted. Even on city lots a small hotbed may raise a large quantity of table vegetables, and a bed four feet square will raise herbs enough to supply the market with sage, mint, and various savory herbs, for some time. Vacant lots all over our cities are lying unused which should be put to work raising food for future needs. Different soils grow different crops successfully. The soy bean is a crop which is easily grown on poor soil and the bean is a most nutritious one, which at much less cost takes the place of the navy bean. It seems to need a little longer soaking and parboiling to soften the coat, but otherwise it is cooked and served as the navy bean. Our food experts tell us that the nourishment is equally as good as that of the navy bean.

Skim milk has lost very little of its protein and may be used in the place of whole milk in numberless dishes at a great saving in cost. For the use in bread biscuits, milk toast, cream soups, vegetable chowders and various other dishes which will occur to the thinking housewife, skim milk may take the place of whole milk.

When one is making a fruit or spice cake stewed prune juice may be used for the wetting and some of the fruit with a few nuts, making a most daintily flavored cake.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

DOCTOR BIRDS.

"A little boy named Peter," said Daddy, "had been very ill. His mother and daddy had been so worried about him that they had decided he needed a change of air. So his mother had taken him down South, far, far from his home.

"All Peter could do was to lie in the warm sunshine and think. Sometimes he would doze off but his dreams would be troubled and not so very pleasant because he was ill and he wasn't resting a good healthy rest.

"Poor Peter! How long the days did seem sometimes. Often he would ask his mother the time, and he would be so surprised to hear that the morning had not half gone. And often how he would long for school—in fact every day he longed for it, and Saturday he wished for his playmates and the games they would have after the errands had been done.

"School would have been the most glorious thing in the world compared to being ill, he had thought so often. In fact he thought so most of the time. He did not think he would ever again mind doing his lessons, because there was so much else that was wonderful about school. There were all his friends, all his playmates. What good times they all had had.

"Peter would think of the games they would be playing at just such a time—and oh how much longer the afternoons seemed than the mornings. "And when he would raise his legs and try to imagine he was back with the boys, ready for races, sports and pranks. But his legs felt so weak! His head got so tired. How wretched it was to be ill.

"The doctor had told his mother that half the reason he took so long to get well was because he was so unhappy. "If he could only get interested in something," said the doctor. "He would then get well twice as quickly. Doesn't he like to read?"

"Yes," said his mother, "but he is lonely for his friends." "But one day on the ledge, of the little sleeping porch Peter had, came a small bird. Peter spent his days in bed on the sleeping porch too, for the doctor said the air would make him well and strong so much more quickly. "Twit-twit," chirped the little bird. "Hello," said Peter.

The Next Day Seven Birds Came.

"Hello," said Peter. "The little bird cocked his head on one side as if to say he wasn't at all sure what 'Hello' meant, but he thought it sounded rather nice. So he burst into a song. Such a glorious song! How Peter loved it. He smiled and he even laughed at the little bird who seemed to sing as if he would burst his tiny throat. "What a beautiful voice," said Peter. "Twit, twit," answered the little bird. "Chirp, chirp, tweet," which was his way of saying he was so glad Peter liked it.

"Then the little bird looked about him for crumbs or something to eat. He moved his beak and tried to pick up things he thought he saw. They did not turn out to be good at all. "Mother," called Peter, "may I have some crumbs for this little bird? He has sung for me and has been here to call on me."

"Peter's mother came rushing out with a bowl of bread crumbs and then she brought out some clear, cool water. The little bird looked so grateful and pleased, and he went off singing gaily. That morning seemed very short to Peter, and that afternoon the doctor said that Peter seemed very much better. The next day seven birds came and sang and had a delicious repast. And the following day a flock of birds came—all of many colors and they all had lovely voices. Peter grew steadily better.

"Spring was just about to arrive when Peter suddenly thought that the birds would leave him. Sure enough they began to grow fewer and fewer, but his first little friend was the last to leave.

"Oh," said Peter, "you've made me well. How I hate to see you go." Peter was walking around now, but he always spent his mornings in the sleeping porch where the birds came. And Peter waved a beautiful blue silk handkerchief he had. "Good-by little bird friend," he called.

"But that afternoon when the doctor came he told Peter's mother that Peter was well enough to go back home, so Peter went back with his friends, 'The Doctor Birds,' as he called them."

Put Off Until Tomorrow. It is folly not to put off until tomorrow the things that can be done better tomorrow than today.

KNOW WHERE TO FIND CROWD

Press Agent Had Only to Find Out Where a Horse Had Fallen Upon the Pavement.

It was a dull day in the bureau of city disturbances. Chief Wazzie yawned twice and scratched his chin. Then he scratched his chin twice and yawned. Then he yawned once and a half and scratched his chin once and a half, and at that moment the telephone bell rang.

"Ah," said the chief, relievedly. "Maybe it's a riot or somep." "Chief of the bureau of disturbances?" asked a brisk voice at the other end of the wire.

"Him," replied Chief Wazzie. "Well, can you tell me whether a horse has happened to fall on any of the city streets during the past few minutes, and if so, where?"

"Corner Zed and Bug streets, twelve minutes ago," said the chief, after consulting a ledger marked "Horse down." Five minutes later a young man jumped from a taxi at the corner of Zed and Bug streets. Hah! The horse was still down, and, naturally, a great crowd surrounded the prostrate quadruped. Nullen Void, the world's liveliest press agent—for it was he—dived into the middle of the throng (first crowd he had caught that day), and distributed notices of the coming debut of Mlle. Tattle, the fish-faced woman, to Wickentrow's dime museum.—Detroit Free Press.

YES! LIFT A CORN OFF WITHOUT PAIN!
Cincinnati man tells how to dry up a corn or callus so it lifts off with fingers.

You corn-pestered men and women need suffer no longer. Wear the shoes that nearly killed you before, says this Cincinnati authority, because a few drops of freezeone applied directly on a tender, aching corn or callus, stops soreness at once and soon the corn or hardened callus loosens so it can be lifted off, root and all, without pain. A small bottle of freezeone costs very little at any drug store, but will positively take off every hard or soft corn or callus. This should be tried, as it is inexpensive and is said not to irritate the surrounding skin.

If your druggist hasn't any freezeone for you get a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house.—adv.

Raise High Priced Wheat on Fertile Canadian Soil

Canada extends to you a hearty invitation to settle on her FREE Homestead lands of 160 acres each or secure some of the low priced lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. This year wheat is higher but Canadian land just as cheap, so the opportunity is more attractive than ever. Canada wants you to help feed the world by tilling some of her fertile soil—land similar to that which during many years has averaged 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre. Think of the money you can make with wheat around $2 a bushel and land so easy to get. Wonderful yields also of Oats, Barley and Flax. Mixed farming in Western Canada is as profitable an industry as grain growing.

The Government this year is asking farmers to put increased acreage into grain. There is a great demand for farm labor to replace the many young men who have volunteered for service. The climate is healthful and agreeable, railway facilities excellent, good schools and churches convenient. PHILIPP VETOES EVJUE "DRY" BILL

MESSAGE IS RECEIVED FIVE MINUTES BEFORE THE TIME LIMIT WOULD EXPIRE.

ASSEMBLY VOTES TO RECALL

Final Passage of Buckley Resolution Marked by Remarkable Scene. Evjue Makes Hard Fight to Save His Liquor Bill.

Madison, Wis., May 22.—Gov. Philipp has vetoed the Evjue referendum bill. His message was received in the house today, at 10:55 a. m., five minutes before the bill would have become a law without his approval.

Judging from the special message which Gov. Philipp sent to the legislature on this subject last Thursday, the veto is based on the grounds that the bill was too sweeping in that it did not permit saloons to operate for the sale outside of the state should the state vote dry, and for the further reason that the bill would not permit farmers to manufacture wines and ciders for their own table uses.

Recall Vote Precedes Veto.

For twelve hours both houses of the legislature were tied up under a call. Members were summoned from all parts of the state and ten minutes before the veto was filed the assembly had gone on record by a vote of 56 to 30 in favor of recalling the bill.

The Evjue bill has been in the house for five months. That this question may become a political one in the next campaign is indicated by the record vote demanded by Evjue and his supporters, and by the further fact that a conference of all people interested in this cause has been called at Madison Thursday to discuss ways and means of carrying the fight into legislative districts with the hope that the bill may pass at the next session.

Resolution Up to Senate.

The senate, which was under a call of the house awaiting its position on the recall resolution, went into session at 10:55 to receive the assembly message. When the message was handed to Chief Clerk Munson, Senator Frank Hanson moved that it be taken up at once. Lieut.-Gov. Dithmar held that it was out of the regular order of business and required a suspension of the rules. Before the senate could get into the merits of the case, members learned that the governor had filed his veto.

Vote on Reconsideration.

The vote on the reconsideration of the veto by which the Buckley resolution was killed on last Friday, carried 44 to 35. The roll call follows: To Reconsider and Recall the Evjue Bill—Assembly: Armstrong, Arne- mann, Aulenbacher, Bernady, Buckley, Burnett, Campbell, Chapple, Chino- cke, Clark, Dixon, Engel, Feldhausen, Gamp- per, Gettelman, Grass, Hansen, Carl; Hedrick, Janssen, Jordan, Kent, Klein- schmidt, Koepsell, Kubatzki, Kurten- acker, Labuw, Macalfe, Del Miller, Ohl, Otto, Peterson, Poole, Poor, Rap- pel, Ruka, Schroeder, H.; W. A. Schroeder, W. L. Smith, Clark county, Turner, Webster, Whittingham, Wood- ward, Young Whitte.

Against Reconsideration and Recall: Anderson, Beggs, Carter, Casperson, Chipman, Conner, Duffy, Edwards, Eng- gebretsen, Everson, Evjue, Frohman, Galbraith, J. C. Hanson, C. E. Hansen, Hemmy, Jensen, Johnson, Kandutsch, Luehrs, Melvin, V. V. Miller, Pieper, Rosa, Saugen, Schaettle, Schiewitz, Spoor, Stone, Vag, Doren, Vaughan, Webster B.; Whiteside, Wiewert, Wil- liams.

Paired—For Reconsideration, Mahon; against, Nordman.

This vote showed that nineteen members were absent, but that the veto had a majority of those present. In the uniform of a recruit of the naval reserve, Assemblyman W. A. Campbell of Milwaukee had returned to vote.

At 10:50 a. m. the Buckley resolution to recall the Evjue bill, passed the assembly 57 to 30. Sufficient members had returned by 10:15 so that the veto was able to raise the call of the house by a vote of 51 to 36.

The final passage of the resolution was marked by a remarkable scene. Evjue attempted to claim the floor to speak on the resolution but Speaker Whitte recognized Burkley and later recognized Grass of Door county who moved the previous question, shutting off debate.

For nearly three quarters of an hour, Evjue had held up the house by motions and points of order and it was 10:50 when the measure was released and sent to the senate.

While Speaker Whitte was announcing the vote on adjournment, he received a sealed package from the governor's office containing the veto message.

100 BLOCKS BURNED

FLAMES CAUSE MILLIONS OF DOLLARS DAMAGE AT ATLANTA, GA.

THOUSANDS MADE HOMELESS

Men From Reserve Officers' Training Camp Aid Firemen in Fight Against Blaze — Dynamite Used to Check Fire.

Atlanta, Ga., May 23.—Fire starting in a negro and warehouse district here on Monday destroyed all structures on more than 100 blocks. The fashionable residence district about Ponce de Leon avenue has been destroyed and the total property loss has already reached many millions of dollars.

A high wind whipped the flames until they were beyond control because a part of the fire department was at another fire which destroyed many fine residences in the West end. Several miles away, while yet another detachment of firemen was busy at a third conflagration which burned 15 small negro houses in the Woodward avenue district.

Aid was summoned from Macon, Augusta, Chattanooga, Newman and Griffin and 1,000 men were rushed here from the United States army officers' training camp at Fort McPherson.

The dramatic struggle with the flames reached a climax at midnight when the fire fighters made a stand at Boulevard place and began dynamiting a wide area to protect the Ponce de Leon section.

The thousands of homeless were cared for at night by a citizens' committee and by the Atlanta Red Cross chapter. Most of them were quartered in public buildings. Many minor injuries were reported, but officials said there had been few persons badly hurt.

FRENCH TAKE 800 GERMANS

Foe's Trenches Were Piled With Dead — British Capture Part of Hindenburg Line.

Paris, May 23.—While the Germans were throwing masses of men against the French positions along the Chemin-des-Dames, only to suffer defeat with terrific losses, the French effected an attack in the Moronvillers section and drove the Germans from some of their strongest positions.

They left more than 800 prisoners in the hands of the French, while hundreds of bodies of Germans strewed the ground and lie in the cavernous shelters.

London, May 23.—So completely did the British artillery do its work before the attack between Croisilles and Bullecourt that 3,000 yards of the Hindenburg line are totally missing. This segment of the German defenses was completely wiped out.

Berlin, May 23.—The Germans on the Arras front maintained their positions except in one demoralized trench, which was evacuated according to plan during the British attack on an 8 1/2-mile front, says the official statement issued by the German army headquarters staff.

The announcement says the French obtained a foothold on Mount Carnillet and Mount Kell.

AMPLE GRAIN SUPPLY IN U. S.

Members of Exchanges Declare Abnormal Conditions of Today Call for Food Control Body.

Washington, May 21.—After a conference on Friday between Herbert C. Hoover and a special committee of the council of grain exchanges and a committee from the western grain exchange the following statement was issued on behalf of the committee:

"The conclusions was reached by the representatives of the grain trade that the abnormal conditions existing today as regards the necessity for conservation of the food supply of this country called for the creation of a food administration clothed with the necessary powers to work out the unusual problem resulting from the world war and that the existence of such food administration should be limited to the duration of the war.

"The representatives of the grain trade are convinced that with elimination of waste and proper conservation in this country an ample supply of grain will be available for domestic consumption as well as to provide for the requirements of our allies, and that the problem therefore is one of administration."

The British admiralty announced on Friday that 14 mine-sweeping steam vessels, known as drifters, had been sunk in a raid by Austrian light cruisers in the Adriatic sea and that the British light cruiser Dartmouth was torpedoed in a subsequent engagement with the Austrian warships, but reached port safely.

Vienna, May 21.—A British cruiser was sunk during an engagement with English, French and Italian vessels after an Austrian naval detachment had made a successful raid in the Strait of Otrant, on the southern coast of Italy, according to an official announcement made by the admiralty.

KAISER BLOCKS PEACE TERMS

On Hindenburg's Advice Ruler Turns Down Chancellor's Proposal.

The Hague, May 19.—The Kaiser and Field Marshal von Hindenburg were responsible for the refusal of the German chancellor to announce peace terms in the reichstag this week, according to advices received here from Berlin.

It was reported in these dispatches that the chancellor, Doctor von Bethmann-Hollweg, had gone so far as to draw up a peace offer, suitable to both Germany and Austria-Hungary, but when he took it to German Great Headquarters for the affirmation of the Kaiser, it was rejected at a military council.

There is a growing belief in some circles in Germany that the conferences going on between the German chancellor and Count Czernin, the foreign minister of Austria, may lead to a peace proposition in the reichstag when it reconvenes in July.

WILL CONTROL FOOD

PRESIDENT WILSON NAMES HOOVER TO HEAD BODY— GIVEN WIDE POWERS.

WILL SERVE WITHOUT PAY

New Official Will Have Authority Dis- tinct From That of Department of Agriculture—Business Men on Board.

Washington, May 22.—President Wilson has asked Herbert C. Hoover, the American director of Belgian relief, to undertake the emergency food administration of the country during the war. Mr. Hoover has accepted on condition that he may serve the nation without compensation.

The president's statement in part is as follows:

"It is very desirable in order to prevent misunderstandings or alarms and to assure co-operation in a vital matter that the country should understand exactly the scope and purpose of the very great powers which I have thought it necessary in the circumstances to ask the congress to put in my hands with regard to our food supplies.

"These powers are very great indeed. They are intended to benefit and assist the farmer and all those who play a legitimate part in the preparation, distribution and marketing of foodstuffs.

"All measures intended directly to extend the normal activities of the department of agriculture, in reference to the production, conservation and the marketing of farm crops, will be administered, as in normal times, through that department, and the powers asked for over distribution and consumption, over exports, imports, prices, purchase and requisition of commodities, storing and the like which may require regulation during the war will be placed in the hands of a commissioner of food administration appointed by the president and directly responsible to him.

"The objects sought to be served by the legislation asked for are: Full inquiry into the existing available stocks of foodstuffs and into the costs and practices of the various food-producing and distributing trades; the prevention of an unwarranted hoarding of every kind and of the control of the foodstuffs by persons who are not in any legitimate sense producers, dealers or traders; the requisitioning when necessary for the public use of food supplies and of the equipment necessary for handling them properly; the licensing of wholesome and legitimate mixtures and milling percentages, and the prohibition of the unnecessary or wasteful use of foods.

"Authority is also asked to establish prices—but not in order to limit the profits of the farmers, but only to guarantee to them when necessary a minimum price which will insure them a profit where they are asked to attend new crops, and to secure the consumer against extortion by breaking up corners and attempts at speculation when they occur by fixing temporarily a reasonable price at which all elements must sell.

"I have asked Mr. Hoover to undertake this all-important task of food administration. He has expressed his willingness to do so on condition that he is to receive no payment for his services.

"Although it is absolutely necessary that unquestionable powers shall be placed in my hands in order to insure the success of this administration of the food supplies of the country, I am confident that the exercise of those powers will be necessary only in the few cases where some small and selfish minority proves unwilling to put the nation's interests above personal advantage.

"The proposed food administration is intended, of course, only to meet a manifest emergency and to continue only while the war lasts. Since it will be composed for the most part of volunteers there need be no fear of the possibility of a permanent bureaucracy arising out of it."

Egg Men Face Indictment.

Chicago, May 23.—Just before the May Federal Grand Jury resumed its investigation of alleged combinations to manipulate the food supply and prices of foodstuffs, Oliver E. Pagan, assistant attorney general, admitted that at least a score of indictments are likely to be returned. Members of the Chicago butter and egg board probably will be hit most extensively, according to the federal official.

"Dream-man!" she murmured.

As consciousness returns after a swoon, so did realization return to Alaire Austin. Faintly, uncertainly at first, then with a swift, strong effort, she pushed herself out of Dave's reluctant arms. They stood apart, frightened. Dave's gaze was questioning. Alaire began to tremble and to struggle with her breath.

"Are we—mad?" she gasped. "What have we done?"

"There's no use fighting. It was here—it was bound to come out. Oh, Alaire—!"

"Don't!" She shook her head, and avoiding his outstretched hands, went to the edge of the veranda and leaned weakly against a pillar, with her head in the crook of her arm. Dave followed her, but the words he spoke were scarcely intelligible.

Finally she raised her face to his: "No! It is useless to deny it—now that we know. But I didn't know, until a moment ago."

"I've known all the time—ever since the first moment I saw you," he told her, hoarsely. "To me you're all there is; nothing else matters. And you love me! I wonder if I'm awake."

"Dream-man," she repeated, more slowly. "Oh, why did you come so late?"

"So late?"

"Yes. We must think it out, the best way we can. I—wonder what you think of me?"

"You must know. There's no need for excuses; there's nothing to explain, except the miracle that such great happiness could come to a fellow like me."

"Happiness? It means anything but that. I was miserable enough before, what shall I do now?"

"Why, readjust your life," he cried, roughly. "Surely you won't hesitate after this?"

But Alaire did not seem to hear him. She was staring out into the night again. "What a failure I must be!" she murmured, finally. "I suppose I should have seen this coming, but—I didn't. And in his house, too! This dress is his, and these jewels—everything!" She held up her hands and stared curiously at the few rings she wore, as if seeing them for the first time. "How does that make you feel?"

"Dave stirred; there was resentment in his voice when he answered: "Your husband has sacrificed his claim to you, as everybody knows. To my mind he has lost his rights. You're mine, mine!" He waved a vigorous gesture of defiance. "I'll take you away from him at any cost. I'll see that he gives you up, somehow. You're all I have."

"Of course the law provides a way, but you wouldn't, couldn't, understand how I feel about divorce." The mere mention of the word was difficult, and caused Alaire to clench her hands.

"We're both too shaken to talk sanely now, so let's wait—"

"There's something you must understand before we go any further," Dave insisted. "I'm poor; I haven't a thing I can call my own, so I'm not sure I have any right to take you away from all this." He turned a hostile eye upon their surroundings.

"Money means so little, and it's so easy to be happy without it," Alaire told him. "But I'm not altogether poor. Of course everything here is Ed's, but I have enough. All my life I've had everything except the very thing you offer—and how I've longed for that! How I've envied other people! Do you think I'll be allowed, somehow, to have it?"

"Yes! I've something to say about that. You gave me the right when you gave that kiss."

Alaire shook her head. "I'm not so sure. It seems easy now, while you are here, but how will it seem later? I'm in no condition at this minute to reason. Perhaps, as you say, it is all a dream; perhaps this feeling I have is just a passing frenzy."

Dave laughed softly, confidently. "It's too new yet for you to understand—but wait. It is frenzy, witchery—yes, and more. Tomorrow, and every day after, it will grow and grow! Trust me, I've watched it in myself."

"So you cared for me from the very first?" Alaire questioned. It was the woman's curiosity, the woman's hunger to hear over and over again that truth which never fails to thrill and yet never fully satisfies.

"Oh, even before that. I think! When you came to my fire that evening in the chapparal, I knew every line of your face, every movement of your body, every tone of your voice, as a man knows and recognizes his ideal. But it took time for me to realize all that you meant to me."

Alaire nodded. "Yes, and it must have been the same with me." She met his eyes frankly, but when he reached toward her she held him away.

"No, dear. Not yet, not again, not until we have the light. It would be better for us both if you went away now."

"No, no! Oh, I have so much to say! I've been dumb all my life, and you've just opened my lips."

"Please! After I've decided what to do—once I feel that I can control myself, better—I'll send for you. But you must promise not to come until then, for you would only make it harder."

At last he took her hand and kissed her wrist, just over her pulse, as if to speed a message to her heart, then into her rosy palm he whispered a tender something that thrilled her.

She stood white, motionless, against the dim illumination of the porch until he had gone, and not until the last sound of his motor had died away did she stir. Then she pressed her own lips to the palm he had caressed and walked slowly to her room.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Crash.

The several days following Dave's unexpected call at Las Palmas Alaire spent in a delightful reverie. She had so often wrestled with the question of divorce that she had begun to weary of it. She gave up trying, at length, and for the time being rested content in the knowledge that she loved and was loved. A week passed while she hugged her thoughts to her breast, and then one evening she rode home to learn that Ed had returned from San Antonio.

But Ed was ill, and he did not appear at dinner. It had been years since either had dared invade the other's privacy, and now, inasmuch as her husband did not send for her, Alaire did not presume to offer her services as nurse. As a matter of fact, she considered this quite unnecessary, for she felt sure that he was either suffering the customary after-effects of a visit to the city or else that he lacked the moral courage to undertake an explanation of his hurried flight from the ranch. In either event she was glad he kept to his room.

When Austin made his appearance, on the day following his return, his bleared eyes, his puffy, pasty cheeks, his shattered nerves, showed plainly impulse, and just as Alaire bade him good night, clumsily sought to force an explanation.

"See here!" he shot at her. "What's the matter with you lately?" He saw that he had startled her, and that she made an effort to collect her wandering thoughts. "You're about as warm and wifely as a stone idol."

"Am I any different to what I have always been?"

"Bump! You haven't been exactly sympathetic of late. Here I come home sick, and you treat me like one of the help. Don't you think I have feelings? Jove! I'm lonesome."

Alaire regarded him speculatively, then shook her head as if in answer to some thought.

In an obvious and somewhat too mellowness of mood to be friendly, Ed continued: "Don't let's go on like this, Alaire. You blame me for going away so much, but when I'm home I feel like an interloper. You treat me like a cow-thief."

"I'm sorry. I've tried to be everything I should. I'm the interloper."

"Nonsense! If we only got along together as well as we seem to from the outside, it wouldn't be bad at all. But you're too severe. You seem to think a man should be perfect. Well, none of us are, and I'm no worse than the majority. Why, I know lots of fellows who forget themselves and do things they shouldn't, but they don't mean anything by it. They have wives and homes to go to when it's all over. But have I? You're so glad to see me as if I had smallpox. Maybe we've made a mess of things, but married life isn't what young girls think it is. A wife must learn to give and take."

"I've given. What have I taken?" she asked him in a voice that quivered.

Ed made an impatient gesture. "Oh, don't be so literal! I mean that, since we're man and wife, it's up to you to be a little more—broad-gauge in your views."

"In other words, you want me to ignore your conduct. Is that it? I'm afraid we can't argue that, Ed."

"All right; don't let's try to argue it," he laughed, with what he considered an admirable show of magnanimity. "I hate arguments, anyhow; I'd much rather have a good-night kiss."

But when he stooped over her Alaire held him off and turned her head. "No!" she said.

"You haven't kissed me for—"

"I don't wish to kiss you."

"Don't be silly," he insisted. "Come, now, I want a kiss."

Alaire thrust him back strongly, and he saw that her face had whitened. Oddly enough, her stubbornness angered him out of all reason, and he began a harsh remonstrance. But he halted when she cried:

"Wait! I must tell you something, Ed. It's all over, and has been for a long time. We're going to end it."

"End it?"

"We can't go on living together. Why should we?"

"So? Divorce? Is that it?" Alaire nodded.

"Well, I'll be d—d!" Ed was dumfounded. "Isn't this rather sudden?" he managed to inquire.

"Oh, no. You've suggested it more than once."

"I thought you didn't believe in divorces—couldn't stomach 'em? What's happened?"

"I have changed my mind."

"Humph! People don't change their minds in a minute," he cried angrily. "Is there some other man?"

Now Ed Austin had no faintest idea that his wife would answer in the affirmative, for he had long ago learned to put implicit confidence in her, and her life had been so open that he could not imagine that it held a double interest. Therefore her reply struck him speechless.

"Yes, Ed," she said quietly. "There is another man."

It was like her not to evade. She had never lied to him.

Ed's mouth opened; his reddened eyes protruded. "Well—" he stammered. "Well! Then after a moment: "Who is it, the greaser or the cowboy?" He laughed loudly, disagreeably. "It must be one or the other, for you haven't seen any men except them. Another man? Well, you're cool about it."

"I am glad you know the truth."

Muttering to himself, Ed made a short excursion around the room, then passed before his wife with a sneer on his lips. "Did it ever occur to you that I might object?" he demanded.

Alaire eyed him scornfully. "What right have you to object?"

Ed could not restrain a malevolent gleam of curiosity. "Say, who is it? Ain't I entitled to know that much?" As Alaire remained silent, he let his eyes rove over her with a kind of angry appreciation. "You're pretty enough to stampede any man," he admitted. "Yes, and you're got money, too. I'll bet it's the Ranger, Hub! We're tarr'd with the same stick."

"You don't really believe that," she told him, sharply.

"Why not? You've had enough opportunity. I don't see anything of you, Well, I was a fool to trust you."

Alaire's eyes were very dark and very bright as she said: "I wonder how I have managed to live with you as long as I have. I knew you were weak, nasty—so I was prepared for something like this. But I never thought you were a downright criminal until—"

"Criminal? Rot!"

"How about that Guzman affair? You can't go much lower, Ed, and you can't keep me here with you."

"I can't keep you, eh?" he growled. "Well, perhaps not. I suppose you've got enough on me to secure a divorce, but I can air some of your dirty linen. Oh, don't look like that! I mean it! Didn't you spend a night with David Law?" He leered at her unpleasantly, then followed a step as she drew back.

"Don't you touch me!" she cried.

A flush was deepening Ed's purple cheeks; his voice was peculiarly brutal and throaty as he said: "The degree isn't entered yet, and so long as you are Mrs. Austin I have rights. Yes, and I intend to exercise them. You've made me jealous, and—"

He made to encircle her with his arms, and was half successful, but when Alaire felt the heat of his breath in her face, a sick loathing sprang up within her, and setting her back against the wall, she sent him reeling. Whether she struck him or merely pushed him away, she never knew, for during the instant of their struggle she was blind with indignation and fury. Profiting by her advantage, she dodged past him, fled to her room, and locked herself in.

She heard him muttering profanely; heard him approach her chamber more than once, then retire uncertainly, but she knew him too well to be afraid.

Later that night she wrote two letters—one to Judge Ellsworth, the other to Dave Law.

Jose Sanchez rode to the Morales house feeling some concern over the summons that took him thither. He wondered what could have induced General Longorio to forsake his many important duties in order to make the long trip from Nuevo Pueblo; surely it could be due to no lack of zeal on his (Jose's) part. No! The horsebreaker flattered himself that he had made a very good spy indeed; that he had been Longorio's eyes and ears so far as circumstances permitted. Nor did he feel that he had been lax in making his reports, for through Rosa he had written the general several lengthy letters, and just for good measure these two had conjured up sundry imaginary happenings to prove beyond doubt that Senora Austin was miserably unhappy with her husband, and ready to welcome such a dashing lover as Longorio. Therefore Jose could not for the life of him imagine wherein he had been remiss. Nevertheless, he had been misled. He hoped that nothing had occurred to anger his general.

But Longorio, when he arrived at the meeting-place, was not in a bad humor. Having sent Rosa away on some errand, he turned to Jose with a flashing smile, and said:

"Well, my good friend, the time has come."

Now Jose had no faintest idea what the general was talking about, but to be called the good friend of so illustrious a person was flattering. He nodded deviously.

"Yes, beyond doubt," he agreed.

The general laid an affectionate hand upon Jose's shoulder. "The first time I saw you I said: 'There's a boy after my own heart. I shall learn to love that Jose, and I shall put him in the way of his fortune.' Well, I have not changed my mind, and the time is come. You are going to help me and I am going to help you."

Jose Sanchez thrilled with elation from head to foot. This promised to be the greatest day of his life, and he felt that he must be dreaming.

"You haven't tired of Rosa, eh? You still wish to marry her?" Longorio was inquiring.

"Yes. But of course I am a poor man."

"Just so. I shall attend to that. Now we come to the object of my visit. Jose, I proposed to make you rich enough in one day so that you can marry."

"Dream Man!" She Murmured.

though how he had spent his time. Although he was jumpy and irritable, he seemed determined by an assumption of high spirits and exaggerated friendliness to avert criticism. Since Alaire spared him all reproaches, his efforts seemed to meet with admirable success. Now Ed's opinion of women was not high, for those with whom he habitually associated were of small intelligence; and, seeing that his wife continued to manifest a complete indifference to his past actions, he decided that his apprehensions had been groundless. If Alaire remembered the Guzman affair at all, or if she had suspected him of complicity in it, time had evidently dulled her suspicions, and he was a little sorry he had taken pains to stay away so long.

Before many days, however, he discovered that this indifference of hers was not assumed, and that in some way or other she had changed. Ed was accustomed, when he returned exhausted from a debauch, to seeing in his wife's eyes a strained misery; he had learned to expect in her bearing a sort of plying, hopeless resignation. But this time she was not in the least depressed. On the contrary, she appeared happier, fresher, and—youthful than he had seen her for a long time. It was mystifying. When, one morning, he overheard her singing in her room, he was shocked. Over this phenomenon he meditated with growing amazement and a faint stir of resentment in his breast, for he lived a self-centered life, considering himself the pivot upon which revolved all the affairs of his little world. To feel that he had lost even the power to make his wife unhappy argued that he had overestimated his importance.

At length, having sufficiently recovered his health to begin drinking again, he yielded one evening to an alcoholic impulse, and just as Alaire bade him good night, clumsily sought to force an explanation.

"See here!" he shot at her. "What's the matter with you lately?" He saw that he had startled her, and that she made an effort to collect her wandering thoughts. "You're about as warm and wifely as a stone idol."

PRESIDENT SIGNS DRAFT MEASURE; TROOPS TO FRONT

Division Under Command of Major General Pershing.

REGULARS FIRST TO FRANCE

Executive Sets June 5 as the Date of Registration for All Men Between the Ages of 21 and 31—Rejects Roosevelt Volunteer Army—Declares It Would Interfere With Present Plans.

Washington, May 21.—Flatly rejecting that section of the measure which would permit Colonel Roosevelt to organize volunteer divisions, President Wilson signed the conscription bill just after dinner at 8 p. m. on Friday, without formality, and set June 5 as the date of registration for all men between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-one for military service.

President Wilson's proclamation, putting into effect the selective draft provision of the war army bill, signed last night, follows in part:

"A proclamation by the president of the United States: Whereas, Congress has enacted and the president has on the 18th day of May, one thousand nine hundred and seventeen, approved a law which contains the following provisions: Section 5. That all male persons between the ages of twenty-one and thirty, both inclusive, shall be subject to registration in accordance with regulations to be prescribed by the president; and upon proclamation by the president or other public notice given by him or by his direction, stating the time and place of such registration, it shall be the duty of all persons of the designated ages, except officers and enlisted men of the regular army, the navy and the National Guard and naval militia while in the service of the United States, to present themselves for and submit to registration under the provisions of this act, and every such person shall be deemed to have notice of the requirements of this act upon the publication of said proclamation or other notice as aforesaid given by the president or by his direction; and any person who shall willfully fail or refuse to present himself for registration or to submit thereto as herein provided, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, upon conviction in the district court of the United States having jurisdiction thereof, be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year, and shall thereupon be duly registered; provided, that in the case of the docket proceedings shall be given, in courts trying the same, to the trial of criminal proceedings under this act: Provided further, that persons shall be subject to registration as herein provided who shall have attained their twenty-first birthday and who shall not have attained their thirty-first birthday on or before the day set for registration, and all persons so registered shall be and remain subject to draft into the forces hereby authorized, unless exempted or excused therefrom as in this act provided.

Registration on June 5.

"Now, therefore, I Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, do call upon the governor of each of the several states and territories, the board of commissioners of the District of Columbia and all officers and agents of the several states and territories, of the District of Columbia and of the counties and municipalities therein to perform certain duties in the execution of the foregoing law, which duties will be communicated to them directly in regulations of even date herewith.

"And I do further proclaim and give notice to all persons subject to registration in the several states and in the District of Columbia in accordance with the above law that the time and place of such registration shall be between 7 a. m. and 9 p. m. on the 5th day of June, 1917, at the registration place in the precinct wherein they have their permanent homes. Those who shall have attained their twenty-first birthday and who shall not have attained their thirty-first birthday on or before the day here named are required to register, excepting only officers and enlisted men of the regular army, the navy, the marine corps and the National Guard and naval militia while in the service of the United States, and officers in the officers' reserve corps and enlisted men in the enlisted reserve corps while in active service. In the territories of Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico a day for registration will be named in a later proclamation.

All Must Co-Operate.

"The power against which we are arrayed has sought to impose its will upon the world by force. To this end it has increased armament until it has changed the face of war. In the sense in which we have been wont to think of armies there are no armies in this struggle. There are entire nations armed. Thus, the men who remain to till the soil and man the factories are no less a part of the army that is in France than the men beneath the battle flags. It must be so with us. It is not an army that we must shape and train for war; it is a nation. To this end our people must draw close in one compact front against a common foe. But this cannot be if each man pursues a private purpose. All must pursue one purpose.

"The nation needs all men, but it needs each man, not in the field that will most pleasure him, but in the endeavor that will best serve the common good.

"It is in no sense a conscription of the unwilling—it is rather selection from a nation which has volunteered in mass.

"The day here named is the time upon which all shall present themselves for assignment to their tasks.

"It is essential that the day be approached in thoughtful apprehension of its significance and that we accord to it the honor and the meaning that it deserves. Our industrial need prescribes that it be not made a technical holiday, but the stern sacrifice that is before us urges that it be carried in all our hearts as a great day of patriotic devotion and obligation when the duty shall lie upon every man, whether he is himself to be registered or not, to see to it that the name of every male person of the designated ages is written on these lists of honor.

"By the president:

"ROBERT LANSING, Secretary of State."

President Wilson directed that an expeditionary force of approximately a division of regular troops, under command of Maj. Gen. John J. Pershing, proceed to France at as early a date as practicable. General Pershing and staff will precede the troops.

A division contains approximately 28,000 men. It is understood that at least 20,000 will be infantry.

The war bill was carefully gone over during the day by Brigadier General Crowder, judge advocate general and provost marshal general.

It was announced that all existing regiments of the guard will be called into service by August 5, and officials estimate that with from a month to six weeks' intensive training these troops will be ready to go forward for final preparation behind the fighting lines in Europe for the fighting that is before them.

After the army bill had been perfected in both houses of congress and sent to President Wilson for signature the senate adopted an amendment to the war budget bill to put conscription out of force four months after the end of the war.

President's Statement.

The president issued the following statement at the White House: "I shall not avail myself, at any rate, at the present stage of the war, of the authorization conferred by the act to organize volunteer divisions.

"To do so would seriously interfere with the carrying out of the chief and most immediately important purpose contemplated by this legislation: The prompt creation and early use of an effective army would contribute practically nothing to the effective strength of the armies now engaged against Germany.

"I understand that the section of this act which authorizes the creation of volunteer divisions in addition to the draft was added with a view to providing an independent command for Mr. Roosevelt and giving the military authorities an opportunity to use his fine vigor and enthusiasm recruiting the forces now at the western front.

"It would be very agreeable to me to pay Mr. Roosevelt this compliment and the allies the compliment of sending to their aid one of our most distinguished public men, an ex-president, who has rendered many conspicuous public services and proved his gallantry in many striking ways.

"Politically, too, it would no doubt have a very fine effect and make a profound impression. But this is not the time or the occasion for compliments or for any action not calculated to contribute to the immediate success of the war.

Seeks Advice From Both Sides.

"The business now in hand is undramatic, practical and of scientific definiteness and precision.

"I shall act with regard to it at every step and in every particular under expert and professional advice, from both sides of the water.

Says He Is Responsible.

"He named many of those whom he desired to have designated for the service and they were men who cannot possibly be spared from the too small force of officers at our command for the much more pressing and necessary duties of training regular troops to be put into the field in France and Belgium as fast as they can be got ready.

"The first troops sent to France will be taken from the present force of the regular army and will be under the command of trained soldiers only.

"The responsibility for the successful conduct of our part in this great war rests upon me. I could not escape it if I would. I am too much interested in the cause we are fighting for to be interested in anything but success.

"The issues involved are too immense for me to take into consideration anything whatever except the best, most effective, most immediate means of military action. What these means are I know from the mouths of men who have seen war as it is conducted, who have no illusions and to whom the whole grim matter is a matter of business. I shall center my attention upon those matters and let everything else wait. I should be deeply to blame should I do otherwise, whatever the argument of policy or of personal gratification of advantage."

The Value of Second Thought.

The other night a friend of ours went to a formal party, all duded up for the occasion. He had blown himself for a new silk hat, in fact, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Presumably he had a good time at the party. When he left, he was jaunty—so much so that he made a literal faux pas, which means a false step. He slipped on the sidewalk and sat down on that perfectly good silk hat.

He was good and mad. The hat was new, and fitted him perfectly. He swore with great bitterness and for several minutes. But that did him no good. It was after he had ceased to curse that a bright thought struck him. He looked at the bum lid closely. He smiled.

He sneaked back into the house he had just left, laid the ruined chapeau on a chair in the hall, took his own hat from the peg where it was hanging—and left again.

INTELLIGENT people have a way of sizing things up for themselves—W-B CUT is all shreds, all tobacco; and ordinary plug is leaf with a lot of heavy, gummy sweetening, holding it together. But everything doesn't go by quantity either; W-B CUT is a rich, sappy chew, because it's rich, sappy tobacco. It doesn't take so much W-B to satisfy. Take a small chew. Then notice how it lasts.

Why Pay the Peddler or Canvasser Twice These Prices?

You can save a good deal of money by buying your stock tonic at this store, instead of paying the peddler big, fancy prices for goods of unknown quality. Look at these prices for that old reliable and guaranteed stock conditioner and worm expeller—

DR. HESS STOCK TONIC
 25 pound pail costs $2.00
 100 lb. drum costs $6.50

Remember, we have no peddler's wagon and horse expenses to pay. That's why we can sell you Dr. Hess Stock Tonic at these rock-bottom prices.

Here is another point, Mr. Farmer, we want to emphasize, that is: Dr. Hess Stock Tonic is highly concentrated; it goes farther, as the small dose quantity proves. Dr. Hess Stock Tonic is to put your animals in a thriving condition, make the ailing ones healthy and expel the worms—otherwise you get your money back right here at our store. We also handle

Governor Philipp Issues Memorial Day Proclamation

Gov. E. L. Philipp has issued the following Memorial proclamation:
 Fifty-two years ago today a great struggle came to a close which established a new freedom in our country and demonstrated to the world that this republic can successfully resist an attack from within, despite the fact that it was often predicted by great men of the world that our government would fall because of its own weakness. The successful conclusion of the war of the sixties gave this republic a place among the first nations of the earth and our government a reputation of stability, and to our people a guarantee of their constitutional liberties. This great achievement was secured to us through the unselfish sacrifice of our country's best men and noblest women.
 With the exception of the brief period of the Spanish-American war we have known no other days of unbroken peace since the close of the events of the sixties. We have prospered in the meantime as has no other nation on earth. The righteousness of our cause that inspired the soldiers during the civil war has been commended to all people, giving full approval of every human right that can be demonstrated as being in the best interests of mankind.
 Many of our people cherished the hope that we had reached a point in our civilization when it would no longer be necessary to resort to war to settle the disputes that may arise between nations. It was generally believed that the peoples of the earth had reached that point in their understanding of justice that it could at all times be obtained without resorting to the sword. It was a high tribute to the intelligence of man and to his moral development. Unfortunately we are again disappointed in our optimism. Our peace is again broken and at this moment we find ourselves at war with one of the great powers of Europe.
 In the sixties the immortal Lincoln was compelled to call our best manhood to the colors to preserve the Union and establish a freedom that would be guaranteed to all who live within the borders of our beloved country. Today our president calls the flower of our manhood to the colors that we may enforce our rights upon the sea and carry that freedom which we cherish so much to the oppressed of our lands.
 As we gather to do honor to those brave men and women who fought our battles of former years and carried the duties and burdens of a nation during their time let us pause and pray to Almighty God that in the struggle in which we are about to engage our arms may be successful, and that our brave young men who are offering their lives in the defense of their country will return to us with new glory won for our flag.
 The observance of Memorial Day in commemoration of the deeds of the men and women who served their country in the gloomy days of the past will, I hope, be an inspiration for those who are called upon to render a like service now. It is an expression of our gratitude for those deeds of heroism and self-sacrifice that have made our nation great, which I am sure will be bestowed upon them in years to come.
 The people of Wisconsin in conformity with federal law, have provided for a day to be observed in their honor. Therefore, I, Emanuel L. Philipp, governor of the state of Wisconsin, hereby designate Wednesday, May 30, A. D. 1917, Memorial day and I earnestly remind the people of their duty to keep it memorable. I request that the people meet in the schools and churches and other public meeting places and devote their thoughts to our national ideals, to sing patriotic songs and do those things which bring the hearts of the people closer to the folds of this great republic, which is our beloved home.
 In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state of Wisconsin to be hereunto affixed. Done at the capital in the city of Madison, this eighteenth day of May, A. D. 1917.
 Emanuel L. Philipp
 Governor.

Twelve Questions Will Be Asked Those Who Are Drafted

Following are the questions which you are requested to answer on the draft cards on registration day, June 5th next. Read them over carefully before you go to the registration table. Study them so you can prepare the answers in your mind. Remember, all are eligible to draft who are between the ages of 21 and 30 inclusive. Anyone who fails to register places himself liable to heavy fine.
 Eligibles will not fill out their own cards. They must reply to questions asked them and cards will be filled out by registering officials.
 1. Name in full. Age in years.
 2. Home address.
 3. Date of birth.
 4. Are you a natural born citizen, a naturalized citizen, an alien or have you declared your intention to become a citizen? Specify which.
 5. Where were you born?
 6. If you are not a citizen, of what country are you a citizen or subject?
 7. What is your present trade, occupation or office?
 8. By whom employed, where employed?
 9. Have you a father, mother, wife, or child under 12 years of age or a sister or brother solely dependent upon you for support? Specify which.
 10. Married or single (which)? Race, specify which.
 11. What military service have you had? Rank, Branch, Years National or State?
 12. Do you claim exemption from draft? Specify grounds.
 Because you claim exemption from draft, it is by no means follows that you are exempt. For the information of the war department you should make a claim now if you intend to prosecute it. Some persons will be exempted on account of their occupations or offices, some on account of the fact that they have relatives dependent upon them for support. Your answer touching these things will be important in supporting the claim you now intend to make in your answer to the present questions. Be sure, therefore, that the grounds you now state are in conformity with your answers to questions seven and eight.
 In stating grounds you claim as exempting you, use one of the following terms: If you claim to be an executive, legislative, or judicial officer of the state or nation. If you claim to be a member of a religious sect whose creed forbids its members to participate in war in any form, simply name the sect.
 If you are employed in the transmission of the United States mails or as an artificer or workman in an armory, arsenal or navy yard of the United States, or if you are a mariner employed in the sea service of any citizen or merchant within the United States so state.
