CAMPBELLSPORT YOUNG COUPLE ARE MARRIED

The marriage of Miss Lillian Knickel, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Knickel, and Mr. Alfred Van De Zande, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Van De Zande, all of Campbellsport, took place at 12 o'clock noon at the German Reformed parsonage, on Monday, June 25, Rev. Wm. Zenk performing the ceremony.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Edna I. Wrucke, a former classmate and friend of the bride. The groom was attended by his brother Charles Van De Zande Jr. The bride was attired in a beautiful midnight blue French serge suit and white Milan sailor hat. She wore a corsage bouquet of bridal roses. Miss Wrucke wore an old gold Ploret tulle suit and white Milan sailor hat, with corsage bouquet of pink sweet peas.

A five course dinner was served at 1 p. m., at the home of the bride to a few intimate friends and relatives. The happy couple left the same day for a two week honeymoon trip to a summer resort in southern Wisconsin.

Miss Knickel is one of Campbellsport's most highly respected young ladies, and has been for the past two and a half years bookkeeper at the First State Bank.

Mr. Van De Zande is one of Campbellsport's leading young men and is engaged in the automobile and fire insurance business. He will reside in the Peck residence in Campbellsport.

Sunday, July 1, Food Conservation Day

Herbert Hoover, of Washington, D. C., has designated Sunday, July 1, as "Food Saving Day," the object of which is to bring home to the people of the country the importance of conserving food as a means to help win the war.

He writes that he has written to every minister of the gospel whose name he could secure to preach sermons on food conservation on that day. He also asks the cooperation of the press, civic, fraternal and other organizations to make the food conservation as general and effective as possible, thereby aiding the government in its cause of liberty and democracy and reducing the cost of living in the country.

SCHLEISINGER-VILLE YOUNG MAN CALLED

Lehman D. Rosenheimer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rosenheimer of Schleisinger, died last week Thursday in a hospital at Chicago, at the age of 46 years.

Mr. Rosenheimer had for some time been ailing with minor throat trouble, for which he was to undergo a slight operation, but never recovered from the effects of the anesthetic.

Deceased was one of Schleisinger's most favorite young men. The rapid rise he had been making in life, was such, that not only the grief stricken parents, but the village of his birth could justly feel proud of him. He was a 32nd degree Mason, and at one time secretary of the Booth Fisheries Co., at Chicago. He also was a member of the Traffic Club, Chicago. This society issues a monthly magazine in the interest of better traffic regulations. And finally in the month of February, 1917, he was appointed by President Wilson, to the office of Major in the Quartermasters Department of the United States army, to assist the government in case of war in mobilizing troops and supplies, which responsible position he held up to time of his early demise.

The funeral was held last week Saturday at Chicago. Newton and David Rosenheimer of this village attended same.

Find Stolen Auto Near Norton Farm

Sheriff Worthing was called to Eden this morning in response to notification that it would be in Eden at a certain time he would have a chance to arrest a man wanted for the theft of an automobile at Logansville, Wis.

It appeared that on Monday evening a Ford runabout was found deserted on the side of the road at the farm of Robert Norton about two miles north of Campbellsport. An examination of the car showed the gasoline tank empty. The car was brand new, and bore a garage number. The authorities were notified of the presence of the machine and after some investigation it was learned that the machine belonged to the Leischer Bros., garage at Logansville, Sauk county. The car mysteriously disappeared last week, and was reported stolen by its owners.

The men who left the car on the road disappeared. The ownership of the car was discovered and the authorities took it in charge. This morning a man believed to be the party who left the car in the road, appeared in search of it. The sheriff's office was at once notified and Sheriff Worthing set out to intercept the man at Eden. It was stated to the sheriff's office that he came to the Norton farm from the direction of Eden.—Fond du Lac Commonwealth.

Wisconsin's Star

Do you know your own star on the United States flag? All people know there are thirteen stripes representing the thirteen original states, and forty-eight stars, representing all the states which go to make up the Union, but few people know which particular star of the flag represents their own state. It is true that each star has its own individual and particular placement on the square of blue in law and executive order. The stars are arranged in six horizontal rows of eight stars each starting in the upper left hand corner and placing each star from left to right the star corresponding to each state is named in the order of the state's ratification of the Constitution. Thus star No. 1, in the upper left hand corner, is for Delaware. Star No. 48, the lower right hand corner, is for Arizona. The thirtieth star represents the state of Wisconsin.—Exchange.

FARM HANDS START REIGN OF TERROR

George Pein and Ed. Schultzy, a companion, transient farm hands, were lodged in the Campbellsport jail last Tuesday night for threatening to "shoot up" the premises and burn the barn of their employer, Ben Weyer, of Campbellsport. For some time Pein has been attempting to institute a small reign of terror on his own account in the neighborhood of Campbellsport. Tuesday night, when he began to threaten the life of his employer, Weyer thought that he had gone far enough and called the authorities from Fond du Lac. They were unable, however, to locate the pair. Town Marshal Arthur Guenther then got on their trail and finally found them hiding in Weyer's barn. They were put in the village lockup and brought here this morning.

Pein has been in the Campbellsport police court before. Upon his last appearance he claimed to be 28 years old. Now, it is said, he asserts that he is not more than 20 years of age. He has been unable to claim, to show selective service registration papers.—Fond du Lac Commonwealth.

To Enter Saloon Business

Jos. J. Hepe, of this city, this week formed a copartnership with Henry Conrad, the party who last week leased Eagle Park, and will after July 1st conduct Eagle Park. We believe that few men in the city are better qualified to properly conduct Eagle Park than Mr. Hepe, who with Mr. Conrad will run a strictly orderly and respectable place. The management informs us that the bar at the park will be closed promptly at 12 o'clock every night under all conditions, and no loafer or boisterous person will be allowed upon the grounds.

Joe, as Mr. Hepe is most favorably known, is a son of Engelbert Hepe, and for the past five years has held down a responsible position at the Jos. Schwartz Brewing company as bookkeeper. He also served a year as city clerk, resigning two months ago with the work at the brewer, because too heavy to handle both jobs together.

Although the park will be opened July 1st, the big event will be July 4th, when a monster picnic and concert will be held. The picnic furnished by one of the Hartford bands. The grounds and buildings are now being placed in first class shape.—Hartford Times

Will Interest Farmers in Silos

In July, the second and third weeks probably, Mr. H. D. Griswold of West Salem, a Farmers' Institute Conductor, will visit various parts of Washington and Ozaukee counties in the interest of silo institute and demonstration work. Mr. Griswold will visit farmers and business men with a view to promoting meetings in the country to urge the building of more silos.

A state wide publicity campaign with posters and news items has already been carried on, and in every county where there is a County Agent or Emergency Food Agent a campaign of meetings will be carried on. Hundreds of silos are already contracted for by farmers and there is not much question but that Wisconsin will add from 10,000 to 15,000 silos to her present number this season.

As silo construction is one of the most profitable works for the farm and will bring great profit to any community, the Department of Farmers' Institute asks that Mr. Griswold be assisted in every possible way by all of the people in this great emergency food work.

PRETTY WEDDING AT ALLENTON

A very pretty wedding took place on Tuesday morning at 9:30 at Allenton, when Miss Eleonore Ritter of that place became the bride of Carl J. Blume of Milwaukee. The ceremony was performed in St. Anthony's Catholic church by Rev. J. E. Riggs of Mayville, a cousin of the bride.

The bride was very prettily attired in a gown of white crepe de meteor trimmed with silver lace and pearls. She wore a long tulle veil which was caught at the hood with white sweet peas. Her shower bouquet was of yellow bird's nest and sweet peas. Miss Antoinette Ritter acted as maid of honor, who wore a gown of yellow silk crepe de chine and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and sweet peas. Miss Louise Blume and Miss Rose Ritter were bridesmaids. Miss Blume wore a very pretty gown of pink silk crepe de chine and Miss Ritter green silk crepe de chine trimmed with silver lace. Both ladies carried shower bouquets of pink carnations and sweet peas. Little Josephine Ritter, the bride's girl and wore a blue chine silk dress and carried a basket of pink sweet peas. The groom was attended by Frank Mohr as best man and Peter Ritger and Walter Schaefer as ushers.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the nearest relatives and friends of both families. The home was very prettily decorated, the color scheme being green and white and the flowers being carnations and peonies. The bride has always made her home in this vicinity and is well known. She is a favorite in a large circle of friends and is respected by all who know her. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Blume. He is an industrious young man of excellent character, and highly respected by everyone. For the past two years he has been a teacher of manual training at Milwaukee and is still holding his position.

The young couple left the same day for an extended trip to the northern part of the state and the Wisconsin Dells and Niagara Falls. They will be at home to their many friends at Milwaukee after September 1st.—West Bend News.

Tom Thumb Wedding Well Received

The "Tom Thumb" wedding, given under the auspices of the Kewaskum Women's Club at the Opera House last Tuesday evening was a grand success in every respect.

The leading characters were ably portrayed by Georgie Koerble as the groom and Elizabeth Martin as the bride. Master Lehman Rosenheimer was bridesman and Kathryn Schlosser was bridesmaid.

The wedding was composed of small children of the village between the ages of three and ten years, dressed in various costumes, giving a complete imitation of a society wedding. The wedding proved to be an interesting affair to all present, as well as to the players taking part in the program. Too much praise cannot be given the committee in charge and all those who took part for the splendid rendition of the program.

H. J. Dreher Goes to Russia

Whooping Cough
In this disease it is important that the cough be kept loose and expectoration easy, which can be done by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mrs. P. H. Martin, Peru, Ind., writes: "My two daughters had whooping cough. I gave them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it worked like a charm."

URGES FOOD CONSERVATION BY WOMEN

Your attention is herewith called to the fact that Secretary of Agriculture, David E. Houston urges women to preserve Food. Organize your community in this respect. Secretary Houston in part says:

"Every Housewife this year should restore to her home the often overlooked home industries of canning, preserving, pickling and drying of perishable fruits or vegetables. The large number of new back yard gardens which have been planted this year shortly will begin to yield their extra harvest of beans, peas, carrots, beets, sweet corn and tomatoes. The regular supplies also will reach the markets, and, as happens each summer, the local supply at times exceed immediate consumptive capacity. Not to conserve much of this surplusage of valuable food would be a sinful waste."

"The present food and labor situations are such that no household is justified in looking to others to release it wholly from individual responsibility and construction action in saving and conserving food. All any home should expect of others is to supply those foods which cannot be produced effectively by its own members. The railroads will be burdened with the transportation of staple foods and civil and military necessities from localities of production and manufacture to districts incapable of supplying their own needs."

"It follows that all locally produced foods, conserved by home methods, lessen the winter pressure on transportation agencies and also release similar products of factories for other purposes."

"I urge every household, therefore, to can all surplus perishable products for which they have containers and to dry and keep in paper any additional surplus suitable for such preservation."

Rural Carriers' Picnic
Next Sunday, July 1, is the date set for the annual business meeting and picnic of the Washington County Rural Letter Carrier's Association. It will again be held at the Cedar Lake Park Hotel, Cedar Lake being about in the heart of Washington county and a spot, where Nature is at her best, the selection of the meeting place seems to be a very fortunate one. The meeting will be called to order at 11 o'clock in the morning, and it is expected that all business will be transacted by noon, when dinner will be taken at the hotel. The afternoon is given over to amusement. It is expected that all rural carriers of the county, members or no, will participate, as much as should come from an exchange of ideas. All postmasters and postal employees of the county are also cordially invited to attend. Concert music in the afternoon and dance in the evening. Music will be furnished by Pitzschler's Harp orchestra of Theresa.

Postmaster Discharged
One of the many German sympathizers who have been located since the beginning of the present crisis was found last week at Iron Ridge. Contrary to the common belief, he was not an ignorant emigrant from the old country who could not be expected to know any better, but a well educated man, holding the position of postmaster of Iron Ridge, and being paid for the nation for which he has no love and respect. He was discharged for making disrespectful remarks of President Wilson. His bond holders are taking care of the office until another man can be appointed. The office at Iron Ridge is a civil service office, and is not secured by appointment. The discharged postmaster is Fred Sette.—Hartford Times.

Just a Reminder
This is to remind you, that one and all are welcomed to the annual picnic and dance of the Schleisinger Fire Department on July 4th, 1917, and remember the keys of the city will be turned over to the visitors for the day, in conclusion there will be a dance at Roth's hall in the evening to the music of the celebrated Hartford Sextette. Follow the crowd to Slinger on the glorious Fourth.

Amusements
Wednesday, July 4th—Grand picnic and dance in the North Side Park, Kewaskum. All are invited to attend.
Thursday, July 5th—Grand dance in the South Side Park, Kewaskum. Music by the Kewaskum Quintette. All are invited.
Tuesday, July 4th—Grand Picnic in Ernst Ramthun's grove, New Fane. Given by the Equity Society. Everybody is invited.

BACK IN THE FOLDS OF CITIZENSHIP

Although born in the United States, at Barton, Wis., Joseph H. Vandergrund, a farmer now living in Campbellsport, was obliged to take out citizenship papers Thursday in order to become an American citizen.

When Joseph Vandergrund took out his papers he renounced his allegiance to "George, King of Great Britain and Ireland." When he wished to take a claim some time ago, he decided to do so in Canada. To do this it was necessary that he become a subject of King George. Therefore he settled down in Saskatchewan, Canada, and became a full fledged Briton. Now, upon his return to the United States, he has renounced his allegiance to the King and is once more an American citizen.—Fond du Lac Commonwealth.

WILSON NAMES DRAFT BOARDS FOR THE STATES

Exemption Regulations to Be Announced Soon.

WORK TO START NEXT WEEK

Report From the White House Says That Men Will Be Selected Not Only for the Army but for All Other War Work.

Washington, June 27.—President Wilson today appointed the local boards named by the governors to hear exemption claims on the first draft, by which 650,000 are to be selected for the army.

The rules governing exemptions have not yet been issued, but will be soon, so the work of selecting the army may be begun next week.

In a great majority of the cases the personnel of the boards shows that President Wilson followed the suggestions of army officials that city and county officials be utilized.

Boards Named by Governors. The president, however, had asked the governors of the various states to nominate candidates for the boards, and it may be assumed that the boards as announced have the approval, not only of the president, but of the state executives.

In New York city and Philadelphia the boards have not yet been announced.

The 24 states in which committees are complete, with those exceptions, are Washington, West Virginia, Utah, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, Minnesota, Nevada, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Colorado, South Carolina, South Dakota, Texas, Tennessee, Connecticut, Illinois, New York and Pennsylvania.

Exemption regulations were whipped into final shape at the cabinet meeting. President Wilson probably will promulgate them within the next 48 hours.

With few exceptions, the rules are the same as contained in the draft submitted to President Wilson by Provost General Crowder. It is understood the president eliminated certain exemptions, believing every man in the nation must do his share in the war, whether on the battle front or not, and work within the country on war duties will be found for many unfit physically to go into the trenches.

Will Draft for War Work. Information emanating from the White House during the last two days indicates the draft will be much heavier than has been suspected. Instead of merely picking men for the army, many will be drafted for other war work.

The grounds on which exemptions will be made on the first draft follow:

1. Physical incapacity, including heart disease, flat feet, eye defects, which cannot be corrected by glasses, tuberculosis or other chest diseases, cancer, kidney or liver ailments, various veins, infectious blood diseases.
2. Employment in vital war industries, including shipbuilding, munitions making, work in gun and supply factories, navy yards, oil fields, coal mines and certain government duties. Eventually women will replace many of these men, who will be released for army service.
3. Religious opposition. Only those who were members of such faith before March 15 will be exempted.
4. Men the sole support of families.

The instructions to the exemption boards include drastic provisions to prevent favoritism and evasion of service. The boards are expected to begin work immediately after receiving notice of appointment.

SHIPBUILDERS VOTE STRIKE

New York, June 27.—An ultimatum fixing Saturday, June 30, as the date on which they will strike if their demand for a wage advance of 50 cents a day is not granted, has been given to 21 of the larger shipbuilding firms and corporations by the Marine Trades Council. The council represents 12,000 men employed in the shipyards in New York and New Jersey.

On Burgin summit, 30 miles southwest of Ushne, the Turks attempted to attack, but were repulsed by our fire. West of Semmes we forced the Kurds from positions west of the summit of Ashkan."

TOLD U. S. OF PLOTS

EDITOR TELLS HOW GERMAN SECRETS WERE OBTAINED.

Put Spy in Von Bernstorff's Home and Tapped the Wireless Stations.

New York, June 27.—How the Providence Journal met gulle with gulle, and spy with spy, how it had its man in Bernstorff's own household and its two wireless stations "listening in" on the German Sayville "line" to Berlin—how, in fact, this one New England newspaper for almost three years kept the United States government informed of the German-Austrian plots in America—has at last been revealed. John R. Rathon, in a speech made in Toronto, and reported in the Editor and Publisher from the Toronto Star, weaves a story of plot and counterplot.

"The Providence Journal," begins the Editor and Publisher, "happened upon its course of exposure through having had for three years before the war what other papers described as a 'bug' on wireless telegraphy. The paper had maintained two powerful wireless plants at Point Judith and at Block Island.

"When war broke out they had decided to 'listen in' on the messages crossing the Atlantic. For five months they kept record of these messages, and then they set out to find the codes and make revelations. Of the material they secured they used only a fractional part.

"One of the newspaper's stenographers was sent and secured an appointment in the Austrian consulate in New York. Other of his workers were constantly engaged in shadowing Captain von Papen, former Austrian Ambassador Dumba, Ambassador Bernstorff and other German and Austrian officials.

"The two wireless plants ceaselessly listened in, two shifts of operators at work day and night, on Sayville and Nantucket, the two wireless stations which were being used mostly by the Germans to keep in touch with Berlin, from where they received instructions for every detail of their plotting policy.

"For the United States government the Brooklyn navy yard had had instructions to keep a close watch on the Sayville and Nantucket stations, but nothing suspicious was ever reported until Mr. Rathon took some of the messages which he had received from his operators to the state department. It was then learned that the navy yard operators had been in the pay of German agents in America and had been told not to hear too much.

"The codes used by the Germans were of the most ingenious nature. Many of them pretended to be stock quotations, and some were even done up as funeral directions. In some cases, however, the codes showed evidence of the green blubber, referred to by the speaker, as on one occasion when Mr. Rathon was able to go to President Wilson and show him copies of eight separate messages sent by the wireless plant within nine days, all relating that 'Little Emily' had died of such and such an illness. In a certain part of a room, had been buried in a certain cemetery beside such and such a previously deceased relative. In every one of those messages the illness, the part of the room, the name of the relative, the cemetery, and so on, varied, and a clear code was detected in each of the messages.

U-BOATS REPORTED NEAR U. S.

German Submarines Have Established Base Somewhere Off the South Side of Cuba.

Providence, R. I., June 27.—The Providence Journal today says: "The United States government is in possession of information which has revived the belief that German U-boats are again on this side of the Atlantic and that they have established a base somewhere off the south side of Cuba.

"It is declared by officers of the navy that if this is so these U-boats have either been preceded or followed by one or more mercantile submarines, which have carried extra supplies of torpedoes and oil.

"Such a convoy is said to be absolutely necessary in order to make the trip across the Atlantic for German submarines worth while.

"It is believed that mercantile submarines have been sent and carry extra torpedoes.

"American warships are conducting a careful search along the suspected shores for any trace of bases of this character."

ROOT SEES VICTORY IN 1918

Declares if Every Allied Country Pushes War Against Germany It Will Soon End.

Petrograd, June 27.—If every allied government and all their people turn over fully to the business of making war, victory will come by 1918, in the opinion of Elihu Root, chairman of the American mission. He made the prediction at Moscow, where the Americans were being entertained, in the course of an interview with newspaper correspondents.

Confiscation by President of All Whisky in Country Authorized—Beer and Wine Included in Prohibitions.

Washington, June 26.—The administration's food control bill was passed in the house on Saturday.

It gives the president power to control the distribution of food, feed and fuel for war purposes and appropriates $152,500,000 for its enforcement and administration.

The measure was passed after sweeping prohibition for the war had been written into it.

The vote was 365 to 5. Representatives McLemore, Slayden and Young of Texas, Democrats, and Meeker, Missouri and Ward, New York, Republicans, voted in the negative.

Those voting present were Hulbert, New York; Sabath, Illinois; Kitchin, North Carolina; Gallagher, Illinois, and Esch, Wisconsin.

The bill gives the president power:

1. To regulate transportation, storage, distribution and sale of foodstuffs.
2. To prohibit further distribution of alcoholic beverages made from grain and to seize present stored supplies.
3. To prevent willful destruction of food products or hoarding.
4. To prevent withholding of fuel from the market or hoarding.
5. To prevent control for monopoly of shoes, clothing and other necessities of life.
6. To establish a license system to regulate manufacture and exportation.
7. To commandeered all storage and food supply plants, and fuel mines, if necessary.

The bill will be taken up in the senate and administration leaders will make every effort to force it to an early vote, as it is desired that the law shall become operative July 1.

REVEALS KAISER'S BAD FAITH

Official History of United States Peace Efforts Issued by Committee at Washington.

Washington, June 26.—"How the war came to America," the first of a series of official statements informing the people how this country was forced into the struggle in Europe, was issued here. The series, when complete, will form the American "Red, White and Blue Book."

It is a tale of broken promises on the part of the Berlin government and lays bare repeated plots by Wilhelmstrasse to injure and embarrass this country even while the German envoys and officials were pledging their friendship to Washington.

"We do not know the nature of Count Bernstorff's report to the kaiser," said the official historian. "We know only that even if he kept his pledge and urged an eleven-hour revocation of the submarine order, he was unable to sway the policy of the imperial government."

Soldiers and Workmen Declare Their Confidence in the Government at Petrograd.

Washington, June 23.—Russia's consecration to a war to the end with German autocracy was avowed by Special Ambassador Boris A. Rakhmetiev, head of the Russian mission here, in a statement on Thursday to the American people. Only through victory, he said, can a stable world peace and the fruits of the Russian revolution be secured.

"The Russian people thoroughly understand and are fully convinced," said Mr. Rakhmetiev, "that it is absolutely necessary to root out the autocratic principles which underlie and are represented by German militarism which threatens the peace, the freedom and the happiness of the world."

London, June 23.—Dispatches from Petrograd say that the congress of soldiers' and workmen's delegates from all Russia voted confidence in the provisional government and unanimously adopted a resolution demanding an immediate resumption of the offensive and the reorganization of the army. A war cabinet was formed, including the leaders of the Russian army and navy and technical representatives.

New York, June 23.—Eight persons were killed and many wounded in a clash between government troops and supporters of the newly formed republic of Kirshonov, in the province of Tsimov, Russia, according to a cable dispatch received here from Petrograd by the Jewish Daily Forward. The skirmish was caused by the refusal of the new republic to recognize the authority of the Petrograd government.

NAMES EXPORT BODY

PRESIDENT CREATES BOARD TO HAVE CONTROL OVER SHIPMENTS OF SUPPLIES.

POWER TO ORDER EMBARGOES

Neutral Nations Known to Have Been Engaged in Supplying Germany With Food and Munitions Will Be Hit.

Washington, June 27.—President Wilson, by executive order on Monday created the new export council, better known as the embargo board. It will have complete authority to declare embargoes on exports from this country and is expected to prove a most powerful weapon in dealing with the neutral nations that are known to have been engaged in supplying Germany with foodstuffs and materials for the manufacture of munitions.

Under the president's order, the new council is made up of a representative of the commerce, agricultural and state departments and of the food administration. The placing of an embargo by this newly created organization will make it impossible for neutrals to export great quantities of foodstuffs and other supplies from this country. Through this powerful weapon the United States will be able to follow the exports from this country all the way to the ultimate consumer.

The new council will have under its direction a staff of 200 employees to carry on the actual work of licensing exports. This staff will be under the direction of Dr. E. E. Pratt, chief of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of the department of commerce. Doctor Pratt, it is understood, will be appointed by Secretary of Commerce Redfield to be representative of his department on the council. The work of licensing exports is expected to be under way within 24 hours.

Meanwhile the rush to get exports cleared before licenses are demanded continues. Shippers fear that the "red tape" of getting licenses for each cargo would result in serious delays, and are trying to get all shipments off the docks before the licensing bureau can get to work.

The new export council will decide all questions of policy relating to exports. It will have the power, not only to head off shipments of commodities to the central powers and to neutrals, but will also have authority to cut off exports of commodities needed at home.

"No, no!" He made a gesture of denial. "How ridiculous! I merely keep you from certain destruction. You cannot go by train, because the railroad has suspended public service, nor can you ride or drive. I tell you, senora, the people are aroused. For the moment you must accept my protection, whether you wish to or not. Tomorrow—Longorio smiled warmly, meaningly—"perhaps you will not be in such haste to refuse it, or to leave La Feria. Wait until you understand me better. Then— But enough of this. You are unstrung, you wish to be alone with your thoughts, and what I have to say can wait for a few hours. In the meantime, may I beg the hospitality of your ranch for myself and my men?"

Alaire acquiesced mechanically. Longorio saluted her fingers in his customary manner, and then, with a look eloquent of things unsaid, he went out to see to the comfort of his command.

Alaire sank into the nearest chair, her nerves quivering, her mind in a turmoil. This Mexican was detestable, and he was far from being the mere maker of audaciously gallant speeches, the poetically fervent wooer of every pretty woman, she had blindly supposed him. His was no sham ardor; the man was hotly, horribly in earnest. There had been a glint of madness in his eyes. And he actually seemed to think that she shared his infatuation. It was intolerable. Yet Longorio, she was sure, had an abundance of discretion; he would not dare to offer her violence. He had pride, too; and in his way he was something of a gentleman. So far, she had avoided giving him offense. But if once she made plain to him how utterly loathsome to her was his pursuit, she was sure that he would cease to annoy her. Alaire was self-confident, strong-willed; she took courage.

Her thoughts turned from her fears to the amazing reality of her widowhood. Even yet she could not wholly credit the fact that Ed's wasted life had come to an end and that she was free to make the most of her own. Alaire remembered her husband now with more tenderness, more charity, than she would have believed possible, and it seemed to her pitiful that one so blessed with opportunity should have worked such havoc with himself and with those dear to him.

Doubtless it was all a part of some providential scheme, too blind for her to solve. Perhaps, indeed, his own trials had been designed to the end that her greater, truer love, when it did come, would find her ripe, responsive, ready. As for this Mexican general, she would put him in his place. Alaire was still walking the floor of her chamber when Dolores entered, at dusk, to say that supper was ready and that General Longorio was waiting.

"Ask him to excuse me," she told her servant. But Longorio himself spoke from the next room, saying: "Senora, I beg of you to honor me. I have much of importance to say, and time presses. Control your grief and give me the pleasure of your company." After an instant's consideration, Alaire yielded. It was best to have the matter over with, once for all.

CHAPTER XXI.

The Doors of Paradise. Alaire began the mockery of playing hostess with extreme distaste, and as the meal progressed she experienced a growing uneasiness. Longorio's bearing had changed since his arrival. He was still extravagantly courteous, beautifully attentive; he maintained a flow of conversation that relieved her of any effort, and yet he displayed a repressed excitement that was disturbing. In his eyes there was a glowering look of possession hard to endure. Despite her icy formality, he appeared to be holding himself within the bounds of propriety only by an effort of the will, and she was not surprised when, at the conclusion of the meal, he cast restraint aside.

She did not let him go far with his wooing before warning him: "I won't listen to you. You are a man of taste; you must realize how offensive this is." "Let us not deceive each other," he fastidiously. "We are alone. Let us be honest. Do not ask me to put faith in your grief. I find my excuse in the extraordinary nature of this situation." "Nothing can excuse indelicacy," she answered, evenly. "You transgress the commonest rules of decency."

But he was impatient. "What sentiment! You did not love your husband. You were for years his prisoner. Through the bars of your prison I saw and loved you. Dios! The first sight of your face altered the current of my life. I saw heaven in your eyes, and I have dreamed of nothing else ever since. Well, Providence opened the doors and set you free; God gave heed to my prayers and delivered you to me. Now you pretend to grieve at your deliverance; you ask me to respect the memory of your jailer! Decency? Delicacy? What are they except artificialities, which vanish in times of stress? Alexander the Great,

Caesar, Napoleon, Porfirio Diaz—they were strong, purposeful men; they lived as I live. Senora, you dally with love."

Alaire's face was white with anger as she replied: "You cause me to forget that you are my guest. Are you the man I considered you or the man you are reported to be?"

"Eh?" "Are you the gentleman, the friend, you pretended to be, or—the vandal whom no woman can trust? You treat me as if you were my jailer. What do you mean? What kind of man are you to take advantage of my bereavement?"

After a moment's consideration, Longorio began haltingly: "I don't know what kind of a man I am, for you have changed me so. There was a time—I have done things—I have scorned all restraint, all laws except those of my desires, and so, perhaps, I am a vandal. Make sure of this, however—I shall not injure you. Mexico is no more sacred to me than you, my heart's treasure. You accuse me of indelicacy because I lack the strength to smother my admiration. I adore you; my being dissolves, my veins are afire with longing for you; I am mad with the knowledge that you are mine. Mad? Caramba! I am insane; my mind totters; I grope my way like a man blinded by a dazzling light; I suffer agonies. But see! I refuse to touch you. I am a giant in my restraint. The strength of heroes is mine, and I strangle my impulses as they are born, although the effort kills me. Senora, I await the moment of your voluntary surrender. I wait for you." He extended his arms, and Alaire saw that his olive features were distorted with emotion; that his hands, his whole thin, high-strung body were shaking uncontrollably.

She could summon no coherent words. "You believed I was a hawk and would seize you, eh?" he queried. "Is that why you continue to shrink? Well, let me tell you something, if my tongue will frame the thoughts in my mind. My passion is so deep and so sacred that I would not be content with less than all of you. I must have you all, and so I wait, trembling. I say this so badly that I doubt if you understand. Listen, then: to possess you by force would be—well, as if I sacked a cathedral of its golden images and expected to gain heaven by clutching the cross in my arms. Senora, in you I see the priceless jewel of my love, which I shall wear to dazzle the world, and without which I shall destroy myself. Now let me tell you what I can offer you, what setting I can build for this treasure. Marriage with Luis Longorio—"

Alaire could not control a start. As if quickened by his intensity, the man read her thought. "You did not imagine that I offered you anything less?"

"What was I to think? Your reputation—"

"Blood of my heart!" breathed the general. "So! That is what you meant a moment ago. That is why you refuse my embraces. No, no! Other women have feared me, and I have deceived me. The priest is waiting."

When Alaire spoke next, it was with an expression and with a tone of such loathing that his yellow face paled. "Your conceit is insufferable," she breathed.

After a brief struggle with himself, the Mexican cried, hoarsely: "I will not be refused. You wish me to tame you, eh? Good! You have found your master. Make your choice, then. Which shall it be, surrender or—compulsion?"

"So! You have been lying, as I thought. Compulsion! Now the real Longorio speaks." He flung up his hands as if to ward off her fury. "No! Have I not made myself clear? I shall embrace you only with the arms of a husband, but of a lifetime, and I have myself to consider. The wife of Mexico's next president must be above reproach; there must be no scandal, no secrets hidden away for enemies to unearth. She must stand before the people as a perfect woman; she must lend prestige to his name. When I speak of compulsion, then, I mean the right of a husband—" stumbles toward oblivion. Who will succeed him? Who will issue from the coming struggle as the dominant figure of Mexico? Who but that military genius who checks the Yankee hordes and saves the fatherland? I am he. Fate points the path of glory and I am her man of destiny. You see, then, what I bring you—power, position, riches. Riches? Caramba! Wait until my hands are in the treasury. I will load you with gold and jewels, and I will make you the richest woman in the world. Senora, I offer you dominion. I offer you the president's palace and Chapultepec. And with all that, I offer you such passionate love as no woman of history ever possessed."

He paused, spent by the force of his own intensity; it was plain that he expected an immediate surrender. Alaire's lips parted in the faintest of mocking smiles. "You have great confidence in yourself," she said. "Yes. I know myself as no one knows me."

"Why do you think I care for you?" Longorio's eyes opened. His expression plainly showed that he could not imagine any woman in her senses failing to adore him. "Don't you take much for granted?" Alaire insisted.

The Mexican shook his head. Then his face lightened. "Ah! Now I see. Your modesty forbids you to acknowledge your love—is that it? Well, I know that you admire me, for I can see it. All women admire me, and they all end by loving me." His chest arched imperceptibly; with a slender finger he delicately smoothed his black eyebrows. Alaire felt a wild impulse to laugh, but was glad she had subdued it when he continued. "I am impetuous, but impetuosity has made me what I am. I act, and then mold fate to suit my own ends. Opportunity has delivered to me my heart's desire, and I will not be cheated out of it. Among the men I brought with me to La Feria is a priest. He is dirty, for I caught him as he was fleeing toward the border; but he is a priest, and he will marry us tonight."

Alaire managed to gasp, "Surely you are not in earnest."

"Indeed I am! That is why I insisted that you dine with me this evening. I cannot waste more time here, for necessity calls me away. You shall go as my wife."

"Do you think I would remarry on the very day I find myself a widow?"

"The world will never know."

"You dare to say that?" Her tone was one of disgust, of finality. "I wonder how I have listened to so much. It is horrible."

"You are still a little hysterical, and you exaggerate. If I had more time, I could afford to wait." He ogled her with his luminous gaze. "I would let you play with me to your heart's content and exercise your power until you tired and were ready to surrender."

Alaire raised her head proudly, her nostrils dilated, her eyes ablaze with hostility. "This is very humiliating, but you force me to tell you that I hate you."

Longorio was incredulous rather than offended. He drew himself up to his full height and smiled, saying: "That is impossible." Then, ignoring her impatience: "Come! You cannot deceive me. The priest is waiting."

When Alaire spoke next, it was with an expression and with a tone of such loathing that his yellow face paled. "Your conceit is insufferable," she breathed.

After a brief struggle with himself, the Mexican cried, hoarsely: "I will not be refused. You wish me to tame you, eh? Good! You have found your master. Make your choice, then. Which shall it be, surrender or—compulsion?"

"So! You have been lying, as I thought. Compulsion! Now the real Longorio speaks." He flung up his hands as if to ward off her fury. "No! Have I not made myself clear? I shall embrace you only with the arms of a husband, but of a lifetime, and I have myself to consider. The wife of Mexico's next president must be above reproach; there must be no scandal, no secrets hidden away for enemies to unearth. She must stand before the people as a perfect woman; she must lend prestige to his name. When I speak of compulsion, then, I mean the right of a husband—"

Alaire uttered an exclamation of disgust and turned away, but he intercepted her, saying: "You cannot hold me at bay. It is destiny. You shall be mine tonight. Think a moment! We are alone in the heart of a country lacking in every law but mine. Your friends do not know where you are, and even if they knew, they could not help you. Your nation's protest would avail nothing. Outside of these walls are enemies who will not let you leave this house except under the protection of my name."

Mr strength is gone." Impulsively he half embraced her with his thin arms, but she seemed armored with ice, and he dropped them. "I dare not lay hands upon you," he chattered. "Ansel of my dream, I am faint with longing. To love you and yet to be denied; to feel myself aflame and yet to see you cold; to be halted at the very doors of Paradise! What torture!"

The fellow's self-control in the midst of his frenzy frightened Alaire more than did his wildst exclamations; it was in something of a panic that she said:

"One moment you tell me I am safe, the next you threaten me. You say I am free, and yet you coerce me. Prove your love. Let me go—"

"No! No! I shall call the priest." Longorio turned toward the door, but half-way across the floor he was halted by a woman's shriek which issued from somewhere inside the house. It was repeated. There was an outburst in a masculine voice, then the patter of footsteps approaching down the tiled hallway. Dolores burst into her mistress's presence, her face blanched, her hair disordered. She flung herself into Alaire's arms, crying:

"Senora! Save me! God's curse on the ruffian. Oh—"

"Dolores!" Alaire exclaimed. "What has happened?"

Longorio demanded, irritably: "Yes. Why are you yelling like this?"

"A man— See! One of those dirty peladors. Look where he tore my dress! I warned him, but he was like a tiger. Benito will kill him when he learns—"

"Calm yourself. Speak sensibly. Tell me what happened."

"One of those insensible soldiers who came today—pig!" Dolores was shaking, her voice was shrill. "He followed me about like a cat, purring and grinning and saying the most horrible things. Just now, when I went to your room, he was waiting in the darkness, and he seized me. My money!"

"A soldier? One of my men?" Longorio was incredulous.

Alaire turned upon him with a blazing anger in her face. "Is this more of your protection?" she stormed. "I give you and your men the freedom of my ranch, and you insult me while they rob my women."

He ignored her accusation, inquiring of the elder woman, "Who was the fellow?"

"How do I know," Dolores sobbed. "He is a— a thick, black fellow with a scar on his lip, like a snarl."

"Felipe!"

"Yes, Felipe! I believe they called him that."

Longorio strode to the end of the living room, flung open the wooden shutters of a window, and leaning far out, whistled sharply on his fingers.

"Oiga! Tentente! Ho, you fellows!" he shouted.

From the darkness a voice answered; a man, evidently on guard, came running.

"Call old Pancho," the general directed. "Tell him to bring me black Felipe, the fellow with the torn lip. Quick!"

"Yes, general," came the voice; then the metallic rattle of spurs and accoutrements as the sentry trotted away.

Dolores had completely broken down now, and Alaire was trying to comfort her. Their guest remained by the window, frowning. After a time there sounded a murmur of voices, then a shuffling of feet in the hall; Alaire's friend, the old lieutenant, appeared in the doorway, saluting. Behind him were several others.

"Here is Felipe," he announced. "Bring him in."

A sullen, frowning man in soiled uniform was pushed forward, and Dolores hid her face against her mistress's shoulder.

"Is this the fellow?" Longorio inquired.

Dolores nodded. "Well, what have you to say for yourself?" The general transfixed his trooper with a stare; then, as the latter seemed bereft of his voice, "Why did you enter this house?"

Felipe moistened his scarred lips. "That woman has rings of gold. She's not so old, either, when you come to look at her." He grinned at his comrades, who had crowded in behind old Pancho.

The only time two women are in perfect accord is when they hate the same people.

THE RISING

By THOMAS BUCHANAN READ

OUT of the North the wild news came,
Far flashing on its wings of flame,
Swift as the boreal light which flies
At midnight through the startled skies.

And there was tumult in the air,
The fife's shrill note, the drum's loud beat,
And through the wild land everywhere
The answering tread of hurrying feet,
While the first oath of Freedom's gun
Came on the blast from Lexington;
And Concord, roused, no longer tame,
Forgot her old baptismal name,
Made bare her patriot arm of power,
And swelled the discord of the hour.

Within its shade of elm and oak
The church of Berkeley Manor stood;
There Sunday found the rural folk,
And some esteem'd of gentle blood.
In vain their feet with loitering tread
Pass'd mid the graves where rank is naught;
All could not read the lesson taught
In that republic of the dead.

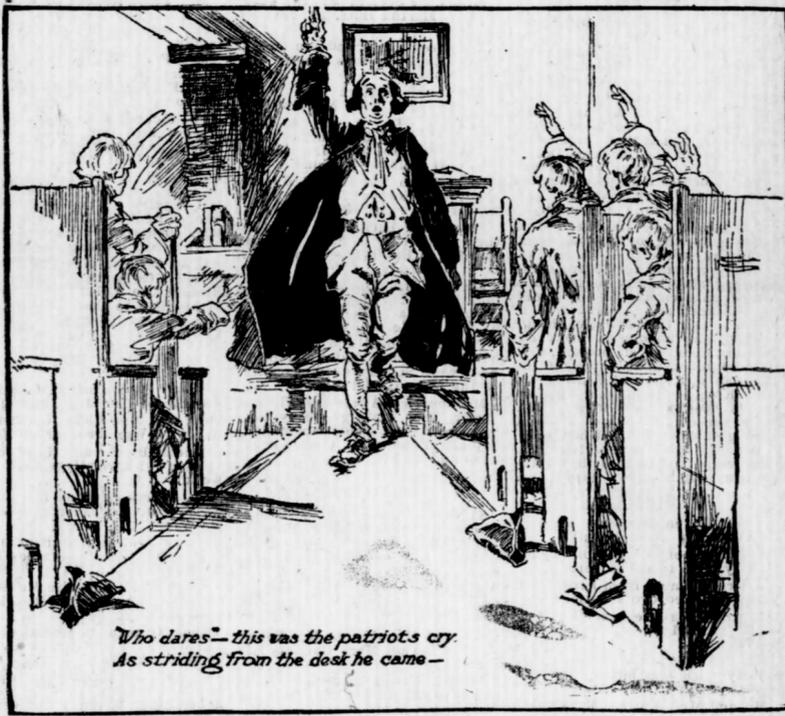

The pastor rose; the prayer was strong;
The psalm was Warrior David's song;
The text, a few short words of might—
"The Lord of Hosts shall arm the right!"
He spoke of wrongs too long endured,
Of sacred rights to be secured;
Then from his patriot tongue of flame
The startling words for Freedom came.
The stirring sentences he spake
Compell'd the heart to glow or quake,
And, rising on his theme's broad wing,
And grasping in his nervous hand
The imaginary battle-brand,
In face of death he dared to fling
Defiance to a tyrant king.

'E'en as he spoke, his frame, renewed
In eloquence of attitude,
Rose, as it seemed, a shoulder higher;
Then swept his kindling glance of fire
From startled pew to breathless choir;
When suddenly his mantle wide
His hands impatient flung aside,
And, lo! he met their wondering eyes
Complete in all a warrior's guise.

A moment there was awful pause—
When Berkeley cried, "Cease, traitor! cease!
God's temple is the house of peace!"
The other shouted, "Nay, not so,
When God is with our righteous cause;
His holiest places then are ours,
His temples are our forts and towers
That from upon the tyrant foe;
In this, the dawn of Freedom's day,
There is a time to fight and pray!"

And now before the open door—
The warrior priest had order'd so—
The enflaming trumpet's sadder roar
Rang through the chapel, o'er and o'er,
Its long, reverberating blow.
So loud and clear, it seem'd the ear
Of dusty death must wake and hear.
And there the startling drum and fife
Fired the living fiercer life;
While overhead, with wild increase,
Forgetting its ancient toll of peace,
The great bell swung as ne'er before.
It seem'd as it would never cease;
And every word its ardor flung
From off its jubilant iron tongue
Was, "War! War! War!"

"Who dares"—this was the patriot's cry,
As striding from the desk he came—
"Come out with me, in Freedom's name,
For her to live, for her to die!"
A hundred hands flung up reply,
A hundred voices answered, "I!"

Who dares—this was the patriot's cry
As striding from the desk he came—

Princeton of Glorious Memory

THERE are a few historic spots—only a few, perhaps—in our country which send away the casual visitor both chastened and uplifted in soul. One approaches nonchalantly, aiming a kodak and a flippant remark—and departs hushed. Not Stony Point, for one—that produces a riot of victorious emotions. Not Monmouth—Molly Pitcher is far too gaily colored a figure in tradition, for all her private tragedy, against that background. Fort Lee saddens one, as one seems to watch that rain-beaten hand tramping over the miles of defeat back toward Hackensack.

But Princeton! There we find a triumph so splendid as to be inspiring, but so hardly won, at such a cost, that it hushes us, awes us, while we glory in it. There is a sadder splendor in the story of Princeton. Here was played that famous little name of Washington's, which made the name of "Old Fox" seem rather flattering than otherwise. It stands with some of his wisest moves, among them that secret withdrawal from Brooklyn across the river in silent boats. On this occasion he caused campfires to be built along the shore of the Assanpink, while the work of making intrenchments apparently went on through the night. Even the sound of the axes reached British ears, and they fell asleep, lulled by what they believed to be full knowledge of the rebels' movements and intentions. Washington's Plans Well Laid. His plans were complete. He knew every road and crossroad on the way to Princeton. He had made sure that the way to that town was unguarded. He knew that most of the British troops had been removed from Princeton, and he made the clear deduction that only a few, moreover, could be remaining at Brunswick, where the enemy had rich magazines. His maximum ambition, then, was to take Princeton, and push on to Brunswick and avail himself of all he found there. This, however, he knew to be a somewhat extravagant hope. But he felt that he could achieve Princeton, at least, and then withdraw to the heights of Morristown to recuperate. Soon after midnight, when the 3d of January had not yet dawned, the march began, in a new, sudden wave of bitter cold which followed the days of thaw. Bancroft tells us that it was about sunrise when the troops arrived at the southeastern outskirts of Princeton. Mercer was detached and went toward the west with about 350 men. There were already about two British regiments on the march to join Cornwallis, leaving far behind them the very town where they were needed, while Cornwallis peacefully awaited them to help overwhelm the Americans whom he supposed to be behind those delusive campfires. But Mawhood, with a number about equal to Mercer's men, saw the approach of the Americans and returned to the conflict. The two forces rushed—Mawhood leading a body of men trained, fresh, armed with bayonets; Mercer in command of a group poorly trained, ill-equipped, almost exhausted with a night's march of 18 miles through bitter cold, and almost entirely riflemen, bearing scarcely any bayonets, to meet the hostile charge. A terrific, swift encounter took place, at the end of which the Americans gave way and fled, abandoning their cannon, while their officers remained on the field, calling the men back. Haslet, Neal, Fleming, were among those who fell, and Mercer dropped to the ground wounded. His wounds were so serious that he lived only until January 12, when he died in a room which you may visit today. Washington Saved the Day. It was about the time when Mercer fell that Washington heard the sound of conflict and returned as fast as possible. Seeing his scattering troops, he rode straight to the front himself, summoning them to follow. It was one of his most drastic and gallant acts. Straight toward the enemy he rode, did not stop until he was within 30 yards of them, and face to face, commanded every American to follow, and stood swathed in smoke while a simultaneous volley arose from both sides. When the smoke cleared away he stood unharmed. The British were overwhelmed. The entire action, from the moment when Mercer's first shot was fired, had occupied just 20 minutes. Mawhood with his men was pursued by the patriots for three or four miles, and lost many on the way as prisoners to the conquering Americans.

Copper in Ancient Days.
Copper, among the ancient Hebrews, was used in making helmets, spears and other implements of war. The expression "bow of steel" found in Job, should be rendered "bow of copper." Copper could not have been applied to these uses without the artisans possessing some forgotten secret for rendering the metal harder and more elastic than we can make it today.

Snakes in South Africa fear the secretary-bird, and will even crawl away from its shadow. This bird devours snakes and can easily kill a reptile twice its size.

Dreaming of an Absent One.
To dream of grieving over the absence of anyone is said to be a sure sign that the person you dream of will soon return, and with friendliness or love grown all the stronger through absence. But to dream of rejecting anyone's absence means that you will shortly receive news you would rather be without.

Worry List.

A worrying woman once made a list of the possible unfortunate events and happenings which she felt sure would come to pass and be disastrous to her happiness and welfare. The list was lost, and to her amazement, she recovered it, a long time afterwards, and found that not a single unfortunate prediction in the whole catalogue of disasters had been realized.

Sour Stomach

This is a mild form of indigestion. It is usually brought on by eating too rapidly or too much, or of food not suited to your digestive organs. If you will eat slowly, masticate your food thoroughly, eat but little meat and none at all for supper, you will more than likely avoid the sour stomach without taking any medicine whatever. When you have sour stomach take one of Chamberlain's Tablets to aid digestion.

FIVE POUNDS OF MILK ON ONE POUND OF GRAIN.

C. H. Packard, of Delavan, Wisconsin, a progressive and practical dairyman, was not satisfied with his ration of home-grown feed. Although he mixed his ration with brains and it seemed to be theoretically correct, he thought he would try out his own mixture in comparison with a first class dairy feed. Much to his surprise he found that he could save about five lbs. of grain per cow per day and nearly 5 cents per cow. He figured his own grain at prices much below the wholesale market and bought his mixed feed at retail.

Also when his ration was figured according to Arnsby or Energy method his mixed feed proved to be the right combination to make a balanced ration with his own farm roughage.

MUST FOLLOW BOYS TO FRANCE

STATE WILL GIVE AID TO SOLDIERS IN CAMPS HERE AND AT THE FRONT.

State Council of Defense Approves Work Which Will Be Done by Y. M. C. A.—Busy Men Offer Their Services.

Madison, Wis.—Wisconsin must follow its soldiers to France, which is to be the fighting ground at least in the early stages of America's participation in the war.

Not only at the battle's front, but also in the concentration camps and in the hospitals, here and abroad, willing hands will find ready work to do for the boys from home.

The State Council of Defense realizes the need of this service, and among other steps it has approved of the work of the Y. M. C. A., an organization known in every community, which has set out to keep the boys clean and healthy and morally fit against the day when they shall return to their homes.

Recently a campaign has been conducted in Wisconsin, aided by the state council and made possible by the unselfish efforts of hundreds of busy men, which raised $100,000 as Wisconsin's share in the National Y. M. C. A. War Work Council. This state has an organization known as the Wisconsin council, and through it the work will be carried on.

It must be remembered that out of a million men called to the colors, 30,000 of them will come from Wisconsin. They will come from the factory, the store, the office and the school. Cities will give their quota and also the villages and the farms. Many of them will be mere boys, and they will enter a new environment, where temptations are subtle and strong. Loneliness prevails even in a crowd and anxiety for the home folks is keenly felt.

It is to keep the boys happy and free from temptation, to keep them in a position to fight off disease, to give them dainty things while they are tossing on hospital cots, that this work is to be done.

Idlers are not wanted in Wisconsin. The State Council of Defense appeals to the patriotism of all communities in its effort to increase the army of producers, and the community which can show that every able-bodied man is doing his share and is employed in some activity will indeed be on the roll of honor.

If you have a suggestion which may turn idle land now idle into the productive field in 1918, notify the State Council of Defense. While Wisconsin is producing more this year, plans should be made for a larger production in 1918.

THE EVILS OF CONSTIPATION

Constipation is one of the main reasons why the average human life is below 40 years. Leaving waste material in the body, poisons the system and blood and makes us liable to sick headaches, biliousness, nervousness and muddy skin. When you note these symptoms, try Dr. King's New Life Pills. They give prompt relief, are mild non-gripping in action, add tone to your system and clear the complexion. At your druggist, 25c.

NO TAX ON THE FARMER'S DOG

Assembly Kills Bill That Would Require a License for the Watchdog on the Farm.

NO MONEY FOR INFIRMARY

Governor Philipp Vetoes Burnett Bill Providing for Exchange of Advertising for Mileage by Newspapers of State.

Madison.—The farmer's watchdog will not be taxed and can without special license continue to bark and watch the farmer's cattle. The assembly by a large vote killed the measure after an hour's debate.

The Wisconsin legislature's mad rush to conclude all business by midnight Saturday broke down late Friday afternoon when the large number of bills clearly showed that it would be impossible to finish the session's work before the conclusion of another week.

The assembly went to engrossment a resolution to change the constitution so that the county superintendent of schools shall be elected for a term of four years instead of two years.

Approval has been given to the bill which makes it unlawful for any district attorney to hold the office of or act as city attorney of any city in the county of which he is district attorney.

Approval has been given by the executive to the so-called riot and bombardment insurance act. This measure provides that insurance corporations shall be permitted to organize and write insurance on earthquakes, bombardment, invasion, insurrection, riot, civil war, military or usurped power.

The assembly concurred in the bill appropriating $1,500 to Mrs. Frank Suttiff, whose husband was found injured in the capitol several weeks ago.

It was the plan of Assemblyman Pieper to have all of these appropriations lapse, so that the next legislature would have an opportunity to pass on the merits of all continuing funds.

The fight against the bill was led by Assemblyman Ejuie of Dane county, who charged that it was a promotional scheme and that the operators would make as high as 35 per cent off the money loaned to poor people.

Governor Makes Appointments.

Governor Philipp has announced the appointment of former Congressman Thomas Knoch of Green Bay as a member of the state industrial commission to succeed J. D. Cook.

The upper house of the Wisconsin legislature is opposed to the idea of giving a minority power to call heads of boards, commissions and state departments before the legislature for cross-examination regarding their acts.

The senate concurred in the Everett amendment to the Baxter coal tax bill levying 1 1/2 cents on soft coal and 2 cents on hard coal passing over the docks in this state.

The assembly retraced its steps and, by a vote of 62 to 9, reconsidered and passed the bill appropriating $50,000 for the erection of an infirmary at the University of Wisconsin.

JOBS FOR FIFTY BOYS

MILWAUKEE YOUTHS TO WORK IN SUGAR BEET FIELDS IN WISCONSIN.

OTHER WISCONSIN DOINGS

Items of Interest Throughout the State Gathered by Alert Correspondents and Bulletin in Brief for the Busy Reader.

Milwaukee.—Fifty boys 14 years and up have been sent to work in sugar beet fields in Wisconsin by the free employment bureau, according to Joseph Becker, in charge of the farm department. Many boys are at present at work in the fields about Oakfield, near Fond du Lac, and will be moved from time to time to different places.

Kenosha.—Cavalry Troop E of the Wisconsin National Guard will carry to the French front a silk banner presented to them by members of the Grand Army of the Republic in Wisconsin. During the annual encampment of the Grand Army a "penny" collection was taken among the old soldiers and this made up the fund with which the flag was purchased.

Neenah.—Objections are being made to the price of hard coal being paid here. Coal dealers demand $11 a ton where credit is extended and $10.70 for cash. The claim is made that the price charged does not compare favorably with the prices paid in other cities.

Watkinsville.—A life-long resident of Kenosha, Wis., was instantly killed here when an automobile in which he was riding turned turtle on the Lake Shore road, following a collision with a horse drawn vehicle. Matt Floss, the driver of the automobile, is held in the county jail awaiting further investigation.

Huron.—Herman Zischke has received the commission as second lieutenant in the Marine corps and has left for Port Royal, S. C., for nine weeks' training. He has just graduated from the University of Wisconsin and was one of five sent to Chicago by President Van Hise to take the examination.

Washington.—Dr. George R. Randall of Milwaukee has been commissioned lieutenant in the medical department officers' reserve corps. Frank W. Van Kirk, Janesville, is made captain in the medical department. Thomas Horton, La Crosse, is named lieutenant-engineer in the engineer corps.

Neenah.—Thirty members of Company I, First Wisconsin infantry, have been granted discharges because of their being married or having dependents. A drive has been started to recruit the company up to full war strength.

Green Bay.—The explosion of a valve head in the power house of the state reformatory resulted in the death of Willes Miles, Milwaukee, an inmate assigned as an oiler. Henry Keyes, Green Bay, an engineer, is in a critical condition from scalds.

Superior.—Angered by the city council's action in passing twenty-two liquor licenses over his protest, Mayor Konkel has declared that unless the other two members of the commission receded from their stand, no license would be issued except on court order.

Captain Passes Test.—Marquette.—Capt. S. R. Bready, for twelve years commander of Company I, who was disqualified by an army surgeon at Camp Douglas just prior to the Mexican border expedition, has passed the medical examination, and may be given another commission.

Neenah.—Fred Legler, who left some time ago to join the American Red Cross on the French front as an ambulance driver, has arrived safely at Bordeaux.

Wausau.—The 11 year old daughter of Julius Keppler, near Mosinee, was attacked and severely injured by a stranger who was seen in the neighborhood. He is being sought.

Name Two More Agents.

Madison.—Two more counties have voted to employ agricultural representatives. The supervisors of Green Lake and Shawano counties have recommended to the Regents of the University the appointment of O. R. Zeanman and Merton Moore respectively. Twenty-five counties of the state are now supplied with permanent county agricultural representatives. This is the full quota allowed by law for the year ending December 31, 1917. Three more, or a total of 28 representatives in all, are allowed up to the end of 1918, according to the action taken by the present legislature.

United States Court Buys.—La Crosse.—Stanley Brown, alleged Chicago white slaver, was sentenced to Fort Leavenworth, Kans., prison in United States court for a term of two and one-half years. Frank Tullo, Superior, Wis., was given two years at Leavenworth on the same charge, and Mike Dillon of Chicago was given five years. Charles F. Tallard, Wauwatosa, Wis., revenue officer, who was alleged to have appropriated revenue money to his own use, was sent up for fifteen months and fined $1,000. THE KITCHEN CABINET

The ethics of gastronomy are as marked as those of society and the arrangement of a bill of fare calls for as much brains as do the functions of a chaperon.—Elihu G. Loring.

CAKES FOR THE TEA TABLE.

The serving of tea in the late afternoon is a custom which should not be allowed to die out. There is no need of an elaborate equipment, just a few pretty cups and plates, a hot-water pitcher and a teapot, with the trimmings necessary for tea, such as sugar and cream, a few cloves, and a lemon, all not at all beyond the means of the simplest household.

If the tea balls are made by tying enough tea for two or three cups into small pieces of thin muslin, they may be dropped into the hot water and the tea will not need straining. The tea balls will keep indefinitely in a tea canister. The custom of leaving a tea table set in a living room is not a pleasant one, as the linen and china become dusty and one prefers to know that everything is fresh and dustless.

When making drop cookies, using fruit, a small amount of say preserved fruit may be added to advantage. For example, a spoonful of canned berries, cherries or pineapple. Dry it a little so the moisture will not cause the cakes to fall.

Date and Nut Cakes.—Cream a half cupful of shortening with a cupful of sugar. Add two eggs well beaten, a half cupful of sour cream and a fourth of a cupful of chopped nuts and dates into one and three-fourths cupful of flour and mix them all together.

The longer you chew things the less you will eat! To practice economy in your gastronomy.

SIMPLE INEXPENSIVE DISHES FOR THE FAMILY TABLE.

A most satisfying dish for a main course for the dinner or luncheon is prepared with rice and a small amount of meat. It is called in some cook books

Chop Suey.—Take a cupful of rice, cook until tender but stiff full of moisture, add a can of tomato, a pound of chopped beef, salt, pepper, celery salt, one small onion finely chopped, all well mixed and baked until the rice is well cooked, and the meat is sufficiently cooked. This will make a dish large enough to serve a family of six bountifully.

Another Savory Dish.—Place a few bits of chicken or other meat well cooked and seasoned in a dish on a layer of thinly sliced potatoes or on half cooked rice, sprinkle with chopped onion, cover with a cupful of tomato and bake until the vegetables are well cooked.

Fig and Raisin Pudding.—Soak one cupful of bread crumbs in one cupful of milk for one hour; stir into three eggs beaten light, three tablespoonsful of chopped suet and three tablespoonsful of flour sifted with one teaspoonful of baking powder. Have ready one-half cupful of minced figs and the same quantity of quartered raisins. Mix the fruit and dredge with flour, then stir into the pudding. Pour the mixture into a large pudding mold with a closely fitting top leaving room for the pudding to swell. Steam for three hours. Turn from the mold and dry in the oven for five minutes, then serve with liquid sauce.

Grape Nut Pudding.—Dissolve a package of lemon gelatin of any brand, add a cupful of steamed raisins, a half cupful of sugar, six walnut meats cut fine and a cupful of grape nuts or macaroon crumbs will be fully as good, or crumbs of cake. Mix all together and mold. Serve with whipped cream.

Asparagus Sandwiches.—Chop five one hard cooked egg, four strips of browned leftover bacon, and six asparagus tips, also a left over. Mix with any desired dressing and use as a sandwich filling.

The wheat kernel and milk are two of the most perfect foods that nature has made, containing all the elements necessary to repair waste, and rebuild tissue as well as supplying heat and energy. We need butter on bread to supply enough fat, but good rich milk supplies some.

Kirkpatrick, Ind.—Fire which broke out when seven cars of gasoline on the Clover Leaf railroad exploded in a wreck here caused damage of $100,000.

FARMS THE SOURCE OF WEALTH

Careful Tillage, Good Management and a Beneficent Soil.

Reading the reports of the managers of the chartered banks in Canada, one is struck by the wonderful showing that they have made during the past two or three years. They are careful in their statements, and while they attribute the success that they have met with, together with that which has followed other lines of business, they are careful to emphasize the fact that the condition of big business may not continue. On the other hand, they point out that the material and fundamental source of wealth is the farm. While other lines of business may have their setbacks, and while care and scrupulous care, will have to be exercised to keep an even balance, there is but little risk to the farmer who on economic and studied lines will carry on his branch of industry and endeavor to produce what the world wants not only today, but for a long distance into the future, with a greater demand than ever in the past.

Speaking recently before a Canadian bank board at its annual meeting, the vice president, once a farmer himself, said: "The farm is the chief source of wealth. We have now three transcontinental railroads with branches running through thousands of miles of the very best undeveloped agricultural land in the world. In the natural course of things, these must attract immigration. The products of the farm are now commanding the highest prices ever known, and in my opinion even after the end of the war, high prices for foodstuffs must continue to prevail. With the mechanical appliances now available for farm work, the farmer needs no considerable supply of extra capital, but should be helped to the extent needed upon good security. The food supply of the world is short, the demand is likely to increase rather than decrease. Development of mines, extension of factories and the reconstruction of devastated Europe must all call for supplies for the workers. On the whole, the farmer has been helped rather than hurt by the war, and will continue to be, at least for a long time to come."

Many men of authority and intelligence support what the vice president has said, and their statements are borne out by the facts that readily present themselves. "The different grain-producing countries of Europe have been robbed of the man power that developed their agriculture, the wastes have been devastated and laid waste. Full and complete reliance will have to be placed on the United States and Canada, and from what we see today, it will take the combined forces of these two countries to come anywhere near meeting the cry that will go out for food. The warnings and appeals sent out by the heads of these two countries are none too soon nor too urgent. Therefore, it becomes necessary for those who can produce to exert themselves. Secure land, rent it, buy it. Get it somewhere, some way, and have it operated. The Canadian Government, sending out its appeal, is not selfish in this matter. Thousands of acres in the United States await the tiller's efforts, and none of it should be idle. Canada, too, offers wonderful advantages, with its free lands and its low-priced lands, to those desirous of helping the nation, and improving their own condition at the same time. Many are taking advantage of this wonderful opportunity.—Advertisement.

ANY CORN LIFTS OUT, DOESN'T HURT A BIT! No foolishness! Lift your corns and calluses off with fingers—It's like magic!

Sore corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn, can harmlessly be lifted right out with the fingers if you apply upon the corn a few drops of freezone, says a Cincinnati authority.

For little cost one can get a small bottle of freezone at any drug store, which will positively rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain.

This simple drop dries the moment it is applied and does not even irritate the surrounding skin while applying it or afterwards.

This announcement will interest many of our readers. If your druggist hasn't any freezone tell him to surely get a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house.—adv.

THE HONEYSUCKLE.

"I'm very tired," said the Honeysuckle, "and I'd really almost rather not come up this spring."

"Years and years ago I was planted by a little girl—a little girl, Mary Alice, who loved flowers and who could always make them grow.

"Now Mary Alice grew up to be a big lady—though she was never very big. She always seemed like a little girl to me, for she was so dainty, so small and so lovely.

"Every spring she would be waiting for me. 'There comes my honeysuckle,' she would say. The last few years it's been very hard to come up. My roots have lost their strength, but I have come along as best I could.

"While I was putting in my garden a friend of mine came by and asked why I did not put in something to beautify the front yard. 'Here,' he said, 'are some seeds of the brassica campestris. When these come up you'll have something!'

Too Sick To Work

Many Women in this Condition Regain Health by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Convincing Proof of This Fact. Ridgway, Penn. — "I suffered from female trouble with backache and pain in my side for over seven months so I could not do any of my work. I was treated by three different doctors and was getting discouraged when my sister-in-law told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her. I decided to try it, and it restored my health, so I now do all of my household work which is not light as I have a little boy three years old."

Tennille, Ga. — "I want to tell you how much I have benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. About eight years ago I got in such a low state of health I was unable to keep house for three in the family. I had dull, tired, dizzy feelings, cold feet and hands nearly all the time and could scarcely sleep at all. The doctor said I had a severe case of ulceration and without an operation I would always be an invalid, but I told him I wanted to wait awhile. Our druggist advised my husband to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has entirely cured me. Now I keep house for seven and work in the garden some, too. I am so thankful I got this medicine. I feel as though it saved my life and have recommended it to others and they have been benefited."—Mrs. W. E. LINDSEY, R. R. 3, Tennille, Ga.

Cholera Morbus

This is a very painful and dangerous disease. In almost every neighborhood someone has died from it before medicine could be obtained or a physician summoned. The right way is to have a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house so as to be prepared for it. Mrs. Charles Eneyart, Huntington, Ind., writes: "During the summer of 1911 two of my children were taken sick with cholera morbus. I used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy and it gave them immediate relief."

Mother Beats Grandmother

A Milwaukee newspaper editor recently published an editorial in which he drew a comparison of the "old school mother" and the "modern mother" very much to the disparagement of the latter's rusticity, he was usually influenced by the sentiment associated with the observance of "Mother's Day", when he said that "the old school mother reared her own children. She nursed them at her breast, taught them at her knee, heard their prayers at night, and tucked them to bed with her own hands. Times have changed."

The "modern mother" on the other hand, he paints as a negligent mother whose time is given over to outrage, women's clubs, etc. while her baby is left to the ministrations of hired help and her own efforts are being guided too much by reading the pamphlets and newspaper articles on "How to Raise a Baby." I maintain that this is unfair to the modern mother. However far short the modern mother may be in knowledge of how to rear her children properly, she is "on the job" far better than her mother and her grandmother were.

The decrease in the death rate of infants has been enormous in late years, and this has been due almost entirely to the increased intelligence of modern motherhood. I shall not ask you to take my word concerning the improvement in conditions, but shall cite facts to support the contention. From all parts of the country come reports of a reduced infant mortality. In the East New York's death rate per 1,000 births for children under one year of age, declined steadily from 1915 in 1901 to 94.6 in 1914. On the western coast, Seattle brought her infant mortality rate down from 118 in 1905 to 61 in 1914. The number of deaths from intestinal diseases showed greatest reduction. These are diseases which respond most readily to intelligent care and modern feeding methods.

Here in Wisconsin, infant deaths have been decreased from 119.7 per 1,000 in 1909 to 81.9 in 1915. This is in face of the fact that the increase in infant population is normally against the interest of babies.

The New York Milk Committee found a decline of infant mortality in the ten cities in which it studied conditions, and concludes that "this reduction was not due to chance, but bears a close relation to the activity of the campaign for the reduction of infant mortality." That campaign has been centered largely on better instruction of parents. All honor to our mothers and grandmothers who did their best for their children. But let us not be unfair to the mothers of our children who are essentially better mothers than the world has ever known before.

Agricultural Problem Solved.

A close study of soils and crops shows that the relation is purely natural, in that crops showing a preference for a certain soil is due entirely to the demands of these crops for a definite amount of water and warmth. That food is a secondary consideration, and as this can easily be supplied by man the problem is solved.

Soldiers of the Soil

Farmers and fighters must win the war. The farmer's only uniform may be the blue jacket and overalls, lacking gold braid and shining buttons, his only decorations the pearls of honest sweat; yet he must consider himself in the active service of his country until the battle for freedom and democracy is won. His lot is less dangerous than that of the soldier but his duties are no less important. He must raise the food to build the bone and muscle of our fighting men, must raise more food for the world's needs.

Some of this food finds its way to the bottom of the ocean, much of it each year goes up in smoke. We call the sinking of food-laden ships "a crime against humanity." Destroying food by careless fires is no less so. The effect is the same; the food is gone. Insurance cannot bring back a single pound of it to feed the needy and the hungry, and because of this waste the high cost of living becomes more of a problem each month.

Besides raising more food and feed for man and beast, the farmer must carefully protect from fire all food products he now has on hand. His surplus food products he holds as trustee for the nation and for humanity, fully as much as the bankers hold the savings and deposits of many. Let no farmer fail in this sacred and important trust. Every pound of food products may be needed to prevent famine and starvation.

In 1915, in this state, 618 barns with contents burned down, amounting to a loss of $88,955.00; and 11 granaries with a loss of $10,095.00. There were 67 grain stack fires with a loss of $19,715.00. About two-thirds of all this loss was on food products.

Only three-fourths of these fires could have been prevented by ordinary care and watchfulness.

Lightning is still the farmer's worst enemy, but it can be robbed of its sting by a good lightning rod system, properly installed, such as all grounded. The 1916 fire reports give a total of 324 fires in unrodded buildings with a fire loss of $535,840.00, and 8 fires in rodded buildings with a loss of $18,190.00. Each year's records demonstrate the general efficiency of lightning rods.

Although lightning rod materials have risen in price, we cannot recommend makeshift installation. If the price of copper is prohibitive, a cheaper, yet fairly satisfactory system, may be installed by using No. 3 or No. 4 galvanized iron wire. The wire should be run in unrodded buildings with a fire loss of $535,840.00, and 8 fires in rodded buildings with a loss of $18,190.00. Each year's records demonstrate the general efficiency of lightning rods.

Children playing with matches, smokers in and around buildings and stacks, carelessness with lamps, lanterns and gasoline, unclean conditions, placing threshing engines too close to buildings and stacks, and defective stove smoke flues and chimneys are responsible for many of these fires. Each farmer can and should prevent such fires.

Few farmers have waterworks for fire protection, but all can have a few buckets handy, a few chemical extinguishers about the buildings, and a ladder to reach the roofs. With this simple equipment you may be able to reach and extinguish a fire, which otherwise may wipe out your life's savings.

Unhappy in Friendship.

Many people expect too much from their friends. They may themselves be so thoroughly genuine and sincere that they expect all their friends to be the same, and when they discover little faults in their idols they feel the disappointment most acutely. Do not pitch your standard too high, then you are less likely to have your idol shattered. Try to remember that friends will never disappoint us if we observe two simple rules: (1) to find out what they are; (2) to expect them to be just that.

The Patriotism of the American Press

The following credit was given the country press by Secretary McAdoo in helping to make the Liberty Loan a success:

The service rendered to the Government of the United States in the sale of the Liberty Loan Bonds of 1917 by the press of the country is record evidence of the generous patriotism of the newspaper men of America. It is recorded in the pages of thousands of American newspapers, many of them printed in foreign languages from the largest daily to the smallest country weekly. The newspaper of the country "came across" with liberal donations of space in news, editorial, and advertising columns.

Newspaper men have observed with deep and peculiar pleasure the whole-hearted activity of the men of their fraternity in the country in promoting the sale of the Liberty Loan Bonds. The influence and assistance of all publications in making the loan a success are simply incalculable. Their efforts have contributed to making it a double success in that it was not only largely oversubscribed but the Liberty Loan Bonds were placed in every community in the United States, in cities and remote country districts in mining towns and manufacturing centers, among farmers and country merchants as well as city bankers and large commercial and manufacturing houses.

It was a great educational campaign. Readers of their county papers in their country homes, and new American citizens from papers printed in their old language, and others just learning our language, who in the evening spelled out the news in the great daily papers, were informed of the purposes and objects of the Liberty Loan and instructed in the nature, value, and terms of Government bonds, especially the Liberty Loan Bonds of 1917. The whole nation has made a long stride forward in financial education through the Liberty Loan campaign of 1917 as conducted through the press of the country.

The country press which without compensation gave liberally of its limited space is equally deserving of praise with the larger papers. In their respective spheres all classes of publications in the country covered their field thoroughly and well. The press of America can look back on the work it performed for the Liberty Loan as a great public service, ably, thoroughly, and unselfishly performed.

And for our reward Congress is trying to pay us back as follows: Double postage, paper tax, tax on incomes, on excess profits, on freight and express receipts, telephone and telegraph, advertising receipts, miscellaneous stamp tax and last but not least making us cut out certain forms of advertising which mean a steady and glib edge income to the majority of newspaper offices.

Not of Courses but Dishes.

Three courses seem to have been the customary menu in medieval times for a state banquet, less ceremonial feasts comprising only two, and no private dinner more than one. But each course might comprise from eight to a dozen different dishes. Thus at the wedding banquet of Henry V there were only three courses, yet over 20 different dishes are mentioned in the records, irrespective of fruits and wines.—London Chronicle.

Why Pay the Peddler or Canvasser Twice These Prices?

You can save a good deal of money by buying your stock tonic at this store, instead of paying the peddler big, fancy prices for goods of unknown quality. Look at these prices for that old reliable and guaranteed stock conditioner and worm expeller—

DR. HESS STOCK TONIC

25 pound pail costs $2.00

100 lb. drum costs $6.50

Remember, we have no peddler's wagon and horse expenses to pay. That's why we can sell you Dr. Hess Stock Tonic at these rock-bottom prices.

Here is another point, Mr. Farmer, we want to emphasize, that is: Dr. Hess Stock Tonic is highly concentrated; it goes farther, as the small dose quantity proves. Dr. Hess Stock Tonic is to put your animals in a thriving condition, make the silage more healthy and expel the worms—otherwise you get your money back right here at our store. We also handle
