Local Boys Leave

Joseph Eberle, son of Mrs. Kathryn Eberle, who conducts a saloon on Main street, and Edwin Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Miller, of the town of Kewaskum, who for the past few years were employed in the A. G. Koch store, were the first two young men from this village to be called into the United States army by the selective draft. They left Sunday morning for West Bend, where they were joined by five other drafted men from the county. They left on the 4 A. M. train Sunday for Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., where they will be training for an indefinite time.
Messrs. Eberle and Miller are two of Kewaskum's most popular and industrious young men. They were given a royal send-off by their many friends who wished them God speed and a safe return home. The boys were in good humor when they left Sunday morning. They were accompanied to West Bend by about fifty people from this village, and fully appreciated the farewell given them.
That they will give a good account of themselves while in the employ of Uncle Sam leaves no doubt upon our minds. This office received a letter from Edwin Miller on Tuesday, stating that they had arrived in camp safely, and liked the work very much. They are in Battery C, 31st Artillery.

KEWASKUM HIGH SCHOOL TO OPEN MONDAY

The Kewaskum High School will reopen Monday, September 17th, for the fall term, after a three months' vacation. A large attendance is expected in both the high school and grades. The parents are urged to send their children at the opening of school, and that regular attendance be observed at the beginning as well as at any other time of the school year.
Extensive preparations have been made in getting the building in good condition, more light has been added to the recitation room on the first floor; apparatus has been added to the high school laboratory, and new equipment placed in the rooms of the grades. A large number of new volumes of reference books have been placed on the shelves in the different grades.
The following teachers have been engaged: High School—Principal, A. L. Simon; assistants, Marie Eteldorf of Madison, and Cora Berthing of Alzoma. Grammar Room—Alma Hembel of Waukesha. Intermediate Department—Elsie Guth. Primary Department—Edna Altenhofen. Music Teacher—Margaret Paas.

Health Culture

As times change, methods of business and habits of living change also. In this modern age the farmer has learned to apply machinery to his farm and has come to view agriculture as a science. He has his Farmer's Institutes, and his County Representative of Agriculture. Farm sanitation and hygiene when applied to crops and cattle have a new meaning to the farmer. To drain a field to erect a silo, to put a cement floor and ventilation systems in a barn, all of which would have been derided by the old time farmer, appear to his grandson as a good business procedure. For the expense of installation he expects to reap many fold in profits. Competition has forced the farmer to introduce modern methods. If he fails to keep up to the pace set by a more progressive neighbor his financial loss is apparent to all.
Just as surely the farmer is waking to a realization of the fact that rural sanitation applies to his home as well as to his barns; that fresh air, of which there is such an abundant supply in the country, is as necessary to the health of his chickens and milch cows. Aware of what a scientifically balanced ration means for the health and productivity of his cattle, he is asking about scientific feeding of children.
Health—public as well as individual—is largely a matter first of education, and then of habit. The great essential requisites of health—fresh air, sunshine, plain nourishing food and cleanliness—are at the command of nearly every person, especially of those who are fortunate enough to dwell in the country. Ignorance and carelessness are accountable for failure to use any or all of these requisites of good health.
The good things that we have always with us are apt to be underestimated and neglected.
Sunlight may cost a faded carpet, fresh air, a few more shovelfuls of coal. But what of that if they purchase health.

Old Soldier Dies

Joseph Kaiser, a pioneer of the town of Scott, Sheboygan county, died at the Soldiers' Home at Milwaukee, Saturday evening, September 1st, of a complication of diseases. He had been ailing for the past few years at his home in Scott and his wife being an invalid also he concluded last spring to go to the Soldiers' Home for treatment, and while there received the most skillful treatment, but all to no avail. Mr. Kaiser was a veteran of the Civil War, being a member of the 17th Wisconsin Volunteers and was with Sherman on his famous march to the sea. He was also a good kind neighbor, always willing to lend a helping hand to those who were in difficulty and no one ever sought his assistance in vain. Deceased was about 77 years of age and lived in the town of Scott since the early "fifties." The following relatives survive: his widow, John Mitchell, Phil of North Dakota; Joseph, Jr. of Minneapolis, Minn.; Gilbert and George of Montana; Mrs. Joseph Seil of Scott; Mrs. James Flanagan of Cascade and Esther at home. The funeral took place last week Wednesday with interment in the Catholic cemetery at Cascade. The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the bereaved relatives.

The Woodmen Dance

The Kewaskum Camp, Modern Woodmen of America, at their last regular monthly meeting, in the Temperance Hall, decided to hold a grand dance in the South Side Park hall on Saturday evening, September 15, 1917. An arrangement committee of three was appointed, who are sparing no pains nor time to make this spring the local one of the most enjoyable dances the local community has ever held. The Kewaskum Quintette has been engaged to furnish the music. If a good time is what you are looking for, you will surely have it if you attend this dance. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Notice—I will dispose of a bicycle at the South Side Park hall at Kewaskum on Sunday, Sept 16. Dance will follow. Music by Roden's orchestra. Ed. Fick

NEW FACTORY TO LOCATE IN THIS VILLAGE

All arrangements for the opening in our village of The Kewaskum Pocket Book Factory, a subsidiary of The Enger-Kress Pocket Book Company of West Bend, Wis., were consummated yesterday and on Monday, September 10th, the interior of the Altenhofen building on Main street in which the factory will operate will present a very busy aspect as arrangements have been made to accommodate thirty (30) employees at the very outset and as the demand arises provisions for many more will be made.
The local factory will be under the supervision of Mr. Herman Gilbert of West Bend a thoroughly experienced practical pocket book maker and as the employees become versed and skilled in the manufacture of the product all similar leather goods such as manufactured at the parent plant at West Bend will also be made locally.
For those who may not already be familiar with the line manufactured by this firm at its West Bend plant we mention that they manufacture a most complete line of leather goods, consisting of framed purses, fine card cases, coin and bill folders, bill books, pouches, wallets, lawyers brief cases, music rolls and bags together with a considerable number of others similar articles.
There is an unlimited demand and market for their product evidenced by the fact that their goods are sold through out the entire United States and Canada and prior to the war were shipped abroad, and in spite of their spacious model factory building its modern equipment and site at West Bend the goods manufactured there prove inadequate to the demand for which reason it has been found necessary for them to locate a branch here to further increase their output.
Beyond question the local plant will prove a flourishing asset to our village and community and give employment to a great many.
The Statesman joins in wishing the new industry the best of co-operation and success.

Humane Worker Coming

To Friends of the Humane Cause in Washington County:
Our collector Miss Leona Ludwig will again canvass the county in the interests of our humane society to collect annual dues and secure new members. We bespeak for her a kindly welcome. We feel certain that the thoughtful people of our county will give the Humane society the same generous support as in the past. It is very essential that we keep alive this practical and civilizing organization at this time when the spirit of hate and destruction is raging in the world. Surely, if there ever was need of humane education and organization, it is NOW. Let us work together to keep the spirit of kindness, justice and mercy alert and active in our county and in spite of discouragements maintain neighborly and friendly relations not only with our fellow-men, but with the creatures who serve us and, like ourselves, feel and suffer. You will make no mistake by giving to the Humane society your moral and financial support.
Signed:—
C. F. Leins, President, West Bend.
H. Lieven, Vice-President, Hartford.
G. A. Kuhn, Secretary, Hartford.

Christ. Tischhauser Writes

Following is a letter received at this office from our old friend, Christ. Tischhauser, of Madison, South Dakota:
Madison, Sept. 4, 1917
To the Editors of the Statesman
and all my Dear Friends:
"I am so often with you all in my thoughts and wanted to be with you on the 2nd of September, the 50th jubilee of the Elmore church, but arrived home too late from threshing on my farm near Yale, S. D., to make the trip in time. But must say that God's blessing is with us in an abundance, in all kinds of crops. I waited for some of you friends to come until July 14th, and then I gave up, hired an auto and went up to my farm, 70 miles across country, and found a bumper crop, mostly in early oats, barley and corn; also good wheat this year, yielding from 20 bushels per acre up; barley 25 to 50 and oats 30 to 70. A Mennonite colony owns two sections east and north of my farm. They had my farm rented this year at a two-thirds share. They furnished all seed and all teams to haul the grain to the elevator, grain to be divided there. They also pay all threshing bills. For hay and pasture land they pay me $1 per acre, $1.50 on an average, and is wild or prairie hay. I also get one-third on corn cribbed or to elevator free. Half rent means that the owner furnishes all seed, pays half the threshing bill, takes his share divided at machine, hires his hands. Cash rent is not much practiced here, as it is ruin to renters in a dry year. My renters had to sow 140 acres of winter wheat, got a little too much work so they changed the three varieties of grain on my place into one of barley for which they had to plow 82 acres, this they got in too late and was too loose in soil, therefore one-half a crop was realized, only 25 bushels per acre, while the first sowed on last year's corn ground, a 40 acre field brought 51 bushel per acre, another 13 acres of corn ground brought 38 bushel, total acreage 135; bushels, 4500; sold at $1.07 an acre, $1.02 renter's share, $310.40; my share, $155.20.
City of Madison is still booming in improvement in different ways. This year we have the Adkins Paving Co. here. They give employment to a lot of men. We got our Main street (called Egan avenue) paved from north end of city limits, south to depot, 12 blocks north and south and 4 blocks on the south side of the Normal campus from east to west; also 4 blocks from M. E. church east from Egan avenue. In 8 blocks from north end of city limits, down to M. E. church, we have the street on each side and the center is surrounded with a cement curbing a foot higher than the street, with rich black ground for flowers and trees. Iron electric light posts run three to each bed or block in the center, while down town in the business district the streets are full of them, with 14 foot sidewalks on each side of the street and lamp posts on the edge, near the gutters. To this Uncle Sam has had erected a modern post office building, which furnished employment for a number of men. Opposite this to the east is our Library Park, and north of this is the court house square, of which we are very proud, and a man has to travel some to find anything better located. I could write a whole lot more, but my letter is quite long already, so I will close in the hope of a day when I can get away for a hearty hand-shake with you old time friends. Best wishes to all.
Your loving friend,
Christ Tischhauser

SLAKE IN BANANAS.

Miss Ella Nelson of Whitewater, believes she holds the record for finding venomous enemies in bananas. She was removing bananas from the bunch in a local grocery store when she noticed a movement among the fruit near the stem. One of the grocery boys came to her assistance and raised one of the bananas expecting to see a tarantula. But the pencil was immediately thrown from his hand by the strike of a snake coiled among the bananas. After arming themselves with suitable weapons, the bunch of bananas, including Mr. snake, were taken outside and the occupants killed. The reptile was about two inches thick, and of a tropical breed.—Hartford Times.

BIG BATTLE FOR PETROGRAD NEAR

Rebels and Kerensky's Troops May Clash Soon.

TWO GENERALS LEAD REVOLT

Fighting Between Rival Factions May Be Raging—Kerensky Reported Slain—Baltic Fleet Loyal—Cabinet Quits.

Stockholm, Sept. 12.—An unofficial report that Premier Kerensky of Russia has been murdered has been received here.

Petrograd, Sept. 12.—With General Korniloff's "sikaya" (savage) division only about 36 miles from the capital, the split in Russia becomes hourly more acute.

The elements opposed to Premier Kerensky are receiving adherents who make the position of the provisional government decidedly precarious.

General Deinkine, commander of the armies on the northwestern front, has informed the prime minister that he will support Korniloff in his efforts to obtain the dictatorship of Muscovy, as had General Kaledine.

Threatens Isolation.

The latter, who is ataman of the Don Cossacks, declares that unless M. Kerensky gives way to Korniloff and turns over to the generalissimo full power the Cossacks will cut the Moscow railway and isolate Petrograd.

Kaledine has been infuriated with Kerensky since the recent national conference at Moscow. At this congress the Don Cossacks were deprived of their special laws and privileges, which action automatically reduced Kaledine from a general to a private soldier.

Alexander T. Guchkoff, the Octobrist leader, who formerly held the positions of president of the duma, chief of the munitions bureau and minister of war and navy ad interim, has also gone over to Korniloff and has left for the Russian field headquarters.

Baltic Fleet Loyal.

On the other hand, the Baltic fleet, with its staff officers, has placed itself by unanimous vote at the disposal of the Kerensky cabinet.

This action was taken after the commander of the Baltic station, in an order of the day, urged the fleet to watch the enemy, to avoid discussion and to submit to the orders of the provisional government.

General Verkhovsky, in command at Moscow, is expected to remain loyal, as he recently turned down an appeal from Korniloff, accompanied by a threat of arrest, to join the anti-government movement.

The famous Legion of Death (composed of women) has also rallied to the aid of the premier. Mine Butchkorova, the commander, has gone to Moscow to gather 250 recruits for the valiant battalion.

Lieut. Gen. Dmitri Stecherbatcheff, commander of the Russian forces on the Roumanian front, has ordered his armies and also the Odessa military district to take no part in the conflict, at the same time remaining true to the provisional government.

Battle at Luga.

While Korniloff's "Sikaya" division, which was formerly stationed at Pskoff and consists of Georgians and other Caucasus tribesmen, is reported to have occupied Writza, or Little Yy-rayn, on the Petrograd-Ilybinsk railway, 54 versts (36 miles) from Petrograd, the first battle for supremacy is expected to take place at Luga, about 80 miles from the capital.

Indeed, it may already be raging, though no report that an armed clash has occurred has been given out.

A Korniloff force has reached the place, and it is believed that the garrison will stand firmly by the government. Re-enforcements are being rushed from the capital.

Forces in Touch.

One of Korniloff's detachments is said to be advancing from the Narva. Both sides are still organizing and appealing for support.

Premier Kerensky is having difficulties within the capital from the extremists of both sides. Following the ultimatum of Korniloff the whole Russian cabinet resigned in order to give Premier Kerensky full liberty of action. All the ministers for the time being will remain in their offices.

Seizes Commissioner.

Korniloff, in addition to refusing to abandon his command, ordered the arrest of M. Philoninko, the government commissioner.

The provisional government, besides arresting Vladimir N. Lvoff, who brought Korniloff's ultimatum to the provisional government, took into custody 80 other persons.

Trouble for the Kerensky government is threatened by the Maximilists. At the sitting of the council of soldiers' and workmen's delegates they again urged that all power should pass into the hands of the Socialists. It was resolved at the meeting, however, that Premier Kerensky should be supported unconditionally.

General Savonkoff, the new military governor of Petrograd, in his proclamation declared every person caught acting against the revolution would be treated as a traitor.

French Penetrate German Lines in Champagne and Destroy Supplies—Gas Kills Many Teutons.

Berlin, Sept. 12.—Russian forces have begun an offensive against the Austro-German forces southeast of the Austrian crown land of Bukowina. The German general staff reports that the Russians obtained only local advantages near Solka.

London, Sept. 12.—The official report from British headquarters in France reads: "There was local fighting, in which we captured several prisoners southeast of St. Julien."

Paris, Sept. 12.—French raiding parties penetrated the German lines southeast of Vauxaillon and north of the Casque in the Champagne, the French war department announced. German supplies were destroyed and the French made a number of prisoners.

Canadian Headquarters in France, Sept. 12.—The most notable development on this part of the front in the last few days is the increasing use of gas shells by the enemy in retaliation for the frequent projection of gas cylinders into the German lines. The gas projectors have been one of the big mechanical successes of the campaign. Almost every prisoner who is brought in tells of severe losses through the use of gas against the German troops in Lens.

The amount was taken, the comptroller said, from the account of a wealthy depositor, and the bank has arranged to make good the sum. Capital and surplus of the bank, Mr. Williams said, were not impaired.

LABOR MEET CLOSING WITH ELECTION OF GOMPERS.

HOUSE APPROVES WAR BILL AUTHORIZING $11,538,945,460.

Statement of Aims Given Which Says Preservation of Democracy is Overshadowing Issue.

Great War Credit Measure is Unanimously Approved by the House—Goes to the Senate.

Minneapolis, Sept. 10.—The American Alliance for Labor and Democracy, organized three weeks ago with President Wilson's approval, concluded its big loyalty conference here on Friday with the election of officers and the adoption of a ringing declaration of principles.

Washington, Sept. 8.—The great war credit bill authorizing $11,538,945,400 in bonds and certificates passed the house unanimously on Thursday. Action by the senate as soon as the pending war tax bill is disposed of is planned by administration leaders. Not a material amendment was added to the bill by the house. Representative Moore of Pennsylvania led a group of Republicans in a futile fight for consideration of his proposal for a war expenditure committee, which was thrown out on a point of order.

The alliance, composed of the nation's labor leaders and having as its double purpose the crushing of disloyalty and the solidifying of labor in the war for democracy, by unanimous vote elected as its leader Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

If the secretary desires, under the measure, he may use some of the $17,600,000 appropriated for disposing of all the bonds and certificates in newspaper publicity. Representative Cannon of Illinois managed to obtain the adoption of a compromise amendment to exempt from taxation forever interest on bonds not in excess of $5,000. He wanted to make it $10,000, but Democratic Leader Kitchin would not agree to that.

"The overshadowing issue," the declaration says, "is preservation of democracy. Either democracy will endure and men will be free or autocracy will triumph and the race will be enslaved. To compromise now would be to sow seed for a bloodier war."

The bill authorizes the issuance of $7,538,945,400 worth of convertible 4 per cent bonds, subject to supertaxes and war profits taxes, and to terminate at the discretion of the secretary of the treasury. Of this total $4,000,000,000 worth is for a new allied loan, $3,000,000,000 worth to take over a 3 1/2 per cent issue already authorized and the remaining $538,945,400 to be used for converting certain outstanding bonds, including the Danish West Indies, Alaskan railway, Panama canal and naval construction issues.

FIND I. W. W. BOMB IN DETROIT

Evidence of Plans for General Strike of Great Lakes Seamen Found at Headquarters in Cleveland.

Issuance also is authorized of not more than $2,000,000,000 worth each of certificates of indebtedness and war savings certificates to run not more than one year and five years, respectively at rates of interest to be fixed by the secretary of the treasury. These issues are to be subject to the same taxes as the bonds.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 8.—A bomb was found during the staff confiscated in the raid on the I. W. W. headquarters in Detroit. It was revealed on Thursday. Federal officials were preparing indictments to make arrests in connection with the discovery.

United States Marshal Belkrendt advocated internment of all I. W. W.'s for the duration of the war.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 8.—Evidence of plans for a general strike of great lakes seamen is believed to have been found by federal agents in records taken in raids on I. W. W. headquarters in great lakes cities.

That the lynching of Frank Little, national I. W. W. organizer in Butte, frustrated the call of such a strike to paralyze the government's war program became known.

One Member of Medical Corps Killed and Eight Others Wounded in France.

Philadelphia, Sept. 10.—At least two men were killed and more than thirty workers, some of them girls, were injured when a series of five explosions at the Frankford arsenal destroyed five buildings. The Frankford hospital reported that it had 22 of the injured and only one of them was in a serious condition. The smallness of the casualty list is considered remarkable in view of the fact that about two hundred persons were employed in the several buildings at the time of the blasts.

London, Sept. 10.—The Germans made an aerial attack upon the American hospitals occupied by St. Louis and Harvard contingents, situated in a coast village, killing one officer of the American army medical corps and wounding three others severely. Reuters' correspondent at British headquarters in France telegraphs.

Two others of the rank and file were killed and sixteen wounded, five of the latter being Americans.

WASHINGTON REVEALS TIPS

Information of Sailing of Vessels and Directions for Their Destruction Handed by Officials—Diplomatic Relations Strained.

Washington, Sept. 11.—Diplomatic relations between the United States and Sweden are strained as the result of a discovery that German official telegrams were forwarded to Berlin through the Swedish legation at Buenos Aires. The fact that messages from German Charge d'Affaires Luxemburg at Buenos Aires to the German foreign office had been forwarded through the foreign office at Stockholm was revealed in an official statement issued on Saturday by the state department. The messages concerned the diplomatic situation in Argentine and dealt with the method to be pursued by submarines in sinking Argentine ships.

The text of the messages forwarded to Berlin by way of Stockholm is in the hands of the state department. Secretary of State Lansing made the following statement: "The department of state has secured certain telegrams from Count Luxemburg, German charge d'affaires at Buenos Aires, to the foreign office at Berlin, which, I regret to say, were dispatched from Buenos Aires by the Swedish legation at their own official messages, addressed to the Stockholm foreign office.

"The following are English translations of the German text: "May 19, 1917, No. 32.—This government has now released German and Austrian ships over which hitherto a guard has been placed. In consequence of the settlement of the Monte (Protégido) case there has been a great change in public feeling. Government will in future only clear Argentine ships as far as Las Palmas. I beg that the small steamers Oren and Guazo, 31st January (meaning which sailed 31st tons, which are (now) nearing Bordeaux with a view to change the flag, may be spared if possible, or else sunk without a trace being left ('spurious versenkt').—Luxburg."

"July 3, 1917, No. 50.—I learn from a reliable source that the acting minister for foreign affairs, who is a notorious ass and Anglophile, declared in a secret session of the senate that Argentina would demand from Berlin a promise not to sink more Argentine ships. If not agreed to, relations would be broken off. I recommend refusal, and, if necessary, calling in the mediation of Spain.—Luxburg."

"July 9, 1917, No. 64.—Without showing any tendency to make concessions, postpone reply to Argentine note until receipt of further reports. A change of ministry is probable. As regards Argentine steamers, I recommend compelling them to turn back, sinking them without leaving any traces, or letting them through. They are all quite small.—Luxburg."

RUSSIAN FLEET WILL FIGHT

Baltic Navy Forces to Make Desperate Defense of Petrograd, Officials Are Assured.

Petrograd, Sept. 8.—Russia's Baltic fleet will make a desperate defense of Petrograd and the bases of Kronstadt and Revel. Official assurances to this effect were given in dispatches to the provisional government from the commanders of those ports.

A most significant feature of this important development is that it shows that the grave new peril facing Russia since the fall of Riga is uniting the hostile political factions. A large part of the Baltic fleet has been under control of the Maximilists, who, up to the present, have maintained a hostile attitude towards the Kerensky government.

Crew of an American Ship Relates Rescue of Survivors of French Vessel.

An Atlantic Port, Sept. 8.—A series of thrilling experiences with German submarines and the rescue of 21 members of the crew of the French bark Magdalene, sunk by a submarine, were told by the crew of an American ship which docked at an American port on Thursday. Ten of the Magdalene's crew were killed and nine were wounded by shell fire. The rescue took place when the ship was about 120 miles southeast of the Azores. The Magdalene's survivors were landed at an Algerian port. They said that the U-boat sunk five other vessels.

WAR TAX BILL WINS

MEASURE PASSED BY SENATE PROVIDES LEVY OF ABOUT $2,400,000,000.

FINAL VOTE WAS 69 TO 4

All Consumption Taxes on Coffee, Tea, Sugar, Cocoa and Molasses Struck Out—La Follette's Substitute Rejected 65 to 15.

Washington, Sept. 12.—The war tax bill—the largest single taxation measure in American history—was passed by the senate. It provides for a levy somewhat under $2,400,000,000, as compared with $1,867,870,000 proposed in the bill as it passed the house May 28.

The vote was 69 to 4. Senators Borah, Gronna, La Follette and Norris being recorded in opposition. Before passage of the bill the senate struck out all consumption taxes on tea, coffee, sugar, cocoa and molasses. The vote on coffee was 51 to 27, on molasses 50 to 28 and on the other commodities 52 to 28.

The senate committee increased the war excess profits section of the bill from $562,000,000 to $1,060,000,000. The house schedule under this head was $200,000,000.

Taxation is imposed upon the war excess profits by a graduated scale system, based upon the difference between an average of profits taken during three pre-war years, and the profits of 1917.

Deductions of from 6 to 10 per cent are allowed, based on percentage of business upon the invested capital. Profits derived through professional or other occupations involving practically no capital are exempted.

Of the $342,000,000 realized from incomes, about $482,000,000 comes from individual taxes and $300,000,000 from corporation taxes. A new normal 2 per cent tax upon individuals pays $50,000,000. Surtaxes upon large incomes will yield $308,700,000. There is a new 4 per cent tax upon corporations and partnerships, which makes the tax 6 per cent in all, increasing the house bill $164,000,000.

Present exemptions from taxation of $3,000 for single men and $4,000 for married men are reduced $1,000 and $2,000 respectively. The senate committee cut out of the house bill a retroactive tax upon 1916 incomes, calculated to pay $108,000,000.

Senator La Follette's substitute war tax bill, proposing to raise about $3,500,000,000 solely from income, war profits, liquor and tobacco, had also been rejected, 65 to 15.

RUSS FLEE FROM PETROGRAD

"People," says the correspondent, "are hastily leaving the city. Outgoing trains are filled to their utmost capacity and there are tremendous queues of people at all the stations. The government is taking measures to empty the city. These steps are principally connected with the question of subsistence and are only partly the result of the military situation."

Petrograd, Sept. 12.—Premier Kerensky has ordered General Korniloff, commander in chief of the Russian armies, to resign in consequence of General Korniloff's demand for supreme power. General Klombovsky has been appointed commander in chief. Premier Kerensky has declared that a state of war exists in Petrograd.

A Story About an Experiment With Life

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

THE PRINCE OF SEYRE AND CALAVERA, THE DANCER, CONSPIRE TO ENTICE JOHN STRANGEWAY FROM HIS HONORABLE LOVE OF DAINTY LOUISE MAUREL

Synopsis.—Louise Maurel, famous actress, making a motor tour of rural England, was obliged, when her car broke down, to spend the night at the ancestral home of Stephen and John Strangeway, bachelor woman-haters, in the Cumberland district. Before she left the next day she had captivated John. Three months later he went to London and looked her up. She introduced him to her friends, among them Grailiot, a playwright, and Sophy Gerard, a light-hearted little actress. John, puritanical in his views, entered the gay bohemian life of the city with enthusiasm. It was soon seen that John and the prince of Seyre were rivals for the heart and hand of Louise. Sophy also loved John secretly.

CHAPTER XII.

Seyre House was one of the few mansions in London which boasted a banquet hall as well as a picture gallery. Although the long table was laid for forty guests, it still seemed, with its shaded lights and its profusion of flowers, like an oasis of color in the middle of the huge, somberly lighted apartment. Some of the faces of the guests were well-known to John through their published photographs; to others he had been presented by the prince upon their arrival. He was seated between a young American star of musical comedy and a lady who had only recently dropped from the social firmament through the medium of the divorce court, to return to the theater of her earlier fame. Both showed every desire to converse with him between the intervals of eating and drinking, but were constantly brought to a pause by John's lack of knowledge of current topics. After her third glass of champagne, the lady who had recently been a countess announced her intention of taking him under her wing.

"Someone must tell you all about things," she insisted. "What you need is a guide and a chaperon. Won't I do?"

"Perfectly," he agreed.

"Fair play!" protested the young lady on his left, whose name was Rosie Sharon. "I spoke to him first!"

"Jolly bad luck!" Lord Amerton drawled from the other side of the table. "Neither of you have an earthly. He's booked. Saw him out with her the other evening."

"I shan't eat any more supper," Rosie Sharon pouted, pushing away her plate.

"You ought to have told us about her at once," the lady who had been a countess declared severely.

John preserved his equanimity.

"It is to be presumed," he murmured, "that you ladies are both free from any present attachment?"

"Got you there?" Amerton chuckled. "What about Billy?"

Rosie Sharon sighed.

Go Quickly, and Come Back Quickly. I Wait for You.

John felt as if he were walking in a dream. Volition seemed to have left him. He only knew that the still, white hand upon his arm seemed like a vise burning into his flesh.

She led him to the end of the corridor, through another door, into a small room furnished in plain but comfortable fashion.

fetch me some, and bring it to me yourself?"

She sank back upon a divan as she spoke. John turned to leave the room, but she called him back.

"Come here," she invited, "close to my side! I can wait for the champagne. Tell me, why you are so silent? And my dancing—that pleased you?"

He felt the words stick in his throat. "Your dancing was indeed wonderful," he stammered.

"It was for you!" she whispered, her voice growing softer and lower. "It was for you I danced. Did you not feel it?"

Her arms stole toward him. The unnatural calm with which she had finished her dance seemed suddenly to pass. Her bosom was rising and falling more quickly. There was a faint spot of color in her cheek.

"It was wonderful," he told her. "I will get you the champagne."

Her lips were parted. She smiled up at him.

"Go quickly," she whispered, "and come back quickly! I wait for you."

He left the room and passed out again into the picture gallery before he had the least idea where he was. The band was playing a waltz, and one or two couples were dancing. The people seemed suddenly to have become like puppets in some strange, unreal dream. He felt an almost feverish longing for the open air, for a long draft of the fresh sweetness of the night, far away from this overheated atmosphere charged with unnamable things.

As he passed through the farther doorway he came face to face with the prince.

"Where are you going?" the latter asked.

"Mademoiselle Calavera has asked me to get her some champagne," he answered.

The prince smiled.

"I will see that it is sent to her at once," he promised. "You are in my sanctum, are you not? You can pursue your tete-a-tete there without interruption. You are very much envied."

"Mademoiselle Calavera is there," John replied. "As for me, I am afraid I shall have to go now."

The smile faded from the prince's lips. His eyebrows came slowly together.

"You are leaving?" he repeated.

"I must!" John insisted. "I can't help it. Forgive my behaving like a boor, but I must go. Good night!"

The prince stretched out his hand, but he was too late.

John found himself, after a few minutes' hurried walking, in Piccadilly. He turned abruptly down Duke street and made his way to St. James' park. From here he walked slowly eastward. When he reached the Strand, however, the storm in his soul was still unabated. He turned away from the Milan. The turmoil of his passions drove him to the thoughts of flight. Half an hour later he entered St. Pancras station.

"What time is the next train north to Kendal or Carlisle?" he inquired.

The porter stared at him. John's evening clothes were spattered with mud, the raindrops were glistening on his coat and face, and his silk hat was ruined. It was not only his clothes, however, which attracted the man's attention. There was the strained look of a fugitive in John's face, a fugitive flying from some threatened fate.

"The newspaper train at five thirty is the earliest, sir," he said. "I don't know whether you can get to Kendal by it, but it stops at Carlisle."

John looked at the clock. There was an hour to wait. He wandered about the station, gloomy, chilled, deserted. The place sickened him, and he strolled out into the streets again. By chance he left the station by the same exit as on the day of his arrival in London. He stopped short.

How could he have forgotten, even for a moment? This was not the world which he had come to discover. This was just some plague-spot upon which he had stumbled. Through the murky dawn and across the ugly streets he looked into Louise's drawing-room. She would be there waiting for him on the morrow!

Louise! The thought of her was like a sweet, purifying stimulant. He felt the throbbing of his nerves soothed. He felt himself growing calm. The terror of the last few hours was like a nightmare which had passed. He summoned a taxicab and was driven to the Milan. His wanderings for the night were over.

CHAPTER XIII.

Sophy Gerard sat in the little back room of Louise's house, which the latter called her den, but which she seldom entered. The little actress was looking very trim and neat in a simple blue serge costume which fitted her to perfection, her hair very primly arranged and tied up with a bow. She had a pen in her mouth, there was a sheaf of bills before her, and an open housekeeping book lay on her knee. She had been busy for the last half hour making calculations, the result of which had brought a frown to her face.

"There is no doubt about it," she decided. "Louise is extravagant!"

The door opened, and Louise herself, in a gray morning gown of some soft material, with a bunch of deep-red roses at her waist, looked into the room.

"Why, little girl," she exclaimed, "how long have you been here?"

"All the morning," Sophy replied. "I took the dogs out, and then I started on your housekeeping book and the bills. Your checks will have to be larger than ever this month, Louise, and I don't see how you can possibly draw them unless you go and see your bankers first."

Louise threw herself into an easy chair.

"Dear me!" she sighed. "I thought I had been so careful!"

"How can you talk about being careful?" Sophy protested, tapping the pile of bills with her forefinger. "You seem to be overdrawn already."

"I will see to that," Louise promised. "The bank manager is such a charming person. Besides, what are banks for but to oblige their clients? How pale you look, little girl! Were you out late last night?"

Sophy swung around in her place. "I am all right. I spent the evening in my rooms and went to bed at eleven o'clock. Who's lurching with you? I see the table is laid for two."

Louise glanced at the clock upon the mantelpiece.

"Mr. Strangeway," she replied. "I suppose he will be here in a minute or two."

Sophy dropped the housekeeping book and jumped up.

"I'd better go, then."

"Of course not," Louise answered. "You must stay to lunch. Ring the bell and tell them to lay a place for you. Afterward, if you like, you may come in here and finish brooding over these wretched bills while Mr. Strangeway talks to me."

Sophy came suddenly across the room and sank on the floor at Louise's feet.

"What are you going to do about Mr. Strangeway, Louise?" she asked wistfully.

"What am I going to do about him?"

"He is in love with you," Sophy continued. "I am sure—I am almost sure of it."

Louise's laugh was unconvincing.

"You foolish child!" she exclaimed. "I believe that you have been worrying. Why do you think so much about other people?"

"Please tell me," Sophy begged. "I want to understand how things really are between you and John Strangeway. Are you in love with him?"

Louise's eyes were soft and dreamy.

"I wish I knew," she answered. "If I am, then there are things in life more wonderful than I have ever dreamed of. He doesn't live in our world—and our world, as you know, has its grip. He knows nothing about my art, and you can guess what life would be to me without that. What future could there be for him and for me together? I cannot remake myself."

There was something in Sophy's face that was almost like wonder.

"So this is the meaning of the change in you, Louise! I knew that something had happened. You have seemed so different for the last few months."

There was a knock at the door, and the parlor maid entered.

"Mr. Strangeway, madam," she announced.

Louise looked at John curiously as she greeted him. His face showed few signs of the struggle through which he had passed, but the grim setting of his lips reminded her a little of his brother. He had lost, too, something of the boyishness, the simple light-heartedness of the day before. Instinctively she felt that the battle had begun. She asked him nothing about the supper party, and Sophy, quick to follow her lead, also avoided the subject.

Luncheon was not a lengthy meal, and immediately its service was concluded, Sophy rose to her feet with a sigh.

"I must go and finish my work," she declared. "Let me have the den to myself for at least an hour, please, Louise. It will take me longer than that to muddle through your books."

Louise led the way upstairs into the cool, white drawing room, with its flower-perfumed atmosphere and its delicate, shadowy air of repose. She curled herself up in a corner of the divan and gave John his coffee. Then she leaned back and looked at him.

"So you have really come to London, Mr. Countryman?"

"I have followed you," he answered. "I think you knew that I would. I tried not to," he went on, after a moment's pause. "I fought against it as hard as I could; but in the end I had to give in. I came for you."

Louise's capacity for fencing seemed suddenly enfeebled. A frontal attack of such directness was irresistible.

"For me?" she repeated weakly.

"Of course," he replied. "None of your arguments would have brought me here. If I have desired to understand this world at all, it is because it is your world. It is you I want—don't you understand that? I thought you would know it from the first moment you saw me!"

He was suddenly on his feet, leaning over her, a changed man, masterful, passionate. She opened her lips, but said nothing. She felt herself lifted up, clasped for a moment in his arms. Unresisting, she felt the fire of his kisses. The world seemed to have stopped. Then she tried to push him away, weakly, and against her own will. At her first movement he laid her tenderly back in her place.

"I am sorry," he said. "And yet I am not," he added, drawing his chair close up to her side. "I am glad. You knew that I loved you, Louise. You knew that it was for you I had come."

She was beginning to collect herself. Her brain was at work again; but she was conscious of a new confusion in her senses, a new element in her life. She was no longer sure of herself.

"Listen," she begged earnestly. "Be reasonable! How could I marry you? Do you think that I could live with you up there in the hills?"

"We will live," he promised, "anywhere you choose in the world."

"Ah, no!" she continued, patting his hand. "You know what your life is, the things you want in life. You don't know mine yet. There is my work. You cannot think how wonderful it is to me. You don't know the things that fill my brain from day to day, the thoughts that direct my life. I cannot marry you just because—because—"

"Because what?" he interrupted eagerly.

"Because you make me feel—something I don't understand, because you come and you turn the world, for a few minutes, topsy-turvy. But that is all foolishness, isn't it? Life isn't built up of emotions. What I want you to understand, and what you please must understand, is that at present our lives are so far, so very far, apart. I do not feel I could be happy leading yours, and you do not understand mine."

"I have come to find out about yours," John explained. "That is why I am here. Perhaps I ought to have waited a little time before I spoke to you as I did just now. But I will serve my apprenticeship. I will try to get into sympathy with the things that please you. It will not take me long. As soon as you feel that we are drawing closer together, I will ask you again what I have asked you this afternoon. In the meantime, I may be your friend, may I not? You will let me see a great deal of you? You will help me just a little?"

Louise leaned back in her chair. She had been carried off her feet, brought face to face with emotions which she dated not analyze. Perhaps, after all her self-dissection, there were still secret chambers. She thought almost with fear of what they might contain. Her sense of superiority was vanishing. She was, after all, like other women.

"Yes," she promised, "I will help. We will leave it at that. Some day you shall talk to me again, if you like. In the meantime, remember we are both free: You have not known many women, and you may change your mind when you have been longer in London. Perhaps it will be better for you if you do!"

"That is quite impossible," John said firmly. "You see," he went on, looking at her with shining eyes, "I know now what I half believed from the first moment that I saw you. I love you!"

Springing restlessly to her feet, she walked across the room and back again. Action of some sort seemed imperative. A curious hypnotic feeling seemed to be dulling all her powers of resistance. She looked into her life and she was terrified. Everything had grown insignificant. It couldn't really be possible that with her brains, her experience, this man who had dwelt all his life in the simple ways had yet the power to show her the path toward the greater things! She felt like a child again. She trembled a little as she sat down by his side. It was not in this fashion that she had intended to bear what he had to say.

"I don't know what is the matter with me today," she murmured distractedly. "I think I must send you away. You disturb my thoughts. I can't see life clearly. Don't hope for too much from me," she begged. "But don't go away," she added, with a sudden irresistible impulse of anxiety. "Oh, I wish—I wish you understood me and everything about me, without my having to say a word!"

"I feel what you are," he answered, "and that is sufficient."

Once more she rose to her feet and walked across to the window. An automobile had stopped in the street below. She looked down upon it with a sudden frozen feeling of apprehension.

John moved to her side, and for him, too, the joy of those few moments was clouded. A little shiver of presentiment took its place. He recognized the footman whom he saw standing upon the pavement.

"It is the prince of Seyre," Louise faltered.

"Send him away," John begged. "We haven't finished yet. I won't say anything more to upset you. What I want now is some practical guidance."

"I cannot send him away!"

John glanced toward her and hated himself for his fierce jealousy. She was looking very white and very pathetic. The light had gone from her eyes. He felt suddenly dominant, and, with that feeling, there came all the generosity of the conqueror.

"Good-by!" he said. "Perhaps I can see you sometime tomorrow."

He raised her hand to his lips and kissed her fingers, one by one. Then he left the room. She listened to his footsteps descending the stairs, firm, resolute, deliberate. They paused, there was the sound of voices—the prince and he were exchanging greetings; then she heard other footsteps ascending lighter, smoother, yet just as deliberate.

Her face grew paler as she listened. There was something which sounded to her almost like the beating of fate in the slow, inevitable approach of this unseen visitor.

CHAPTER XIV.

Henri Grailiot had made himself thoroughly comfortable. He was ensconced in the largest of John's easy chairs, his pipe in his mouth, a recently refilled teacup—Grailiot was English in nothing except his predilection for tea—on the small table by his side. Through a little cloud of tobacco smoke he was studying his host.

"So you call yourself a Londoner now, my young friend, I suppose," he remarked, taking pensive note of John's fashionable clothes. "It is a transformation, beyond a doubt! Is it, I wonder, upon the surface only, or have you indeed become heart and soul a son of this corrupt city?"

"Whatever I may have become," John grumbled, "it's meant three months of the hardest work I've ever done!"

Grailiot held out his pipe in front of him and blew away a dense cloud of smoke.

"Explain yourself," he insisted.

John stood on the hearth-rug, with his hands in his pockets. His morning clothes were exceedingly well cut, his tie and collar unexceptionable, his hair closely cropped according to the fashion of the moment. He had an extremely civilized air.

"Look here, Grailiot," he said. "I'll tell you what I've done, although I don't suppose you would understand what it means to me. I've visited practically every theater in London."

"Alone?"

"Alone?"

"Alone?"

"Alone?"

"Alone?"

CRISIS OF WOMAN'S LIFE

Change Safely Passed by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Wagoner, Okla.—"I never get tired of praising Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because during Change of Life I was in bed two years and had two operations, but all the doctors and operations did me no good, and I would have been in my grave today had it not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, back aches, dizziness, drowsiness, faintness, tremors, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and dizziness should be heeded by middle-aged women. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has carried many women safely through the crisis.

Danger From Lightning.

Be careful about carrying pitchforks or umbrellas during a thunder-shower or of seeking the protection of trees. Keep away from the stove or the fire place. Pull your bed away from the walls into the center of the room if the storm is violent and place a plate or cup beneath each bedpost. Glass is a nonconductor. Trees, water, iron and copper are conductors.—Greens Fruit Grower.

Reproof Not Effective.

The new maid would not rise early enough. Gentle reproof seemed vain and finally the master and mistress tried the infernal method of blame and left the damsel asleep whilst they prepared the breakfast for themselves.

"We'll shame her to it," said the master.

Not a word was said until nine o'clock the same evening, when the girl tapped at the door of the sitting room.

"Is there anything else I can do, mum?" she respectfully inquired.

There was nothing and she turned to go to bed, but at the door remembered something.

"If you're down before me in the morning, mum," she observed, "you'll find the eggs in the icebox in the pantry."

Quick Punch.

The daily pinhole game in the smoker was going on as usual when suddenly one of the commuters jumped to his feet and yelled wildly for the newsboy.

"Give us a new deck of cards, quick," he cried when the boy answered his summons. "The conductor just punched the ace of diamonds instead of my commutation ticket."

No Amateur Stuff.

"The Browns have invited us to dinner."

"Good. I'd rather eat there than anywhere else."

"Why?"

"All the vegetables they serve were raised by professionals."

Why Do Rifle Barrels Burst?
Although shotguns and rifles are tested with loads which give pressures far above those produced by ordinary ammunition, swollen or burst gun barrels are not uncommon. The cause is either attributed to defective ammunition or to an obstruction in the bore, such as snow or dirt. The pressure of the powder gases themselves are not to blame, for investigation has proved that the swelling or rupture is caused by the compression of the air between the bullet and the obstruction.—Popular Science Monthly.

PATRIOTIC AIM OF PRESS OF THE STATE

Effect Organization at Milwaukee and Richard Lloyd Jones Elected President.

BRANCH OF LOYALTY LEGION

Newspapers of State Form Patriotic Press Association and Will Carry on a Vigorous Campaign for Loyalty to State and Nation.

Madison.—The newspaper men of the state met at Milwaukee and organized the Wisconsin Patriotic Press association and elected Richard Lloyd Jones as president.

A. M. Brayton of La Crosse was elected vice president and Charles E. Broughton of Sheboygan, treasurer.

The association will be a subsidiary of the Wisconsin Loyalty legion and the secretary of the legion will be secretary of the association.

J. E. Moriarty is acting temporarily, but Walter S. Goodland of Racine will be permanent secretary.

His office will be at No. 223, First National Bank building, Milwaukee.

President Jones will appoint an executive committee of five.

The purpose of the organization was declared to be "to unite the daily and weekly newspapers of Wisconsin in a campaign for patriotic education; to combat sedition; to bring all the people of Wisconsin to a full understanding of the issues of the war and the danger that confronts the United States in the event of a German victory; to promote the work of the Wisconsin Loyalty legion and other patriotic societies in the state and nation that are working for the defeat of German autocracy; to do all within the power of the press to enlist every man, woman and child in Wisconsin as a member of the legion."

The industrial commission has been receiving letters and telegrams of inquiry regarding the new child labor law, which went into effect September 1.

Employers throughout the state appear to be anxious to comply with the new state law and the federal child labor law which also became effective September 1.

"There is an unavoidable delay in supplying the issuing officers with blanks for the issuance of permits," said George P. Hambrecht, chairman of the industrial commission, on Saturday.

"This delay was due to the fact that it was necessary to make the rules and procedure under the state law conform strictly with those under the federal law." To bring about this result Mr. Hambrecht late in July went to Washington to the federal department of labor to harmonize the Wisconsin rules with federal requirements.

"By adopting the course we did," said Mr. Hambrecht, "the federal labor department designated the industrial commission as its agent to issue labor permits acceptable to the federal government. The permits which are now being issued in Wisconsin will be accepted by the federal government as meeting its requirements."

Many of these permits will be issued to children between sixteen and seventeen years of age who are now for the first time required to have permits. All children between fourteen and seventeen, except those working on farms or in domestic service in cities in which there are no vocational schools are required to have permits under the law.

Regulations governing the proof of age of minors who apply for labor permits were published by the industrial commission. These regulations were made in accordance with the provisions of the law passed by the last legislature, giving the commission power to determine what proof of age must be presented before children can secure permits.

The regulations of the commission provide that in all cases where it is possible to do so children between fourteen and sixteen years of age must present a birth certificate, or an attested transcript thereof. In case such proof cannot be furnished, the issuing officers may accept other documentary evidence, such as a bona fide record of the child's birth in the family Bible, a passport, a certificate of arrival issued by immigration officers, or a life insurance policy.

The attorney general has ruled that permits issued heretofore to children between fourteen and sixteen years of age are effective until their date of expiration, despite the change in the child law. Such children do not now need to procure new permits.

Fitzgerald Heads Coal Control.

W. H. Fitzgerald, Milwaukee, was appointed by Gov. E. L. Phillip as Wisconsin's coal representative to cooperate with the federal government to reach a settlement of the coal problem.

Fitzgerald will proceed to Milwaukee where he will collect data and will then go to Cleveland. The first thing that will be attempted will be to secure the routing of a certain number of loaded coal vessels for Lake Michigan ports so that Wisconsin may be protected.

To Continue Bulletin Service.

To aid the farmers and agricultural workers of the state in helping the nation to fill its "food and feed barrels," the agricultural committee of the Wisconsin Bankers' association will for the fifth successive year issue and distribute throughout the state a series of farmers' bulletins.

These bulletins, rated as the best of their kind published anywhere in this country, have been issued in large editions and, in several instances, reprinted in this and other states.

The subjects for the 1917-18 series are:

- November, "How, When and Why, Organize and Standardize Production;" December, "When a 'Feller' Needs a Friend;" January, "What Is Clean Milk Worth?"; February, "A Convenient Farm Home;" March, "Treat Seed Grains to Control Smuts and Blights;" April, "How to Care for Sick Animals;" May, "Some Farm Home Conveniences;" June, "Build a Silo;" July, "Hot Weather Hints;" August, "Heating the Farm Home;" September, "What a Country Agent Can Do;" and October, "How to Use a Cow-Testing Association."

Good Small Grain Yield.

Small grains are showing yields fully up to or greater than the estimates made during the growing season, according to the joint crop report issued at Madison. The potato crop continues to improve, especially in the large potato-growing counties in the central part of the state. No damage from late blight is yet reported, but frost has injured the vines in some of the northern counties, while drought in the territory south of Madison will curtail yields.

The corn crop is not in a satisfactory condition, being from two to three weeks late. A large percentage of the crop is in danger of being injured by frost before maturity. While considerable corn in southern Wisconsin is commencing to ripen, it will require three weeks of favorable weather without killing frosts to insure an average crop for the state as a whole. A large number of silos are being built throughout the state.

Income Tax Fixed.

The income tax assessed in Wisconsin this year will reach about $7,000,000.

This is the opinion of Nils P. Haugen, chairman of the state tax commission, who has been examining data for the present assessment.

This would be an increase of over $1,500,000 over the tax last year. Taxes on individuals will be larger than previously. Because of the fact that Wisconsin allows personal property as an offset it is probable that only about one-half of this amount will be collected in actual cash.

For last year the assessment aggregated $5,344,383.51. Of this, $3,745,180.16 was assessed against corporations and $1,600,203.35 against individuals.

The tax assessed last year was the record tax since the law went into effect. In 1912 the total income tax amounted to $3,842,145.61; in 1913 to $4,084,497.40; in 1914 the assessment was $4,145,676.48, and for 1915, which was considered poor, the assessment was $3,857,370.04.

State Treasurer's Report.

In his report to Governor Phillip, State Treasurer Henry Johnson shows there was on hand September 1 in 1916 in the state treasury $1,889,801.38, as compared with $3,545,473.02 on August 1, 1917, and with $2,952,997.57 on September 1, 1916. The general fund shows a balance of $559,623.00 as compared with $584,224.95 a year ago. The statement of all funds for the month of August is as follows:

On hand August 1.....$3,545,473.02 Receipts..... 350,112.50

Total.....$3,895,585.52 Disbursements.....$1,995,772.14

Balance.....$1,899,813.38

The statement of the general fund is as follows:

On hand August 1.....$1,991,232.62 Receipts..... 151,168.90

Total.....$2,142,401.52 Disbursements.....$1,582,777.34

Balance.....$559,623.63

The balance in the school fund income September 1 is $350,061.97 as compared with $385,910.76 last year. The university fund income shows a balance of $574,247.90 compared with $290,038.93.

Firms Delinquent in Reports.

Secretary of State Merin Hull by letter and newspaper publication notified 600 Wisconsin corporations that they are delinquent in filing their annual reports with him and that unless they file their reports before January 1, next, they will forfeit their charters. A fee of $12.00 will be charged each delinquent company for filing its report. The time for filing the reports without charge expired on March 1.

Meatless Day for State.

One meatless and one wheatless day in every week has been ordered by Magnus Swenson, food administrator of Wisconsin, who is acting under orders from Herbert Hoover. The 7,000 hotels and restaurants in the state will be asked to establish these days as a matter of patriotic duty. The food administration law has broad powers, but so far as Wisconsin is concerned Mr. Swenson does not believe there will be any need of its application. He is relying upon patriotism of hotelmen and others for the success of this campaign.

A Good Time?

People are always being misunderstood; especially the man whose idea of showing a friend a good time is to take him out in a racing car and hand him the reins of his life.

LEADS MILLION WOMEN IN WAR WORK

Mrs. H. H. Morgan, Member of Wisconsin State Council of Defense, Is First Woman in Nation to Receive Such Appointment.

Five days a week and any hour of the day the woman who represents more than one million women in Wisconsin is to be found—always most accessible—at her orderly desk in the offices of the State Council of Defense in the west wing of Wisconsin's capitol.

Six days after war was declared the state of Wisconsin, which has pioneered in innumerable industrial and social reforms, pioneered again, not only in organizing a state defense council before any other commonwealth, but in providing for a woman member on that important board.

On April 10, 1917, the governor of Wisconsin signed the bill which created the Wisconsin Council of Defense, which was to co-operate with the Council of National Defense in the mighty work of preparing this nation to defend its liberties. On that council of 12 members, representing every phase of activity in the state, was named but one woman whose business it is to look after and guard the interests of the 1,125,000 women in Wisconsin.

On April 16, Mrs. H. H. Morgan of Madison was appointed by Governor Philipp a member of the Council Imperial commission. This committee has assisted in securing women workers in eight pea canneries, to obviate the necessity of working the women and children already employed longer hours during the rush season.

3. Registration—Chairman, Mrs. John W. Mariner. To distribute blanks for registration for women's service, which blanks were furnished by the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense.

4. Conservation—Chairman, Miss Abby L. Marlatt. This committee has reported conservation talks and demonstrations made in forty-seven counties out of seventy-one, also canning clubs and centers. An extensive training course for canning demonstrators was given for one week during summer session at the University, 392 women taking the course. Food pledge cards were distributed in forty-eight counties.

5. Social Welfare—Chairman, Mrs. W. A. Lawson. Some work has been done at the camp at Sparta by Mrs. Donald Price, representing the Department of War, Washington.

6. Education—Emergency Vocational Education—Chairman, Mrs. H. M. Youmans. Americanization—

Mrs. H. H. Morgan

mediately after, on May 11, Mrs. Morgan was appointed by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, chairman of the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense as chairman of Wisconsin Division of the Woman's Committee.

Thus clothed with power by virtue of her national and state appointments, Mrs. Morgan initiated her work for the women of Wisconsin in this war crisis. She appointed her Woman's Committee on May 4 to assist in the organization of the women's work in the state. It is a representative body, numbering on it the heads of all these women's organizations which have five or more local organizations in the state or a membership of 100 outside of the city in which the organization has its headquarters.

Its members are:

Mrs. H. H. Morgan, Madison, chairman.
Mrs. E. L. Maloney, Fond du Lac, Women's Relief Corps.
Mrs. John P. Hume, Milwaukee, Daughters of the American Revolution.
Mrs. Wm. Kittle, Madison, Wisconsin Consumers' League.
Mrs. H. M. Youmans, Waukesha, Wisconsin Woman's Suffrage Association.

Mrs. John W. Mariner, Milwaukee, National League for Woman's Service in Wisconsin.

Miss Abby L. Marlatt, Madison, Home Economics Department, University of Wisconsin.

Mrs. L. D. Harvey, Menomonie, Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. W. A. Lawson, Milwaukee, Women's Christian Temperance Union.
Mrs. Joseph A. Schumacher, Milwaukee, State Conference of Catholic Women's Clubs.

Mrs. George H. Noyes, Milwaukee, Association of Collegiate Alumnae.
Mrs. Mary F. Grimshaw, Elroy, Order of Eastern Star.

Mrs. Carroll M. Towne, Milwaukee, United States Daughters of 1812.
Mrs. Imogene Hatch, Eau Claire, Ladies of the G. A. R.

Mrs. J. A. Aylward, Madison, at large.
Mrs. Joseph W. Hobbins, Madison, at large.

Mrs. V. A. C. Henmon, Madison, speakers.
Miss Amy Comstock, Madison, publicity.

Mrs. Mary Grimshaw, child welfare. Each of these women in turn heads a sub-committee for the organization of the state to consider and administer some one of the multitudinous phases of preparedness which the Woman's Committee is undertaking for soldier and civilian alike. The committees, with the chairmen, will give some idea of the scope of the work in hand.

1. Home and Foreign Relief—Chairman, Mrs. E. L. Maloney. This committee has looked after the welfare of soldiers on guard duty throughout the state.

2. Women and Children in Industry—Chairman, Mrs. William Kittle. To co-operate with Wisconsin Industrial commission. This committee has assisted in securing women workers in eight pea canneries, to obviate the necessity of working the women and children already employed longer hours during the rush season.

3. Registration—Chairman, Mrs. John W. Mariner. To distribute blanks for registration for women's service, which blanks were furnished by the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense.

The Helping Hand.

"He who makes of himself an uplifting force for others will himself be lifted up, he who helps others on the downward path cannot ascend. The man who is always ready to give his fellow man a shove downward is a poor climber. The man whose hand is always a helping hand finds helping hands everywhere reaching down to give him a pull upward."

Why Pay the Peddler or Canvasser Twice These Prices?

You can save a good deal of money by buying your stock tonic at this store, instead of paying the peddler big, fancy prices for goods of unknown quality. Look at these prices for that old reliable and guaranteed stock conditioner and worm expeller—

DR. HESS STOCK TONIC
25 pound pail costs $2.00
100 lb. drum costs $6.50

Remember, we have no peddler's wagon and horses' expenses to pay. That's why we can sell you Dr. Hess Stock Tonic at these rock-bottom prices.

Here is another point, Mr. Farmer, we want to emphasize, that is: Dr. Hess Stock Tonic is highly concentrated; it goes farther, as the small dose quantity proves. Dr. Hess Stock Tonic is to put your animals in a thriving condition, make the ailing ones healthy and expel eye worms—otherwise you get your money back right here at our store. We also handle

Dr. Hess Dip and Disinfectant
Dr. Hess Poult Pan-a-ee-a

Experience the Best Teacher.
It is generally admitted that experience is the best teacher, but should we not make use of the experience of others as well as our own? The experience of a thousand persons is more to be depended upon than that of one individual. Many thousands of persons have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs and colds with the best results, which shows it to be a thoroughly reliable preparation for those diseases. Try it. It is prompt and effectual and pleasant to take.
