CASCADE

Mrs. Herman Ninneman is on the sick list. Mrs. Wm. Hulee spent Tuesday in Sheboygan. Rev. M. Lulu Hinde left Friday morning for Manchester, Iowa. Marvin Hughes has purchased the farm of the late Oscar Liebetrau. Miss Effie Halsteau spent Thanksgiving with her parents at Plymouth. Mrs. J. W. Doherty has been ill and confined to her bed the past few days. The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Arno Butters gave them a shower at John Forke's Friday. Fred Augustin, who recently purchased the Paul Buelke farm was a caller here recently. Mrs. Ed. Aschenbach of Sheboygan visited her sister, Mrs. Wm. Hulee over Thanksgiving. The Cascade Telephone Co., installed new phones for Geo. McGrain and Herman Plautz this week. Miss Anna Tunn returned Saturday from Milwaukee, where she spent several days with relatives. Sister Mary Martha of the Convent at Chilton spent Thanksgiving with her brother Adam Gates. Miss Barbara Pfueger of Milwaukee spent the past week with her friend, Mrs. Ethel Soderstrom. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Ulrich entertained a company of friends at a house-warming, Sunday night. Misses Mary and Margaret Reilly of Elkhardt Lake spent a few days of last week with their brother Philip Reilly. Mrs. John Forke and Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Liebenstein are attending an A. S. of E. convention in Green Bay this week. Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Berg celebrated the latter's birthday, by entertaining the Farmer's Card Club on Wednesday evening. Louis Buss, who has been living on the James Fork place the past year has hired out to O. E. Roentgen for the coming year. Rev. Owen of Waldo will deliver a sermon at the U. B. church on Sunday during the absence of Miss Hinde, the regular pastor. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Carlston, who have been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Thomas returned Friday to their home in Michigan City, Ind. Mr. Buss and family are contemplating moving into the village next week and will occupy Mike Dooley's house for the present. Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Butters will celebrate the 32nd anniversary of their marriage, with a house-warming in their elegantly remodeled home. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lammers and daughters Evah and Mabelle, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Clark and daughter Vivian, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bradley and daughters Beryl and Bernice from here and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lammers of Sheboygan spent Sunday in Plymouth with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lammers. Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Clark entertained the following at a family dinner on Thanksgiving Day: Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lammers and Misses Evah and Mabelle Lammers, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Bradley and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lammers and son Aron, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lammers, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Liebenstein and son Wesley and Ben. Juers. Marvel Petersen and Lawrence Devine sprung a surprise on their friends, when they slipped away and were quietly married on Thanksgiving morning. The bride who is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Petersen was dressed in a becoming suit of peacock blue, with hat, shoes and gloves of grey. They returned home after a brief trip to Racine, Kenosha and Milwaukee. They have not as yet decided where they will make their future home. A very pretty wedding took place at the home of S. R. Payne, when their youngest daughter, Susie became the wife of Orion M. McIntyre. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Miss Hinde at 6 P. M., after which supper was served to thirty guests. The bride wore a very becoming gown of blue satin with white trimmings and carried bridal roses. The home was prettily decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums. Both Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre are too well known to need eulogy as both have been residents of this county all their lives except for a short time which Mr. McIntyre spent in the West. Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre will reside on his father's farm east of this village for the present, where their many friends wish them every joy.

DEATH CLAIMS PROMINENT PEOPLE

HENRY WERNER Again the grim reaper of death has taken from our midst one of our oldest pioneer residents, namely, Henry Werner, who, after having reached the 90th mile-stone of his life, passed quietly away at his home in this village on Tuesday afternoon at one o'clock, December 4th, 1917, after an illness of several years duration with kidney trouble and old age. Mr. Werner was born on June 25th, 1827, in Pfersfeld Rhine Province, Germany, where he grew to manhood. In 1852, he immigrated to America, settling in Germantown, where he resided for two years, in 1854 he moved to the town of Wayne, where he made his home for 36 years. In 1890 he came to his present home in this village. On July 3rd, 1853, he was united in marriage to Miss Katherine E. Martin, who preceded him in death on January 3rd, 1893. Their union was blessed with seven children, three of whom survive and whose names are: Henry of Bloomer, Wis.; Katherine (Mrs. Endlich) and Elizabeth at home one adopted son, William of Alvin, Texas. Besides these he leaves to mourn his demise, 12 grand-children and 11 great-grand-children.

Deceased was a true christian and held many prominent offices in his congregation for which he did much to uplift and maintain same. Although passing through many of the hardships of pioneer days, he faced life's battles with a firm countenance. He was a man in whose integrity his countless friends and neighbors had good faith. Suffering intensely from his illness for many years, he bore his pains unflinchingly, and always tried to make the least of them until old age forced his strong constitution to give way, and he welcomed death with a great relief. The funeral was held on Friday afternoon at one o'clock from his home with services in the Ev. Luth. St. Lucas church, interment in the congregations cemetery. Rev. Greve officiating. Six nephews of the deceased acted as pall bearers.

DEATH OF MRS. PERRY NIGH

At her home in the town of Auburn occurred the death of Mrs. Perry Nigh (nee Miss Margaret Mahberg) after a lingering illness of fourteen months duration with carcinoma of the liver. Deceased was born on February 2, 1865, in the town of Auburn, where she spent her early life. On November 7th, 1893, she was married to Perry Nigh, shortly after their marriage they moved on a farm in the town of Auburn, where she resided up to the time of her early demise. Three children were born to this union, all of whom together with their grief stricken husband survive, and whose names are: Elmer, Walter and Lester, all at home. Mrs. Nigh, who was well and favorably known by a large circle of warm friends, was a good christian, being a member of the Married Ladies Sodality Society at the local Catholic church. She was also a member of the local branch of Royal Neighbors of America. The funeral was held on Wednesday forenoon with services in the Holy Trinity Catholic church. Interment was made in the congregations cemetery. Rev. Father Vogt officiating.

THE STATE TAXES

Washington county's share in raising the State Taxes this year will be $59,323.22, according to the apportionment received by County Clerk R. G. Kraemer. The State taxes this year are somewhat higher than last year, the difference being $3,758.34. The State tax levy is divided among the towns as follows: Addison $4,731.03 Barton $2,429.29 Erin $2,806.75 Farmington $4,211.17 Germantown $4,783.16 Hartford $4,265.34 Kewaskum $2,116.66 Polk $3,428.88 Richfield $3,745.67 Trenton $3,313.20 Wayne $3,732.02 West Bend Town $2,650.52 Jackson Village $440.18 Kewaskum Village $1,485.08 Schleisingerville $950.95 Hartford City $6,591.40 West Bend City $4,283.73

Marriage of Miss Elmergreen

Miss Hazel Elmergreen, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Elmergreen, was quietly married at 2809 Cedar street, Milwaukee, on Wednesday, November 28th, to Mr. Robert Fitzsimmons, Judge Sheridan performing the ceremony. The young couple was attended by Miss Ethel Elmergreen, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, and Paul Hasler as best man. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, with only near relatives present. The newly weds left for a short wedding trip to Camp Custer, Mich. They will be at home to their friends after Christmas.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The High School students are again treated with examinations this week. The students and faculty enjoyed a day's vacation last week on account of Thanksgiving. Miss Etteldorf was absent from school Monday and Tuesday on account of illness. The Girls' Basket Ball team met the Plymouth Girls' team on the latter's floor Friday. The high school visitors last week were: August Bilgo, Leo Marx, Ralph Schaefer, Hulda Quandt, Mauda Raecher, Lydia Guth, Loretta Schaefer, Dorothy Driessel and Luella Schurr. The following program was given Friday afternoon: Miss Grizmacher... Recitation Gladys Perschbacher... Recitation James Heisler... Recitation Ella Bunkelmann... Recitation Gertrude Mohme... The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Catarrh being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine is taken internally and acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Catarrh Medicine that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

This is not only one of the best and most efficient medicines for coughs, colds and croup, but is also pleasant and safe to take, which is important when medicine must be given to children. Many mothers have given it their unqualified endorsement.

PATRIOTIC ZEAL MARKS RED CROSS SEAL SALE

Unprecedented Enthusiasm Attends Organization of State Forces for the December Campaign. Is Vital War Measure. Never in the remarkable history of the anti-tuberculosis campaign in Wisconsin has there been such spontaneous response to the call for campaign managers to take charge of the Annual sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals as has marked the organization of forces for this year's drive. Never before have men and women in all parts of the state, in the large cities and in the rural schools, shown such eagerness to enter the service. Never, at the same time of the year, has the organization for the campaign been so nearly complete as it is today. Commercial Clubs and Women's Clubs, through their public health committees, public spirited men and women in about 600 cities and villages and teachers in 7,000 rural and state graded schools are already enrolled in the long list of community captains.

Prepared in a measure for this zeal for service by Wisconsin's magnificent response to the Red Cross campaign, to the two Liberty loans, to the combined drive of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A., and to the other calls upon loyal purses which have taught people to think in terms of millions instead of in single dollars, the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association has nevertheless been amazed and deeply gratified by the spontaneity and the enthusiasm with which the approach of the 1917 seal sale has been welcomed in all parts of the state. Convinced by its intimate knowledge of conditions in France, of the tremendous part which tuberculosis is playing in the war problems of all the belligerent nations, and of the revelations of our own draft examinations, that the organized anti-tuberculosis forces must bear a large share of the war service burden, both during the war and in the reconstruction days to follow, the state association has been greatly heartened by the proof which this pre-campaign interest gives that the people of the state have been quick to grasp the significance of the tuberculosis experience of other nations and are keenly alive to the importance of the anti-tuberculosis as a definite war measure. This intelligent alertness is regarded as a remarkable demonstration of the effectiveness of the campaign in which the seal sales of former years have been so great a factor, both educationally and financially. And the zeal with which men and women, already heavily burdened with the new responsibilities and the many temptations which war conditions are making on their time, their ability, their strength and their money, have taken up with a new spirit the familiar task of selling Red Cross Christmas seals gives promise that the 1917 sale in Wisconsin will break all former records. As a direct result of war revelations, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis has sent out a call for a sale three times as large as the one of last year. This means a sale of $150,000 in Wisconsin.

PRESIDENT TELLS WORLD AMERICA'S AIMS IN THE WAR

Declares Prussian Autocracy and Oppression Must Be Done Away With.

DEMANDS FULL REPARATION

No Desire to Interfere With Internal Affairs of Central Nations, but Peace Cannot Be Made With
Germany's Present Rulers—
Declaration of War on Austria-Hungary.

Washington, Dec. 4.—President Wilson in his message to congress today declared emphatically for a peace based on generosity and justice after German autocracy "shall first be shown the utter futility of its claims to power or leadership in the modern world."

The message follows: "Gentlemen of the Congress—Eight months have elapsed since I last had the honor of addressing you. They have been months crowded with events of immense and grave significance for us. I shall undertake to detail or even to summarize these events. The practical particulars of the part we have played in them will be laid before you in the reports of the executive departments. I shall discuss only our present outlook upon these vast affairs, our present duties, and the immediate means of accomplishing the objects we shall hold always in view.

"I shall not go back to debate the causes of the war. The intolerable wrongs done and planned against us by the sinister masters of Germany have long since become too grossly obvious and odious to every true American to need to be rehearsed. But I shall ask you to consider again and with a very grave scrutiny our objectives and the measures by which we mean to attain them; for the purpose of discussion here in this place is action, and our action must move straight towards definite ends.

Must Win the War.
"Our object is, of course, to win the war; and we shall not slacken or suffer ourselves to be diverted until it is won. But it is worth while asking and answering the question: When shall we consider the war won?"

"From one point of view it is not necessary to broach this fundamental matter. I do not doubt that the American people know what the war is about and what sort of an outcome they will regard as a realization of their purpose in it. As a nation we are united in spirit and intention. I pay little heed to those who tell me otherwise. I hear the voices of dissent—who does not? I hear the criticism and the clamor of the noisy, thoughtless and troublesome. I also see men here and there fling themselves in impotent distasteful against the calm, indomitable power of the nation. I hear men debate peace who understand neither its nature nor the way in which we obtain it with uplifted eyes and unbroken spirits. But I know that none of these speaks for the heart of anything. They may safely be left to strut their uneasy hour and be forgotten.

No Peace by Compromise.
"But from another point of view I believe that it is necessary to say plainly what we here at the seat of action consider the war to be for and what part we mean to play in the settlement of its searing issues.

"We are the spokesmen of the American people, and they have a right to know whether their peace is ours. They desire peace by the overcoming of evil, by the defeat once for all of the sinister forces that interrupt peace and render it impossible, and they wish to know how close—cut thought runs with theirs, and what action we propose. They are impatient with those who desire peace by any sort of compromise—deeply and indignantly impatient—but they will not make it plain to them what our objectives are and what we are planning for in seeking to make conquest of peace by arms.

Menace Must Be Crushed.
"I believe that I speak for them when I say two things: First, that this intolerable thing of which the masters of Germany have shown us the ugly face, this menace of combined intrigue and force which we now see so clearly as the German power, a thing without conscience or honor or capacity for covenanted peace, must be crushed and, if it is not utterly brought to an end, at least shut out from the friendly intercourse of the nations; and, second, when this thing and its power are indeed defeated and the time comes that we can discuss peace—when the German people have spokesmen whose words we can believe and when those spokesmen are ready in the name of their people to accept the common judgment of the nations as to what shall henceforth be the bases of law and of covenant for the life of the world—we shall be willing and glad to pay the full price for peace, and pay it ungrudgingly. We know what that price will be. It will be full, impartial justice—justice done at every point and to every nation that the final settlement must affect, our enemies as well as our friends.

Final and Convincing Lesson.
"You catch with me, the voiceless of humanity that are in the air. They grow daily more audible, more articulate, more persuasive, and they come from the hearts of men everywhere. They insist that the war shall not end in vindictive action of any kind; that no nation or people shall be robbed or punished because the irresponsible rulers of a single country have themselves done deep and damnable wrong. It is this thought that has been expressed in the formula 'No annexations, no contributions, no punitive indemnities.' Just because this crude formula expresses the instinctive judgment as to right of plain men everywhere, it has been made diligent use of by the masters of German intrigue to lead the people of Russia astray—and the people of every country their agents could reach, in order that a 'premature peace might be brought about before autocracy has been taught its final and convincing lesson, and the people of the world put in control of their own destinies."

Right as the Arbitrator.
"But the fact that a wrong use has been made of a just idea is no reason why a right use should not be made of it. It ought to be brought under the patronage of its real friends. Let it be said again that autocracy must first be shown the utter futility of its claims to power or leadership in the modern world. It is impossible to apply any standard of justice so long as such forces are unchecked and undefeated as the present masters of Germany command. Not until this has been done can right be set up as arbitrator and peacemaker among the nations. But when that has been done—as God willing, it assuredly will be—we shall at last be free to do an unprecedented thing, and this the time to avow our purpose to do it. We shall be free to base peace on generosity and justice, to the exclusion of all selfish claims to advantage even on the part of the victors.

To Win Our Present Task.
"Let there be no misunderstanding. Our present and immediate task is to win the war, and nothing shall turn us aside from it until it is accomplished. Every power and resource we possess, whether of men, of money, or of materials, is being devoted and will continue to be devoted to that purpose until it is achieved. Those who desire to bring peace about before that purpose is achieved I counsel to carry their advice elsewhere. We will not entertain it. We shall regard the war as won only when the German people say to us, through properly accredited representatives, that they are ready to agree to a settlement based upon justice and the reparation of the wrongs their rulers have done. They have done a wrong to Belgium which must be repaired. They have established a power over other lands and people than their own—over the great empire of Austria-Hungary, other hitherto free Balkan states, over Turkey, and within Asia—which must be relinquished.

Must End German Autocracy.
"Germany's success by skill, by industry, by knowledge, by enterprise, by distrust or guile, or by force, by admiring, rather, she had built up for herself a real empire of trade and influence, secured by the peace of the world. We were content to abide the rivalries of manufacture, science and commerce that were involved for us in her success and stand or fall as we had or did not have the brains and the initiative to surpass her. But at the moment when she had conspicuously won her triumphs of peace she threw them away, to establish in their stead what the world will no longer permit to be established, military and political domination by arms, by which to oust where she could not excel the rivals she most feared and hated. The peace we make must remedy that wrong. It must deliver the once fair lands and happy peoples of Belgium and northern France from the Prussian conquest and the Prussian menace, but it must also deliver the peoples of Austria-Hungary, the peoples of the Balkans, and the peoples of Turkey, alike in Europe and in Asia, from the impudent and alien dominion of the Prussian military and commercial autocracy.

To Manage Their Own Affairs.
"We owe it, however, to ourselves to say that we do not wish in any way to impair or to re-arrange the Austro-Hungarian empire. It is no affair of ours what they do with their own life, either industrially or politically. We do not propose or desire to dictate to them in any way. We only desire to see that their affairs are left in their own hands, in all matters, great or small. We shall hope to secure for the peoples of the Balkan peninsula and for the people of the Turkish empire the right and opportunity to make their own lives safe; their own fortunes secure against oppression or injustice and free from the dictation of foreign courts or parties.

"And our attitude and purpose with regard to Germany herself are of a like kind. We intend no wrong against the German empire; no interference with her internal affairs. We should deem either the one or the other absolutely unjustifiable, absolutely contrary to the principles we have professed to live by and to hold most sacred throughout our life as a nation.

German People Deceived.
"The people of Germany are being told by the men whom they now permit to deceive them and to act as their masters that they are fighting for their very life and existence of their empire; a war of desperate self-defense against deliberate aggression. Nothing could be more grossly or wantonly false, and we must seek by the utmost openness and candor as to our real aims to convince them of its falseness. We are in fact fighting for their emancipation from fear, along with us from the fact of unjust attack by neighbors or rivals or schemers after world empire. No one is threatening the existence of or the independence of the peaceful enterprise of the German empire.

Not Again to Be Trused.
"The worst that can happen to the German people is this, that if they should still, after the war is over, continue to be obligated to live under ambitious and intriguing masters interested to disturb the peace of the world, men or classes of men whom the other peoples of the world could not trust, it might be impossible to admit them to the partnership of nations which must henceforth guarantee the world's peace. That partnership must be a partnership of equals, not a mere partnership of governments. It might be impossible, also, in such untoward circumstances, to admit Germany to the free economic intercourse which must inevitably spring out of the other partnerships of a real peace. But there would be no aggression in that; and such a situation, inevitable because of distrust, would in the very nature of things sooner or later cure itself, by processes which would assuredly set in.

Wrongs Must Be Righted.
"The wrongs, the very deep wrongs, committed in this war will have to be righted. That of course, but they cannot and must not be righted by the commission of similar wrongs against Germany and her allies.

"The world will not permit the commission of similar wrongs as a means of reparation and settlement. Statesmen must by this time have learned that the opinion of the world is everywhere wide awake and fully comprehends the issues involved. No representative of any self-governed nation will dare disregard it by attempting any such covenants of selfishness and compromise as were entered into at the congress of Vienna. The thought of the plain people here and everywhere throughout the world, the people who enjoy no privilege and have very simple and unsophisticated standards of right and wrong, is the air all governments must henceforth breathe if they would live. It is in the full disclosing light of that thought that all policies must be conceived and executed in this mid-day hour of the world's life.

People Have No Say.
"German rulers have been able to upset the peace of the world only because the German people were not suffered under their tutelage to share the comradeship of the other peoples of the world either in thought or in purpose. They were allowed to have no opinion of their own which might be set up as a rule of conduct for those who exercised authority over them. But the congress that concludes this war will feel the full strength of the tides that run now in the hearts and consciences of freedom everywhere. Its conclusions will run with these tides.

"All these things have been true from the very beginning of this stupendous war; and I cannot help thinking that if they had been made plain to the very outset the sympathy and enthusiasm of the Russian people might have been once for all enlisted on the side of the allies, suspicion and distrust swept away, and a real and lasting union of purpose effected. Had they believed these things at the very moment of their revolution and had they been confirmed in that belief since, the sad reverses which have recently marked the progress of their affairs towards an ordered and stable government of freemen might have been avoided.

"The Russian people have been poisoned by the very same falsehoods that have kept the German people in the dark, and the poison has been administered by the very same hands. The only possible antidote is the truth. It cannot be uttered too plainly or too often.

Freedom of the Seas.
"From every point of view, therefore, it has seemed to be my duty to speak these declarations of purpose, to add these specific interpretations to what I took the liberty of saying to the senate in January. Our entrance into the war has not altered our attitude towards the settlement that must come when it is over. When I said in January that the nations of the world were entitled not only to free pathways up on the sea but also to assured and unmolested access to those pathways I was thinking, and I am thinking now, not of the smaller and weaker nations alone, which need our commensurate and support, but also of the great and powerful nations, and of our present enemies as well as our present associates in the war. I was thinking, and am thinking now, of Austria herself, among the rest, as well as of Serbia and of Holland. Justice and equality of rights can be had only at a great price. We are seeking permanent, not temporary, foundations for the peace of the world—and must seek this candidly and fearlessly. As always, the right will prove to be expedient.

Declare War on Austria.
"What shall we do, then, to push this great war of freedom and just to its righteous conclusion? We must clear away with a thorough hand all impediments to success and we must make every adjustment of law that will facilitate the full and free use of our whole capacity and force as a fighting unit.

"One very embarrassing obstacle that stands in our way is that we are at war with Germany but not with her allies. I, therefore, very earnestly recommend that the congress immediately declare the United States in a state of war with Austria-Hungary. Does it seem strange to you that this should be the conclusion of the argument I have just addressed to you? It is not. It is in fact the inevitable logic of what I have said. Austria-Hungary is for the time being not her own mistress, but simply the vassal of the German government. We must face the facts as they are and act upon them without sentiment in this stern business. The government of Austria-Hungary is not acting upon its own initiative or in response to the wishes and feelings of its own peoples, but as the instrument of another nation. We must meet its force with our own and regard the central powers as but one. The war can be successfully conducted in no other way.

As to Turkey and Bulgaria.
"The same logic would lead also to a declaration of war against Turkey and Bulgaria. They also are the tools of Germany. But they are mere tools and do not yet stand in the direct path of our necessary action. We shall go wherever the necessities of this war carry us, but it seems to me that we should go only where immediate and practical considerations lead us and not heed any others.

"The financial and military measures which must be adopted will suggest themselves as the war and its undertakings develop, but I will take the liberty of proposing to you certain other acts of legislation which seem to me to be needed for the support of the war and for the release of our whole force and energy.

"It will be necessary to extend in certain particulars the legislation of the last session with regard to alien enemies; and also necessary, I believe, to create a very definite and particular control over the entrance and departure of all persons into and from the United States.

"Legislation should be enacted defining as a criminal offense every willful violation of the presidential proclamations relating to alien enemies promulgated under section 4067 of the Revised Statutes and providing appropriate punishments; and women as well as men, should be included under the terms of the acts placing restraints upon alien enemies. It is likely that as time goes on many alien enemies will be willing to be fed and housed at the expense of the government in the detention camps, and it would be the purpose of legislation I have suggested to confine offenders among them in penitentiaries and other similar institutions where they could be made to work as other criminals do.

Go Further in Fixing Prices.
"Recent experience has convinced me that the congress must go further in authorizing the government to set limits to prices. The law of supply and demand, I am sorry to say, has been replaced by the law of unrestrained selfishness. While we have eliminated profiteering in several branches of industry, it still runs impudently rampant in others. The farmers, for example, complain with a great deal of justice, that while the regulation of food prices restricts their incomes, no restraints are placed upon the prices of most of the things they must themselves purchase, and similar iniquities obtain on all sides.

"It is imperatively necessary that the consideration of the full use of the water power of the country and also the consideration of the systematic and yet economical development of such of the natural resources of the country as are still under the control of the federal government should be immediately resumed and affirmatively and constructively dealt with at the earliest possible moment. The pressing need of such legislation is daily becoming more obvious.

A Word to the Lawmakers.
"The legislation proposed at the last session with regard to regulated combinations among our exporters, in order to provide for our foreign trade a more effective organization and method of co-operation, ought by all means to be completed at this session.

"And I beg that the members of the house of representatives will permit me to express the opinion that it will be impossible to deal in any but a very wasteful and extravagant fashion with the enormous appropriations of the public moneys which must continue to be made, if the war is to be properly sustained, unless the house will consent to return to its former practice of initiating and preparing all appropriation bills through a single committee. In order that responsibility may be centered, expenditures standardized and made uniform and waste and duplication as much as possible avoided.

"Additional legislation may also be necessary before the present congress again adjourns in order to effect the most efficient co-ordination and operation of the railway and other transportation systems of the country; but to that I shall, if circumstances should demand, call the attention of the congress upon another occasion.

Concentrate on Winning War.
"If I have overlooked anything that ought to be done for the more effective conduct of the war, your own counsels will supply the omission. What I am perfectly clear about is that in the present emergency the congress our attention should be concentrated on the vigorous, rapid and successful prosecution of the great task of winning the war.

"We can do this with all the greater zeal and enthusiasm because we know that for us this is a war of high principle, debated by no selfish ambition of conquest or spoliation; because we know, and all the world knows, that we have been forced into it to save the very institutions we live under from corruption and destruction. The purposes of the central powers strike straight at the very heart of every thing we believe in; their methods of warfare outrage every principle of humanity and of knightly honor; their intrigue has corrupted the very thought and spirit of many of our people; their sinister and secret diplomacy has sought to take our very territory away from us and disrupt the union of the states. Our safety would be at an end, our honor forever sullied and brought into contempt were we to permit their triumph. They are striking at the very existence of democracy and liberty.

Cause Is Just and Holy.
"It is because it is for us a war of high, disinterested purpose, in which all the free peoples of the world are banded together for the vindication of right, a war for the preservation of our nation, and of all that it has held dear of principle and of purpose, that we felt ourselves doubly constrained to purpose for its outcome only that which is righteous and of irreproachable intention, for our foes as well as for our friends. The cause being just and holy, the settlement must be of like motive and quality. For this we can fight, but for nothing less noble or less worthy of our traditions. For this cause we entered the war and for this cause will we battle until the last gun is fired.

"I have spoken plainly, because this seems to me the time when it is most necessary to speak plainly, in order that all the world may know that even in the heat and ardor of the struggle and when our whole thought is of carrying the war through to its end we have not forgotten any ideal or principle for which the name of America has been held in honor among the nations and for which it has been our glory to contend in the great generations that went before us. A supreme moment of history has come. The eyes of the people have been opened, and they see. The hand of God is laid upon the nations. He will show them favor. I devoutly believe, only if they rise to the clear heights of his own justice and mercy."

PARSIMONY IS NOT ECONOMY

Many People Able to Buy What They Want Use Situation as Excuse for Going Without.

It is a curious and mortifying condition of the prevailing "economy" that many people abundantly able to buy what they want use the situation as an excuse for going without. What does this profit them? It merely makes them richer at a time when the talk is of being poorer, says the Hartford Courant.

Food is one thing and clothes and other articles that shoppers buy are in a distinctly other class. When Smith cut down the sugar, there is more sugar for Jones, and the supply of sugar is limited. But when Mrs. Smith goes without a cloak for which she can easily pay and which she expected to buy this season, she is not helping Mrs. Jones to get it; she is simply misering along in her own way, and to her small ability driving poor people out of work and discouraging merchants whose capital is invested. This isn't economy, it is parsimony.

If everybody should quit making purchases, what would become of manufacturers or dealers and of the larger number of workers? It is a good time to keep a level head. Many who watch the tendency of business say frankly that people of limited means are less saving than those who can well afford to get what they want.

The Mystery Explained.

Clifton Hess, an employee of the Pennsylvania railroad at Shelbyville, Ind., relates the Indianapolis News, looked out the window of the freight depot the other day and noticed a woman. A half hour later he looked again and still saw the woman. She had changed her position only slightly, moving down the railroad track a few feet. She seemed to be strolling leisurely along, covering about a foot a minute.

Curious to determine the reason for her actions, Hess walked outside to get a better view. Then it was all explained. The woman had a big Rhode Island Red rooster with a string tied to his leg. There had evidently been a leaky car of wheat along the railroad, and the rooster, oblivious to all else, was calmly filling his craw while the woman kept up with the procession.

Later on during the day the good news must have spread, for there appeared on the scene several other chickens with owners attached to them by strings. As the ground became clean the procession slowly moved from view.

FIRE IN BARRED ZONE

U. S. PROBES $1,000,000 BLAZE IN SHIPYARDS ON BROOKLYN WATER FRONT.

1,800 EMPLOYEES FACE QUIZ

Soldiers Aid Police in Herding Workers Into Yard Until Cause of Mysterious Explosion Is Discovered.

New York, Dec. 5.—A $1,000,000 fire in the barred zone on the Brooklyn water front on Monday night, which was preceded by an explosion, resulted in 1,800 employees being held for examination by federal authorities. The men were herded into one of the extensive yards of the Morse Dry Dock and Repair company, part of whose plant was destroyed, and will not be released, it was declared, until the cause of the mysterious explosion is discovered.

The fire, which was not brought under control until midnight, originated in the carpenter shop of the E. P. Morse plant at Fifty-sixth street, and spread to the sleeping quarters.

Eight ships, among which was the converted German liner President Grant, were tied to the Morse docks and were in imminent danger of taking fire from the sparks. They were towed to safety in midstream by tugs. The shell-making plant of the E. W. Bliss company and the factory of the American Machine and Foundry company, both employed on government contracts, are in the immediate vicinity of the fire and were endangered by the blaze, which extended for a block from Fifty-sixth to Fifty-seventh street.

Company K, Twenty-second infantry, which had been guarding the plant, aided the police reserves in preserving order in the streets and corralling the 1,800 employees.

United States Marshal James M. Powers and Fire Marshal Thomas Brophy consulted as to the best means of probing the cause of the fire when they learned of the explosion which preceded it. They determined upon holding the large number of employees for examination.

WOMEN SLAIN BY TEUTONS

Mothers and Babies Used as Shields by Kaiser's Troops During Invasion of Italy.

Washington, Dec. 3.—All the oppressive measures which characterized the German invasion of Belgium and many of the acts of barbarism which revolted the civilized world, semi-official dispatches from Rome say, are now being practiced by the Austro-German invaders of Italy.

Near Zenson, the dispatches say, the invaders placed Italian women and children before their troops as they advanced and the Italian soldiers were compelled to sacrifice their innocent countrymen.

Austro-German prisoners tell of Italian non-combatants massacred by the invading troops and loot from Italian homes and shops has been found on the bodies of dead troops. Soldiers on the Piave declare they hear the screams of women and children from the opposite side of the river.

The invading armies have taken away cattle and other property and burn household furniture for their bivouac fires at night. Bosnian troops, the dispatches say, have committed unnamable atrocities.

TO CAMPAIGN AGAINST VILLA

Gen. Francisco Murguia's "Death Troop" to Take Field in State of Chihuahua.

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 3.—The military situation in Chihuahua states assumed a new plan with the arrival of Gen. Francisco Murguia and his main column, which he took with him to Coahuila.

With him was the famous "death head troop," which was admitted by Villa followers at Ollinaga to have been the hardest fighting command they ever encountered. The arrival of Murguia was the cause for open rejoicing in Juarez at night.

Because of his aggressive tactics, General Murguia is expected to take the field at once and assume the offensive against Villa and his band.

MRS. PHILIP NORTH MOORE

Mrs. Philip North Moore, president of the National Council of Women, will preside over the biennial meeting of the national council, which is to be held in Washington, December 10, 11 and 12. The council embraces 27 national women's organizations, representing 7,000,000 of American women. At the biennial meeting all the departments will present suggestions or recommendations of reconstructive work after the war.

GUARDS IN FRANCE

RAINBOW DIVISION IN CAMP NEAR FIRING LINE.

Former State Troops Are Billeted Over a Wide Area—Pronounced Good Soldiers.

Washington, Dec. 3.—America's Rainbow division is in France, along with other National Guard units. They include Illinois troops, most from Chicago. While the war department made no announcement upon receipt of dispatches telling of the Guard units' arrival, the army censor said it was permissible to refer to the Rainbow division as that was obviously meant inasmuch as General Pershing's censor had passed the news.

With the American Army in France, Dec. 3.—National Guardsmen from every state in the Union have arrived in France. It is now permitted to be announced. They are among the troops now training or lately arrived.

While it is not permitted to disclose the identity of units, it may be said that all of those which sailed from the United States have arrived safely and that some already are in training within sound of the guns on the battle front.

The former state troops are billeted over a wide area and are pronounced excellent soldiers.

MARRIED MEN NOT EXEMPT

Crowder Declares Reclassification Scheme Is Designed to Delay Calling of Men With Families.

Washington, Dec. 5.—No man will be granted exemption from the draft because he has dependents.

In a review of the situation as affecting registered men, Provost Marshal General Crowder made that plain. He defined the government's position in the following words:

"War must bring inconvenience and sacrifice to all. The selective service law exempts no person from military service on the ground of dependency. The reclassification scheme is designed to defer the induction into the army of registrants upon whom other persons are mainly dependent for support until after persons without actual dependents have been called.

King of the Khyber Rifles

The Most Picturesque Romance of the Decade

KING IS LED TO VISIT A VAST CAVE THROUGH WHICH AN UNDERGROUND RIVER FLOWS, AND IN A GREAT CAVERN MEETS THOUSANDS OF FANATICS

Synopsis.—At the beginning of the world war Capt. Athelstan King of the British Indian army and of its secret service, is ordered to Delhi to meet Yasmin, a dancer, and go with her to Khyber to meet the outlaws there who are said by spies to be preparing for a jihad or holy war. On his way to Delhi King quietly foils a plan to assassinate him and gets evidence that Yasmin is after him. He meets Reva Gunza, Yasmin's man, who says she has already gone north, and at her town house witnesses queer dances. Ismail, an Afridi, becomes his body servant and protector. He rescues some of Yasmin's hillmen and takes them north with him, tricking the Rangar into going ahead. The Rangar deserts him at a dangerous time. He meets his brother at All Masjid fort. The disguise he assumes there fools even the sharp-eyed cutthroats composing his guard. He enters Khyber caves, thanks to his lying guides.

"Are there devils in Tophet? Fire and my veins are one!"

The man did not notice the eagerness beaming out of King's horn-rimmed spectacles, but Ismail did; it seemed to him time to prove his virtues as assistant.

"This is the famous hakim Kurram Khan," he boasted. "He can cure anything, and for a very little fee!"

The man looked incredulous, but King drew the covering from his row of instruments and bottles.

"Take a chance!" he advised. "None but the brave wins anything!"

Ismail and Darya Khan were new to the business and enthusiastic. They had the man down, held tight on the floor to the huge amusement of the rest, before he could even protest; and his howls of rage did him no good, for Ismail drove the hilt of a knife between his open jaws to keep them open.

A very large proportion of King's stores consisted of morphia and cocaine. He injected enough cocaine to deaden the man's nerves, and allowed it time to work. Then he drew out three back teeth in quick succession, to make sure he had the right one.

Ismail let the victim up, and Darya Khan gave him water in a brass cup. Utterly without pain for the first time for days, the man was as grateful as a wolf freed from a trap.

"Are there any others in pain in Khyber?" King asked him.

"Listen to him! What is Khyber? Is there one man without a wound or a sore or a scab or a sickness?"

"Then, tell them," said King.

The man laughed.

"When I show my jaw, there will be a fight to be first! Make ready, hakim! I go!"

King sat down to eat, but he had not finished his meal—he had made the last little heap of rice into a ball with his fingers, native style, and was mopping up the last of the curried gravy with it—when the advance guard of the lame and the halt and the sick made its appearance. The cave's entrance became jammed with them, and no riot ever made more noise.

"Hakim! Ho, hakim! Where is the hakim who draws teeth? Where is the man who knows yunani?"

Ten men burst down the passage all together, all clamoring, and one man wasted no time at all but began to tear away bloody bandages to show his wound. King rolled up his sleeves and began, so that eagerness gave place to wonder. The desperate need of winning his first trick, made him horror-proof; and nobody waiting for the next turn was troubled because the man under the knife screamed a little or bled more than usual.

When they died—and more than one did die—men carried them out and flung them over the precipice into the waterfall below.

Ismail and Darya Khan became choosers of the victims. They seized a man, laid him on the bed, tore off his disgusting bandages and held their breath until the awful resulting stench had more or less dispersed. Then King would probe or lance or bandage as he saw fit, using anesthetics when he must, but managing mostly without them.

They almost flung money at him. He tossed money and clothes and every other thing they gave him into a corner at the back of the cave, and nobody tried to steal them back, although a man suspected of honesty in that company would have been tortured to death as an heretic and would have had no sympathy.

For hour after gruesome hour he tolled over wounds and sores such as only battles and evil living can produce, until men began to come at last with fresh wounds, all caused by bullets, wrapped in bandages or which the blood had caked but had not grown foul.

"There has been fighting in the Khyber," somebody informed him, and he stopped with lance in midair to listen, scanning a hundred faces swiftly in the smoky lamplight. There were ten men who held lamps for him, one of them a new-comer, and it was he who spoke.

"Fighting in the Khyber! Aye! We were a little lashkar, but we drove them back into their fort! Aye! we slew many!"

"Not a jihad yet?" King asked, as if the world might be coming to an end. The words were startled out of him. Under other circumstances he would never have asked that question so directly; but he had lost reckoning of everything but these poor devils' dreadful need of doctoring, and he was like a man roused out of a dream. If a holy war had been proclaimed already, then he was engaged on a forlorn hope. But the man laughed at him.

"Nay, not yet. Bull-with-a-beard holds back yet. This is a little fight. The jihad shall come later!"

"And who is 'Bull-with-a-beard'?" King wondered; but he did not ask that question because his wits were awake again. It pays not to be in too much of a hurry to know things in the "Hills."

As it happened, he asked no more questions, for there came a shout at the cave entrance whose purport he did not catch, and within five minutes after that, without a word of explanation, the cave was left empty of all except his own five men. They carried away the men too sick to walk and vanished, snatching the last man away almost before King's fingers had finished tying the bandage on his wound.

"Why is that?" he asked Ismail.

"Why did they go? Who shouted?"

"It is night," Ismail answered. "It was time."

King stared at him. He had not realized until then that without aid of the lamps he could not see his own hand held out in front of him; his eyes had grown used to the gloom, like those of the surgeons in the sick-bays below the waterline in Nelson's fleet.

"But who shouted?"

"Who knows? There is only one here who gives orders. We be many who obey," said Ismail.

"Whose men were the last ones?" King asked him, trying a new line.

"Bull-with-a-beard's."

"And whose man art thou, Ismail?"

The Afridi hesitated, and when he spoke at last there was not quite the same assurance in his voice as once there had been.

A Man Whom He Had Never Seen Before Leaned on a Magazine Rifle and Eyed Him as a Tiger Eyes Its Prey.

"I am hers! Be thou hers, too! But it is night. Sleep against the toll-tomorrow. There be many sick in Khyber."

King made a little effort to clean the cave, but the task was hopeless. For one thing he was so weary that his very bones were water. He appointed two-hour watches, to relieve one another until dawn, and flung himself on a clean bed. He was asleep before his head had met the pillow; and for all he knew to the contrary he dreamed of Yasmin all night long.

It seemed to him that she came into the cave—she, the woman of the faded photograph the general had given him in Peshawar—and that the cave became filled with the strange intoxicating scent that had first wooed his senses in her reception room in Delhi.

He dreamed that she called "I'm by name. First, 'King sahib!' Then 'Kurram Khan!' And her voice was surprisingly familiar. But dreams are strange things."

"He sleeps!" said the same voice presently. "It is good that he sleeps! And in his sleep he thought that a shadowy Ismail grunted an answer."

When he awoke at last it was after dawn, and light shone down the passage into the cave.

"Ismail!" he shouted, for he was thirsty. But there was no answer.

"Darya Khan!"

Again there was no answer. He called each of the other men by name with the same result. He decided to go to the cave mouth, summon his men, who were no doubt sleeping. But there was no Ismail near the entrance—no Darya Khan—nor any of the other men. The horse was gone. So was the mule. So was the harness, and everything he had, except the drugs and instruments and the presents the sick had given him; he had noticed all those lying about in confusion when he woke.

"Ismail!" he shouted at the top of his lungs, thinking they might all be outside.

He heard a man hawk and spit, close to the entrance, and went out to see. A man whom he had never seen before leaned on a magazine rifle and eyed him as a tiger eyes his prey.

"No farther!" he growled, bringing his rifle to the port.

"Why not?" King asked him.

"Allah! When a camel dies in the Khyber do the kites ask why? Go in!"

He thought then of Yasmin's bracelet, that had always gained him at least civility from every man who saw it. He held up his left wrist and knew that instant why it felt uncomfortable. The bracelet had disappeared!

He turned back into the cave to hunt for it, and the strange scent greeted him again. In spite of the surrounding stench of drugs and filthy wounds, there was no mistaking it. If it had been her special scent in Delhi, as Saunders swore it was, and her special scent on the note Darya Khan had carried down the Khyber, then it was hers now, and she had been in the cave.

He hunted high and low and found no bracelet. His pistol was gone, too, and his cartridges, but not the dagger, wrapped in a handkerchief, under his shirt. The money, that his patients had brought him, lay on the floor untouched. It was an unusual robber who had robbed him.

"Who's 'Bull-with-a-beard'?" he wondered. "Nobody interfered with me until I doctored his men. He's in opposition. That's a fair guess. Now, who in thunder—by the fat lord Harry—can 'Bull-with-a-beard' be? And why fighting in the Khyber so early as all this? And why does 'Bull-with-a-beard,' whoever he is, hang back?"

CHAPTER XII.

They came and changed the guard two hours after dawn, to the accompaniment of orders growled through the mist, and the crash of rifle-butts grounding on the rock path. King went to the cave entrance, to look the new man over; he was a Mahsud—no sweeter to look at and no less treacherous for the fact. Also, that he had bolts all over the back of his neck. He was not likely to be better tempered because of that fact, either. But it is an ill wind that blows no good to the secret service.

"There is an end to everything," he remarked presently, addressing the world at large, or as much as he could see of it through the cave mouth. "A hill is so high, a pool so deep, a river so wide. There is an end to pain!" he went on, adjusting his horn-rimmed spectacles. "I lanced a man's bolts last night, and it hurt him, but he must be well to-day."

"Go in!" growled the guard. "She says it is so sorry! She says none are to let these touch them!"

"I can heal bolts," said King, retracing the cave. Then, from a safe distance down the passage, he added a word or two to sink in as the hours went by. At intervals throughout the day Yasmin sent him food by silent messengers. It is not easy to worry and eat heartily at one and the same time. Having eaten, he rolled up his sleeves and native-made cotton trousers and proceeded to clean the cave. After that he overhauled his stock of drugs and instruments, repacking them and making ready against opportunity.

"As I told that heathen with a gun out there, there's an end to everything!" he reflected. "May this come soon!"

The second guard that afternoon proved even less communicative than the first, up to the point when, to lessen his ennui, King began to whistle. Each time he came near the entrance the new guard could catch a few bars of the tune. After a little while the hawk-nosed rufian began to sing the words to it, in a voice like a forgotten dog's. So King stopped at the entrance and saw then a blood-soaked bandage on the right of his neck, not very far from the jugular.

"Hah!" said King. "Was that wound got in the Khyber the other day?"

"Nay. Here in Khyber."

"A man told me last night," said King, drawing on imagination without any compunction at all. "that the fight in the Khyber was because a jihad is launched already."

"That man lied!" said the guard, shifting position uneasily, as if afraid to talk too much.

"So I told him!" answered King. "I told him there never will be another jihad."

"Then thou art a greater liar than he!" the guard answered hotly. "There will be a jihad when she is ready, such an one as never yet was! India shall bleed for all the fat years she has lain unplundered! Not a throat of an unbeliever in the world shall be left unslit! No jihad? Thou liar! Get in out of my sight!"

So King retired into the cave, with something new to think about. Was she planning the jihad? Or pretending to plan one? Every once in a while the guard leaned far into the cave mouth and hurled adjectives at him, the midst of which was a well of information. If his temper was the temper of the "Hills," it was easy to read disappointment for a jihad that should have been already but had been postponed. King let him alone and paced the cave for hours.

He was squatting on his bed-end in the dark, like a spectated image of Buddha, when the first of the three men came on guard again and at last Ismail came for him holding a pitchy torch that filled the dim passage full of acid smoke and made both of them cough. Ismail was red-eyed with it.

"Come!" he growled. "Come, little hakim!"

He turned on his heel at once, as if afraid of being twitted with desertion. He seemed to want to get outside, where he could keep out of range of words, yet not to wish to seem unfriendly.

But King made no effort to speak to him, following in silence out on to the dark ledge above the waterfall and noticing that the guard with the bolts was back again on duty. He grinned evilly out of a shadow as King passed.

"Make an end!" he advised. "Jump, hakim, before a worse thing happens!"

To illustrate the suggestion he kicked a loose stone over the cliff, and the movement caused him to bend his neck and so inadvertently to hurt his bolts. He cursed, and there was pity in King's voice when he spoke next.

"Do they hurt thee?"

"Aye, like the devil! Khyber is a place of plagues!"

"I could heal them," King said, passing on, and the man stared hard.

"Come!" boomed Ismail through the darkness, shaking the torch to make it burn better and beckoning impatiently, and King hurried after him, leaving behind a savage at the cave mouth who fingered his sores and wondered, muttering, leaning on a rifle, muttering and muttering again as if he had seen a new light.

Instead of waiting for King to catch up, Ismail began to lead the way at great speed along a path that descended gradually until it curved round the end of the chasm and plunged into a tunnel where the darkness grew opaque. For thirty minutes he led swiftly down a crazy devil's stairway of uneven bowlders, stopping to lend a hand at the worst places, but everlastingly urging him to hurry.

Then the hell-world gloom began to grow faintly luminous, and the waterfall's thunder burst on their ears from close at hand. They emerged into fresh wet air and a sea of sound, on a rock ledge like the one above. Ismail raised the torch and waved it. The fire and smoke wandered up, until they flattened on a moving opal dome, that prisoned all the noises in the world.

"Earth's Drink!" he announced, waving the torch and then shutting his mouth tight, as if afraid to voice sacrilege.

It was the river, million-colored in the torchlight, pouring from a half-mile-long slash in the cliff above them and plunging past them through the gloom toward the very middle of the world. Somewhere it met rock bottom and boiled there, for a roar like the sea's came up from deeps unimagable.

He watched the overturning dome until his senses reeled. Then he crawled on hands and knees to the ledge's brink and tried to peer over. But Ismail dragged him back.

"Come!" he howled; but in all that din his shout was like a whisper.

"How deep is it?" King bellowed back.

"Allah! Ask him who made it!"

The fear of the falls was on the Afridi, and he tugged at King's arm in a frenzy of impatience. Suddenly he let go and broke into a run. King trotted after him. After ten minutes' hurrying uphill he guessed they must be level with the river, in a tunnel running nearly parallel. Ismail kept looking back to bid King hurry and never paused once to rest.

"Come!" he urged fiercely. "This leads to the 'Heart of the Hills'!" And after that King had to do his best to keep the Afridi's neck in sight.

They began after a time to hear voices and to see the smoky glare made by other torches. Then Ismail set the pace yet faster, and they became the last two of a procession of turbaned men, who tramped along a winding tunnel into a great mountain's womb. The sound of slippers clicking and rattling on the rock floor swelled and died and swelled again as the tunnel led from cavern into cavern.

In one great cave they came to every man beat out his torch and tossed it on a heap. After that there was a ledge above the height of a man's head on either side of the tunnel, and along the ledge little oil-burning lamps were spaced at measured intervals. A quarter of a mile farther along there were two sharp turns in the tunnel, and then at last a sea of noise and a veritable blaze of light.

Part of the noise made King feel homesick, for out of the mountain's very womb brayed a music-box, such as the old-time carousals made use of before the days of electricity and steam. It was being worked by inexpert hands, for the time was something jerky; but it was robbed of its tinny meanness and even lent majesty by the hugeness of cavern's roof, as well as by the crashing, swinging music it played—wild—wonderful—invented for lawless hours and a kingless people.

"Marchons!—Citoyens!"

The procession began to tramp in time to it, and the rock shook. They deployed to left and right into a space seemed obsessed by the spirit of hordes let loose—drawn by it, as by a magnet, although subsequent events proved him not to have been altogether without a plan. He got up with his eyes fixed on the dance, and thrust himself and King next to some Orakzai Pathans, elbowing savagely to right and left to make room. And patience proved scarce. The nearest man reached for the ever-ready Pathan knife, but paused in the instant that his knife licked clear. From a swift side glance at King's face he changed to a full stare, his scowl slowly giving place to a grin as he recognized him.

"Allah!" He drove the long blade back again.

"Well met, hakim! See—the wound heals finely!"

Baring his shoulder under the smelly sheepskin coat, he lifted a bandage gingerly to show the clean opening out of which King had coaxed a bullet the day before. It looked wholesome and ready to heal.

"Name thy reward, hakim! We Orakzai Pathans forget no favors!" (Now that boast was a true one.)

King nodded more to himself than to the other man. He needed, for instance, very much to know who was planning a jihad, and who "Bull-with-a-beard" might be; but it was not safe to confide in a chance-made acquaintance. A very fair acquaintance with some phases of the East, had taught him that names such as Bull-with-a-beard are often almost photographically descriptive. He rose to his feet to look. A blind man can talk, but it takes trained eyes to gather information.

The din had increased, and it was safe to stand up and stare, because all eyes were on the matness in the middle. There were plenty besides himself who stood to get a better view, and he had to dodge from side to side to see between them.

"I'm not to doctor his men. Therefore it's a fair guess that he and I are to be kept apart. Therefore he'll be as far away from me now as possible, supposing he's here."

Reasoning along that line, he tried to see the faces on the far side, but the problem was to see over the dancers' heads. He succeeded presently, for the Orakzai Pathan saw what he wanted, and in his anxiety to be agreeable, reached forward to put back a box from between the ranks in front. Its owners offered instant fight, but made no further objection when they saw who wanted it and why. King wondered at their sudden change of mind.

He found a man soon who was not interested in the dancing, but who had eyes and ears apparently for everything and everybody else. He watched him for ten minutes, until at last their eyes met. Then he sat down and kicked the box back to its owners. He touched the Pathan's broad shoulder. The man smiled and bent his turbaned head to listen.

"Opposite," said King, "nearly exactly opposite—three rows from the front, counting the front row as one—there sits a man with a black beard, whose shoulders are like a bull's. As he sits he hangs his head between them. Look! See! Tell me truly what his name is!"

The Pathan got up and strode forward to stand on the box, kicking aside the elbows that leaned on it and laughing when the owners cursed him. He stood on it and stared for five minutes, counting deliberately three times over, striking a finger on the palm of his hand to check himself.

"Bull-with-a-beard!" he announced at last, dropping back into place beside King. "Muhammad Anim. The mullah Muhammad Anim."

"An Afghan?" King asked.

"He says he is an Afghan. But unless he lies he is from Istantboul (Constantinople)."

Itching to ask more questions, King—the hakim Kurram Khan—blinked mildly behind his spectacles and looked like one to whom a savage might safely ease his mind.

"He bade me go to Sikaram where my village is and bring him a hundred men for his lashkar. He says he has her special favor. Wait and watch, I say!"

"Has he money?" asked King, apparently drawing a bow at a venture for conversation's sake. But there is an art in asking artless questions.

Always Have PERUNA

Mrs. L. A. Patterson, 1339 Kentucky St., Memphis, Tennessee, writes:

"I have been a friend of Peruna for many years. I have used it off and on for catarrhal complaints and found it a very excellent remedy. I have a small family of children. Times are hard with us, but I can scarcely afford to do without Peruna, especially during the season of the year when coughs and colds are prevalent. We always recommend Peruna to our neighbors, for the benefit it has been to us."

Had To Give Up Was Almost Frantic With the Pain and Suffering of Kidney Complaint. Doan's Made Her Well.

Mrs. Lydia Shuster, 1838 Margaret St., Frankford, Pa., says: "A cold started my kidney trouble. My back began to ache and get sore and lame. My joints and ankles became swollen and painful and it felt as if needles were sticking in to them. I finally had to give up and went from bad to worse. My kidneys didn't act right and the excretions were scanty and distressing. I had awful dizzy spells when everything before me turned black; one time I couldn't see for twenty minutes. Awful pains in my head set me almost frantic and I was so nervous I couldn't stand the least noise. How I suffered! Often I didn't care whether I lived or died. I couldn't sleep on account of the terrible pains in my back and head. Nothing seemed to do me a bit of good until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. I could soon see they were helping me; the backache stopped, my kidneys were regulated and I no longer had any dizzy spells or rheumatic pains. I still take Doan's occasionally and they keep my kidneys in good health. "Sworn to before me." F. W. CASSIDY, JR., Notary Public.

WILL BE TEST OF ELECTORS' LOYALTY

To Fill Vacancy Caused by Expulsion of Raguse From State Senate.

ELECTION CALLED FOR JAN. 2

Contest Liable to Be a Three-Cornered Fight and Will Probably Attract Nation-Wide Attention.

Madison.—A call has been issued by Gov. E. L. Phillip of Wisconsin for the holding of a special election and primary to fill the vacancy caused by the expulsion of Frank Raguse, Socialist, from the Eighth Milwaukee senatorial district, from the last legislature on charges of disloyal utterances.

The governor has made no comment on his action or regarding speculation that he has called this election as a test of how voters feel upon the war issues. It seems probable that there may be a three-cornered contest in this district and that Mr. Raguse will be a candidate again, although no announcement has been made.

Herbert R. Manzer, Democrat, who announced his candidacy in event of a special election soon following Raguse's expulsion, said that he would be a candidate in the coming special election, if the issue is that a loyalty

State Stock Judging Contest.

By introducing the ever-attractively-contest element into its educational work, Wisconsin live-stock forces are gaining the support of youthful farmers and enticing them in the upbuilding of the industry.

On February 8-9, during the farmers' course at the College of Agriculture, Wisconsin's third annual boys' live-stock judging contest will be held. The event will be held under the direction of a joint committee representing the College of Agriculture, the department of education and the Wisconsin Live-Stock Breeders' association.

Five classes of live stock will be placed in the ring for each and every one of the three-man teams to judge. The contestants are limited to students from high schools with farm courses or county schools of agriculture.

For the preliminary contests the state has been divided into 27 circuit groups. There are from three to six schools in each group. The local contests will be in charge of a chairman, already appointed, and whose duty it will be to govern the events and report results to the state committee. Winners in the circuit contests will be entitled to compete in the roundup at Madison in February.

Arrangements for staging the big judging contest are in charge of H. N. Goldard, state department of education; T. L. Bewick, State Boys' and Girls' Agricultural club leader, and Raymond Baker, assistant secretary of the Wisconsin Live Stock Breeders' association.

Stockmen, who will also serve on the jury of decisions, make the winners in the contest and pick the winning team include John Robinson, Evansville, beef cattle; J. P. Rlordan, Mayville, horses; Roy Broughton, Albany, sheep; L. P. Martiny, Chippewa Falls,

KIDNEY TROUBLE NOT EASILY RECOGNIZED

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected

An examining physician for one of the prominent life insurance companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so large to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

We find that Swamp-Root is strictly an herbal compound and we would advise our readers who feel in need of such a remedy to give it a trial. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

SELF DEFENSE

Defeat Backache and Kidney Trouble With Anuric

Many people in this section have suffered from rheumatism and kidney trouble and have found that Anuric was the most successful remedy to overcome these painful and dangerous ailments.

The lucky people are those who have suffered, but who are now well because they heeded nature's warning signal in time to correct their trouble with that wonderful new discovery of Dr. Pierce's called "An-uric" (double strength). You should promptly heed these warnings, some of which are dizzy spells, backache, irregularity of the urine or the painful twinges of rheumatism, scalding of the bladder. To delay may make possible the dangerous forms of kidney disease, such as stone in the bladder. If you want quick relief buy Anuric now (60c a package) or send Dr. Pierce 10c for trial pkg. This will prove that "Anuric" eliminates uric acid as hot water melts sugar.

MOTHERS OF WISCONSIN

Sheboygan, Wis.—"Several years ago I developed a very bad case of woman's weakness. I took different kinds of medicine but received no benefit whatever from their use. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and commenced to improve at once, and in six months I was well and hearty. That was twelve years ago and I have never been bothered since. This ailment was brought on through some heavy lifting I did before I was real strong after twins came. I know of no better medicine than Favorite Prescription for women." — MRS. FRANK WENDLAND, 1005 Clara Avenue.

Get "Favorite Prescription" today, either in liquid or tablet form, from any dealer in medicines or send Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., 10 cents for large trial package of the tablets, large Package 60c.—Adv.

Canadian Farmers Profit From Wheat

160 ACRE FARMERS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

The war's devastation of European crops has caused an unusual demand for grain from the American Continent. The people of the world must be fed and wheat near $2 a bushel offers great profits to the farmer. Canada's invitation is therefore especially attractive. She wants settlers to make money and happy, prosperous homes for themselves by being her raise immense wheat crops.

You can get a Homestead of 160 acres FREE and other lands at remarkably low prices. During many years Canadian wheat fields have averaged 20 bushels to the acre many yields as high as 45 bushels to the acre. Wonderful crops also of Oats, Barley and Flax.

Prized farming as profitable an industry as grain raising. The excellent quality of Canadian wheat is the only food required for beef or dairy purposes. Good schools, churches, markets convenient, climate excellent.

There is an extra demand for farm labor to replace the many young men who have volunteered for the war. The Government is urging farmers to put extra acreage into grain. Write for literature and particulars as to reduced railway rates to Dept. of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada or Geo. A. Hall, 123 Second St., Milwaukee, Wis.; C. A. Laurier, Marquette, Mich. candidate must be sent to the senate as against a Socialist. Alexander E. Martin, Republican, whom Raguse succeeded, may also enter the field with others. It is said efforts will be made to unite on one man as against the Socialist nominee.

Coming as it does before the special session at which the governor has said he will ask for power to name a successor to the late Senator Hustling instead of calling a special state election, the contest will attract almost nationwide attention. The district has been conceded to be Socialist territory in a three-cornered fight. It is known that many voters of Polish descent, who have been supporting Socialist candidates, will not do so when the question of loyalty is an issue.

Governor Phillip has set the election for January 2. This means that a primary must be held at least 20 days prior to the election, 15 days' notice being required before the primary. This indicates that the governor does not intend to call the legislature after special session until January, after this vacancy has been filled by the special election.

160,000 Hunt This Year.

Sixty-three thousand deer hunters in the state of Wisconsin! That figure was given out by the conservation commission as the total of deer tags sold this fall.

Upwards of 160,000 hunting licenses have been issued. This year for the first time, the expedient was tried of requiring deer hunters to purchase an extra tag in addition to their hunting license, which costs ten cents. Obviously, only those intending to hunt deer paid attention to the extra tag.

Trapping licenses were also issued for the first time this year. Their total at present, 30,000, is a great surprise to the commission, as the early estimate was only 5,000. Most of the licenses have been going to trappers of muskrat and mink, living along river and lake shores. Others, however, are going to all parts of the state for the use of trappers of every variety of Wisconsin's long list of furbearers.

Must Supply Free Cups.

The railroad commission gave the railroads of the state the option of placing in their cars signs announcing drinking cups free or putting in vending machines that will give the traveling public free cups. A Wisconsin law, enacted in 1913, provides that the railroads must furnish drinking cups free. Vending-machine cups are in the coaches but it requires one cent a cup, notwithstanding the broken ones are supposed to furnish a cup free to anyone asking for one.

swine; R. J. Schaefer, Appleton; Frank Fox, Waukesha; W. H. Clark, Rice Lake, and Adam Sultz, Waukesha, dairy cattle.

There were 25 teams entered in the event of last year, which was won by the Wood County school of Agriculture, Grand Rapids. Milton's high school team secured first position in 1916. It is expected that fully 114 teams will enter the first or local contests, and that every one of the 27 state circuits will certify a team for the final event.

Women's Liberty Loan Fund.

Final figures on the result of the woman's Liberty loan committee of Wisconsin are in the hands of the woman's committee of the state council of defense. It reports:

Brown, $270,000; Clark, $26,000; Columbia, $16,150; Crawford, $24,100; Dane, $150,350; Fond du Lac, $90,150; Grant, $112,070; Green Lake, $61,600; Iowa, $19,100; Jackson, $23,850; Juneau, $38,500; Kenosha, $50,000; La Crosse, $164,550; Lincoln, $22,250; Marathon, $65,000; Marquette, $35,250; Milwaukee, $2,602,450; Monroe, $10,050; Oconto, $38,150; Pierce, $9,950; Racine, $275,000; Richland, $79,500; Sawyer, $4,200; Trempealeau, $50,000; Rock, $220,900; Walworth, $46,100; Winnebago, $252,900; Wauquesha, $29,000. Total, $4,979,730.

Asks Draft Boards to Donate Time.

Gov. E. L. Phillip has issued an appeal to the 104 draft boards throughout the state, asking members to serve gratis. This would result in a saving of over $100,000 to the state, the governor says in his letter.

Thirty boards throughout Wisconsin are already serving without pay.

Big Increase in Auto Licenses.

Approximately 165,000 applications for automobile licenses have been received at the office of the secretary of state. This is a large increase over last year, which saw a total of only 115,637. Applications are still coming in and will continue to do so until after January 1, 1918, but there are so few in number that they will make no great change in the total.

May Establish City Coal Yards.

The action of the last session of the legislature authorizing the establishment of municipal fuel yards is to be used to force the handling of coal and wood in Wisconsin at a reasonable price. Complaints have been made to the office of C. W. Croly, state marketing agent for the Wisconsin council of defense, regarding the price and quality of coal as sold in certain cities. The matter has been taken up and investigations will follow. Dealers are warned that the price of coal is now under government control.

Overworked Women must learn not to neglect their health

How Women are Restored to Health

Spartanburg, S.C.—"For nine years I suffered from backache, weakness, and irregularities so I could hardly do my work. I tried many remedies but found no permanent relief. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt a great change for the better and am now well and strong so I have no trouble in doing my work. I hope every user of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will get great relief as I did from its use."—Mrs. S. D. McABE, 122 Dewey Ave., Spartanburg, S.C.

Chicago, Ill.—"For about two years I suffered from a female trouble so I was unable to walk or do any of my own work. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and determined to try it. It brought almost immediate relief. My weakness has entirely disappeared and I never had better health. I weigh 145 pounds and am as strong as a man. I think money is well spent which purchases Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. J. O. HIRSH, 1735 Newport Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Primitive Methods.
"Are there any amusements in this town?" asked the stranger in a mining camp.
"He is that."
"Depends on what it takes to amuse you," replied the grizzled prospector.
"Gunnyplay hereabouts ain't what it used to be, but occasionally two of the boys meet unexpectedly like on the street and settles a dispute without goin' to law about it."

Good Business.
"That clerk of yours who answers the telephone is very urbane."
"He is that."
"He fairly coos at you."
"Yup, his girl calls him up four or five times a day. At first I thought I'd stop it, but now I guess I won't. Watching out for her keeps him keyed up to a polite pitch."

The Eternal Feminine.
Lola—Jack, dear?
Jack—What is it, darling?
Lola—You love me, don't you?
Jack—You know it, sweetheart.
Lola—And you are quite sure I am the only girl you ever told about in the other girls you have been in love with?

Japan's 1916 exports were valued at $62,042,857.

A Near-Patriot.
"Is Dubson patriotic?"
"I suppose so."
"Didn't he buy a Liberty bond?"
"No. He said he couldn't afford it, but he bought a record of 'The Star Spangled Banner' to play on his phonograph."

Panicky Times.
"He is so terribly frugal."
"Frugality, my dear, is a sign of aristocracy nowadays."
