KEWASKUM FORTY YEARS AGO

On February 2, 1876, about forty years ago, the West Bend Democrat published the following graphic and, to put it mildly, buoyantly prophetic description of what Kewaskum looked like at the time and promised to become. It is a bit of local history of our fair neighboring village, that must be taken for what it is worth. The article signed by "N. B.," reads this wise:

"Perhaps a little on the present and future of Kewaskum will not be amiss. In 1870 it was a mere way-place, with a couple of small stores, a mill and about 12 houses. Now all is changed. In six years she boasts of stores, 3 elevators, 9 saloons, and nearly 400 inhabitants. The village is well located in the best farming land of Washington County, with good roads in all directions. To an old timer getting off the train, with a fine depot, surrounded by three large warehouses, stores to the right and stores to the left, she looks as if she was the "new man" in this county. Passing down Main street is the Central Farmers' Home, Math. Louis, and the Madison Houses; the saddlery shop of Chas. Guth; the large store and butcher shop of Aug. Backhaus; the large blacksmith shop of Remmel Bros.; the hardware and implement house of Schwartz & Muckersheid; the nobby drug store of Chas. Miller; and across the street the large mercantile house of M. Altenhofen. Over the bridge is the mill, the post office, and that well-known store of Henry Backhaus, as well as the Washington House kept by Chas. Koch, and the blacksmith shop of Thompson & Nellis. Clustering around the depot are the musical ware rooms of Mr. Kuechenmeister, the Exchange and Weimar's. Then there is that large and gigantic house of M. & L. Rosenheimer dealing in most everything; the Eagle, presided over by John Strobel; the tin shop of Fred Stank; and the large furniture rooms of John Zwasschka, as well as the blacksmith shop of P. Wagner. Then Peter Berg has his implement and sewing machine rooms near here, while Madden & Witzig have a harness shop. On the Fond du Lac Road "Chicago Fritz" keeps the Chicago House, and is determined to improve. We have other shops, painters, tailors, milliners, etc., and a fair prospect for a spreading out this season. Now, if I may be allowed, I will predict that in 1880 Kewaskum will be the leading business point in the county, leading them all for size and number of manufactories, will have paved streets, sidewalks (we need them badly now), street cars dancing along its business thoroughfares, with cotton mills spinning, foundries and planing mills humming, while we shall have a theatre, court room in proportion, and all the paraphernalia of a modern city. Such, in my prediction, will be the Kewaskum of 1880.

It will be seen that the prediction did not come quite true, possibly because the prophet set the date so close. Yet Kewaskum can be satisfied with the achievements, which make an immensely better showing than those of some other villages of the county which at the time dreamed of becoming important population centers."

GOVERNMENT WANTS YOUR WHEAT

Henry Rolfs, county Federal Food Administrator has received a Government request to locate all wheat, no matter how small a quantity and report same to the Federal Food Administration. Farmers are requested to market their wheat immediately to mills or elevators. The Government will take legal proceedings against all those who do not comply with the above orders.

BEST REMEDY FOR WHOOPING COUGH.

"Last winter when my little boy had the whooping cough I gave him Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. J. B. Roberts, East St. Louis, Ill. "It kept his cough loose and relieved him of those dreadful coughing spells. It is the only cough medicine I keep in the house because I have the most confidence in it." This remedy is also good for colds and croup.

COMPANY M NOT FAR FROM CO. E

William Courtney, who resides in Fond du Lac, received a letter this week, from his son Jack Courtney, who is a member of Co. M, of Fond du Lac, now stationed somewhere in France. The letter in part reads as follows:

"I received no mail from home yet, I am still with Capt. Watson. Don't know when I will get back to the company. It has been transferred over to 120th Machine Gun Company from the 119th Machine Gun Company. They are not far from here but I haven't seen any of them. Old Company E, Company B, is around here somewhere. Expect to see the boys of that company in the near future. Fear that they are all fine. Capt. Watson was over to see the old company a few days ago. They heard that he was coming back as their captain. Possibly he will as all of the big fellows seem to think so. He now has a company in the 128th Infantry and is doing fine.

The following young men from here belong to Co. M: Jack Tessar, Edwin Backus, Ralph Petri, Arnold Hansen and Carl Guth.

A petition presenting the will of William Hall Sr., of Ashford, for probate was filed today in county court. The petition was filed by Leonard Hall, the petitioner of the estate. The entire estate is valued at $4150.

TO MY FRIENDS AND PATRONS

To my many friends of this community, I wish to state that I have been drafted into Service, and will respond to my call on April 26th. This places me in such a position that I must close my place of business. I expect to have my business closed until I return from military service. During the past seven years I have been among you to serve you in a most efficient manner. For the kind patronage you have given me, I wish to thank you all. I appreciate the fact that I have been able to serve you. I trust that I may serve my country as well.

CAMP GRANT MEN TO GO TO SPARTA, WISCONSIN

Plans are underway for the movement of the entire 331st artillery brigade at Camp Grant, Ill., to the Artillery range near Sparta, Wis. They are ordered to travel the entire distance on horse back, and will have to sleep on the road under canvas. Two of our popular young men belong to this company, namely: Edwin Miller, better known as "Spatz" Miller and Carl Westerman.

GETS AFTER THE CONDENSERIES

Seventeen Wisconsin milk factories and condenseries were closed by order of the Federal Government. Last October all milk companies were required to file reports on the amount of milk handled, to whom the products were sold, what portion went to the government, and the portion offered in private sale.

On last Saturday afternoon, Magnus Swenson, of Madison, Food Administrator of Wisconsin or the Federal Government, received a telegram saying that seventeen companies in Wisconsin had failed to file reports. Mr. Swenson directed a telegram to each of the concerns to close their place of business until the federal law has been complied with.

Following are the names of the companies ordered closed: Sullivan Condensed Milk company, Sullivan, Wis. Wisconsin Condensed Milk company, Burlington, Wis. Wisconsin Butter and Cheese company, Elkhorn, Wis. Evanson Bros., Ellison Bay, Wis. Rice Lake Creamery company, Rice Lake, Wis. Horlick's Malted Milk company, Racine, Wis.

A. W. Pavel, Marathon, Wis. Joseph W. Entringer, Algoma, Wis. Albert W. Teske, Kewaunee, Wis. Waukau Cheese company, Waukau, Wis.

C. A. Bahr, Keil, Wis. Libby, McNeil & Libby, Juneau, Wis.

Libby, McNeil & Libby, Whitewater, Wis. Libby, McNeil & Libby, Waupun, Wis.

Libby, McNeil & Libby, Sharon, Wis. Kliest & Saeger Bros., Delafield, Wis.

Cazenovia Farmers' Creamery company, Cazenovia, Wis.

CHURCH WEDDING IS SOLEMNIZED

Miss Frances Anna Kiefer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kiefer of Lomira, and Nicholas A. Weyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Weyer of North Lomira, were united in marriage at 9:30 o'clock Tuesday morning at St. Mary's church, Lomira, Rev. Nicholas Weyer officiating.

The bride wore a gown of white charmeuse, with a veil, and a shower bouquet of roses and sweet peas. Miss Verona Kofer, sister of the bride was maid of honor. She wore a gown of embroidered organza and a corsage bouquet of sweet peas. Miss Mary Weyer, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. She wore a gown of pale peach crepe de chine with a corsage bouquet of sweet peas. Little Agnes and Conroy Bishop acted as flower bearers, each carrying a beautiful basket of flowers. Peter Weyer, a brother of the groom was best man, and William and Alois Keifer acted as ushers.

Only the immediate relatives attended the wedding and the dinner served afterward at the home of the bride's parents. The house was prettily decorated with patriotic colors and smilax.

The young couple will be at home to their friends after June 1st on a farm in North Lomira.

Those from away attending the wedding were Rev. Peter Theisen, Milwaukee, Rev. Nicholas Weyer, Mineral Point; and Rev. Michael Weyer, Martinsville, Wis.

KEEP THE LITTLE ONES HEALTHY AND HAPPY

Their tender, sensitive bodies require a cooling, healing, harmless remedy to prepare their stomachs for summer's heat. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea is reliable and safe, though not injurious, 35c.—Edw. C. Miller.

WEDDINGS OF THE WEEK

SCHMIDT-REINDERS
On Wednesday, May 1st, at 10 o'clock, at the St. Bridget's Catholic church, occurred the marriage of Miss Florence Schmidt of the town of Barton to Mr. Clemens Reinders. Rev. Vogt of this village officiated. Miss Josephine Reinders, sister of the groom acted as bridesmaid, while Alfred Reinders, brother was best man.

After the ceremony at the church the bridal party, together with a few invited relatives, repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where a delicious wedding dinner was served. The young married couple who are held in very high esteem by their countless friends, left the same day for a short wedding trip to Milwaukee, and upon their return will go to house keeping in the city of West Bend, where the groom is employed in the Kapfer & Moening Co.'s store.

STAEHLER-MUELLER

The Holy Trinity church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, when Miss Rose Staehler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Staehler, of the town of Kewaskum, was joined in bonds of matrimony to Joseph Mueller of Campbellsport. Rev. Vogt performing the ceremony. After the ceremony at the church the event was duly celebrated at the home of the bride's parents, with only relatives and immediate friends in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Mueller will make their home on a farm near Campbellsport. We wish them much success during their wedded life.

TO DISPOSE OF HEN AND LITTLE CHICKS

The hen and little chicks donated to the local Red Cross, by Ed. Campbell, living near St. Michaels, will be disposed of at the Republican House in the village of Kewaskum tonight (Saturday) at 9 o'clock. All those holding numbers are urged to be present.

SATURDAY, MAY 11 WILL BE THRIFT DAY IN WISCONSIN

On this day the opening gun will be sounded in an intensive State campaign, to be conducted by merchants in all lines of business, for the sale of Thrift and War Savings Stamps. The campaign will continue until December 31, 1918.

OF DE PERE

A. L. Simon, who for the past several years was principal of the local high school, accepted a position as city superintendent of schools at De Pere, Wis.

Mr. Simon is a graduate of the Oshkosh Normal and later acquired additional professional training at the University of Wisconsin. Mr. Simon did excellent work during his stay here, he was a strong disciplinarian and good organizer and has made an excellent showing as a successful teacher.

The citizens of this community regret very much to see Mr. Simon leave us, and the good work he has done in bringing our high school to a higher standard will long be remembered by all. We wish him success in his new field of labor.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The Seniors commenced practicing their play Monday.

The high school students again had a taste of examinations.

One of the Freshman girls received a sore eye from flirting too much.

Miss Alva Groth, Co. Supt. of Schools.

TOWN GOES OVER THE TOP

The town of Kewaskum, has made a remarkably good record in the Third Liberty Loan drive, many of the farmers who had subscribed for the first and second loan, subscribed for $1,000 more in the Third Liberty Loan. The allotment was $24,000, and the amount subscribed is 24,550, but it still more to come in. Although the farmers were busy, working farms, they were not too busy to buy liberty bonds, grimly determined to see the war decided the right way, the "only way" Victory for America and her Allies. Come what may, the town of Kewaskum will stick to the government.

"OVER THERE"

A LETTER FROM FRANCE
Mrs. Jos. Rommel this week received a letter from her brother, Alfred Meincke, who is in the front line trenches. The letter reads as follows:
March 24, 1918.

Dear Sister:—
I received your letter and was glad to hear from you. I am well and I hope you are the same. You wrote that Adolph was in the United States again. Tell him to write to me, we just came back from the front, but I am still well. Was Adolph in the trenches, you tell him that I just got out of them and think it will not be long before we go in again.

We had an awful time while we were in the trenches. It don't bother me at all. I am working in the kitchen now, and have a good job, but I have to work pretty hard. We have 173 men in our company, and it takes lots of work to make the meals for them. You wrote that Adolph's time was up in May. I wish my time was up too. How did Adolph like it in France, tell him to write to me, and I will answer as soon as I can. Do you see Gertie once in a while, why don't she write? Is she going to be married? I will close my letter for this time, will write more the next time. Answer soon, from Alfred Meincke Co. B, 150th M. G. Ba., A. E. F.

LETTER FROM JOS. WESTERMAN

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Westerman of St. Bridget's, received the following letter from their son Joseph, who is stationed some where in France:

Dear Folks:—
"Well I just found time to write a few lines to you and let you know that I am alright and am well yet. I wrote a letter to you about two weeks ago, did you get that? You know it takes weeks to get mail from here, and chances are sometimes that you don't get it at all, it might get lost. I didn't get any here yet. I didn't get the paper either. I wrote them quite a while ago that my address was A. E. F., from then on, we are kept busy every day. That's all I can give to you where is Carl now? Write everybody my regards." From Private Jos. Westerman.
Co. C, 119th Machine Gun Ba.

This office is in receipt of a letter from Private August Vocks, who was stationed at Camp Grant, but is now at Camp Merritt, New Jersey. The letter is as follows:

Camp Merritt, New Jersey
April 28, 1918

Dear Sirs:—
Will drop you a few lines to let you know that I left Camp Grant and am in New Jersey now, went stay here very long either, so I think it best not to send the paper any more until further orders.

I thank you ever so much for the kindness in sending the paper and certainly was very glad to read the home news. I am well and hope the same of you. Will close with best regards from August C. Vocks.

AARON'S CLOTHING

With this issue of the KEWASKUM STATESMAN

We take pleasure in calling the attention of the public to our splendid big stock of men's, young men's and boys' clothing. Those who have worn Aaron's Clothes know that the name Aaron's not only means the best of fabrics but also the best lining, stiffening and everything that goes to the make-up of a good suit.

Our Spring shipments have all arrived, and under the present critical conditions of the clothing output, we must say that through our early buying we were indeed fortunate to obtain a few splendid numbers made of last year's cloth. In last year's clothing right up in style we can give you some splendid merchandise for your money. Our stock of clothing is exceptionally large and gives you a big variety to select from. Come and inspect our line. Every department of our store is brim full of reliable merchandise, all bought early enough to give you splendid bargains and to meet any competition.

Prices may seem high but many articles are selling for less than the present wholesale prices. This is the time to buy. A few months hence you will think back, and say, of the present, "that was the time to buy." We have the goods, we are at your service, give us a call.

PROPER FOOD FOR WEAK STOMACHS

The proper food for one man may be all wrong for another. Every one should adopt a diet suited to his age and occupation. Those who have weak stomachs need to be especially careful and should eat slowly and masticate their food thoroughly. It is also important that they keep their bowels regular. When they become constipated or when they feel dull and stupid after eating, they should take Chamberlain's Tablets to strengthen the stomach and move the bowels. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect.

The Justly Famous Perfection Milking Machine

WHY FARMERS BUY MILKING MACHINES

Why do men change methods in business? Is it not to make a gain of some kind? Most assuredly. The gain may be in making work easier, cutting down the hours of labor, taking out of work its hardships, adopting better work methods, but always having in mind the adding to the bank account.

Farmers buy milkers for one and all of these reasons. Every farmer who reads and keeps abreast of the times, knows that our present methods of farming and dairying are exceedingly wasteful in time lost, land fertility lost, crop profits lost through small returns per acre, failure to get the greatest returns possible from help employed, etc.

Therefore, the coming of the milking machine is a big thing for the farmer. It has as great a meaning to him, if he will but study its possibilities, as did the change he made years ago in cutting his grain with a reaper and binder instead of a scythe and cradle. And one of the best things about it is that it benefits alike both the big and the little farmer. Each one can profit in proportion to the size of his farm.

While the saving of drudgery and disagreeable work is a fine thing—while the time saved and independence from the farm help trouble is worth all the milking machine costs to put in—that is not the biggest gain the wide-awake farmer makes.

The biggest thing of all is the possibilities the milking machine puts in every farmer's hands in the way of largely increasing his cash returns per acre by a gradual adoption of intensive farming methods such as will enable him to double or treble the returns he gets from each acre.

While farmers generally have done well, still every successful one knows he has not obtained anywhere near what he could get were he able to use his land, time and labor to the best advantage. Owning a dependable, properly constructed milking machine fully and satisfactorily answers this question which you have asked yourself more times than one.

But mind you, just owning any old kind of a so-called milker, won't do. Not by a whole lot. THE ONLY MILKING MACHINE THAT CAN POSSIBLY BE PERMANENTLY SUCCESSFUL IS THE ONE THAT DRAWS THE MILK JUST AS THE CALF SUCKS.

GERMANS DRIVEN BACK BY ALLIES WITH BIG LOSSES

Enemy Dead Cover Flanders Battlefield.

FRENCH WIN AT NOYON

Franco-British Forces Not Only Hold Positions, but Reclaim Ground at Several Places—Capture of Kemmel Hill Costly to Huns.

London, May 1.—The correspondents with the British army agree that the enemy Monday suffered nothing less than a disastrous defeat. It was the first phase of the battle in his desperate attempt to capture the line of hills held by the allies, which endangers his possession of Mount Kemmel.

With the British Army in France, May 1.—Further desperate assaults by Von Arnim's army against the allied lines on the Flanders battlefield met with no more success than the enemy's futile and costly attempts earlier in the day to break through and capture the hill positions west of Kemmel.

Allies Regain Ground. Not only did the British and French maintain their positions at virtually all points in the face of furious onslaughts but during the night they reclaimed several bits of territory on which the enemy had succeeded in getting a hold.

Loere had again fallen into German hands, but the French once more made a dashing counter-drive and thrust the enemy out of this important place.

The allied lines in Flanders in the morning were to all intents the same as when the Germans surged forward Monday.

Huns Pay Fearful Price. In front of the defending positions gray uniformed men in great numbers, representing the awful price paid by the Germans.

Foe Make Heavy Sacrifices. Fierce fighting continued about Loere all day and the enemy sacrificed great numbers of men in an attempt to push through here.

In the meantime the flanks were being brilliantly against successive attacks. A particularly bitter battle was waged astride the Kemel-La Clytte highway, near the junction of the French and British. Here the enemy tried his favorite trick of dividing the two forces, but he found no weak spots.

At Ridge wood, west of Voornzeele, heavy fighting also continued throughout the day, the Germans losing great numbers of men, both killed and wounded. It is impossible to say how many attacks the enemy made at this point during the course of the day; they came forward in waves throughout long hours.

Allies, Outnumbered, Victors. There was no cessation of the terrible battle. The wonder is that the allied troops were able to hold in the face of such onslaughts by superior numbers.

The German artillery, which had been greatly augmented for this attack, pounded the back areas incessantly, and the duel between the opposing guns of all calibers from Saturday evening until Monday night was appalling.

The British improved their position slightly before Villers-Bretonneux. The enemy artillery was very active in this region, and the enemy guns were increasingly busy from Vimy northward.

Thus far the German capture of Kemmel has done them little good, for the allied artillery has kept the crest of the hill so smothered with shell fire that it has been impossible for the enemy to occupy it in force.

British Statement. The war office issued the following statement: "Successful counter-attacks carried out by French troops drove the enemy from the remainder of the ground gained by him during the morning in the neighborhood of Loere and captured a number of prisoners. The whole village is in the hands of our allies."

"After the heavy repulse inflicted on the enemy the night passed comparatively quiet on the northern battle front.

"On the remainder of the British front there is nothing to report beyond artillery activity on both sides in certain sectors."

French Statement. Paris, May 1.—The war office issued the following statement: "The region of Hangard was violently bombarded during the course of the day."

"In the Noyon sector a German attack resulted in a spirited engagement. Our troops drove the enemy from advanced elements where they had taken foot in the first assault and re-established their line. Patrol encounters occurred on the left bank of the Oise."

"The artillery battle was waged with considerable violence north and south of the Avre, in the sector of Noyon and on the south bank of the Oise. French patrols were active along all this front and brought back 15 prisoners."

"On the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) and in Upper Alsace German detachments were repulsed by our fire, leaving prisoners in our hands without obtaining result."

BACK FROM THE FRONT

EIGHT U. S. WOUNDED SOLDIERS TO AID LIBERTY LOAN.

Squad Arrives in Chicago Direct From France and Is Given Enthusiastic Welcome.

Washington, May 1.—Monday's Liberty loan subscriptions, tabulated by the treasury, were $174,443,000, the biggest single day's business in the campaign. This makes total subscriptions to date $2,457,744,900.

New York, May 1.—A total of $587,700,000 has been subscribed to the third Liberty loan in the Second federal reserve district, the committee announced. The overnight gain was $23,510,000. A subscription of $10,000,000 was made by J. P. Morgan & Co.

Chicago, May 1.—Eight of America's sons who still have the thunder of the big guns on the western front ringing in their ears, anxious for the latest reports on the big struggle about Ypres and the newest developments on the plains of Picardy, where Uncle Sam's boys joined the French in repelling the Hun's ferocious attacks, stepped into Chicago with their wounds and their medals for heroic service, to aid Chicago in going over the top for the third Liberty loan.

The squad of eight was met at the Union station, when the men detoured shortly after noon, by an enthusiastic crowd. Companies H and O of the Fortieth infantry, stationed at Fort Sheridan, officially welcomed them and acted as an escort through the streets.

Mrs. George McKintock with some of her canteen workers was on hand to greet the returning "Yanks."

Police reserves were called to the station to keep free a line to the street where the automobiles were waiting to take the men to the Chicago Athletic association and the Liberty loan headquarters. The Fortieth Infantry band played "Home, Sweet Home" as the men detoured, and each of them gave vent to a lusty yell at the ancient familiar air.

The men composing the detachment are: Corp. A. A. Montgomery, Sergt. Owen C. Hawkins, Corp. Leonard Omerod, Corp. Edgar Barnes, Corp. Harold J. Smith, Corp. Morie L. Skinner, Private Harry H. Harrison, Private James F. Redding.

Corp. Edgar Barnes is from Morris, Ill., where he was an inspector of public service before his enlistment. His sweetheart, Miss Ethel Ferguson of Morris, and his mother, Mrs. Maggie Fraser of Joliet, came to Chicago to meet him and accompanied him about his tour of the loop with the Liberty loan committee.

The men will separate after a day in Chicago and spread through the district in the interest of the loan.

57 Y. M. C. A. MEN SAVED FROM SHIP

British Steamer Orissa Bearing Workers to France Torpedoed by Submarine.

DESTROYERS TO THE RESCUE

Passengers Taken From Lifeboats—Illinoisan Is Hero of Disaster as He Saves Injured Soldier and Unconscious Wife.

London, May 1.—A party of 57 American army Young Men's Christian association workers under Arthur E. Hungerford arrived in London. The ship on which they sailed was torpedoed Sunday morning and sank in 12 minutes. All the passengers and all but three of the crew were saved.

The passengers were picked up in lifeboats and landed at a British port. On their arrival in London they were taken in charge by the American Y. M. C. A. and Red Cross.

The number of persons on board the vessel was about 250. One of the ship's officers said the Americans conducted themselves in an admirable manner.

Destroyers were sent immediately to the rescue and all the lifeboats were picked up within half an hour.

The vessel was struck amidships while proceeding in a large convoy under the protection of a number of destroyers. It was proceeding at about ten knots in bright moonlight when struck. There was an immediate heavy list and three minutes later the boilers blew up, extinguishing the lights all over the ship.

New York, April 30.—The vessel which was sunk in English waters while carrying 57 Young Men's Christian association workers was the British steel steamer Orissa, of 5,436 tons gross, it was learned here. She left an American Atlantic port on April 12.

Among the passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thring had the most exciting experience. Mr. Thring is an Australian who was involved from the British army several months ago after two years of fighting in Africa and at Gallipoli. He went to Australia, where he was married, and was returning to England with his bride to settle the estate of two brothers who were killed recently in France.

The torpedo struck just beneath their cabin and they were thrown from their berth and injured severely. The stateroom door was jammed so that it could not be opened. Mr. Thring broke the partition and carried his unconscious wife to the deck, where he, too, fell unconscious. Both were carried to a lifeboat by Arthur Bogue, Y. M. C. A. man from Chicago.

With the American Army in France, April 29.—Two American soldiers, wounded in the engagement around Seicheprey, were found alive in a dug-out in "No Man's Land." The dugout had been badly smashed by German shellfire and how the men managed to keep alive in the rain and mud and under continuous German bombardment, physicians say, is little short of miraculous.

The American troops in the Seicheprey fight, additional details show, were outnumbered in some instances eight to one. The latest reports are that the American casualties are much under the first estimates.

With the American Army in France, April 30.—The enemy laid down a heavy barrage in front of the American trenches in the Toul sector at three o'clock in the morning, the bombardment lasting an hour.

After an interval of silence he repeated the performance at five o'clock and half an hour later the German infantry started for the American lines. So intense was the American counter-attack that the enemy was repulsed without getting close enough to be engaged by the American infantry.

The Germans have been stripping the bodies of dead French soldiers in other sectors and, wearing these clothes, have come over at the point where the French and American lines join.

This method of attack was used during the attack on the Americans at Apremont forest two weeks ago. On that occasion they spoke French and said they had come to assist the Americans, but the ruse was discovered and they were driven off.

U. S. RAID NEAR MEUSE

SUCCESSFUL AMERICAN ATTACK NORTH OF ST. MIHIEL.

Missing Yanks Are Found Alive in Badly Smashed Dugout in "No Man's Land."

With the French Army in France, April 29.—American troops Sunday made a successful trench raid near the heights of the Meuse, in the vicinity of Vaux-les-Palmeux (on the front below Verdun, nine miles north of St. Mihiel). Their French comrades harassed the enemy in the same way at a number of places in Lorraine and in the Vosges.

The sector along which the Germans made a heavy attack against the Americans is situated among very broken hills, about 17 miles eastward of the important St. Mihiel salient on the road between St. Pizier and Metz. The town of Seicheprey is surrounded by hills about 800 feet high.

The line of the allies passes 2,000 yards north of Seicheprey and a few hundred yards from the edge of Renesch wood. The Germans were able to seize this wood and a strip of ground 1,000 yards long and half a mile wide lying west of the wood, on Saturday morning, and the attack on the American sector in the vicinity of Seicheprey was a sequel to this action.

CZAR'S SON ON RUSSIAN THRONE?

Counter-Revolution Reported to Have Broken Out in Petrograd.

GRAND DUKE REAL LEADER

Dispatches From Finland Tell of Serious Rioting in Former Capital—Washington Officials See German Plot.

Stockholm, April 30.—Correspondents of Swedish newspapers in Finland telegraph persistent rumors in circulation there of important happenings in Russia. The most definite rumor declares that former Grand Duke Alexis, son of the former emperor, has been declared emperor, with Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch as regent, and that the new government would refuse to recognize the bolshevik peace treaty with Germany.

London, April 30.—A dispatch from Copenhagen to the Exchange Telegraph says it is reported there that a counter-revolution has broken out in Petrograd. It reports that while no telegrams have been received from Petrograd for several days, there are rumors from Finland that there is serious rioting at the capital and that the rumor is persistent that Grand Duke Alexis Nikolavitch has been proclaimed emperor and that Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch is the real leader in Russian affairs.

Washington, April 30.—Reports from Copenhagen of persistent rumors from Finland that Grand Duke Alexis Nikolavitch, son of the former czar of Russia, has been proclaimed emperor of Russia were taken here to indicate that Germany was attempting to carry through a well-formulated plan for restoring a monarchy in that revolution-torn country.

URNS OVER AT PIER

U. S. LINER CAPSIZES AT ATLANTIC PORT.

All but Three of Several Hundred Workers Escape From the Famous Ship.

An Atlantic Port, April 27.—The American line steamship St. Paul, a famous passenger liner, overturned and sunk at her pier here while being warped into a pier preparatory to loading for a trip to Europe. Three men probably lost their lives in the accident.

At the time the St. Paul was not under steam but was being brought by tugs from a dry dock, where for the last week she had been undergoing repairs.

On her at the time were several hundred men—a majority of them employees of the dry dock—who had been sent with the vessel to complete their work while she was being loaded. The St. Paul was built at a cost of $2,500,000 and was launched in Philadelphia on April 11, 1895.

She normally carried a crew of 300 men. The ship is 554 feet long, with a 63-foot beam.

Called into war service in 1898 during the Spanish-American war, the St. Paul, under command of then Capt. Charles D. Sigbee, U. S. N., distinguished herself with the St. Louis, a sister ship, in several engagements.

William Edenborn, Louisiana Millionaire, Charged With Having Voiced "Seditious Treason."

New Orleans, April 30.—William Edenborn, president of the Louisiana Railway and Navigation company and a naturalized citizen of German birth, was arrested by department of justice agents on Sunday at Shreveport, La., on an affidavit charging violation of the espionage act.

The arrest followed a meeting here of the executive committee of the National Security league, Louisiana section, at which resolutions were adopted denouncing alleged utterances by Edenborn at an Americanization meeting of citizens of German descent last Friday night as "seditious treason against the United States and its allies."

28 SAILORS HURT IN WRECK

"Jackie Special," With 1,400 Men Aboard, Hit by Train During Fog Near Chicago.

Chicago, April 30.—Twenty-eight Jackies were hurt, many of them gravely enough to be sent to a hospital, and the lives of hundreds of others were jeopardized by a collision just before midnight Saturday just north of Summerville station. It was due to a fog. The "Jackie Special," with 1,000 men aboard, was struck by the Waukegan local, which was following close behind.

The following men were taken to the hospital: Thomas R. Collins, Roland Cleland, Joseph H. Elliott, Harry Ehncke, J. A. Renninger, Howard A. Sells, Alex. J. Sikorski, E. T. Sewandowski.

O'REILLY MAKES LOVE BADLY, BUT WELL ENOUGH TO WIN THE HEART OF ROSA.

Synopsis.—Don Esteban Varona, a Cuban planter, hides his wealth—money, jewels and title deeds—in a well on his estate. The hiding place is known only to Sebastian, a slave. Don Esteban's wife dies at the birth of twins, Esteban and Rosa. Don Esteban marries the avaricious Donna Isabel, who tries unsuccessfully to wring the secret of the hidden treasure from Sebastian. Angered at his refusal, she urges Don Esteban to sell Evangelina, Sebastian's daughter. Don Esteban refuses, but in the course of a gambling orgie, he risks Evangelina at cards and loses. Crazy by the loss of his daughter, Sebastian kills Don Esteban and is himself killed. Many years pass and Donna Isabel is unable to find the hidden treasure. Don Mario, rich sugar merchant, seeks to marry Rosa, who has returned from school in the United States.

"Good!" Don Mario rose to leave, for the exertion of his ride had made him thirsty. "You may name your own reward for helping me and I will pay it the day Rosa marries me. Now kindly advise her of my intentions and tell her I shall come to see her soon."

It was quite true that Johnnie O'Reilly—or "The O'Reilly," as his friends called him—had little in the way of worldly advantage to offer any girl, and it was precisely because of this fact that he had accepted a position here in Cuba, where, from the very nature of things, promotion was likely to be more rapid than in the New York office of his firm.

A dancing eye speaks every language; a singing heart gathers its own audience. Before the young Irish-American had more than a bowing acquaintance with the commonest Spanish verbs he had a calling acquaintance with some of the most exclusive people of Matanzas. He had adjusted himself serenely to his surroundings when Rosa Varona returned from school, but with her coming, away went all his complacency. His contentment vanished; he experienced a total change in his opinions, his hopes, and his ambitions.

He discovered, for example, that Matanzas was by no means the out-of-the-way place he had considered it; on the contrary, after meeting Rosa once by accident, twice by design, and three times by mutual arrangement, it had dawned upon him that this was the chief city of Cuba, if not, perhaps, the hub around which the whole world revolved; certainly it was the most agreeable of all cities, since it contained everything that was necessary for man's happiness. Yet, despite the thrill of his awakening, O'Reilly was

"You May Name Your Own Reward." not at all pleased with himself, for, as it happened, there was another girl back home, and during his first year of loneliness he had written to her more freely and more frequently than any man on such a salary as his had a right to do.

Inasmuch as her father was O'Reilly's "company" it may be seen that Rosa Varona's home-coming seriously complicated matters, not only from a sentimental, but from a business standpoint.

It was in a thoughtful mood that he rode up La Cumbre toward the Quinta de Esteban, late on the afternoon of Don Mario's visit. Instead of going directly to the house, as the merchant had done, O'Reilly turned off from the road and, after tethering his horse in a cluster of guava bushes, proceeded on foot. He did not like Donna Isabel, nor did Donna Isabel like him. Moreover, he had a particular reason for avoiding her today.

Just inside the Varona premises he paused an instant to admire the architecture. The quinta commanded an excellent view of the Yumuri, on the one hand, and of the town and harbor on the other; no one ever climbed the hill from the city to gaze over into that hidden valley without feeling a pleasurable surprise at finding it still there. We are accustomed to think of perfect beauty as unsubstantial, evanescent; but the Yumuri never changed, and in that lay its supremest wonder.

Through what had once been well-tended grounds, O'Reilly made his way to a sort of sunken garden which, in spite of neglect, still remained the most charming nook upon the place; and there he sat down to wait for Rosa. The hollow was effectively screened from view by a growth of platanos, palm, orange, and tamarind trees; over the rocky walls ran a profusion of flowering plants and vines; in the center of the open space was an old well, its masonry curb all but crumbled away.

When Rosa at last appeared, O'Reilly felt called upon to tell her, somewhat dizzily, that she was beyond doubt the sweetest flower on all the Quinta de Esteban, and since this somewhat hackneyed remark was the boldest speech he had ever made to her, she blushed prettily, flashing him a dimpled smile of mingled pleasure and surprise.

"Oh, but I assure you I'm in no sweet temper," said she. "Just now I'm tremendously angry."

"Why?"

"It's that stepmother—Isabel. If she dreamed that I see you as often as I do— Well—" Rosa lifted her eloquent hands and eyes heavenward. "I suppose that's why I enjoy doing it—I so dearly love to spite her."

"I see!" O'Reilly puckered his brows and nodded. "But why, in that case, haven't you seen me oftener? We might just as well have made the good lady's life totally unbearable."

"Silly! She knows nothing about it." With a flirtatious sigh Rosa added: "That's what robs the affair of its chief pleasure. Since it does not bother her in the least, I think I will not allow you to come any more."

After judicious consideration, O'Reilly pretended to agree.

"There's no fun in wreaking a horrible revenge, when your enemy isn't wise to it," he acknowledged. "Since it's your idea to irritate your stepmother, perhaps it would annoy her if I made love directly to her."

Rosa tittered, and then inquired, naively, "Can you make love, senior?"

"Can I? It's the one ability an O'Reilly inherits. Listen to this now." Reaching forth, he took Rosa's fingers in his; "Wait!" he cried as she resisted. "Pretend that you're Mrs. Varona, your own stepmother, and that this is her dimpled hand I'm holding."

"Oh-h!" The girl allowed his grasp to remain. "But Isabel's hand isn't dimpled; it's thin and bony. I've felt it on my ears often enough."

"Don't interrupt," he told her. "Isabel, my little darling—"

"Isabel!" exclaimed a voice, and the lovers started guiltily apart. They turned to find Esteban, Rosa's twin brother, staring at them oddly. "Isabel?" he repeated. "What's this?"

"You interrupted our theatricals. I was rehearsing an impassioned proposal to your beloved stepmother," O'Reilly explained, with a pretense of annoyance.

"Yes, Senior O'Reilly believes he can infuriate Isabel by laying siege to her. He's a foolish person—" Rosa's cheeks were faintly flushed and her color deepened at the amusement in Esteban's eyes. "He makes love wretchedly."

"What little I overheard wasn't bad," Esteban declared; then he took O'Reilly's hand.

Esteban was a handsome boy, straight, slim and manly, and his resemblance to Rosa was startling. With a look engaging in its frank directness, he said: "Rosa told me about your meetings here and I came to apologize for our stepmother's discourtesy. I'm sorry we can't invite you into our house, but—do you understand? Rosa and I are not like her; we are quite liberal in our views; we are almost Americans, as you see. I dare say that's what makes Isabel hate Americans so bitterly."

"Wouldn't it please her to know that I'm becoming Cubanized as fast as ever I can?" ventured the caller.

"Oh, she hates Cubans, too!" laughed the brother. "She's Spanish, you know. Well, it's fortunate you didn't see her today. Her! What a temper! She'll walk in her sleep tonight, if ever." Rosa nodded soberly, and O'Reilly, suppressing some light reply that had sprung to his lips, inquired, curiously, "What do you mean by that?"

Brother and sister joined in explaining that Donna Isabel was given to peculiar actions, especially after periods of excitement or anger, and that one of her eccentricities had taken the form of somnambulistic wanderings. "Oh, she's crazy enough," Esteban concluded. "I believe it's her evil conscience."

O'Reilly scanned the speaker silently for a moment; then he said, with a gravity unusual in him, "I wonder if you know that you're suspected of working for the insurrecto cause."

"Indeed? I didn't know."

"Well, it's a fact," O'Reilly heard Rosa gasp faintly. "Is it true?" he asked.

"I am a Cuban."

"Cuban? Your people were Spanish."

"True. But no Spaniard ever raised a Spanish child in Cuba. We are Cubans, Rosa and I. Go everywhere, and the Spanish officers talk plainly before me. Somebody must be the eyes and the ears for Colonel Lopez."

"Colonel Lopez?" exclaimed O'Reilly. Esteban nodded.

Rosa's face, as she looked at the two men, was white and worried. For a time the three of them sat silent; then the American said, slowly, "You'll be shot if you're caught."

"Some one must run chances," Esteban averred. "We're fighting tyranny; all Cuba is ablaze, I must do my part."

"But sooner or later you'll be discovered—then what?" persisted O'Reilly.

Esteban shrugged. "Who knows? There'll be time enough when—"

"What of Rosa?"

At this question the brother stirred uneasily and dropped his eyes. O'Reilly laid a hand upon his arm. "You have no right to jeopardize her safety. Without you, to whom could she turn?"

The girl flashed her admirer a grateful glance.

"Senior, you for one would see that she—"

"But—I'm going away," O'Reilly felt rather than saw Rosa start, for his face was averted. "I came here to tell you both good-by. I may be gone for some time. I—I don't know when I can get back."

"I'm sorry," Esteban told him, with genuine regret. "We have grown very fond of you. But you will come back before long, eh? You're one of us. In the meantime I'll remember what you say, and at least I'll be careful. By no means wanting in tact, Esteban rose briskly and, after shaking hands with O'Reilly, left the two lovers to say farewell as best suited them.

But for once O'Reilly's ready tongue was silent. The laughter was gone from his blue eyes when he turned to the girl at his side.

"You say you are going away?" Rosa inquired, breathlessly. "But why?"

"I'm going partly because of this war and partly because of—something else. I tried to tell you yesterday, but I couldn't. When the revolution started everybody thought it was merely a local uprising, and I wrote my company to that effect; but, bless you, it has spread like fire, and now the whole eastern end of the island is ablaze. Business has stopped, and my employers have ordered me home to find out what's happened to their profits."

"You said there was something else—"

O'Reilly's hesitation became an embarrassed silence. He tried to laugh it off.

"There is; otherwise I'd stay right here and tell my penurious friends to whistle for their profits. You may have noticed it? No? Well, perhaps it's a magnificent business ability that I have. Anyhow, the president of my company has a notion that I'd make him a good son-in-law."

"—Oh!" cried Rosa.

And at her tone O'Reilly hurried on: "These rich men have the most absurd ideas. I suppose I'll have to—"

"Then you are in love, senior?"

The young man nodded vigorously. "Indeed I am—with the sweetest girl in Cuba. That's the whole trouble. That's why I'm hurrying home to resign before I'm fired." Not daring to look too long or too deeply into Rosa Varona's eyes until she had taken in the whole truth, he waited, staring at his feet. "I'm sort of glad it has come to a show-down and I can speak out. I'm hoping she'll miss me." After a moment he ventured, "Will she—or—will you, Rosa?"

"I? Miss you?" Rosa lifted her brows in pretended amazement. "You are amusing, of course, but—I won't have much time to think about you, for I am so soon to be married."

"Married? What? Nonsense!"

"Indeed! Do you think I'm so ugly nobody would have me? The richest man in Matanzas has asked for my hand this very afternoon."

"Who? Mario de Castano?"

"Yes."

O'Reilly laughed with relief, and though Rosa tried to look offended, she was forced to smile. "He's fat, I know," she admitted, "and he makes funny noises when he breathes; but he is richer than Castano, and I adore rich men."

"I hate 'em!" announced O'Reilly. Then for a second time he took Rosa's dimpled hand, saying, earnestly: "I'm sure you know now why I make love so badly, dear. It's my Irish conscience. And you'll wait until I come back, won't you?"

"Will you be gone—very long?" she asked.

O'Reilly looked deeply now into the dark eyes turned to his, and found that at last there was no coquetry in them anywhere—nothing but a lonesome, hungry yearning—and with a glad, incoherent exclamation he held out his arms. Rosa Varona crept into them; then with a sigh she upturned her lips to his.

"I'll wait forever," she said.

CHAPTER IV.

Retribution.

Although for a long time Donna Isabel had been sure in her own mind that Pancho Cueto, her administrator, was robbing her, she had never mustered courage to call him to a reckoning. Nevertheless, De Castano's blunt accusation, coupled with her own urgent needs, served to fix her resolution, and on the day after the merchant's visit she sent for the overseer, who at the time was living on one of the plantations.

Cueto was plainly curious to learn why he had been sent for, but since he asked no questions, his employer was forced to open the subject herself. Through dry, white lips she began:

"Will You Be Gone—Very Long?" She Asked.

"My dear Pancho, times are hard. The plantations are falling, and so—" Pancho Cueto's eyes were set close to his nose, his face was long and thin and harsh; he regarded the speaker with such a sinister, unblinking stare that she could scarcely finish: "—and so I—can no longer afford to retain you as administrator."

"Times will improve," he said.

"Impossible! I tell you I'm bankrupt."

"So? Then the remedy is simple—sell a part of your land."

Although this suggestion came naturally enough, Donna Isabel turned cold, and felt her smile stiffen into a grimace. She wondered if Cueto could be feeling her out deliberately. "Sell the Varona lands?" she queried, after a momentary struggle with herself. "Esteban would rise from his grave. No. It was his wish that the plantations go to his children intact."

"And his wish is sacred to you, eh?" Cueto nodded his approval, although his smile was disconcerting. "An admirable sentiment! It does you honor! But speaking on this subject, I am reminded of that dispute with Jose Oroz over the boundary to La Joya. I have promised to show him the original deed to La Joya and to furnish him with the proofs about the boundary line. That would be better than a lawsuit, wouldn't it?"

"Decidedly! But—I will settle with him myself."

Cueto lifted an admonitory hand, his face alight with the faintest glimmer of ironic mirth. "I couldn't trust you to the mercies of that rascal," he said placidly. "No, I shall go on as I am, even at a sacrifice to myself. I love Don Esteban's children as my very own; and you, senora—"

Isabel knew that she must win a complete victory at once or accept irremediable defeat.

"Never!" she interrupted, with a tone of finality. "I can't accept your sacrifice. I am not worthy. Kindly arrange to turn over your books of account at once."

Then Pancho Cueto did an unexpected thing; he laughed shortly and shook his head.

Donna Isabel was ready to faint and her voice quavered as she went on: "Understand me, we part the best of friends despite all I have heard against you. I do not believe these stories people tell, for you probably have enemies. Even if all they said were true, I should force myself to be lenient because of your affection for my husband."

The man rose, still smiling. "It is I who have been lenient," said he.

"Eh? Speak plainly."

"Gladly. I have long suspected that Don Esteban hid the deeds of his property with the rest of his valuables, and now that you admit—"

Donna Isabel recoiled sharply. "Admit! Are you mad? Deeds! What are you talking about?" Her eyes met his bravely enough, but she could feel her lips trembling loosely.

Casting aside all pretense, the overseer exclaimed: "For el amor de Dios! An end to this! I know you sent for me. You think I have been robbing you. Well, to be honest, so I have. Why should I toil as I do while you and those twins live here in luxury and idleness, squandering money to which you have no right?"

"Have I lost my reason?" gasped the widow. "No right?"

"At least no better right than I. Don't you understand? You have no title to these plantations! They are mine, for I have paid the taxes out of my own pockets through these many years."

"Taxes! What do you mean?"

"I paid them. The receipts are in my name."

"Heaven! Such perfidy! And you who knew him?"

"The deeds have been lost for so long that the property would have reverted to the crown had it not been for me. You doubt that, eh? Well, appeal to the court and you will find that it is true. Now, then, let us be frank. Inasmuch as we're both in much the same fix, hadn't we better continue our present arrangements?" He stared unblinkingly at his listener. "Oh, I mean it! Is it not better for you to be content with what my generosity prompts me to give, rather than to risk ruin for both by grasping for too much?"

"The outrage! I warrant you have grown rich through your stealing," Isabel's voice had gone flat with consternation.

"Rich? Well, not exactly, but comfortably well off." Cueto actually smiled again. "No doubt my frankness is a shock to you. You are angry at my proposition, eh? Never mind. You will think better of it in time. If you are a sensible woman. But now, since at last we enjoy such confidential relations, let us have no more of these miserable suspicions of each other. Let us entirely forget this unpleasant misunderstanding and be the same good friends as before."

Having said this, Pancho Cueto stood silent a moment in polite expectancy; then receiving no intelligible reply, he bowed low and left the room.

To the avaricious Donna Isabel Cueto's frank acknowledgment of theft was maddening, and the realization that she was helpless, nay, dependent upon his charity for her living, fairly crucified her proud spirit.

All day she brooded, and by the time evening came she had worked herself into such a state of nerves that she could eat no dinner. Some time during the course of the evening a wild idea came to Isabel. Knowing that the manager would spend the night beneath her roof, she planned to kill him. At first it seemed a simple thing to do—merely a matter of a dagger or a pistol, while he slept—but further thought revealed appalling risks and difficulties, and she decided to wait. Poison was far safer.

Constant brooding over the treasure had long since affected Donna Isabel's brain, and as a consequence she often dreamed about it. She dreamed about it again tonight, and, strangely enough, her dreams were pleasant. Sebastian appeared, but for once he neither cursed nor threatened her; and Esteban, when he came, was again the lover who had courted her in Habana. It was amazing, delightful, Esteban and she were walking through the grounds of the quinta and he was telling her about his casks of Spanish sovereigns, about those boxes bound with iron, about the gold and silver ornaments of heavenly beauty and the pearls as large as plums. As he talked Isabel felt herself grow hot and cold with anticipation; she experienced spasms of delight.

Then of a sudden Isabel's whole dream-world dissolved. She awoke, or thought she did, at hearing her name shouted. But although she underwent the mental and the physical shock of being startled from slumber, although she felt the first swift fright of a person aroused to strange surroundings, she knew on the instant that she must still be asleep; for everything about her was dim and dark, the air was cold and damp, wet grass rose to her knees. Before she could half realize her condition she felt herself plunged into space. She heard herself scream hoarsely, fearfully, and knew, too late, that she was indeed awake. Then—whirling chaos—A sudden, blinding crash of lights and sounds— Nothing more!

Esteban Varona sat until a late hour that night over a letter which required the utmost care in its composition. It was written upon the thinnest of paper, and when it was finished the same material. Esteban put the letter in his pocket with the old sunken garden. He passed close by the well, and its gaping mouth, only half protected by the broken coping, reminded him that he had promised Rosa to cover it with planks. In its present condition it was a menace to animals, if not to human beings who were unaware of its presence.

Esteban's support of the insurrecto cause brings disaster to himself and Rosa. The next installment tells of their plight.

Don't you ever stop to realize that no one is wholly indispensable in this world? Someone can take our places if we drop out. Why not accept all that is offered to us and get the most out of life we can?

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

The fresh rhubarb is an always welcome spring fruit which may be served in various ways.

Rhubarb Sponge.—Clean and cut in half-inch pieces without peeling young, tender rhubarb, that which has a pink or rose skin preferred. Stew until tender, adding one-fourth cupful of boiling water to a pound of the rhubarb; cook until tender. Soften one ounce of granulated gelatin in a third of a cupful of cold water. Strain the cooked rhubarb, pressing out all the juice and add enough boiling water to make three cupfuls. Mix three-fourths of a cupful of sugar with a half a teaspoonful of ginger, stir in the juice and gelatin, when the gelatin is dissolved add the grated rind and juice of a lemon and set the mixture to chill. When it begins to thicken fold in the beaten whites of three eggs. Mold. Serve with sweetened whipped cream.

Head Cheese.—Boil three hocks of a pig until the meat falls from the bones, season as desired and drain and cool. Chop coarsely, add a chopped onion, pepper, salt and nutmeg, with the liquor, in which the hocks were cooked. Mold and when cold serve in slices.

Belgian Hash.—Soak a half cupful of prunes and a half cupful of currants over night, add two finely chopped hocks of a pig cooked until the meat drops from the bones, add a half cupful of sugar, three-fourths of a cupful of vinegar and a fourth of a cupful of water, in which the fruit was soaked, half a grated nutmeg, and a dash of salt. Put into the oven and cook slowly until all of the moisture is absorbed. More sugar is liked by some, but for the uninitiated this will be sufficient, as sugar with meat is an innovation for the American palate.

Cheese Balls.—Season cottage cheese with butter, red pepper and salt, mix into small balls, roll them in chopped nuts and set aside to become firm. Serve with crackers and a plain lettuce salad.

Nuts in cottage cheese with onion juice and cream to soften, with paprika and salt to season, makes a most palatable salad.

And the plowman settles his share More deep in the grudging clod; For he saith, "The wheat is my care, And the rest is the will of God."

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY.

Slice a large onion into one teaspoonful of butter and let it simmer. Add one cupful of cooked oatmeal and cook until the onion is tender. Add a scant pint of milk, and salt and pepper to taste. Strain, bring to the boiling point and serve hot with crackers.

When making celery soup always use the leaves to stew with a few stalks, as there is much flavor in them. Dried and pulverized, they make excellent seasoning for soups or meats.

Creole Rice.—Chop one large onion and a small slice of ham, very fine, put into a saucepan with one tablespoonful of butter and a cupful of cooked rice, a can of tomatoes, salt and pepper to taste. Mix well and put into a buttered baking dish to bake 15 minutes. Cover the top with buttered crumbs before putting into the oven.

Raisin Pie de Luxe.—Stew together a cupful of raisins, a quarter of a cupful of currants (dried), in a pint of apricot juice. Add three tablespoonfuls of butter, two egg yolks, a tablespoonful of lemon juice, and sugar to taste; cook until well blended. Put into a shell previously baked and cover with three tablespoonfuls of sugar. A tablespoonful or two of oil pickles chopped fine and used as a sandwich filling will be found most appetizing.

Emergency Soup.—Take a can of salmon, drain off the oil and rub the fish through a sieve. Add 1½ teaspoonfuls of salt to a quart of milk, stir in the fish and four tablespoonfuls of flour that has been blended with two tablespoonfuls of oil from the can; cook until smooth and serve with a dash of red pepper and a sprinkling of minced parsley on the top of each cup. Serve with toasted crackers.

Add a small green pepper finely chopped to any salad dressing; it improves the flavor.

Nellie Maxwell

Steel Plates.

"John," said Mrs. Jenkins, looking up from the evening paper, "you know how many dishes Kate has broken lately?" "Yes," said John, "what of it?" "Well," continued the lady, "there is something in the paper about the government and steel plates. I don't know just what they are, but I should think they might be indestructible."

THIS WOMAN SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, One of Thousands of Such Cases.

Black River Falls, Wis.—"As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation, I cannot say enough in praise of it. I suffered from organic troubles and my side hurt me so I could hardly lie up from my bed, and I was unable to do my housework. I had the best doctors in Eau Claire and they wanted me to have an operation, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me so I did not need the operation, and I am telling all my friends about it."—Mrs. A. W. BUNZER, Black River Falls, Wis.

It is just such experiences as that of Mrs. Bunzer that has made this famous root and herb remedy a household name from ocean to ocean. Any woman who suffers from inflammation, ulceration, displacements, backache, nervousness, irregularities or "the blues" should not rest until she has given it a trial, and for special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

NURSES DOING NOBLE WORK

Bright Spot in Savagery of War Today is the Effort Toward Relief of Suffering.

What a flood of light Sir Evelyn Wood throws on pre-Nightingale days in his story of being savagely beaten on the face during Crimean days, while lying in hospital with both hip bones through the skin. Sarah Gamp found her way to the Crimean front in spite of the Lady of the Lamp, and into Sir Evelyn's dormitory. She was the "highest yet" before Florence Nightingale took matters in hand. Lady Palmerston thought the Sarah Gamps good, and if they did drink—well, so did the ladies' nurses, "and nothing could be better for them poor people."

War is more terrible now than in Sir Evelyn's day, but mercy and science march hand in hand to the relief of suffering, and he may well be an optimist. The Crimea established the British as leaders of the world in medicine, surgery, nursing and hygiene. Out of this modern agony new ameliorative triumphs emerge. And splendid girls of gentle blood who toil unnoted all day in military hospitals or nobly stand and wait throughout the live-long night, ministering to the comfort of traveling soldiers and sailors, will have as fine lessons to teach as their sisters behind the firing line.

He who pokes his nose into everything will occasionally poke it between a thumb and forefinger

CAMPBELLSPORT

Mrs. H. F. Sackett was a business caller here Tuesday.

Mrs. P. Van Blarcom was a business caller here Tuesday.

H. Schrauth was a business caller at Milwaukee Wednesday.

Chas. Roberts was a business caller at Milwaukee Thursday.

F. Jewsen and two daughters called on friends here Monday.

R. Wenzel and Chas. Cole called on friends at Milwaukee Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Uelmen, received a letter from their son, Leo Uelmen who was reported severely wounded in action March 22. The young man states that he was "gassed" on March 22, was confined to a hospital for five days but is back fighting the Kaiser.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Brown received a letter from the Commanding Officer of the 150th Machine Gun Battalion. It is stated that their son, Pearson L. Brown, who it was supposed, died of pneumonia, died as the result of being gassed in action on March 29. The officer expressed the deep sympathy of the entire Machine Gun Battalion to the family of the dead hero.

Otto Wohlitz, aged 43 years died Monday evening. He was a son of Ferdinand Wohlitz of the village and leaves two daughters, Mrs. Emma Haacke of Milwaukee and Mrs. Minnie Hadley of Portland, Ore. Two brothers, William and Herman, both of here also survive him. The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon from the Gilboy and Smith undertaking parlors, with interment in the Auburn Lutheran cemetery.

The following were among those who visited at Fond du Lac this week: Dr. P. Uelmen, S. Bonesho, Chas. Holtz, K. Reibier, Mrs. S. Hendricks, Mrs. John Adams, Mrs. W. Knickel, Mrs. Henry Braun, Miss Ruth Scheid, Miss L. Rusch, Wm. Klocke, Chas. Seering, Mrs. R. Loomis, Mrs. L. Diersdorf, Frank Heffling, K. Mayer, Mrs. J. Scheid, Mrs. Jos. Gilboy, Mrs. R. E. Ellis, Mrs. Chas. Hughes, M. Polzean, Henry Weiss, Chas. Van De Zande, Mrs. Jos. Parrott, F. Loomis, H. A. Wrucke, John Loeb, Mrs. A. Jewson and E. Tuttle.

Fred Garret, son of Rev. J. E. Garret of the Campbellsport M. E. church left last Monday evening for New York, where he will enter the aero squad as a photographer. Arnold M. Ertz, son of Mrs. Anna Ertz, has enlisted in the shipbuilding department and expects to leave this week. Esther R. Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Ellis, was one of five to pass an examination for Ensign School in Chicago. He has been employed by the Kimberly and Clark Company of Appleton, as a chemist. He expects to leave the first of June.

Three of Campbellsport's popular young men left Wednesday for Ripon where they joined the Ripon contingent and returned to Fond du Lac from where they left with the county select men for Columbus, Ohio. The citizens of this village gave them a patriotic demonstration and also a parade which was formed on the village square and marched with the boys to the depot. The men who left are Leo Gremminger, John Thompson and Charles Krueger. We wish the boys' life as soldiers to be one of continued sunshine, with honor and pride resting upon them when they return.

The marriage of George Theisen, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Theisen and Anna Bonlander of Marshfield, took place at 9 o'clock Monday morning at St. Matthew's church, Rev. B. July officiated. The bride was dressed in a white georgette crepe gown with bead trimmings, and wore a veil and carried a bouquet of bridal roses while the bridesmaid, Miss Bell Theisen, was attired in a green crepe de chine, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was attended by his cousin, Adolph Mauel. After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the groom's parents, where a reception was held with about forty relatives in attendance. The young people will make their home with the groom's parents in Campbellsport for the present.

Fifty men in this village have signed up for a Home Guard company which Clarence Gage is endeavoring to organize. Mr. Gage has had sufficient military experience to make him an efficient man for the job. He served for six years and nine months in the United States army, spending most of that time in the Philippines. He attempted to enlist in the present war, but was rejected. The men are anxious to have the Home Guard company organized and fifty have already signed up for drill. A request for organization papers has been sent to the adjutant general at Madison.

Mr. Gage is an uncle of the late Pierson L. Brown, who died in France. He is willing to drill young men under draft age, and those who are likely to be called to service in the draft, so that they will be somewhat familiar with military tactics when they enter training camps. He is especially anxious to get in touch with the county boys.

You have got to clean and clear the bowels thoroughly to have good health after months of indoor life; you would do so now if you could see them as you do your face or hands. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea cleans and clears as nothing else. Start tonight.—Edw. C. Miller.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine, manufactured by E. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Medicine fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
