PEARSON BROWN KILLED IN SERVICE

The following letter written by Leo Uelmen to Herman Paas of Campbellsport which was published in the Fond du Lac Commonwealth, gives the exact cause of the death of Pearson Brown, in France some time ago.

"Dear Friend:—I suppose you think I'm a fine guy for not writing at least once in a while but Rudy (Bugler Kraemer) always says that he writes to you often and what news I could write would be similar to his.

"I suppose Campbellsport is pretty well shook up about the sad news of Pearson's (Brown) death. It certainly was a shock to us, especially us four that were a little closer attached. Rudy received the clipping taken from the Campbellsport News and it says that he died of infection. That is true but the infection was due from active service in the front line trenches. Pearson and myself slept in the same dugout.

"The rest of the company is in tip-top shape and we are now taking our regular turn at the front. The people at home won't have to worry about their boys as yet. Wait until there is a drive like the one that is raging now, then the people can prepare for great sacrifices. It is a push of that kind that will come day and night. These skirmishes back and forth will never tell the tale.

"I will have to close for this time. With best regards to yourself and the bunch, I am, your friend, Leo Uelmen"

JULIUS STERN WRITES FROM CAMP GRANT

Miss Mathilda Marquardt received the following letter from Julius Stern, who left with the last contingent of Washington county boys and who is located at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill: June 9, 1918.

Dear Friend: I must answer your kind and welcome letter which I received the other day and was very glad to hear from you.

"Because this is the place I make money and this is the place to spend it. Because my interests are here. Because I believe in transacting business with friends. Because the community that is good enough for me to live in is good enough to buy in.

"Because I want to see the goods. Because I want to get what I pay for. Because every dollar I spend at home stays at home and works for the development of the city.

"Because the man I buy from stands back of the goods. Because I sell what I produce here at home. Because the man I buy from pays his part of the city and county taxes.

"Because the man I buy from helps support my school, my church, my lodge and my home.

Here is where I live and here is where I buy.

CAPT. EDWARDS GIVES GOOD SPEECH

A meeting of the committeemen of the War Savings Stamp drive was held at the Opera House last Saturday afternoon and a very large crowd was in attendance. After the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by Miss Celesta Martin, the chairman of the meeting, D. M. Josenheimer, introduced Geo. H. Schmidt, Chairman of the Washington County War Savings Committee, who gave a short talk to the committeemen on what war savings stamps were for and the duties required of all serving on the committee. Chairman Rosenheimer then introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Capt. Frank Edwards of the British army. Who discoursed at some length on the conditions "over there" and what the people of America must expect before the close of the great war.

He stated that at the beginning of the war he was a pastor over a congregation of nearly two thousand souls at Cornwall, England, therefore there was bound to be a large number of young men in a congregation of this size. He states that about six hundred of the young men of his congregation enlisted and as he felt the responsibility of these young men resting so heavily upon him, he in time also enlisted as a private, gradually working his way upward until he arose to be the commander of their battalion. Before this he had been an officer in the English army and had served his country in different parts of Europe, before entering the ministry. He states that he could have received a commission at once, but preferred to take his place in the ranks, where he would be on an equal footing with the young men of his congregation. The Captain received two wounds while at the front line trenches which disqualified him for future active service and a short time ago a number of English officers were ordered to America in the interests of the war, and he was chosen as one of them. Captain Edwards spoke in glowing terms of the part America is taking in this war and stated that he should not become too overconfident, as the war is a long way from being over with, and will require undreamed of hardships and sacrifices on our part before the Huns are finally subdued and peace is once more established throughout the world. The speaker gave a great number of very interesting anecdotes of the happenings on the field of battle, which held the audience spell bound throughout his entire speech. The meeting was brought to a close by the singing of "America" by the audience.

—Miss Florence Groeschel left Sunday evening for Ladysmith, where she will remain during the summer months.

—Miss Ida Jung, who spent several days here with Miss Luella Schnurr, returned to her home at Allenton Sunday.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES HELD

The Kewaskum Opera House was filled last Thursday and Friday evenings to enjoy the class play and commencement exercises of our high school. On Thursday evening, June 6th, the class play, "The Silent Detective", was very creditably given and easily showed the hard work and excellent coaching of the participants. Every member of the cast showed remarkable talent and demonstrated what can be done with a well chosen cast, as every part and character showed that they were well suited for the impersonations portrayed by them. To try to pick out individualism among the eleven characters would be almost impossible as all were very good. Principal Simon had charge of the coaching for the play, and certainly lived up to his reputation as a producer of high school plays of high order.

On Friday evening the regular graduation and commencement exercises were held, this occasion being looked forward to by the relatives and friends of the graduates for some time. The graduates this year were nine in number, six girls and three boys, namely: Celesta Martin, Gertrude Mohme, Gladys Perschbacher, Frances Raether, Corena Schaefer, Dorothy Seering, Elroy Backhaus, Herbert Beisbier and James Heisler. The salutatory was given by Celesta Martin and the valedictory by Gertrude Mohme. The program as rendered is as follows: Music, Kewaskum Quintette; Song, High School; Salutatory, Celesta Martin; Class History, Gladys Perschbacher; Class Emblems, James Heisler; Class Prophecy, Frances Raether; Class Poem, Dorothy Seering; Class Song, Class of 1918; Presidents Oration, Elroy Backhaus; Class Mentions, Corena Schaefer; Class Will, Herbert Beisbier; Valedictory, Gertrude Mohme; Song, Glee Club; Junior Response, Agnes Stoffel; Presentation of Diplomas, L. POCKET BOOK

FACTORY TO MOVE

The work of remodeling the Otto Stark building on lower Main street, formerly used as a paint shop and dwelling, began last Monday. When the repairs are completed the entire building will be occupied by the Leuther Novelty Manufacturing Co. This company, which started up here about a year ago, has become too large for the quarters in which it has been located, namely, Mrs. Emma Altenhofen's building near the Main street bridge. This institution is a branch of the Enger-Kress Pocket Book Factory of West Bend, which is considered the largest manufacturers of this class of goods in the world. A steady growth has been noticeable in the local branch until an increase in floor and working space has become a marked necessity. The entire lower floor of the new quarters will be devoted to the work-room, which when finished will accommodate about fifty employees. The upper floors will be utilized for storage purposes. The factory commenced business here on September 24, 1917, with seven employees and the following Wednesday thirteen employees were added to the pay-roll. Herman Gilbert, an experienced pocket book man has charge of the local branch, and informs us that the possibilities of enlargement of this concern are even greater in time to come. The complete force is at work steadily and have all the work that they can do. We prophesy big things for this company if it only meets with the hearty co-operation of our progressive citizens. May success attend this institution is the hearty wish of the citizens of Kewaskum.

A reception for the immediate relatives of the young couple followed at the home of the bride's parents. The bride and groom left for a wedding trip through the delles of Wisconsin. They will be at home after October 1st on the groom's farm near Mitchell.

VIEWS OF THE BEAUTIFUL FOREST LAKE SUMMER RESORT

THIS beautiful body of water is situated among the rugged hills of Wisconsin known as the "County Line Range," that marks the boundary line between Sheboygan and Fond du Lac counties. It is one of the group of charming lakes called the "seven waters" and is but three hours' ride from Chicago by the Chicago & Northwestern Railway. Pure, spring-fed and clear as crystal, the sandy beach sloping gently into the lake, it affords splendid facilities for shallow or deep water bathing, as may be desired. Surrounded by hills forested with grand old oaks it forms a composite picture as beautiful as nature ever created. Forest Lake is well stocked with black bass of the small-mouth variety, croppies and perch. Moon Lake, eighty rods west, has plenty of large-mouthed bass, pickerel, and all other varieties. Besides we have Lake Seven, Crooked Lake, Lake Fifteen and Long Lake—all within a short distance and well stocked with fish.

FRENCH PRESSED BACK TO OISE; WIN IN CENTER

Germany Push to Ribecourt on Allies' Right.

HUNS GAIN AT HEAVY COST

Furious Counter-Attacks by Foch's Troops Check Hun Advance on French Left and Center—Town of Mery Regained.

London, June 12.—Writing from French army headquarters, Reuter's correspondent says the French have been pressed back to the Oise.

[This evidently refers to the retirement of the allies south of Ribecourt.]

Foe Gains at Heavy Cost. Paris, June 12.—Furious counter-attacks by the allies appear to have checked, at least for the present, the German advance from Noyon on the French left and center, but the war office communique announces the enemy has made some gain in his drive down the east, or left, bank of the Oise river.

The gains made, however, have been at a cost that appears to be almost prohibitive and nowhere has the enemy been able to progress except by the most reckless use of reserves, which repeatedly were annihilated or cut to bits by French machine gun and artillery fire from prepared positions.

Berlin Claims Little. Much significance is attached to the Berlin war statement, which makes no claim to gain for the last 24 hours.

The German report says: "On the battlefield southwest of Noyon renewed counter-attacks failed with the heaviest losses for the enemy."

That General Foch considers the situation menacing, if not serious, is indicated by the fact that he has thrown in reinforcements of such strength that a counter-attack, not only checked the hostile advance on the French left, but threw the enemy back two miles in the center.

Allies Retake Mery. Despite repeated onslaughts, the war office statement says, the Germans were unable to capture La Ployron or Courcelles, both of which lie south and a bit to the east of Montdidier. The village of Mery, somewhat further southeast, was lost, but regained by the allies.

Further east, however, it now appears, the enemy drove forward in the center nearly to the Aronde river, only three or four miles north and west of Compiègne, one of the German high command's objectives. The war office report says the enemy, exerting great effort between the towns of Belloy and Marquieville, pushed on to "the vicinity" of the Aronde.

Foe Is Thrown Back. Here the French inaugurated counter blows which sent the Germans reeling backward approximately two or three miles. This counter-strike virtually re-established the allies' line, although possibly a mile or a little more south of the point where the foe launched his great attack.

It was on the right, however, along the Oise river, that the Germans seem to have made the greatest progress. Here, the war office announces, the French withdrew their lines south and west of Ribecourt, which lies in a bend of the Oise. The allies' lines now run almost east and west from Belloy to Carepoint.

Caught in Loop. So far nothing has been forthcoming as to whether the allies have been compelled to withdraw from the loop, to the east, formed by the Oise, with the northern point at Compiègne, and running down through Sarpey, due east to Ribecourt. Included in this loop, about six miles across, are heavily wooded hills, which the Germans were unable to take in recent fighting, which developed at the end of the Marne offensive.

There is no doubt that the Germans are perilously near Compiègne, an important railway and highway point, which lies on the northern edge of the forest of Compiègne.

Fail to Reach Railway. With the French Army in France, June 12.—The strongest effort made by the Germans in the course of the night and morning in their new offensive was in the direction of the railroad connecting Estreos-St. Denis and Montdidier. The Germans met with such resistance that they renounced for the moment their attempts in this region.

Negro troops (perhaps American) supported by entente allied tanks, which did great execution, delivered a brilliant counter-attack in this vicinity and recaptured the forest running southwest of Marquieville, between Perte farm and Loges farm.

Late at night the allied infantry re-entered the village of Mery, which had formed a protective point for the German advance through the valley. Seeing their progress hindered on this side, the Germans turned toward the other flank and nearly reached Ribecourt, to the north of which place the hottest encounters occurred in the woods of Dreslincourt.

The Germans have found it necessary to bring forward more divisions to fill the gaps in their ranks caused by the terrific allied gunfire.

U. S. MEN WIN WOOD MARINES TAKE 350 PRISONERS AND SEVERAL GUNS.

Americans Attack Germans in Belleau Wood After Two-Hour Bombardment.

With the American Army on the Marne, June 12.—A battalion of American marines took the northern half of Belleau wood, northwest of Chateau Thierry, capturing 350 Prussians and Saxons, including ten officers two Krupp field guns of three-inch caliber, several large mine-wreckers and a number of machine guns.

The attack was delivered after two hours of preliminary bombardment in which the allied artillery made the shell-shattered wood an inferno for the Germans.

The furious American assaults found the Germans stunned and reeling, ready to surrender. The American machine gunners inflicted the heaviest casualties upon the enemy. Owing to the excellent artillery preparation and the swiftness of the operation the American casualties were light.

The Germans launched an attack on Bouresches at five o'clock. The assault was smashed, thanks to the coolness of the American machine gunners and the accuracy of the artillery.

With the Americans West of Montdidier, June 12.—The Americans with in the shadow of the new German drive are ready for any blow that may fall. There is an ominous quiet around the American front at Cantigny. Our artillery heavily gassed the German positions Sunday night, but the lull fell again on Monday.

With the roar of the heavy firing in the Montdidier region always reaching them, the Americans here are constantly on the alert for some evidence of the German attack spreading westward to include this sector.

American patrols are continually active and prisoners are brought in almost daily.

Sergeant Burns of the signal corps went on a "personally conducted" tour of the Boches' front trenches. He shot every German he ran across and returned safely to his own lines.

One American field hospital was so endangered by enemy bombs that preparations have been made to evacuate it, but the nurses and doctors are still on the job.

Paris, June 12.—The number of prisoners taken by the Germans in the new offensive has increased by more than 10,000, making the aggregate of prisoners taken since May 27 about 75,000, says the German official communication. It adds that the Germans have repulsed with heavy losses attacks northwest of Chateau Thierry, in which region American marines and French troops are opposed to them.

French Report. Paris, June 12.—The Germans continued to exert pressure in the direction of Estreos-St. Denis and Ribecourt.

On our left our resistance was effective. The Germans were able to capture neither Le Puoyron nor Courcelles. The village of Mery was recaptured by the French at ten o'clock at night.

The principal effort of the Germans was exerted along the front of Belloy and Marquieville. By a powerful attack delivered with a great number of effectives, the enemy succeeded in driving back the French to the vicinity of the Aronde river, but by a magnificent return offensive French troops hurled back the enemy all along the front, re-establishing their positions on a line south of Belloy, at St. Maur, south of Marquieville and at Vandellcourt.

On the right the French engaged in violent struggles in the wood north of Dreslincourt. The Germans, who had concentrated very heavy forces in this region, were able to reach Antoval, compelling the French troops to withdraw their line of resistance to the west and south of Ribecourt.

British Report. London, June 12.—The number of prisoners captured by us in a successful operation carried out at night south of Morlaucourt is 298, including five officers.

Another minor operation was undertaken with complete success by Australian troops in the region of Morlaucourt. The line south of the village had been advanced to the depth of nearly half a mile on a front of over a mile and a half, and 233 prisoners, 21 machine guns, and a trench mortar were captured by us.

Successful raids, in which we captured several prisoners and two machine guns and inflicted numerous casualties upon the enemy were carried out by us during the night northwest of Morlaucourt, south of the Scarpe, and east of Nieppe forest. The enemy raided one of our posts in Aveluy wood. One man is missing.

Baker's Industrial Chief. Washington, June 12.—Secretary of War Baker announced the appointment of Ernest M. Hopkins, president of Dartmouth college, to be assistant to the secretary of war in charge of industrial relations.

Paris Shelled; 2 Dead, 9 Hurt. Paris, June 12.—The long distance bombardment of Paris was resumed. Two persons were killed and nine were wounded.

CURB ON STRIKES URGED

Workers Will Give Everything for United States, but Nothing for Profit—Must Crush Militarism.

St. Paul, Minn., June 12.—Working men of the United States will be satisfied only with a peace brought about by the complete overthrow of the German military machine, according to President Samuel Gompers, who made the principal address on Monday at the opening session of the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor.

"The struggle means so much for the world that if we should lose the lights of freedom in the world will go out," he said.

After pledging labor's support to the cause of freedom, justice and happiness may be maintained, the speaker declared:

"For the republic of the United States and her cause we are ready to give everything, but for profit nothing."

Laying great stress upon the necessity of crushing the autocratic and imperialistic aims of Germany, Mr. Gompers stated that a peace by treaty would be absolutely worthless.

"Autocracy, militarism and its most dangerous supporting weapon, irresponsible democracy, must perish; democracy, justice, freedom and absolute confidence between government and people must be established and triumph," is the verdict of American labor upon its country's participation in the war, expressed by the report of President Gompers and the executive council of the federation.

"Workers in war production are practically a part of the fighting force," the report declares. "No action should be taken in the shops or on the field not in harmony with the purpose of the war. No strike should be inaugurated which cannot be justified to the man risking his life on the firing line in France."

"America was drawn into this world war by the challenge of those autocratic forces which enthroned might as their chief aim. With the growth of achievements of our republic, this nation has stood as a beacon light to all the oppressed peoples of the earth."

Major General Gorgas Denies That Vice Is Rampant Either Abroad or at Home.

Chicago, June 12.—"The American army is the best in the world physically, mentally and morally. And it will be kept so until the boys are returned to their homes."

This was the message of Maj. Gen. William C. Gorgas, surgeon general of the United States army, to the homes of America. He made most positive denial of immorality or drunkenness being rampant among either the American expeditionary forces or in the entrenchments at home and asserted that "There never was a cleaner army on the face of the earth." He is in Chicago to attend the American Medical association convention.

LUXURIES WILL BE HIT

UNCLE SAM'S WAR TAX TO REACH EIGHT BILLIONS.

Secretary McAdoo Asks Direct Levy — Brunt to Fall on War Profits.

Washington, June 8.—Secretary McAdoo on Thursday recommended in a letter to Chairman Kitchin of the house ways and means committee that the new revenue bill be drawn to raise $3,000,000,000 by taxation, one-third of the estimated $24,000,000,000 expenditures in the fiscal year 1919.

He also recommended that a war-profit tax be established at high rate, to be superimposed upon existing excess profits taxes; that the normal income tax on unearned incomes be raised and that heavy taxation be imposed upon luxuries.

In his letter the secretary said:

"If I may, without impropriety, offer a suggestion as to the revenue measure, I should recommend:

"1. That one-third of the cash expenditures to be made during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, be provided by taxation. According to my estimates, this would involve raising $3,000,000,000 through taxation.

"2. That a real war profits tax at a high rate be levied upon all war profits. This tax should be superimposed upon the existing excess profits tax in such a way that the taxpayer should be required to pay whichever tax is the greater.

"3. That there should be a substantial increase in the amount of normal income tax upon so-called unearned incomes. Under existing laws earned incomes above certain exemptions are taxed 4 per cent as an income tax and 8 per cent as an excess profits tax, making a total of 12 per cent, while unearned incomes, derived from securities, etc., are taxed only 4 per cent. The 8 per cent tax should be recognized as an income tax and the rate of 12 per cent (4 per cent normal and 8 per cent excess profits) should be retained in respect to earned incomes, while a higher rate than 12 per cent should be imposed on unearned incomes.

"4. That heavy taxation be imposed upon all luxuries."

SUB SINKS U. S. SHIP, CREW SAVED

Steamer Piner del Rio Destroyed by U-Boat Off Maryland Coast.

TWO LIFEBOATS PICKED UP

Report Received at Washington Says Seven Submarines Are Operating in Atlantic—British Transport Sinks Two.

Washington, June 11.—The American steamer Piner del Rio was sunk by an enemy submarine on June 8, during the morning. It was announced on Sunday night by the navy department. The sinking occurred about 75 miles off the Maryland coast.

Two lifeboats containing the captain and crew of the steamer have been picked up at sea and landed. The Pinar del Rio was a 2,500-ton steel vessel, owned by the American and Cuban Steamship line. She was built in 1895.

A report was received on Sunday that an Italian dispatch said that there were seven U-boats off the American coast, three of them of the largest size and four smaller vessels.

An Atlantic Port, June 11.—The British transport which was reported in the New York Times of May 26 to have rammed and sunk a German submarine arrived here with its stem twisted by the collision. The vessel was in dry dock to have its hull inspected for any damage that might have been done when it cut through the U-boat and sent every member of the crew to the bottom of the sea.

The first report received by the Times was that 18 survivors had been rescued from the U-boat. This was corrected by officers and crew, who were on deck at the time, and were witnesses of the incident, together with 1,000 or more soldiers standing on the deck beside them. They said the transport destroyed two submarines that morning, which was Sunday.

Just at dawn the chief officer saw a big U-boat well above the surface and said to the captain: "What shall we do, sir?"

The commander, without a second's hesitation, replied: "Sink her." Instantly the big liner swung over and crushed through the thin steel hull of the submarine. Almost at the same moment the lookout man in the upper crow's nest shouted: "Submarine on the port quarter, sir."

A short distance away there appeared another U-boat, which had apparently been in company with the other one.

"Bang" went the six-inch gun on the port quarter, and a 110-pound explosive shell struck the submarine squarely amidships, sinking it.

London, June 11.—American naval forces in European waters are not being weakened in consequence of the operations of the German submarines off the American coast, and the ocean highway for the movement of troops to Europe will be kept open, Secretary Daniels says in a cablegram published by the Times.

War Department Asks Congress for $16,000,000 to Establish Balloon and Seaplane Stations.

Washington, June 8.—A $16,000,000 appropriation for establishing balloon and seaplane stations to guard the United States against submarines and aircraft was asked of congress on Thursday by the war department.

The department desires to establish 16 stations, 13 of them on the Atlantic coast and three on the Gulf coast. Definite locations were not given.

The coast defense plan as submitted by the department also calls for the establishment of fortifications along the coast so that guns could be transferred on railroads from one point to another to meet possible attacks.

GREAT WHEAT CROP

U. S. EXPECTED TO FEED THE ALIENS NEXT YEAR.

May Total Billion Bushels—Department of Agriculture Forecasts 931,000,000—Oats Crop Is Huge

Washington, June 10.—The second largest wheat crop in the history of the country is in prospect for this year's harvest. The department of agriculture Friday forecast a total of 931,000,000 bushels of winter and spring wheat combined and held out the hope that with a continuation of the present ideal growing conditions a harvest of a billion bushels might be attained. The principal crop estimates are:

Wheat..... 887,000,000 bushels. Spring wheat..... 344,000,000. All wheat..... 931,000,000. Oats..... 1,500,000,000. Barley..... 235,000,000. Rye..... 81,000,000.

A continuation of favorable conditions to harvest based on the increased par yield used for the later reports would make the final returns this year 980,000,000 to 1,000,000,000 bushels. Present estimates are "7 per cent larger than the harvest of last year, when 931,000,000 bushels were secured.

Kansas has the promise of 97,114,000 bushels or more than double its yield of last year. Nebraska, which had a crop failure last year, has 43,949,000 bushels and Oklahoma 32,297,000 bushels, a total for the three states of 172,000,000 bushels, compared with 88,000,000 bushels harvested last year. Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and Missouri combined have 188,000,000 bushels, or 56,000,000 bushels more than last year.

In the three Northwestern states, where the bulk of the spring wheat crop is raised, there is the promise of 214,000,000 bushels against 167,000,000 bushels harvested last year. North Dakota has the promise of 92,000,000 bushels.

ROSA AND HER COMPANIONS, FACING STARVATION, ARE FORCED TO LEAVE THEIR HIDING PLACES

Synopsis.—Don Esteban Varona, rich Cuban planter, hides his money and jewels and the secret of the hiding place is lost when he and the only other person who knows it are killed.

But the time came when he could walk no farther. He tried repeatedly and failed, and meanwhile the earth spun even more rapidly, threatening to whirl him off into space.

Late on the second day after the battle Asensio returned to his bohio. Rosa and Evangelina, already frantic at the delay, heard him crying to them while he was still hidden in the woods, and knew that the worst had happened.

The girl stood swaying while he told how the night had betrayed them, how he had wrought incredible feats of valor before the shifting tide of battle had speared him out the end of the sunken road and left him half dead in the grass.

Asensio recovered, but he was sadly changed. There was no longer any martial spirit in him; he feared the Spaniards, and tales of their atrocities cowed him.

They did not stop until they had gained the fastnesses of the Pan de Matanzas. Here they built a shelter and again took up the problem of living, which was now more difficult than ever.

Time came when Asensio spoke of giving up the struggle and going in. They were gradually starving, he said, and Rosa was ill; the risk of discovery was ever present. It was better to go while they had the strength than slowly but surely to perish here.

hide themselves; they would at least be fed along with the others. No one had told Asensio that the government was leaving its prisoners to shift for themselves, supplying them with not a pound of food nor a square inch of shelter.

Misery bred desperation at last; Evangelina's courage failed her, and she allowed herself to be won over. She began her preparations by disguising Rosa. Gathering herbs and berries, she made a stain with which she colored the girl's face and body, then she sewed a bundle of leaves into the back of Rosa's waist so that when the latter stooped her shoulders and walked with a stick her appearance of deformity was complete.

On the night before their departure Rosa Varona prayed long and earnestly, asking little for herself, but much for the two black people who had suffered so much for her. She prayed also that O'Reilly would come before it was too late.

And she was as good as her promise. She did not interrupt when, during dinner, Alvarado led Johnnie to talk about his latest experience in Cuba, but, on the contrary, her unflagging interest induced O'Reilly to address his talk more often to her than to the doctor. He soon discovered that she understood the Cuban situation as well as or better than he, and that her sym-paths were keen. She was genuinely moved by the gallant struggle of the Cuban people, and when the dinner was over she exploded a surprise which left both men speechless.

"I'm going right to the Insurrectos With You." paths were keen. She was genuinely moved by the gallant struggle of the Cuban people, and when the dinner was over she exploded a surprise which left both men speechless.

"Suppose she got sick? Good Lord! I'd have to nurse her." He wiped a sudden moisture from his brow.

"Oh, she won't get sick. She'll probably nurse you—and all the other men. You'll like it, too, and you will all fall in love with her—everybody does—and start fighting among yourselves. There! She has Enriquez. Listen!"

Johnnie shivered apprehensively at the directness with which Miss Evans put her request. "You understand, I want to go and see for myself," she was saying. "If you need medicines I'll give them—bushels of the nastiest stuff I can buy. I'll organize a field hospital. . . . Oh, very well, call it a bribe, if you like. Anyhow, I've fully determined to take care of me. He's charmed with the idea." Miss Evans giggled. "That means you'll have to take him along, too."

There followed a pause during which the two men exchanged dismayed glances. "She doesn't seem to care what she says," O'Reilly murmured. "But—I'll put a flea in Enriquez's ear."

"Put it in writing, please." There was a wait. "Now read it to me. . . . Good!" Miss Evans fairly purred over the telephone. "Send it to me by messenger right away; that's a dear. I'm at Doctor Alvarado's house, and he's beside himself with joy. Thanks awfully. You're so nice." A moment, and she was back in the dining room facing her two friends—a picture of triumph. "You have nothing more to say about it," she gloated. "The provisional government of Cuba, through its New York representatives, extends to Miss Norine Evans an invitation to visit its temporary headquarters in the Sierra de—something-or-other, and deems it an honor to have her as its guest so long as she wishes to remain there. Now then, let's celebrate."

She executed a dance step, pirouetted around the room, then plumped herself down into her chair. She rattled her cup and saucer noisily, crying, "Fill them up, Doctor Gloom. Let's drink to Cuba Libre!"

Johnnie managed to smile as he raised his demitasse. "Here's to my success as a chaperon," said he. "I'm disliked by the Spaniards, and now the Cubans will hate me. I can see happy days ahead."

O'Reilly arose early the next morning and hurried down to the office of the junta, hoping that he could convince Mr. Enriquez of the folly of allowing Norine Evans to have her way. But his respect for Miss Evans' energy and initiative deepened when, on arriving at 56 New street, he discovered that she had forestalled him and was even then closeted with the man he had come to see. Johnnie waited uneasily; he was dismayed when the girl finally appeared, with Enriquez in tow, for the man's face was radiant.

"It's all settled," she announced, at sight of O'Reilly. "I've speeded them up."

"You're an early riser," the latter remarked. "I hardly expected—"

Enriquez broke in. "Such enthusiasm! Such ardor! She whirls a person off his feet."

"It seems that the Junta lacks money for another expedition, so I've made up the deficit. We'll be off in a week."

"Really? Then you're actually—going?"

"Of course. Don't be hateful and argumentative, or I'll begin to think you're a born chaperon." Miss Evans exclaimed. "Come! Make up your mind to endure me. And now you're going to help me buy my tropical outfit."

With a smile and a nod at Enriquez she took O'Reilly's arm and bore him away.

The days of idle waiting that followed were trying, even to one of O'Reilly's philosophical habit of mind. He could learn nothing about the junta's plans, and, owing to his complete uncertainty, he was unable to get work.

At last there came a message which brought them great joy. Enriquez directed them to be in readiness to leave Jersey City at seven o'clock the following morning. Neither Johnnie nor Leslie Branch slept much that night.

As they waited in the huge, baroque station Enriquez appeared with Norine Evans upon his arm. The girl's color was high; she was tremulous with excitement. Leslie Branch, who saw her for the first time, emitted a low whistle of surprise.

"Glory be! That goddess!" he cried. "When Norine took his bony, bloodless hand in her warm grasp and flashed him her frank, friendly smile, he capitulated instantly."

Enriquez was introducing a newcomer now, one Major Ramos, a square-jawed forceful Cuban, who, it seemed, was to be in command of the expedition.

"My duties end here," Enriquez explained. "Major Ramos will take charge of you, and you must do exactly as he directs. Ask no questions, for he won't answer them. Good-by and good luck."

When he had gone the three Americans followed their new guide through the iron gates.

Major Ramos proved that he knew the room an electric vitality, a breeze-ness hard to describe. Altogether she was such a vision of beauty, unaffected and smartly gotten-up young womanhood that O'Reilly could only stammer his acknowledgment of the introduction, cowardly berating himself for his awkwardness.

Alvarado placed an affectionate hand upon Miss Evans' shoulder. "O'Reilly, this girl has done more for Cuba than any of us. She has spent a small fortune for medical supplies," said he.

"Those poor men must live on quinine," the girl exclaimed. "Anyone can bear to take the stuff out of me, but I have all the wants. I've a perfect passion for giving pills."

O'Reilly liked this girl. He had liked her the instant she favored him with her friendly smile, and so, trusting faithfully to his masculine powers of observation, he tried to analyze her. He could not guess her age, for an expensive ladies' tailor can baffle the most discriminating eye. Certainly, however, she was not old—he had an idea that she would tell him her exact age if he asked her. While he could not call her beautiful, she was something immensely better—she was alive, human, interesting, and interested.

The fact that she did not take her "mission" over-seriously proved that she was also sensible beyond most women. Yes, that was it. Miss Norine Evans was a perfectly sensible, unspooled young person, who showed the admirable effects of clean living and clean thinking coupled with a normal, sturdy constitution. O'Reilly told himself that here was a girl who could pour tea, nurse a sick man, or throw a baseball.

And she was as good as her promise. She did not interrupt when, during dinner, Alvarado led Johnnie to talk about his latest experience in Cuba, but, on the contrary, her unflagging interest induced O'Reilly to address his talk more often to her than to the doctor. He soon discovered that she understood the Cuban situation as well as or better than he, and that her sym-

 —Join the army behind the Army—be a war saver.

A PROCLAMATION

The stirring Memorial Day appeal of President Wilson calls attention to the needs of the country in the present great world war. It is an appeal in all things needed to win the war.
 The people of Wisconsin have thus far been most generous in their responses to the calls of the government. Our young men of military age are joining the ranks of the army with a spirit of enthusiasm that gives assurance that they will do their part as soldiers. In our prompt and liberal contributions of money and service this state is winning the admiration of the people of our country. The sacrifices that we have thus far made will add a brilliant page to Wisconsin's war history.
 However, the end of the war is not yet in sight, and the splendid efforts that we have made in the past must continue. To meet the enormous expenditures that are necessary to assure success, we must learn to regard thrift as a virtue that all must practice. We can well afford to forego luxuries in order that we may save our earnings and loan them to the government to meet the expenditures necessary to carry on the war. Those who can give but small accounts are doing their "bit". The savings of our children, the working boys and the working girls, and the great army of wage earners, both men and women, if invested in government loans will, in the aggregate, amount to large sums and will be substantial aid.
 In order to give all an opportunity to show their interest in our country and its welfare, the government is offering Thrift Stamps for sale, the value of which has been well advertised and is understood. The allotment to this state of this class of security is fifty-one million dollars. Our people have thus far, by their liberal subscriptions, regularly exceeded the amounts allotted to the state and I sincerely hope that in this collection the state will again meet the expectations of the government.
 On June twenty-eighth there will be meetings held in every school house in our state, and I earnestly request that the people attend these meetings and pledge themselves to purchase such amounts of these securities that our quota may be secured and that we may again be able to send word to our sons "over there" that our people are meeting every requirement of the war.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Wisconsin to be affixed. Done at the Capitol in the City of Madison this seventh day of June, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and eighteen.

STRAW HATS

The new crop of Straw Hats is ripe and ready to harvest. More models than ever before—and wrought of all the favorite braids. Come and see them.

As you look at the styles on view, remember, none of them are left overs of last summer. Our straw hat policy is opposed to harboring unsold balances. We never store straw hats from one season to another.

We've no story to tell you of scarcity and higher prices. Just the reverse, because the market did not catch us napping. We bought before the advance.

Straw hats in abundance for men and young men, for youths and for boys not yet in their teens.

Every height of crown; every curve of brim; fine, close, smooth—any and rough—any straw you wish is here if it is in the light of fashion's smile.

Sour Stomach

This is a mild form of indigestion. It is usually brought on by eating too rapidly or too much, or of food not suited to your digestive organs. If you will eat slowly, masticate your food thoroughly, eat but little meat and none at all for supper, you will more than likely avoid the sour stomach without taking any medicine whatever. When you have sour stomach take one of Chamberlain's Tablets.

HAPPENINGS OF THE WEEK IN WISCONSIN

Madison—Wisconsin has taken the lead over all other states in the Union in collecting and preserving those records that show the part the state is playing in the great war. The war history commission, which was appointed in March, 1918, to direct the work of organizing local committees in the different counties, reports that all but twelve now have their committees organized and are on the job lecturing and saving their war records.

Ashland—State Fire Warden Charles Good of Superior discovered that the fire which did over $1,000 damage to the Peter Cooper school, was set by two boys, Homer Payne, 12, and Norman Weide, 10. The boys when arrested confessed they had set fire to the school in four different places and gave as a reason that they thought they would not have to go to school any more, if the school house was burned.

Appleton—Appleton's last horse mail delivery was abolished last week when Robert Schmieg, carrier in the Fourth ward, was instructed to discontinue with his horse and deliver mail on foot. Because of the length of the route and distance from the postoffice this carrier has been provided with a horse to save time, but the high cost of feeding the animal has made it necessary to abolish the service.

Ashland—Information from sources believed authentic is that a special agent of Gov. E. L. Phillip has been sent here and is trying to obtain evidence against the men who tarred and feathered William Landrait, former income tax assessor. No warrants have been asked for as yet, according to District Attorney Merrill.

Eau Claire—Nineteen girls employed in the Linderman Box and Veneer company here, the first local concern exclusively employing man labor to employ girls since the war started, recently struck for higher wages, altho the company gave them an increase a few days before.

Manitowoc—Pleading necessity for protection of public health, the city of Manitowoc has appealed to the Federal government in its efforts to secure oil for sprinkling of streets this summer and has asked the state highway commission to back up its petition.

Madison—John Schmitt, enemy alien, who recently pounded up his watch crystal and put it into a fellow prisoner's breakfast food was sentenced in Superior court to five years at Wau-pun. Schmitt made a full confession. A similar charge by the federal government is being held against him.

Kenosha—The Rev. Henry T. Sell of Evanston, former editor of the Advance and a prominent religious writer, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the First Congregational church here. He succeeds the Rev. Theodor R. Fayville, recently called to Oshkosh.

Oshkosh—Undersheriff William Goltz was nearly killed by a blow from a club on the head struck by Frank Davis, a prisoner held on a burglary charge, who was trying to fight his way out of the jail. Davis went back to his cell at the point of a revolver.

La Crosse—Rudolph Tanks, La Crosse saloon keeper, was arrested here by Frank O'Connor, United States marshal, on a charge of violating the federal fuelless Monday order of last winter. He was placed under bonds.

De Pere—Less than an hour after a baby son was born to her parents, Elizabeth Jeanette, 17-months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Phillips, died as the result of eating poison which she thought was candy.

De Pere—Carl Wright was severely injured when a Fordson tractor which he was driving tipped over as he was trying to negotiate a steep hill. Mr. Wright jumped only to land under the capsizing machine.

Rhineland—Three men, Frank Kutek and William and John Collier were each fined $50 and costs in municipal court on their plea of guilty to having venison in their possession.

Rhineland—J. D. Albrecht, champion police wrestler of Minneapolis, will meet Billy Perkins of this city in a mat contest at the armory on the morning of July 4.

Bloomer—When Wolfgang Roith left to join the army a few days since he was the fourth son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Roith to become a United States soldier in this war.

Oconomowoc—Word has been received from Lieut. George Behrend, Co. B, 150th battalion, with the Rainbow division, who was severely gassed in one of the great battles in France some weeks ago, that he has been discharged from the hospital and has rejoined his company.

Oshkosh—A game protection organization has been organized here for Winnebago county similar to that already operative in Outagamie. Its purpose will be the conservation of fish and game.

Madison—The Wisconsin Department of Agriculture sounds a note of warning to hog breeders throughout the state, following numerous reports of hog cholera outbreaks received from widely separated localities. The appearance of cholera this early suggests the probability of a general spread with consequent heavy losses unless prompt and effective control measures are applied in every case. Breeders are urged therefore to closely watch their herds for evidence of disease, and to report its appearance promptly. The Wisconsin department of agriculture, through its federal and state hog cholera experts is prepared to co-operate with farmers and veterinarians in controlling outbreaks of this disease.

Racine—Miss Isabella Swantz of Union Grove has been appointed by C. P. Cary, superintendent of public instruction, county superintendent of schools to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Frank La Bude, who has entered the army. Miss Swantz is the second woman to serve as superintendent of Racine county schools. The other having been Miss Agnes M. Worsley, who was elected in 1892.

Antigo—The great possibilities for successful sheep raising in Langlade county are being demonstrated by C. W. Magee of Mola Lake. During the winter closed he wintered 548 head. From forty-three ewes in one pen, seventy-one lambs were produced and another pen of only twelve ewes produced twenty-three lambs. The rest of the flock is expected to produce next month.

Madison—To reduce operating expenses by eliminating duplication of service and to provide better shipping facilities, the Adams, Wells Fargo, American and Western Express companies will merge in Wisconsin. The plan is said to have the approval of the state railroad commission. One office in a city will handle the business of all four companies.

Kenosha—Richard F. Kaiser, secretary of the Kenosha Chamber of Commerce, appeared at the courthouse and filed a petition to have the last word of his name dropped, and be henceforth known as Richard Francis. The name of his wife and daughter have been changed by similar petitions. He was in charge of the last Liberty loan drive here.

La Crosse—Leading theologians in the United States will gather here June 25, 26 and 27 to attend the twentieth annual state conference of the Luther league of Wisconsin, of which George W. Rapps of Milwaukee is president; Fred Genz, Milwaukee, vice-president and treasurer, and Jerome Johnson of Oshkosh, secretary.

Sheboygan—The Falls Motors corporation, working exclusively on government war orders for airplane and automobile truck motors, is erecting an additional building to keep pace with the enormous government demands. Still another building is contemplated. The only drawback is scarcity of labor.

RAG APPLE KORNDYKE PONTIAC IS NOW WORLD'S CHAMPION SENIOR 3-YEAR-OLD

RAG APPLE KORNDYKE PONTIAC.

Another forty pounder has risen in the ranks of purebred Holstein cows. Rag Apple Korndyke Pontiac is the twenty-seventh cow of the breed to yield more than forty pounds of butter in a week. Her record for the seven days is 65.18 pounds of milk yielding 41.94 pounds of butter. Inasmuch as she was three years, nine months and 27 days old at the time of her freshening she is now world's champion senior three-year-old. She just beat the previous world's record in this division by a fraction of a pound. The previous record was 41.81 pounds of butter made by Lady Pontiac Johanna.

Rag Apple Korndyke Pontiac is a daughter of Rag Apple Korndyke VIII. Her dam is Fairview Pontiac Darkness II. She is owned by Oliver Cabana, Jr., Elma Center, New York.

DEFINITE PLAN FOR PRUNING IN SEASON

Work Must Necessarily Be Done in Systematic Manner.

Where Problem Involves Management of Extensive Commercial Plantations Not Easy to Operate in Miscellaneous Way.

"Prune when your knife is sharp," used to be the advice of earlier horticulturists. This is a comparatively safe method to follow with most plants, but where the problem involves the management of extensive commercial plantations it is not so easy to prune in this miscellaneous fashion. The work must necessarily be done at some particular season and carried on in a systematic manner after some definite plan. With most orchardists and gardeners pruning can best be done during the winter or early spring months, and where the object is the removal of small branches this season is undoubtedly quite as satisfactory as any other. In fact, pruning during late spring about the time of just previous to beginning of growth, is particularly advantageous with the peach, because at that season, as a rule, all injury to the annual growth from winter killing will be apparent and the pruner can take advantage of this to remove all dead or injured branches and at the same time modify his plan so as to leave a maximum quantity of wood in order to secure a profitable crop of fruit, which might not be possible were the usual practice of removing one-half the annual growth followed in such seasons. With the apple and pear, which suffer less from winter killing, the annual pruning can as well be done in February or March in the North, as at any other season. With the grape, however, which is likely to produce a heavy flow of sap if the pruning is delayed until late in the season, it is undoubtedly best to do the pruning during the late fall and early winter months.

DO SOMETHING FOR COUNTRY

Help Food Supply by Keeping a Few Hens in Back Yard—Start Wisely on Small Scale.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Do you want to "do something" for the food supply—meat and eggs—even if only in a small way? Keep some hens. Not a new idea, of course, but until now it never was quite so necessary or mandatory to grasp every food-making opportunity. Try it in the back yard, beginning wisely on a small scale—say ten hens.

Guinea as Watch Fowl.

The guinea is a good watch bird. While its cry is somewhat objectionable yet this bird is the first to give warning when danger threatens the poultry flock.

SPRAY FOR ASPARAGUS BUGS

One or Two Applications of Lead Arsenate or Bordeaux Mixture Will Kill Beetles.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

If beetles and larvae are at work on the foliage of asparagus plants, one or two applications of lead arsenate will kill them. Two pounds of dry lead arsenate or 4 pounds of water or bordeaux mixture will make a spray of sufficient strength. This treatment, made after the cutting season, should lessen the number of beetles next year and also enable the plants to make a healthy growth.

The common asparagus beetle is distributed over a wide territory extending from Toronto, Canada, through New York and New England, except Maine, to southern North Carolina and westward to the border line between Illinois and Iowa. It has also been reported from one locality in Colorado and three in California. The other species, the 12-spotted asparagus beetle, also known to growers as the "red" species, is not so common and somewhat less injurious. The early broods of these insects feed on the young and tender asparagus shoots and render them worthless for market. Later broods of the common species devour the foliage and frequently kill the plants, and those of the 12-spotted beetle feed on the berries.

RESERVES TO WIN THE BIG BATTLE

General Foch Says Offensive Is Necessary for Victory.

SURPRISE, MASS AND SPEED

Final Attack With These Characteristics, by Troops Carefully Prepared and Then Thrown In Without Regard to Losses.

London.—Battles can be won in the end only by the army which takes the offensive. This is the significant declaration made by General Foch, commander in chief of the allies, in an article contributed by him to the weekly journal, the Field, in which he discusses the problem of the soldier and the way to victory.

"Modern warfare, to arrive at its end and to impose its will on the enemy," General Foch says, "recognizes only one means—destruction of the enemy's organized forces.

"War undertakes and prepares this destruction by battle, which brings about the overthrow of the adversary, disorganizes his command, destroys his discipline, and nullifies his units as far as their fighting power is concerned.

No Victory in Defense.

"Our first axiom must be that to achieve its object a battle must not be purely defensive. A purely defensive battle, even well conducted, does not result in a victor and a vanquished. It is simply a game that must be begun over again.

"From this it is an obvious corollary that an offensive, whether started at the beginning of an action or whether it follows the defensive, can only give results, and, in consequence, must always be adopted at the finish.

"To maintain our position is not synonymous with being victorious and even prepares for a defeat. If we remain where we are and do not pass to the offensive to fix the direction of attack, to guard against the plans of the enemy, and prevent him from carrying out the same maneuver, we must undertake to carry on and sustain numerous combats, each with determined aim.

All Depends on Reserve.

"But since there remains no doubt that decisive attack is the very key-stone of a battle, all other actions which make up a battle must be envisaged, considered, organized, provided with forces in the measure in which they will prepare, facilitate, and guarantee development of a decisive attack characterized by its mass, its surprise, its speed, and for which, in consequence, it is essential that there shall be the maximum reserve force possible of troops of maneuver.

"The reserve—that is to say, the prepared brigade—is organized and kept carefully instructed to execute the single act of battle from which results are expected—namely, the decisive attack.

Surprise, Mass and Speed.

"Reserves must be hunched with the most extreme parsimony so that the brigade may be strong enough to make the blow as violent as possible. Let loose at the finish, without any lurking idea of saving them, with a well thought out plan for winning the battle at a point chosen and determined, reserves are thrown in all together in an action surpassing in violence and energy all other phases of battle, an action with proper characteristics—surprise, mass, and speed. All our forces really participate, either by preparing it or by carrying it out.

"In this, our supreme aim, we must not be deceived by appearances. Although theory fails when applied by feeble hands and when accessories obscure the main principle, history and reason show us that in battle there is a single argument which is worth while—namely, decisive attack, which is alone capable of assuring the desired result—the overthrow of the adversary."

Praying for a Miracle.

Thomas A. Mott, superintendent of the city schools at Seymour, tells the story of a little girl who had been taught to believe in miracles. One night, following a hard examination at school, she went to her room and before climbing into bed she offered her customary prayer. Her mother was standing near and was surprised when the girl prayed: "Please make Boston the capital of Maine." When the prayer was finished her mother asked her why she wanted Boston the capital of Maine.

"Well, mother," she replied, "I wrote it down on my examination paper that way this afternoon, and I want to have it correct."—Indianapolis News.

These children have suffered greatly and everything is done to make them happy. The hours of work are arranged in accordance with their years. In the dormitories on each bed is hung a gas

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE ANTS.

"It's too bad," said Lord Black Ant one day.

"Maybe it is," said Lady Black Ant, "but as I don't know what you are talking about or thinking about I am a poor one to give my opinion."

"Then I will tell you, but I didn't want to make you unhappy."

"Oh dear, oh dear," said Lady Black Ant. "How sad! Have you been unhappy and haven't told me. My dear child, Prince Black Ant, fetch your mother her pocket handkerchief which is hanging on the third stick in my cupboard."

Prince Black Ant hurried with the handkerchief.

"My dear, my dear," said Lord Black Ant, "I didn't mean to make you sad. That was why I didn't tell you before. You mustn't feel like this. You truly mustn't. It's too much, too much."

"I can't help it. I can't help it. The tears will come. It's sad, so very, very sad."

"Poor Lady Black Ant," said Lord Black Ant.

"Poor dear Mother," said Prince Black Ant, and Princess Black Ant who had just come hurrying from her hole, or room, said, "Poor dear Mother, you mustn't weep. You really mustn't. No matter how sad it is you mustn't weep."

They were all weeping now.

Pretty soon along came Prince and Princess Gray Ant.

"What in the world, or in the Ant Hill, is all the trouble?" they asked.

"It's so very sad," said Lady Black Ant.

"What is it that is so sad?" asked Prince Gray Ant. And then Lady Ant stopped weeping quite suddenly.

"I'm sure I don't know," she said.

"You're weeping, and you don't know what about?" asked Princess Gray Ant in surprise.

"Does any one know what it's about?" asked Prince Gray Ant.

"Lord Black Ant must know," said Lady Black Ant, "because he told me it was sad so that I wept."

"You wept because he said something was sad, and you didn't even stop to hear what it was!" exclaimed Prince Gray Ant.

"I never heard of anything so absurd," said Princess Gray Ant.

"I stopped to hear it," said Lady Black Ant, "but he didn't tell me. Maybe it was too sad." And at the thought that it might be too sad to have heard she commenced to weep again.

"You don't know at all how sad it is, so don't weep, but wait in patience until he tells you," suggested Prince Gray Ant.

"What were you going to tell her that was sad?" asked Princess Gray Ant.

"I was going to tell her of something that I said might make her unhappy—I didn't say it was sad though," said Lord Black Ant.

"If it would make me unhappy, it would be bound to be sad."

"Not at all," said Prince Gray Ant.

"Yes mother, it may be as you thought," said Prince Black Ant. "We must wait and see."

"I was going to say," commenced Lord Black Ant.

"Yes, yes, hurry, hurry, what were you going to say?" asked Lady Black Ant.

"Give him a chance, mother," said Princess Black Ant. "Daddy will tell us soon."

"I was going to say that it was a very great pity that she couldn't open her new summer boarding house this week."

"And what else?" asked Lady Black Ant.

"That was all," said Lord Black Ant.

"I thought it was too bad."

"Why can't we?" asked Lady Black Ant, who hadn't used her handkerchief in some moments.

"Because the bill was knocked down where the boarding house stood and all the workers had to hurry away to save themselves. I was afraid it would make you unhappy to hear about it."

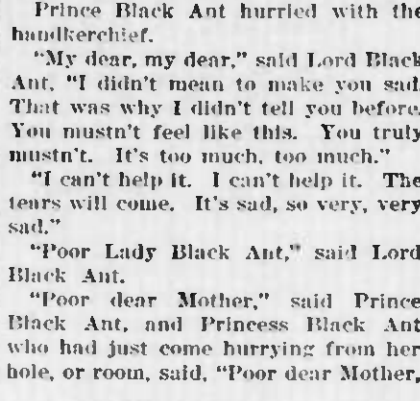

"Oh no," said Lady Black Ant.

"Everything can't go right in business all the time. We'll just start right to work to build another."

"And again, Lord Black Ant, don't make a mountain out of an ant hill. It's better to tell things than to pretend you have sad and terrible secrets to hide!"

Uncle Eben.

"Some folks," said Uncle Eben, "works hard to create de impression dat dey's jes worryin' an' losin' sleep."

That there is good reason for the wonderful crops of grain grown in Western Canada, which have made thousands of former residents of the United States wealthy, is not always quite apparent. But that there must be a reason is quite evident. Probably more than one—but the one that requires emphasis—is that the soil is of the nature that will produce good crops. It was not long since that the farmer selected his land in the most haphazard way. He need not do so today. He will select it on the soil analysis plan. Soil from Western Canada was submitted to Prof. Stevens, soil physicist of the State College of Washington, at Pullman, Wash. His report should no doubt further encourage settlement in Western Canada. It reads as follows:

"We have analyzed this sample and find that it runs high in lime, very high in potash, phosphorus and in nitrogen; that it has a splendid supply of organic matter and is in the best of physical condition. There is nothing wrong with this soil from the standpoint of crop production, and I am satisfied that it will give splendid results wherever put under cultivation."

It is soil like this properly worked, and on scientific lines, as is the rule today, that gives the opportunity to quote the experiences of farmers who have increased their incomes from $500 to $30,000 in two seasons, and whose story would read as follows:

"I have threshed altogether 7,000 bushels of No. 1 Northern wheat from 200 acres, which went from 24 to 56 per acre—sod breaking 24, spring plowing 36, back setting 56 bushels—the average being 35 bushels per acre."

The newspaper giving an account of this man's experience says: "When he disposed of his 1,200 acres from north of Brooks, Alta., to four Oak Harbor men, he was worth $30,000. Two years ago he came here with $500 and a few horses."

It is the soil of Western Canada, and the knowledge of what it will do that brings to Canada the hundreds of settlers that are daily arriving at the border. A growing enthusiasm for the fertile prairie lands of Western Canada is spreading all over the continent. This enthusiasm is the recognition of the fact that sufficient food could be produced on these prairie lands to feed the world. From the south, east and west, hundreds of men, too old for military service, are pouring into Western Canada to take up land or to work on the farms. A great many of the incoming settlers have arrived at such central points as Calgary, Edmonton, and Lethbridge, Alberta, and at Regina, Moose Jaw, and Saskatoon, Saskatchewan. Judging from the bulk of their household effects, the number of their horses and cattle, and the quantity of implements they are bringing with them, most of the new arrivals also seem well pleased with the world's goods.

Reports from North Portal, Saskatchewan; Coutts, Alberta, and Kingsgate, British Columbia—the principal gateways into Western Canada from the United States—indicate that the present influx of farmers is in such volume as has not been witnessed for many years. From Vancouver, British Columbia, people are going to the prairies for summer farm work, many with the intention of taking up land themselves at the end of the summer.

The influence of this tide of farmer settlers on greater food production will be more readily appreciated when it is considered that the average settler takes up at least twice as much land as he has hitherto been farming—and land which, acre for acre, produces better and larger crops.—Advertiser.

EXPERT'S TRIBUTE TO WESTERN CANADA SOIL

That there is good reason for the wonderful crops of grain grown in Western Canada, which have made thousands of former residents of the United States wealthy, is not always quite apparent. They Had Retired. Dr. Ellison Browning said in an address before the anti-gambling league of Duluth: "It's impossible to speak a good word for gambling except in jest. "One of my addresses was interrupted on a certain evening by a chap who yelled: "Don't knock gamblin' so hard, doc. I know three men in this town who have retired, thanks to gamblin'." Here it is as interpreted for this summer in taffeta, with handings of velvet. It is as graceful and easy as the popular cape and at least as little trouble to manage. In colors these silk coats are best in dark shades—deep blue, brown and green proving full of style. There is always black, of course, depending upon smartness of the design to rescue it from being commonplace. The luster of taffeta makes it a wonderful medium for colors. KEROSENE LAMPS IN INDIA. Illuminating Agencies Used in Smaller Cities Were Originally Imported From the United States. India is making slow but steady progress in introducing more modern lighting methods. Popular Science Monthly states. All public lighting in the large cities of India is by electricity; but in the smaller cities the methods of lighting, public as well as private, are still very primitive. For native festivals—and there are a great many of these—large kerosene lamps of an elaborate pattern are much used. They are known in many localities as "Washington lights" and were originally brought to India from the United States. At various religious processions and especially at wedding processions as many as 20 or 30 of these lamps are carried on the heads of bearers, who are engaged for the occasion and paid a fixed fee. These lamps are high-pressure kerosene lamps constructed upon the principle of the kerosene torches used in the United States. The light is protected by a mica chimney and is very brilliant. Colored globes are sometimes used. These lamps are no longer imported from the United States, but are manufactured in Bombay. The "Bombay lights" cost about $5 or $6, while the imported kind cannot be bought for less than $15 apiece.

OLD PRESCRIPTION FOR WEAK KIDNEYS. Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know of has so large a sale." According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that, so many people claim, it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. I keep a quantity of EATONIC piled on my shop counter. A recently missed box, and knowing neither myself nor clerk had sold it, I could not account for its disappearance. Yesterday morning a man walked into my store and said: 'Mr. Cramer, I owe you fifty cents for a box of EATONIC which I stole from your shop case. I am bothered with stomach trouble and, not having the money to spare to get a box, I took it. EATONIC has done me so much good my conscience bothers me and I had to come back and pay for it.' ARE YOU SAVING? The old Scotch quotation should often come to mind these days: "Many a mickle makes a muckle." "We must not be penny wise and pound foolish," for we should have recreation, play-times, and vacations; our health and mentality as well as good looks require it; but do we need to spend as a nation $450,000,000 a year for the movies? Let us go to fewer moving picture shows and buy Thrift Stamps instead. Do we need, as an American nation, to spend $50,000,000 yearly for gum, and $200,000,000 for candy, $800,000,000 for tobacco, and $2,000,000,000 for liquor? Think of spending 32 cents per capita for liquor and only six cents for tobacco, the food that will keep our babies alive, who are dying by the thousands each year from lack of proper care. It is only by each person sharing the burden and saving his share that our government will be able to provide for the expense of this war. We are required to go without certain foodstuffs to save wheat, meat, fat and sugar, but how many Americans are really going without until it hurts? We must scrape the cake and bread bowl, save by paring very thinly the vegetables and fruits we use, scrape out each eggshell with a teaspoon as it is broken. The outer leaves of lettuce, either the head or remainder, may be rolled and shredded with a sharp knife, and may be used as a garnish for salads or in salads. When you can save a cent on a five or ten-cent purchase, which we consider a large rate of interest. When eggs reach the lowest price is the time to put them down for winter. Use a pint of water glass to every ten quarts of bottled cold water. Use a stone receptacle and pack them carefully, not to crack one egg. Cover the jar and keep in a cool place. Eggs thus packed will keep a year perfectly. Eggs are not likely to be as cheap as usual this year, as food is so high. Even at 35 cents a dozen it will be profitable to pack them. Forget thyself; console the sadness near thee—Thine own shall then depart, And sons of joy, like heavenly birds, shall cheer thee, And dwell within thy heart. INVITING FOODS FOR THE INVALID. We have been told so many times that all foods which are served to an invalid should be made as attractive as possible, for daintiness in service is a great aid to a feeble appetite. An orange in its natural state is pleasing to most of us, but to the frail invalid the sight of the dainty pulp with all the connecting tissue removed, placed in a glass dish or served in a long-stemmed glass, the fruit dusted with powdered sugar, will be far more appealing. Custards of various kinds are all for the sick one; the more eggs they contain the more nourishing they are. Junkets of various flavors are also good, and when topped with a spoonful of whipped cream make a most satisfying dessert. In all desserts using milk or eggs the freshest and best are always to be used; the slightest suggestion of any flavor not just right will be more quickly noted by the patient than it would be the case in health. Soups and broths are foods which help digestion and are valuable as food also. Plain ice creams are invaluable as refreshments in case of fever and when the throat is sore or inflamed. The patient is not only refreshed but also nourished by the frozen dish, which slips down with so little effort. Meats of different kinds, subject to the order of the physician, should be well cooked; chicken is especially good and because of its short fiber it is easily digested. Small quantities well and daintily served will not often be refused. Sponge cakes are the best for invalids, and all puddings should be of the simplest kinds. Gelatin in various flavors will add variety; tapioca, rice and cornstarch are good when well cooked. Nellie Maxwell Sounds Impossible. Bacon—How silly, how impossible women are! Egbert—What now? "Why, my wife and her mother were upstairs trying to call one another down." The Kind They Were. "The man picked up unconscious in the street the other day was suffering from knock-out drops." "Given in the public street?" "Yes; two bricks fell on his head from a building."

Lovely Extravagances of Wedding Pageants. June weddings make a bright parenthesis in the grave story of war times. Just as many lovely brides grace just as many beautiful bridal processions this June as in June's gone by—and the joy they radiate is more than ever welcome. No one expects the bride to curtail any of her privileges on her great day. It comes but once in a lifetime and she is entitled to make the most of it. The pomp and circumstance of war is not to be compared to it. Society countenances the pretty extravagances of the wedding pageant and styles play into the hands of those who plan them. Malines and georgette crepe make the more than ever picturesque hats for bridesmaids. Some of these have veils of malines extended into scarfs that swathe the throat and partly cover the face. Special thought has been bestowed on the matron of honor—the most dignified millinery featuring her position. In a procession where there were two flower girls, small soft hats of narrow, val lace, trimmed with little rose buds were allowed them. In this company the matron of honor wore a wide-brimmed hat of saul-colored malines and pale-gold lace, with a full short mantle of malines to match with collar of gold lace. The bridesmaids rejoiced in wide hats of pink georgette crepe with big, soft puffed bows of the same material, set about the crown. For brides who decide against the conventional white satin and long veil, pretty hats of white malines and small white flowers have been provided with

GET USED TO SUDDEN DEATH. Grim Humor in the Trenches by No Means Denotes Callousness of Disposition. Capt. Leonard C. Wells of Baltimore, who recently permitted himself to be bitten by trench lice, thus contracting trench fever, that the doctors might study it, said on his return home: "To submit yourself to the hungry jaws of the trench louse is a grimly humorous procedure, isn't it? Well, war is grimly humorous in many of its aspects. "They tell over the water a story about a company of tough dough boys from New York's East side who sat playing poker one night in a dugout during a bombardment. "The game went on, the shells whizzed and banged outside, and then a grenade came through the doorway and finished one of the poker players' playing forever. "While the rest sat waiting for the stretcher-bearers, the nearest dough boy took up the cards from the dead man's hand, studied them, and then put them down again and said: "It don't matter, fellers. Poor Bill couldn't make it, anyway. I had four kings."

Zone of Quiet. The black-whiskered, unkempt stranger had been wandering about for some time watching the swarm of workmen engaged on the tower of Babel. "How quiet and orderly everything is here," he remarked to one of the foremen. "How's that?" asked the foreman, eyeing him sharply. "I say," repeated the stranger, "how quiet and orderly everything is here? Everything running along smoothly, no disturbances, everybody doing just what should be done, at just the right time. Such an easy-running place, this." "Say, where are you from?" "Oh, me? Why, I just dropped over from Petrograd."

Nothing to Do but Wait. Jones was a raw recruit just arrived. The second day of his army life he was put on the picket line grooming horses. The stable sergeant, having given the command to groom, sauntered around to see how the work was progressing. He found Jones with an anxious and expectant look on his face. "Well, Jones, have you groomed your horse?" "Yes, sir," he replied obediently. "Have you cleaned out his boots?" Jones hesitated. "No, sir—he's been standing on them sir, and I've waited over ten minutes for him to be down."—Judge. Wounding Father. Daughter (admiring a set of mink skins from father)—I can hardly realize that these beautiful furs come from such a small, smacking beast. Father—I don't ask for thanks, my dear, but I must insist on respect.—Williams Purple Cow.

Working a "Good Thing." Herbert Hoover hasn't been able to regulate the appetites of Washington children. A family recently received a big barrel of apples. Several days after that little Johnnie, a friend, came around to call. He happened to be in the kitchen and spied the apples. Some way or other nobody thought to connect apples with Johnnie. But did that bother him? "I like apples," he finally said. "Still nobly said anything. "Guess I'll take one," said Johnnie. And he did so. Still nothing was said. "I'll take one for little brother Billie," continued Johnnie, pocketing a second apple. The Lord certainly helps those who help themselves.

As Age Advances the Liver Requires occasional slight stimulation. CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS correct CONSTIPATION. Colorless or Pale Faces usually indicate the absence of Iron in the blood, a condition which will be greatly helped by Carter's Iron Pills. A Camouflage Grace. Little Harry (after eating his meager ration of bread and margarine)—Must I say grace, mamma? Mamma—Of course, darling. Little Harry—Well, you said God could read our thoughts, and if I say I'm thankful he'll know jolly well what a "bominable little liar I am!"—Tit-Bits. Autocracy begins where anarchy ends. Not Used to Sunshine, Perhaps. "What terrible weather you people have in New York!" said the Westerner. "What do you mean by terrible weather?" replied the New Yorker. "So changeable." "How so?" "Why, it's snow one day, rain another, sunshine another." "Well, say, what's the matter with you? Don't you have any sunshine out in your country ever?"

WEAK KIDNEYS MEAN A WEAK BODY. When you're fifty, your body begins to creak a little at the hinges. Motion is more slow and deliberate. "Not so young as I used to be" is a frequent and unwelcome thought. Certain bodily functions upon which good health and good spirits so much depend, are impaired. The weak spot is generally the bladder. Unpleasant symptoms show themselves. Painful and annoying complications in other organs arise. This is particularly true with elderly people. If you only know how, this trouble can be obviated. For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Haerlem Oil has been relieving the inconvenience and pain due to advancing years. It is a standard, old-time home remedy, and needs no introduction. It is now put up in odorless, tasteless capsules. These are easier and more pleasant to take than the oil in bottles. Each capsule contains about one dose of five drops. Take them just like you would any pill, with a small swallow of water. They soak into the system and throw off the poisons which are making you old before your time. They will quickly relieve those stiffened joints, that backache, rheumatism, "lumbago," sciatica, gall stones, gravel, "brick dust," etc. They are an effective remedy for all diseases of the bladder, kidney, liver, stomach and allied organs. GOLD MEDAL Haerlem Oil Capsules cleanse the kidneys and purify the blood. They frequently ward off attacks of the dangerous and fatal diseases of the kidneys. They have a beneficial effect, and often completely cure the diseases of the bodily organs, allied with the bladder and kidneys. If you are troubled with soreness across the loins or with "simple" aches and pains in the back take warning, it may be the preliminary indications of some dreadful malady which can be warded off or cured if taken in time. Go to your druggist today and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haerlem Oil Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three sizes. GOLD MEDAL are the pure, original imported Haerlem Oil Capsules.
