NEWSPAPERS

AGAIN HIT

Washington, D. C.—In order that the reading public of the United States might not be deprived ultimately of detailed accounts of the progress of the war and government activities, newspapers throughout the country have been ordered officially to curtail the use of materials as much as possible to avert a possible famine, and attendant suspension of publications. All this is a possibility, as is indicated by the following regulations issued on Saturday by W. B. Culver, chief of the pulp and paper section of the war industries board: "On account of the shortage of materials, the question of the supply of paper is becoming acute and the use of paper must be economized to the greatest possible extent. It is necessary that all newspapers which publish a daily and weekly edition put the following preliminary economies into effect July 15, 1918: "Discontinue the use of all sample or free promotion copies. "Discontinue giving copies to anybody, except for office working copies or where required by statute law in the case of official advertising. "Discontinue giving free copies to advertisers, except not more than one copy each for checking purposes. "Discontinue the arbitrary forcing of copies on newsdealers, (i. e., compelling them to buy more copies than they can legitimately sell in order to hold certain territory.) "Discontinue the buying back of papers at either wholesale or retail selling price from dealers or agents, in order to secure preferential representation. "Discontinue the payment of salaries or commissions to agents, dealers, or newspapers, for the purpose of securing the equivalent of return privileges. "Discontinue all free exchanges."

THE SOLDIER'S CHANCES

Great as the danger and large as the losses in the aggregate, the individual soldier has plenty of chances of coming out of the war unscathed, or at least not badly injured. Based on the mortality statistics of the allied armies, a soldier's chances are as follows: Twenty-nine chances of coming home to one chance of being killed. Forty-nine chances of recovering from wounds to one chance of dying from them. One chance in 500 of losing a limb. Will live five years longer because of physical training, is freer from disease in the Army than in civil life, and has better medical care at the front than at home. In other wars from 10 to 15 men died from disease to 1 from bullets; in this war 1 man dies from disease to every 10 from bullets. For those of our fighting men who do not escape scatheless, the Government under the soldier and sailor insurance law gives protection to the wounded and their dependents and to the families and dependents of those who make the supreme sacrifice for their country.—Plymouth Review.

ARRIVE BY AUTO FROM DENVER, COLORADO

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Geier and August Geier and family arrived here on June 29th, via auto from Denver, Colorado, and are spending some time with the Geier family east of the village. The party made the trip by way of the white circle route and state that the trip was very enjoyable through out. They inform us that the only poor stretch of road they encountered was between Chicago and Milwaukee. The Geier boys are very well known here, having spent the greater part of their life in the vicinity. The party will leave in a week or so for Kewaskum, Wis., to visit their brothers at that place and from there expect to go to Sturgeon Bay, where they will spend about a month summer resorting.

Applicants for commissions as first lieutenants in the Engineer Corps, according to a statement by the War Department should be between 32 and 36 years of age and for commissions as captains between 36 and 42. The Engineer Corps is conducting a campaign for 2,000 more commissioned officers, the examining board making a tour of the principal cities of the country to make examination readily available for applicants.

PROMINENT

PEOPLE SUMMONED

DEATH OF MRS. JOSEPH P. LAUBACH

Last Sunday morning, July 7th, 1918, at her home in the town of Auburn, occurred the death of Mrs. Jos. P. Laubach, nee Miss Susan Roden. Deceased had been in ill health for several years with bronchitis, but her condition was not thought serious until about two weeks prior to her death. Mrs. Laubach was born in the town of Auburn on November 18th 1852, where she spent her entire life. On April 29th, 1883, she was married to Joseph Laubach. Their union was blessed with eight children, all of whom together with her husband survive, and whose names are: Josephine (Mrs. Fred Dworschak), Martha (Mrs. William Bremer), Nic. Laubach and Esther, (Mrs. Jos. Fellenz), all of the town of Auburn; Agatha (Mrs. Martin Inkman) and Veronica (Mrs. William Starek) of Milwaukee; Susan (Mrs. Erwin Brandt) of this village and Katherine (Mrs. Arthur Nauman) of the town of Scott. Besides these she is survived by one sister, Mrs. Herriges of Canada; and three brothers, Jac. Roden of the town of Scott and Peter and Andrew Roden of Cassilton, North Dakota. The funeral was held on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock with services in the St. Michael's church. Rev. Beyer assisted by Rev. Lauer and Rev. Rodenkirch. A Solemn High Mass was held. Interment took place in the adjoining cemetery.

DEATH OF ADAM UELMEN

On Monday morning at 7:30 o'clock, at his home on a farm near New Pano, Adam Uelmen passed away in death, after an illness of three months duration caused by a paralytic stroke. Deceased was born in Germany on February 4th, 1842. Mr. Uelmen leaves to mourn, his wife and five children, namely: William, Nicholas, Edward, Albert and Clara; and one sister, Mrs. B. M. Altenhofen of Milwaukee. The funeral was held Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock at St. Michael's Church, Rev. Beyer officiating.

BERLIN BY WINTER

The letter "B" appears on the leaves of the war oats which is now about two feet high in the fields in this county. The letter is almost perfect on some of the leaves.

True American spirited people who have seen these leaves declare that if it is an omen at all, it means that the American soldiers will be in Berlin before the winter comes.

That this is not entirely coincidence is maintained by those who remember the letter "W" on the northern woods in 1863, an omen that the North would win.

Several prominent people of this village who have been out into the oat fields to gather a number of leaves also found the cap letter "A" within an "A" appearing upon them, which might further signify as meaning "American Army in Berlin".

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Owing to the fact that I have been called in the next draft, and must leave next week, my barber shop will be closed on and after Saturday night, July 13th, on account of not being able to secure a barber to run the shop for me at present. I desire to thank each and every one of my patrons for their kind patronage during the ten and one-half years I have been among them. If in the future a suitable barber can be found to conduct the business, I desire that all my customers give him the same liberal support that they have given me in the past.

Fred E. Witzig.

Are You One of Them?

There are a great many people who would be very much benefited by taking Chamberlain's Tablets for a weak or disordered stomach. Are you one of them? Mrs. M. R. Searl, Baldwinsville, N. Y., relates her experience in the use of these tablets: "I had a bad spell with my stomach about six months ago, and was troubled for two or three weeks with gas and severe pains in the pit of stomach. Our druggist advised me to take Chamberlain's Tablets. I took a bottle home and the first dose relieved me wonderfully, and I kept on taking them until I was cured." These tablets do not relieve pain, but after the pain has been relieved may prevent its recurrence.

AUTOMOBILE

URNS TURTLE

Mrs. Ralph Petri and sister Laura Hembel of Waukesha and the Misses Carrie Meyers of Milwaukee, Nora and Ruth Petri of Wayne, met with an automobile accident last Sunday afternoon, in the village of Campbellsport, which they will remember for years to come. Mrs. Petri, who was driving the car, stated that while they were turning the corner on Cherry street in that village, she lost control of the car and same became overbalanced and turned turtle, while traveling at a fair rate of speed, pinning the occupants beneath same. Joseph Meixensperger, who saw the accident, went to the assistance of the young ladies. He righted the car and summoned a physician. Upon examination it was found that Mrs. Petri had a rib broken and was badly bruised. Miss Hembel was badly bruised about the face and body. The other three occupants were also bruised and cut. After the women had been given medical attention, they returned to Wayne where they are now recuperating.

WOMAN'S COMMITTEE COUNCIL OF DEFENSE

The attention of the women of the county is directed toward the movement to secure results from the recent child weighing and measuring campaign, upon which work to save children is to be based. This work is to take different lines. The recreation or playground activities form one, and in developing it the Wisconsin law permitting school houses and playgrounds to be used as centers will be called into force. This authorizes school directors in cities of the first, second and third class to establish and maintain for children and adults the schoolhouse and premises, reading rooms, gymnasiums, playgrounds, public baths, etc. The general health of the public will be looked after carefully, and the clean up slogan emphasized.

But most important of the work to follow up the weighing and measuring campaign, is the securing of a county nurse. The United States Department of Labor places this first. Parents whose attention was drawn to the underweight of their children, or other needs, can do much more to bring them up to the average if they have the advice of a public health nurse, and other children now well, can be protected from illness.

The slogan of the Children's Year is "Mothers must do the saving," but mothers cannot do the work alone. They must have the help of the community to see that their children have a fair start in life. They need child consultation centers, prepared to give the mothers expert advice on the care and feeding of children. Many of the ill of adults life are traced to poorly chosen food in childhood.

The one sort of worker qualified to save the lives of babies is the public health nurse. Communities having no such worker should make an effort at once to secure such a worker, as part of its campaign to save the children.

The call for mothers to bring their children to be weighed and measured, was so eagerly responded to by the majority that it indicates the women of the United States are anxious to have their children get a good physical start. They apparently realize that a weak, undernourished child is handicapped from the start. That they will just as eagerly seek the aid that can be given by a public nurse is assured. Washington county should at its first opportunity arrange for a public nurse to follow up the weighing and measuring work so that every child in the county may start out fully equipped to take its place in life. To have the number of children the county is asked to save the coming year, some immediate steps should be taken.

Mothers see to it that their supervisors are instructed to vote for such a nurse at the first meeting of the county board. Several members have already signified their intention of voting in favor of the measure. The cost is small compared with the benefits that will be received.

LETTER FROM FRANCE

The following letter was received by Miss Minnie Gessner of the town of Kewaskum from a friend who is in France:

Dear Friend:— Will now drop you a few lines to let you know that I am still alive and well, although I had a close shave at one time and found out how the salt water tasted. Suppose you heard about the Moldavia ship being sunk, well I happened to be on the old scow and so had to take a few swallows of water to get out of the way. We had a nice trip with only one day of rough sea, but were awakened rather sudden that night as we were in hammocks and when the torpedo struck the most of us flew out of them. It did not take us long to get out of there. There was only one of our company lost, but the rest of the companies reported fifty-four missing. It hit near the place where they were sleeping, so I think some of them were killed from the explosion. The boys were not much excited as most of them who had cigarettes were smoking, while they waited for the life boats to be let down. I forgot most of my clothes, but still have half my uniform on, with the exception of one shirt, which I had washed during the day. Lots of the boys were barefooted and it was fun to see them when we got ashore. I didn't get in the lifeboat so had to take an eggcrate or what ever they call it. The sailors call them floats and I found out that it did float if you could stay on top. I happened to be under it most of the time, and so had a rather cold bath early in the morning. I was in the water about half an hour before they picked me up, but didn't care so long as I was far enough away from the ship. Well I don't care much to take any more of those kind of rides for a while. We are in a nice place now, and are having a little vacation, as we can go to town every day. We all got a new suit of clothes and some other junk. The most of us didn't have any coin when we got across for we had no pay before we left the States, so I crossed the pond without a cent, and had to borrow smokes from those who had some. We got some money here, but don't know how much for I don't know the value of it, they told us they gave us a pound and 11 shilling and six pence, so we had plenty of fun with it at first. Now I know how to count it and they can't beat me. Well I think I will have to close for this time as I want to go out and look up one of those wax dolls they have over here, with love and best regards to all I am as ever James.

—Thousands of women are employed in the United States gas-mask plant. They are acting as inspectors and are engaged throughout the entire process of manufacture, according to a statement from the Gas Defense Service. Hundreds of girls have been trained in the special art of sewing the face pieces. Each separate step in the assembling of the mask is done by women workers, until the mask is completed, the last inspection is made and the final product is ready for shipment overseas.

STACKING WHEAT TO REDUCE COST

Efficient Methods of Harvesting Materially Lessen Expense of Production.

BUNDLE WAGONS ARE USEFUL

Western Methods of Transportation Save Time and Labor—Sweating Process Improves Color and Test Weight of Grain.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The acreage covered per day by a given crew in stacking wheat depends upon the yield, distance hauled, size of loads and methods used.

For example, two men and four horses with either one or two of the bundle wagons which are commonly found in the wheat-growing sections of the Northwest, where both men pitch and no one is required on the load, will be able to stack more wheat, other things being equal, than will two men following the usual practice in the East of one pitching while the other man loads. The wagons used in the two cases are usually very different, the Western "bundle wagon" being especially built for use in the manner above mentioned, whereas with the type of wagon usually found in the East it would be impossible to haul a very large load in this way, because of the difficulty of putting many bundles on such a wagon in such a way that they would carry well. Although the loads hauled on the Western bundle wagons do not contain quite so many bundles as do those in the East when loaded by hand, they are put on in less time and with one-half the man labor, which more than offsets this objection.

Most Efficient Crew.
This combination is probably the most efficient crew which can be used in stacking wheat, provided the haul is not too long. It is especially recommended for consideration by Eastern wheat growers, as in many cases it would be an easy matter to place a temporary rack on other wagons, thus making them well suited for use in the manner described. The adoption of this method would materially reduce the cost of stacking.

Stacking Improves Quality of Wheat.
Where stacking is properly done the grain is better protected in stacks than in shocks. In wet seasons or when thrashing cannot be done soon after cutting, the importance of this protection is increased. A sweating process also takes place in the stack, which improves to some extent the color, condition and test weight of the grain and its milling and baking qualities. The improvement may be sufficient to obtain a better market grade, with resulting higher price when sold. A similar sweating process apparently may take place in shock-thrashed wheat after being placed in the bin, but to take advantage of this the farmer must have storage room for his thrashed grain and must also get it thrashed from the shock while it is in as good condition as when placed in the stack.

BOYS INTERESTED IN SHEEP

Labor Is Not Heavy and Should Be Given Consideration Where Farm Labor Is Scarce.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

While the labor required by sheep raising is continuous, it is not heavy, and if properly supervised and made interesting by financial return can well be performed by boys. Incapable of other kinds of farm work. This fact should be given consideration in many sections where farm labor is scarce.

FEED FROM WEEDY PASTURES

Sheep Are Capable of Getting Large Percentage of Food From Land Otherwise Wasted.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Sheep are capable of getting a large percentage of their feed from rough, weedy pasture not capable of carrying cattle, but it is a mistake to encourage or advocate the raising of sheep by people whose main interest is in weed control.

Stake Tomato Plants.

Tomato plants tied to stakes and kept trimmed will produce nicer-shaped and larger tomatoes, though not quite so many of them.

Easy to Grow Sweet Potatoes.

Sweet potatoes, as a rule, are among the easiest to grow of our garden vegetables.

Sweet Potato Essentials.

One of the chief essentials in growing sweet potatoes is to get good plants for setting.

CARE PROPERLY FOR THRASHING OUTFITS

Simple Equipment Is Insurance Against Dust Explosions.

Enormous Losses Caused to Grain and Implements Which May Be Guarded Against—Fire Extinguisher Is Quite Effective.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Owners of thrashing outfits are urged by the United States department of agriculture to install simple equipment as insurance against grain and smut dust explosions and fires which cause enormous losses to grain and machinery during the thrashing season, particularly in the Pacific northwest. Fine dust which accumulates when the machine is operating has been found to be very explosive and will readily ignite. It has been established that many, if not most of these explosions have been caused by the ignition of the dust by static electricity generated by the moving parts of the grain separator. The engineers of the department have developed an efficient method of grounding the machines to remove the electricity, consisting of wires connecting the metallic parts with the ground. An automatic fire extinguisher also has been developed and has proved very effective in reducing fire losses. A suction fan placed near the cylinder has been found to be successful not only in reducing the amount of dust in suspension in the machine, thereby removing part of the danger of explosion, but is an important factor in cleaning the grain and increasing its market value. Complete instructions for equipping a machine to prevent losses due to dust explosion and fire can be obtained by writing to the Bureau of Chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

BIG LOSS FROM RODENTS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Native rodents are the cause of enormous losses in many states. Some idea of the loss suffered by individual states is shown by reports from state directors of agricultural extension work. For example, the loss in Montana was from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000; North Dakota, $3,000,000 to $9,000,000; Kansas, $12,000,000; Colorado, $2,000,000; California, $20,000,000; Wyoming, 15 per cent of all crops; Nevada, 10 to 15 per cent of all crops, or $1,000,000; New Mexico, $1,200,000 loss to crops and double this amount to range.

Lovely Dress for Informal Wedding

Brides who feel that war times, or other reasons, demand a simple wedding, with only one or two attendants, may still wish to be married in bridal white. The summer gives them splendid opportunities to indulge this desire. All the delicate, sheer, white fabrics for frocks—organdie, batiste and georgette—are at their command for beautiful gowns, and there are millines, georgette, organdie and neapolitan, or hair braids, from which to choose hats. The addition of a veil to these big picture hats for midsummer fits them for the wedding ceremony, and when it is taken off their usefulness for the honeymoon begins.

Just how successful the summer bride may be, if she elects to content herself with a simple wedding dress of white sheer goods instead of satin, and a delicate and beautiful hat instead of a veil, is shown by the bridal costume pictured above. Here a gown of fine embroidered batiste is as fine-grained as the richest of materials and its usefulness only begins with the wedding. The hat is of georgette crepe, with stitches in heavy embroidery silk, relieving the plainness of the crown. The brim edge is softened by a border of the crepe falling about it. The most delicate of white roses are set between two sprays of white satin wheat that reflects the heart of summer, and a white georgette veil hangs from the back to three-quarters of the length of the figure. This would be as perfect for an outdoor wedding as it is for church or home.

Novelties in New Sweaters

An all-American idea has been taken up and is being exploited by the manufacturers of high-class sweaters. It is the introduction of decorations that look like and are inspired by the beadwork and other ornamental work done by American Indians on their garments. It is odd that this source of inspiration has not been more freely used, because it belongs to our own country and is distinctive and picturesque.

Anyone having a poor opinion of the ornamental beadwork and featherwork done by the Indians will gain respect for them by looking into the matter. In museums there are collections of their headresses and garments that are surprising. They have lavished patient work on them and their designing and color work are worth studying.

One of those new sweaters that carry the imagination back to the days of the pioneers is shown at the left of the picture. Instead of being made of fine doekin, slashed into a fringe at the bottom, it is of oyster-white silk, with a deep fringe of silk about the bottom. It is a square-necked, long-shouldered slipover, with the arms elegantly shaped and finished, and there are no sleeves.

About the neck and down the front what appears at first glance to be a pattern wrought in colored beads is a machine embroidery of small loops or knots. The girdle is of the same silk as the sweater and terminates in fringe.

These lovely new sweaters for "la belle sauvage" are made in several colors

KIDNEY TROUBLE NOT EASILY RECOGNIZED

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected

An examining physician for one of the prominent life insurance companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

We find that Swamp-Root is strictly an herbal compound and we would advise our readers who feel in need of such a remedy to give it a trial. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

"BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN"

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Ohio Woman.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these blemishes.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it at night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished on their own. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and give a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—Adv.

Self-Restraint Valuable.
For want of self-restraint many men are engaged all their lives in fighting with difficulties of their own making, and rendering success impossible by their own cross-strained ungentleness; whilst others, who may be much less gifted, make their way and achieve success by simple, patient equanimity, and self-control.—Samuel Smiles.

When a woman begins to assert her rights she magnifies her wrongs.

There are many kinds of foolishness, but the meanest kind is selfishness.

Portsmouth, Ohio.

"I suffered from irregularities, pains in my side and was so weak at times I could hardly get around to do my work, and as I had four in my family and three boarders it made it very hard for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. I took it and it has restored my health. It is certainly the best medicine for women's ailments I ever saw."—Mrs. SARA SHAW, R. No. 1, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Mrs. Shaw wrote the merit of this medicine and wrote this letter in order that other suffering women may find relief as she did.

Women who are suffering as she was should not drag along from day to day without giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice in regard to such ailments write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its forty years experience is at your service.

A Great Responsibility.

THE responsibility attached to the preparing of a remedy for infants and children is undoubtedly greater than that imposed upon the manufacturer of remedies for adults whose system is sufficiently strong to counteract, for a time at least, any injurious drug. It is well to observe that Castoria is prepared today, as it has been for the past 40 years, under the personal supervision of Mr. Chas. H. Fletcher.

What have makers of imitations and substitutes at stake? What are their responsibilities? To whom are they answerable? They spring up today, scatter their nefarious wares broadcast, and disappear tomorrow.

Could each mother see the painstaking care with which the prescription for Fletcher's Castoria is prepared: could they read the innumerable testimonials from grateful mothers, they would never listen to the subtle pleadings and false arguments of those who would offer an imitation of, or substitute for the tried and true Fletcher's Castoria.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Extracts from Letters by Grateful Parents to Chas. H. Fletcher.

G. J. English, of Springfield, Mass., says: "It was your Castoria that saved my child."
Mrs. Mary McGinnis, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "We have given our baby your Castoria ever since she was born, and we recommend it to all mothers."
N. E. Calmes, of Marion, Ky., says: "You have the best medicine in the world, as I have given your Castoria to my babies from first to last."
Mrs. Albert Ugrusky, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., says: "As I have had your Castoria in use for nearly three years, I am pleased to say it is just as represented. My children are both well and happy—thanks to Castoria."
R. P. Stockton, of New Orleans, La., says: "We began giving your Castoria to our baby when he was eight days old and have kept it up ever since, never having had to give any other medicine."
Mrs. Dolph Hornbuckle, of Colorado Springs, Colo., says: "We commenced giving your Castoria to our baby when she was four weeks old. She is now seven months and weighs 13 1/2 pounds. Everyone remarks: 'What a healthy looking baby.' We give Castoria credit for it."

HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES IF YOUR BACK ACHES

Do you feel tired and "worn-out"? Are you nervous and irritable? Don't sleep well at night? Have a "dragged out," unrested feeling when you get up in the morning? Dizzy spells? Bilious? Bad taste in the mouth, backache, pain or soreness in the loins, and abdomen? Severe distress when urinating, bloody, cloudy urine or sediment? All these indicate gravel or stone in the bladder, or that the poisonous microbes, which are always in your system, have attacked your kidneys.

You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The oil seeps gently into the walls and lining of the kidneys, and the little poisonous animal germs, which are causing the inflammation, are immediately attacked and chased out of your system without inconvenience or pain.

Success don't consist in never making blunders, but in never making the same one twice.—Josh Billings.

Are the Packers Profiteers? Plain Facts About the Meat Business

The Federal Trade Commission in its recent report on war profits, stated that the five large meat packers have been profiteering and that they have a monopoly of the market.

These conclusions, if fair and just, are matters of serious concern not only to those engaged in the meat packing business but to every other citizen of our country.

The figures given on profits are misleading and the statement that the packers have a monopoly is unsupported by the facts.

The packers mentioned in the report stand ready to prove their profits reasonable and necessary.

The meat business is one of the largest American industries. Any citizen who would familiarize himself with its details must be prepared for large totals.

The report states that the aggregate profits of four large packers were $140,000,000 for the three war years.

This sum is compared with $19,000,000 as the average annual profit for the three years before the war, making it appear that the war profit was $121,000,000 greater than the pre-war profit.

ditional profit makes only a fair return on this, and as has been stated, the larger portion of the profits earned has been used to finance huge stocks of goods and to provide additions and improvements made necessary by the enormous demands of our army and navy and the allies.

If you are a business man you will appreciate the significance of these facts. If you are unacquainted with business, talk this matter over with some business acquaintance—with your banker, say—and ask him to compare profits of the packing industry with those of any other large industry at the present time.

No evidence is offered by the Federal Trade Commission in support of the statement that the large packers have a monopoly. The Commission's own report shows the large number and importance of other packers.

The packers mentioned in the statement stand ready to prove to any fair-minded person that they are in keen competition with each other, and that they have no power to manipulate prices.

If this were not true they would not dare to make this positive statement.

Furthermore, government figures show that the five large packers mentioned in the report account for only about one-third of the meat business of the country.

They wish it were possible to interest you in the details of their business. Of how, for instance, they can sell dressed beef for less than the cost of the live animal, owing to utilization of by-products, and of the wonderful story of the methods of distribution throughout this broad land, as well as in other countries.

PRESIDENT WANTS JAPAN TO ASSIST ALLIES IN RUSSIA

Mikado's Ambassador Is Called to Secret Conference.

ENTENTE TO HELP CZECHS

Czecho-Slovaks Defeat Bolsheviks at Vladivostok and Occupy Nikolaevsk—Two Other Towns Captured.

Washington, July 10.—Further evidence that President Wilson is maturing a policy covering intervention in Russia to drive out the Germans was furnished, when it was learned that he invited Viscount Ishii, the Japanese ambassador, to the White House for a conference on the question.

Although the utmost secrecy prevails in regard to the conference, it is known that the Russian situation was the subject of discussion and it is assumed in diplomatic circles that the president laid before the ambassador the conclusion reached at the White House meeting last Saturday.

It is surmised in some diplomatic quarters that President Wilson requested Ambassador Ishii to acquaint his government with the fact that the United States favors the principle of military assistance to Russia. It is believed the president also wants to obtain from Tokyo the Japanese government's views of the immediate military action that is practicable on the part of Japan, including the number of troops which might be engaged in an expedition into Siberia, the distance it might penetrate, the extent of Chinese co-operation, and what collaboration by the American government is desirable.

Czechs Need Quick Help. The situation of the 50,000 Czecho-Slovak troops in Russia, who are at the present time holding Vladivostok, Irkutsk and Samara, shortly will become critical, it was learned on the highest authority, unless relief is instantly given to them.

It is understood that the plight of the Czecho-Slovaks, disassociated from the political phases of the Russian question, was recently the subject of study before the allied supreme war council at Versailles, which was attended, among others, by the premiers of France, England and Italy, and General Foch, and that the opinion of the council was that unless the Czecho-Slovaks should be rescued by the allies they would be slaughtered.

Japan Has Large Army. Japan is in a position to act with force to save the Czecho-Slovak troops, who already control one-half of Siberia with a handful of soldiers, half organized and not fully armed.

It is believed, therefore, that President Wilson has decided that the present moment is propitious for carrying into execution both projects, the relief of the Czecho-Slovaks and the creation of a new Russian front.

Czecho-Slovaks Win City. Shanghai, July 10.—After disarming the bolshevik forces at Vladivostok, says a dispatch from Vladivostok dated July 5, the Czecho-Slovaks advanced from the city, defeated a mixed force of bolsheviks and Austrian and German prisoners and occupied Nikolaevsk, a naval station on the Amur river.

Kerensky's Aids Taken. Paris, July 10.—Several prominent members of the Kerensky cabinet were among the alleged leaders of the revolt in Moscow, Russia, that followed the murder of Count von Mirbach, German envoy, arrested by the bolsheviks, according to dispatches received by Paris newspapers. The men taken included M. Tseretelli, former minister of the interior; M. Teheroff, former minister of agriculture; M. Skobeleff, former minister of labor, and General Savinkoff, former war minister. Dispatches of German origin report the receipt of a Russian wireless communication announcing that a state of siege had been declared in Moscow, but adding that the bolsheviks were in complete control of the situation.

Capture Bolsheviki Supplies. Tokyo, July 10.—Czecho-Slovak troops, advancing toward Nikolaevsk and Havarovsk, have clashed with the Red guards, says an official statement issued by the Japanese war office. The Czechs have been materially strengthened by the capture of the bulk of bolshevik provisions and munitions in Siberia, the statement adds.

Amsterdam, July 10.—Czech forces have occupied Syzran and Mossim, a Berlin dispatch announced. [Syzran and Mossim are near the Volga river, about 300 miles southeast of Nijni-Novgorod.]

MARTIAL LAW AT TEHERAN

Dispatch Tells of Riots and Other Disturbances as Result of Food Shortage.

Washington, July 10.—A dispatch received at the state department from the American legation at Teheran, Persia, states that on account of rioting arising from the food shortage and other disturbances the city has been placed under martial law. Nothing has been heard there from the American consul, who left Teheran many weeks ago.

LARGEST CORN CROP

GOVERNMENT ESTIMATES YIELD AT 3,160,000,000 BU.

Forecast for Wheat is Slightly Under the Estimate Made on June 1.

Washington, July 10.—First indications of this year's prospective yields of corn, white and sweet potatoes, tobacco, flax and rice are contained in the monthly crop forecast issued by the department of agriculture, in addition to the announcement that the total wheat crop, combining all wheat, was 891,000,000 bushels. The prospective corn production for this year, it was announced for the first time, will be 3,160,000,000 bushels, the department of agriculture estimate being based on conditions of July 1.

The corn harvest promises to be the largest on record, with a total of 3,160,000,000 bushels as forecast for the first time this season by the government. The average is almost 5 per cent smaller than that planted last year, the total being 113,835,000 acres.

The forecast for wheat, including both spring and winter, is slightly under the forecast of June 1, but is 240,000,000 bushels over the 1916 crop and 82,000,000 bushels in advance of the five-year average of production.

Wheat remaining on the farms on July 1 is estimated at 8,233,000 bushels, against 15,611,000 bushels last year and a five-year average of 29,066,000 bushels.

Other crop figures of interest in the July forecast show a 557,000,000 winter wheat possibility, against a five-year average of 552,000,000 bushels; a 334,000,000 bushel crop of spring wheat, with a 257,600,000 five-year average; an oats production of 1,437,000,000 bushels, against a 1916 production of 1,587,000,000 bushels; a barley crop of 230,000,000 bushels, 25,000,000 bushels better than the five-year average; a white potato crop of 406,000,000 bushels, better by 44,000,000 bushels than the five-year average crop, and a tobacco production of 1,187,000,000 pounds, in excess of the five-year average but less than the 1916 crop.

Flax shows a production of 15.8 of normal, nearly double the 1916 production, while rice exceeds all figures, with a 43.4 production.

Acres planted to the various crops and announced for the first time is: Corn, 113,835,000; white potatoes, 4,113,000; sweet potatoes, 859,000; tobacco, 1,452,900; flax, 1,967,000, and rice, 1,120,300.

A reduction of 40,000,000 bushels in the prospective wheat harvest was shown. Deterioration during June reduced the prospective winter wheat crop by 30,000,000 bushels and the spring wheat crop by 10,000,000 bushels.

GERMAN FOREIGN CHIEF OUT

Kaiser Accepts Resignation of Dr. Von Kuehlin, Says Berlin Dispatch.

Copenhagen, Denmark, July 10.—Emperor William has consented to the resignation of Dr. Richard von Kuehlin, the German foreign secretary, in the Wolff news bureau of Berlin says it is reliably reported.

It is expected Admiral von Hintze, German minister at Christiania and formerly minister to Mexico, will succeed him.

London, July 10.—With Von Kuehlin passes the first non-Prussian minister of foreign affairs Germany has ever had, the retiring secretary being, like Chancellor von Hertling, a Bavarian. There is every indication that the militarist junta at Berlin will bend might and main to see that Kuehlin is the last non-Prussian in the foreign office.

FEAT OF LOYAL WORKERS RECEIVES RECOGNITION.

General Pershing Declares That With Such Backing the Allies Can't Fail to Win.

Washington, July 9.—America's merchant fleet, grown to 10,040,650 gross tons by the construction of 1,622 new ships of 1,403,793 tons in the fiscal year ended June 30, was augmented on the Fourth of July by the unprecedented launching of nearly 100 ships.

The day's feat of the loyal army of workmen received recognition from the highest officials directing the nation's war activities.

"We are all comrades in a great cause," declared President Wilson in a message read as part of the launching ceremonies in 78 yards.

From General Pershing came the thanks of America's fighting men for the support of which the launchings are substantial evidence.

"With such backing we cannot fail to win," asserted the commander. Chairman Hurley of the shipping board said in a telegram to the yard managers: "Your employees will show the Kaiser."

SULTAN OF TURKEY IS DEAD

Constantinople Dispatch Says Ruler Died on Wednesday Night.

Amsterdam, July 6.—Mohammed V, sultan of Turkey, died at seven o'clock Wednesday night, says a Constantinople dispatch received here by way of Vienna.

Mohammed V, thirty-fifth sovereign of Turkey in direct descent of the house of Osman, founder of the empire, came to the throne by a coup d'etat on April 27, 1909, after having been held for 33 years a prisoner by his brother, Sultan Abdul II, in the royal palace and gardens in Constantinople. Mohammed V was born in Constantinople November 3, 1845. In 1914, at the outbreak of the present war, Mohammed issued a proclamation blaming the triple entente with struggling war on Turkey. The next heir to the throne, Yussef Izzeddine, is the son of the late Sultan Abdul Aziz.

KAISER BREAKS WITH RUSSIA

German Ruler in Rage Over Killing of General Von Mirbach.

KILLING SIGNAL FOR REVOLT

Bolshevik Forces and Revolutionary Socialists Clash in Moscow Following Assassination—Huns Put Blame on Allies.

London, July 10.—As soon as Emperor William heard of the assassination of Count von Mirbach, the German ambassador to Russia, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Russia, he ordered Secretary von Kuehlin to break off negotiations with the Russian delegation in Berlin.

A strong guard has been placed before the house of the bolshevik ambassador in Berlin, as it is feared the populace of the capital will inaugurate anti-Russian demonstrations.

All the German newspapers declare the murder of Count von Mirbach must inevitably have a great influence on Russo-German relations.

Lenine, the bolshevik premier, is endeavoring to placate the Germans by appointing an "extraordinary commission of investigation," to probe the death of Count von Mirbach. The commission is headed by "Comrade Peters."

Meanwhile Berlin is doing its utmost to make capital out of the murder of Mirbach. A German official account of the assassination concludes:

"The result of a preliminary inquiry permits the assumption that agents in the service of the entente are implicated in the affair."

As further indication that the Kaiser is determined to exact heavy toll from Russia as revenge, perhaps sending a big army to occupy Moscow, Petrograd and other cities, all the German newspapers declare the murder of Count von Mirbach must inevitably have a great influence on Russo-German relations, German forces now 300 miles west of Moscow are being heavily re-armed.

A Russian wireless dispatch claims that the uprising has been completely suppressed, and indicates that the suppression was sanguinary, the orders being that all who resisted should be "shot on the spot."

The Russian wireless also circulated the following, signed by M. Araloff, the chief Moscow commissioner: "The social revolutionists, by fraudulent means, captured for a few hours a small part of Moscow and the government telegraph office, whence they issued false reports of the suppression of the soviet in Moscow."

"I beg to announce that the mutiny was caused by a group of cheeky fools and was suppressed without difficulty by the Moscow garrison. The mutineers have been arrested and order has been restored."

"Several hundred participants in the rising have been arrested, among them Vice Chairman Alexandrovitch, while special orders have been issued to secure all members of the executive committee of the social revolutionary party."

The Czecho-Slovak forces which recently overthrew the bolshevik government at Vladivostok, says a dispatch from Tokyo under date of July 3 to the Exchange Telegraph company, have made prisoner the bolshevik commander and his staff. Everything is now quiet at the Russian Pacific port, the dispatch adds.

TROOPSHIP COVINGTON, ON WAY HOME, SEPT DOWN.

Six of Crew Reported Missing—Craft Formerly Was Big German Liner.

Six members of the crew are missing, but all the other men, with the ship's officers, have been landed at a French port.

No army personnel or passengers were aboard.

The Covington formerly was the Hamburg-American liner Cincinnati, which was laid up at Boston and taken over when the United States entered the war. She was 608 feet long and 16,330 gross tonnage.

The Covington was struck at 9:17 o'clock Monday night, while proceeding with a fleet of other transports conveyed by destroyers. The submarine was not sighted.

Mitchell Palmer, alien property custodian. The attorney general charged that Rumely purchased the stock of the Mail and Express company in June, 1917, from Henry L. Stoddard, and that in doing so he acted in behalf of the imperial German government. The attorney general charged that the German government paid to Rumely in several transactions connected with the purchase of the Mail $1,361,000. The payments, it was alleged, were concealed until their details were discovered by investigators for the department of justice and the New York state attorney general.

J. Koenekamp, president of the Commercial Telegraphers' union.

They also believe the bill will pass and the country saved the dangers growing out of a strike that would up to 850,000 miles of telegraph, so much needed for war orders.

A supply of provisions from the United States has arrived at Murmansk, the dispatch adds.

American and allied naval forces are guarding war supplies at Kola, terminal of the Trans-Siberian railroad on the Arctic.

Recent dispatches say the bolsheviks there were offering no resistance to the Finnish-German efforts to cut the railroad to Archangel and Kola and seize the military stores at those places and the whole Murman coast as well.

Basel, July 9.—Nicolai Lenine, bolshevik premier, has sent the following message to M. Joffe, Russian minister at Berlin, regarding the assassination of Count von Mirbach, the German ambassador at Moscow: "Two unknown men entered the German embassy at two o'clock this (Saturday) afternoon, having documents from a special committee. They threw a bomb in Count Mirbach's office, wounding him so severely that he died."

"The government is taking every measure to discover the murderers and bring them before a special revolutionary tribunal."

"The government requests you to express to the German government the Russian government's indignation and convey its sympathy to the family of the late count."

YANKS SEE 3 "SUBS" SUNK

British Transport Runs Into Nest of U-Boats Off the Irish Coast.

An Irish Port, July 6.—A British transport, carrying 7,400 American soldiers, ran into a nest of German submarines off the Irish coast and with the aid of a destroyer sank three of the U-boats.

An official of the British government on route to Washington, and other passengers reaching here told of the battle. The transport sank one of the submarines by ramming it and is now in dry dock in England. A large hole was torn in the side of the troopship by the collision.

The American soldiers lined the rail of the transport while the fight was in progress and as each of the submarines was sunk they threw their hats into the air and cheered the British gun crew. When the battle was over they hoisted the British flag on their shoulders and paraded the deck.

Major Mitchell became a flyer for the army after having been defeated last fall for re-election as mayor of New York. RAINBOW'S END A Novel

By REX BEACH Author of "The Iron Trail," "The Spoilers," "Heart of the Sunset," Etc.

(Copyright, by Harper and Brothers)

Esteban raised himself to his elbow. "You think it's a myth, a joke. Well, it's not. I know where it is. I found it!"

Norine gasped; Johnnie spoke soothingly: "Don't get excited, old man; you've talked too much today."

"Ha!" Esteban fell back upon his pillow. "I haven't any fever. I'm as sane as ever I was. That treasure exists, and that doubloon gave me the clue to its whereabouts. Don Esteban, my father, was cunning; he could hide things better than a magpie. It remained for me to discover his trick."

"He is raving," O'Reilly declared, with a sharp stare at his friend.

The girl turned loyally to her patient. "I'll believe you, Mr. Varona. I always believe everything about buried treasure. The bigger the treasure the more implicitly I believe in it. I simply adore pirates and such things; if I were a man I'd be one. Do you know, I've always been tempted to bury my money and then go look for it."

"I Know Where It Is. I Found It!"

"There is no doubt that my father had a great deal of money at one time," Esteban began; "he was the richest man in the richest city of Cuba."

O'Reilly shook his head dubiously and braced his back against a tree trunk; there was a look of mild disapprobation on his face as he listened to the familiar story of Don Esteban and the slave, Sebastian. When Esteban had finished, Norine drew a deep breath.

"Oh! That lays over any story I ever heard. To think that the deeds and the jewels and everything are in the well at this minute! Suppose somebody finds it?" Norine was agast at the thought.

"Not much chance of that. The treasure has lain there for a generation, and the story itself is almost forgotten." Esteban turned triumphantly to O'Reilly, saying, "Now, then, do you think I'm so crazy?"

O'Reilly didn't have it in his heart to say exactly what he really thought. What he more than half suspected was that some favored fancy had formed lodgment in Esteban's brain.

"It's an interesting theory," he admitted. "Anyhow, there is no danger of the treasure being uncovered very soon. Cuzco had a good look and made himself ridiculous. You'll have ample chance to do likewise when the war is over."

"You must help me find it," said Esteban. "We shall all share the fortune equally, you two, Rosa and I."

"We? Why should we share in it?" Norine asked.

"I owe it to you. Didn't O'Reilly rescue me from a dungeon? Haven't you nursed me back to health? Don't I owe my life to you both?"

"Nonsense! I, for one, shan't take a dollar of it."

"Oh, but you must. I insist. Nursing is a poorly paid profession. Wouldn't you like to be rich?"

"Profession! Poorly paid?" Norine uttered, angrily. "As if I'd take pay!"

"As if I would accept a great service and forget it, like some miserable beggar!" Esteban replied stiffly.

O'Reilly laughed out. "Don't let's quarrel over the spoil until we get it," said he. "That's the way with all treasure-hunters. They invariably find out and go to fighting. To avoid bloodshed, I'll agree to sell my interest cheap, for cash. My share of the famous Varona fortune going for a dollar!"

"There! He doesn't believe a word of it," Esteban said.

Norine gave an impatient shrug. "Some people wouldn't believe they were alive unless they saw their breath on a looking-glass. Goodness! How I hate a sneering skeptic, a wet blanket!"

O'Reilly rose with one arm shielding his face. "In the interest of friendship, I withdraw. A curse on these buried treasures, anyhow. We shall yet come to blows."

As he walked away he heard Norine say: "Don't pay any attention to him. We'll go and dig it up ourselves, and we won't wait until the war is over."

An hour later Esteban and his nurse still had their heads together. They were still talking of golden ingots and pearls from the Caribbean the size of plums when they looked up to see O'Reilly running toward them. He was visibly excited; he waved and shouted at them. He was panting when he arrived.

"News! From Matanzas!" he cried. "Gomez' man has arrived."

Esteban struggled to rise, but Norine restrained him. "Rosa? What does he say? Quick!"

"Good news! She left the Pan de Matanzas with the two negroes. She went into the city before Cobo's raid."

Esteban collapsed limply. He closed his eyes, his face was very white. He crossed himself weakly.

"The letter is definite. It seems they were starving. They obeyed Weyler's bando. They're in Matanzas now."

"Do you hear, Esteban?" Norine shook her patient by the shoulder. "She's alive. Oh, can't you see that it always pays to believe the best?"

"Alive! Safe!" Esteban whispered. His eyes, when he opened them, were swimming; he clutched Norine's hand tightly; his other hand he extended to O'Reilly. "A reconcentrado! In Matanzas! Well, that's good. We have friends there—they'll not let her starve. This makes a new man of me. See! I'm strong again. I'll go to her."

"You'll go?" quickly cried Miss Evans. "You'll go! You're not strong enough. It would be suicide. You, with a price upon your head! Everybody knows you there. Matanzas is virtually a walled city. There's sickness, too—yellow fever, typhus—"

"Exactly. And hunger, also. I suppose no one has taken Rosa in? Those concentration camps aren't nice places for a girl."

"But wait! I have friends in Washington. They're influential. They will cable the American consul to look after her. Anyhow, you mustn't think of returning to Matanzas," Norine faltered; her voice caught unexpectedly and she turned her face away.

O'Reilly nodded shortly. "You're a sick man," he agreed. "There's no need for both of us to go."

Esteban looked up. "Then you—"

"I leave at once. The Old Man has given me a commission to General Betancourt, and I'll be on my way in an hour. The moon is young; I must cross the trocha before—"

"That trocha!" Esteban was up on his elbow again. "Be careful there, O'Reilly. They keep a sharp lookout, and it's guarded with barbed wire. Be sure you cut every strand. Yes, and muffle your horse's hoofs, too, in crossing the railroad track. That's how we were detected. Pablo's horse struck a rail, and they fired at the sound. He fell at the first volley, riddled. Oh, I know that trocha!"

"D— the trocha!" O'Reilly exclaimed. "At last I've got a chance to do something. God! How long I've waited!"

Esteban drew O'Reilly's tense form down and embraced his friend, after the fashion of his people. "She has been waiting, too," he said, huskily. "We Varonas are good waiters, O'Reilly. Rosa will never cease waiting until you come. Tell her, for me—"

Norine withdrew softly out of earshot. There was a lump in her throat and a pain in her breast. She had acquired a peculiar and affectionate interest in this unhappy girl whom she had never seen, and she had learned to respect O'Reilly's love. The yearning that had pulsed in his voice a moment before had stirred her deeply; it awoke a throb in her own bosom, for O'Reilly was dear to her. The pacifics, according to all reports, were dying like flies in the prison camps. Norine wondered if there might not be a terrible heartache at the end of O'Reilly's quest? Her face was grave and worried when, hearing him speak to her, she turned to take his outstretched hand.

"You will be careful, won't you?" she implored. "And you'll be stout of heart, no matter what occurs?"

He nodded. "It's a long way back here to Cubitas. You may not see or hear from me again."

"I understand." She choked miserably. "You mean you may not come back. Oh, Johnnie!"

"Tut, tut! We O'Reillys have more lives than a litter of cats. I mean I may not see you until the war is over and we meet in New York. Well, we've been good pals, and—I'm glad you come to Cuba." His grasp upon her two hands was painful.

"You must go, I know, and I wouldn't try to keep you, but—" Norine faltered, then impulsively she drew him down and kissed him full upon the lips. "For Rosa!" she whispered. Her eyes were shining as she watched him pass swiftly out of sight.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Trocha.

Of all the military measures employed by the Spaniards in their wars against Cuban independence, perhaps the most unique was the trocha—trench or traverse. Martinez Campos during the Ten Years' war built the first trocha just west of the Cubitas mountains where the waist of the island is narrowest. Not until Weyler's time were the two methods of pacification, the trocha and the concentration camp, developed to their fullest extent. Although his trochas hindered the free movement of Cuban troops and his prison camps decimated the peaceful population of several provinces, the Spanish cause gained little. Both trenches and prison camps became Spanish graveyards.

At the time Johnnie O'Reilly set out for Matanzas the war—a war without battle, without victory, without defeat—had settled into a grim contest of endurance. In the east, where the insurgents were practically supreme, there was food of a sort, but beyond the Jucaro-Moron trocha—the old one of Campos' building—the country was sick. Immediately west of it, in that district which the Cubans called Las Villas, the land lay dying, while the entire provinces of Matanzas, Habana and Pinar del Rio were practically dead. These three were skeletons, picked bare of flesh by Weyler's beak.

The Jucaro-Moron trocha had been greatly strengthened since Campos' day. It followed the line of the trans-Insular railway. Dotted at every quarter of a mile along the grade were little forts connected by telephone and telegraph lines. Between these fortifications were sentry stations of logs or railroad ties. Eyes were keen, rifles were ready, challenges were sharp, and countersigns were quickly given on the Jucaro-Moron trocha.

In O'Reilly's party there were three men besides himself—the ever-faithful Jacket, a wrinkled old Camagueyan who knew the bridle trails of his province as a fox knows the tracks to its lair, and a silent gaucho from farther west, detailed to accompany the expedition because of his wide acquaintance with the devastated districts. Both guides, having crossed the trocha more than once, affected to scorn its terrors, and their easy confidence reassured O'Reilly in spite of Esteban's parting admonition.

The American had not dreamed of taking Jacket along, but when he came to announce his departure the boy had flatly refused to be left behind.

Fifty miles of hard riding brought the party to the trocha; they neared it on the second morning after leaving Cubitas, and sought a secluded camping spot. Later in the day Hilario, the old Camagueyan, slipped away to reconnoiter. He returned at twilight, but volunteered no report of what he had discovered. After an insistent cross-examination O'Reilly wrung from him the reluctant admission that everything seemed favorable for a crossing some time that night, and that he had selected a promising point. Beyond that the old man would say nothing.

Supper, a simple meal, was quickly disposed of. Then followed a long, dispiriting wait, for a gibbous moon rode high in the sky and the guides refused to stir so long as it remained there. It was a still night; in the jungle no air was stirring, and darkness brought forth a torment of mosquitoes. As day died the woods awoke to sounds of bird and insect life; strange, raucous calls poured forth, some familiar, others strange and unaccustomed. Sitting there in the dark, bedeviled by a pest of insects, mocked at by these mysterious voices, and looking forward to a hazardous enterprise, O'Reilly began to curse his vivid imagination and to envy the impassiveness of his companions. Even Jacket, he noted, endured the strain better; the boy was cheerful, philosophical, quite unimpressed by his surroundings. When the mosquitoes became unbearable he put on his trousers, with some reluctance and much ceremony.

Midnight brought a moist, warm breeze and a few formless clouds which served at times to dimly obscure the moon. Watching the clouds, O'Reilly hoped that they might prove to be the heralds of a storm. None came. When the moon had finally crept down into the treetops old Hilario stepped upon his cigarette, then began silently to saddle up. The others followed with alacrity, and fell in behind him as he led the way into the forest.

When they had covered a couple of miles Hilario reined in and the others crowded close. Ahead, dimly discernible against the night sky, there appeared to be a thinning of the woods. After listening for a moment or two, Hilario dismounted and slipped away; the three riders sat their saddles with ears strained.

Hilario returned with word that all was well, and each man dismounted to muffle the feet of his horse with rags and strips of gunnysack provided for the purpose. Then, one by one, they moved forward to the edge of the clearing. The trocha lay before them.

O'Reilly felt a pair of reins thrust into his hand and found Hilario examining a large pair of tinners' shears. "Do you wish me to go with you?" he inquired of the guide.

The latter shook his head. "Antonio will go; he will keep watch while I clear a path. If anything goes wrong, wait here. Don't ride away until we have time—"

"Never fear. I won't desert you," the American reassured him.

The two white-clad figures slipped away, became indistinct, and then disappeared. The night was hot, the mosquitoes hummed dismally and settled in clouds upon the waiting pair, maddening them with their poison. A half-hour passed, then the two ghostly figures materialized once more.

"Dios!" grumbled Hilario. "There are many strings to this Spanish guitar. What a row when they discover that I have played a Cuban danczon upon it!" The old man seemed less surly than before.

"Is the way clear?" O'Reilly inquired.

"As far as the railroad, yes. We heard voices there, and came back. We will have to cut our way forward after we cross the track. Now, then, follow me without a sound."

Leading his horse by the bit ring, Hilario moved out into the clearing, followed once more by his three companions. In spite of all precautions the animals made a tremendous racket, or so it seemed, and, despite Hilario's twisting and turnings, it was impossible to avoid an occasional loop of barbed wire, therefore flesh and clothing suffered grievously. But at length the party brought up under the railroad embankment and paused. As carefully as might be the four men ascended the slope, crossed the rails and descended into the ditch on the other side. Another moment and they encountered a taut strand of barbed wire. The metallic snap of Hilario's shears sounded like a pistol shot to O'Reilly. Into the maze of strands they penetrated, yard by yard, clipping and carefully laying back the wire as they went. Progress was slow; they had to feel their way; the sharp bars brought blood and muttered profanity at every step.

None of the four ever knew what gave the alarm. Their first intimation of discovery came with a startling "Quien vive?" hurled at them from somewhere at their backs.

An instant and the challenge was followed by a Mauser shot. Other reports rang out as the sentry emptied his rifle in their direction.

"So! They are shooting bats!" Hilario grunted.

Antonio swung about and cocked his Remington, but the other spoke sharply. "Fool! If you shoot they will see the fire and riddle us. A curse on the spider that spun this web!"

It was a test of courage to crouch among the charred stumps, enmeshed in that cruel tangle of wire, while the night was stabbed by daggers of fire and while the trocha awoke to the wild alarm. From somewhere in the distance came a shouted command and the sound of running feet, suddenly putting an end to further inaction. Antonio began to back viciously with his machete, in an effort to aid Hilario's labors. The sound of his sturdy blows betrayed the party's whereabouts so clearly that finally the older man could restrain himself no longer.

"Give it to them, compadres; it is a game that we can play!"

O'Reilly had been gripping his rifle tensely, his heart in his throat, his pulses pounding. As near a panic as he had ever been, he found, oddly enough, that the mere act of throwing his weapon to his shoulder and firing it calmed him. The kick of the gun subdued his excitement and cleared his brain. He surprised himself by directing Jacket in a cool, authoritative voice, to shoot low. When he had emptied the magazine he led two of the horses forward. Then, grasping his own machete, he joined in clearing a pathway.

It seemed an interminable time ere they had extricated themselves from the trap, but finally they succeeded and gained the welcome shelter of the woods, pausing inside its shelter to cut the muffles from their horses' feet. By this time the defenders of the trocha were pouring volley after volley at random into the night.

Now that the skirmish was over, Jacket began to boast of his part in it. "Ha! Perhaps they'll know better than to show themselves the next time I come this way," said he. "You saw me, didn't you? Well, I made a few Spanish widows tonight."

When no one disputed his assertion Jacket proceeded further in praise of himself, only to break off with a wordless cry of dismay.

"What's the matter?" Johnnie inquired.

"Look! Behold me!" wailed the hero. "I have left the half of my beautiful trousers on that barbed wire!"

Antonio swung a leg over his saddle saying: "Come along, amigos; we have fifty leagues ahead of us. The war will be over while we stand here gossipping."

O'Reilly's adventures on his swift ride through Las Villas have no part in this story. It is only necessary to say that they were numerous and varied, that O'Reilly experienced excitement aplenty, and that upon more than one occasion he was forced to think and to act quickly in order to avoid a clash with some roving guerrilla band.

Food became a problem immediately after the travelers had crossed the trocha. Such apprehensive families as still lurked in the woods were liberal enough—Antonio, by the way, knew all of them—but they had little to give, and, in consequence, O'Reilly's party learned the taste of wild fruits, berries and palmetto hearts. Once they managed to kill a small pig, the sole survivor of some obscure country tragedy, but the rest of the time their meat, when there was any, consisted of iguanas—those big, repulsive lizards—and jutias, the Cuban bat rats.

Fortunately there was no shortage of food for the horses, and so, despite the necessity of numerous detours, the party made good time. They crossed into Matanzas, pushed on over rolling hills, through sweeping savannas, past empty clearings and deserted villages, to their journey's end. A fortunate encounter with a rebel parida from General Betancourt's army enabled them to reach headquarters without loss of time, and one afternoon, worn, haggard and hungry, they dismounted in front of that gallant officer's hut.

General Betancourt read the letter which O'Reilly handed him, then looked up with a smile.

"So! You are one of Gomez' Americans, eh? Well, I would never have known it, to look at you; the sun and the wind have made you into a very good Cuban. And your clothes—One might almost mistake you for a Cuban cabinet officer."

The KITCHEN CABINET

Best be the tongue that speaks no ill, Whose words are always true, That keeps the law of kindness still Whatever others do.

Best be the hands that toil to aid The great world's ceaseless need— The hands that never are afraid To do a kindly deed.

IN CHERRY TIME.

The cherry pie is considered the sine qua non of pie excellence; and who could refuse a wedge of juicy lusciousness? Cherries, like many of our fruits, cannot be enjoyed to the full until one may pick and eat from the trees when the fruit is in its prime. Fine varieties are the wonderful Bing and Royal Ann which grow in perfection in southern Idaho where the trees are as large as an ordinary shade tree, carrying tons of the luscious fruit. An experience never to be forgotten is to ride under those trees, picking the great juicy cherries, so solid that there is no danger of staining the gown, with all the lap can hold.

Spiced Cherries.—Cherries are spiced as any other fruit. Take seven pounds of the cherries to five pounds of sugar, three tablespoons each of cinnamon and cloves tied in a cloth and cooked in a pint of vinegar. Cook all together an hour and a half very slowly. Remove the bag of spices, if desired, before putting away.

Cherry Olives.—Get the rich, dark, well-flavored cherries. To a pint of the cherries left with the stems on add a cup each of water and vinegar; add a teaspoonful of salt and seal. They will be ready as an appetizer in two weeks.

Pickled Cherries.—Put the desired quantity of cherries and cover over night with a good vinegar; in the morning drain and add an equal weight of sugar. Stir occasionally through the day, then set away in a cool cellar, covered with a cloth and plate. The vinegar may be sweetened and bottled for a summer drink.

"Is everybody's business In this old world of ours, To root up all the weeds and ends And make room for the flowers, So that every little garden No matter where it lies, May look like that which God once made, And called it Paradise."

SUMMER DISHES.

When cooking peas wash the pods and boil them first, reserving the liquor to cook the peas. This is a French method of conservation and gives the peas a much finer flavor. Add a teaspoonful of sugar to the water when cooking the peas and sometime, for a change of flavor, drop in a bunch of mint.

Lettuce is so commonly served fresh and crisp with a dressing of bacon fat that it must remind ourselves that it is both tasty and wholesome cooked as one does any vegetable. When lettuce gets a little old is the best time to turn it into greens. Dress it with butter, pork fat, or in any way to give it a good seasoning. It may be cooked until tender, then served with thin cream or milk, with seasonings as one does tender cabbage.

Cucumbers are another vegetable so commonly served uncooked that we forget how good they are cooked until tender and served with a butter sauce, seasoning with onion juice, salt and pepper.

Swiss chard is a vegetable which should find its way into every garden. When very young it may be used as a crisp salad, with French dressing, and when well grown as greens. Spinach is another most wholesome green which, when eaten freely in the spring and summer, will supply all the iron needed in most diets. In this season of the year when there is such a wealth of fruit and vegetables we should see that they are served every day upon our tables. For those who accuse the salad of giving them indigestion, let them look into the whole meal and especially the salad dressing. Mustard when used in even small quantities will cause stomach trouble. When using mustard the merest suggestion is sufficient. French dressing is easy to make and on the whole is the most wholesome of salad dressings. If your family do not like olive oil, teach them to like it, for it is quite worth while.

Nut Potato Salad.—Mix a cupful of pecan meats, broken in bits with two cupfuls of rice potato. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, add onion juice and marinate with French dressing. Serve on watercress with a boiled dressing.

Mastery to Love Thy Neighbor. It is no mastery to watch and fast till the head aches; nor to run to Rome or Jerusalem on pilgrimages upon thy bare feet; nor to sit about and preach, as if thou wouldst turn all men by thy preaching. Nor is it any mastery to build churches or chapels, or to feed poor men and build hospitals. But it is a mastery for a man to love his neighbor in charity, and wisely hate his sin and love the man.—Walter Hilton (1396).

Greater mistake can be made than imagining it is economy to buy the cheapest Harness and Collars, because the price seems to be low. The shoddy character of cheap goods takes away all apparent saving and always conduces to dissatisfaction. I make a special point on the character of my goods. I positively deal in goods of reliable workmanship and A-1 material. The lowest prices consistent with market conditions. I invite inspection of goods and prices.
